Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily, 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

social work staffs in other communities?

* * *

A gentleman who signs himself "Candidus," writing in an English journal, has this to say of hymns. Read, and then write in your selections. "In answer to many requests to say which are the 'twenty hymns that are not rubbish,' I give the following:

"A Safe Stronghold Is Our God (Luther's chorale).
"Now Thank We All Our God.
"O Come, All Ye Faithful (Adeste Fideles).
"Onward, Christian Soldiers.
"O God, Our Help in Ages Past.
"Nearer, My God, to Thee.
"God Save the King.
"God Save the People (Ebenezer Elliott, the Chartist's hymn).
"The Old Hundredth.
"Eternal Father, Strong to Save.
"These have high quality both in words and music and are free from the besetting sin of sentimentality which spoils most hymns. The others I may mention when I have found my lost hymn-book."

* * *

Leon C. Palmer, in his new little book on "The Ministry of Laymen," says that some Christians are like the little girl in the following rhyme:

"I gave a little party
This afternoon at three;
'Twas very small; three guests in all,
Just I, myself, and me.
Myself ate up the sandwiches,
While I drank up the tea;
'Twas also I who ate the pie,
And passed the cake to me."

And here is a paraphrase, written by the Rev. Frank Wilson, and printed in his interesting parish monthly:

"I took three friends to church one day,
As happy as could be;
We parked our feet beneath a seat—
Just I, myself, and me.
I wore my nicest dress that day,
So everyone could see;
'Twas also I who sang so high,
And said my prayers for me.
Aren't we well satisfied with ourselves?"

* * *

One often reads with gratitude, about large bequests made to the Church, Missions, Hospitals and Schools by wealthy Churchmen. This is the story of a man of humble occupation, who "of his penurty cast in all that he had." William E. Lyons, for many years a communicant of Trinity Church, Greeley, Colorado (Rev. Samuel E. West, Rector) entered into Paradise Tuesday May 3rd, 1927. "Billy" was a janitor by occupation. On account of his work, the only service that he could regularly attend was the early Communion on Sunday morning. But he was always

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily Services: 7:30 and 10:00 A. M. 5 P. M.,

The Incarnation, New York.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D.
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Sundays, 8, 10, 11, and 4.

Trinity Church, New York.
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York.
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York.
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, and 8.
Daily, 8 and Noon. Holy Days and Thursdays, 11.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp & Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address
THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:
REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write
REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,
REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address
REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — in a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.
Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector
ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

there, except when ill, and it was his invariable custom to "take up the collection," a task which he dignified. He was somewhat crippled in body and never robust, but he always did his work cheerfully, and was seldom known to complain. Billy had no immediate family, and lived very simply. It was known that he had been able to save, although he had always supported the work of the parish very generously. When his will was opened, it developed that he had left the sum of $2,500 to Trinity Church, and all of the residue to charitable objects. Among those included were the Odd Fellows Home, the City Hospital, the Lodge of Rebeccas, and the Greeley Community Chest. Of the amount left in trust to the parish, the income only will be available for a period of ten years, after which the entire amount is to be paid to the Church. On the Fourth Sunday after Easter, a memorial service was held in the parish Church, attended by members of the Odd Fellows and Rebecca lodges, officials of the bank in which he worked as caretaker, and friends. The people of the parish hope to install a bell as a memorial to Billy Lyons, to summon the people to the service which he loved, and which he attended so faithfully.

Answers

1. Consecration of Bishop Seabury; organization of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society; consecration of Bishop Kemper; beginning of the Church School Lenten Offering; organization of the Presiding Bishop and Council.
2. Sewanee (4); Pacific (8); Mid-West (5); New England (1); Southwest (7).
3. Second (Porto Rico), Fourth (Canal Zone), and Eighth (Alaska, Honolulu, and Philippines).
4. They are spiritual heads of National Churches in the Anglican Communion: American, English, and Welsh, respectively.
5. Ascension Day; in the Table of Fasts, page xxiv.
6. Green 180, violet 95, white 70, red 20.
7. The Bishop's rochet (rubric, page 595).
8. They are heads of Church colleges in the United States.
9. The Philippines; Tennessee; Alaska; New Mexico; Milwaukee.
10. First Bishop of Maryland, and the first Bishop of the Anglican Communion to be consecrated in the United States.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.000 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, social. or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, Pesident,
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address
THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to
REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
College Preparatory and General Courses
MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Topeka, Kansas
The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President
Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

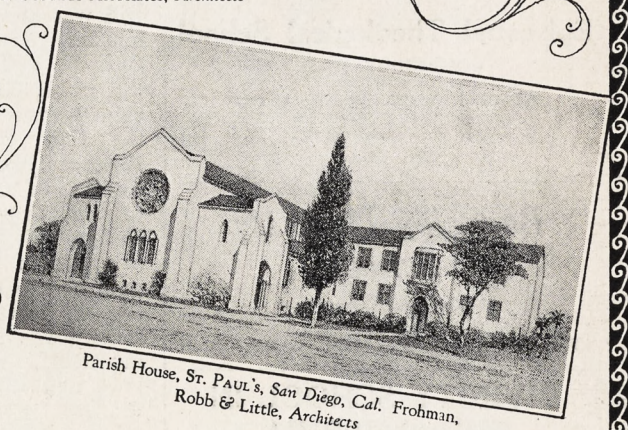
CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.
ADDRESS:
DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.



Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Parish House, St. John's, Hartford, Conn. Bertram G. Goodhue Associates, Architects

Parish House, St. Thomas', Mamaroneck, N. Y.
Chas. T. Oakley, Architect

Parish House, St. Paul's, San Diego, Cal. Frohman,
Robb & Little, Architects

Parish House, St. Mary's, Ardmore, Pa.
Daily & Basset, Architects

Sums ranging from

$65,000 to $155,000

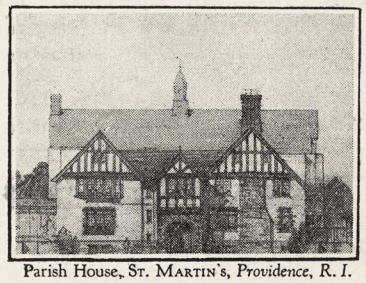
for the parish houses, illustrated on this page, have been raised under the direction of

WARD, WELLS DRESHMAN & GATES



pioneers and acknowledged leaders in the field of philanthropic finance

Parish House, The Redeemer, Pelham, N. Y.
Frank M. Snyder, Architect

Parish House, Calvary, Summit, N. J.
Averill & Craft, Architects

Parish House, St. Martin's, Providence, R. I.
Clarke & Howe, Architects

The following are some of the Episcopal Church projects thus financed:

National Cathedral (local) Washington, D.C.	$1,059,627	St. Mary's, Ardmore, Pa.	110,000
Episcopal Divinity School, Philadelphia, Pa.	1,008,947	St. Paul's, Albany, N. Y.	110,000
St. Margaret's School, Waterbury, Conn.	302,406	St. Luke's, Rochester, N. Y.	103,000
St. John's, Hartford, Conn.	155,000	St. John's, Passaic, N. J.	100,000
Calvary Church, Summit, N. J.	152,000	St. Thomas', Mamaroneck, N. Y.	77,400
St. Andrew's, Albany, N. Y.	141,000	Grace Church, White Plains, N. Y.	65,000
St. Paul's, Brooklyn, N. Y.	135,628	St. Paul's, San Diego, Cal.	63,000
St. Martin's, Providence, R. I.	122,000	Church of the Advent, Chicago, Ill.	61,737
St. Paul's, Yonkers, N. Y.	110,286	Church of the Redeemer, Pelham, N. Y.	60,520

We are now directing a campaign for $1,000,000 for an Episcopal Church, and have been retained to direct a campaign next Fall for $1,000,000 for an Episcopal Hospital.

WARD, WELLS, DRESHMAN & GATES

PHILANTHROPIC ORGANIZATION AND FINANCE

NEW YORK—475 FIFTH AVENUE CHICAGO—WRIGLEY BLDG.

Originators of the Intensive Method of Fund Raising

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

BLEACHER CRITICS — Bishop Johnson

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, JUNE 16, 1927

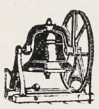
MADONNA AND CHILD

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church. (DEMS) Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

workers in glass ✠ mosaic ✠ church decoration



For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

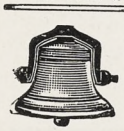
There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 697 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.



Baltimore, Md.

CASSOCKS

Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Eucharistic and Choir Vestments. Materials for Hangings and stoles cut to measure and stamped. Barettas, Rabats, Collars, Cuffs, Shirts. Moderate Prices.

J. M. HALL, Inc.

9 E. 35th St., New York. Tel. Caledonia 8648

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts. NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE N. J.

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS

Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street

Designers of

HISTORICAL WINDOWS

Washington Memorial Chapel

Valley Forge, Pa.

Clerestory Windows

St. Thomas Church New York City

Stained Glass, Mural Decorations, Glass Mosaics

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W. HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings

Gorgeous Combinations of Color

Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

The Charm of Golden-Voiced Chimes

is within reach of your church, too!

Imagine the rich, musical tones of

Deagan Tower Chimes

coming from the belfry of your church—a constant inspiration to worship; a golden voice eagerly awaited by multitudes every day. Write for plan.

Standard Sets $6,000 and Up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

If you are attending the

ANGLO-CATHOLIC CONGRESS

in London, in July,

DO NOT FAIL TO VISIT THE

ECCLESIASTICAL ART SHOWROOMS

OF

J. WIPPELL & Co., Ltd.,

4 & 5, DUNCANNON STREET, CHARING CROSS.

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows

Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates on application to

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

EST. 1877

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— OFFICE AND STUDIO —

221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS · AND · BUILDERS · OF · ECCLESIASTIC · MEMORIAL · WINDOWS.

— PHOTOS, DESIGNS AND ESTIMATES UPON APPLICATION —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XI. No. 43 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

BLEACHER CRITICS

Don't Be A Pop-Bottle Thrower

BY BISHOP JOHNSON

THE religious situation in the United States is in a curious state.

It is as though one had an orchestra in which each player was trying sincerely to make music, but more concerned with impressing the public with the tones of his own instrument than intent on blending his instrument with those of other performers.

The mantle of the Pharisees seems to have fallen upon the descendants of the Puritans, with the result that each group of Christians is convinced that it is right and despises those who differ from them.

The result upon those without is that they esteem Christ and His religion greatly but look askance at the ecclesiastical performances of His disciples.

We have confused blare of instruments rather than a harmonious symphony and a great deal of buck passing as to where the responsibility for the discord may lie.

In order to get any head or tail to the controversy one must define terms. The confused chatter of religious controversy usually proceeds from a vague conception of the primary elements in the discussion. So let us lay down certain very fundamental assertions for consideration.

Fixing Responsibility

First, who is responsible for religion, good, bad and indifferent though it may be?

I think that the only rational answer to this question is that I am. In the world in which I live I am responsible for what I do and don't do; for what I believe or don't believe; for what I do or leave undone.

There is no individual or collection of individuals upon whose shoulders I can place the responsibility for my commissions or omissions. I cannot exonerate myself from responsibility because some one else has failed to carry out an ideal that he may have been pledged to carry out.

It is not rational to say that the Church has misrepresented the ideals of Christ and therefore I may ignore any share which I may have in doing that which the Church ought to do.

"The Church" is a bogey which may not be invoked to become the scapegoat of my own inertia.

To say that you accept religion but not the Church is like saying that you are for steam but not for engines, because engines waste 85 per cent of the steam that is delivered to them.

Steam is a very valuable thing if you use engines, but it is just a fog bank if you discard the instruments through which it acts.

It is quite the fashion to confuse ideals with performances. The ideals of Christ may be set down as one hundred per cent; the performances of Church members may be set down as fifteen per cent; the performances of those who refuse to act because the last percentage is no greater may be set down as no per cent.

It is very easy to sit in the bleachers and criticize the team but it is impossible to sit in the bleachers and win the game. It is the functon of the cheer-leader to intoxicate the bleacherites so that they may aid the team to win by encouragement, but there his function ceases. He cannot win the game with his expert criticism.

Sin of Inertia

Second, who is responsible for the failures of the Church wherever that failures is demonstrated?

The chief factor in the failure is the inertia, stubbornness of all human nature. But insofar as I am concerned in the problem it is my inertia and my stubbornness that should be given my attention and not the inertia and stubbornness of others.

Why on earth should a critic, like Sinclair Lewis, for instance, assume that some one else ought to be doing something because he is not a church member, while he himself is not lifting one little finger to help on the very curious ground that he does not belong.

Who exonerates him from discharging the responsibilities that he claims that the Church member avoids? Does becoming a Church member suddenly fix a single responsibility on the shoulders of any human which he did not have before? One gets sick and tired of these bellowing calves, who have grown beyond the heifer stage, who call out reproachfully to the other heifers to give milk when they have a duty in that direction themselves to perform. Does a heifer assume responsibility to give milk only when she has been registered?

The failure of the Church is due to every able bodied man who misrepresents its ideals, if within it; and who merely criticizes its ideals if he is on the outside.

Failure of Ministers

Third, who is to blame for the inefficiency of ministers?

We are confronted in the Mississippi Valley with an epochal flood which baffles the skill of engineers. Are the engineers individually to blame? Or is it fair to assume that where all the engineers fail we are confronted with a problem which is, at least for the present, beyond their powers?

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

In every profession there is a limit marked by the limitation of the human mind.

I have known freaks who said that there was no such word as "can't," but I have always noticed that what other people can't do they seldom attempt.

I am inclined to believe that a general inability of mortals to meet a situation adequately is rather due to the limitations of human power than to the deliberate hypocrisies of human pretense.

Ministers have the hardest stuff to handle of any professional men. They handle human critics, each of whom is persuaded that he himself is right and despises those who would attempt to show him that he is wrong.

My knowledge of ministers convinces me that they are as a whole equal, or nearly equal, in average mentality, morality and motivation to other groups of men. And you can no more generalize about them than you can about bankers, grocers or novelists. I also know that those ministers who do make a success of their ministry could command three times the salary and four times the adulation that they now receive if they had passed the buck of going into the ministry to some of their Pharisaical critics.

Cheerful Confidences

RETROSPECTION

By Rev. George P. Atwater

THERE is an experience common to us all that we call retrospection, or the practice of looking back. Too much retrospection is detrimental to the spirit of progress. But a little retrospection is soothing.

I am rather of the opinion that many of us enjoy certain books, or pictures, or phrases, or songs, not because they have any special appeal in themselves, but because they recall early happy associations and experiences.

Take reading the Bible for example. If, as a child, one became familiar with the Bible, and it became associated with pleasant experiences, with fascinating Sunday School socials, with enjoyable groups, or with home and mother, then in mature years the hearing of the Bible, or the reading of it, is accompanied by a genial reminiscent glow that is thoroughly agreeable.

If, as a lad, you studied the story of David with the fair-haired girl beside you, whom you thought to be an angel from heaven, and whose parents you thought to be thrice blessed because they could enjoy her company three times a day at meals, then in later years you listen to that story with an interest which would not be aroused if you heard it in manhood for the first time.

I am quite sure that Henry Ford is rehabilitating the school house to which Mary's lamb followed her, not because of any exceptional interest in education, or to help to reconstruct the scenes of the past, but because the process of rebuilding that school revives early associations of those days on the farm, when he first heard those words, days when, with his neighbors, the MacDonalds and the MacFarlands, he enjoyed the simple pleasures of rural obscurity.

If you want to get a real thrill visit a school room today, and hear the alert teacher instructing the children in the very subjects which you labored over when young. I am always tempted to enter a schoolhouse when I happen to be near one, for the sake of the romantic association.

Consider the point of view of the traveler. I once met in Europe, a group of students on their way, in a Ford car, to visit a village in which had been laid the scene of a story they had read, in German, in college. What were they doing? They were trying to revive the glow of college associations.

I can never pick up my college textbook containing Homer in the original, without thinking at once of the bare pleasant classroom, in which I sat on wintry mornings, with the park outside mantled in snow, pondering over the Greek words with the thought in my mind that I was half owner of a bobsled, and that in the afternoon I should be gliding down the historic hills of our classic grove. I sometimes pick up that Homer, not to read the Greek, but to recall the sensation of coasting.

He who visits London or Paris without some happy associations connected with the very words, has lost an experience that is very alluring.

All of which leads up to a perfectly obvious lesson. It is this. Let your reveries become auxiliary power to move forward, not brakes to impede progress.

On the Cover

THE photograph on the cover is of a statue of the Madonna and Child that is in the Dix Memorial Chapel, Trinity Church, New York, and is considered one of the most beautiful of the priceless art objects that are to be seen in this historic parish. It was modeled in the studios of Irving & Casson—A. H. Davenport Co., of New York and Boston. The Chapel is a Memorial to the Rev. Morgan Dix for many years the rector of Trinity Church, and one of the outstanding clergymen of the Church in America.

Young Peoples Column

By Rev. W. A. Jonnard

WHILE preparing for camps and summer conferences, although I know that most programs are already arranged, I should like to suggest a special feature which may recommend itself to those in charge. I refer to the very popular "indoor sport" or pastime, "Ask Me Another," which this summer has taken the place of the Treasure Hunt fad of last year.

Of course, the "Question Box" has been used before. That is really what it amounts to, called by a new name. It has seemed to prove popular in church school classes and young people's organizations. In my Bible class of high school girls and post graduates, and in my Friday morning Woman's Bible class, this feature has proven of great interest, as well as affording considerable opportunity for information and instruction.

"What are the questions young people would ask?" you might inquire. You'd be surprised—just try! In any group of young people in camp or conference I have encouraged this Question Box feature, and I have always felt that the results justified its place upon the program of such gatherings.

Here are some of the questions that have come from young people at Sewanee, Racine, Sioux Falls, Kentucky, and other places, and they range from the simplest to the most abstruse:

"What does 'social' mean in Social Service?"

"What does the 'Kingdom of God' mean?"

"Explain about Jesus' brothers and sisters."

"Why did our Lord choose Judas if He knew he was going to betray Him?"

"What is meant by 'The Body' in the term 'Resurrection of the Body'?"

"Where did Cain get his wife?"

"Why do we use candles on the Altar?" (and once):

"Why don't we use candles on the Altar?"

"What is the difference between High Church and Low Church?"

"Why don't the Baptists baptise babies?"

"Why does one parish do a thing one way and another just the opposite—even say just the opposite things?"

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

"What did our Lord mean when He said, 'Greater miracles than these shall ye do'?"

(And one girl breezily asked):

"Explain the Book of Revelation."

All these questions and many more have been asked, and I have given above the exact words of the young people themselves. Of course, Jonah and the whale, and the age of Methuselah, and such questions as "How old was Adam when he died?" as well as evolution, and the Holy Spirit come in for their share. One boy wanted to know what "ghost" meant in "Holy Ghost," and the next question that followed was, of course, "Do you believe in ghosts?" which gave a wonderful opportunity to swing the discussion into a talk on the spiritual values in life.

Other questions, such as Resurrection, life after death, heaven and hell, and a variety ranging in between all these gave opportunity for discussion and teaching that proved most helpful.

Needless to say, a great deal depends on the natural ability and common sense of the person selected to answer the questions, but almost any priest of the church can do it to a tremendous advantage for the church.

THE PLACE OF THE BIBLE

In the Christian Religion

BY CANON JAMES ADDERLEY

I THINK what kept me off from finding a use for religion for a long time was thinking that the Bible was no good. To begin with I never understood half of what we were taught in school at the Scripture lesson.

I have already mentioned that the curate used to come in and teach us sometimes, and though I did not take it all in at the time, I came to see later on that he had made us learn a good deal that was useful. But that was when I went to a church school. When I was about 13, my parents sent me to the Council School, and there the religion they taught us was not very interesting. I have since been told that the teachers are not allowed to do more than teach the Bible as a book, and that they must not say anything to the children about going to church or saying the creed or the catechism. Well, of course some of the Bible stories are rather jolly, but I knew as a boy that there were lots of other stories which interested me more. I could not see why it was any good learning all about the kings of Israel, and in fact I never liked the Jews much, and did not want to know about them. Then, as I grew a little older, I used to go and listen to the lecturers in the park, for I should say that when I left school I went up to London to an office. It was rather a good place which the squire got for me.

Balaam's Ass

On Sunday afternoons I used to go to the park and listen to a chap who, as I thought, demolished the Bible altogether. By the way, I very seldom went to church in those days. I was too old for Sunday School, at least I thought I was. The consequence was that when I heard this chap saying that the world could not possibly have been created in six days, and that Balaam's ass could not talk, I thought that was an end of all religion. I never became an Atheist. I just settled down to a sort of comfortable attitude like sitting in an armchair over the fire. I was not going to bother myself about religion. The Bible was no good, and that was the end of it. It was not until I met a young padre in the war, the one who lent me a prayer book, that I began to think about the bible again. He was not the only padre who helped me. I met two or three others, and they all had something to say which has given me a use for religion. But it was this one especially who explained to me what the Bible is. In the first place he made me quite happy about Balaam's ass and all the things the chap in the park said. He told me that the Bible was not one book but a number of books written at different times over a long period, and that it never professed anywhere to teach us science. The story of the creation was a very old story giving an explanation of what the writer thought was the beginning of all things. The object of the Bible was to teach us about God and goodness and spiritual truth, not to anticipate the great scientific discoveries of later times. He told me that the book of Genesis helps us to understand that God is the source of all goodness, and that He wanted the world to be beautiful and man to be good, but that through our sins, especially our pride and our selfishness, we have undone God's work and brought a lot of misery into the world. If we loved God and loved our neighbors, as the Bible tells us to do over and over again, there would be no wars or quarrels, and probably not half so much disease as there is.

The New Testament

Then he showed me that the New Testament was much the most important part of the Bible because it tells us all about Jesus Christ Who gave men a new idea of God. The Old Testament was good, too, because it told us the story of a nation that really believed in God, though it often forgot Him and disobeyed Him. It showed us what a religious nation could be. He also explained to me that the Old Testament gives us different ideas of God at different times. Things attributed to "God" were really things that people thought God did, just as nowadays people say that God brought on the war which, of course, He did not do at all. I took to reading the Bible after this, and I found all sorts of good things in it which I had never thought of before.

I am still studying the teaching of Jesus Christ in the Sermon on the Mount and His wonderful parables. If that was carried out by everybody in the church the world would change. Then I like reading about the disciples and what they did when Jesus went away, how they believed His Spirit was with them still, and how they started the church. Then there is St. Paul who seems to me to have been the greatest of them all. If we had a few more like him the church religion would begin to hum.

The Very Top

Yes, the Bible is a splendid book, the greatest book in the world. A man who sees no good in it seems to me like a man who takes upon himself to say that Shakespeare was not a great man. A very large part of the human race has agreed to put the Bible at the top of all the literature in the world. I got the Koran out of the Free Library the other day, but I could not read it as I can read the Bible. You see I know now the difference between one part of the Bible and another. I still don't care much about the kings of Israel, but I don't think that matters. I can get poetry, of which I am very fond, in the Psalms. I can get a sort of drama in the Book of Job. I can read the Prophets with much greater interest now because I am not always looking out for prophecies of future events which, perhaps, did not come true. I see that men like Isaiah and Amos had a kind of vision of a world that had come to believe in a righteous God. They were not afraid to tell the Jews that they were selfish and brutal to the poor, and the words they used are words that might be applied to the oppressors and selfish people of the present day. The Bible seems to me quite a modern book. Parts of it might have been written yesterday. For all this I should not really have found a use for the Bible if I had not at the same time found a use for the church. The church has accumulated all the wisdom of centuries, and can explain the Bible to us.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

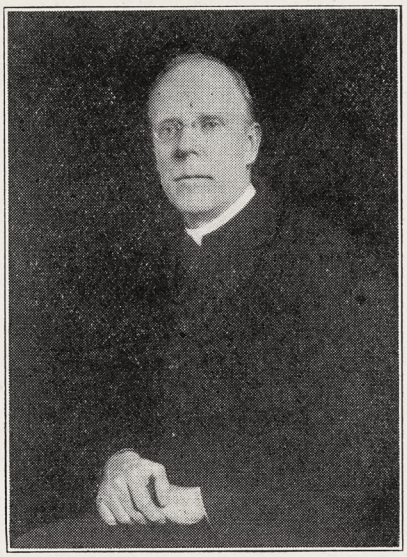
BIBLE AND CHURCH

There is a friend of mine who believes in the Bible but not in the church. He says he can get all the religion he wants out of the Bible by himself. The consequence is he belongs to a little sect which seems to consist of himself, his wife and family. They have little meetings on Sunday in their parlor. It is much more reasonable to use the Bible and the Church together. The church had been going on for about 200 years before the New Testament was put together. They seemed to have got on all right so long as the apostles and their successors were alive. Then, when the Bible was put together, Christians always had it to refer to and see if they were carrying out Christ's commands and observing the old customs. So now, while I can get much good from reading the Bible by myself, it is much better to have the church and the clergy who study and meditate on the Bible to help us to live the Christian life together. Yes, the church teaches us the Christian religion, and the Bible proves to us that what the church teaches has been handed down from Christ and the first disciples. Now that I go to church I can see how splendidly the Prayer Book arranges that we should hear some of the Bible read every Sunday in the lessons and the Epistles and Gospels.



Then the sermon explains the Bible to us. But I shall have more to say about that later on.

(Reprinted by arrangement from the Torch, organ of the Industrial Christian Fellowship.)

About Books

THE IMITATION OF CHRIST translated and edited from a newly discovered manuscript by Albert Hyma. Century Co. $2.50.

This new edition testifies to the lasting helpfulness and popularity of the Imitation. It is distinguished by an introduction which gives an account of the life and the times of Thomas à Kempis, and of the authorship of the book itself. Dr. Hyma believes that the Imitation is made up of a collection of writings by "The Brethren of the Common Life," and that Thomas' part was little more than editorial.

REV. ARTHUR B. BUDD
Canon of Washington Cathedral

C. L. S.

* * *

THE SON OF MAN AND OTHER POEMS AND ESSAYS by John Bernard Kelly. Doran Company. $1.50

In this book of poems and essays Father Kelly shows himself a worthy member of that ever inspiring group of poets who belong to the Roman Catholic Church and give expression to its spirit. But perhaps the most interesting thing in the book is the essay on Joyce Kilmer, poet and martyr. An altogether charming saint he shows him, and to have known him as Father Kelly knew him must have been a rare privilege.

C. L. S.

* * *

MESSIAH OR BASTARD: WHICH? by Herbert W. Magoun, Ph. D. Hamilton Brothers, Boston. $2.50.

In Hyde Park, London, are frequently encountered men on soap boxes debating the merits and demerits of religion. The speakers are deadly in earnest, but the gaping crowd is more interested in the forensic ability of the debaters than in the subject debated. No one is particularly enlightened or convinced. It is a futile method!

This book of Dr. Magoun's with its arresting and infelicitous title has much of the Hyde Park spirit, and leaves one with the same feeling of futility. Ostensibly, it is written as a defence of the Virgin Birth; in reality, it is intended to vanquish what the author describes as a "godless" book, "The Man Nobody Knows." There is a great parade of learning, but no contribution to scholarship. The same streak of coarseness evident in the title runs through the entire book. One would desire a more reverent handling of this most delicate theme.

I. Goddard.

Ask Me Another

The questions and answers this week have been written by Mr. Wright B. Haff, of New York City, to whom a copy of Cushioned Pews, by Bishop Johnson, has been sent. Send in your list; they will be printed in the order received, and we will call a halt when we are flooded.

1. Over what missionary districts or diocese do the following Bishops have jurisdiction: Bishop Bennett, Bishop Barnwell, Bishop Dallas, Bishop Juhan, Bishop Stevens?
2. Who are the Bishops in charge of the following missionary districts: Panama Canal Zone, Honolulu, Anking, Haiti, Liberia?
3. Name two Japanese Bishops of the Anglican Communion?
4. Where is the next General Convention to be held?
5. Name two dioceses of the Episcopal Church that are building Cathedrals at the present time?
6. What is "The Church at Work"?
7. What have the following men in common: John W. Wood, Charles B. Lathrop, R. Bland Mitchell, G. Warfield Hobbs, Lewis B. Franklin?
8. Give the next line after "O happy band of pilgrims."
9. Who wrote "The World Call to the Church," and "The Search for Peace"?
10. How many provinces are there in the Protestant Episcopal Church?

Let's Know

DEACONESSES—NOW

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

IN THESE days when social service is proving so very attractive to many of our best young women, the opportunities offered to a Deaconess ought to be more powerfully emphasized than ever. Secular social service workers are realizing more clearly every year the need of a spiritual impulse in their work. Such a combination is happily effected in the office of a Deaconess.

At the present time there are four Deaconess Training Schools in the Church—one each in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, and Berkeley, Cal. There are more than two hundred Deaconesses in active service.

The Order of Deaconesses is the only sphere of professional women's work formally recognized by the canons of the Church. Canon 24 provides that— "A woman of devout character and approved fitness, unmarried or widowed, may be admitted a Deaconess by any Bishop having jurisdiction in this Church. Her office is vacated by marriage." She is required to take no vow of celibacy, but in the event of her marriage she relinquishes her official position.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Her duties are "to teach the unlearned, to instruct youth, to care for the sick, to comfort the afflicted, to supply the wants of the poor and needy, and to labor in all ways for the extension of the Church of Christ." She must be at least twenty-five years of age and must have passed satisfactory examinations in Holy Scripture, Church History, Christian Missions, Doctrine, Ministration, Religious Education, and Social Service. She must have had at least nine months of field work under competent supervision or the equivalent.

The field of the Deaconess' activities in varied. She may serve in some diocesan capacity under appointment of the bishop; she may be a parish worker under appointment of the rector; she may do settlement or other institutional work or may be appointed on a City Mission staff; she may work in a diocese or in the mission field, domestic or foreign; there are a few deaconess communities, but for the most part they live wherever their work may happen to be.

A deaconess passes through two years of preparation as a candidate and is then formally admitted to her office by the bishop. At the last General Convention an authorized service for such admission was introduced for inclusion in the revised Prayer Book, but was referred back to the committee for certain changes.

Here is a field of service rich in opportunities for the ability of any young churchwoman. If she has a penchant for social service, she can find any variety of it; if she is interested in teaching, she can do that; if she wants institutional work, it can be found; if she wants missionary service, the door is open. Our deaconesses are becoming more and more recognized in social service circles as expert case workers and specialists in their various lines. They have the support of the Church behind them though much of their work extends beyond the limits of our own constituency. They do come, and ought to come, from all ranks of churchmanship and they are working in parishes of all types. No young woman with a desire to expend her energies in service for others need look beyond the Church for an opening. It is no holiday diversion. It is hard work. One cannot become affluent in it but one can make a living. And it is all done in the name of Christ, who alone gives currency to our charitable instincts.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

There were two Browns in the village, both fishermen. One lost his wife and the other lost his boat at about the same time.

The vicar's wife called, as she supposed, on the widower, but really upon the Brown whose boat had gone down.

"I am sorry to hear of your great loss," she said.

"Oh, it ain't much matter," was the philosophical reply; "she wasn't up to much."

"Indeed!"

"Yes," continued Brown, "she was a rickety old thing. I offered her to my mate, but he wouldn't have her. I've had my eye on another for some time."

And then the outraged woman fled.

* * *

Here is another ASK ME ANOTHER. "What is a dry dock?" Answer: "A physician who doesn't write prescriptions."

Life Insurance

as such, needs no supporting argument. Insurance on your life is as accepted a necessity as insurance on your house. The problem is the cost and its effect upon the amount of insurance you can maintain on your life.

In an effort to help solve this problem, this Corporation was formed for the purpose of offering life insurance at net rates to clergymen and their families and to layworkers and their families. To those who are eligible, the facilities of this Corporation are cordially offered.

All inquiries should be addressed to

The Church Life Insurance Corporation

14 Wall Street New York

(Operated under the supervision of the Trustees of The Church Pension Fund)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

GREAT doings in Montgomery, Alabama, recently when opening services were held in the newly completed Church of the Ascension, pictured above. The services were continued through an entire week, with Bishop McDowell, the Rev. Oscar de Wolf Randolph, the Rev. Charles A. Stakely, local Baptist pastor, and other visiting preachers. The first unit of the church, the nave, was finished in 1910. In 1922, under the direction of the present rector, the Rev. Peerce N. McDonald, the second unit was completed, and the remainder of the construction was terminated last month.

The church is unquestionably a distinct contribution to ecclesiastical architecture in the South. The building was designed by Mr. Ralph Adams Cram and built entirely of Indiana Limestone, even the chancel having been finished in this finely pointed stone. The chancel is furnished in beautifully hand-carved oak, executed in the workshops of Irving & Casson—A. H. Davenport Company of New York and Boston. The organ, an exceptionally fine instrument, was made by the Moller Organ Company.

Last Sunday a stained glass window, pictured elsewhere, was dedicated. The details of ornament for this window were taken from the famous stained glass at Chartres Cathedral, the figure drawing being typical of the 12th century; the colors being rich reds and blues, with lighter tones running through the window. The window is in three panels, the subject of the central panel being the Ascension; in the left panel are the figures of St. Paul and St. Peter, done in conventional style of treatment, and in the other panel are the figures of Magdalene and St. Veronica. The work was designed and executed at the George Hardy Payne Studios at Paterson, New Jersey. The Rev. Mr. McDonald took charge of the parish in 1919 and under his leadership it has grown greatly spiritually and numerically. He has quietly led his people to the completion of this church, meanwhile not allowing any neglect of diocesan or National Church obligation.

* * *

The annual convocation of the district of North Dakota is always an inspiring event, due to the splendid leadership of Bishop Tyler, who never allows it to become merely an occasion for routine business. This year rural work was emphasized, with the Rev. H. W. Forman in charge of rural work for the National Council leading the conferences. There were also conferences on foreign born work, religious education and field work, the conferences being led by Miss Frances Withers, Mr. Percy Knapp, both of "281," and the Rev. Harwood Sturtevant of Racine, Wisconsin.

* * *

Three thousand children from a large proportion of the parishes and missions of Long Island were present at the Cathedral at Garden City for the annual festival held recently. Held on Saturday and not on Sunday, which perhaps partly explains the throng, for there were running races and ball games and a picnic luncheon as well as processions, banners and bishops; the idea apparently of the Rev. Charles H. Ricker of Manhasset, in charge of arrangements. If so he should be reappointed.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

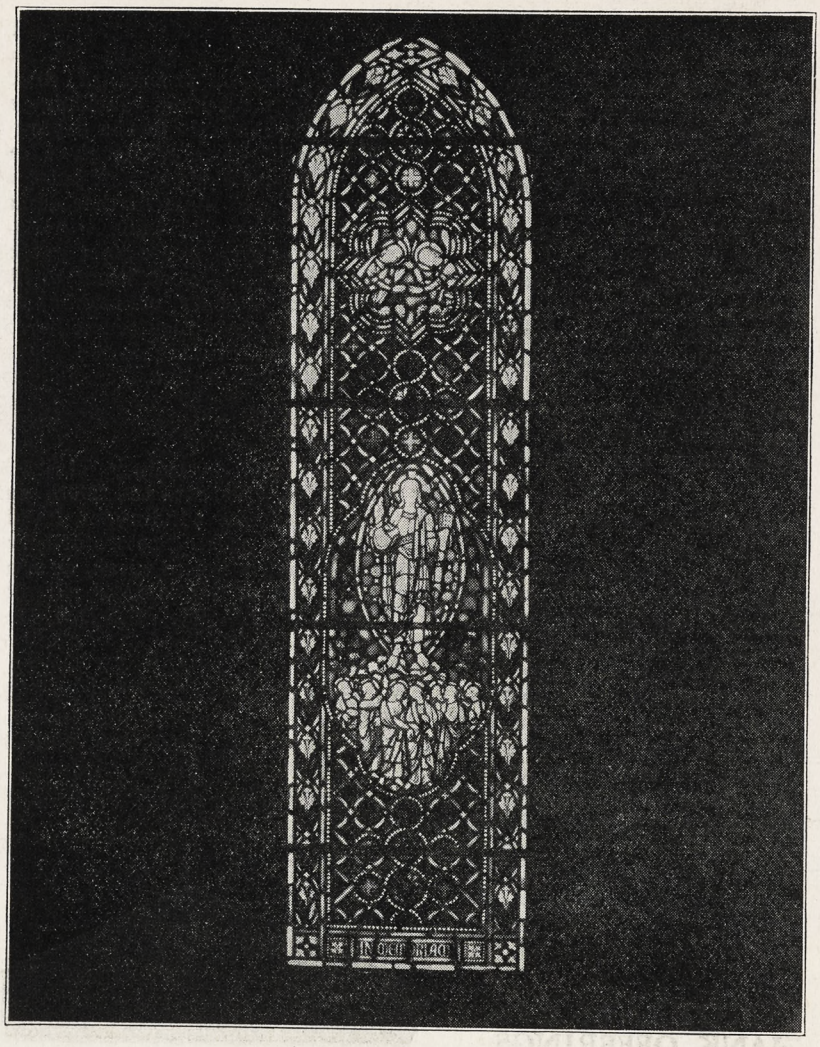
* * *

St. Mark's, Jackson Heights, Long Island, which is eventually to be one of the finest churches in the east, is to lay the cornerstone for the new church on Sunday next. The Rev. Raymond Scofield is rector.

* * *



Even a flood can accomplish some good. Recently there was held at Alexandria, Louisiana, a thanksgiving mass meeting for escape from the flood, which brought together Romanists, Jews, Baptists, Presbyterians, Methodists, B'nai Brith, Ku Klux Klan, Knights of Columbus, and if the report that I have received is reliable, Episcopalians.

* * *

DuBose School, Monteagle, Tennessee, has just received from the will of J. D. and S. B. Patten of Cleveland, Tennessee, the sum of $2000 toward the endowment. The school recently received $50,000 for a new building.

* * *

The Wellesley Conference is to be held from June 27th to July 7th. On the faculty; Dean Wells of Sewanee; Dr. Richardson of Burlington, Vermont, chaplain; Miss Florence Newbold of the Girls Friendly; Miss Grace Lindley, Woman's Auxiliary; Professor Hodgson, General Seminary; Rev. N. B. Groton of Whitemarsh, Pa., on Young People; Rev. Gardiner L. Tucker, of religious education fame in the South; Professor Montgomery of the Philadelphia Divinity School; Professor Easton of General; Mrs. Wright B. Haff, secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary, New York; Professor Yerkes of Philadelphia Divinity; Mr. John C. B. Kwei and Mr. Alfred K. Chiu, both librarians, who will lecture on China. In the department of religious education we have Miss Elizabeth L. Hopkins of the province of New England; Rev. Vernon Losee of Christ Church, Springfield, Mass.; Rev. Charles Lancaster of Reading, Mass.; Miss Evelyn Withers of St. Peter's, New York; Miss Mildred Brown, pageantry expert; Professor Boynton of General; and Miss Laura Boyer, expert of the discussion method. In Social Service: Miss Dorothy Coe of "281"; Bishop Booth of Vermont and Professor Vida Scudder of Wellesley, who is to give a special course of the Social Gospel according to St. Francis. The department of Church music is in charge of Messrs. Thompson Stone of the Advent, Boston; Walter Williams of St. Stephen's, Providence, and Winfred Douglas and Wallace Goodrich of the commission on Church Music.

A Memorial Window
In The Ascension, Montgomery

* * *

The Racine School of Religion will begin its third year on July 12th and end on August 2nd, 1927. In the summer of 1926 men and women came for the purpose of studying theology. Within the group there were wide differences of conviction and custom in religious thinking and living. Seventeen dioceses were represented within the membership of twenty-five, and almost as many schools of thought as dioceses, but this is normal in the Episcopal Church, and in no way prevented a strong feeling of fellowship.

The School does not exhibit a stiffly academic atmosphere nor a rigorously conventional one. The students come for the purpose of work, and the three weeks are well spent. In addition to the intellectual and spiritual opportunities, the Racine Campus is a perfect place in mid-summer, and it could be considered as a sort of a vacation.

A vital part of the School is the intimate personal contact with the faculty. There is always a time and a place for personal interviews, for recreation and friendly conversation. Every day is full of activity without a too exhaustive program. One has the happy privilege of choice for the whole afternoon, and the student body chooses plenty of time for serious reading and study, in response to its inspiring leaders.

* * *

In the West Des Moines High School the students have from time to time a Character Conference, with sessions on three days, at which commissions meet, discuss previously determined questions, and later report their findings to the whole group. On some commissions there are both girls and boys, and some have boys alone or girls alone.

A recent conference took for its theme Character Building, with Commissions on Leisure Time, Social Life, Honesty, Loyalty. Among the findings are:

That one should desire to spend from three to five hours at home each day in an effort to know better the entire family, as the years which one can spend with them are few.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

That petting makes the finest relationships between boys and girls impossible, and leads to such serious consequences that it should not be indulged in.

That dating with a bunch eliminates the desire to pet.

That the ideal girl to go with (this from the boys' conference) is charming, unselfish, a good mixer, well mannered, sincere, and self-respecting.

That both the parents and the student should more earnestly strive for sympathetic understanding.

* * *

Bishop Bratton of Mississippi, writing on May 20th, says:

"It is quite impossible to estimate accurately the losses sustained in the flood area. For example, I was in Yazoo City on Sunday last where we held our service in the Elks Club; I took a skiff, landed on the top step of the Church which had been flooded more than a foot in water but was then about six inches out of water, and the floors had been pretty thoroughly cleaned (as must be done because the mud, hardening, sticks like putty), the furniture of the nave cleaned and in process of drying. Just what cracking, buckling and splitting will result in the drying no one can tell. We saw enough to know that a thousand dollars at least will be needed even if no further damage results. What the walls will do as the plaster dries we cannot yet tell. This one sample is sufficient to illustrate the difficulty of making estimates which may require another ten-day period, depending on the weather. I am quite sure that we shall need some outside help."

* * *

Christ Church, Quincy, Massachusetts, is to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the building of its first church this week. Pastors of several local churches are to speak, as is also the bishop of the diocese, Rt. Rev. Charles L. Slattery. The Rev. H. K. Bartow is rector.

* * *

A total of $546,642 for the 1927 Lenten Offering was announced at the service in Philadelphia, June 5th, marking the Fiftieth Anniversary since the first Lenten Offering was taken.

THE RACINE SCHOOL OF RELIGION

From July 12 to Aug. 2, 1927.

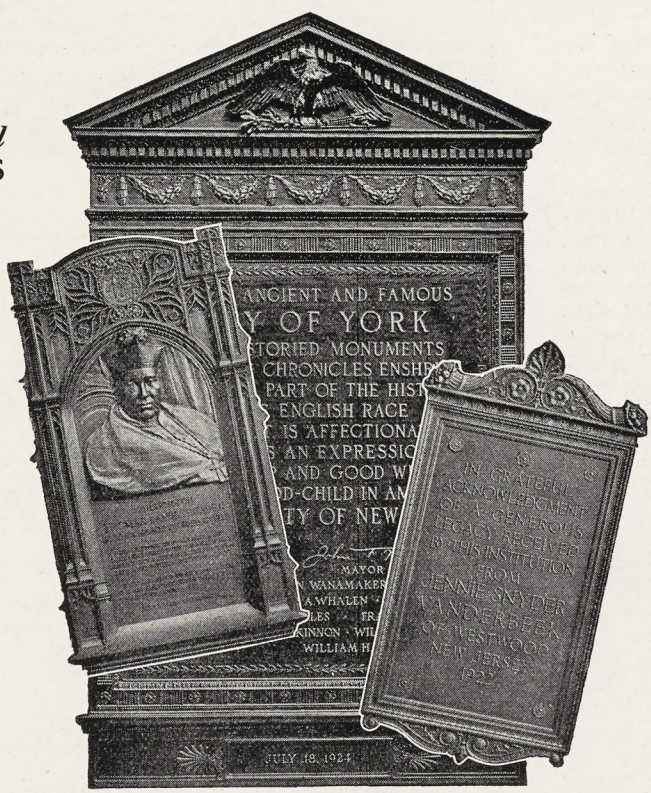
The following courses are offered:

CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE
The Holy Spirit, the Church, and the Means of Grace.
The Rev. M. Bowyer Stewart, D.D.

NEW TESTAMENT
Church Literature of the First and Second Centuries.
Professor A. Haire Forster

CHURCH HISTORY
The Church since the Reformation, with particular reference to the Anglican Communion.
Professor Percy V. Norwood.

APOLOGETICS
A discussion of the present relations of Science and Religion.
The Rev. D. A. McGregor



MINOR COURSES
On the Background of the Gospel, Christian Morals, the Prayer Book and its Antecedents.

For further information apply to

MRS. GEORGE BILLER
Taylor Hall Racine, Wis.

MEMORIALS and THANK OFFERINGS

We are glad at all times to submit estimates for Stained Glass Windows, and any Furnishings or Equipment for Churches which parishioners may wish to give as a Memorial or Thank Offering.

BRONZE TABLETS

In beauty of design and in impressiveness of appearance the Tablets executed by "Spaulding" are memorials which will last throughout the ages.

Complete Construction Work for New Churches or for alterations and additions

We are glad to consult with Architects on Church Building

SPAULDING & CO.

Representing The Gorham Co's Ecclesiastical Department

Michigan Avenue at Van Buren Street, Chicago

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Reports were read, either by diocesan representatives or by Miss Withers, from every home diocese and district except Southern Virginia, and from every district overseas except China, Japan and Brazil. Mexico, $705, and Liberia, $500, were among the striking reports. Pennsylvania was well in the lead with $79,000. The total is roughly an eleven per cent increase over last year.

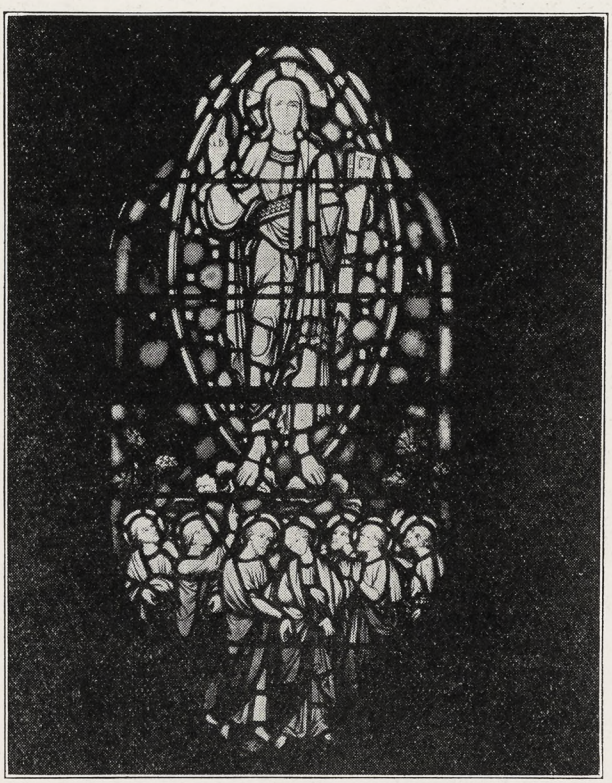
The Academy of Music was filled for the inspiring service and as a large proportion of the congregation were children, their voices in the many hymns were delightful. An altar-like table on the stage held a cross and two jars of peonies of a splendid Whitsuntide red.

On the stage were twelve or more bishops, a number of clergy, and several choirs, aided by the Fireman's Band in the orchestra pit. Dr. Patton's Negro singers from Fort Valley and Lawrenceville were a credit to themselves and their schools. Members of the Pennsylvania Brotherhood of St. Andrew served as ushers. Bishop Garland welcomed the gathering to the diocese in which the offering was originated by John Marston. Bishop Murray made the principal address, emphasizing the personal responsibility of us all to carry forward what had been begun and carried on so well. Bishop Overs brought to mind the little Liberian children who earned their offerings by shooing the birds all day long off the rice fields, and told many stories illustrating not only the need, but the great possibilities of the total offering.

* * *

The Acolytes Festival with 297 acolytes in line, 45 priests, and a congregation of a thousand, was held at the Atonement, Chicago, last Sunday evening. The Rev. Alfred Newbery is to be instituted rector of the parish next Sunday.

* * *



Bishop Darst, chairman of the national Commission on Evangelism, informed the House of Bishops at its meeting in New York on June 2nd that it would be impossible for him to accept the proposition which had been made by the Commission that he continue actively in charge of the follow-up campaign of the Bishops' Crusade during a period of four years. Bishop Darst said that he was inclined at first to give favorable consideration to the plan, but that after consulting with members of the House of Bishops and with the leaders among the clergy and laity of his diocese, he found that the work of his diocese absolutely precluded the possibility of his separating himself from it for so long a period. The Bishop has consented, however, to

ST. ANNE'S Open Air School, Box W, Charlotteville, Va.
Beautiful location in far famed Blue Ridge Mountains. College preparatory and elective courses. Fully accredited by State Board of Education. Open gymnasium allows sports in the fresh air in all weather. Riding taught by expert. Music. Art. Bishop of Virginia, President of Trustees. Laura Lee Dorsey, Principal.

SAINT MARY'S HALL
Faribault, Minnesota
Episcopal school for girls, founded in 1866. Beautiful new fire-proof building, large campus, out-of-door sports, excellent academic and special training. Prepares girls for all colleges.

Hannah More
DIOCESAN SCHOOL OF MARYLAND
Founded 1832
A Country School for Girls, fifteen miles from Baltimore. College Preparatory and General Courses. Music. Art. Supervised Athletics. Terms $600 to $800.
Principal
MISS LAURA FOWLER, A. B.
Box W, Reisterstown, Maryland

St. Albans The National Cathedral School For Boys
Thorough Preparation for Leading Universities. Splendid equipment, unexcelled location on Mt. St. Alban overlooking Washington. Eight years' course. Athletics for Every Boy.
Address: WILLIAM H. CHURCH
Head Master, Washington, D. C.

CENTRAL MEDALLION
CHANCEL WINDOW

Church of the Ascension
Montgomery, Alabama

CRAM & FERGUSON, Architects

Designed and Executed

By

The George Hardy Payne Studios, Inc.

Studios at PATERSON, N. J.
Branch Offices at RICHMOND, VA. FORT WORTH, TEX.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

continue actively in charge until the meeting of the next General Convention in October, 1928, and following that, to give as much of his time and counsel as he finds possible. The Executive Committee of the Commission in the meantime will endeavor to work out their plans in accordance with this decision.

* * *

Another acolytes service was held the same week at St. Luke's, Kalamazoo, Michigan, for the diocese of Western Michigan. The Rev. Hiram K. Douglas, rector of the Messiah, Detroit, was the preacher.

* * *

Four men were graduated from St. John's, Greeley, Colorado, in St. Chad's Chapel, May 30th. During the past year thirty-four men have been enrolled in the school, taught by a faculty of five resident professors. The school is now raising an endowment.

* * *

The Rev. Charles N. Lathrop, executive secretary of the department of social service of the National Council, was one of the speakers at a meeting held in a public school in New York City on June 9th. About a year ago a number of organizations styling themselves "patriotic" protested against the schools being used for any meetings held under the auspices of the American Civil Liberties Union. This was the first meeting to be held under their auspices since the matter was fought out before the Board of Education. Dean Lathrop spoke on "Population and Housing." Other speakers were Congressman La Guardia and Professor Harry F. Ward of Union Seminary.

* * *

Nothing like having a cheerful and optimistic treasurer like Mr. Franklin. We are $64,000 behind last year but he says: "Everything's going to be all right." Here's his letter to you: "No records broken this year up to June 1st, but nothing to be ashamed of. The total to June 1st last year, $1,102,814.30. The total to June 1st, this year, $1,038,500.34 Decrease, $64,313.96. Last year 44 dioceses and districts had paid the full proportion of their budget quotas to date; this year 42 are on the honor column.

"With this good start let us make special efforts to educate our people as to the necessity of taking care of their church obligations during the summer. Some parish treasurers need a reminder also.

"A good summer to you all."

* * *

Every summer the district of Eastern Oregon brings out young men from the theological seminaries to assist in the missionary work of the district. This year Mr. Norman Schwab of Virginia and a graduate of Yale is to give his summer to this important and needy field.

* * *

Commencement at the Divinity School in Philadelphia was held for the first time in its new and beautiful chapel on June 2nd. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Flinchbaugh, rector of St. Stephen's Church, Wilkes-Barre, Pa. The commencement was marked by a number of important announcements; the endowment of six stalls each providing for the education of one student; the endowment of two professor's stalls, announced by Dr. Flinchbaugh. One of these is the gift of Mr. F. M. Kirby of Wilkes-Barre, who sent his check for $100,000; the other to be raised in Bethlehem by popular subscription under the guidance of Dr. Flinchbaugh, and is to be called the Ethelbert Talbot Chair of Biblical Learning. Vacancies in the governing board of the school were filled

SOMERSET HILLS

A Progressive Country Day and Boarding School. Primary, Intermediate and Senior Departments. Prepares for leading Secondary Schools.

Individual instruction makes rapid progress possible.

Outdoor life in the country.

Address: Rev. James H. S. Fair, Far Hills, New Jersey

JOHN M. DOYLE
MEMORIAL TABLETS
14 S. THIRD ST. PHILADELPHIA
CATALOGUE ON REQUEST

Money in Old Letters

Look in that old trunk up in the garret and send me all the old envelopes up to 1880. Do not remove the stamps from the envelopes. You keep the letters. I will pay highest prices.

GEO. P. HAKES, 290 Broadway New York, N. Y.

SHATTUCK

A Church School for Boys

For 67 years Shattuck has been a leader among college preparatory schools in the West. It is not operated for profit. It aims to develop

High Scholarship,
Manly Character,
Christian Citizenship.

The military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall. Address the Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

Quick Relief for Croup and Whooping Cough

Just try Roche's Embrocation and see the quick relief it brings. No nauseous medicine to upset the child's stomach. Just rub it on the chest. Almost instantly it loosens the choking phlegm and breaks congestion. Used with finest results since 1802. Ends chest colds and bronchitis also.

Sold By All Druggists or

E. FOUGERA & CO., Inc., New York
W. Edwards & Sons, London, Eng., Props.

ROCHE'S EMBROCATION

HARVARD SCHOOL

Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C. 27th year now in session. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL

Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.

Address: Secretary

ROWLAND HALL

A School for Girls in the Wasatch Mountains

Salt Lake City, Utah

BISHOP MOULTON, Rector.

NASHOTAH HOUSE

Founded in 1842
Theological Seminary and Collegiate Department
For particulars address the dean
NASHOTAH HOUSE
Nashotah, Wisconsin

THE CONFERENCE FOR CHURCH WORK and Summer School for Church Music will meet at Wellesley College, June 27 to July 7. Director in Residence, Bishop Slattery; Chaplain, Rev. George L. Richardson, D.D. For program apply to Miss M. DeC. Ward, 50 Commonwealth Ave., Boston.

RETIRED PRIEST, CAPABLE PREACHER will take Sunday services or full charge during summer. Near N. Y. City or on Jersey coast. Catholic parish preferred. Address "Sacerdos," care Witness, 416 Lafayette Street, New York City.

CHURCH LINEN—PURE IRISH LINEN at wholesale rates, for Church Guilds, Rectors and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request. Mary Fawcett, 115 Franklin St., New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs, chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT

SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y. References required.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

by the election of Bishop Thomas as an overseer, and Mr. F. M. Kirby and Mr. Monell Sayre as trustees.

* * *

An active bit of flood relief work was done in the south by the women of St. Andrew's, Jackson, Mississippi. They were organized into a relief group by the rector, the Rev. Walter B. Capers, at the first cry for help, and have been on the job doing all sorts of necessary work ever since. The fact that during the past week the group has received hardly any calls for help is taken as a sure sign that the flood is at an end.

* * *

Perhaps the most interesting announcement at the commencement at Philadelphia was of the acceptance by Bishop Thomas of the position as canon of the chapel of the school. Before going to Wyoming Bishop Thomas has for years been an instructor. When it became known, a month ago, that he was to resign as Bishop of Wyoming his friends in Philadelphia at once determined to ask him to give his interest and his gifts to the work of the school. A tentative proposal was made to him, which, after his resignations was accepted by the House of Bishops last week, he accepted. He will take up residence on the campus of the school in October.

* * *

A class of 27, of whom 14 were men, was confirmed by Bishop Lloyd at the Messiah, Rhinebeck, N. Y., the Rev. Gabriel Farrell, rector. There were four women in the class, the oldest of whom is seventy-nine.

* * *

M. Briand's proposal for the outlawry of war between France and the United States was heartily endorsed by the Administrative committee of the Federal Council of Churches at their last meeting. A great deal said in their resolution about the good will created by the flight of Lindbergh. A great lad, that; extraordinarily sane. But keep on with your prayers; he needs them now quite as badly as he did when flying over the Atlantic. A high commission in the army, a military uniform, and the adoration of pretty women is quite as much a strain on the character of a man as 2,500 miles of open sea. It is Lucky Lindy, smiling boyishly in plain civilians, whom the world adores. It will be a shame if they ruin it all by insisting that he dress up in braids and feathers.

* * *

The Rev. H. R. Hole, rector and missionary in charge of the seven parishes and missions composing the Northern Field of the Diocese of Michigan, will have three assistants during the summer. Miss Ethel Elliot is the efficient year-round worker among the women, children, and young people of the mission congregations. Mr. Charles Hawtrey, a student at Nashotah House, is working out a scholarship provided by the National Division for Rural Work by actual experience in this field during his seminary vacation, in preparation for the rural ministry. The Rev. Frederick C. Grant of Western Seminary has accepted the appointment of assistant minister in Trinity Parish, Mackinac Island, for the summer.

* * *

Annual meeting of the Guild of the Ascension was held in Trinity Chapel, New York, May 31st. The aim of the guild is to encourage system in the devotional life, which was

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

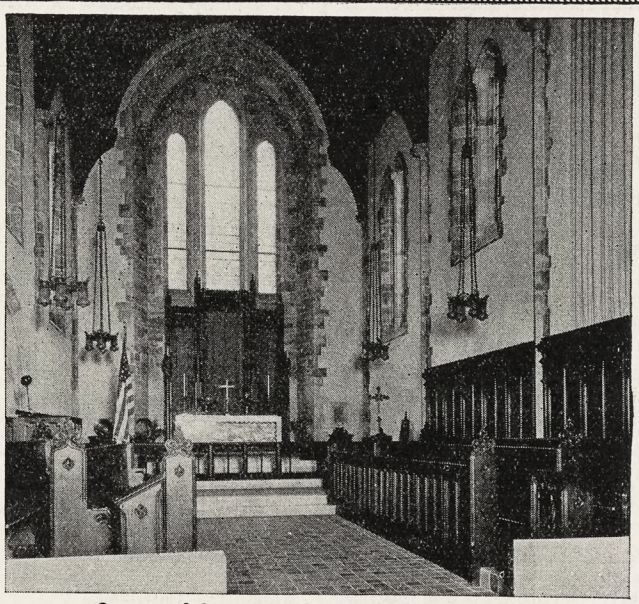
◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.



◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

Equipped by

American Seating Company

Emmanuel Episcopal Church, La Grange, Illinois

MARSHALL & FOX AND JOHN N. TILTON, ASSOCIATE ARCHITECTS
THE BERTRAM-GROSVENOR-GOODHUE ASSOCIATES, CONSULTING ARCHITECTS

THE ART APPEAL in carved-wood furnishings—in pulpit and pews, in chancel railings, reading desk, rood screen, or reredos, is winning the general acceptance of thoughtful church men and women of every denomination. Our designers and artisans are fully prepared to provide chancel arrangement and church furnishings which through artistic design and execution contribute to worshipful expression and atmosphere now so eagerly sought in church building in America.

American Seating Company

1024 LYTTON BUILDING · CHICAGO, ILLINOIS
NEW YORK · BOSTON

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind HOWE SCHOOL HOWE — INDIANA in a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

made the subject of the address given by Rev. J. Wilson Sutton. The Rev. Charles E. Hill of Buffalo was re-elected head of the guild.

* * *

Annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Long Island was held at Richmond Hill, May 31st. Bishop Stires preached. In the afternoon the Rev. Mr. Murakami of Japan told of his work in Japan. The attendance was close to five hundred.

* * *

St. John's, Oakland, California, the Rev. John Barrett, rector, is to celebrate its diamond jubilee this week. It is the oldest parish in the city.

* * *

There is to be a summer school in Arizona this year for the first time, to be held at the Mesa Ranch School. Miss Mabel Lee Cooper, Archdeasons Porter and Jenkins, the Rev. E. L. Freeland and Mr. E. C. Clark are among the leaders.

Answers

1. Duluth, Idaho, New Hampshire, Florida, Los Angeles.
2. Bishop Morris, Bishop La Mothe, Bishop Huntington, Bishop Carson, Bishop Campbell.
3. Bishop Motoda and Bishop Naide.
4. In Washington, D. C.
5. New York, Washington.
6. An official publication of the National Council, published four times a year.
7. These men are Executive Secretaries of the various departments of the National Council.
8. "If onward ye will tread."
9. Miss Laura F. Boyer, Assistant Educational Secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary to the National Council.
10. Eight.

Clerical Changes

BAILEY, Rev. Charles, rector of St. Paul's, Gainesville, Texas, has accepted a call to St. Matthew's, Enid, Oklahoma.

BURRILL, Rev. Harold St. George, Grace Chapel, New York City, has accepted the rectorship of Emmanuel, Newport, R. I., where he succeeds Mr. Rudd, now canon of Washington Cathedral.

DOUGLAS, Rev. Richard M., assistant at St. Mark's, Shreveport, La., accepted rectorship of Holy Cross, Harrisburg, Texas.

FERGUSON, Rev. Lawrence C., rector of St. Simon's, Chicago, has accepted election as assistant at St. Luke's, Evanston, Illinois.

JOHNSON, Rev. Frank M. Jr., Christ Church, Eagle Lake, Texas, has accepted a call to St. Andrew's, Houston, Texas.

KNAUFF, Rev. Grant, of Pensacola, Florida, has accepted appointment as priest-in-charge of St. Andrew's, Carbondale, Ill., and associated work in the diocese of Springfield.

LOVETT, Rev. Benjamin B., assistant at Emmanuel, Baltimore, has been called to the rectorship of Memorial Church, Baltimore.

PAGE, Rev. Herman R., assistant at St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston, has accepted a call to be the rector of St. Paul's, Oakwood, Ohio.

SPRENGER, Mr. Lester R., graduate of Garrett Biblical Institute, candidate for Orders, has accepted appointment as lay assistant at St. Luke's, Evanston.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.000 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, social. or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President,
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

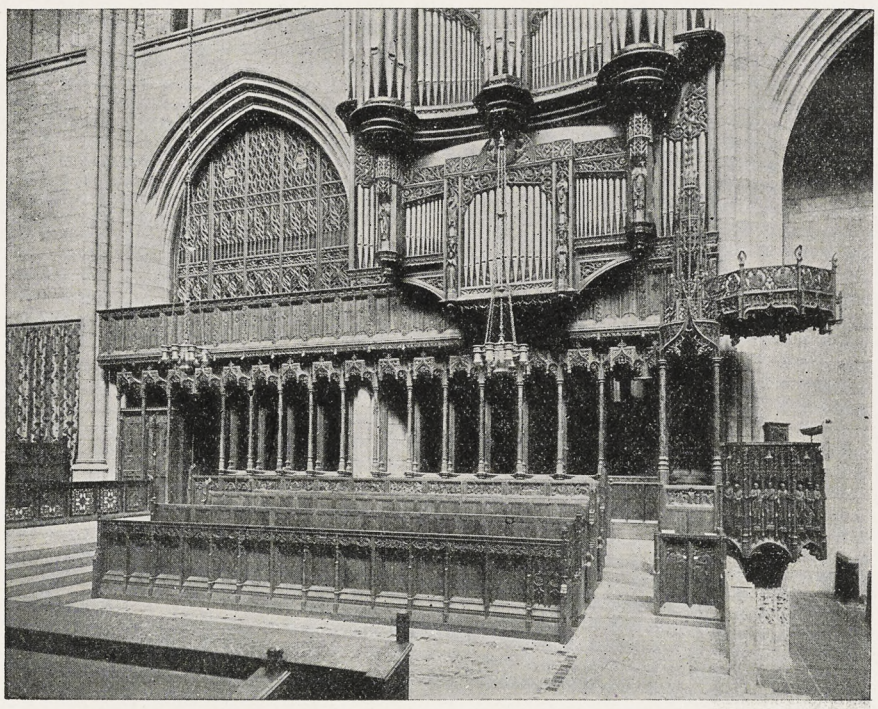
CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL



MOUNT ST. GABRIEL

Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

INTERIOR OF ST. THOMAS'S CHURCH, N. Y.
Organ Case and Other Furnishings Were Made From the Designs of the Architect, Mr. B. G. Goodhue

- - By - -

Irving & Casson—A. H. Davenport Co.

601 Fifth Ave., New York and 575 Boylston St., Boston

Memorials for Churches Are One of Our Specialties

In our New England workshops we have been making furniture and woodwork for more than fifty years and have executed the architectural woodwork and furniture in many of the most prominent Cathedrals and Churches in the United States—also Homes and Public Buildings.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Nation's Building Stone --

CHURCH OF THE ASCENSION
Montgomery, Alabama
RALPH ADAMS CRAM,
Architect
Built of Indiana Limestone

A Permanently Fine Building of Beauty and Dignity is assured by the use of

Indiana Limestone

INDIANA LIMESTONE is beautiful in color and in texture—not to be compared with any artificial building material in the permanent appeal with which it endows the church built of it.

And yet the cost of Indiana Limestone is not as great as compared with that of substitute materials. It can be delivered anywhere at prices that compare favorably with those of local stone and even with those of substitutes.

Write for plate illustrations of church buildings constructed of Indiana Limestone. No obligation. Address Box 308, Architect Service Bureau, Indiana Limestone Company, Bedford, Indiana.

A few fine examples of Indiana Limestone churches

CALVARY EPISCOPAL CHURCH, PITTSBURGH
FOURTH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, CHICAGO
CHURCH OF OUR SAVIOUR, CLEVELAND

INDIANA LIMESTONE COMPANY

GENERAL OFFICES: BEDFORD, INDIANA EXECUTIVE OFFICES: TRIBUNE TOWER, CHICAGO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, JUNE 23, 1927

What Is Success?

by

G. A. Studdert-Kennedy

Are Women Fit Companions for Men?

The opinions of

LADY ASQUITH
ST. JOHN ERVINE
BERNARD SHAW
LADY RHONDDA

Marriage and Divorce

by

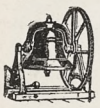
Bishop Johnson

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration



For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 697 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.

Baltimore, Md.

CASSOCKS

Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Eucharistic and Choir Vestments. Materials for Hangings and stoles cut to measure and stamped. Barettas, Rabats, Collars, Cuffs, Shirts. Moderate Prices.

J. M. HALL, Inc.

9 E. 35th St., New York. Tel. Caledonia 8648

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders

of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts. NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J

The Taylor Bell Foundry

LOUGHBOROUGH, ENGLAND

The World's Leading Bellfounders

CHURCH BELLS

SINGLY OR IN PEALS

CHIMES OR CARILLONS

AUTOMATIC OPERATION

Unequalled for Musical Qualities

Yale University — Birmingham, Ala.

Andover — Gloucester

Morristown — Cranbrook, Mich.

Harvard University

Germantown, Etc., Etc.

INQUIRIES SOLICITED

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English · Artists

550 & 552 W. HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings

Gorgeous Combinations of Color

Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

In Selecting a Memorial to a Loved One

what could be a happier, a more fitting thought than a living memorial of Golden-Voiced

Deagan Tower Chimes

serving through the years to keep alive the faith of those who have it, and helping, as no other means can, to re-awaken childhood reverence in those who have strayed. Write for literature. Standard Sets $6,000 and up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

If you are attending the

ANGLO-CATHOLIC CONGRESS

in London, in July,

DO NOT FAIL TO VISIT THE

ECCLESIASTICAL ART SHOWROOMS

OF

J. WIPPELL & Co., Ltd.,

4 & 5, DUNCANNON STREET, CHARING CROSS.

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows

Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates on application to

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

EST 1877

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— OFFICE AND STUDIO —

221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

— PHOTOS, DESIGNS AND ESTIMATES UPON APPLICATION —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XI. No. 44 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE

The Position of the Church

BY BISHOP JOHNSON

THERE seems to be much confusion in the minds of Churchmen in regard to the question of marriage and divorce and remarriage after divorce.

Holy Matrimony is a sacramental relationship between man and wife which implies fidelity to the marriage vow on the part of both parties. There is no ecclesiastical law, however, compelling two parties to live together should they decide to separate.

There have been cases in Church history in which the parties agreed to separate and each has entered a monastic institution. There have been cases in which Christians have been divorced by the state, each party, after divorce, keeping the law of chastity; or in which one of the parties has refrained on principle from remarriage. Under such circumstances the Church has never censured the party so interpreting the law.

The State

Marriage is also a matter of which the state takes cognizance. The state looks upon marriage as a civil contract which may be dissolved by the state and the parties set free to enter into new contracts. The law of the state does not nullify the law of the Church, but leaves to individual Christians the right to regard themselves as inhibited from marrying again, though the state permits it.

The Church may be said to frown upon divorce, but not to the extent of placing the divorced under any ecclesiastical censure.

St. Paul seems to have summed up the case in the conditions which maintained in the Roman Empire and which were very similar to those in the United States today. The Romans esteemed the marriage contract very lightly. "If the unbelieving depart, let him depart. A brother or a sister is not under bondage in such cases. God has called us to peace." In other words St. Paul realized the impossibility of sacrificing peace to a bond in which there could be no peace.

But the Church did not permit remarriage even under such circumstances. In short divorce in itself is merely a separation, authorized by the state and has no different implication from a sacramental standpoint than separation by private agreement.

The legalizing of the separation by the state has certain temporal consequences as to finance and inheritance but has in itself no further moral significance than actual separation. It merely makes a de facto act to be also de jure.

The Church however refuses to remarry Christians who have been divorced, excepting only in the case of adultery, and even here the spirit of the Gospel is against it.

The sin lies in remarriage after divorce, not in separation, whether by personal agreement or legal sanction.

The Church would depose a priest who would remarry after a divorce, but it does not censure a priest for securing a divorce where it is manifest that such divorce is merely a legal sanction of a separation. In other words, the securing of a divorce, on grounds such as St. Paul refers to, is a secular act confirming an unavoidable situation.

Serious Question

The whole question of marriage and divorce is one which confronts the Church today in a very serious way. In the first place probably fifty per cent of the American people, so far as the Christian religion is concerned, have the status of pagans. It is difficult to apply ecclesiastical law to those without the jurisdiction of the Church.

If a missionary were to go to a pagan country he would be confronted with polygamy. It would be a hardship to enforce the ecclesiastical law upon those who had never heard of the Church and were ignorant of its laws. He would find it difficult to refuse baptism to polygamists.

It is difficult to see how unbaptized persons can receive the sacrament of Holy Matrimony, for until one is baptized one is incapable of entering into any other sacramental relations.

Bishop's Responsibility

What is one to do when confronted with a couple who have never been baptized or instructed in the law of Christ? Of course the Church puts the whole question up to the bishop and he is responsible for two things:

First: To see that the standards of the faith are kept by those within;

Second: To see that the mercy of Christ is extended to those without.

There are those who are so constituted that they can lay down a hard and fast rule; shake their heads and say "Nothing doing."

I envy them the comfort of their position but do not admire their solution. Life is not so simple that it can respond to a yard stick regime. It is far easier to take refuge in a law than to administer equity.

Under what principle of justice do we place pagans under the rule of the Church before they are members thereof?

I believe in the strictest application of the Church's law upon those who have taken the baptismal vows and assumed the responsibilities of discipleship. But does the canon law of the Church apply to pagans? I have been asked time and again whether people who are divorced and remarried can be baptized and confirmed and I invariably answer certainly, if their baptism and confirmation involves an acceptance of the Christian law of matrimony. You cannot stretch ecclesiastical law to cover a secular pagan world.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

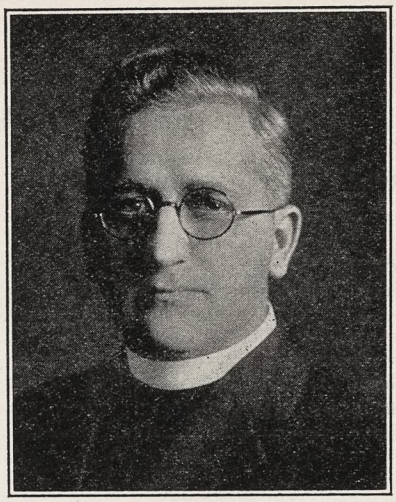
THE ROMAN POSITION

The Roman Catholic Church has no doubt on this question but at once rules that the marriage contracted outside of the Church, and by those who were not sacramentally united to Christ in a valid baptism, does not hold for the administration of the Church's sacraments. This is their doctrine of "Ne temere" which they apply even to those baptized and confirmed in the Anglican Church, quite contrary to papal ruling in the past.

The time has come when the Church ought to recognize a situation in which grave injustice is done to pagans in the interest of legalistic consistency.

We cannot shut the door to those who are without in order to satisfy the demands of ecclesiastical order. The Church should revise its code.



First, it should not sacramentally join together two persons either of whom is unbaptized. The marriage service is for Christians.

Second, it should enforce on Christians thus married the requirement that neither of them shall remarry while the other is still living.

Third, it should adopt a policy to meet the needs of those who have contracted non-sacramental marriages, whereby it will admit them into the communion of the Church on their acceptance of the Church's discipline, regardless of their previous record. The Church is not public property. It is the Body of Christ. And there is one law for those within and another for those without. The firmness of discipline is best maintained where fairness is combined with firmness; mercy is yoked with severity, and each case is decided by the bishop regardless of public opinion upon the merits of that particular case.

Nor is morale improved when ecclesiastics call that sin which is no sin except to those who think vaguely, criticize severely, and do not face the obligation to be just and merciful.

Watch out for a gentleman who goes by the name of the Rev. Anthony J. Romzra, who claims to be a Russian priest. He is loaded with all the official paraphernalia, and also official letters from some of our clergy who have been his victims. He begs cash; instead of giving it to him, spend the money on a telegram to Rev. Thomas Burgess, Secretary Foreign Born Americans.

REV. GORDON REESE
Is on Conference Faculties

Let's Know

SYNESIUS

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

HE IS not very well known but he is an interesting person and cut quite a figure in his day. His home was in Cyrene, North Africa, where he was born into an ancient family toward the end of the fourth century. Keen of intellect, he was an ardent disciple of the romantic but unfortunate Hypatia who taught a school of Neo-Platonism in Alexandria.

Synesius lived in the spineless days of the emperor Arcadius when incompetent officials were failing in their imperial duties all over the empire. In theory no one but the soldiers were permitted to carry weapons but Synesius found it necessary to disregard such regulations. He owned considerable property himself and suffered from the buccaneering proclivities of the tribesmen round about Cyrene. He organized a defense for himself and his neighbors which was so effective that the Cyrenians looked to him with growing confidence as their natural guardian. When the time came to elect a new bishop, the people insisted that he should accept the office. The idea was not particularly congenial to him and he wrote some letters reciting his own deficiencies and listing the reasons why he was not a fit person for the episcopate. In the light of later events, it seems that he probably painted himself much blacker than he really deserved. At any rate, he was consecrated and undertook his duties with a serious determination to make good.

His intrepid character is well illustrated by an incident which occurred before his consecration. The condition of the Cyrenians was most unhappy by reasons of excessive taxation as well the constant perils of marauders. Synesius undertook a trip to Constantinople to lay the matter before the emperor in person. It took him three years to gain an audience but when his chance came, he used it to the limit. The oration he delivered at that time "On Kingship" got into print and became something of a classic. He bluntly told Arcadius that it was high time he abandoned the luxuries of his royal court to give a little personal attention to the needs of his empire and particularly to lead the Roman army where it was most needed. On his way home from Constantinople he visited Athens, not because he was eager to see Athens, he said, but because he wanted to escape the condescending remarks of those who had been there.

Arcadius, of course, did nothing about it and Synesius continued to be the defender of his people after he became bishop. Once a governor was sent to Cyrene whose conception of his office was to use it merely as a means of extracting more tax-money. Synesius went after him, threatening him with excommunication as an open sinner. He devoted himself faithfully to his many duties and became a real power in North Africa. His later years were saddened by the death of his three sons at the hands of the turbulent neighboring tribes. Just before his death he wrote a hymn as a swan song, in which he commended himself to Christ, praying that "his sins may be forgiven and that he may behold the glory of the Saviour."

It was such men as Synesius who saw the Church through the troubled days of those first few centuries. He deserves to be better known.

About Books

THE APOCALYPSE OF JESUS CHRIST: A REAPPEARANCE by William J. McKnight, D. D. Hamilton Brothers, Boston. $3.00

This is an exposition of the Letters to the Seven Churches from the ultra-fundamentalist point of view. We can imagine the author to be a hard, angular, unsmiling type of Christian, whose goodness is more repellent than attractive. He devotes pages of turgid rhetoric to Jezebel and contemplates with grim delight "The head of Ahab's sons jostled into baskets and piled in heaps in the very gates of Jezreel, that they might gaze from their hollow sockets on Naboth's vineyard." We have a guilty feeling that the author secretly desires a similar fate for all Modernists. This is a perfectly safe book for students in seminaries of the anti-evolutionist type and for the layman whose religion, instead of being a source of inspiration and joy, has soured him for life.

I. Goddard.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

WHAT IS SUCCESS?

Here Are A Few Essentials

BY REV. G. A. STUDDERT-KENNEDY

THE secret of success depends upon what you mean to succeed at. There is truth in the saying that only the second-rate succeeds; first-rate men and things are always failures.

That low man seeks a little thing to do,
Sees it and does it.
This high man with a great thing to pursue,
Dies ere he knows it.
That low man goes on adding one to one,
His hundred's soon hit.
This high man, aiming at a million,
Misses a unit.

If you aim at a gooseberry-bush, you will probably hit it and feel proud of yourself—for a while. If you aim at the moon you will miss it; but you will hit something higher than the gooseberry-bush. If you want to make dead certain of success aim low, and you will be rewarded—and the reward will turn to dust or dirt as soon as you touch it.

Aiming at Nothing

Lord Beaverbrook has said that there is no success without egotism, but he never said what he meant by success, nor did he define egotism. In the long run an egotist—a self-centred man or woman—can never succeed, because he is aiming neither at the moon nor at the gooseberry-bush, but at a ghost. He is seeking something which is not there, and never can be anywhere but in his own imagination.

The self-centred man wants a world built for himself and according to his desires, and there is no such world, and he is, therefore, doomed to failure, however great and lasting his success may seem to be. Napoleon was the supreme egotist. He battered, bludgeoned, beat: he slaughtered, schemed and tortured men to force the world into the shape he wanted it to be. And because his natural gifts were so great and his genius so trancendent he almost succeeded; but in the end the world broke him, and he had to stand and listen to the judgment of the sea as it moaned against the cliffs of St. Helena.

So it must be with all self-centred people sooner or later—sooner if they are little people, later if they are big ones.

Honesty First

The first essential of real success is honesty, square facing of the facts, the absolute and utter refusal to pretend that you are not what you are, or that you are what you are not. That is why Christ was so down on hypocrites or actors. There is no hope of getting anywhere for the man who deceives himself. You must find out what you want, and why you want it, and then go for it baldheaded.

Conquest of Fear

The second essential of success is the conquest of fear. The one thing I have never failed to mark in every really fine personality I have ever met is that they feared nothing and nobody except dishonour. Fear is a paralysing thing and we are cursed by it. If you could eliminate imaginary fears you would cut out half the failures and miseries of men and women.

Fear of poverty, fear of disease, fear of what men will say or think of you, fear of losing what you have if you try to gain more and risk it—all those cripple and cramp their victims, driving them to failure. A certain recklessness is necessary if a man is to succeed in being a man indeed.

Safety first is all right as a rule of the road, but it is rotten as a rule of life. "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" is a proverb only fit for fools and failures. The two birds in the bush are worth twenty in the hand; they represent hope, and hope is the one thing in the world we cannot live without.

Need Hope

Life without hope is only living death, and hope must rest on faith; both are essential to success. Faith, at its root, is just the capacity for concentrated desire, the power to want one thing and to keep on wanting it so badly that you cannot help striving to attain it. The cause of most failures is that we do not want one thing steadily and without wavering, our desires are dissipated and divided. We don't know what we want and won't be happy till we get it.

The great thing is to find out what we want, and to keep on wanting it, so that want makes us work and keep on working. It is always want that makes work, and work, hard and persevering work, is the road by which we must walk to success of any kind.

Genius has been defined as an infinite capacity for taking pains, but it really is the capacity for counting something so tremendously that nothing is pain which brings you nearer to it. The brilliant pianist whose hands fly over the keys so easily and with such certainty of touch has probably had to practise eleven hours a day; but what did he care? He wanted music and he was going to get it; the hours seemed like minutes, and the years like days.

Real Genius

That is genius, that power of passionate desire, and all are not gifted with it; but all of us have some of it, and to cultivate it, and foster it, to concentrate our desires and hold them to the point is the very meaning of success in anything at all, high or low.

Success, like happiness, never comes to those who seek it directly. People can never be happy by desiring happiness, nor can they succeed by desiring success. Men are happy if they know what they want and are on the way to win it, and so it is with success. The successful man is the man whose heart is set on something so firmly that he never turns aside but walks on steadily, however rough the road may be, because the desire of his heart makes all the hardness he endures seem well worth while.

Many such men may seem to fail because they aim too high, but their failure is the highest success, and in their heart of hearts they know it. They neither need nor ask for pity, and they do not care for praise. These of course, are the great ones of the earth; but in them lies the secret of success, and no one can succeed unless there is in them some measure of this greatness which consists of singleness of heart.

If you want to be a successful grocer you must set your heart on the perfect grocer's shop. You must dream of it, work for it, sacrifice every pleasure for it. You must, in short, go for it all out. You may not get the perfect shop, but you will be a successful grocer.

The question: "What is the secret of success?" was put to the Master once in another form. "What is the great Commandment?" someone asked him, and that just means: "What is the secret of a successful life?"

You know the answer. The first and great Commandment is: "Thou shalt Love the Lord Thy God"—and your God is what you want and what you live for—with all thy heart, with all thy mind, with all thy soul, and with all thy strength.

Find out what you want and go all out for it. But watch what you want. It may be a fraud and not worth wanting—and then you will succeed, but the moment of your triumph will be the moment when you realize how completely you have failed. What you want to succeed at is more important than success.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Reprinted by arrangement, from THE TORCH, organ of the Industrial Christian Fellowship.

Young Peoples Column

By Rev. W. A. Jonnard

ONE Young People's Society had a very interesting program which consisted of a double topic. The boys discussed the subject "What Qualities I Like Best in a Girl," and the girls responded with "What Qualities I Like Best in a Boy."

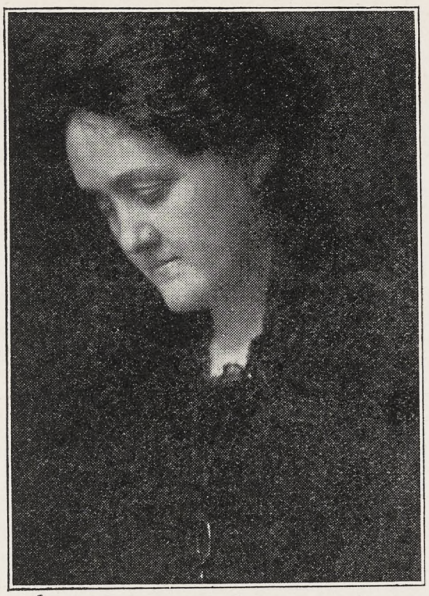
The following qualities were listed by the Observant Reporter as qualities girls liked in boys in the order of their choice:

1. Dependability.
2. Frankness.
3. Good Sport.
4. Neatness.
5. "Sensibleness."
6. Athletic.
7. Common sense.
8. Strength of Character.
9. A good loser.
10. A good winner.
11. Courteousness.
12. A good "spender," which being interpreted meant, possibly, generousness.

The boys said they liked the following qualities in girls:

1. Intelligence.
2. Fair countenance.
3. Physical beauty.
4. Good sport.
5. Good dancer.
6. Athletic.
7. Good Loser.
8. Good winner.
9. Frankness.
10. Naturalness.
11. "That School Girl Complexion."
12. Dimple in chin.
13. Wobbly eyes, which being interpreted meant, probably, "that come hither look."

* * *



The following short rules, if observed, will help any organization such as a Young People's Society:

PARLIAMENTARY LAW

1. Be definite.
2. Considerate.
3. Obtain order.
4. Be Alert.
5. Know how.
6. Don't overdo.
7. Address chair.
8. Second motions.
9. Be calm.
10. Think twice before opposing.

POINTS ON PUBLIC SPEAKING

1. Be natural.
2. Be concise.
3. Use simplicity.
4. Be humorous.
5. Be sympathetic.
6. Enunciate clearly.
7. Be prepared.
8. Have purpose.
9. Know subject.
10. Drift definitely.

MRS. JOHN GLENN
Speaks at Industrial Conference

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

A party of clergymen were attending a Presbyterian Conference in old Scotland. Having a spare afternoon, several of them set off to explore the district.

Presently they came to a river, spanned by a temporary bridge. Not observing a notice that the structure was unsafe, they started to cross it. Thereupon the bridgekeeper ran after them in protest.

"It's all right," declared the spokesman, "we're Presbyterians."

"I'm no caring about that," was the reply, "but if ye dinna get off the bridge you'll all be Baptists."

* * *

One of our subscribers writes us about an epitaph he discovered as he was going through an old cemetery in Boston. It reads: "Hezekiah Buttersfield, born November 20, 1608, died September 10, 1682; age 74 years, 9 months, 20 days. We had just learned to love him when the angels took him home."

* * *

"What kind of a man is he—good, bad or indifferent?"

"Well, that depends a good deal on who is on the other end of the plank with him."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, if you size him up with Judas Iscariot he looms up middlin' fair; but when you come to set him down between such fellows as you an' me, he does dwindle terrible surprisin', he does, for a fact."

* * *

A fussy little woman, who delighted in asking questions, once asked one of our Bishops, "What is your opinion about Hell? Is it a condition or a place?"

"That all depends," said the Bishop. To a man with a bad attack of indigestion Hell is certainly a condition. But to the woman who has to live with him it might better be called a place."—"Common Sense Religion," by Rev. Frank E. Wilson.

* * *

A friend was showing a Scotsman around his cutlery works at Sheffield. "Here's a souvenir for you, Mac," he said, when the visit was over, and handed him a pocket knife. "But," he added, "you'll have to give me a half-penny for it, so that it cannot cut our friendship."

With some reluctance the Scot searched his pockets and at last produced a penny. "Hae ye got change?" he asked, anxiously.

"Sorry," replied his friend, "I'm afraid I haven't."

Mac thought a minute. "Then ye can just gie me another knife!" he said.

Ask Me Another

The questions this week are supplied by the Rev. Martin Tate of Memphis, Tennessee. Biblical references are given for answers; look them up if you do not know them.

1. What does the word apostle mean?
2. How many apostles did Christ appoint?
3. Who is mentioned first in the list?
4. What prophecy did Christ make about Simon?
5. Who formed the inner circle of the apostles?
6. To what three places did Jesus permit these three men to accompany Him?
7. Who were the two sons of Zebedee?
8. Who is called the Beloved Disciple?
9. Who was the doubting disciple?
10. Did he finally believe in the resurrection of the Lord?

Two churches consecrated in the diocese of Los Angeles: S.S. Simon and Jude at Alhambra, and St. Mark's, Pasadena. The former is the chapel of the diocesan home for the aged, also serving as a neighborhood church. St. Mark's is one of the strong established parishes of Pasadena.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ARE WOMEN FIT COMPANIONS FOR MEN?

Opinions of Lady Asquith, Shaw, Lady Rhondda, St. John Ervine

Reported by

A. MANBY LLOYD

SOME amusing views exchanged at the School of Economics, when Lady Rhondda and Mr. St. John Ervine, with Miss Edith Evans as their not too impartial chairman, argued the point, "Are women fit companions for men?" The debate was one of the lectures and counter-lectures arranged in aid of the King Edward's Hospital Fund. Mr. Ervine, who boldly assumed the role of challenger, declared that ever since women had been enfranchised men's manners had gone to pieces. Until women began to smoke no man ever dreamed of smoking in a theatre. Another disgusting habit entirely due to women was the cocktail habit. In his view cocktails were only for women and Americans. The great days of the English theatre were those when women were allowed neither in the auditorium nor on the stage. The moment women were admitted indecency became rampant. The Restoration drama coincided with the advent of women on the stage, and when they were first seen there they were hissed by the indignant and virtuous men. When women went into the audience tragedy was abolished from the stage. The simple reason was that women wanted to see something at which they could giggle. When Shakespeare was produced at the Old Vic and elsewhere the men predominated in the queues, but when a lecherous play was given anywhere it was the women who thronged there. What men were entitled to demand of women was comradeship. They must no longer trade on their sex, which was what they always did, but what men never did—and they must be prepared to take their stand with men on terms of real friendship and equality. It was a foul lie to say that women were finer and more beautiful creatures than men. Let them go to the zoo, and there they would see that the male was always the more beautiful animal of the species. Women had to realize that in beauty of mind, body and character men were their superiors. Man was a creature full of romance and with a burning desire for adventure. He aspired to contend with danger and death, and it was the women who lured him into the cities, which he hated, because she herself loved life and gaiety. What she said was, "Come and be comfortable." It was because women liked crowds and doing the same things as other women did in such a convention-ridden way that the world was getting into such a pitiful plight.

Lady Rhondda, far from taking a defensive standpoint, retorted with the question, "Are Men Fit Companions for Women?" Like all men, Mr. Ervine blamed women for everything. Perhaps his most amazing suggestion was that the decadence of the drama was due to them. In theatrical matters the tastes of nine men out of ten was simply deplorable. Whenever women tried to get theatre parties together they always said: "We shall have to go to a musical comedy; the men will be bored if we go to anything else." As to the statement that the abolition of tragedy was due to women she had often thought that perhaps the reason why there was such an enormous number of murders and suicides in Shakespeare was because he had to appeal to the bloodthirsty tastes of his masculine audiences. To say that no man ever traded on his sex was a magnificent impertinence. The truth of the matter was that the subject of the debate had been worded wrongly. Seeing that we were now living under a democracy, the basic fact of which was that one had to abide by the majority rule, it was a gross impertinence for the men, as the minority, to ask whether the majority were fit to be their companions. She admitted that men did succeed "fairly well" in their endeavors to be fit companions, but their one noticeable and serious drawback, especially in Englishmen, was that they could not talk or listen to a woman's "shop." On the other hand one of the salient qualities of women was their ability to take an inteiligent and sympathetic interest in men's "shop." Men could often be stimulating and amusing, but they had different types of humour, and thus they had to study their market, or in other words, first choose the woman to whom their humour appealed.

* * *

"My character-drawing of women —which has enchanted the whole world—has brought me many queries, such as 'How did you know we were like that'?"

This was only one of the exhilarating remarks of Mr. George Bernard Shaw at a meeting at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, to provide funds for the Cecil Houses, the new Women's Public Lodging-House Fund.

Two thousand pounds was contributed, which, by a cheque for £100, Mr. Shaw converted into guineas. ("I shall be completely ruined if it gets out that I gave anything,' remarked Mr. Shaw, fountain pen in hand.)

Mr. Shaw let his audience into the secret of how he acquired his knowledge of women.

"I'm afraid," he said, "they have attributed me with a very disreputable past, but the secret is that I have always presumed that a woman was a person exactly like myself.

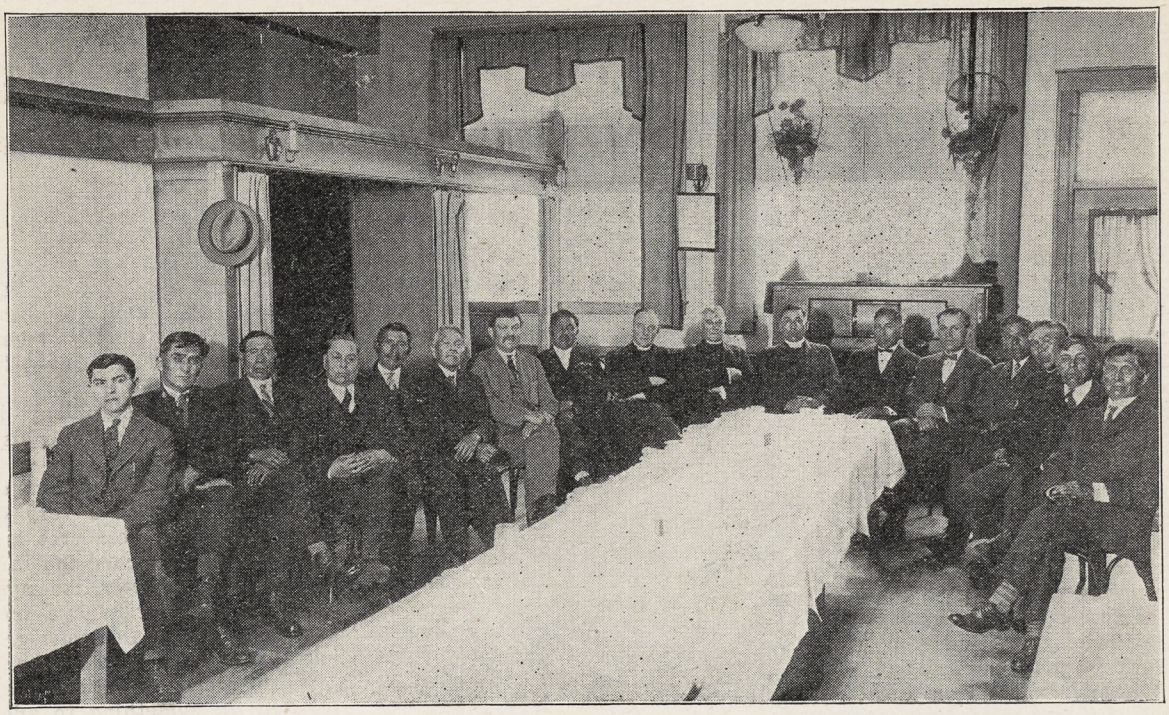
"In the Victorian age men succeeded in one of the most grotesque enterprises ever tried by mankind.

"They were romantic people. They insisted on something to adore and worship. So they took the women, denied they were human beings, dressed them up in an extraordinary manner, and set up a convention that women were angels.

"This was very nice for men. But seeing that women could only be angels up to a certain point, it was not altogether pleasant for the women. We, therefore, had dosshouses and everything else arranged for man: women continued as angels."

Advising his audience on how to gain admission to a night shelter, Mr. Shaw warned them against always insisting on their respectability.

"I will tell you what I would say to the Church Army if I wanted a bed for the night. I'd say: 'I don't want to go straight. I'm one of the worst characters in London. The Salvation Army have kicked me out and no one will have anything more to do with me.' And I am positive the Church Army would fight to get me in and rescue me from myself!



"I am sure you will find in these places women of spotless virtue who have got in by pretending to be abandoned creatures!"

* * *

Lady Asquith, better known as "Margot," has been discoursing on the modern girl. Having lived at Downing St. from August, 1914, to December, 1916, and seeing the horrors and workings of war at close quarters, her heart went out to the younger generation. The war, she thought, would create a new type of young person overwhelmed by a sense of responsibility due to the anguish that darkened their youth. On the contrary they have made more foolish, reckless and loveless mar-

(Continued on page 15)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE other evening while over the coffee cups with a group of people who qualify as intellectuals I was given a "ride" for my selection of three books to be retained if all others were to be everlastingly denied me. Perhaps you will recall the selection in the issue of June 9th: Tolstoi's "My Religion," Henderson's "Life of Bernard Shaw," Butler's "The Way of All Flesh." One lady was kind enough to agree that Tolstoi's work belonged, but I was politely razzed as a lowbrow for the selection of the other two. I do not this moment recall all of their selections, but they included "The Ring and the Book," Plato's "Republic," Carpenter's "Toward Democracy" and, I believe, Tawney's "The Acquisitive Society." The humorist in the bunch thought to beat the game by selecting The Encyclopaedia Brittanica but the choice was ruled out on the ground that it was a couple of dozen books and not one, or even three.

It was the selection of Butler's book that got me in particularly bad. I shall not defend the choice except to ask you to present a more penetrating sentence than that in which he describes a group of people at worship as being those who "would have been equally horrified at hearing the Christian religion doubted, and at seeing it practiced."

* * *

One of our clergy in the South says the following incident in his experience is strictly true. The names are assumed.

"The other day I met my old friend Nick Abenadarkis, who told me that he was back in town to stay. He asked me to call upon his wife who before their marriage was Martha Johnson and lived about eight miles back in the hills. During the time that they had been away, Martha, so Nick said, had become 'Episcopal.'

"I found their house down near the railroad tracks in a somewhat poor neighborhood. The house, however, had been freshly painted. Martha, who was not expecting me, greeted me in a modish blue gown. She was in all respects immaculate, her hair marcelled. Her five-year-old boy had clean face and hands, his hair neatly brushed. Through the doorway into a back room I saw an attractive crib. Soon the baby fretted and Martha brought him out, also immaculate. Martha had dropped the vernacular twang and spoke in the tones of a cultivated foreigner.

"Yet Nick was merely a Greek restaurant employee. If Martha had married a 'hundred per cent American,' of similar status (I have some such parishioners) I should have found her a slattern, in a cluttered and disorderly house, with dirty and unkempt children; all deadly dull and unattractive. Cannot we Hellenize some more of our native American stock?"

* * *

The program of the ninth summer conference at Asilomar, California, announces national leaders, including Miss Cooper and Miss Tillotson of "281"; Bishop Mitchell of Arizona; Dean Beal of Los Angeles; Dean Powell of San Francisco; the Rev. Harold Brewster and other clergymen of the Pacific Coast.

* * *

Editors of religious journals came together this past week in Washington, under the auspices of the Federal Council of Churches, to discuss the trade. The minutes will eventually arrive and will be passed on if they contain anything of interest to you; that is, anything except methods of inveigling folks to subscribe and firms to advertise. If there was a lively discussion of the ethics of the business I rather imagine things were said which might make copy. Our chief difficulty in that field, it seems to me, is lack of sufficient financial strength to be free; that and the idea that nothing nasty should be said about anyone or anything no matter how true. We are continually suppressing stories simply because there is a villain to deal with, and since every worthwhile story has a villain we, in the name of a holy ethics, feed the waste paper basket the tales which the editor of a secular paper would run in the headlines. Nice juicy bits—who is there to deny that pleasure is found therein. I am quite sure that there comes to this office each week material for three or four paragraphs dealing strictly with Church affairs which, if presented regularly over a period of six months, would double the circulation of the paper. Also if we were careful to get all the facts before passing them on I rather believe the Church would profit by the policy in the long run. "Out in the open" is the only sane policy for a large institution. It is the policy of successful business, where the "buck passer" has to eat his own words at the conference table. But in the Church, too often, hypocrisy and even dishonesty goes by the name of charity; a deadly sin is made a virtue with the inevitable result.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

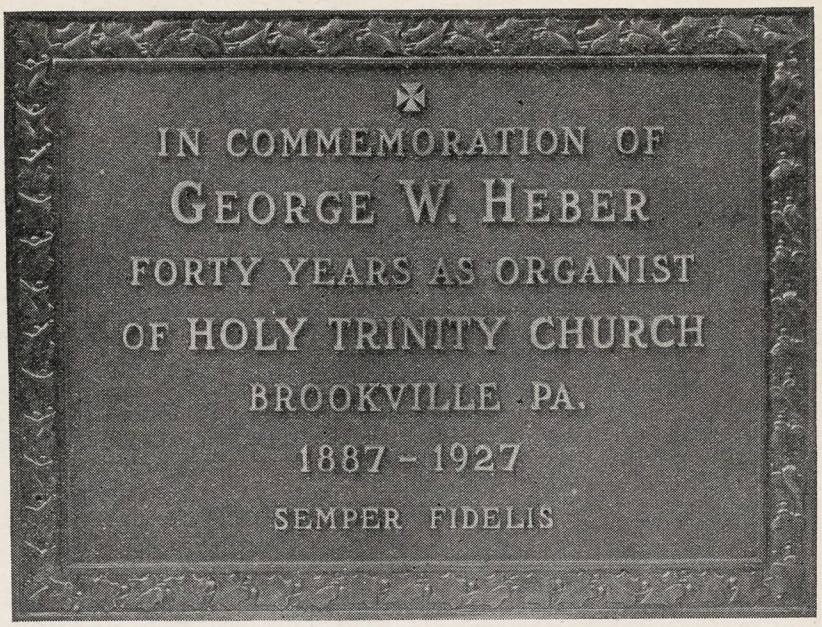
* * *

Please, it will help a lot if you will note this in a book, those of you who are kind enough to send in news: from now until further notice, probably September first, all mail should be addressed to the Chicago office, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue. I'm clearing out of New York.

* * *



The Rt. Rev. Samuel Booth, Bishop Coadjutor of Vermont delivered the baccalaureate sermon at the commencement at St. Stephen's College on June 12th. The commencement address was given by the president of the college, Dr. Bernard Iddings Bell, on the subject "What Constitutes a College Education?" There were eighteen men graduated, four of whom are to teach, five go into the ministry, two into graduate work, four into business, one into law.

* * *

The Rev. Charles Clingman, rector of the Advent, Birmingham, Alabama, has declined the election as Bishop Coadjutor of the diocese of Lexington. No further action will be taken in the diocese on the matter until the regular convention in February.

* * *

Paul James Mather, a Tsimpshean Indian was ordained deacon by Bishop Rowe of Alaska on May 29th at St. John's Church, Ketchikan, Alaska. Mr. Mather is to have charge of St. Elizabeth's Mission, under the direction of the Rev. Henry R. Sanborn of St. John's. Following the ordination Mr. Mather gave a dinner for the Bishop and Mr. Sanford, attended by the vestry committee of the new mission. In the picture, Bishop Rowe is in the centre, Mr. Sanford and Mr. Mather or either side of him. St. John's, the mother parish, is the only parish in our nothern territory, and it now has the distinction of having presented the first native Alaskan for Orders.

TABLET TO STILL ACTIVE ORGANIST

* * *

Episcopal clergymen from Nebraska, Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Kansas were present at the rural conference held at Kansas State Agricultural College, June 6-10. Among the Churchmen on the program were Bishop Wise of Kansas, Archdeacon Coles of Salina, Rev. H. P. J. Selinger of Western Nebraska and Archdeacon Pierce of North Texas. Archdeacon Christian of Kansas was host to the Episcopal group.

* * *

Bishop Stires of Long Island last week ordained his son deacon in the Chapel of the seminary at Alexandria where he himself was ordained a deacon. Bishop Stires also presided at a luncheon in honor of the Rev. Dr. Berryman Green's completion of 25 years as professor and dean.

* * *

St. Gabriel's parish house, Hollis, Long Island, was opened last Wednesday evening. It is a beautiful building, built at a cost of $70,000, exclusive of furnishings.

* * *

Some weeks ago, possibly some of you will recall, reference was made to the notable service by Mr. George W. Heber, who has been organist at Holy Trinity, Brookville, Pa., for forty years, and is still at the job every Sunday. There is pictured above a tablet erected in his honor; designed and executed by the Fiske Iron Works of New York.

* * *

Five men were ordained to the diaconate at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York City, on June 12th, and five others were advanced to the priesthood; Deacons: Paul D. Wilbur, Harvey A. Simmonds, Clarence Van Buchanan, Leopold Kroll, Theodore M. Burleson. Priests: Thomas S. Bradley, Charles A. Wilson, Francis S. Danzell, Frederic R. Meyers, John Varian Daly. Dean Robbins preached the sermon.

* * *

A conference on Social Justice was held last week at Adelynrood, the retreat house of the Society of the Companions of the Holy Cross. The special topic was the Church and Labor. Among the speakers were Mrs. Otto Wittpenn, Miss Caroline B. LaMonte, Mrs. Irving Bruce, Miss Sophie Brown, Miss Vida Scudder, Miss Edith Williams, Miss Helena Dudley, Miss Rose Schneiderman, president of the Woman's Trade Union League, Mrs. John M. Glenn of the Church Mission of Help, Miss Adelaide Landon of Grace Church, New York. Dean Charles N. Lathrop of the department of social service led a day of devotions on Sunday.

* * *

The Rev. Gordon Reese, rector at Vicksburg, Mississippi, and leader of young people, is on the faculty of several summer conferences.

* * *

A picturesque procession took place in Hackensack, New Jersey, on the afternoon of Trinity Sunday, June 12, directed by the Italian Church of St. Anthony of Padua, St. Anthony's Day being June 13. This was formerly an independent Italian congregation which at its own request has for the past eighteen months been under the guidance of the Bishop of Newark, the Rev. Joseph Anastasi, priest in charge.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

Here is a letter from the rector at Greenville, Mississippi, the Rev. P. G. Davidson. Any donations sent to THE WITNESS will be forwarded to the Bishop of Mississippi. "The flood conditions in the Mississippi Delta have been greatly aggravated by a second rise which is now pouring through the gap at Mounds Landing. There is no prospect of relief from flood water before the early part of or the middle of July so that planting operations will have to be abandoned in a large part of this territory. The water is still standing in certain parts of the city of Greenville and the other towns in the southern part of the Delta are still largely inundated. In Washington County, of which Greenville is the seat, the Red Cross is still feeding 43,000 of the 52,000 population even after many people have left. The matter of feeding the people and caring for them in most instances will continue for at least twelve months on account of the almost absolute prostration of business and agriculture. The church has suffered very severely in that capacity of its members to maintain the support of parish and missionary work. Much of the church property has been injured. At Yazoo City several thousand dollars will be required to restore church edifice which was flooded to the depth of two or more feet. The church property at Greenville suffered less damage. Probably $1500.00 will be sufficient for the restoration of St. James' property and the property of the colored congregation of the Redeemer. At Mayersville, Rolling Fork and Hollandale there has also been a limited amount of damage not yet estimated because of the flood waters in those places. The rector of St. James' Church of Greenville desires to express his gratitude to all who have sent gifts for the relief of flood sufferers."

* * *

A committee consisting of prominent rectors and laymen of New York has been appointed by Bishop Manning to devise ways and means for bringing about a larger interest in the diocese of New York in St. Stephen's College. The Rev. Henry Darlington, rector of the Heavenly Rest, is the chairman.

* * *

As is done yearly the people of Nashville, Columbia, and nearby towns in Tennessee made their pilgrimage on June 5th to the grave of the first bishop of their diocese, in St. John's churchyard, near Columbia. This is the second oldest church in the state and it was at his own request that Bishop Otey was buried there.

* * *

St. James, Knoxville, Tennessee, was formally opened on Whitsunday. Bishop Maxon was the preacher.

* * *

Bishop Gilman's arrival in Shanghai is reported by cable June 10th.

* * *

I doubt if we have to worry any more about Lindbergh. He apparently refused their military uniform and braids. Maybe he absorbed the idealism of his father, a man who was courageously for peace in a day when it was not too easy. Anyhow the bit of a look that I had of him as he passed the Diocesan House, New York, convinced me that he was an unspoiled boy, finding it difficult to understand this honor and very much embarrassed by it. He blushes naturally, which is always a sign of mental health.

* * *

Speaking at the commencement of the Berkeley Divinity School, Mr. Henry Goddard Leach, editor of The Forum, said:

"America has come a long way on the road to tolerance. One who studies the sermons of the estimable Cottons and other homespun princes of the Massachusetts Theocracy, or reads about the festivities attending

THE RACINE SCHOOL OF RELIGION

From July 12 to Aug. 2, 1927.

The following courses are offered:

CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE
The Holy Spirit, the Church, and the Means of Grace.
The Rev. M. Bowyer Stewart, D.D.

NEW TESTAMENT
Church Literature of the First and Second Centuries.
Professor A. Haire Forster

CHURCH HISTORY
The Church since the Reformation, with particular reference to the Anglican Communion.
Professor Percy V. Norwood.

APOLOGETICS
A discussion of the present relations of Science and Religion.
The Rev. D. A. McGregor

MINOR COURSES
On the Background of the Gospel, Christian Morals, the Prayer Book and its Antecedents.

For further information apply to

MRS. GEORGE BILLER
Taylor Hall Racine, Wis.

25,000 CHURCHES USE
OSTERMOOR
CUSHIONS.
BUILT—NOT STUFFED.

Illustrated Booklet and Samples Free
Old Cushions renovated and recovered equal to new
Ostermoor & Co., Inc., Dept. C, 114 Elizabeth St.. N.Y

St. Albans School
SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS
Diocese of Chicago

Sixty miles west of Chicago.
Five miles off the Lincoln Highway

SCHOLASTIC: Best of preparation for college. Boys this fall will be entered at Dartmouth, M. I. T., Yale, Princeton, Columbia, St. Stephens, Hobart, Kenyon, Annapolis, University of the South, Knox, Beloit, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Lafayette, Miami and Purdue.

ATHLETIC: Every boy has an opportunity to enter the sports — Foot Ball — Basketball — Tennis— Track — Golf — Baseball — The School for two years has had an enviable reputation.

RELIGIOUS: Great care has been given to have a good religious atmosphere. There are few obligatory services.

HOME LIFE: The School has been to capacity for six years. Great care has been used in the selection of boys. The group enrolled has made it possible to have a full honor system under a council and an atmosphere of an ideal home.

CONFERENCES: The Rector will be glad to make appointments at various centers during the summer. A visit to the school would be of value. The Chicago Office is Room 1411, Tower Building, Wednesdays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Address the School for literature and information.

ENROLLMENT: Last year boys came from Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Florida, Louisiana, Montana, Colorado, Wisconsin, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Alaska.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

the hanging of four God-loving Quakers on Boston Common, must have borne in upon his mind the reassuring conviction that compared with the intolerence of that day, the schools of H. L. Mencken and John Roach Straton and even the most hooded rites of the Ku Klux Klan are as smiling humility and brotherly love. After all, fewer citizens are languishing in prison for their strange political views during the administraton of Calvin Coolidge, the efficient, than during that of Woodrow Wilson, the idealist."

* * *

Commencement exercises for the boys of the Choristers' School of Grace Church, New York, were held June 11, the address being given by the Rev. Thomas Guthrie Speers, Presbyterian. Two boys of the twenty-three in the school graduated and applications for their places will be received by Mr. Ernest Mitchell, choirmaster. It is a rare opportunity; a school that ranks in every way with the better preparatory schools of the country, with the added training in voice, all without cost to the two boys who qualify.

* * *

A recent cable from Bishop Roots informs us that Boone University and St. Hilda's School were occupied for one day by soldiers but are now vacated. The Bishop reports the damage small.

That the Church General Hospital is caring for Chinese soldiers wounded in the fighting in the Province of Honan. The Rockefeller Foundation through its resident Vice-president in China, Mr. Roger S. Greene, has kindly provided the salary of an additional physician for six months in order to assist in this emergency.

That great political uneasiness exists in the Hankow area, but that officials are friendly.

* * *

Progress on the new building at Easter School, Baguio, is a constant source of inspiration. Sixth-grade Evangeline says, "It is very lovely." Seventh-grade Angeline replies, "Not only lovely but magnificent." The latest fascination is the paint and the painters, who, instead of using ladders, very cleverly make a framework of bamboo poles tied with strong vines.

* * *

Bishop Cross of Spokane writes thus of the summer school of his district: "We are planning the best summer school in the history of the district, our minimum aim is one adult and one junior representative from each parish and mission. We believe the summer school has done more than anything else to develop our sense of inter-dependence and family life. Let us turn our faces now toward Coeur d'Alene that so through this association we may gain the strength and the knowledge with which to carry on our perennial Crusade."

* * *

All day celebration of the 90th anniversary of St. Paul's, Greenville, Ohio, recently. The Rev. Charles H. Lee of St. Simon's Island, Georgia, a former rector, was the preacher. The visitors of the diocese were present, with other distinguished guests.

* * *

An interesting meeting of the Los Angeles Clericus recently when the speaker was Father Conaty, Roman Catholic, head worker at the Newman Club, University of California. The meeting was held in Trinity Church after which many of the clergy were guests at Newman House where Father Conaty explained his work.

* * *

A member of the Church in the Diocese of New York has established with the Foreign and Domestic Missionary Society a trust fund of $30,000. The income is to be used for the support of St. Margaret's Home, Kusatsu, Japan. The home itself was given a few years ago by the same donor for the care of the untainted children of leper parents. It is a part of the merciful and self-sacrificing work carried on among the lepers by Miss Mary Cornwall-Legh, under the auspices of our Church in the Diocese of North Tokyo.

* * *

The corner stone of the new St. Andrew's Church, Main Street near Highgate Ave., Buffalo, N. Y., was laid June 10th by the Rt. Rev. Charles H. Brent, Bishop of Western New York. It was particularly fitting that the corner stone should be laid by Bishop Brent for it was in St. Andrew's Mission, then on Spruce Street, that he began his ministry as a deacon in 1887. The parish is erecting

ST. ANNE'S Open Air School, Box W, Charlotteville, Va.
Beautiful location in far famed Blue Ridge Mountains. College preparatory and elective courses. Fully accredited by State Board of Education. Open gymnasium allows sports in the fresh air in all weather. Riding taught by expert. Music. Art. Bishop of Virginia, President of Trustees. Laura Lee Dorsey, Principal.

SAINT MARY'S HALL
Faribault, Minnesota
Episcopal school for girls, founded in 1866. Beautiful new fire-proof building, large campus, out-of-door sports, excellent academic and special training. Prepares girls for all colleges.

Hannah More
DIOCESAN SCHOOL OF MARYLAND
Founded 1832
A Country School for Girls, fifteen miles from Baltimore. College Preparatory and General Courses. Music. Art. Supervised Athletics. Terms $600 to $800.
Principal
MISS LAURA FOWLER, A. B.
Box W, Reisterstown, Maryland

ATTEND THE
EVERGREEN CONFERENCES
School of the Prophets — August 8 to August 20.
Spend an inspired vacation.
Write for program and summer rates.
Conference Registrar—605 Insurance Bldg., Denver, Colorado

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation
THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.
Chartered under Act of Congress.
Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.
Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.
Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

BIBLE ANNUITY BONDS YIELD AS HIGH AS 9%
Income for Life According to Age
Enjoy the financial advantage and spiritual satisfaction of owning Bible Annuity Bonds. They are issued on two lives, as husband and wife etc., in denominations of $100 and up. Fixed income paid throughout lifetime of one or two persons. Then principal goes to the Society's work of spreading the Word. Since 1809 the Society has distributed free, millions of Bibles to immigrants, seamen, prisoners, the sick and the blind. Call or write for free pamphlets describing the work of the society.
NEW YORK BIBLE SOCIETY, (Dept. 33)
5 East 48th Street, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

the present building as a Thank-Offering to Almighty God for his life and work.

* * *

The oldest living officer of the Civil War living in Cincinnati died on June 6th when Major Frank J. Jones, for many years senior warden of Christ Church, died at his home, age 89 years. He was always prominent in the affairs of the diocese.

* * *

Conference on Religious Education was recently conducted at St. Mark's, Portland, Oregon, with Miss Mabel Lee Cooper, of the National Council department, Rev. Hoyt E. Henriques of Salt Lake City and Rev. Thomas Jenkins, missionary in Oregon, as the leaders.

* * *

Christ Church, Springfield, Illinois, which is rapidly becoming a downtown church, is raising an endowment to meet the situation.

* * *

A service for outgoing missionaries was held on June 12th at St. James' Church, New York City. The rector, the Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder preached the sermon.

* * *

Most of the sermons preached in New York pulpits on June 12th were on Charles Lindbergh. Dr. Darlington, rector of the Heavenly Rest said:

"The religion of Christ can not be carried to the world through armed forces," declared Dr. Darlington, "but by conviction. You can not overcome evil with evil; you can overcome evil with good. Christ himself could have annihilated His enemies by force, but He would not use force.

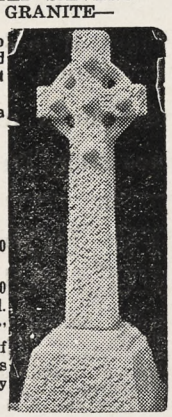
"The case of Charles A. Lindbergh is a delightful instance of how a representative of a people can accomplish much, through his own conduct and inward convictions. It has been glorious to see how Lindbergh has conducted himself.

"Lindbergh could not have done what he did, had he not had an inner conviction that it could be done; had he not been willing to risk all, and place himself in God's hands."

* * *

The Commencement exercises of the Church Schools of the five Missions under the care of the Rev. Robert Y. Barber, being those at Centralia, Nashville, Salem, Mt. Vernon and Carlyle, Illinois, was on Trinity Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Barber is an expert in Christian nurture lessons and is most fortunate in having as his assistant, Miss Nellie Smith, who lives at Centralia, and who is the director of religious education of the diocese. St. John's Church, Centralia, won the Bishop's Banner for having the largest per capita Lenten Offering.

* * *



Dean Charles R. Brown of Yale Divinity School preached his last sermon on Sunday as the pastor of the Church of Christ in Yale. He is succeeded, after sixteen years in the office, by the Rev. Elmore McKee.

* * *

On Wednesday, June 8th, St. Mary's Church, Beaver Falls, Pa., had a really great parish event. In the afternoon a marble stone of large dimensions, the gift of Westminster Abbey, London, on which before shipping to America, they had inscribed the dates 1290-1926, was unveiled by a brief service, the Bishop of the diocese, the Rt. Rev. Alexander Mann, and the Rector of the parish, the Rev. Amos Bannister, officiating. The spe-

"Taylor Hall, Racine, Wisconsin, from August 6th to August 27th, 1927, will be available for church people who may desire to spend their vacations on Lake Michigan. Room and board $20.00 per week. Apply to Mrs. George Biller."

BEAUTIFUL MEMORIALS
IN THE CELEBRATED SILVERY GREY CORNISH GRANITE—

designed after those to be found in the old-world Churchyards of Great Britain.
The illustration depicts a
7th Century
with Raised Bosses
St. Martin's Cross
5 ft. high*
Packed in case ready for shipment $95.00
Approximate freight to New York.....$19.50
*Larger sizes if required.
Illustrated Booklet "W" on request; also list of places in the States where our Memorials may be seen

MAILE & SON, Ltd.
Cornish Granite Sculptors
Founded 1785
357 Euston Road LONDON, ENGLAND

Money in Old Letters
Look in that old trunk up in the garret and send me all the old envelopes up to 1880. Do not remove the stamps from the envelopes. You keep the letters. I will pay highest prices.
GEO. P. HAKES, 290 Broadway
New York, N. Y.

SHATTUCK
A Church School for Boys
For 67 years Shattuck has been a leader among college preparatory schools in the West. It is not operated for profit. It aims to develop. High Scholarship, Manly Character Christian Citizenship.
The military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall. Address The rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

SOMERSET HILLS
A Progressive Country Day and Boarding School. Primary, Intermediate and Senior Departments. Prepares for leading Secondary Schools.
Individual instruction makes rapid progress possible.
Outdoor life in the country.
Address: Rev. James H. S. Fair, Far Hills, New Jersey

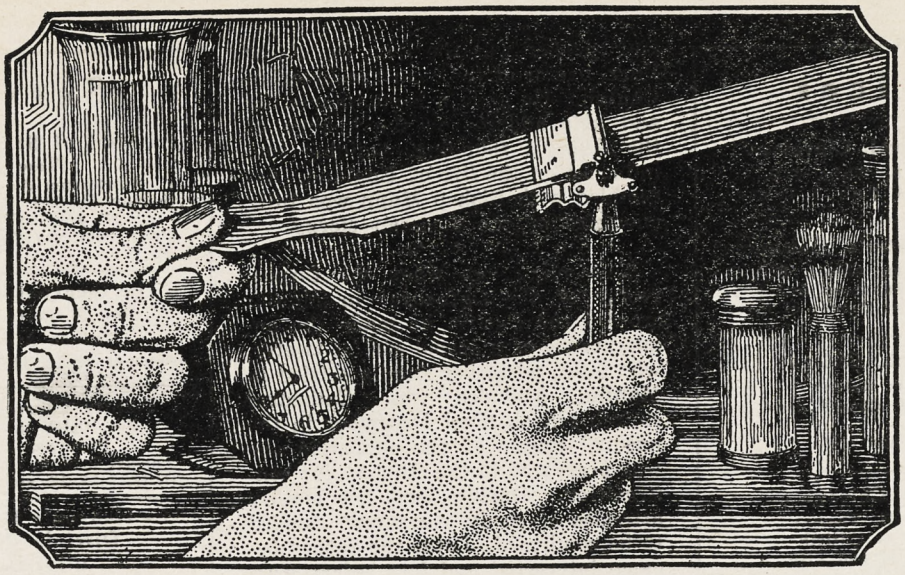
JOHN M. DOYLE
MEMORIAL TABLETS
14 S. THIRD ST. PHILADELPHIA
CATALOGUE ON REQUEST

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California
A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C. 27th year now in session. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin
Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

ROWLAND HALL
A School for Girls in the Wasatch Mountains
Salt Lake City, Utah
BISHOP MOULTON, Rector.

NASHOTAH HOUSE
Founded in 1842
Theological Seminary and Collegiate Department
For particulars address the dean
NASHOTAH HOUSE
Nashotah, Wisconsin



THE CONFERENCE FOR CHURCH WORK and Summer School for Church Music will meet at Wellesley College, June 27 to July 7. Director in Residence, Bishop Slattery; Chaplain, Rev. George L. Richardson, D.D. For program apply to Miss M. DeC. Ward, 50 Commonwealth Ave., Boston.

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 115 Franklin St., New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs, chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT
SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y. Refereaces required.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

More Shaves per Blade

but Best of All, Each Shave With a Newly Sharpened Blade

THIS is the story of the only self-sharpening razor.

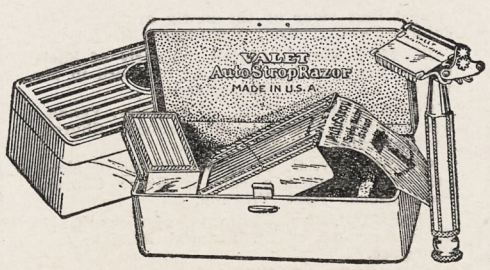
It is world-famous. Men everywhere know the Valet AutoStrop Razor. Unto the far corners of the earth, men take it to insure shaves that keep the face young—soft and smooth.

Get out of the habit rut and switch to the Valet AutoStrop Razor. To shave with it for a trial is to shave with it always.

Men everywhere are learning the superiority of its super-keen blades.

The popularity of the Valet AutoStrop Razor is irresistible—its users are getting finer shaves than ever before. Why not join this satisfied legion?

GUARANTEE



We wish that every user of a Valet AutoStrop Razor be constantly enthusiastic. Should anything happen to yours affecting its perfect service, send it to us and we will restore it to perfect condition, without charge.

AutoStrop Safety Razor Co., 656 First Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Valet AutoStrop Razor

—sharpens its own blades

The LONDONER

$5.00

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland.
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore.
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago.
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago.
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago.
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City.
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily, 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily, 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

cial speaker was the Rev. Dr. Floyd Barr, pastor of the local Presbyterian Church. He gave a most interesting and able address on the history of the Abbey's founding, building and influence on the life of England. Assembled with Bishop Mann was fully one-third of the diocesan clergy.

* * *

Two years ago when the former rector of the Cathedral in Manila crossed the Pacific he made the acquaintance of a school girl of twelve, who later, when her family settled in Manila, attended the Cathedral church school. Last December in the natural course of her education she was presented to the Bishop for confirmation. During Lent her mother attended a study class and decided to be confirmed. Later the father became interested and just before Easter he decided to join his wife in her new Church allegiance. So the church gained three new members, but—the day after Easter the entire family sailed from Manila for Boston. Thus the church at home gains through the efforts of the Church in this outpost. Were the clergy at home more jealous for the progress of their own parishes they would more earnestly urge the support of the work in this District of the Philippine Islands.

* * *

The rector of a parish in the Diocese of Massachusetts reports that of the last 144 persons confirmed in his Church, sixty-six "have moved away to other neighborhoods." The Cathedral Parish of St. Mary and St. John 103 candidates presented for confirmation, eighty-five have moved away, eighteen only being still in the Parish. Of the 345 baptisms recorded in the register now in use, thirty-nine only are still in the parish. Yet this parish is self-sustaining and last year overpaid its quota.

* * *

The summer parish of St. Anne's Church, Episcopal, Kennebunkport,

Clerical Changes

BEAVIN, Rev. A. H. of Baltimore, Maryland, has accepted a call to be the rector of St. Paul's, Winter Haven, Florida.

CROWELL, Rev. J. W., of the diocese of Long Island, has accepted appointment as assistant at St. Luke's Chapel, Trinity Parish, New York.

COTTER, Rev. Francis J., formerly rector of St. Andrew's, Wuchang, China, has been elected first vicar of the newly organized St. John's Pro-Cathedral, Providence, R. I.

DWYER, Rev. J. Linton, formerly of Shelburne, Vermont, has taken up his work in St. Luke's, Fall River, Massachusetts.

GENTLE, REV. R. E., of Sunbury, Penna., has accepted a call to St. Francis' Church, Rutherfordton, N. C.

OLSEN, Rev. O. G., of the diocese of Newark, has accepted a call to Grace Church, Ravenswood, West Virginia.

WERLEIN, Rev. Philip P., of Newark, N. J. to be vicar of St. Francis' Mission, San Francisco.

WELLS, Rev. S. W., of Queenstown, Maryland, has accepted a call to be rector of Trinity, Swedesboro, New Jersey.

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily Services: 7:30 and 10:00 A. M. 5 P. M.,

The Incarnation, New York.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D.
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Sundays, 8, 10, 11, and 4.

Trinity Church, New York.
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York.
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York.
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, and 8.
Daily, 8 and Noon. Holy Days and Thursdays, 11.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp & Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address
THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:
REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write
REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,
REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address
REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — in a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

Me., will observe in August the fortieth anniversary of its founding. The corner stone was laid by Bishop Henry A. Neely on Aug. 28, 1887. The service in memory of that event and in celebration of the thirty-fifth anniversary of the church's consecration, will be held Aug. 14 at 11.

* * *

The Rev. Paul Favour, Trinity, New Rochelle, N. Y., is to be one of the interchange preachers of the British and American committee on friendship. He will preach in Westminster Abbey, City Temple and several of the Cathedrals. Mr. Favour was formerly a Congregational minister.

Answers

1. One sent forth; one commissioned.
2. Matthew 10:2.
3. Matthew 10:2.
4. John 1:42.
5. St. Peter, St. James and St. John.
6. Luke 8:51; Mark 9:2; Matthew 26:29.
7. Matthew 4:21.
8. John 12:23; 19:26; 20:2.
9. John 20:24-25.
10. John 20:29.

Manby Lloyd's Article

(Continued from page 7)

riages than ever. She goes on to say:

"The most conspicuous change that I see in the modern girl is her lack of reverence, appreciation, and intellectual temperament. Even young women educated at the universities will sit next to men of eminence only opening their lips to put in their food. I can truthfully say from the earliest age I and my companions never missed an opportunity of making friends with men like Mr. Gladstone, Lord Salisbury, Lord Balfour, Lord Wolseley, Lord Milner, Mr. Birrell, Mr. Jowett; as well as artists and writers of distinction.

"The young girls of today think that because they have more freedom their lives have more interest and vitality; and, as no topic for discussion from birth-control upwards is prohibited, that their conversation has a wider range, and must be worth listening to. But freedom is only valuable because it gives the time to know how the majority of people outside your own experience live. There is nothing so narrowing and devitalising as the restless pursuits of one world.

"Girls who have not read seldom think, and never listen. They miss half the allusions and most of the meaning of any good conversation they may be privileged to hear."

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.000 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, social. or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, Pesident,
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address
THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to
REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

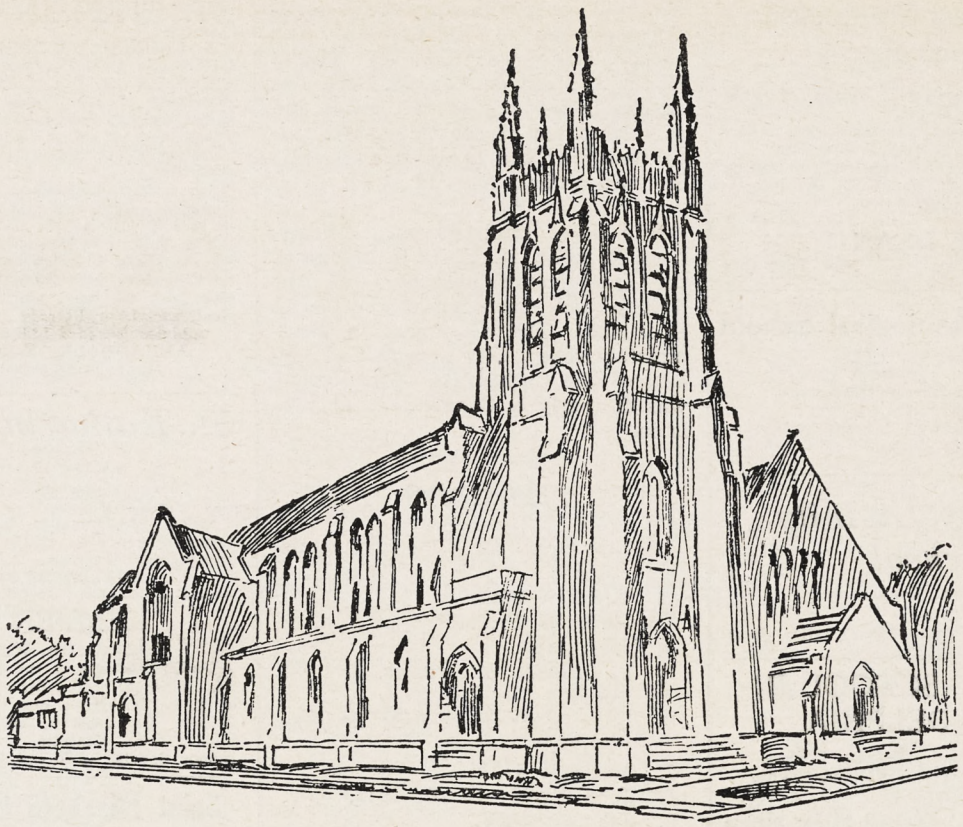
A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
College Preparatory and General Courses
MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Topeka, Kansas
The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL



To prepare women for Church work.
ADDRESS:
DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

New Emmanuel Episcopal Church Rockford, Illinois

Two years ago a campaign for a new edifice produced about $40,000 and revealed the difficulty of raising a fund commensurate with the need.

This year the Vestry felt that the time had come to make definite provision for a New Emmanuel Episcopal Church Building, and the firm of Ward, Wells, Dreshman and Gates was consulted concerning a campaign.

Wayne A. Sarcka, who had just completed his fourth consecutive successful church campaign, after analyzing the situation, recommended that an immediate campaign be undertaken for $100,000. Ralph Adams Cram, of Boston, submitted a beautiful church design.

Despite the widespread feeling that the proposed church was beyond the reach of a comparatively small and poor congregation, a campaign of six weeks' duration, under the able and indefatigable leadership of the Rector, The Reverend Garth Sibbald, produced more than $100,000 additional, showing the power of well organized and united effort.

Our quarterly bulletin "Financing Social Progress" gives further details and will be sent upon request.

Ward, Wells, Dreshman & Gates

PHILANTHROPIC ORGANIZATION AND FINANCE

475 Fifth Avenue, New York - - - - - 612 Wrigley Building, Chicago

Originators of the Intensive Method of Fund Raising

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, JUNE 30, 1927

DONALD WENTZEL

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration

For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 697 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.

Baltimore, Md.

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir.

Altar Furnishings.

Inquiries invited and given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403)
(Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts.
NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J.

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS

Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street

Designers of

HISTORICAL WINDOWS

Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.

Clerestory Windows

St. Thomas Church New York City

Stained Glass, Mural Decorations,

Glass Mosaics

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English · Artists

550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings
Gorgeous Combinations of Color
Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

The Charm of Golden-Voiced Chimes

is within reach of your church, too!

Imagine the rich, musical tones of

Deagan Tower Chimes

coming from the belfry of your church—a constant inspiration to worship; a golden voice eagerly awaited by multitudes every day. Write for plan.

Standard Sets $6,000 and Up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

If you are attending the

ANGLO-CATHOLIC CONGRESS

in London, in July,

DO NOT FAIL TO VISIT THE

ECCLESIASTICAL ART SHOWROOMS

OF

J. WIPPELL & Co., Ltd.,

4 & 5, DUNCANNON STREET, CHARING CROSS.

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates on application to

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.
French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

EST. 1871

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— OFFICE AND STUDIO —

221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

— PHOTOS, DESIGNS AND ESTIMATES UPON APPLICATION —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XI. No. 45 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

CHRISTIANITY AND CHINA

An Article By An Authority

BY STANLEY HIGH

THE Chinese Christians, almost overnight, have become Christianity in China. Missionaries have been evacuated. Mission programs have been handed over—with a brief last-minute explanation—to Chinese workers. Of mission buildings, a few have been looted, a few more have been occupied by Chinese soldiers, but most have been given, suddenly, into the trusteeship of the Chinese. Mission funds, for the most part, are transmitted to Chinese treasurers and administered by Chinese finance committees. And in the long run the state of Christianity is bound up, neither in the fate of the missionaries nor in the buildings which they have erected, but rather in those thousands of Chinese Christians.

What, therefore, of these Christians who in many cases are now the sole custodians of the Gospel which we, through a century, have preached to them?

Christians and the Nationalists

Their unanimity of support for the movement represented in the Kuomintang is hardly debatable. In the many cities of China where I have interviewed Chinese Christians I have met but one who did not look with hope upon the Kuomintang as the agency for (1) bringing a united China; (2) establishing Chinese autonomy over her own affairs; and (3) lifting China's status to one of equality in her international relationships.

On the question of membership in the party there is a division of opinion. A minority have joined the party. Some of them have reached places of influence in its councils. A majority, however, while wholeheartedly supporting the party and standing for the principles of Sun Yat Sen, have not joined it. They have maintained that, at present, Christians can exert their most helpful influence by working from the outside. At the same time there seems to be a general agreement that a time will come when membership will be necessary and a Christian obligation.

When that time comes, it is with the moderate wing, as opposed to the communist left, that the Christians will unite. It is, I believe, a safe statement that if ninety-eight per cent of the Christian leaders of China are pro-Nationalist, ninety-six per cent of those are aggressively of the moderate wing.

So far as acts of violence are concerned, educated Chinese are altogether too familiar with similar events which have accompanied wars and revolutions in the West to condemn too hastily their own movement because of such affairs—however much they honestly deplore them. I have had chapter and verse of our own Civil War—with particular reference to Sherman's March to the Sea—cited as reference on that point. And when the history of the present war is written it is possible that one of its most striking facts will be, not the violence to foreigners, but the general absence of such violence.

To underestimate the strength of the radical wing, however, seems a general tendency among the Chinese at present; just as, in the West, it has been popular to assail the whole movement as Bolshevistic. Chinese with whom I have talked spoke confidently of the day of reckoning—after the Nationalists controlled the country—when, with one swoop, the Communists would be eliminated. Recent developments have somewhat modified this excessive optimism. I think there is ground for the belief that the extremists will be driven from their present places of influence. But I do not believe that end will be accomplished easily or within a short space of time.

The Faith of the Chinese Christians

More important than the relation of the Chinese Christians to the Nationalist Movement is their loyalty to the faith they have owned. The depth of that loyalty, as revealed in the present situation, takes one back to First Century Christianity. When the data are all assembled I doubt if any period of Christian history—certainly not any modern period—will be more inspiring. The story is a succession of incidents. Here I can set down only a few.

In West China, according to Mr. Lewis Havermale: "the preachers have organized themselves into a 'Flying Squadron' whereby they can report immediately at any point where the pastor is becoming overwhelmed by anti-Christian propaganda—by means of interviews, public meetings, and tracts or posters, encouraging Christians and effecting reconciliations. They have taxed themselves to provide for the budget."

At a recent meeting in Chungking, when salary cuts were imminent, many said: "If we were in the employ of some other institution, the Post Office for example, we would now call a strike. We have talked the matter over. We have decided not to strike. The job of preaching the Gospel is not that of the missionaries but of us Chinese Christians. We will, therefore, return to our tasks even though we scarcely have enough on which to live. We will do our utmost, God helping us."

Bishop Roots

In Hankow, Bishop Logan H. Roots tells many incidents of the devotion of the Christians. Here are two:

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

A pastor in a city near Hankow was taken by the Reds, bound, beaten and carried in disgrace through the streets of the city. He was placed upon a platform before a jeering crowd. "If you will renounce this Jesus," said the tormenters, "we will let you go." "I am a Christian," said the pastor. "You may kill me, but until death I cannot cease to preach. And if I am killed my spirit will remain in this place as a witness to my Lord." In the face of such courage and such a testimony he was released.

Two other pastors of the diocese were imprisoned, after having been badly beaten. Release, they were told, would come when they renounced their faith. It happened that the day on which they were imprisoned was, in the Episcopal Church calendar, sacred to the memory of St. Stephen. So the two Chinese pastors stood up in the midst of their fellow-prisoners and preached the story of Stephen.

"This is a day of spiritual rebirth in China," said Bishop Roots.

The most striking of all these examples of Christian devotion come from Nanking. During the entire day of terrors, when escape for the missionaries seemed unlikely, little groups of Chinese boys and girls and preachers and laymen—between frantic efforts to save their foreign friends—slipped into hiding places and held impromptu prayer meetings for the safety of the missionaries.

With little question, few of the missionaries could have escaped but for the sacrifices of the Chinese Christians—who have been forced to remain to pay the price of their devotion. When the soldiers came to kill Miss Lulu Golisch, the girls of her school made a circle, three-deep about her, and then told the soldiers: "If you kill her you must first kill us." The dean of this school, a Chinese, all day remained at his post, suffering the abuse of the soldiers. He refused to leave even when his own home was looted and his wife and children driven away.

One of the pastors of Nanking took his accumulated savings in order to buy soap, towels, toothbrushes, etc., for the missionaries in hiding near his home. When they left he gave to each a bar of chocolate "in case you are delayed." The Ginling College girls were dispersed, but organized little groups and spend the day in the backs of shops or hidden in the cemeteries, in continual prayer. When Dr. Price, an aged missionary, was told he must pay several hundred or forfeit his life it was a group of Chinese Christians who banded together and raised the sum, an almost impossible one for Chinese.

Dr. H. F. Rowe, head of the Theological School, was beaten and dragged through the streets of the city. When I saw him he was still wearing Chinese clothes provided by his Christian rescuers. He said:

"It was worth the price of admission. Now we know, as never before, the reality of the faith which our Chinese Christians have professed."

THE FUTURE

I have here a letter from an experienced missionary who asks: "What about our return to the station? I have already told our leaders that when we return we return as their helpers, not as administrators. That job is now in their hands and we thank God for it. We do not propose to take it out of their hands again. There is plenty we can do. The greatest thing we can do is to give all the help possible that they may succeed in their task."

Another widely-known missionary writes: "It has taken the present political upheaval to refit ecclesiastical policies to the new era of Christian work in China . . . These are days of great promise for Christianity in China."

The test that is involved in this day of the inauguration of Chinese Christianity will be less severe, I believe, upon the missionaries than upon their boards, and supporters at home. A healthy number of those who have consecrated themselves to advancing Christ's program in China are prepared to return as guests of the Chinese on terms which the Chinese themselves will lay down. Whether or not the Church at home—and particularly its administering agencies—will see the vast opportunity involved in Christian work which is with, rather than for, the Chinese is a serious question.

It remains for us to determine, in answering that question, whether in going to China our primary purpose was to propagate our own peculiar institutions and interpretations or to propagate the Gospel of Christ. If the former is the case our money will be withdrawn when our names disappear from the inscriptions above our mission compound gates. If the latter is the case we will continue, even though anonymously so far as control is concerned, to sacrifice on behalf of those Christians who are now called upon to endure persecution and to face death because in them there is the faith that was in Christ.

On the Cover

BISHOPS, priests and laymen have been pictured on the cover of THE WITNESS, but never before one of the great army of youngsters who serve the Church as choristers. Donald Wentzel is the name of the fair-haired boy whose picture is on the cover this week, and in paying tribute to him for his service to the Church we wish to honor thus all choir boys. Donald is a member of the choir of Grace Church, Allentown, Pa., directed by Mr. Frank W. Sanders. The Rev. S. Franklin Custard is the rector of the parish.

Let's Know

CONNECTICUT

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

IN 1722 there were only a few Churchmen in Connecticut and not a single established congregation. This was due, of course, to the inveterate hostility of the Puritans to the Church of England. But in that year things began to happen.

Yale College had been founded in 1701 as a Puritan institution. After 21 years its faculty consisted of two Puritan ministers and some 35 students. These two ministers, together with five pastors of leading Puritan congregations nearby, made a concerted study of Church history and polity with the result that they all became convinced that they ought not to continue their ministry without Episcopal ordination. At the college commencement, in 1722, they presented a communication to the trustees saying that "some of us doubt the validity, and the rest of us are fully persuaded of the invalidity, of Presbyterian ordination in opposition to Episcopal." To the Puritan mind of that colony such a statement came as a thunder-clap. The college promptly fortified itself by demanding a declaration from all future instructors in which they were "particularly to give satisfaction of the soundness of their faith in opposition to Arminian and prelatical corruptions."

Four of the seven signers of the above communication went to England to be ordained. One of them died before his return but the other three came back to enter zealously into their new ministry. The name of one of these three ought to be written indelibly in the hearts of all Connecticut Churchmen. Samuel Johnson took up his work in Stratford where he completed the first edifice for the Church of England in that colony. For thirty-one years he was rector of that parish, during which time he admitted 442 persons to Holy Communion and sent fourteen men to England for ordination to the priesthood. Neither was his activity restricted to Stratford. He branched out into neighboring towns until his energy carried him pretty much all over Connecticut. Parishes sprang up here and there until, after twenty years, there were fourteen Church buildings served by seven clergymen. About this time the Rev. Samuel Seabury came over from the Puritan ministry, went to England for ordination, and eventually gave his son as the first bishop in the United States.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Samuel Johnson relinquished his work in Connecticut only under urgent pleas to come to New York and undertake the arduous task of creating a Church College there. Yale was the most accessible collegiate institution for the people of New York but Churchmen at Yale were allowed to attend an Episcopal Church only on "Sacrament Sundays," which were not very numerous, and were obliged to make frequent recitation of the Westminster Confession of Faith as part of the curriculum. And other students were subject to fine if they presumed to attend an Episcopal Church service. So Dr. Johnson established King's College in New York, under the auspices of the Church. It is now known as Columbia University.

It was not easy to be a Churchman in Connecticut in those days. It was still harder to be a priest of the Church. And it took nothing short of heroism for a man to follow his convictions out of the Puritan ministry into that of the Anglican communion. These seven names ought to be better known:— Timothy Cutler, John Hart, Samuel Whittlesey, Jared Eliot, James Wetmore, Samuel Johnson, and Daniel Brown.

WRITE YOUR OWN HEADLINE

"There Is No God" or "I Believe"

BY IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

WHEN one says "I BELIEVE," he adds an element of personality to a proposition of faith. No two men can believe exactly the same thing in the same way, as no two persons can look at the same object—say a book, or a statue—from the same angle at the same time. We regard any article of faith from the background of our own experience; and a creed is the result of the synthesis of many minds dwelling on the common denominator of their varied experiences.

A doctor, or an educator, or a farmer, looks at life and consequently at God from his own point of view. So does a newspaper man. And in speaking of this matter of restating Creeds, I want to outline a parallel process, the evolution of a philosophy of history, as a method of considering a creed, which is a philosophy of Life.

Writing News

Take the means whereby news is written. Something occurs worthy of note; the smooth current of life is interrupted by an event so out of the ordinary that all will want to know of it. "Smooth current of life" is a euphemism. Life as it appears from a newspaper is a whirling convulsion of mad eddies, waves and troughs of flying foam, dashing through hideously jagged rocks; beaten upon by stormy winds from above, and by boiling-hot fountains that jet continually up from the channel below.

No one person sees all of any event. Testimony of many witnesses is sought, to determine what happened; and never does the story of any two of them coincide exactly. The reporter has to strike the average and decide as best he may, what did occur. On a big story there may be from two to twenty reporters, each interviewing many persons on some special angle of the happening. These varying accounts are telephoned or brought in to the city editor, who turns them over to a rewrite man. The rewrite man's task is to weave all these accounts, in which anywhere from ten to a hundred witnesses may have collaborated, into one story.

From the City Editor, this rewrite man's account goes to the News Editor, whose task it is to assign to each story in the day's news,— telegraph, local, society, sport—its measure of display. He decides whether the "big play" shall be on the war in China, the bandit outrage in Mexico, a society elopement, a murder in New York, or a fire in Chicago.

From the News Editor the story goes to the Copy Desk, with instructions as to space and style of head. The copy-desk is the balance-wheel of the whole institution. It consists usually of a horse-shoe shaped table, with the "head of the desk," or "slot-man," sitting in the middle, and his copy-readers sitting on the rim in a semicircle around him.

The task of the copy-readers is to compress this vast tangle of events, already filtered through witnesses, reporters, rewrite men and News Editor, into a headline. This is an art whose difficulty cannot be appreciated until it is tried. Headlines are arbitrary; they are composed of a certain number of letters or spaces, no more and no less; and the rules regarding their construction are myriad. Inasmuch as most people read only the headlines about practically all of the news, selecting for careful perusal only those few stories whose headlines have interested them, the art of the headline writer is vital to the opinion of the world.

My particular job is day head of the copy-desk. I keep a schedule of all the stories handled between 1 p. m., when I come on duty, to 8, when I relinquish the desk to my successor. It is necessary for me to remember, or keep track of, all the "slugs"— names given stories — the heads written upon them, the general length of each, who handled it, and what it was about.

In the roaring racket of a big room, in which reporters were telephoning, editors shouting, typewriters clattering, telegraph instruments rattling, signal bells ringing, air-tubes roaring, and copy-boys falling over chairs, these stories have to be read rapidly, cut down to the bare facts on all except special displays, heads written which will fit a certain shape and within certain very sharp limits, not only of numbers of letters and spaces but of rules and regulations of all sorts, varying on every paper—not only this, but they have to be remembered so that duplications can be detected and thrown out. Frequently local and telegraph departments have the same fact, handled from their respective fields. It is the job of the head of the copy-desk to remember all that telegraph sent over and all that local sent over and catch any repetition.

He must scan every story before he gives it to a copy-reader, sufficiently well to know whether the head he writes for it has brought out the best point in the story, and does not go outside the facts. And this he has to keep up, not only for eight hours at a time, but once in a while for sixteen hours, when his successor is ill, or is in an accident, and nobody else is around who knows how to swing the job.

No newspaper pretends to chronicle everything that happens. It only hits the high spots.

Recording Angel

I wonder what the book of the recording angel looks like. I am sure he must have a sort of copy-desk, with angelic copy-readers ranged round him in a horse-shoe, each one entrusted with the task of keeping up, let us say, with a certain division of humanity. To one he throws all the records about soldiers; to another, real estate men; to another, politicians, and to another, and let us hope the most merciful, newspaper men. The Recording Angel himself only keeps a sort of rough notation, indicating which of his assistants has a certain record in his care. I should like a look at his schedule, some time, to see if he, too, occasionally makes mistakes.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

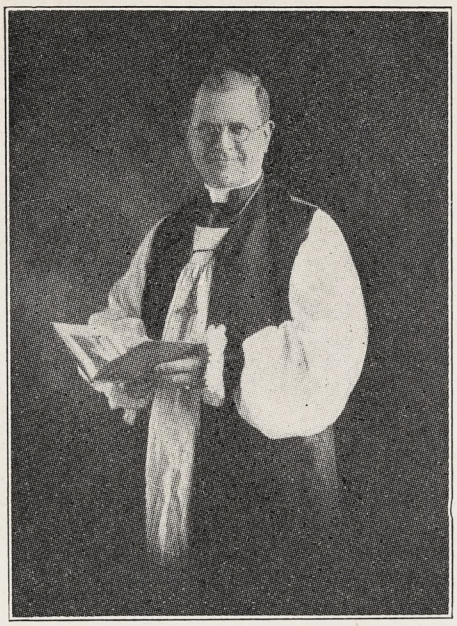
The job of writing headlines is no easy one. One must tell all the news, and yet not go beyond the facts. One must tell it interestingly, but avoid slang and trick words. One must compress the event in, say two lines of twelve and one-half letters and spaces each, or in a stream-line of thirty-one letters and spaces.



Thus the exact values of words count for a good deal. One must avoid libel or the shadow of libel. Statements likely to be disputed must be made on the authority of the person making them, not on that of the paper. One must avoid hurting national feelings or group feelings or society feelings. And one must do all this in a tearing hurry, with shouting and clamor on every side as deadlines near.

Making a Creed

With this background, I get a good deal of satisfaction out of the Ecumenical conferences. For the formation of the Creed was in effect an office conference on the proper headline to be written over the Gospel story. When Nicea was racked and torn with disputes between "homoousion" and "homoiousion," between the statement that the Word of God was of the same substance or of like substance with the Eternal Father, it was a dispute familiar to every copy-reader. Creeds are not the Gospel, any more than a headline is the news: but a wrong headline gives every reader an uneffaceably erroneous idea of the news: and a wrong creed has turned millions away in disgust from the sensational simplicity of the Gospel.

Final Job

Thus an item in a newspaper as it finally appears in the columns laid open before your eyes at breakfast time, may be the joint result of the labor of many men. Many witnesses, half a dozen reporters, rewrite men, city editors, news editors, and copy-readers united to chronicle the event and to give it its proper heading; not to mention the printers who gave it body and form, of whom there may have been fifteen, each with a separate task; copy-cutter, typesetter for the head, linotype man for the story —perhaps two or three linotype men,

Bishop Ingley
Chaplain at Evergreen

each setting a portion; then the proof-reader, correction man, make-up man, stereotypers, lockup men, press men, mailing room men, truck men, news handlers and delivery boy.

Any item of sufficient importance to obtain a place in a daily newspaper has thus been the object of the labor of twenty to thirty different men. Consider then the number of persons employed in producing the complete paper.

Each newspaper seems to have a personality of its own, due to differences in policy, appearance, general style and attitude.

Its object is to present the world with a picture of itself, as in a mirror. In general the features of the world's day are the same, but the view presented in each mirror varies with the dominant personality of the newspaper through which it is seen.

A weekly paper has to compress seven days' news into one. A monthly review must go still further in the way of condensation, and can give only general trends. News of the moment vanishes entirely; news of the month may bring into sharp relief a series of events which separately were of no particular moment, but which when taken together disclosed a glacial drift.

Now consider the yearly chronicles, which sum up at the end of every twelve months the main events of the year. Here all the small things have been obliterated; we see only peaks as of a mountain range. Forests, streams, cities, trees, grass, flowers, are obliterated in the great purple sweep of the majestic hills.

Look now at the histories, which compress into readable form the trends and rise and downfall of nations. Captions over these chapters read like this: Origin of Egypt; The Dynasties; Rise of Babylon: Cyrus, founder of the Persian Empire; Alexander; Rome; The Christian Church; The Folk-Wandering; The Dark Ages; The Crusades; The Middle Ages; Discovery of America; The Reformation; The New World; The World War. These titles are headlines written over epochs.

Now go still further. Take in the whole range of recorded time; the geological records; prehistoric man; psychology; physics; chemistry—and write over them your caption, your own headlines. How will you sum up the story of all life, of all creation? Begin with the furthest reach of illimitable aeons to which the eye of science can carry through the telescope, and the furthest infinitesimal littleness which the microscope can reveal. How will you sum up that story? What headlines will you write over them all? Will you write or

THERE IS NO GOD

I BELIEVE?

Young Peoples Column

By Rev. W. A. Jonnard

ONE of the things that young people's societies over the country are beginning to take up is what is known as the "Gift of Life." It means simply to present to their own youth-membership the call to service either in the mission field of the Church, or in the various fields of work within the Church, and to enlist for this work.

The idea, I believe, was first suggested by the Women's Auxiliary, and young people are taking it up in scattered groups over the country. One diocese is seeking to have as objective for the coming year's work a quota of two "Gifts of Life," and another Young People's Society points with pride to three crosses already in its service flag.

The motto, "I want not yours but you," might be suggested and programs on such topics as life's service, preparation, and similar topics would be well worth while towards this end.

There are so many fields in which the young college graduate, and sometimes the young high school graduate with a business course, can be enlisted. There are secretarial positions without number—religious education, social service, parish secretaries, bishops' secretaries, and executive office workers; while certain professions such as those of nursing and teaching are needed everywhere in our Church's work.

Every young people's society ought to be a source of potential recruiting and the "Gift of Life" should be kept before the organization.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The following prayer is suggested:

PRAYER FOR THE GIFT OF LIFE

O most holy Christ, Who hast given eternal life to all those who see and know God in Thee; pour Thy Holy Spirit abundantly upon the hearts and minds of our young men and women, that they, loving Thee above all things, and lightened by Thy eternal light, may see the open door which Thou hast set before them; and being strengthened by Thy strength, may count all things as nothing in comparison with a life spent in and for Thee. Make them so deeply conscious of Thy abiding presence that all fears and doubts may be lost in the joy of this fellowship, and that they may go forth as Thy messengers to the uttermost parts of the earth. All of which we ask in Thy Name, our most blessed Lord and Saviour.—Amen.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

Aunt Pauline is a dear old soul but she doesn't understand a thing about golf. The other day her nephew returned from the course, after giving a particularly poor exhibition.

"Did you have a good game?" asked Aunt Pauline.

"No," was the reply. "The seventh tee was sloppy and all the greens were in a terrible state."

Aunt Pauline shuddered.

"You mustn't lunch there any more, Gilbert. What a weird combination! And you know how easily you get indigestion." She shrugged her shoulders, thereby relieving herself of all responsibility. "I can understand how enjoyable a cup of tea and a sandwich must be after a game, but seven cups of tea and greens—"

* * *

Pieerepont: "I called at the DeKalbs' last night and found no one at home."

Montague: "No, Mrs. DeKalb is at Hollywood-by-the-Sea."

Pieerepont: "And her daughters are with her?"

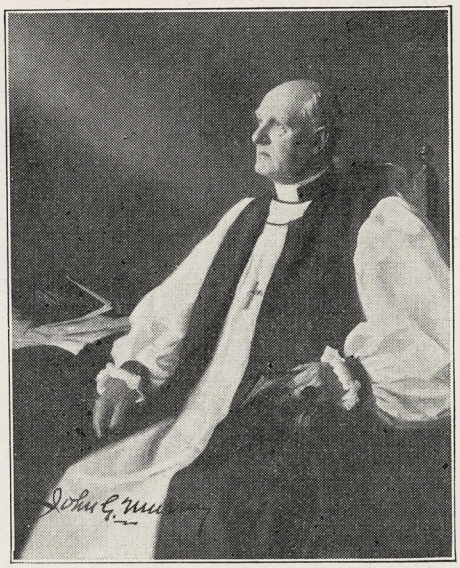
Montague: "No, they are at Wumpus-by-the-Lake."

Pieerepont: "And their son?"

Montague: "He's fishing at Clearstream-by-the-Border."

Pieerepont: "And where is DeKalb?"

Montague: "He's at Swivel Chair-by-the-Desk."



* * *

Methuselah ate what he found on his plate,
And never, as people do now,
Did he note the amount of the calorie count—
He ate it because it was chow.
He wasn't disturbed, as at dinner he sat,
Destroying a roast or a pie,
To think it was lacking in granular fat,
Or a couple of vitamines shy.
He cheerfully chewed every species of food,
Untroubled by worries or fears
Lest his health might be hurt by some fancy dessert,
And he lived over nine hundred years!

* * *

A fresh individual, wishing to demonstrate his familiarity with a church dignitary, walked up to a certain well-known bishop, slapped him on the back and said, "Where in H—have I seen you before?"

The bishop looked at him very seriously for a moment and then said, "I think you have the advantage of me. What particular part of H— do you come from?"

BISHOP MURRAY
Speaks at Church Congress

About Books

A HANDBOOK OF PRIVATE SCHOOLS. Put out by Porter Sargent, 11 Beacon Street, Boston. $6.00

This is a book of over a thousand pages giving information about 3,500 private schools and summer camps. It is a good book to know about if you have boys and girls whom you are thinking of sending to boarding school. There is a chapter on the significant events in education during the past year, and comments on books that have an educational bearing.

C. L. S.

Ask Me Another

The questions and answers this week are supplied by the Rev. W. McMurdo Brown, rector of Saint Matthew's, Grand Junction, Colorado.

1. Who was the first Roman Missionary to Britain and what did he report?
2. Did British Bishops attend any of the early Councils of the Church?
3. Who wrote the first History of the English Church?
4. In what famous legal document was the phrase, "The Church of England shall be free"?
5. Did William of Normandy pay Peter's Pence? Why?
6. By how many years did the Magna Charta precede the Reformation?
7. When did the Bishop of Rome acknowledge that he had no Papal jurisdiction in The Episcopal Church of England?
8. Where and when was the first P. B. Service read in the United States?
9. By how many years did the Episcopal Church precede the Pilgrim Fathers?
10. What English-speaking community built the first Church across the Rockies?

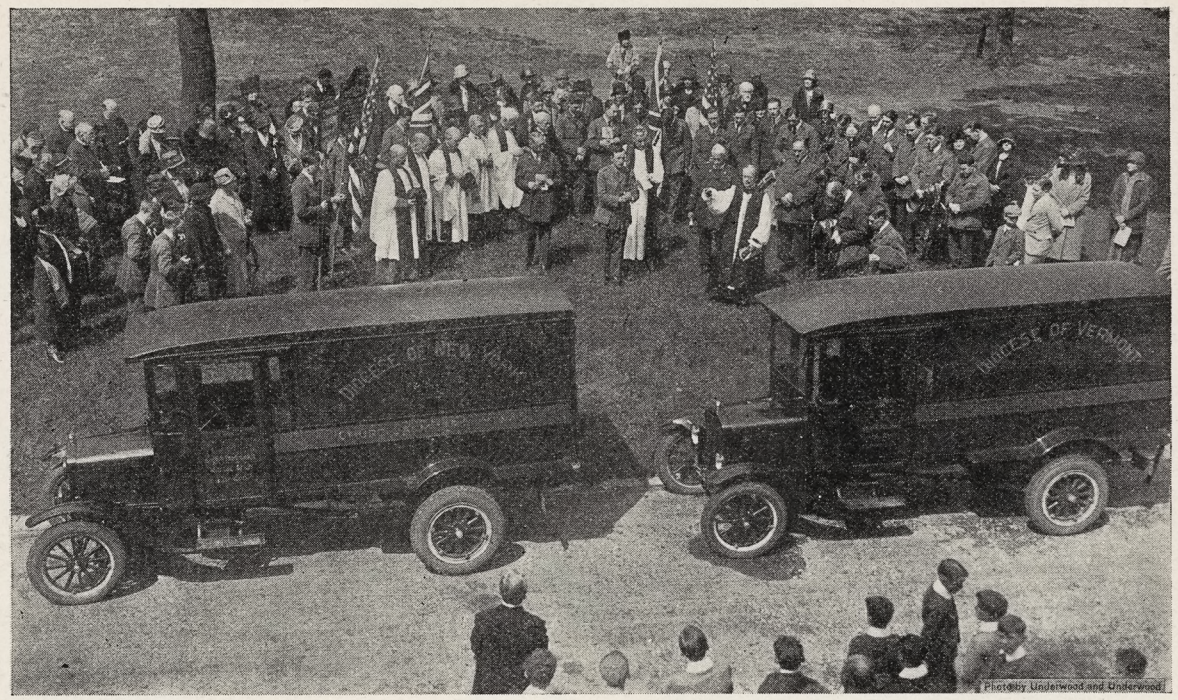
Last month, at an outdoor service held at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York, the vans of the Church Army were blessed, and the thirty young Englishmen comprising the group split up into groups and started on their way. They will be at it all summer, holding missions throughout the east, with street meetings, Salvation Army style, as well. All of which is by way of explaining the picture which is on the following page.

Clerical Changes

BENNETT, Rev. E. R., head of Christ Institute, Buffalo, has accepted a call to be associate at the Church of St. John the Divine, Philadelphia, with charge of the Home for Boys.

COUTU, Rev. J. W., has resigned as curate at Grace, New Bedford, Mass., to take a fellowship at the University of Wisconsin.

CRUMB, Rev. Thomas E., deacon in charge of Grace mission, Longview, Washington, has accepted a curacy at Christ Church, Tacoma, Washington.



KETTERSON, Rev. Alexander, of the diocese of Long Island, for the past year and a half locum tenens of Calvary, Brooklyn, has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. Luke's, Paterson, N. J.

LAWRENCE, Rev. Frederick, assistant at St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston, has accepted a call to be the rector of St. Peter's, Cambridge, Mass.

PLENCKNER, Rev. Paul O., from the diocese of Washington, has been instituted rector of St. Luke's, Phillipsburg, N. J.

WEIR, Rev. Howard R., rector at Salem, Mass., has accepted a call to be the rector of St. Paul's, New Haven, Conn.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited By

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

"IF TO sanctify unmarried unions would do away, as some urge it would, with promiscuity and the double standard, and better protect the children of legal marriage, then to keep on fussing with rules about divorce and the idea that all marriages are made in heaven is utter folly." It was that sentence which put the annual Church Congress, meeting in San Francisco, in the front page headlines. The author of it: the Rev. Henry Lewis, rector of St. Andrew's, Ann Arbor, Michigan, and student pastor at the University of Michigan.

Lewis declared the church might as well realize, whatever it "may think of such conduct," that young men and women of today are indulging in "sex experiments," and the church's message to them must be framed on the basis of that fact.

"To many young people," he said, "what used to be considered lapses from the moral code are now considered to be acts which are as natural as eating and drinking.

"Indeed, youth often decides on the basis of expediency or worthwhileness whether sex relations should be indulged in, never thinking of any after-effects because it believes there will be none. It sees no harm in it. Science will protect them—and science generally does.

"The introduction of science is the outstanding fact of our time and in morals science has created an entirely new moral situation. You have done away with that old but very effective weapon which deterred many a person from going beyond the accepted moral code—fear of consequence. When you introduced contraceptions you changed your moral situation.

"Even with those who do not go so far, the idea many of us had that such things as petting should be saved at least until the time of engagement if not until marriage, has disappeared. The youths of today, we know, are not appealed to by any such idea. Petting is, as they put it, 'all in the day's work'."

Admitting that "all of us are probably not willing to concede" the sanctification of unmarried unions, Lewis asserted, "but there are some scientific discoveries which the church should concede and urge."

"One of them," he said, "is sterilization of the mentally defective.

"Another is the intelligent use of birth control, at least in families where the economic situation is poor."

The speaker took the church to task for seeking to impose the rules and standards of the past on the present generation.

"We cannot," he said, "presuppose a fixed and invariable moral code by which the men of all ages and all degrees of civilization are to be tried and convicted or acquitted.

"Neither can we have that comfortable assurance that we have attained to an absolute knowledge of right and wrong which enables us to pass final judgment on the men of the present or the past, secure that we make no mistake when we measure them by our own moral yardstick.

"We know perfectly well that there is no such thing as an absolute moral code. Standards are always modified and adapted to what at the moment are regarded as the most beneficial to the individual or the social organization.

"You can no more try this age by the standards of the Victorian era than you can try Christian standards by the lives of the Old Testament patriarchs."

Ideals, rather than negative legislation, should comprise the message of the church, Lewis said.

Following Lewis' address the Rt. Rev. Gardner Murray, Presiding Bishop of the Church, took the platform and said:

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

"There is one moral standard that can never change. It was established by God in the beginning and is as eternal as the ages themselves.

"There is nothing in young life or in old life, in science or philosophy, worthy of any consideration if it disturbs in any form or shape the sanctity of the home, for the home was established before the church. Anything that invades the sanctity of the home is not to be considered within the realm of civilization.

"We should make it our duty as clergymen to send men into the colleges who will neutralize the mental poison that is being instilled by some of these dons in our seats of learning."

The Bishop of California, Rt. Rev. Edward L. Parsons, later issued the following statement for the press:

"Mr. Lewis did not advocate loose views of marriage and sex relations. He was pleading only for dispassionate consideration of so-called modern views. No one who heard Lewis would feel that he is other than a clear thinking and devout priest, loyal to the finest Christian ideals."

* * *

The Congress showed a great deal of interest in the question of Faith Healing, due possibly to the proximity of the place of meeting to the health cult center of the United States. The Rev. George F. Weld, rector at Santa Barbara, said:

"When the presentation of a new faith has sufficient force to bring from 5,000 to 7,000 men and women under one roof every Sunday, it is a force to be reckoned with. It is worthy of the deepest study. Like Christian Science, the 'Four Square Gospel' with its healing services claims to be a distinct and independent religion."

The older churches have much to learn from the new cults, Dr. Weld asserted. Christian Science and similar faiths, he declared, already have forced the older churches to make important changes in their traditional teachings. Notably, he said, it has led the Episcopal denomination to make revisions of its offices for visiting the sick.

"The new cults have for many people made Christianity a 'workable religion' for the first time," said Dr. Weld. "They are trying to keep an even balance between body, mind and spirit, while the older churches often concentrate on two of these, and neglect the third.

"Nothing short of a complete restatement of our traditional dogma will carry the message of the established church. We are slowing up, while they are leaping ahead."

Dr. Weld characterized the gains of the new churches in membership as "the greatest revival of constructive faith the world has known for centuries."

Rev. Leslie Learned, rector of All Saints Church, Pasadena, the first speaker on the topic, took the opposite side.

"Oriental mysticism and the hocus-pocus of mind over matter can add nothing to Christianity as it was planned and lived by Christ," said Dr. Learned. "Science has nothing to add to our information about God, and Christ left nothing for us to weigh in the scales. His authority is perfect and final."

That the new religions have a tonic effect on the "somewhat formalized" older cults was Dr. Learned's only concession.

The third speaker, Mrs. Ethel E. Patterson of Los Angeles, charged that the Episcopal Church was over-organized, and that it could learn much from the simplicity and straightforward methods of Christian Science.

* * *

The Rev. William N. Guthrie, rector of St. Mark's, New York, got himself into the headlines by declaring, that "Christians are as Christ-

If You Are a Man Contemplating a College Course in Arts, Letters and Science

You will do well to investigate St. Stephen's College, Annandale-on-Hudson, N. Y., particularly for the following reasons:

1. Its Academic Reputation. It is fully accredited by all rating agencies. It has methods of individual study unique in American colleges, highly commended by Commissioner of Education Frank Pierrepont Graves of New York State and many others. Every student is taught by a skilled and scholarly expert. Science and religion are both fearlessly faced as contributing to sane, modern thinking. St. Stephen's graduates are desired by the better medical, law and other professional schools, and secure unusual opportunities in the business world.

2. Its Location. It is near enough New York City to be accessible—95 miles; and far enough to be free from the noise, dirt and distraction of a metropolis. Its campus, of forty acres, overlooking the Hudson River and the Catskills, is one of the most beautiful country locations in the Eastern part of America. Its buildings and equipment are complete and modern.

3. Its Life. It is a place for gentlemen, sportsmen and men desirous of real learning. It is sanely athletic, varied in opportunity for enjoyment. It puts scholarship first. The individual counts. A sense of comradeship and unity marks the student life. Friendship of students and instructors is not merely desired but realized.

4. Its Cost. All of these advantages are available at a cost lower than in any college of first rank in America. Six hundred fifty dollars a year pays for tuition, excellent board, and a good room, heated, lighted and cared for, in a modern dormitory.

An enlargement of facilities enables us to accommodate in 1927-28 a few more men than usual.

Address all communications to me personally.

Bernard I. Bell,
President.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

less as any people on earth. I do not believe in missions. They represent the spirit of conquest—the viewpoint of a Caesar, not the spirit of Christ. There is only one religion, whatever the name may be, although there are divers way of expressing it.

"The New Testament is a book written by a lot of chumps who were thick in the head. They were thick-heads, but their thickness served Christ, for He was a genius, and knew how to make them serve."

"We have made a mess of things in the name of Jesus by trying to cram our conventionalized religion down the throats of races whose own religions contain precious values that humanity cannot afford to lose. Our problem is to make religion vital, and to liberalize it by including the best of all other religions."

* * *

"The Relation of Christianity to Political and Industrial Democracy," with the Rev. J. Howard Melish of Brooklyn and Bishop Faber of Montana, proved to be one of the most stimulating sessions of the Congress, with much lively discussion following the able addresses, which, it is hoped, may be reported more fully here another week.

* * *

The Rev. H. Percy Silver, rector of the Incarnation, New York City, has declined the election to the bishopric of Wyoming. He states that he feels he can best serve the Church by remaining in New York.

* * *

An anonymous friend has given Bishop Davies of Western Massachusetts a sum of money sufficient for the support of a diocesan missioner for a year. The Rev. George W. Ferguson has accepted the appointment, and in October will commence holding missions, retreats and quiet days. He will also work with young people, particularly students.

* * *

"There are several especially delightful things about the carrying out of this plan," Bishop Davies writes. "In the first place I can hardly imagine a more effective way in which to follow up the Bishops' Crusade. Secondly, it provides a highly trained man. This is a great advantage, for most of us regular clergy have neither the time nor strength nor technical training desirable for the best performance of this work. Thirdly, it will enable parishes and missions and local organizations to obtain the fresh inspiration and impulse that they need. Fourthly, it is fine to have one of our own men, who has grown up among us and knows his way about."

* * *

Eleven and a half thousand dollars was presented at the annual thank offering service in the diocese of New Jersey, held the other Sunday at Christ Church, Hackensack. There were addresses by the Bishop of the diocese, Bishop Lines; the executive secretary, the Rev. C. E. McAllister; Mrs. John Reilly, Jr., of New York, who spoke on China; and the Rev. Paul Murakami, who gave an account of his work in Japan.

* * *

The annual meeting of the national council of the Guild of St. Barnabas for Nurses will be held in Cincinnati in October, guests of the chapter of Cincinnati, which is the largest in the country.

* * *

Comfort is found in the statement made by Bernard Shaw at the meeting of the Royal Society of Literature that forty million English languages are spoken, all of them wrong. A committee was appointed to take up the problems of the language. Mr. Henry S. Canby, a New York editor of note, said that the committee "should be composed of distinguished people who know their stuff." "In other words distinguished dead heads," chirped up Shaw.

One of the delegates asked: "Do you know any good English writer who misuses the words 'who' and 'whom'?" To which Professor J.

THE RACINE SCHOOL OF RELIGION

From July 12 to Aug. 2, 1927.

The following courses are offered:

CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE
The Holy Spirit, the Church, and the Means of Grace.
The Rev. M. Bowyer Stewart, D.D.

NEW TESTAMENT
Church Literature of the First and Second Centuries.
Professor A. Haire Forster

CHURCH HISTORY
The Church since the Reformation, with particular reference to the Anglican Communion.
Professor Percy V. Norwood.

APOLOGETICS
A discussion of the present relations of Science and Religion.
The Rev. D. A. McGregor

MINOR COURSES
On the Background of the Gospel, Christian Morals, the Prayer Book and its Antecedents.

For further information apply to

MRS. GEORGE BILLER
Taylor Hall Racine, Wis.

MOTHER

Here Is a Wonderfully Quick Relief for Whooping Cough and Croup

Since 1802, or for 124 years, Roche's Embrocation has been endorsed by mothers because it gives the quickest relief ever known for whooping cough and croup.
Just rub it on the child's chest. Penetrating deeply, it breaks congestion, loosens the choking phlegm, and relief comes at once. You should keep it always handy for emergencies.

Sold By All Druggists or
E. Fougera & Co., Inc., New York
W. Edwards & Sons, London, Props.

ROCHE'S EMBROCATION

St. Albans School

SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS

Diocese of Chicago

Sixty miles west of Chicago.
Five miles off the Lincoln Highway

SCHOLASTIC: Best of preparation for college. Boys this fall will be entered at Dartmouth, M. I. T., Yale, Princeton, Columbia, St. Stephens, Hobart, Kenyon, Annapolis, University of the South, Knox, Beloit, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Lafayette, Miami and Purdue.

ATHLETIC: Every boy has an opportunity to enter the sports — Foot Ball — Basketball — Tennis— Track — Golf — Baseball — The School for two years has had an enviable reputation.

RELIGIOUS: Great care has been given to have a good religious atmosphere. There are few obligatory services.

HOME LIFE: The School has been to capacity for six years. Great care has been used in the selection of boys. The group enrolled has made it possible to have a full honor system under a council and an atmosphere of an ideal home.

CONFERENCES: The Rector will be glad to make appointments at various centers during the summer. A visit to the school would be of value. The Chicago Office is Room 1411, Tower Building, Wednesdays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Address the School for literature and information.

ENROLLMENT: Last year boys came from Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Florida, Louisiana, Montana, Colorado, Wisconsin, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Alaska.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Dover Wilson, an English authority, replied: "Yes, Shakespeare."

Under the circumstances possibly we may be pardoned for an occasional use of slang in these news notes.

* * *

The corner stone for the nurses' home of Christ Church Hospital, Jersey City, was laid recently.

* * *

During the past fifty-three years, Christ Hospital has treated more than 100,000 bed patients. In addition, over 200,000 people have directly been assisted in its free clinics, a total of over 300,000; nearly equal in number to the population of Jersey City. There were 1,703 surgical operations performed in Christ Hospital last year. The total number of patient days during the year were 43,288. There is no "closed season" at Christ Hospital. It is open every minute, night and day, from dawn of one New Year to the next.

* * *

The 110th anniversary of the incorporation of St. Thomas's, Mamaroneck, New York, and the 41st anniversary of the consecration of the present church, was celebrated on June 9th. Bishop Manning was the preacher. Many of the clergy of the diocese were present.

* * *

The ordination of two men is a real event for a country parish. Bishop Acheson of Connecticut, on Trinity Sunday, ordained Mr. Percy Goddard and Mr. Corwin C. Roach to the dioconate in Trinity Church, Seymour, Connecticut. The sermon was preached by the rector of the parish, the Rev. W. O. Roome, Jr. During the past three years five persons from this parish have offered themselves to the service of the Church; two ministers, two deaconesses and one in training as a nurse for the foreign field. What city parish can equal it?

* * *

A Mothers and Daughters dinner on one evening, and a Fathers and Sons a week or so later—that at St. Paul's, Newark, with about a hundred present at each.

* * *

Repairs and improvements on the parish house of St. John's, Passaic, N. J., have been completed at a cost of $38,000. Work is under way on the new rectory which will be completed by the end of the summer. Recently church furnishings, the gift of St. Bartholomew's, New York, were installed. The rector of St. John's, the Rev. Albert Wilson, was formerly an assistant at St. Bartholomew's.

* * *

Bishop Huston recently confirmed fifty-seven persons at Trinity Church, Hoquiam, Washington. When the Rev. George Ware took charge a few years ago it was a mission of ninety communicants; it is now a parish of over 300.

* * *

The Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, Baptist, known to newspaper readers in New York, told his congregation last Sunday that the reception given to Charles Lindbergh was nothing in comparison to that which Christ will receive at His second coming. Motorcycle cops, tin horns, paper showers, hot-dogs and lemonade.

* * *

President Ogilby of Trinity College, tried a Lindbergh the other day. He preached at five in the afternoon at the commencement at Harvard, took a plane for Hartford in order to attend the Trinity baccalaureate at 7:45. Good idea, except that fog forced him down at Worcester, where he boarded a local which arrived in Hartford shortly before midnight.

* * *

Thirty-five thousand dollars of the million and a half which is sought by the Berkeley Divinity School for the move to New Haven has been pledged, it was stated at the recent commencement.

* * *

There are two records in this bit of news; on the afternoon of June 5th the Rev. Royal Tucker, rector of St. Mark's, Brunswick, Ga., baptized twenty-eight children at St. Jude's Mission, which is in his charge. That's one record. The other: outside under a nice shade tree was a thermometer which registered 101 degrees. St. Jude's, not so long ago, was a flourishing parish. Various reasons contributed to its decline and services were discontinued. It has been brought back to life by a group of laymen of St. Mark's. They are also promoting two other missions, St. Paul's, a work

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

ATTEND THE

EVERGREEN CONFERENCES

Laymen's Week-End

Spend an inspired vacation.

Write for program and summer rates.

Conference Registrar—605 Insurance Bldg., Denver, Colorado

Payment of

Principal and Interest

Guaranteed

SECURITY: Participation certificates in obligations secured by first mortgages on improved real estate, guaranteed by the issuing company.

MORTGAGES: Not exceeding 60% of a conservative valuation of the mortgaged property. The mortgages are practically all on dwellings occupied by owners.

GUARANTY: Payment of principal and interest guaranteed by endorsement on each certificate by

NATIONAL SURETY COMPANY

the largest surety company in the world, with total resources of over $35,000,000.

Maturity — 2 to 10 years.

Price 100 and interest, yielding 5½%.

Peabody, Houghteling & Co.

(Established 1865)

10 South La Salle Street

CHICAGO

New York Detroit St. Louis Milwaukee

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

established among the workers in the turpentine distillery, and St. Andrew's on the outskirts of the city.

* * *

The oldtimers were given their innings at the meeting of the Round Table of the diocese of Chicago, the last meeting of the season. Reminiscences were given by the oldest clergymen of the diocese: Rev. Messrs. J. H. Edwards, F. J. Hall, W. C. DeWitt, P. C. Wolcott, H. L. Cawthorne, N. B. Clinch, J. S. Stone, C. A. Cummings, E. J. Randall and J. H. Hopkins.

* * *

The sum of $160,000 has been raised in the five dioceses of Pennsylvania for St. Andrew's, the students' center at the State College.

* * *

Oh, here is a letter from my friend W. McMurdo Brown, the rector at St. Matthew's, Grand Junction, Colorado; you will notice that he is responsible for the ASK ME ANOTHER column this week, upon which I get the ranking of fifteen per cent. He picks the three books that he will retain if all others are to be taken from him: "People's Life of Christ" by J. Patterson Smythe, "Catholic Principles" by Wescott, and "Cushioned Pews" by Bishop Johnson. He backs his choice too, "They present the nucleus in a clergyman's library of the three essentials,—The divine personality, the divine institution, and the humor and humanity necessary to interpret and present them to men." What three books are you going to retain? Better help me out, news of the churches is a bit scarce during the trout season.

* * *

Friend Brown also says that he uses this paper in his adult class as basis for discussion. "It is liked, it is topical and it is provocative, which are the three essentials of interest." Maybe that contains an idea for some of you.

* * *

The Brotherhood men of Richmond and Norfolk again led the Laymen's Pilgrimage to Jamestown and Williamsburg June 11th and 12th, 125 laymen of the three dioceses in Virginia taking part. The pilgrimage has grown from twenty-four men in 1922 to its present proportions.

* * *

A school for layreaders is to be open in the diocese of Long Island in the fall, with sessions twice a week at the Church of the Incarnation, Brooklyn. A capable faculty has been selected to train picked laymen, who, after completing their course, will be placed in charge of missions.

* * *

Mrs. Helen L. Patten, wife of Z. C. Patten, Jr., of Chattanooga, prominent Churchman and member of the National Council, died on June 15th after a brief illness.

* * *

The University of the South, at Sewanee, has just held one of the best Commencements in its history. The Bishop-Coadjutor of North Carolina preached the Commencement sermon and another alumnus, Frank Hoyt Gailor, of Memphis, son of Bishop Gailor, by invitation of the Board of Regents, delivered the University oration to the graduates and trustees. This was the first time that a son of one of the Bishops on the Board had this honor conferred. Mr. Gailor's subject was a plea for a liberal education as against the utilitarian tendency of the time—for culture against technical specialization.

The trustees were enthusiastic over

"Taylor Hall, Racine, Wisconsin, from August 6th to August 27th, 1927, will be available for church people who may desire to spend their vacations on Lake Michigan. Room and board $20.00 per week. Apply to Mrs. George Biller."

St. Albans The National Cathedral School For Boys

Thorough Preparation for Leading Universities. Splendid equipment, unexcelled location on Mt. St. Alban overlooking Washington. Eight years' course. Athletics for Every Boy.

Address: WILLIAM H. CHURCH
Head Master, Washington, D. C.

Camp Monauke

On Lake Sunapee, in the Foothills of White Mountains.

SWIMMING — BASKET-MAKING
RIDING — AESTHETIC DANCING
Directed by Churchwomen.
- - For Information - -
MISS MARGUERITE SPOFFORD
Burkehaven, New Hampshire

SHATTUCK

A Church School for Boys

For 67 years Shattuck has been a leader among college preparatory schools in the West. It is not operated for profit. It aims to develop

High Scholarship,
Manly Character,
Christian Citizenship.

The military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall. Address The Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

Money in Old Letters

Look in that old trunk up in the garret and send me all the old envelopes up to 1880. Do not remove the stamps from the envelopes. You keep the letters. I will pay highest prices.

GEO. P. HAKES, 290 Broadway
New York, N. Y.

SOMERSET HILLS

A Progressive Country Day and Boarding School. Primary, Intermediate and Senior Departments. Prepares for leading Secondary Schools.

Individual instruction makes rapid progress possible.
Outdoor life in the country.
Address: Rev. James H. S. Fair, Far Hills, New Jersey

JOHN M. DOYLE
MEMORIAL TABLETS
14 S. THIRD ST. PHILADELPHIA
CATALOGUE ON REQUEST

HARVARD SCHOOL

Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C. 27th year now in session. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

ROWLAND HALL

A School for Girls in the Wasatch Mountains

Salt Lake City, Utah
BISHOP MOULTON, Rector.

NASHOTAH HOUSE

Founded in 1842
Theological Seminary and Collegiate Department
For particulars address the dean
NASHOTAH HOUSE
Nashotah, Wisconsin

THE CONFERENCE FOR CHURCH WORK and Summer School for Church Music will meet at Wellesley College, June 27 to July 7. Director in Residence, Bishop Slattery; Chaplain, Rev. George L. Richardson, D.D. For program apply to Miss M. DeC. Ward, 50 Commonwealth Ave., Boston.

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 115 Franklin St., New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss I. V Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT

SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y References required

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

the report of the managers of the two million dollar "Expansion Campaign" which showed that the alumni have gone over the top in their contributions.

* * *

The band of eight Church Army lads (that is what they call themselves) began their tour of the diocese of Albany on June 18th with services at the Cathedral.

* * *

A fine lot of clergymen gathered at the College of Preachers, Washington Cathedral, last week; representatives from eighteen states. Professor Baldwin of Columbia was a star lecturer, giving the course on sermon construction. "There are 1000 approaches for a sermon but only one principle. And that is to begin where they are and land them where you are." Courses were also given by Professor Hodgson of the General Seminary, Bishop Darst of East Carolina and the Rev. W. C. Woods of Kent School. Bishop Rhinelander, canon of the Cathedral, was director. Bishops, rectors of famous parishes, professors of theological seminaries and a half dozen chaplains of American universities attended.

* * *

A most remarkable faculty of superlative distinction has been gathered for the Gearhart, Oregon, Summer School, which meets from June 21 to July 1. Among the members are the Bishop of the Diocese, who takes charge of conference recreation; Dr. Gowen and Dean Ramsey, scholars of more than national reputation on Oriental and Biblical subjects respectively; the Rev. Edwin V. O'Hara, head of the Roman Church's national Commission on Rural Work and a unique person; Miss Grace Holmes, director of the Bureau of Clinics and Surveys for the Oregon Tuberculosis Association, who gives a course on public health; Miss Cornelia Marvin, librarian of the Oregon State Library, nationally known among library people, and the Rev. Kenneth L. A. Viall, S. S. J. E. of San Francisco, who is carrying on the prison work which was started when Dean Lathrop was rector of the Church of the Advent in San Francisco.

* * *

The April-May issue of The Liberian Churchman reports a visit of Bishop Campbell through the interior of the country, a fourteen-day walk from Cape Mount to Mosambolahun where he found the work of the Holy Cross Mission in a very encouraging condition, and confirmed fifty. At Pandemai, the Bishop confirmed sixteen. Here the Rev. James Dwalu was recovering from the shock of a stroke of lightning which fell out of a perfectly clear sky and shattered a flag pole twelve feet from where he was sitting.

During the Bishop's trip in the Gbande and Buzzi sections, he con-

MARGARET HALL
Versailles, Kentucky
In the Heart of the Blue Grass
College Preparatory School for Girls
Sara McDowell Gaither, A.B.
Principal

ST. ANNE'S Open Air School, Box W, Charlotteville, Va.
Beautiful location in far famed Blue Ridge Mountains. College preparatory and elective courses. Fully accredited by State Board of Education. Open gymnasium allows sports in the fresh air in all weather. Riding taught by expert. Music. Art. Bishop of Virginia, President of Trustees. Laura Lee Dorsey, Principal.

SAINT MARY'S HALL
Faribault, Minnesota
Episcopal school for girls, founded in 1866. Beautiful new fire-proof building, large campus, out-of-door sports, excellent academic and special training. Prepares girls for all colleges.

Hannah More
DIOCESAN SCHOOL OF MARYLAND
Founded 1832
A Country School for Girls, fifteen miles from Baltimore. College Preparatory and General Courses. Music. Art. Supervised Athletics. Terms $600 to $800.
Principal
MISS LAURA FOWLER, A. B.
Box W, Reisterstown, Maryland

Life Insurance

as such, needs no supporting argument. Insurance on your life is as accepted a necessity as insurance on your house. The problem is the cost and its effect upon the amount of insurance you can maintain on your life.

In an effort to help solve this problem, this Corporation was formed for the purpose of offering life insurance at net rates to clergymen and their families and to layworkers and their families. To those who are eligible, the facilities of this Corporation are cordially offered.

All inquiries should be addressed to

The Church Life Insurance Corporation
14 Wall Street New York

(Operated under the supervision of the Trustees of The Church Pension Fund)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland.
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore.
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month

Grace Church, Chicago.
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago.
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City.
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily, 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily, 12:10
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

firmed about 100 in all. As far as can be known this is the first time that a bishop of the Church has been in this country so far from the coast.

* * *

On Whit-Tuesday the village of Glendale, Ohio, was all agog. Three sisters of the Community of the Transfiguration were welcomed by the children and sisters from Bethany Home on their return safe and sound from Wuhu, China, which they had been compelled to leave by the war-like conditions existing there and the anti-foreign disturbances.

Sisters Constance, Helen and Ruth, the returning missionaries, were glad to get home after many worrying experiences, but greatly regretted leaving their work and the two Chinese sisters, members of the order in Wuhu. The loyalty of the Chinese Christians and friends was wonderful. The bells were rung for the home-coming and a solemn Te Deum sung in the chapel, where Chaplain Lewis offered thanksgivings.

The same evening the Commencement Exercises of the Bethany Home school were held and three girls graduated. The good news was received that the school had been given a first class rating by the State Board of Education, an honor of which both teachers and pupils may well feel proud. Work on the new buildings needed so badly by the Community has begun, the first to be erected being a cottage for the girls.

* * *

Almost every foreign field was represented in the fourth annual conference of outgoing missionaries held at the Church Missions House, June 11 to 14. This informal gathering is of definite value in the preparation of the outgoing missionaries, while the missionaries on furlough and the Missions House staff are mutually benefited by the chance to exchange points of view. The situation as a whole, the "call of the world," the missionaries' relation to native people and to fellow workers, special points about their methods and their physical, mental and spiritual equipment were presented and discussed by returned workers. The functioning of the home departments of the Church and their relation to the missionary staff were outlined by executive secretaries.

The discussion about China was naturally of great interest as the returned China group was large. No new appointees for that country were present as no appointments are now being made, nor, unfortunately, were there any for Liberia. Miss Louise Hammond arrived from Nanking just in time for the final session and held the conference fairly breathless with an account of her experience in Nanking during the recent serious outbreak there. She spoke in high praise

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily Services: 7:30 and 10:00 A. M. 5 P. M.,

The Incarnation, New York.
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D.
Sundays, 8 and 11 a. m.

Trinity Church, New York.
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York.
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York.
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, and 8.
Daily, 8 and Noon. Holy Days and Thursdays, 11.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp & Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address
THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:
REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write
REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,
REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address
REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — in a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector
ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

of the Chinese clergy and people. Miss Hammond is a distinguished person in her knowledge of Chinese art and music. She exhibited some Chinese paintings of New Testament scenes, and recited Chinese poems in the Chinese manner.

Another unusual contribution was a brief address by Mr. James L. Sibley of the Education Commission representing seven mission boards, including our own, which has been studying Liberia with a view to raising the whole level of educational work in that country. His talk, though based on his Liberia experience, was applicable to almost any foreign field as he outlined the fourfold requirements of mission work, dealing with religion, education, home life and agriculture or industry, and the relation of central mission stations, training native leaders, to the outstations where native leaders work among their own people.

Dean and Mrs. Fosbroke entertained the conference with a delightful garden party on the lawn of the General Seminary. Through the kind offices of the Episcopal Actors' Guild, members of the conference were the guests of Walter Hampden at his play, Caponsacchi.

* * *

A great week of meetings dealing with the problems of industry will be held in Boston next November under the auspices of the Federation of Churches, the Rev. George Paine, executive secretary. Leaders from all over the country will be brought to Boston, services will be held in all the churches and conferences will be held with labor leaders, manufacturers and social workers. Such industrial conference weeks have been held successfully in Chicago for the past two years. The Church League for Industrial Democracy is co-operating.

Answers

1. Augustine 597. Reported to Pope Gregory that the Church was already there.
2. Yes. Arles 314, Ariminum 359; and probably Nice 325, and Sardica 347.
3. Venerable Bede.
4. The Great Charter or Magna Charta 1215.
5. No. Refused because English Kings had never done so.
6. Reformation 1550 - 1215 — 335 years at least.
7. 1570 by Act of Excommunication.
8. San Francisco by the English Admiral Drake's Chaplain on 1st Sunday after Trinity 1579.
9. The Lord's Service celebrated in 1607—fifteen years before the arrival of the Pilgrim Fathers.
10. The Episcopal Church at Lake City, Colorado.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.000 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, social. or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, Pesident,
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address
THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to
REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
College Preparatory and General Courses
MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

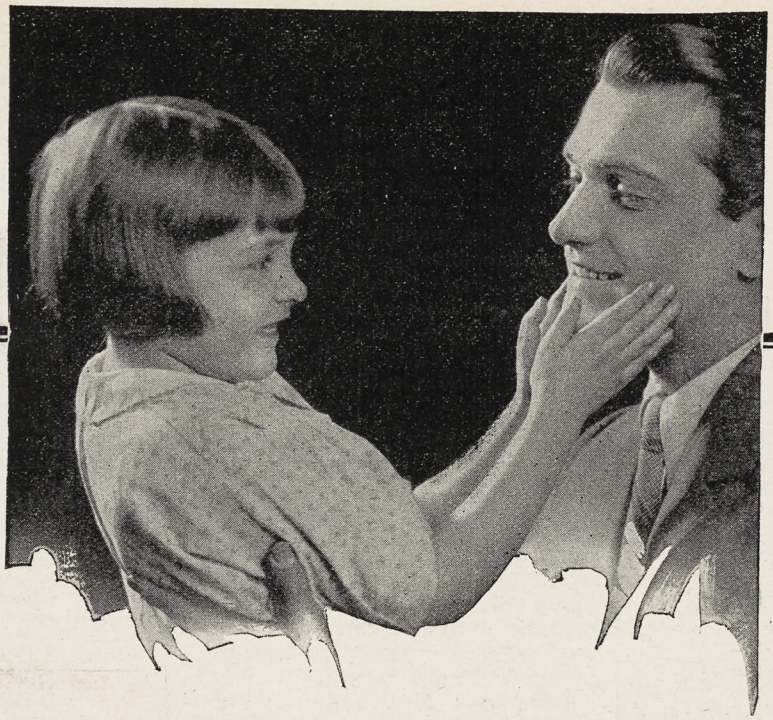
A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.
ADDRESS:
DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago



ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

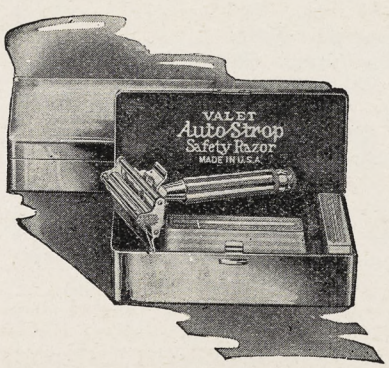
Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Your Face Deserves the Best

DAY after day you will enjoy smooth, comfortable shaves that soothe and protect your skin, keeping your face young.

The self-stropping Valet AutoStrop Razor provides this face insurance. In addition it assures you of more shaves per blade—the best a perfect razor can give; and speed—you can shave in 78 seconds.



Each outfit is a complete shaving service. No extra stropping devices needed. Nothing to take apart or put together. Simple. Convenient. Economical.

AutoStrop Safety Razor Co., 656 First Ave., New York, N. Y.

Valet AutoStrop Razor

Sharpens its own blades

The LONDONER
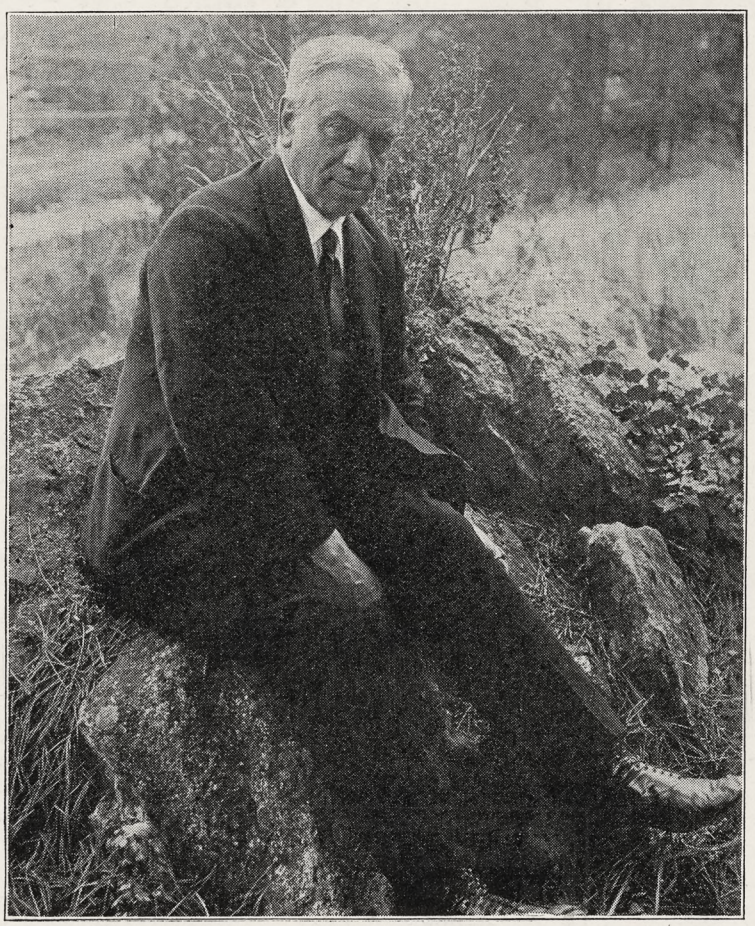
$5.00

GUARANTEE



We wish that every user of a Valet AutoStrop Razor be constantly enthusiastic. Should anything happen to yours affecting its perfect service, send it to us and we will restore it to perfect condition, without charge.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

PLACE OF REPENTANCE—Adderley

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, JULY 7, 1927

BISHOP JOHNSON AT EVERGREEN

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration

For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 697 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co

Baltimore, Md.

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir.

Altar Furnishings.

Inquiries invited and given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403) (Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders

of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts.

NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J.

Church Furniture

MEMORIALS IN CARVED WOOD

PEWS · ALTARS · PULPITS

SUNDAY SCHOOL

SEATING

American Seating Company

1024 LYTTON BUILDING CHICAGO

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings.

Gorgeous Combinations of Color.

Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

In Selecting a Memorial to a Loved One

what could be a happier, a more fitting thought than a living memorial of Golden-Voiced

Deagan Tower Chimes

serving through the years to keep alive the faith of those who have it, and helping, as no other means can, to re-awaken childhood reverence in those who have strayed. Write for literature. Standard Sets $6,000 and up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER

and 4 & 5 Duncannon St: Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery

Wood

Stone

Metal and

Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows

Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates on application to

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

ESTABLISHED 1877

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— OFFICE AND STUDIO —

221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

— PHOTOS, DESIGNS AND ESTIMATES UPON APPLICATION —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XI. No. 46 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

THE PLACE OF REPENTANCE

In the Christian Religion

BY CANON JAMES ADDERLEY

NOW I come to something much more serious than what I have written about before. The Clergy, the Church and the Bible I could believe in without letting them interfere very much with my private life. In fact, the parsons, at first, were, as I have said, just jolly good fellows who gave us lads a good time. The Church, even when I came to believe in it as the institution whose object it was to reform society, was not, at first, an institution for reforming myself. The Bible was a wonderful piece of literature, but not meant to be taken very seriously when it came to making John Manson a good man. These were all instruments of religion, but they were not religion itself. Some words of my favorite, Charles Kingsley made an impression on me. "God will only reform society on condition of our reforming every man his own self; while the devil is quite ready to help us mend the laws without ever starting such an impertinent and personal request as that a man should mend himself."

Nor indeed was I brought to repentance by the thought of death or hell. I do not say that the idea that I might "go west" in the war had no effect on me. It certainly had, but, if anything, it was rather to make me reckless and defiant. It seemed to me a bit cowardly just to take up with God because you might have to meet Him suddenly, and if He caught you unprepared He might send you to hell. There were some parsons who preached to us at the Base before going to the front who tried to frighten us in that kind of way. They called it the "Gospel," and told us that the Gospel meant "Good News." I could not see it. Nor was I impressed by being told stories of men who had got converted just in time before they went over the top.

This sort of "fire-escape religion" never appealed to me. The more I read the words of Jesus about God as our Father, the less I could believe that He was the kind of tyrant who dodged people and whom we were expected to try and dodge in our turn if we wanted to avoid hell. As I look back on it all I am rather glad that I came to repentance when my fighting days were over and sudden death was no immediate danger.

I had many talks with another of my favorite padres. This man was an awfully good sort. He never seemed to be worrying about my soul's welfare in the future. He was just a friend who wanted to make me happy all round. He never introduced religion to me as some others did as a sort of bribery business. You know what I mean. He did not give me cigarettes and then after a talk about Fritz and the weather, tell me that there was a special service he wanted me to come to, and then empty the whole bag of tricks over me about confirmation and confession. I cannot say how he did it. I can only say how I came to do something very serious myself. I think what moved me most was when he told me his own history. He said quite frankly that he had become a parson because his mother wanted him to be one, and not because he was particularly religious. He had been a long time in East London, and had seen a lot that had made him very sad, but he had also seen much that had made him very happy. He had seen men and women, boys and girls, he told me, who were living splendid lives as Church members. They had found a tremendous help in religion. They could fight their temptations, and get great help from prayer and sacraments. But all this had come first of all from their repentance. He felt when he met these people that their religion meant a great deal more to them than his meant to him. He told me that he thought it all over, and prayed to God about it, and found that he himself had never really put away his past sins, and was not really doing his best to keep away from what is bad.

When he talked like this he was not preaching to me, yet his story was the best sermon I had ever heard. He was just simply telling me the truth about himself, and how he had made his repentance and become a different man. He said that his work as a parson was twenty times more successful now that he felt that his own religion was a real thing.

I never forgot that story so humbly told me by one whom I looked upon as a saint. I argued with myself. If a man like him needed repentance, much more did I. Much as I was getting to love the Church and the Bible, I felt there was something more I wanted, and that was repentance. Was I sorry for my sins? Did I really want to put them away? NO!

Now I am not going to write down all that happened. It is much too private for the public to read. Nor would it do any good because one man repents in one way and another in another way. It is enough to say that I looked into my past life. When I did this slowly and seriously I remembered a lot that I had forgotten but which I had never before honestly acknowledged to myself or God or anyone else as wrong. Things I used to do at school; things I was doing every day. I remembered old quarrels, old hatreds, old thefts, old lies, all sorts of shameful things. I put them all away and found out what it meant to be washed in the Blood of Jesus and forgiven by my Father in heaven. I do not say that I have never done anything wrong since. Of course I have. But it is quite different now. I know when I do wrong. I know what my temptations and dangers and weaknesses are. I know how to get God's forgiveness again and again. I am a new man. That is the biggest use I have found for religion.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Reprinted by arrangement, from THE TORCH, organ of the Industrial Christian Fellowship.

INSTITUTIONS OF NEGRO EDUCATION

Immediate Conditions and Needs

BY GEORGE FOSTER PEABODY

A SPECIAL challenge just made through me is the particular occasion for my writing this for your publication. My friend, Julius Rosenwald, of Chicago, to whom I had not spoken of the matter, writes me he will give the last $10,000 as soon as the remaining $90,000 is completed, to secure the $100,000 offered by the General Board. Mr. Rosenwald knows, as not more than two or three men in the U. S. do, the need for such work as the Fort Valley School is doing in preparing teachers for the public schools of the South and also knows as few men do, the quality of the work done by the different schools of our Church Institute for Negroes. He is a trustee of Tuskegee Institute, to whose recent campaign for funds he gave largely, and secured additional sums from Chicago thereby. Mr. Rosenwald has, through one of the wisest funds ever established, procured and supervised the building of over 3,400 Rosenwald public schools for Negroes throughout all the southern states. These schools cost about twelve million dollars, of which he provided about one-fourth. Negroes and whites of the South individually gave a less sum, and, by reason of the incentives thus given and their knowledge of the wisdom, efficiency, and economy shown in the construction of these school buildings, the public funds of the South contributed more than one-half—probably many years in advance of what they would otherwise have given, with the result that schools were provided probably fifty per cent better than otherwise.

This action of an eminent Jew emphasizes the quality and importance of the constructive work being carried on through the American Church for Negroes, organized in 1905 under the presidency of Bishop Greer with the cooperation of the then Board of Missions of our Episcopal Church.

The purpose was to coordinate, make more efficient, more fully known to the Church, and thereby secure the necessary increased funds for the work being carried on by industrial high schools in southern dioceses under the direction of trustees from the dioceses, St. Paul's in Virginia and St. Augustine's in North Carolina being the most prominent, and Bishop Tucker and Bishop Cheshire being actively interested in the work as presidents of the boards of trustees. The charter was granted by Virginia, thus emphasizing the complete cooperation of the South, which was poverty-stricken following the Civil War, and the North, through members of the Church, which was one throughout the whole country. This was the endeavor to have a worthwhile part in the more complete restoration of the Union through the prayers, gifts, and work of northern and southern men and women.

The chief end in developing these vocational secondary schools was to provide capable and religious teachers for the Negro public schools throughout the South. Aid to this end is peculiarly fitting and an obligation as well upon northern citizens. The public school supported by local and state taxation can be no more efficient than the wealth of its own section will provide. Therefore the dire poverty of the South following the devastation of the war, and the wiping out of a great part of its supposed wealth by the freeing of the Negro slaves, prevented its soon attaining even partial efficiency in its schools, even for the whites, who control government. The many schools and colleges like Hampton, Spelman, Fisk, and others, started by northern friends of the Negro, emphasized the interest immediately shown; but, as the generation thus interested passed, the newer interests of the coming generation precluded the starting of more such schools to provide for the increasing population.

Cooperation of the white people of the South with further educational assistance from the North became of first importance as prosperity gradually developed again in the South. This called for a basis of permanent association of northern and southern life in any such cooperative effort in order to produce permanent results.

Only Church organizations provide any such basis. The lines of sectional division were obliterated following the end of the Civil War in only two organizations extending throughout the country—the Roman Catholic Church and the Protestant Episcopal Church. This manifestly offered unique opportunity to our Church, and, with the Christian conscience, opportunity means obligation. The Roman Catholic Church is now very much alive to this opportunity and is actively developing schools along the lines of the Armstrong-Hampton idea—education for life, through training of the hand, the head, and the heart into cooperative activity reaching into community life.

Our part of the Church Catholic found the results of the Church Institute's supervisory assistance of the schools and its unified presentation to the Church of incalculable value, and the note of expansion was promptly brought to the front. The business prostration of twenty years ago, following so closely the organization of the Institute, precluded successful effort to secure immediately the larger sums needed to increase the work of the schools already in existence and to aid the bishops of our various dioceses in the South to establish additional schools of the same character; but our progress has been steady. Through the initiation of the Institute, under its two directors, the Rev. Samuel H. Bishop, succeeded by the Rev. Dr. Robert W. Patton, a Virginian, schools already established with important properties and investments aggregating hundreds of thousands of dollars have become associated with some dioceses; the Fort Valley School in the Black Belt of Georgia, and the Voorhees School in South Carolina, being two of the most important, with large property interests, now keeping step with the progress of our Church Institute for Negroes.

In connection with efforts now being made on behalf of particular schools, for funds immediately needed, I ask space at this time more fully to inform the members of our

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Church generally, and especially those who have ample capital funds from which they can draw immediately for pressing needs. It is probably true that the members of our Church with small incomes, that compel living in most simple manner, give continually a good percentage of such income, and restrict their own desires for more luxurious living in consequence of their feeling of the sense of brotherhood and the necessity for the carrying on of the work of the Lord through their Church affiliation.

The General Education Board, the most important organization yet developed for study of and assistance to educational effort in the United States, has observed during the years the progress of the schools in affiliation with our Church Institute. It finds them so useful that it has appropriated of its funds to hasten their enlargement and improvement, that they might more effectively do the work which this board of educational knowledge realizes is of first importance to the future development of the people of the United States as a whole. This board gave largely to aid in the important new building recently erected at our St. Augustine's School in Raleigh, North Carolina.

It has now offered one-third of $100,000 to our St. Paul's School in Virginia, payable when the whole sum is raised, and, in response to such appeal, the Church people of Richmond recently subscribed nearly $20,000 toward this fund—a splendid evidence of the interest of the people on the ground, who know the value of the work done during these forty years past under the leadership of Archdeacon Russell, a Hampton student, who felt the Lord's call to establish this school without waiting to graduate, though General Armstrong urged that he should wait another year. The work of this school has been a large factor in raising the moral level in Lawrenceville and Brunswick county, so that for the last generation the prisons have been most of the time empty—testimony which is incontrovertible from every point of view respecting the Christian character of the work of the school.

Our school at Fort Valley is under the direction of a rare Christian man —H. A. Hunt, principal — whose wife, also, I personally know to be rarely consecrated to the Lord's service. The influence of this school during the twenty years of their leadership had radiated for fifty miles in a community reconstruction that has been economic, intellectual, and spiritual to an extraordinary degree. The Carnegie Corporation gave $25,000 to build a library for this school. A member of the Baptist Church has recently built the trade school building at similar cost, as a memorial. The General Education Board has given special study to the work of this school, which it considers not second in importance to any work in Georgia, the strategic center of the South. It gave not long since $25,000 toward the rebuilding of the academic hall, destroyed by fire.

The General Board considers the work of this school of such vital moment that it has now, in addition, offered $100,000 for the program of enlargement urgently called for to take care of the hundreds of students, provided we will raise $100,000 additional to match this sum. This will make a total fund of about $375,000 for expansion within the past few years. One member of the diocese of Atlanta, the Bishop of which is president of its board of trustees, has recently subscribed $5,000 toward the completion of this fund, which is about half way to the mark at present.

I submit to the Christian men and women of our branch of His Church, who are entrusted with large aggregations of the wealth of this country, consideration of the varied forces which I find illustrated in the challenge from this Hebrew citizen. Surely there should be a dozen men and women glad at once upon reading this to match Mr. Rosenwald's $10,000, and not only complete this fund, but carry it over the top. Fort Valley can use, with the utmost efficiency and good results for the Church and the country, much more than half a million dollars at this time. I speak with assurance, as I was a trustee of Fort Valley when Mr. Hunt was asked to leave beautiful home surroundings for his little family at a university in North Carolina to go into a dismal and, at that time, almost hopeless Black Belt region.

Hampton and Tuskegee raised jointly seven millions recently for endowment of two schools. Our Institute now includes ten, with our divinity school, and we should have twenty-five as soon as possible.

About Books

By the Rev. C. L. Street

A MAN OF LITTLE FAITH. Reginald Wright Kauffman. The Penn. Publishing Co., Philadelphia. Price $2.00.

A Man of Little Faith is a tale of clerical life based chiefly on the usual gossip that gathers about a good natured bachelor parson, who ultimately marries the richest widow in his parish.

John Felton is the son of a patrician mother and a dreamy ne'er-do-well father. The family resources are too slim to send John to a college of medicine which he would have preferred. But since he had the facile gift of speech, the ministry seemed to be the next best thing and within the range of the family income. So he studies for the ministry and is finally ordained to the Priesthood in a church where the rectorship is vacant.

Why he is ordained in this particular parish, instead of the little inconspicuous mission at the further end of the diocese, was of course to suit the convenience of an overfed and apoplectic bishop. Bishop Meeker cared more about the customary adulations and flatteries of a well organized parish than he did about depriving his candidate of the joy of being ordained in his own mission and in the presence of his poor and now widowed mother.

Further, it also enabled the vestry of this particular parish to find a man without looking for him. The vestry promptly elected John, not because he had any particular qualifications for the parish, but because he was amiable and good to look at and it was the easiest thing to do. There are vestries like that. So John begins a career as rector of St. John's Doncaster, with more religion in his heels than in his head.

We witness the rise and gradual decline of a parish whose rector is not what you would call intellectually dishonest, but intellectually lazy. His breezy, good-natured tolerance of everything and everybody due to intellectual torpor, is contrasted with the forbidding inflexibility of Father Dinwiddie, a neighboring rector of a High Church Parish. When finally failure is staring him in the face and he is on the verge of resigning his cure, he is reinforced by a wealthy widow, Celeste Litchfield, who has transferred her allegiance from Father Dinwiddie to John. Celeste had always had Episcopal ambitions, and because of her generous benefactions to the bishop and the diocese, she was now able to assure John at their wedding and in the hour of his defeat, that the bishop would make him his coadjutor.

There are many true and searching things about our Church in this book, just as there are some that are merely gossip—there are still limitations to a bishop's power, and no one knows it better than a bishop himself —yet it is a good story, interesting, at times illuminating, and one that should give every devoted churchman pause.

Reporting all 1927 apportionments and convocation assessments paid and overpaid, the district of Kohala, Hawaii, remarks, "We like to get all our dues met before planning for the needs of the parish."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Let's Know

SLAVES

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

IN THE early Middle Ages the people known as the Slavs lived an indolent, harmless life in eastern Europe. They were a peasant people, loosely knit together, and became an easy prey to their rapacious neighbors. It was something of a piratical habit to descend upon them, carry them off, and sell them into bondage. They became so numerous as bond-servants throughout Europe that the word "slave" was derived from "Slav" and has remained with us ever since. In spite of everything they multiplied rapidly and gave their language to their masters; which accounts for the large number of Slavonic dialects in eastern Europe today.

Their Christian history is associated with the names of two brothers, Cyril and Methodius, who had acquired some valuable missionary experience in the Crimea where Jews, Christians, and Mohammedans were about at a stand-off.

Radislav, king of Moravia, had heard of their work and asked that they might be sent to teach his people. When they arrived, they pursued a policy quite different from the usual custom of the times. Greek and Latin missionaries were accustomed to introduce their respective languages for religious use, but these two missionary brothers settled down to learn Slavonic. They not only preached to the Slavs in their own tongue, but they developed a Slavonic alphabet and used a Slavonic liturgy for public worship. Their success was so striking that word of it reached Rome. Pope Nicholas I. thereupon sent for them to explain themselves. Cyril died in Rome but Methodius was made archbishop of the Moravians and returned to resume his labors.

This did not please the Germans, who had an historic feud with the Moravians and did not wish to see an independent Church jurisdiction established in Moravia. They raised a great to-do about this Slavonic liturgy, saying that as the superscription on the Cross had been written only in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin, therefore Christ should be worshipped only in one of those three languages. Methodius argued his case at Rome to such good effect that the Pope confirmed him in his use of Slavonic on the grounds that the Holy Scriptures say "Praise the Lord, all ye nations," signifying that all languages were meant to be used in glorifying God. So the Slavonic liturgy came into use and Slavic peoples down to the present time still offer their worship in that old language in which the missionary labors of Cyril and Methodius have become sanctified.

From Moravia, Christianity spread into Bohemia. It is also possible that this same Methodius may have been the one who had much to do with the conversion of Bulgaria. For the Bulgarian king had sent for a painter to decorate the interior of his palace, asking for some stimulating pictures of a perilous nature. A monk came to do the work but his ideas of perils were of an unexpected kind. He painted such a terrifying representation of the Last Judgment that the king was converted and drew his people after him. Legend identifies this monk as Methodius, though the identification is dubious.

Young Peoples Column

By Rev. W. A. Jonnard

THE newspapers recently commented on a pretty Kentucky school girl who writes breezy poems and draws sketches of beautiful flappers, all of which adorn the pages of several leading southern college magazines, and which are reprinted in many magazines and newspapers. She has never written for money nor termed it professional, "preferring instead," as one reporter puts it, "to aid the collegiate editors with their brain children, and to keep young."

The name of this young genius is Ruth Wilson, and she is strong in her faith in the modern girl, it would seem. The poem of which she is most proud, and the one that has caused the greatest sensation, is reproduced here under the title she gave it, "We Strive to Please." It is a commentary on modern ideals which challenges.

Suppose we rouge, suppose we dance,
Suppose we smoke and swear,
Suppose we wear our dresses short
And bob our golden hair.

Suppose we stay out late at night,
Drink cocktails, wine and gin,
And do the Charleston with the gang
Till slipper soles are thin.

Suppose we let you kiss us
In a parked car late at night,
And do a lot of petting
That we know is not quite right.

Well, we thought you wanted petting
And we thought you wanted punch,
So we did the naughty nice things
Just to be one of the bunch.

But don't you know, oh boys o'mine,
We'd get as big a thrill
Out of watching clouds go rolling by
While perched upon a hill.
With daffodils and daisies
A-growing at our feet,
And learn from lips of one we love,
That life is very sweet.

We'd even wear the crinolines
Our Grandmothers used to wear,
Read poems from old Tennyson
And plays from Moliere.

If we thought you wanted romance,
We'd give you what you crave,
But if you yearn for burlesque
Then we have to dance and rave.

For we simply strive to please you
In the best way that we know,
For you are e'er the audience
And we the actors of the show.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

"I hope you are not afraid of microbes," said the banker as he cashed the minister's check with soiled bills.

"Don't worry," said the young man, "a microbe couldn't live on a preacher's salary."

* * *

In a Sunday school situated in one of the suburbs there was a slight disturbance one day among the smaller pupils.

A small boy had slapped a little girl. The teacher was quick to rebuke the youngster.

"Jackson," she said, "no gentleman would strike a lady."

The boy was all ready with his reply. It was: "Well, no lady would tickle a gentleman."

* * *

Teacher: "Willie, can you name a city in Alaska?"

Willie: "No, m'm."

"Correct."

* * *

The railroad official invited the stern citizen to communicate his troubles.

"I want you to give orders," demanded the visitor, "that the engineer of the express which passes through Elm Grove at 11:55 be restrained from blowing his whistle Sunday mornings."

"Impossible!" exclaimed the official. "What prompts you to make such a ridiculous request?"

"Well, you see," explained the citizen in an undertone, "our pastor preaches until he hears the whistle blow, and that express was 20 minutes late last Sunday."

A letter was sent out the other day from a New York financial firm to the Rt. Rev. Philander Chase, D. D., Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland. Bishop Chase consecrated that church in 1829; he died in 1852.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS FROM THE PACIFIC DIOCESES

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

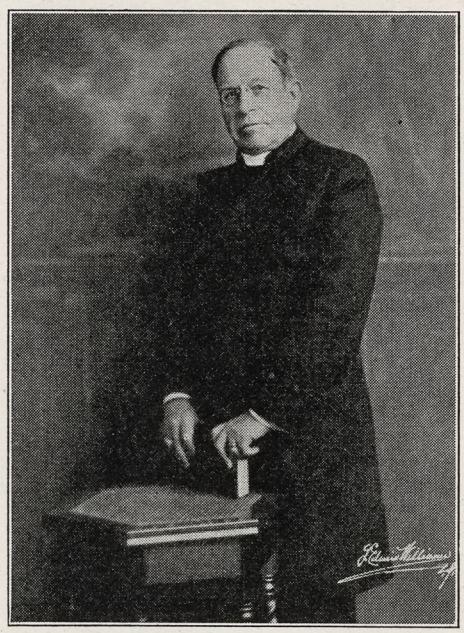
BISHOP W. B. STEVENS

THE clergy of Eastern Oregon are a practical group. Under Archdeacon Creasey four of the clergy have done the necessary carpentry to provide additional accommodations for the summer school of the district. On the last day of May there were already seventy-two registrations.

* * *

Commencement exercises of the Bishop's School for Girls and the Harvard School, Los Angeles, were held on the 14th and the 17th of June, respectively. The address at LaJolla was given by Professor J. Hudson Ballard of Occidental College, and at the Harvard School by President James A. Blaisdell of Pomona College. It was the first time Bishop Johnson had ever been absent from the graduation exercises of the Bishop's School and the first time since its connection with the Church that the Harvard School had been without his presence. Baccalaureate services were held the previous Sunday, Dean Beal of St. Paul's Cathedral, Los Angeles, preaching at LaJolla and the Bishop Coadjutor at the Harvard School.

* * *



The Church in the District of Eastern Oregon has lost a valued friend and the state of Oregon a distinguished jurist in the death of Judge Gilbert W. Phelps, whose burial was held in the Church of the Redeemer, Pendleton, in May.

* * *

The Rev. Allen Jacobs, who has been chosen dean of the Pro-Cathedral at Reno, Nevada, brings to that important post a large experience both in the East and in the West. He has been rector of parishes in Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Iowa and Oklahoma and at the time of his election was in charge of the church at Logan, Utah. Dean Jacobs is a graduate of Harvard and the Cambridge Seminary.

* * *

The work of the English Speaking Union has been of great value in a number of western cities. It is difficult to understand how so gross a misconception of its purpose as that of Mr. Charles Edward Russell's is possible. In the April "Century" Mr. Russell wrote an article on "The Nordic Goes a Saber Rattling," in which he charges the English Speaking Union with being a disrupting force. No answer could be more effective than the expressed desire of the Union on the Pacific slope to make the organization a unifying force among people of all races, with the English language an instrument, not a shibboleth.

BISHOP JOHNSON
Diocesan of Los Angeles

* * *

A new parish house is nearing completion at St. Clement's, Berkeley. This is the first unit in an entirely new plant. The Rev. Lindley Miller is the rector.

* * *

The Church Congress, meeting in San Francisco, has already been reported in this paper, leaving me nothing to add except that it was a most enthusiastic gathering, well attended, with the front pages of the daily papers devoted to its deliberations.

* * *

One of the outstanding figures in the field of rural church work is a Roman Catholic priest of Eugene, Oregon, the Rev. Edwin O'Hara. Father O'Hara is the head of the National Commission on rural work of the Roman Church, a position given him in recognition of his unique work in original research in this field. His survey of rural conditions in Lane County, Oregon, has become a model. He has also devised a system of correspondence instruction in religious education which is in use throughout the diocese of which he is a priest. Father O'Hara is to give a course in the summer school of the Diocese of Oregon, a splendid tribute to the organizers of the school.

* * *

The death of Col. George S. Patton has removed a prominent figure from the life of Southern California. Col. Patton was an old resident of San Gabriel and the uncle of the Rev. Robert Patton, director of the American Church Institute for Negroes. He was a member of the Church of Our Savior, a trustee of the California Institute of Technology and of the Huntington Library.

* * *

The clergy of the Province of the Pacific are still commenting on the unique gifts of Bishop Moulton of Utah as a presiding officer. At the clergy dinner held at the Synod at Seattle the Bishop was responsible for an evening of fellowship which for good humor and real wit was a record breaker. Archbishop De Pencier who was present as a guest and speaker testified that he had seen nothing like it since he was a freshman in college. And apparently the archbishop enjoyed it quite as much as he did freshmen dinners.

* * *

An unusual distinction has come to a California clergyman, the Rev. William J. Hatter of Escondido who has been sent by the Rotary Club of his community as a delegate to the International Rotary Club convention in Brussels. This will be the first visit of Mr. Hatter to his birthplace in England since his coming to Canada a number of years ago to study at St. John's College, Winnepeg.

* * *

The Young People's Handbook of the diocese of Minnesota has just reached my desk. It is a convenient little manual with general suggestions for organization and programs and a summary of correct parlimentary procedure. The book has a foreword by Bishop McElwain and was edited by the Rev. Charles B. Scovil, student chaplain at the University of Minnesota.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

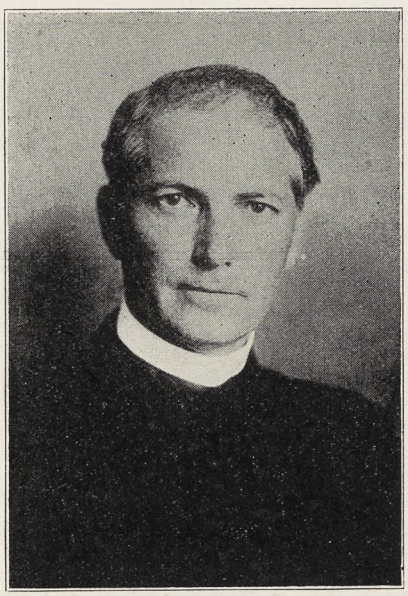
NEWS PARAGRAPHS FROM ENGLAND

Can the Church Withstand Materialism?

Edited by
A MANBY LLOYD

The Bishop of Durham (Dr. Henson), preaching in Durham Cathedral, urged that among the rank and file of English churchmen there should be a genuine tolerance based upon St. Paul's appeal for mutual forbearance. The theologian's appeal, he said, was echoed with menacing emphasis by statesmen and social students.

* * *



"Look at the situation in which we stand," Dr. Henson continued. "See how the forces of social disintegration are beating more and more fiercely against the weakened fabric of civilization. Christendom is like a city in the rich valley of the Mississippi, threatened by a vast and gathering flood which is only held back by embankments which are yielding one after another to its relentless and unrelaxing pressure. Of all embankments which in the course of centuries have been set up by the faith and energy of mankind, the Christian church is the most venerable and the most effective against it. Now the whole stream of materialistic anarchy is pressing, is it able to resist the strain?"

* * *

"It is appalling to think that a football player is worth five or six thousand pounds, while other men are contributing their life-blood to the nation at 40s or 50s a week—less if they happen to be vicars," said the Rev. J. M. F. Dumphreys, vicar of St. Philip's, Camberwell, at a special service of the United Family League. "What," he declared, "would our forefathers have said about these sartorial monstrosities who represent our modern youth, with their imported foreign ideas in regard to girls and chewing gum? There is a premium today on gush and giggle. Down the Old Kentroad you will find the mother doing the dirty work while the daughter goes out dressed in what is called the 'latest.' We have got to get back to the old dignified English character."

* * *

Bands from London and towns in Surrey, Kent, Essex, and Hampshire took part in the final day's competitions at Brighton Musical Festival. Six challenge cups were offered, and these were won as follows: Brighton Corporation Carnival Cup, Grays (Essex) Temperance Silver Band; Brighton Herald Cup, Hythe Town Band; Lawson Cup, Tottenham Garage Band; Fry Cup, Etchingham and Robertbridge Band; Cohen Cup, Brighton Police Band; Mid-Sussex Times Cup, Londonroad P. S. A. Band, Brighton.

REV. ROBERT PATTON
Director of Negro Work

Lieutenant Manuel Bilton, who judged the military band, said the improvement in tone since last year's festival was very marked. The advance made by working men's bands in recent years was wonderful.

Giving his awards in the senior ladies' elocution class, Mr. St. John Ervine described the movements of the competitors as ungainly, and traced them to the "abominable" dancing of the present day. Every girl who came up, he said, showed signs of these ugly, ungraceful dances. "If you will learn to do some of the dances your grandfather did," he declared, "you will become much more graceful. When next you are in London go to see Miss Lily Elsie in 'The Blue Train.' She performs a waltz movement that is so beautiful that it will destroy the desire ever to see jazz movement again. If any of you are addicted to charlestoning, get rid of a very bad habit." Mr. Ervine also advised the competitors to get rid of the ministerial note in their voices. "We have nearly abolished it in the pulpit," he said, "and we don't want it in the pew."

Some of the American tourists now in England who have happened to visit Stratford-on-Avon and Warwick on a Sunday have been disappointed at finding such centres of attraction as Shakespeare's birthplace, New Place, Anne Hathaway's cottage, and Warwick Castle closed on that day.

One of the tourists told a reporter: "We have come thousands of miles to see these places, which are of more than local or national interest. In Paris there are no closed doors, and in London one may move about freely and make the most of one's time on Sundays in museums, art galleries, and the like."

Opinion in Stratford-on-Avon is divided on the question of Sunday opening. The trustees and guardians of the birthplace considered this question about two years ago, when a resolution in favour of opening was defeated by a small majority.

At the annual meeting last month the chairman of the trustees, Mr. A. D. Flower, said that more leisurely inspections of the birthplace might be possible if it were open on seven days a week during the summer. He announced that he would reopen the question at a future meeting. The trustees do not meet again until October.

Mr. F. C. Wellstood, secretary and librarian of the birthplace, said yesterday: "There never has been Sunday opening, and it is only in recent times, with the enormous increase in the number of visitors on Sunday, that the question has arisen. All the guide-books make it quite clear that the properties associated with Shakespeare's memory are closed on Sunday."

Canon W. G. Melville, the vicar of Stratford-on-Avon, said: "My rule that people shall not be admitted to the church on Sundays except during service time is going to be continued. If people want to see the church they can do so by saying prayers there and using the church for the object for which it was built, which was not for burying William Shakespeare.

"I have a letter signed by all the Nonconformist ministers, and have no doubt I can obtain the signature of the Roman Catholic priest, protesting against Sunday opening of the birthplace property. If necessary, we shall take the town's poll on the question."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited By

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

MY GAME of books — the three books you would retain if you were forever to be deprived of all others—is apparently too strenuous for a summer pastime. In any case I put the question to a number of distinguished faculty members of the Concord Conference fully expecting to have a nice snappy paragraph to lead off with this week. All I could get out of the bunch was Green's History of the English People and Calvin's Institutes of Religion, the selection of Dean Ludlow, formerly of Grace Cathedral, Topeka, now the secretary of adult religious education. And even this courageous man turned me down on the third book, though with the remark that any WITNESS readers who took his selections seriously would find their time well occupied with the history by Green, which is a set and not a volume.

* * *

I had an evening recently with a young man who has just finished work at Columbia University. We discussed ethics for a couple of hours, but not once did he use the words "right," "wrong," "moral" or "immoral." Rather, he talked of doing things that were "beautiful"; of doing things that were "intelligent," and of "experimenting to find out," insisting always that the other words, so frequently used by clergymen, were meaningless. I did my best to hold up my end but I must admit that he made me feel like an old fogey in spite of the fact that we are not so far apart in years. Something has happened to mental attitudes during the last ten years, and the Church, if it is to be on the job, should set to work to find out what.

* * *

The window, illustrated on this page is one of a series illustrating the Christian virtues, recently installed in St. Thomas's, New York. It was designed by the artist, Nicola D'Ascenzo of Philadelphia, to typify "Faith." The window is an excellent example of the middle period of Gothic art in stained glass, and being a five lancet window contains five standing figures, St. Thomas, Cornelius the centurian, Nathaniel, Zaccheus, and Bartimeus, all outstanding characters having great faith. Below the figures are the predallas typical of this period illustrating related subjects or incidents in the lives of the characters shown in the upper portions of the lancets. The upper or tracery portion of the window as well as the background in the main part of the window is treated with a rich all-over pattern of gresaille decoration, studded with symbols and angelic figures of praise, recalling the magnificent cathedral windows of the late 13th and the early 14th centuries. The window is over thirty feet high, containing thousands of pieces of brilliantly colored antique glass, and is a striking example of the present-day revival of this beautiful craft of the middle ages.

MEMORIAL WINDOW
In St. Thomas's, New York

In the center lancet, St. Thomas the Apostle holding an architect's T-square, St. Thomas having been recognized as the patron of architects and builders. Below St. Thomas in the lower level of the window is a precella depicting the incident when Our Lord revealed himself to St. Thomas and St. Thomas at last convinced, exclaims "my Lord and my God." Next to St. Thomas on the left is Nathaniel, "an Israelite indeed in whom there is no guile." Nathaniel holds a scroll on which one reads this legend "and prayed to God always." Next to St. Thomas on the right is Cornelius the centurion holding a sword as the symbol of his calling, and a ribbon on which is written his question of fealty. "What is it, Lord?" On the extreme left panel is shown Zaccheus holding fast to a great vine or tree waiting to see Our Lord pass by, with the legend beneath, "Zaccheus make haste and come down, for today I abide at thy house."

In the extreme right lancet of this window we find blind Bartimeus holding a long staff in his hand, as he gropes his way through the highway. Below him is a precella depicting the familiar story of Christ healing the blind.

* * *

A group of Girl Reserves were meeting at Stratford University on the day when one of the Y. W. C. A. secretaries sailed to China. By her they sent the following message: "The Girl Reserves of Northern California send their love to the girls of China. Tell them we think of them as of ourselves!"

* * *

Regardless of what we may think of the opinions expressed by the Rev. Henry Lewis of Ann Arbor, Michigan, on the attitude of college students on matters of sex, do we not owe him a vote of thanks for again bringing into the open a vital problem? Mr. Lewis has been as close to a large group of college students as any priest of the Church, having for a number of years been the student chaplain at the University of Michigan. Basing his opinion upon this experience he can say: "I have dealt with several thousand young college students at Ann Arbor. Their problems are moral—all moral—and while their aims are all right they are badly confused by present conditions. Promiscuity among the girls is increasingly great. We must find a solution for it and be broad-minded in our efforts toward finding such a solution." What philosophy of life is the basis for their conduct, is it correct, and from whom do these young students get it? Are not these the questions to be tackled, and is anything good accomplished by setting up a howl when some person is brave enough to point out the facts? And one of these facts seems to be that we are fast coming to have a single standard of morality—and a mighty low one. If one of the jobs of the Church is to protect the home, then the more facts we can secure, and the more brains we can put to work on the problem, the better.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

Forty-eight per cent of the 3,891 families who came to the New York Charity Organization Society last year did not require material relief but guidance out of a maze of difficulties before a financial crash should come. The growth in the preventive side of the Society's work should save tax payers in later years from the necessity of supporting so many chronic cases in our city's institutions and prisons.

* * *

The discriminating eye will find an inadvertent joke in The Spirit of Missions for June. "The Rev. Jonathan Odell was inducted. . . . He had served as a surgeon in the army and continued the practice of medicine after he assumed the duties of the rectorship. During this period a large addition was made to the original burying ground."

* * *

1927 is the 25th year of the work of the American Church in the Hawaiian Islands, and the 65th year since work was begun there by the Church of England, which in 1862 sent out Bishop Staley. Bishop LaMothe hopes the year may be marked by paying off the mortgage on the Bishop's House, which is to be used for parish and diocesan purposes.

* * *

The Cuban Mission San Juan, Bacuranao, fifteen miles from Havana, blown down in the hurricane last fall, has been rebuilt and was consecrated in the spring. The Church has been at work here for twenty years. The priest in charge, Rev. Ricardo Barrios, a native Cuban, drew the plans for the new chapel, made the altar and font, and the altar cross of beaten brass. He is also in charge of Calvario Mission at Jesus del Monte, a suburb of Havana, where there are great possibilities for expansion, both of the Church and the school, which are in the midst of a crowded population of poor people.

* * *

Thirteen books by the Bishop of London, given by a Churchwoman to the Church of the Messiah, Gonzales, Texas, form the nucleus of what it is hoped may become a lending library for the clergy and laity of the Diocese of West Texas.

* * *

A Negro woman, Mrs. Laura Titus, who died recently in Norfolk, Va., left her estate of about $20,000 chiefly for religious, charitable and educational projects, the bequests including $500 to her parish, Grace Church, $500 to St. Paul's School,

Ask Me Another

The following questions and their answers, on another page, are supplied by Elaine Krambles of Chicago, to whom a copy of Bishop Johnson's Cushioned Pews has been sent.

1. Who was the great law giver?
2. Where and what is St. Stephen's College?
3. Who is known as the Young People's Bishop?
4. During the first seven years of David's reign, what was the capitol?
5. Which bishop was chosen as the preacher at the commencement this year at the Virginia Seminary?
6. Why is Exodus known as the Book of Redemption?
7. Where in the Bible is our week of seven days established?
8. What is a tabernacle as the word is used in the Old Testament?
9. What in Biblical language is the meaning of barbarous?
10. What are the idyls of the Old and New Testament?

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

The Taylor Bell Foundry

LOUGHBOROUGH, ENGLAND

The World's Leading Bellfounders

CHURCH BELLS

SINGLY OR IN PEALS
CHIMES OR CARILLONS
AUTOMATIC OPERATION

Unequalled for Musical Qualities

Yale University — Birmingham, Ala.
Andover — Gloucester
Morristown — Cranbrook, Mich.
Harvard University
Germantown, Etc., Etc.

INQUIRIES SOLICITED

25,000 CHURCHES USE

OSTERMOOR CUSHIONS

BUILT - NOT STUFFED

Illustrated Booklet and Samples Free
Old Cushions renovated and recovered equal to new
Ostermoor & Co., Inc., Dept. C, 114 Elizabeth St., N.Y

St. Albans School

SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS

Diocese of Chicago

Sixty miles west of Chicago.
Five miles off the Lincoln Highway

SCHOLASTIC:	Best of preparation for college. Boys this fall will be entered at Dartmouth, M. I. T., Yale, Princeton, Columbia, St. Stephens, Hobart, Kenyon, Annapolis, University of the South, Knox, Beloit, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Lafayette, Miami and Purdue.
ATHLETIC:	Every boy has an opportunity to enter the sports — Foot Ball — Basketball — Tennis— Track — Golf — Baseball — The School for two years has had an enviable reputation.
RELIGIOUS:	Great care has been given to have a good religious atmosphere. There are few obligatory services.
HOME LIFE:	The School has been to capacity for six years. Great care has been used in the selection of boys. The group enrolled has made it possible to have a full honor system under a council and an atmosphere of an ideal home.
CONFERENCES:	The Rector will be glad to make appointments at various centers during the summer. A visit to the school would be of value. The Chicago Office is Room 1411, Tower Building, Wednesdays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Address the School for literature and information.
ENROLLMENT:	Last year boys came from Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Florida, Louisiana, Montana, Colorado, Wisconsin, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Alaska.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Lawrenceville, and property to be used for a clinic for sick children and babies. She had been known for many years for her charitable work. "Just so you live, just so you die," says the old Negro song.

* * *

In addition to their regular work the Woman's Auxiliary of Trinity Church, Wethersfield, Conn., found time during last summer to knit nineteen sweaters for the Seamen's Church Institute, to be presented to seamen on Christmas Day.

* * *

"Church Unity is no longer a distant vision but an immediate and urgent necessity," said Bishop Charles H. Brent of Buffalo before sailing today on the Aquitania on his way to Lausanne, Switzerland, where he will preside at the World Conference on Faith and Order. This Conference, which will bring together religious leaders from all over the world, will be in session from August 3 to August 21.

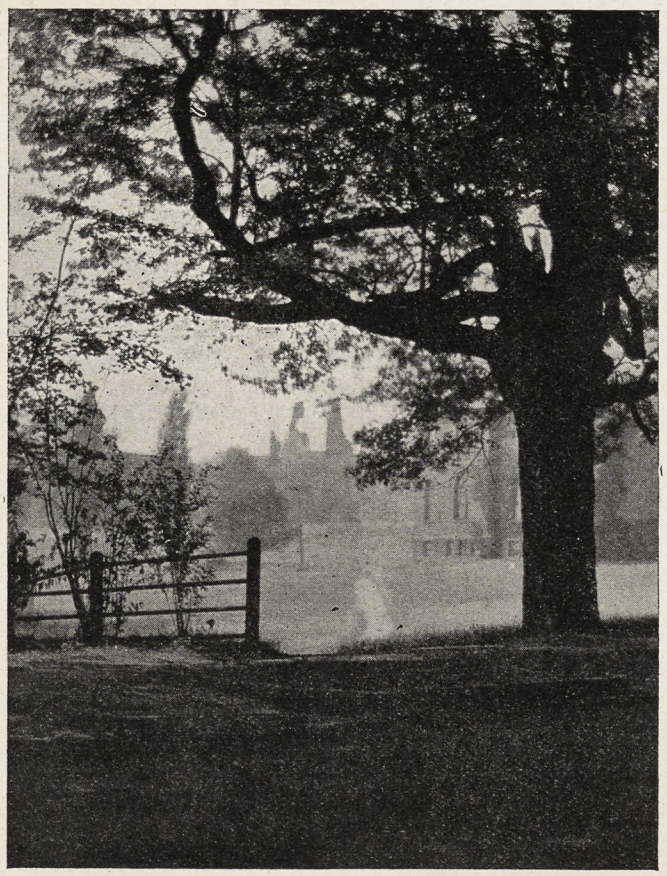
"All the Christian churches are looking forward to this meeting with the greatest interest," said Bishop Brent, "as a step toward greater unity. The Lausanne Conference is the most representative religious assembly that has been held since the division of the Church, centuries ago. The spirit of all our preparatory meetings has been one of harmony and frankness. I believe the era of church controversy is over. We are living in an era of church cooperation.

"Five hundred representatives of nearly one hundred nation-wide churches, in all parts of the world, from Norway to New Zealand, will assemble at Lausanne. While church unity is the subject and aim of their meeting, discussion and recommendation, rather than legislation, are the means through which the leaders in all denominations hope to advance the aims of inter-church harmony. English, French and German will be the official languages of the Conference, with interpreters and translators on hand to make mutual understanding easier.

"The vitality of Christianity is being sapped by its inner dissensions. A kingdom divided against itself will never have the power to win the world to God.

"To the older generation it may not be a matter of the gravest concern how many branches of the church claim to have the truth in their keeping. But to the boys and girls now growing up it is vitally important, though they may not know it. Behind their youthful scepticism is a real hunger for enduring truth and beauty. How can we show them what we believe to be the goal of their search unless we unite on a common viewpoint of righteousness and morality?"

* * *



The motion picture industry, feeling that it is apt to arouse international ill-will, are to refrain in the future from depicting the typical Mexican as a two-gun, mustachioed villain, and the mass of Mexicans as revolutionists and bandits.

* * *

A new church for St. Peter's, Talladega, Alabama, the Rev. Joseph H. Harvey, rector, has been started. It is to be constructed of Indiana Limestone, and is to be an impressive building, modern in every respect.

* * *

The congregation of St. Andrew's, New York, the Rev. Albert E. Ribourg, rector, is being asked to contribute toward a fund of $30,000 which is the cash payment for a church property which a Russian congregation that has been worshipping in St. Andrew's for the past four years. The congregation, organized under the name, ""The Russian Orth-

"ENTER TO GROW IN WISDOM"

For Information About the Requirements for Entrance

Address the Dean,

Trinity College
Hartford, Connecticut

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

odox Church of Christ Our Saviour" has grown to 500 members. The property to be purchased is the Congregational Pilgrim Church at a price of $145,000.

* * *

A new organ, said to be the finest in America, is to be installed in the Church of the Ascension, Mount Vernon, New York.

* * *

The 99th commencement of Kenyon College opened on June 18th and was carried through with all the usual colorful dignity. The unique feature was the ceremony in celebration of the 100th anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of Old Kenyon. There were 26 men in the graduating class, in addition to the graduates of Bexley Hall. Honorary degrees were conferred upon Frank M. Marchant; C. Sturges Ball of the Bexley faculty; Henry G. Dalton of Cleveland, a trustee; Col. T. A. Johnstone, head of Kemper Academy; George J. Peet of New York; Rev. Royal Hunt Balcomb, for his remarkable work in Wyoming, and the Rev. Jon R. Stalker of Massilion. Both Bishop Leonard and Bishop Rogers attended the commencement.

* * *

On the Sunday nearest Empire Day, a splendid demonstration of international goodwill was given in an evening service at St. Paul's Cathedral, Detroit. The British flag was carried in procession with the flags of America and of the Church. The large congregation sang with great gusto, "The Maple Leaf" and "O Canada." The Rev. Alan P. Shatford, of the Church of St. James the Apostle, Montreal, preached a great non-militaristic sermon on "The Sword of the Lord and of Gideon," which he explained would be more correctly rendered "The Lord and Gideon." The combination suggested was a great cause and a great personality. At the close of the sermon a huge Union Jack was displayed at the chancel steps, and "Rule Britannia" was sung with a heartiness that brought tears to the eyes of many an old Britisher. Then the American flag was presented, and the "Star-Spangled Banner" sung with even more than usual enthusiasm.

* * *

The Church of the Holly Spirit, Lake Forest, Illinois, the Rev. Herbert William Prince, rector, celebrated its 25th anniversary as a Parish on Whitsunday, June 5th. At the 11 o'clock service the rector celebrated and the sermon was preached by the Rev. Albert Glenn Richards, rector of Emmanuel Church, Athens, Georgia, and former rector of the parish. The choir, augmented by a number of former members, sang a beautiful service. After the service, a lunch was served by the Choirmothers, in the parish house. The rector presented a beautiful leather brief case to Mr. Arthur Ranous, who was celebrating 25 years of service in the choir. This gift was from the members of the choir. A very interesting and amusing speech was made by Mr. S. E. Gruenstein, Editor of "The Diapason"—and organist of the First Presbyterian Church, Lake Forest, a position held by Mr. Gruenstein over 35 years. In the eve-

"Taylor Hall, Racine, Wisconsin, from August 6th to August 27th, 1927, will be available for church people who may desire to spend their vacations on Lake Michigan. Room and board $20.00 per week. Apply to Mrs. George Biller."

FREEHOLD
MILITARY SCHOOL
For 80 Select Young Boys
A school with the personal touch. Just enough military training to inculcate habits of obedience, promptness, orderliness, cleanliness and self-reliance. The students' comforts, pleasures and sports are as carefully considered as their mental training. Healthful location. 42 miles from N. Y., 66 miles from Phila. For catalog address
MAJOR CHAS. M. DUNCAN
P. O. Box W Freehold, N. J.

SAINT MARY'S
Knoxville, Illinois
An accredited college preparatory school with special department for girls in the grades. Athletics. Music. Art. Expression. Secretarial and Business courses. For catalogue write to the Rector.

SHATTUCK
A CHURCH SCHOOL FOR BOYS
For 68 years Shattuck has been a leader among the country's college preparatory schools of the highest order. It is particularly noted for High Scholarship, Manly Character, Christian Citizenship. A military boarding school founded to train boys for service, not for profit. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall. Address the Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

Money in Old Letters
Look in that old trunk up in the garret and send me all the old envelopes up to 1880. Do not remove the stamps from the envelopes. You keep the letters. I will pay highest prices.
GEO. P. HAKES, 290 Broadway
New York, N. Y.

SOMERSET HILLS
A Progressive Country Day and Boarding School. Primary, Intermediate and Senior Departments. Prepares for leading Secondary Schools.
Individual instruction makes rapid progress possible.
Outdoor life in the country.
Address: Rev. James H. S. Fair, Far Hills, New Jersey

JOHN M. DOYLE
MEMORIAL TABLETS
14 S. THIRD ST. PHILADELPHIA
CATALOGUE ON REQUEST

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California
A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C. 27th year now in session. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin
Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

ROWLAND HALL
A School for Girls in the Wasatch Mountains
Salt Lake City, Utah
BISHOP MOULTON, Rector.

NASHOTAH HOUSE
Founded in 1842
Theological Seminary and Collegiate Department
For particulars address the dean
NASHOTAH HOUSE
Nashotah, Wisconsin

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., LTD., 28 MARgaret Street, London, England. Craftsmen in Ecclesiastical Art. Woodwork, Metal Work Vestments, Embroidery. Information and all particulars can be obtained through their distributor, Mr. Adrian A. Buck, 665 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London W. I., England.

SECRETARY—FOR PARISH IN N. Y. State—One trained for and experienced in Church-School work, church record maintenance and general secretarial duties. Box H, The Witness, 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago.

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 115 Franklin St., New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up: Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT
SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y. References required.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ning, at 8 o'clock, Bishop Anderson confirmed a class and preached. Large congregations were present at both services and the number of communions made at the 11 o'clock service was the largest ever made at a single service in the history of the Parish.

* * *

There are five missions in the vicinity of Glacier National Park in Montana. All have Church buildings and are under the care of a lay missionary who cannot administer the sacraments. Should any priest of the Church, including Glacier Park in his vacation trip, feel that he could give a service to one of these places, will he kindly write to Richard R. Price, Whitefish, Montana, who will be glad to give details?

* * *

The Rev. Edgar vanWright Edwards, late of Granteville, S. C., was instituted, June 9 by Bishop McDowell as rector of Trinity Church, Atmore, Alabama. Assisting in the service was the Rev. Joseph R. Walker, his predecessor. In the procession were the Protestant pastors of the city, one of whom made an address on behalf of the Christian congregations represented, quite in the spirit of the Lausanne Conference.

* * *

The Y. P. S. L. Camp of the Diocese of Alabama was held June 7-14 at Battles on the east shore of Mobile Bay. The camp was under the direction of the Rev. R. A. Kirchhoffer of Mobile, with the Rev. J. W. Heyes of Eufaula as chaplain. About 100 young people and their counsellors enjoyed the week of study, fellowship, recreation and worship. Diocesan officers of the Y. P. S. L. for the coming year were elected: president, Allen Bartlett, Church of the Advent, Birmingham; vice-president, Catherine Nelson, Church of the Ascension, Montgomery; secretary, Delia Gould, St. Andrew's, Birmingham; treasurer, Robert Morefield, St. Mary's, Birmingham.

* * *

From the San Juan Hospital at Farmington, New Mexico, the Rev. Charles W. Baker writes of the fascinating mission chapel:

"The altar is of antique Verde marble; on the top of the altar there is a cerestone of New Mexican marble, and the rest of the top as well as the retable is finished with a mosaic of Pueblo pottery, taken from the ruins of the Pueblo villages thereabouts. Some of the pieces are gathered off the desert about the Hospital, where there was a village in the dim past. The pottery pieces have the conventional designs of the Pueblo pottery, in black and white, and red and black. It makes a very beautiful finish to the altar. The rugs are of Navajo make, given by grateful patients of the Hospital. The walls of the Chapel are finished in a light brown, with a tan color above and in the chancel. Near the door there is a font of caenstone, in which many Indians have been baptized,

ST. ANNE'S Open Air School, Box W, Charlotteville, Va.
Beautiful location in far famed Blue Ridge Mountains. College preparatory and elective courses. Fully accredited by State Board of Education. Open gymnasium allows sports in the fresh air in all weather. Riding taught by expert. Music. Art. Bishop of Virginia, President of Trustees. Laura Lee Dorsey, Principal.

SAINT MARY'S HALL
Faribault, Minnesota
Episcopal school for girls, founded in 1866. Beautiful new fire-proof building, large campus, out-of-door sports, excellent academic and special training. Prepares girls for all colleges.

Hannah More
DIOCESAN SCHOOL OF MARYLAND
Founded 1832
A Country School for Girls, fifteen miles from Baltimore. College Preparatory and General Courses. Music. Art. Supervised Athletics. Terms $600 to $800.
Principal
MISS LAURA FOWLER, A. B.
Box W, Reisterstown, Maryland

CAMP MONAUKE
A camp for girls from eight to fifteen, located on Lake Sunapee, New Hampshire.
—o—
SWIMMING, RIDING, BASKET-MAKING
—o—
There is an opening for a few girls who might care to enroll for less than the entire season.
—o—
Directed by Church Women.
—o—
—for information—
MISS MARGUERITE SPOFFORD,
Burkehaven, New Hampshire

ACTS OF DEVOTION—
A book of services and prayers, compiled by an English group.
65c, postpaid.

THE WAY OF LIFE—
A book of thirteen essays by Bishop Johnson, setting forth his interpretation of Christianity.
50c postpaid.

WORKS OF STUDDERT-KENNEDY—
I BELIEVE. LIES. THE WICKET GATE.
Each book $1.60, postpaid.

WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Ave, Chicago, Ill.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland.
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore.
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago.
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago.
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago.
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City.
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily, 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily, 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

and it is hoped many more will be in the years to come."

The Mission hopes to have a "Good Shepherd" window, appropriate for these Indian shepherds of the desert; also a cross of beaten silver made by Navajo silversmiths for the altar.

"If it were not that the Chapel is a memorial," Mr. Baker says, "I should feel we had no right to use so much money in making it beautiful when we need so many things. But it is wonderful to have such a beautiful chapel to show the Indians, that they may realize how much we honor and reverence our God. We find it far more difficult to reach these Indians than those in northwestern California, that is, with the Christian religion."

* * *

This is from the editorial office of the China Y. W. C. A. in Shanghai, written by a westerner.

"Some of the things which we seem to see, out here, for you:

"First, that no matter what splits and shifts the government, no matter what alarming 'incidents' may occupy the immediate foreground, the major process in this Revolution, the quickening of the people, goes steadily on, and will not be stopped. There is about it a sense of destiny,— such as must attend all those great events that set the freedom of the common people of the world some appreciable steps ahead. Like innumerable other hopeful souls, we may, during the phenomenal northern drive of the Nationalists, have been deluded in the matter of time. It may well take another fifty years or so to complete this Revolution, instead of the fifty months that for a time seemed possible. But we saw the look that came on certain Chinese faces the day the first Nationalist flags were flown on these streets. Whatever elative place national spirit may come to have in the developing internationalism of the world, we have seen it here kindling an ardor and a devotion that cannot but be gain to this great and hitherto so localized people.

"Secondly, we see something of how literally and terribly true it is that Christianity has not so much failed as never been tried. We see the vulnerable spots of the world's poor attempt at it, thus far, exposed to attack under the rude circumstance of revolution here. And considering our own western representations of Christianity alone, we see day by day more plainly, that to the pragmatic Chinese people it must show itself as a way of living that works, before it can impart that other centrally essential thing,— a mystical relationship; therefore that Christianity must be applied to the satisfactory solution of the problems of armament, treaties, and the like if western

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York.
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D.
Sundays, 8 and 11 a. m.

Trinity Church, New York.
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York.
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York.
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp & Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — in a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

Christians are any longer to come here to give.

"But thirdly and last, there appears more clearly than ever before, a better thing than that the West should continue in the attitude of a giver only, and that is, that the day of that generous, beautiful but unilateral relationship is over. Seen at close range, this experience of China's Revolution with its implications for Christianity is revealing in a few startling months,— packed full of attack, propaganda, and other forces that play up in a strong light what had been dimly seen for years, — how desperately true it is that the Christian enterprise is no longer to be the attempt to extend the religion of Jesus from one land to another, but a joint attempt, participated in by all nationalities on exactly the same footing, to extend His spirit from one area of life to another. This is, of course, no new thing to say, but as seen and felt from this vantage-point, there is urgency now, about our realizing it to the full."

Answers

1. Moses.
2. Annandale, New York. A Church college.
3. Bishop Juhan of Florida.
4. Hebron.
5. Bishop Darst of East Carolina.
6. It records the redemption out of Egyptian bondage of the descendants of Abraham.
7. Exodus 23, verse 12.
8. A tent.
9. Strange.
10. Ruth of the Old Testament, Philomon of the New.

Clerical Changes

ALDWORTH, Rev. E. L., resigns as assistant of the Messiah, Detroit, to accept the rectorship of St. Peter's, Hillsdale, Michigan.

APELHOF, Rev. Gilbert, graduate this June of the Virginia Seminary, has accepted an appointment as missionary-in-charge of St. Luke's, Ferndale, Michigan.

BELT, Rev. Robert J., formerly of Clairton, Pa., is temporarily in charge of St. James' Mansfield, Penna.

DAY, Rev. John, resigns as dean of the cathedral at Oklahoma City to accept the deanship at Topeka, Kansas.

GAST, Rev. Stuart F., recently ordained deacon, has been placed in charge of St. Luke's, Mechanicsburg, Penna., with charge of work at New Market, Enola and Harrisburg.

HANSON, Rev. Alexander B., Jr., ordained deacon June 19th by Bishop McDowell of Alabama, has become the assistant at Christ Church, Mobile, Alabama.

HUBBARD, Rev. Russell S., graduate this June of the Virginia Seminary, has accepted a curacy at St. John's, Waterbury, Connecticut.

MUNDAY, Rev. Thomas G., resigns as rector of St. John's, Albany, Alabama, to accept the rectorship of St. Mark's, Troy, Alabama.

RANDALL, Rev. R. E., has resigned as rector of St. Mark's, Marine City, Michigan, to take up evangelistic work in England.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.000 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, social. or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, Pesident,
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

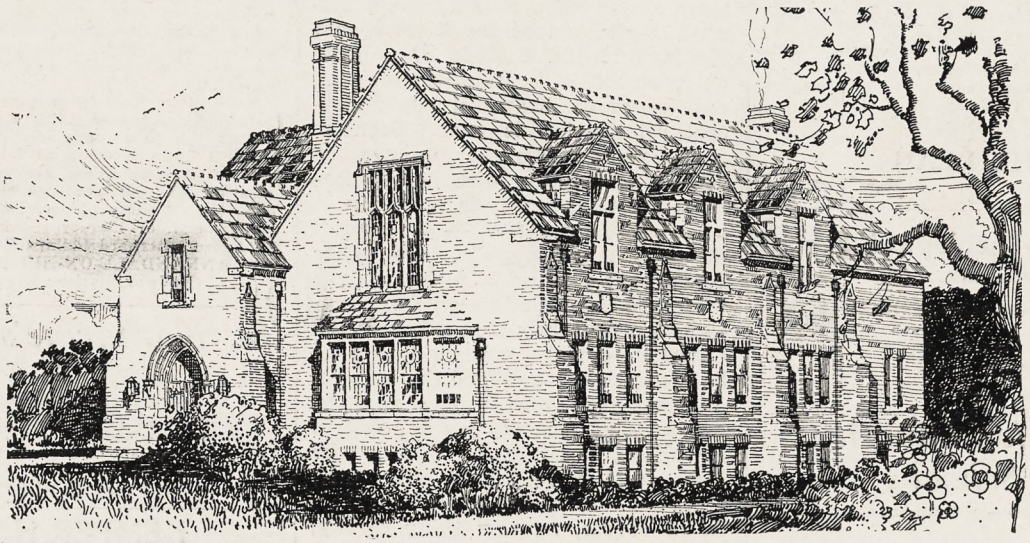
Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago



ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Proposed Parish House

Dougher, Rich and Woodburn, Architects

St. Luke's Episcopal Church Des Moines, Iowa

A $25,000 fund in one locality may be as important to the development of church life as a $250,000 fund in another locality.

The little church of St. Luke's at Des Moines, Iowa, moved less than a year ago from the restricted opportunities of its former site to a more strategic location. This move was justified by larger congregations, increased attendance at the church school and greater activities in all parish organizations, and plainly created a demand for a Parish House for which $25,000 was needed.

With but eighty-eight families and one hundred and ninety communicants this little church rose to the occasion and under the expert guidance of our Mr. Howard T. Beaver raised $25,940.66 in a campaign ending June 10, in which was developed great enthusiasm and a feeling that they were entering upon a new epoch in their church life.

The vision and vigorous leadership of the Rector ,The Reverend Gowan C. Williams, are largely responsible for the success of this campaign.

Our quarterly bulletin "Financing Social Progress" gives further details and will be sent upon request.

Ward, Wells, Dreshman & Gates

PHILANTHROPIC ORGANIZATION AND FINANCE

475 Fifth Avenue, New York - - - - - - - - 612 Wrigley Building, Chicago

Originators of the Intensive Method of Fund Raising

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, JULY 14, 1927

The Mission of the Anglican Church

By

Rt. Rev. William T. Manning

—o—

A Thought for the Holidays

By

G. A. Studdert-Kennedy

—o—

NEXT WEEK:

Ethical Aspect of Investments

By

Rev. Charles N. Lathrop

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS

Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street

Designers of

HISTORICAL WINDOWS

Washington Memorial Chapel

Valley Forge, Pa.

Clerestory Windows

St. Thomas Church New York City

Stained Glass, Mural Decorations,

Glass Mosaics

The Charm of Golden-Voiced Chimes

is within reach of your church, too!

Imagine the rich, musical tones of

Deagan Tower Chimes

coming from the belfry of your church—a constant inspiration to worship; a golden voice eagerly awaited by multitudes every day. Write for plan.

Standard Sets $6,000 and Up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 697 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.

Baltimore, Md.

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER

and 4 & 5 Duncannon St:

Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery

Wood

Stone

Metal and

Stained Glass

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir.

Altar Furnishings.

Inquiries invited and given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403)

(Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND

220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS

FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows

Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates on application to

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders

of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

R. GEISSLER, INC.,

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

EST. 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W. HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts.

NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J.

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings

Gorgeous Combinations of Color

Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

—Office and Studio—

221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS · AND · BUILDERS · OF · ECCLESIASTIC · MEMORIAL · WINDOWS.

—Photos, Designs and Estimates upon Application—

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XI. No. 47 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

MISSION OF THE ANGLICAN CHURCH

A Message from New York to Old York

Sermon by

RT. REV. WILLIAM T. MANNING

Bishop of New York
in York Minster, England,
at the 1300th Anniversary of the founding of The Minster on the Morning of the Third Sunday after Trinity, July 3rd, 1927

I thank my God through Jesus Christ for you all that your faith is spoken throughout the whole world. —Romans I: 7, 8.

THE occasion which sees us gathered in this great Minster of York is one to stir the heart of every child of the Anglican Church, and it is one that must appeal to the imagination, and the interest of all Christians. For more than three centuries the streets of this city heard the tramp of the Roman legions. Two Emperors of Rome died here within your walls. In the year 314 the Bishop of York attended the Council of Arles. And you are now celebrating the 1300th anniversary of the foundation of your Minster.

Thirteen hundred years—two-thirds of the time that has passed since Our Lord was born in Bethlehem! This is the history of which this building speaks to us. For thirteen centuries worship has been offered to Our Lord in this place, and here your Minster, one of the glories not only of the English Church, but of the whole of Christendom, stands today, bearing its witness to the unbroken life, the historic continuity, the Catholic and Apostolic character of the Church of England.

The Founder

In 627 your founder, Edwin of Northumbria, gave his allegiance to Christ. It must move us to realize that here is the very ground where on Easter Day, King Edwin was baptized, and Paulinus, your first Archbishop, offered the Eucharist thirteen hundred years ago. And if Paulinus, and Aidan and Wilfrid could now be with us in the flesh, they would find held and taught here, in every essential, the Faith of Christ as they knew, and believed, and preached it.

You may well pray, as you are now praying, "for all who have been converted, baptized, absolved, confirmed, ordained to the sacred ministry, or consecrated to the Episcopate in this place."

America's Greeting

You have reason indeed to give thanks as you think of all that this Minster has meant to your forefathers, and of all that it means today, not only to your ancient city but to England, and to the world, and I have the great privilege of bringing to your Archbishop and Clergy, to your Lord Mayor and Corporation, and to you all in Old York a message of glad felicitation from the city of the New World which bears your name, and from your brethren of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America. From my own Diocese of New York I bring a message of affectionate greeting, sent to you by unanimous vote of the clergy and laity assembled at our Diocesan Convention, which I have placed in the hands of your Archbishop.

We are one with you in faith and fellowship. The Church of England is our spiritual Mother and we glory in her long history even as you do. From her we received the Divine gifts of the Faith, the Ministry and the Sacraments as these have come to us from Apostolic days. Your saints and martyrs and scholars are ours also, and we too receive strength from them. We claim our part and share in your historic churches, and while you are keeping the thirteen hundredth anniversary of your Cathedral in Old York we are building our Cathedral in New York on the same spiritual foundation upon which your Minster rests, the foundation of faith in Jesus Christ our Ascended and Living Lord, as that faith in Him has been held from the beginning by the whole Catholic Church throughout the world. And I rejoice to tell you that the City of New York, sometimes unjustly regarded as absorbed in material things, has shown an interest such as few causes have ever called forth from her in the erection of this great building to serve no utilitarian purpose but to stand solely for the things of God and of the spirit.

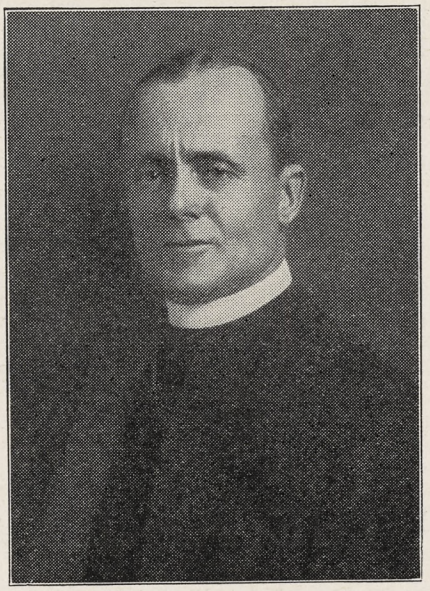
We in America are joined to you in old England, and to our brethren in the English speaking world, by ties which are of God's own ordering and which no man may put asunder.

True Partnership

We remember with deep and lasting appreciation the visit of your Archbishop to America at the time of our entrance into the World War, and the message which he brought to us at that great moment. I shall never forget the scene in our New York Cathedral as the Archbishop stood up to preach there, and the feeling in that vast assembly as he announced for his text the words, "And they beckoned unto their partners, which were in the other ship, that they should come and help them." May

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

America and Great Britain and all who speak the English tongue, stand ever in true partnership, not for their own selfish advantage, but for the good of all mankind.



As we look back over the history of this Minster, and see what these thirteen centuries tell us we give thanks to God for the life and witness of the Church of England. Like other Churches she has made mistakes, she has her weaknesses and shortcomings, but her record is one to fill the hearts of her children with true devotion and with loyal love.

Constant Witness

We give thanks for her constant and unwavering witness to the Gospel of Salvation brought to this world once for all in Jesus Christ. No one can be in any doubt as to the Faith which she teaches, and which she expects, and trusts, her clergy to teach. Not only in her Creed but in every act and utterance of her worship she declares her faith in the Christ of history, the Christ of the New Testament, the Christ Who hears and answers our prayers where He now reigns on the Throne of God.

Love of Truth

We give thanks also for her sincere and fearless love of truth, her readiness to hear all that science and scholarship may be able to teach us, her faith that there is, and can be, no conflict between the truth made known to us by science and the truth revealed to us in Christ. It is one of her great glories that, in the words of Bishop Creighton, she has been eminently, and still is "the Church of sound learning." It is the historian Lecky, certainly no ecclesiatical partisan, who, writing of the intellectual side of the Church of England, says, "There is hardly a branch of serious English literature in which Anglican clergy are not conspicuous. . . . In the fields of physical science, in the fields of moral philosophy, metaphysics, social, and even political philosophy, and perhaps still more in the fields of history (they) have won places in the foremost rank" by work "marked not only by profound learning, but, to an eminent degree, by judgment, criticism, impartiality, a desire for truth, a skill in separating the proved from the false, or the merely probable." "There is no other Church," Mr. Lecky says, "which has shown itself so capable of attracting, and retaining, the services of men of general learning, criticism and ability." And in this spirit of loyalty to truth, in the light of fearless and thorough research, and of scholarship equal to any that the world can show, her witness is that there is no fact of science, there is no discovery of modern knowledge, there is no claim of truth, or reason, to debar any sincere

Bishop Manning
Preacher at York Minster

man or woman from kneeling in full and humble faith before Jesus Christ as God and Saviour.

Moulds Character

And again we give thanks for the great part which the English Church has played in moulding the life and character of the English people. It is the Church of England, the ancient Church of this land, identified with all your past back to the days of Celt and Saxon which, far more than any other agency, has inspired and developed that type of character which marks the people of English stock. It is from the Church that they have learned their deep sense of justice, their love of liberty, their reverence for womanhood, their faithfulness to their pledged word at whatever cost, their self-restraint and reticence in success and their indomitable courage in adversity.

Who can measure the work of the Church of England, through all the centuries past, in forming and preparing this island race for its great part in the life of the world? And that ancient Church has now been called to far larger service. Her influence, like that of the English race, has spread far and wide over the earth. Standing for the Catholic faith in its fulness, and in its simplicity, the Anglican Church has today her world-wide mission to the English speaking peoples.

Reunion

And we believe that there is a mission beyond this to which God is calling her. At this moment of history the greatest and most far-reaching of all questions, the question upon which the future of the world depends, is the Reunion of the Christian Church. The Church of Christ stands before the world at this time disqualified for her Divine task, her life enfeebled, her witness weakened, her message discredited, by her own differences and divisions. Unable to speak with a corporate voice, unable to give a united testimony, she cannot meet the deep need of the world or do her true work for Christ. It is in this great cause that God has given the Anglican Church her supreme mission.

Between the differences on either side it has pleased God to set her in the middle place. She is the one Church on earth which holds the truth of both Catholicism and Protestantism. She is both Catholic and Protestant. She recognizes and holds the principles for which both these opposing groups contend, authority and liberty, corporate life and individual freedom, the Divine mission of the Church and the free access of each soul to God. It is for her to show more fully than she has yet done, by the breadth of her sympathies, and by still greater freedom in her worship, that the truth which the Catholic emphasizes and the truth which the Protestant emphasizes are not contradictory but complementary, that each truth needs the other for its own enrichment and completion, that both are needed for the full life and power of the Church of God. To the Anglican Church is given this opportunity. She alone of all the Churches has been forced to learn this lesson. God has appointed her to the work of reconciliation.

Fathers and brethren—the time has come for us to make new effort in this matter, to consider again, with loyalty to the Truth as it is in Christ, but on a new spirit of sympathy and love, the things which separate us from our fellow Christians.

Lausanne Conference

It is this which we are hoping to do at the World Conference on Faith and Order which meets next month at Lausanne. It is a hopeful thing that Christians are now coming together for conference in this spirit. But we must not expect too much from this gathering. Its scope is necessarily a limited one. It cannot, of course, arrange terms of reunion between the different Churches. Only the Churches themselves, acting through their own governing councils, could take such action. We pray that this gathering may help to prepare the way for the healing of our divisions. In what other way can differences be explained and removed except through conference? But conference alone will not bring reunion. What we all need is closer fellowship with Christ. It is nearness to Him that will bring us nearer to each other. It is a true saying that "the nearest way to any heart is round by heaven." If we were all fully converted to Christ the way to unity would soon be found. I have been urging in America, and I will repeat it here, that what we need is to realize afresh the fact of our brotherhood. We Christians are already one in Christ. Whatever our differences, we Christians are all brothers, and therein lies the sin of our divisions. We are one in the life that joins us to Christ, and, more fully than we realize, we are one also in faith. We all believe in One Lord Jesus Christ "Who for us man and for our salvation came down from heaven, and was incarnate by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary, and was made man." Roman Catholics and Anglicans, Protestants and Easterns, we are all one in this. We all believe in the Lord Christ, we all pray to Him and trust in His Divine power. We can all join in those great words of praise which have come to us from the first days of the Church on earth, and which have been lifted up here in this place through thirteen centuries. "Thou only, O Christ, with the Holy Ghost, art most high in the glory of God the Father." And this is the Christian Gospel. The Christian Religion is belief in, and fellowship with, Christ Our Divine Lord. From this all else that we believe follows. Holding this common faith in Christ the Lord, it must be possible for us, with His help, to find the way to visible fellowship and unity, not merely that waste and rivalry may cease, but that Christ Himself may be manifested, that His glory may be revealed, and His Kingdom established among men.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Brethren of the Province of York, and of the Church of England—we who dwell in the newer world ask your prayers that in the midst of the problems and difficulties which we have to meet we may bear our witness for Christ with steadfastness and truth as you have done; we rejoice with you in the great spiritual inheritance of which this anniversary speaks; we join with you in thanksgiving for "the harvest of the bygone ages, and the hope of the coming years;" we offer our prayers with yours, that God will give to the Anglican Church grace and strength and wisdom and love for the holy mission to which He has called her in the service of the whole Church of Christ.

A Thought for the Holidays

Everyone Needs the Sunshine

BY REV. G. A. STUDDERT-KENNEDY

SOME time ago, on a cold, wet day in January, when I was working in the Lancashire cotton towns, I received a letter from a friend who was in the South of France. He said that he was writing it by the sea, which was sparkling in brilliant sunshine like a diamond necklace round some fair lady's throat.

There came over me, as I read it, a longing for the sun that hurt like a drunkard's craving for a drink. I looked out of the window at the dirty mills beneath the clouds of smoke, and felt that I would give all I had to run away from this grey darkness to the sunshine and the sea.

Thousands of us have felt that craving. It is as natural as hunger or thirst, for indeed sunshine is as much a necessity for healthy human life as meat and drink. It is a necessity both for body and for mind. Living in the darkness, or semi-darkness, of an always-shadowed sun is destructive both to health and happiness.

One of the curses of our industrial civilization is the hiding of the sun. Millions of our people are starved, not from lack of food, but from lack of light. Many of our modern diseases are diseases of the darkness. It is inevitable and right that under modern conditions all sorts of people should demand and insist upon their holidays, not as a luxury, but as a necessity of life. They must get out into the sun!

Men are extraordinarily adaptable animals, and can get used to almost anything, as a soldier once said to me as he prepared to sleep in a damp and muddy shell hole beside a working battery of guns, but the one thing they never really cease to crave is a place in the sun.

I read a letter the other day from some comfortable fool complaining that the Black Country colliers and pottery workers wasted their money on charabanc trips into the country. I felt like writing to ask him if, having locked people up in hell, he grudged them an occasional day off to cool.

If you live in the sunshine it is not easy to understand the people who sit in darkness and in the shadow of bleak smoke. But I pray for the time when every factory worker will have a fortnight's holiday with pay, and will be able, with an easy mind, to run out to the sun.

We do not get too much of it in England even when there is no smoke, and often one wishes we had more. But perhaps then we would not appreciate it as we do. Sunshine never seems so glorious as when it breaks and conquers clouds and opens out a vista of the sky. I would not change the sight of an English garden glittering in the sunshine after rain, or that rich smell of drying earth as you walk along a country road, for all the bright unclouded skies of other lands.

Sometimes we are tempted to curse the great charabancs as they thunder down the country roads, but always I check the curse that rises when I remember that they are taking the people of the darkness into the light of the sun. But there are times when one does feel angry with the people.

I hate to see a lovely place all littered up with paper, bits of food, and empty cigarette packets. That does "get my goat" because it means that people do not care; they shame the sun. The ancient heathens had a feeling that when they did a dirty deed they made the sun ashamed, and it was a true feeling. The great black slums of England are a shame to the sun, and so is a lovely hillside littered up with selfish, careless people's dirt.

If you can do that sort of thing you are not worthy of your sunshine, you should go back into the dark where dirt and sloppy living do not show. You do not know how to take a holiday unless you learn to love the places where you go and treat them as you would treat the things you value most.

There are thousands and thousands of people who cannot get a holiday at all—especially children, and if you want a happy holiday, I would advise you to think to yourself, when you are counting up the cost:

"I must spare a trifle to send some kid away this summer—let's see what I can make it."

I am not begging for any particular fund—there are lots of them all over the country—but what I want you to believe is that the sunshine will be brighter and the sky a finer blue if you know that you have thought of the children of darkness and helped to give them light.

If you do that, and then find someone that you love, for people are more important than places, and you give your mind a scrubbing and clear it of all worry and imaginary fear, and run out into the sun, you will come back a better man or woman to face the longer nights and darker days. A holiday should be a time to gather happy memories, days you can recall with laughter to your friends.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

One of the secrets of happiness is the habit of collecting vivid memories, and amongst them there should always be that holiday you had in Devon, Cornwall, Blackpool, or the little country village you discovered for yourself. There is no accounting for tastes in holidays any more than in anything else, but the one thing all desire, wherever they may go, is sunshine, without and within.

I will get me down to Dorset,
To the land of yellow lanes,
To the stately churches praying
'mid the trees.
To the ancient hamlets sleeping
Thro' the years like oxen creeping,
To the white cliffs lapped by lazy summer seas.

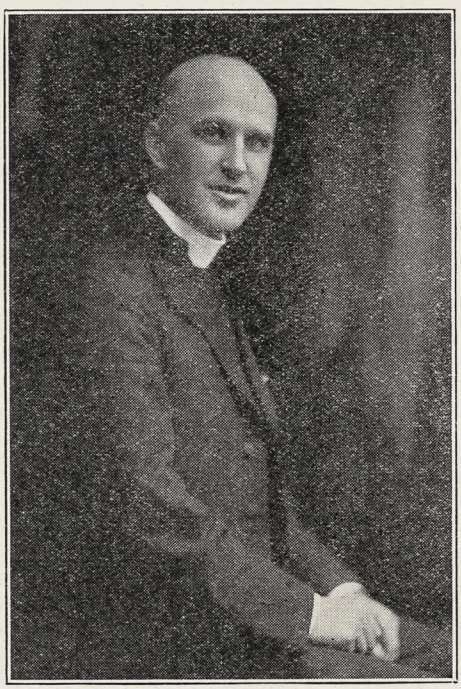
I will get me down to Dorset,
I will plunge into its Peace,
Till the healing waters close above
my head,
And I lie there dreaming, dreaming,
On the shingle's golden gleaming,
With this world of fear and fretting dim and dead.



Russian Students In Conference

Reported by
REV. THOMAS BURGESS
Secretary, Foreign-Born Americans Division

THERE are about 1,500 Russian students in our colleges throughout the United States. These young men and women are of the highest type, part of the exiled "intelligentsia," the future hope of Russia.

From June 22 to 26, about thirty-five representatives of the National Russian Students Christian Association in the United States met for conference, largely on spiritual topics, in Camp Haarlem, Conn., by a beautiful lake on the western side of the Berkshires. They were to go to our school at Lenox, Mass., but a scarlet fever outbreak prevented. Dean Ladd offered them Berkeley, but they wished a place away from the world. So the Y.M.C.A. provided this beautiful camp.

The Russian Bishop of Chicago was their Chaplain, Theophilus, humble, democratic, dignified, a true and efficient leader, deeply spiritual. He was formerly for eighteen years in San Francisco. During the first part of the Revolution he was the secretary of Patriarch Tikhon, who sent him here to help Metropolitan Platon. Dean Turkevich of the New York Cathedral was also present and his two six-foot boys, students at Dartmouth, one the senior manager of the freshman football team. From the European Russian Students Christian Association came two of its chief organizers, Professor Zenkowsky, and Dr. Kullman, men on fire with the Orthodox religion.

REV. SAMUEL MERCER
Preacher at Trinity, New York

The days were spent with conferences on religion and also on organization and spreading the work among all Russian students. The boys slept in tents; the girls in a farm house. A finer set of college students I have never seen. They enjoyed, like any collegians, the recreation periods, with games and boating on the lake, and the fun at meal times, preceded by a beautifully sung Grace. As a typical Russian method of showing their appreciation, they tossed high in the air and caught—not with a blanket, but with arms—Mr. Anderson, "Y" Secretary, who was their genial host, and also the Scandinavian cook, Mr. Anderson, who was in Russia eight years and speaks Russian like a native.

They converted the central building hall into a Russian Chapel with improvised altar and iconastasis, all decked with green boughs and masses of daisies and other wild flowers. Here on Saturday evening I stood behind the screen for the long hour offices, and on Sunday morning from 8:30 to 11:00 there was celebrated by the bishop, priest, deacon, and reader, and choir of students a wonderful Eucharist, the Divine Liturgy of St. Chrysostom. The bishop sang some parts of the service in English.

Then came breakfast and the final conference in which many told what the successful meeting had meant to them.

This conference was part of that extraordinary movement outside of Russia among the Russian "emigrés." "Circles" of students—those at the conference represented the "circles" in America—have been formed, primarily to put the students into touch with God. Young men of the best intellectual type are preparing for the priesthood in the new Russian Seminary in Paris. Famous Russian university professors, once agnostics, professional men, and some nobles of the old régime have taken Holy Orders. The Holy Spirit is working. In fact the return of the exiled "intelligentsia," purged by the fire of suffering, to their Holy Church, is one of the most striking spiritual phenomena of modern history.

When the autumn comes, our clergy and our lay people in college towns should make themselves friends of the Russian students.

Ask Me Another

The questions and answers this week are furnished by Miss Hydee Spitz of Seattle, Washington.

1. How many forms of Benediction are there in the Prayer Book?
2. Which Benediction is specified for a Bishop to use and how does it differ from the one on pages 238-239?
3. What is one difference between a Suffragan Bishop and a Bishop Coadjutor?
4. What three things denote a Bishop?
5. What is the duty of a Canon Precentor?
6. Where in the Prayer Book can one find the dates of Easter Day and all Feasts depending upon Easter?
7. If the president of the U. S. does not declare Thanksgiving Day, what day does the Church decree as the day?
8. Which is the longest and which the shortest Psalm?
9. Which Feast Day has three titles?
10. Which Psalms are read on the 31st day of the month?

It has been necessary to postpone until September, 1928, the opening of the Woman's Auxiliary house in New York. This is because it was impossible to secure the desired person to take charge this year.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Let's Know

WALDENSES

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

PETER WALDO was a French layman who lived in Lyons. We don't know very much about him except that he was a "man of reckless determination" and died before 1218 A. D.

The story goes that Waldo was deeply touched one day by the singing of a minstrel and went to some theologian asking the best way to God. The answer given him was the reply of our Lord to the rich young ruler—"Sell that thou hast, and give to the poor." Waldo took it with the utmost literalness. He gave part of his property to his wife, part of it to beggars, and threw the rest out in the street. From that time he was a begger himself.

A group of friends joined him and were known as the Poor Men of Lyons. They went out preaching, clothed in a coarse garment (and barefoot, at first), and vowed to poverty. Most of those who supported the movement were common people of little education and ill-versed in the teachings of the Gospel. This probably was the reason they were frowned on by the pope and were forbidden to preach. Nevertheless they did preach and so got themselves into a peck of trouble.

Nearly all we know of these Waldenses comes from their enemies, which makes it necessary to take their deficiencies with a grain or two of salt. The Bible was the absolute rule of their faith and practice. Novices were kept on probation until they had learned the New Testament by heart and some parts of the Old Testament as well. They roamed about in couples, preaching and teaching. They were originally forbidden to earn their bread, existing purely on charity. They fasted often and prayed much, though their prayers were limited to the Lord's Prayer because that was the only one found in the Bible. At the beginning they were thoroughgoing pacifists, but later they resorted to arms in self-defense when persecution threatened to annihilate them.

It began as a movement within the Church and might have continued so if persecution had not driven them out. Efforts were made at first to persuade them of their errors, but when such peaceable means failed, persecution followed. From France the movement crossed into Italy where it was joined up with a somewhat similar group in Lombardy. It found rapid growth in Germany and Bohemia and for a time caused quite a commotion in Spain. Persecution drove them to cover and they did their work in secret, going through the outward rites of the Church but quietly propagating their own ideas. Under the attacks of the Inquisition they were pretty well suppressed in Spain and France but in Italy they resisted all efforts aimed to their destruction. When the Reformation came on, they were a body prepared to render valuable assistance.

At last in 1848 the previous restrictions against them were removed and they were allowed civil rights in Italy. The Waldensian Church is now a recognized institution in that country and carries on a vigorous Protestant movement. They have expanded their field into South America as well as European countries and have followed the Italian immigration to the United States. In our own country they work largely in unison with some Protestant denominations and there is an American Waldensian Aid Society with headquarters in New York. Most of the extreme peculiarities which characterized them at the outset have been softened down until now they rank as a reasonably normal Protestant body which Peter Waldo himself would scarcely recognize.

DEAN CHALMERS
On Evergreen Faculty

Memorial tablets to a former rector, the Rev. William Barber Thomas, his daughter, wife, and her brother were dedicated recently in Trinity Church, Fishkill New York. The church was built in 1769 and served as a military hospital during the American Revolution and also as a meeting place for the Provincial Congress, which met on adjournment from White Plains to adopt a constitution for the state of New York.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

SOME SEMINARY TYPES

Here is a little verse, sent to us by a kind reader. It was written by G. R. Vernon of Bishop's College, Calcutta, India, and is from the Calcutta Diocesan Record:

A "Church and State" young man,
A "moderate views" young man,
A "sung celebration
Without ostentation,"
An "E. P. and lights" young man.

A "young men and boys" young man,
A "slap on the back" young man,
With pre-breakfast heartiness,
Brimful of "nartiness,"
"Cheerio chaps" young man.

A "carping old critic" young man,
A Hebrew and Greek young man,
A narrative weeding
For one correct reading,
A "textual gloss" young man.

A "hammer and tongs" young man,
A "Hell with the pope" young man,
An Anti-Tridentalist,
Non-ornamentalist,
"Simeon Trust" young man.

A "Modernist Mind" young man,
A "Dogma be damned" young man,
An "Exit Theology,
Enter Psychology,"
"Jackson and Lake" young man.

A "Gospel address" young man,
A "Moodie and Sankey" young man,
Five hymns and some prayers,
Then a social upstairs,
A "sacred duet" young man.

An "A and M" young man,
A "Stainer and Goss" young man,
A strong mid-Victorian,
Anti-Gregorian
"Dykes in E flat" young man.

A "Sarum Use" young man,
A "Dearmerite" young man,
With ancient paenulae
Instead of Casulae,
An "Alcuin Club" young man.

A "B.C.P." young man,
A "steady and safe" young man,
A "No party labels,"
"No blasphemous fables,"
"High Mattins and Stoles" young man.

A "Graham Street" young man,
A very High Church young man,
With views on birettas
And bishops' mozettas,
A "cotta and lace" young man.

A most extreme young man,
A "Peter and Paul" young man,
A Liturgiological
Roman Catholical,
"Full Western Use" young man.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE ENGLISH CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

A. MANBY LLOYD

THE Bishop of London spoke in favor of the new Prayer Book at the London Diocesan Conference at Church House, Westminster. He said that the main subject of their discussion was a motion for the acceptance of the Prayer Book presented to the House of Commons by Convocation. "When I opened the new Prayer Book in Sydney last March it was the same Prayer Book to which I had assented in July, 1926, except that a more elaborate rubric had been introduced with regard to 'reservation,' to explain the simpler word and for no other purpose whatever. But every bishop understood perfectly well in July what was particularly defined in March.

"Therefore let no one in this diocese feel that they have suffered any disability because their bishop was away. I range myself alongside of my brother bishops and await the halter or the crown, whatever it turns out to be. If we have committed a crime I am particeps criminis. And if we have done a fine thing I am not going to be done out of my halo. We have it on the authority of the Archbishop of Canterbury that there is no change of doctrine, and whoever is going over to Rome, we are absolutely certain that he is not."

The bishop added his belief that in a very short time the new book, owing to its intrinsic beauty and usefulness, would supersede the old. All that the Anglo-Catholic party had been asking for had been secured in the new book. They should unite in accepting as a gift of the Spirit a book which was at once Evangelical and Catholic.

Opposing the new book on behalf of the Evangelicals, the Vicar of Islington said he was convinced that the bishops had erred in approving it, and he was bound for conscience sake to make his protest. The book made sin less awful than it was and obscured God's plan of salvation. Eighteen hundred of the clergy of the Church felt as he did.

Prebendary Thicknesse, on behalf of the Anglo-Catholic opposition, said the new book would not bring a settlement of the difficulties. The rubrics about reservation were not acceptable. The Anglo-Catholic view was ignored.

* * *

Having failed to pay his taxes, within the stipulated time, the Rev. Gilbert Watling, vicar of St. John's, Dyson-road, Edmonton, has gone to prison for twelve weeks.

In clerical dress, he surrendered to the police. "I have no alternative. I cannot pay and so I am going to prison," he said to a reporter.

When asked what would happen at his church, he said, "I have written to the Bishop of London. I have no curate and it will be for the Bishop to find someone to take the services."

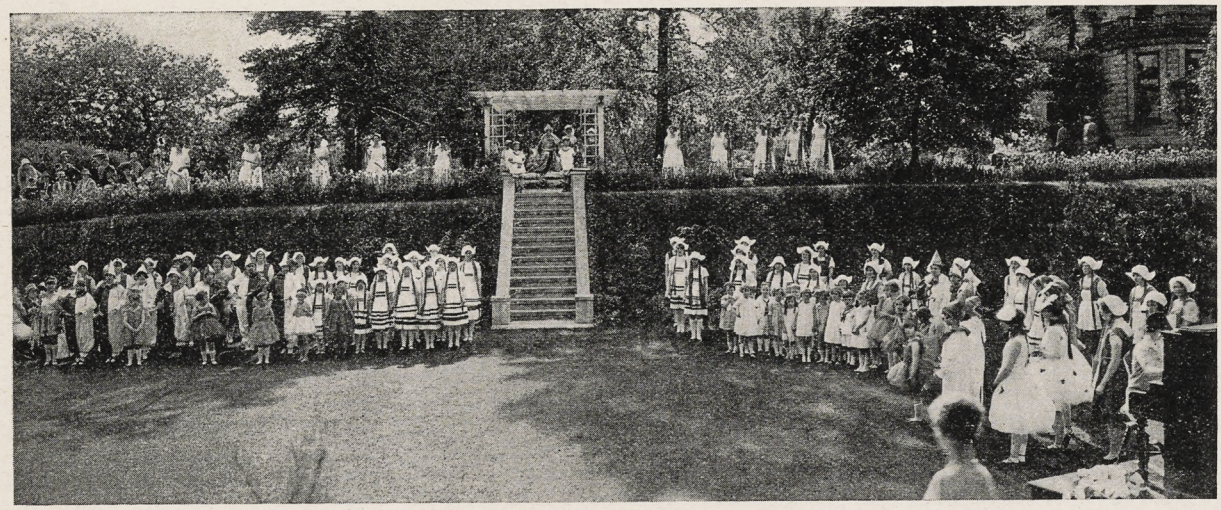
The vicar's stipend is 350 pounds a year.

* * *

Mr. Jerome K. Jerome, famous novelist and playwright, recently died. His life story was romantic. Born in 1859, the son of a clergyman, he started as a clerk, became a schoolmaster, but rebelled against routine and plunged into the more adventurous environment of the stage and journalism. He started to write humorous character sketches about forty years ago and captured London with "Idle Thoughts of an Idle Fellow." Then came "Three Men in a Boat," and with it fame. Another triumph was "The Passing of the Third Floor Back." Like all of Jerome's work the play made a sympathetic appeal to the simple emotions that everyone feels and understands.

I consider myself lucky in owning several volumes of Today, the weekly journal Jerome edited in the '90's. Its contributors were R. L. Stevenson, Pett Ridge, Barry Pain, Zangwell; while Dudley Hardy, Aubrey Beardsley and Phil May all drew for it. It attacked corrupt ministers and sham religions. But it also went bald-headed for financial humbugs. "Today was killed by a libel action brought against me," he says in his recent reminiscences, "by a company promoter whose activities my city editor had somewhat severely criticized. Each side had to pay its own costs. Mine came to 9000 pounds, my opponent's to eleven. We shook hands in the corridor. He informed me that he was going back to Leeds to strangle his solicitors and he hoped I would do the same with mine. Of course it meant selling out. Barr's friends took over the Idler and Bottomley bought most of my holdings in Today."

He had always dreamed of being an editor. His mother gave him a desk on his 6th birthday and he started a paper in partnershhip with a little old maiden aunt. His mother liked his first number, but she was sure he was meant to be a preacher rather than an editor. "It comes to the same thing," said his father. "The newspaper is going to be the new pulpit."



* * *

Only last February he was honored with the freedom of the borough of Walsall, where he was born. After signing the roll of burgesses in the town hall, he described how he had invaded London as a boy without the proverbial half-crown, but with a clockwork mouse which would not go because it had been "trodden on at a wayside station, probably Birmingham." Then he re-visited his old school where he urged the boys to practice their own judgment, to find out the paltriness of lying, and not to devote their lives to the acquisition of riches. "Getting rich," he said, "is a mug's game." Most of the things worth having—books, music, scenery, sport, a holiday with a knapsack on your back, friendship, love—are to be had for little or no expenditure of money. It was in Jerome's weekly that I first came across a young writer named H. G. Wells. The story was "The Wheels of Chance," and he has never done anything better.

* * *

The Rotarians in international convention in Ostend, after welcoming King Albert, the only king who is a Rotarian, and listening to his very fine address, plunged into the problems of international peace and goodwill, with the idea of making their contribution. The keynote was struck by Mr. Harry H. Rogers, international president, and was taken up throughout the proceedings by the other speakers. A notable extemporaneous address was given by Mr. Paul P. Harris of Chicago, who said that the meaning of the words, "On earth peace, goodwill towards men," was known to children. But children grew up, and sooner or later they met with the tragedy of misunderstanding, which was the shortest and straightest road to destruction. Understanding made for peace, misunderstanding made for war. Understanding made for prosperity, misunderstanding for poverty. The greatest resource which a nation could have was the resource of peace. Schools and colleges had been dedicated to the interests of war. Who would dedicate the first school to the interests of peace?

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THOSE in the Church who are interested in industrial affairs may well keep their eyes on the city of Passaic, New Jersey, for the next few weeks. A quiet struggle has been going on there for some months, following the bitter strike which ended last December after 16,000 workers had been out on strike for over a year. The strike was led by communists for the purpose of training workers for "the final struggle". Suffering, class hatred and bitterness resulted. In December the communist leaders, realizing that their leadership was at an end, turned over the job to the United Textile Workers, a union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and Mr. James Starr went into Passaic to "straighten out the mess". It has been a thankless job, but with the splendid cooperation of a prominent industrial engineer and other leaders in the city, much has been done toward establishing industrial peace on a union basis. The Church has made some little contribution through the Church League for Industrial Democracy which has carried on an investigation in Passaic and has arrived at facts which otherwise might never be brought to light. The immediate job is to win the workers, whose minds are still filled with the teaching of their communist strike leaders, to a constructive union policy. To that end a campaign of education is now being carried out, with mass meetings, street meetings at factory gates, and classes for the workers. An intensive organization campaign is now in full swing, with prominent national leaders in the city to aid in the drive. It opened last Sunday with a great religious service under the auspices of the Federation of Churches, when Mr. Starr preached, though it is doubtful if he would want his address called a sermon. In any case it was the first time that the churches of Passaic ever asked an honest-to-goodness labor leader to occupy a pulpit. It is also, I believe, the first time that organized labor has turned to the Church and frankly stated that we have something to contribute toward the solution of such a difficult problem. Officers of the Church League for Industrial Democracy and of the social service department of the Federal Council of Churches have been admitted to the inner councils and have been urged to aid in the directing of the campaign.

* * *

The picture above is of the May Fete held each year at St. Katharine's School, Davenport, Iowa, a Church school under the direction of the Sisters of St. Mary. It is a dance pageant given in honor of the newly crowned May queen. The program this year consisted of interpretative and folk-dances, performed mostly by individual classes. The costumes were especially designed and the perfect combination of color, music and motion, disseminated almost unconsciously the spirit of spring, and the beauty and spontaneity of young life. The school closed for the season after a most successful year with prospects for a large entering class in the fall. The school has one of the most beautiful locations in the west.

* * *

The Church of the Nativity, Brooklyn, New York, has established a free lending library for the children of the neighborhood. Good idea.

* * *

Bishop Davies of Western Massachusetts recently baptized a family in his diocese which lives ten miles from any store, twelve miles from any sort of transportation. Yet there are folks who think that all the missionary territory is in the west.

* * *

On a recent visitation to New Berlin, New York, Bishop Fiske confirmed a Presbyterian clergyman, the Rev. W. L. Benfield, the second minister of that church Bishop Fiske has received within a year. The Rev. Mr. Benfield will become a candidate for holy orders. The other minister, the Rev. W. L. Bennett, has recently been ordained, and a third Presbyterian minister, the Rev. S. A. R. Page, is soon to be ordained.

* * *

Harry Grant Mershon was ordained to the diaconate by Bishop DuMoulin, acting for Bishop Garland, in the Church of the Saviour, Philadelphia, on June 19th. Mr. Mershon, a graduate of Yale, has had a very successful pastorate in the Congregational Church. He is a member of the staff of the Church of the Saviour in charge of religious education.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

A special convocation of the District of Oklahoma met on June 30th to make preparations for the coming of the newly elected bishop, the Rev. Thomas Casady.

* * *

The District of Oklahoma have presented the Rt. Rev. E. Cecil Seaman with a sedan as a token of their appreciation for the work done for them since Bishop Thurston's resignation.

* * *

Editor Frank Wilson comes along with some advice to fishermen—it is his advice, not mine, and you can take it for what it is worth. But apparently he thinks well of it. In any case, he suggests that I somehow or other get it to President Cal, who is busily occupied using up fish worms on trout. Here it is: "I started to creep stealthily into a promising pool when a corner of the bank gave way, splashing me and my rod full length in the stream. After I had wrung myself out and emptied my boots I waded up through the same water and took four speckled beauties on my fly. Moral—when in fishing do as the fishes do. You might pass the suggestion on to Cal and tell him to throw away his worms."

* * *

The Rev. Edward S. Travers, rector of St. Peter's, St. Louis, has been the preacher for the last two Sundays at the Incarnation, New York. The Rev. F. J. Clark of the Church Missions House is to be the preacher for the remaining Sundays this month.

* * *

A tablet on granite boulder to "Dan" Emmett, composer of "Dixie," was recently unveiled at Calvary Episcopal Church, Fletcher, N. C., in the "Open Air Westminster Abbey of the South," originated by the Rev. Clarence S. McClellan, rector. This is the FIRST memorial to be erected anywhere to the composer of the South's most famous War Song. Other tablets soon to be set up at the Fletcher Church are "O. Henry," James Whitcomb Riley, Stephen Collins Foster, Christian Reid, Francis Scott Key. The Abbey calls for forty memorial tablets to great men and women identified with the South's history.

* * *

An unusual collection of relics and curiosities from Liberia are on exhibit at the Blue Mountain Summer Conference which opened at Hood College, Frederick, Md., on July 11th. The Rt. Rev. Walter H. Overs, D.D., president of the Conference, was for many years in Africa, having traveled in the interior before going to Monrovia as Bishop of Liberia. During his travels he collected many articles used by the natives of the various tribes which are seldom seen by the white men on the coast. In addition, there are the gifts made to him and his souvenirs secured while serving as bishop. Bishop Overs has arranged to bring a selected portion of his collection to the Conference and will explain them during his lectures on "The Mission of the Church," which will be one of the regular courses of the School.

* * *

The Venerable William Dorwart, archdeacon of Harrisburg, passed away in the Episcopal Hospital, Philadelphia, on June 23rd, following an operation. His ministry has been marked from the beginning by an active missionary spirit, having been in charge of wide territory, and being the founder of several churches. He was three times deputy to General Conventions, and served the diocese in various offices.

* * *

Trinity Church, Madera, California, has planned a series of Sunday night meetings beginning in October at each of which a member of some profession is to discuss the question, "What is the business in which you are engaged doing for the permanent good of the community?"

The speakers include the judge of the Superior Court, the state superintendent of schools, the county librarian, a newspaper publisher, a motion picture theatre manager, an architect, a music director of the county schools, a county home demonstration agent, the county sheriff, and Bishop Sanford to close the series. Good idea!

* * *

Rev. William T. Capers, Jr., and Rev. Samuel Orr Capers, sons of the

Whooping Cough Soon Relieved

Roche's Embrocation is the quickest relief known. Just rub it on the child's chest. At once it breaks congestion, loosens choking phlegm and then relief comes. Equally good for croup, chest colds, bronchitis.

Sold By All Druggists or

E. FOUGERA & CO., Inc., New York
W. Edwards & Sons, London, Eng., Props.

ROCHES EMBROCATION

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

St. Albans School

SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS

Diocese of Chicago

Sixty miles west of Chicago.
Five miles off the Lincoln Highway

SCHOLASTIC:	Best of preparation for college. Boys this fall will be entered at Dartmouth, M. I. T., Yale, Princeton, Columbia, St. Stephens, Hobart, Kenyon, Annapolis, University of the South, Knox, Beloit, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Lafayette, Miami and Purdue.
ATHLETIC:	Every boy has an opportunity to enter the sports — Foot Ball — Basketball — Tennis— Track — Golf — Baseball — The School for two years has had an enviable reputation.
RELIGIOUS:	Great care has been given to have a good religious atmosphere. There are few obligatory services.
HOME LIFE:	The School has been to capacity for six years. Great care has been used in the selection of boys. The group enrolled has made it possible to have a full honor system under a council and an atmosphere of an ideal home.
CONFERENCES:	The Rector will be glad to make appointments at various centers during the summer. A visit to the school would be of value. The Chicago Office is Room 1411, Tower Building, Wednesdays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Address the School for literature and information.
ENROLLMENT:	Last year boys came from Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Florida, Louisiana, Montana, Colorado, Wisconsin, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Alaska.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Bishop of West Texas, were ordained to the priesthood at a beautiful service on June 26th in Christ Church, San Antonio. They represent the fourth consecutive generation of clergymen. Their great-grandfather was a Methodist Bishop and their grandfather was Bishop of South Carolina. Bishop Capers' charge to his sons was of particular interest since he himself had been ordained by his own father.

* * *

As a result of an intensive campaign outlined by Bishop Fiske for the Bishops' Crusade in Central New York, all records for confirmations have been excelled. During the first six months of the year nearly 1500 candidates have been presented, and there are a number of supplementary classes ready for confirmation during the summer, while larger classes are expected in almost all of the parishes where regular visitations occur in the autumn and during the Advent season. For the fifteen years prior to Bishop Fiske's assuming charge of the diocese the yearly average had been 1130. His first two years showed 1755 and 1830 respectively. This year is certain to be much larger.

* * *

The property formerly occupied by the Church of St. John the Evangelist in Chicago has been sold by the diocese to the Roman Catholic Church.

* * *

The Conference of Colored Workers, Diocese of Alabama, was held at Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, June 16, the Rev. C. W. Brooks, Principal of St. Mark's School, presiding. All the colored clergy of the Diocese were present and all congregations represented. Among those who spoke were Dr. R. R. Moton, Principal of Tuskegee Institute, and Bishop McDowell.

* * *

The Woman's Auxiliary of St. James' Church Texarkana, Texas, are raising a fund with which to place a stained glass window over the altar in the new church now being built. It will be a memorial to Bishop Alexander Charles Garrett, bishop of the diocese for forty years, a presiding bishop of the Church following the death of Bishop Tuttle.

* * *

The Rev. Cyril E. Hudson of England has accepted an appointment on the faculty of the Berkeley Divinity School as lecturer on Systematic Theology for the coming year. Mr. Hudson is one of the best known of the younger theologians in England. He resigned as director of religious education in the diocese of St. Albans in accepting this appointment. He will be at Berkeley throughout the year. It is as a psychologist that Mr. Hudson is best known, his books on psychology and the Christian Life being particularly well known to American Church people.

* * *

The Rev. W. H. Tomlins, retired, commemorated the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood by celebrating in the chapel of the Church of the Holy Communion, St. Louis, on St. John the Baptist Day. Mr. Tomlins, an alumnus of St. Stephen's College, was assisted at the altar by Mr. Otto Faeber, who graduated from the same college this year.

* * *

Here is a letter about the Mississippi flood from the rector at Vicksburg, the Rev. Gordon M. Reese.

May I express through your columns my sincere thanks to the many church people who so kindly sent us boxes of clothing during the flood period.

I wish that those who contributed so splendidly could have witnessed the expressions of gratitude by those who received the clothing.

Our section is still under water and the question of a crop this year is problematical. More clothing is needed, and if any care to send in life insurance is not whether you need insurance. It is how much you can afford to pay for.

THE PROBLEM

By creating this Corporation, an effort has been made to help you solve this problem. The net rates offered to clergymen and their families and to lay-workers and their families mean either more insurance at the same cost, or the same amount of insurance for less cost.

* * *

All Inquiries Should Be Addressed to

The Church Life Insurance Corporation

14 Wall Street New York

(Operated under the supervision of the Trustees of The Church Pension Fund)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

clothing, I shall be very glad to handle same in cooperation with the Red Cross.

* * *

The Girl's Friendly Society of the Diocese of Maryland has presented to three of Maryland's rural clergymen scholarships to the summer conference at Chestertown Md., this summer. This is in line with the Church's study of the rural problem during the present season and is for the purpose of stimulating interest among the clergy in the great opportunity presented by the rural parish. The Holiday house of the Girl's Friendly Society opened for the season on July 2, and will remain open until Labor Day. The cost per week is $6.00 for members and $8.00 for non-members. This camp is situated among the forest trees on a bluff overlooking the Bush River. The G. F. S. invites those interested in camp life to spend their vacations at Camp Kemah.

* * *

The Congregation of St. Mary's Church on the Hill, Pikesville, a suburb of Baltimore, have begun the erection of a new church building which, when complete, will have cost $80,000. Of this amount $54,000 is in hand or is secured in pledges. The building is to be of early English Gothic architecture and it is the intention of the Rev. Roger A. Walke, the rector, and the building committee to make it as nearly like an English country church group as possible.

Of the group there is now standing the parish house, which was completed five years ago at a cost of $40,000. This will be connected to the church by cloister, or covered colonnade, and eventually a great square tower will be erected to dominate and unify the group. The church will be built of native stone, quarried within a mile from the edifice, the same material used in the parish house. The church is set upon the brow of a hill overlooking the historic old Reisterstown road and will be a most acceptable landmark to those who daily use this road in great numbers.

* * *

On Sunday, June 26, the opening service and dedication of the recently completed Church of the Nativity, was held in Forest Park, Baltimore, the sermon being preached by the Rt. Rev. Edward T. Helfenstein, Bishop Coadjutor of Maryland. Since the inception of the parish in June 1911, Rev. Hugh W. S. Powers has been in charge. The parish was first conceived when the Rev. Peregrine Wroth was Archdeacon of Baltimore, and the present Bishop Coadjutor was head of the Church Extension Committee. Under their direction survey of the suburban district was made and a site was secured. Under the able leadership of Mr. Powers within two years the communicant list had grown to several hundred and at the present time, which is the sixteenth anniversary, it numbers 580. In 1920 the parish became independent. During the period of growth, it has accepted and paid in full its Missionary obligations. All this has been made possible by the enthusiasm and cooperation of the parishioners. The new Church cost $170,000, and is a beautiful Gothic structure. The old place of worship will now become the parish house. At the opening service in the new church a number of memorials were dedicated, including a stone altar, a stone credence niche and an echo organ.

* * *

The Rev. Charles Clingman, rector of the Church of the Advent, Birmingham, sailed for Europe June

SAINT MARY'S

Knoxville, Illinois

An accredited college preparatory school with special department for girls in the grades. Athletics. Music. Art. Expression. Secretarial and Business courses. For catalogue write to the Rector.

FREEHOLD

MILITARY SCHOOL

For 80 Select Young Boys

A school with the personal touch. Just enough military training to inculcate habits of obedience, promptness, orderliness, cleanliness and self-reliance. The students' comforts, pleasures and sports are as carefully considered as their mental training. Healthful location. 42 miles from N. Y., 66 miles from Phila. For catalog address. MAJOR CHAS M. DUNCAN, P. O. Box W, Freehold, N. J.

SHATTUCK

A Church School for Boys

For 67 years Shattuck has been a leader among college preparatory schools in the West. It is not operated for profit. It aims to develop

High Scholarship,
Manly Character,
Christian Citizenship.

The military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall. Address The Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

"Taylor Hall, Racine, Wisconsin, from August 6th to August 27th, 1927, will be available for church people who may desire to spend their vacations on Lake Michigan. Room and board $20.00 per week. Apply to Mrs. George Biller."

SOMERSET HILLS

A Progressive Country Day and Boarding School. Primary, Intermediate and Senior Departments. Prepares for leading Secondary Schools.

Individual instruction makes rapid progress possible.

Outdoor life in the country.

Address: Rev. James H. S. Fair, Far Hills, New Jersey

JOHN M. DOYLE
MEMORIAL TABLETS
14 S. THIRD ST. PHILADELPHIA
CATALOGUE ON REQUEST

HARVARD SCHOOL

Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C. 27th year now in session. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL

Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.

Address: Secretary

ROWLAND HALL

A School for Girls in the Wasatch Mountains

Salt Lake City, Utah

BISHOP MOULTON, Rector.

NASHOTAH HOUSE

Founded in 1842

Theological Seminary and Collegiate Department

For particulars address the dean

NASHOTAH HOUSE

Nashotah, Wisconsin

SECRETARY — FOR PARISH IN N. Y. State—One trained for and experienced in Church-School work, church record maintenance and general secretarial duties. Box H, The Witness, 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago.

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 115 Franklin St., New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs, chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens. Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT

SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y. References required.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

17th on the Conte Rosso, with Mrs. Clingman and their son, Robert. He will be at the opening of the Lausanne Conference. He expects to return September 10. The Rev. Edgar R. Neff will be in charge of his parish during the summer.

* * *

Sewanee (University of the South) awarded the degree of Doctor of Civil Law to Mr. Lewis B. Franklin on June 14th.

* * *

Enclosing a gift of $2 for the Cathedral, a Japanese writes to the Bishop of New York:

"This is too little, but I wish to do so, to help your very best work in the world, and more brightful will bring to the people of this earth. I am one of the poor Japanese in this city but I wish to help to raise the fund of your divine among my friends to help Mr. Kashiwagi, who said that New York Japanese would contribute to the fund. Sure I wish to work on this best thing, as I can do my best, herewith only $2 please received. I thank that I could help."

"English is a devious tongue," says Collier's Weekly, commenting on the letter, "beset with dark ambushes for the stranger, leading him up rocky hill and down boggy dale. But for all that, it can carry a message of friendliness and good will straight to its destination."

* * *

The copper mines in Northern Michigan have had waves of population of varying nationalities ever since ore was discovered there in 1844. First British, Scotch and Irish, then Scandinavians, Italians and Finns. The parents come, their children grasp the opportunities of education, and the whole family moves on to an industrial center. From 1919 to 1922 at least 20,000 moved to cities in lower Michigan.

Archdeacon Poyseor of the Diocese of Marquette writes, "We are still pioneers and this section is the home of foreign-born immigrants of various nationalities. The 20,000 that removed from the copper country were nearly all of the second and third generation, and as such, were truly Americans, conversant with our language and social activities. These people have become assets in other dioceses. From one parish during the past year, 23 families removed to Detroit and other cities, and this is an experience that most of our parishes and missions are passing through at this time."

The Archdeacon travels in six counties "to reach those sparsely settled communities and isolated places which are, after all, the feeders to our city parishes. . . . We have no wealthy parishes; we have no large cities; we are a diocese of small towns and small cities, where men are laying foundations in business, in social life and Church life, and often under the most adverse conditions."

* * *

Something really new in Church Summer Schools is scheduled to happen in July, a series of four week-end conferences to be held by and for North Dakota Indians, with a flying squadron of faculty who are to give courses in Prayer Book, Creed, and Personal Religion at each of three missions on Standing Rock Reservation, St. James,' Cannon Ball; St. Luke's, Fort Yates; and St. Gabriel's, Red Hail; ending with a gathering from all three at St. James', Cannon Ball.

Aline Cronshey, young people's worker at Cannon Ball, is in charge, under the Bishop. The Conference is ostensibly for the Indian Young People's Fellowship, but is likely to be attended by all the Indian people within reach. Canon Lewis of New Jersey, Dr. Sutton of New York, and Archdeacon Harrington of North Dakota, a long-time friend of the In-

ST. ANNE'S Open Air School, Box W, Charlotteville, Va.
Beautiful location in far famed Blue Ridge Mountains. College preparatory and elective courses. Fully accredited by State Board of Education. Open gymnasium allows sports in the fresh air in all weather. Riding taught by expert. Music. Art. Bishop of Virginia, President of Trustees. Laura Lee Dorsey, Principal.

SAINT MARY'S HALL
Faribault, Minnesota
Episcopal school for girls, founded in 1866. Beautiful new fire-proof building, large campus, out-of-door sports, excellent academic and special training. Prepares girls for all colleges.

Hannah More
DIOCESAN SCHOOL OF MARYLAND
Founded 1832
A Country School for Girls, fifteen miles from Baltimore. College Preparatory and General Courses. Music. Art. Supervised Athletics. Terms $600 to $800.
Principal
MISS LAURA FOWLER, A. B.
Box W, Reisterstown, Maryland

- A Fixed Income for Life -
PROTECT YOUR OWN FUTURE, YET HELP CHRIST'S CAUSE
LET us tell you how Bible Annuity Bonds provide for your own material needs and also serve mankind. They pay cash dividends during the lifetime of one or two persons—and spiritual dividends forever: For they make possible the great work of carrying the Word to those who need it most.
Write for free information explaining how you can invest $100 up in this safe, Christian way.

New York Bible Society, (Dept. 33) 5 EAST 48TH STREET NEW YORK CITY

ACTS OF DEVOTION—
A book of services and prayers, compiled by an English group.
65c, postpaid.

THE WAY OF LIFE—
A book of thirteen essays by Bishop Johnson, setting forth his interpretation of Christianity.
50c postpaid.

WORKS OF STUDDERT-KENNEDY—
I BELIEVE. LIES. THE WICKET GATE.
Each book $1.60, postpaid.

WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Ave, Chicago, Ill.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — in a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

dians, are each to act as Chaplain, in turn. Bishop Tyler expects to be present part of the time. Gladys Allison of St. Mark's, Brooklyn; Gertrude Gleckner of St. John's, Elizabeth, N. J., and Miss Cronshey, all accredited N. A. T. A. teachers, are to teach ten-hour courses for credits, the Indians who complete the work satisfactorily, receiving diocesan and national certificates. Keith Cronshey of St. Peter's, Morristown, is to organize and carry out a Boy Scout Program for the summer. There will be pageants, athletics and all the regular features of Summer Conference life. The whole undertaking is really a child of the Princeton Conference, as most of the leaders are former Princeton Conference people.

Answers

1. Six, pages 16, 51, 238, 276, 280 and 553.
2. The word "upon" is used in the Benediction for the Confirmation Service which is the Benediction specified for the Bishop to use, and "amongst" is used on page 239.
3. A Suffragan Bishop does not succeed to the office of Bishop upon the death or resignation of the Bishop, but the Coadjutor becomes the Diocesan upon the death or resignation of the Bishop.
4. The Bishop's Chair, the Ring and the Pectoral Cross.
5. He has special charge of the music of the Cathedral choir.
6. Pages 26, 27.
7. The first Thursday in November. Page 24.
8. The longest is No. 119, and the shortest No. 117.
9. Christmas day, page 58.
10. Those for the 30th day, page 7.

Clerical Changes

ABBOTT, Rev. H. P. Almon, rector of Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore, is in charge of St. Andrew's, Hyannisport, Mass., for the summer.

ALLAN, Rev. T. B. A., of Sherwood Parish, Cockeysville, Maryland, has resigned to accept work in the diocese of Albany.

ASKLEY, Rev. George D., formerly of City Island, New York, has become the rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Greenport, Long Island.

BOTTS, Rev. Henry N., recently advanced to the priesthood, a graduate of Nashotah, is a member of the staff of Mt. Calvary, Baltimore.

CAPERS, Rev. William T., recent graduate of the Virginia Seminary has been placed in charge of St. Paul's, San Antonio, Texas.

CAPERS, Rev. Samuel Orr, recent graduate of Virginia Seminary has been assigned to a mission field in the valley of the Rio Grande.

McWHORTER, Rev. Gardner, of the diocese of Chicago was instituted rector of Grace Church, Pontiac, Illinois, on June 19th by Bishop Griswold.

PEPPER, Rev. Almon R., of the staff of the New York City Mission Society is temporarily in charge of the work at the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.000 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, social. or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, Pesident,
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

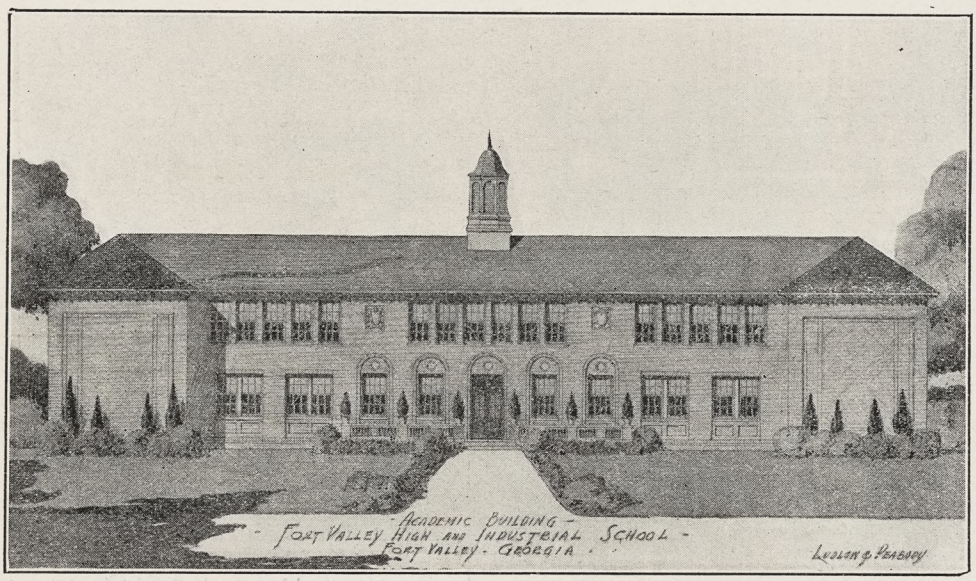
THE FORT VALLEY MESSAGE

TOLD IN THREE MINUTES

STORY OF THE FORT VALLEY HIGH AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL, Fort Valley, Ga.

H. A. HUNT, Principal

Rt. Rev. H. J. Mikell, D.D., President of Board of Trustees



An Institution of the American Church Institute for Negroes, Episcopal Church

The Fort Valley "MESSAGE" is the expression of the spirit of the Fort Valley High and Industrial School. It is a message of SACRIFICE, not only of teachers and workers in their inspiring efforts to educate the "Head, Heart, and Hand" of the children of the Black Race, but the quiet, noble devotion of the Negro parents, who deny themselves the very necessities of life that their children might learn.

It is a message of GOOD WILL, not only the spirit of brotherhood between the school and the students and their parents, but also the kindly cooperation and concord of both the whites and Negroes of the community in the fostering of the school's ideals.

It is a message of THANKSGIVING, that we are able to discern a slow but steady march by our people to a new and higher standard of living and of deepest gratitude for our staunch and far-seeing friends of both races, who have contributed of their means in the furthering of our efforts.

It is a message of HOPE, that the seeds of strength and courage be sown into heart and brain in order that we may carry on with renewed zeal this necessary task; that the Divine Light may kindle in the hearts of our true friends the realization of our pressing needs in maintaining this institution to answer the ever increasing demands.

THE NEW "DOOR OF HOPE"

A Modern School Building Now in Course of Construction by Students and Instructors in the Building Trades

Cost $100.000

Part of a $300,000 Building Program Toward Which the General Education Board Appropriates $100,000

THE FORT VALLEY "HIGHLY INDUSTRIOUS" SCHOOL

Teaches the Dignity of Labor and Respect for Law and Order

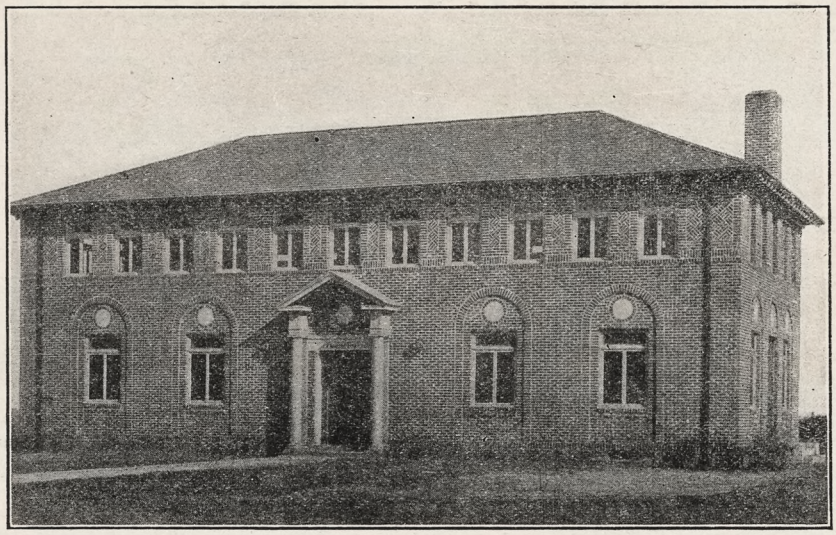
THE FORT VALLEY MESSAGE: GROWTH

Thirty years ago the Fort Valley High and Industrial school was born in an old Lodge Hall. From this humble origin has evolved the strongest Industrial School in Georgia, with a group of modern buildings located on a beautiful site of 90 acres and administered by a faculty of 30 well trained men and women.

The school is strategically situated at almost the geographical center of the largest state east of the Mississippi and is surrounded by an immediate community of over half million Negroes.



THE BEGINNING
Birthplace of The Fort Valley High and Industrial School

(Continued on next page)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE FORT VALLEY MESSAGE: INDUSTRY

(Continued from Previous Page)

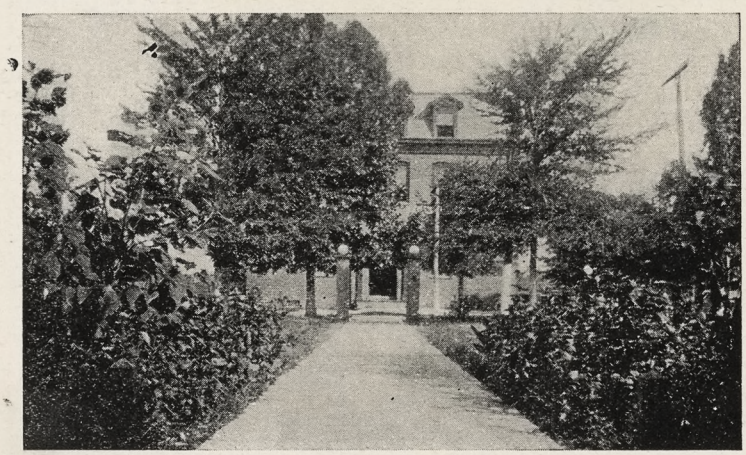
CARNEGIE LIBRARY
Only Building of Its Kind for Negroes in Middle Georgia

The school is incorporated under the laws of Georgia, enrolls over 700 students annually and through a Summer School for teachers, Farmers' Conferences, Boys' and Girls' Club Work and the activities of five extension workers, the school exerts a helpful influence on the lives of over 30,000 Negroes.

The School is privileged to give as reference, Prof. Ralph Newton, Supt. of Peach County Schools; Mr. Fort E. Land, Supt. of Schools of Georgia; The American Church Institute for Negroes, The General Education Board, The Phelps-Stokes Fund, The Rosenwald Fund. All of these agencies investigate thoroughly institutions for Negro Education.



Miss Anna T. Jeanes, founder of the famous Jeanes Fund, first became interested in the Education of Negroes through the Fort Valley School.

Under the guiding hand of the American Church Institute for Negroes, this strong school serves as a center for the dissemination of Christian ideals in the education of the Negroes of Georgia.

ROYAL C. PEABODY TRADES BUILDING

THIRTY YEARS OF PROGRESS

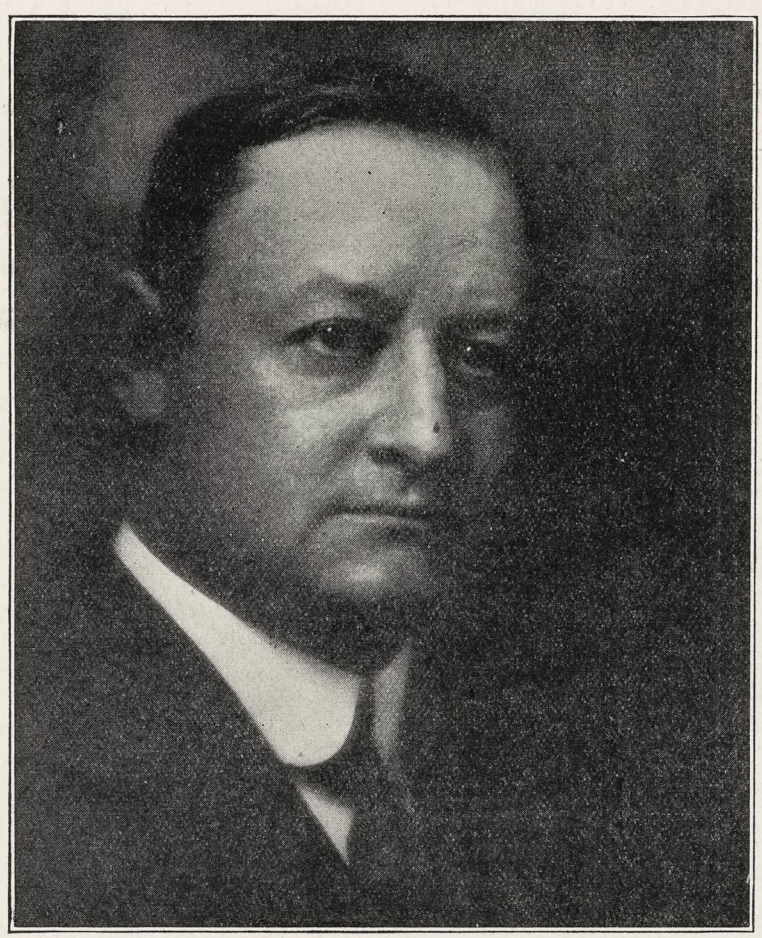
THE "DOOR OF HOPE"
Entrance to the old Boys' Dormitory Lost by Fire in 1925

An old Negro farmer once spoke of the Fort Valley High and Industrial School as "The Highly Industrious School." In living up to his name, the boys not only study grammar, and High School subjects, but are practically trained in shoemaking, carpentry, bricklaying, and farming.

The girls, too, are "highly industrious." Their class-room work is supplemented by training in laundering, cooking, sewing, basketry, weaving and general house work. While the boys are becoming producers and providers the girls are becoming home-makers and conservers.

THE FORT VALLEY MESSAGE: HOPE

1,207,000—The Negro population of Georgia
1,132,000—Combined Negro population of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, West Virginia, and all New England.



CONTRIBUTE
and strengthen the best work done for the Negro Race
See the fuller statement in regard to this work by GEORGE FOSTER PEABODY in THE WITNESS of July 7th. Write Mr. Peabody concerning the present unique opportunity.
Address Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

BEGINNING A SERIES BY BISHOP JOHNSON

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, JULY 21, 1927

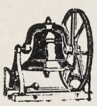
MR. MONELL SAYRE

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration



For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 697 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.

Baltimore, Md.

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir.

Altar Furnishings.

Inquiries invited and given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403) (Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts. NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J.

The Taylor Bell Foundry

LOUGHBOROUGH, ENGLAND

The World's Leading Bellfounders

CHURCH BELLS

SINGLY OR IN PEALS

CHIMES OR CARILLONS

AUTOMATIC OPERATION

Unequalled for Musical Qualities

Yale University — Birmingham, Ala.

Andover — Gloucester

Morristown — Cranbrook, Mich.

Harvard University

Germantown, Etc., Etc.

INQUIRIES SOLICITED

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings

Gorgeous Combinations of Color

Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

In Selecting a Memorial to a Loved One

what could be a happier, a more fitting thought than a living memorial of Golden-Voiced

Deagan Tower Chimes

serving through the years to keep alive the faith of those who have it, and helping, as no other means can, to re-awaken childhood reverence in those who have strayed. Write for literature. Standard Sets $6,000 and up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER

and 4 & 5 Duncannon St: Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery

Wood

Stone

Metal and

Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows

Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates on application to

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

EST. 1877

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— OFFICE AND STUDIO —

221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS · AND · BUILDERS · OF · ECCLESIASTIC · MEMORIAL · WINDOWS.

— PHOTOS, DESIGNS AND ESTIMATES UPON APPLICATION —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XI. No. 48 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE CHURCH

A Series of Four Articles

BY BISHOP JOHNSON

WHEN the Master gave the parable of the Vine, at the close of His ministry, He must have been instructing the Apostles as to the nature of His future relationship to those who were to identify themselves with Him and His kingdom.

"I am the Vine, ye are the branches."

"Abide in Me."

"Without Me ye can do nothing."

These words involve something more than a mere doctrinal agreement with His message; they involve a continuous vital relationship with His person. This parable gives an intelligible meaning to St. Paul's declaration that the Church is Christ's body, and the process of coming into Christ's Body is analogous to the operation of grafting a species of natural life into a vine of spiritual grace, having its roots in Christ's incarnate nature. It is a biological process rather than a philosophical one.

FUNDAMENTALISTS

It is strange that fundamentalists, who are such sticklers for the words of Holy Scripture, should pass by as irrelevant and immaterial the language of the New Testament regarding the Church, which is there called "the pillar and ground of truth."

It is not strange that modernists, who are inclined to think that the scheme of salvation has its source and destiny in the mental processes of the philosopher, should ignore such an obvious refutation of the theory that religion is merely a mental process.

The traditional and scriptural view of religion is that Christ became the Vine in whom personal experiences and mental processes will find their ultimate satisfaction by contact therewith. If the Church is a vine, then it is neither a mere ecclesiastical assembly nor an unrelated group of individual thinkers, but it is an organism, having its own life and its own source of fruitfulness.

"Without Him we can do nothing." It is this idea which lies at the foundation of the sacramental idea in our religion.

Christ is not only the alpha and the omega; He is also the iota and the omicron. He is the beginning and the end and the instrument of our salvation in a very real sense. He brings into our lives a vine rather than a program.

Now men cannot manufacture vines. They may cultivate them but they cannot produce them. If we cannot originate life in the earthy soil, I am very certain we cannot create it in the spiritual realm.

We must be born again; we must abide in the vine; we must produce the fruits of the spirit from a source other than that of our own creation. This is the significance of "God made flesh"; of the Church as an extension of Christ's life; of the sacraments as a means of grace.

So Christ did not found a heirarchy. He planted a vine which contained within itself the principle of growth and fruitfulness.

THE ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS

This vine once planted began to cover the whole earth, but man failed to understand its fructifying principle. The first essential element in the vine is the Life of Christ.

"Philip went down to Samaria and preached Christ unto them." He did not have a theory of the incarnation and the atonement. He preached Christ, born of the Holy Ghost and crucified for sinners. The creed is a statement in tabloid form of these facts and the fidelity with which the Church has preserved the creed is her response to Christ's final command: "Be ye witnesses unto me."

The second essential element is the sacraments which Christ instituted and which He bade Christians to observe.

These sacraments of baptism, confirmation and the Eucharist were also a part of the Church's equipment in St. Philip's message to the Samaritans. I am willing to assume that St. Philip could not explain their significance but he did recognize their obligation. This would have been involved in the whole attitude of the apostles toward anything which Christ had bidden them to do. It was obedience rather than analysis.

CONTINUITY

There was in the Church as there was in the Vine, a principle of continuity rather than one of strict conformity or uniformity. The strictest fundamentalist could not deny that the apostles were commissioned by Christ in a very definite manner. St. Philip believed that he was commissioned by the apostles.

A vine may have slips which can be detached from the stem and still preserve the life of the vine in a continuous fashion. The Church need not manifest a mechanical uniformity, or even an outward ecclesiastical solidarity in order to preserve the life of the vine. Agreement in ecclesiastical polity is not essential to the continuance of the original life.

It is this principle which the Roman Church ignored when she set forth the theory that the vine was an organism which had its roots in Rome, and that the Roman hierarchy was the sole custodian of the vine. Rome made an effort to corner the market but she never succeeded even in accomplishing that, for the Eastern branch of the Church never came under the yoke of the Roman supremacy.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The one thing that the Roman Church was not is the one thing which she claims too vociferously to be. She never was Catholic; she never has exercised the universal control that she claims. She never absorbed the Greek Church into her attempted monopoly. The one thing that never has happened is the complete submission of the whole Church to the Petrine claims.

The Greek Church has always repudiated them and the General Councils never asserted them. It was a claim foreign to the nature of an organism, but quite prevalent in human corporations.

But the Church was a vine on which men could hang things but into the essence of which men could not infuse a manufactured sap. The Petrine claims were something hung upon the vine but not indigenous to it. It smacks of human government but does not fit into divine organisms.

If the Bishop of Rome was Peter and if Peter was the chief gardener, even so he could not change the nature of a gardener into that of a creator. St. Peter could cultivate the vine; he could not refashion it. The Bishop of Rome became the dictator of Western Europe; he never became the head of the universal Church.

The whole effort is a program for the care of the vine, not a part of its essential life. It was something superimposed; not something vitally essential. But even so, vines do not cease to have life because they are monopolized. So the vine continued to grow in Western Europe and in the Orient as well, even though the Church in the Orient seemed to be externally divorced from Rome. That which God had joined together man could not force apart.

The same faith and the same sacraments continued to be administered by priests holding a lawful commission from apostolic days, even though they refused to recognize one another's orders. The hand could not say to the foot, "I have no need of thee."

So the vine continued to thrive in Western Europe regardless of its having been thus appropriated. It continued to retain its essential life. Greek and Roman priests reciting the same creed, with one microscopic exception; administering the same sacraments; going back to the same origin. The vine continued to live although it had formed into two sturdy branches which were somewhat contemptuous of one another.

The vine was continuously subject to the variations of human monarchs and sometimes of very inhuman prelates, but never changed the essential character because of the changing proprietorship which was assumed by Popes, Patriarchs and Emperors over its sturdy life.

This is the first of a series of four articles on THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE CHURCH. Others to follow are: The Anglican Branch; The American Slip; The American Vine.

ETHICAL ASPECT OF INVESTMENTS

Consistency Between Principles and Practice

BY REV. CHARLES N. LATHROP

Executive Secretary of Christian Social Service

THE Churches have a responsibility more definite than the average person or corporation in their business dealings. This is because the Churches have as their specific responsibility to hold before their own people the flaming torch of the ideal life. They must first of all use it themselves. They must apply the ideals to their own concrete activities if they are going to ask their followers to accept them. This obligation rests on Church officials investing for the Church.

I think we ought to keep clear the distinction between finance committees acting for the Church, and personal activities, as private citizens, or as representing investment houses in other investments. I do not mean to say that the private citizen has not his own responsibilities as a Christian. I mean to suggest that with the Church acting for itself through a committee, it has an absolute responsibility to carry out its own precepts.

Greater Obligation

The Churches are under obligation to go beyond the accepted average standards. The Church finance committees have therefore the obligation to be a pioneer, if they see the opportunity, in their efforts to make things better. This pioneering must be done, however, always with the realization that in their position as trustees they have no right to jeopardize either their capital or a proper income. With this limitation the financial organizations of the Church must lead all financial organizations in ideals. This is an ethical responsibility.

Up to this point, my position is simple. We admit the principle. But when it comes to practical application, the rub comes. How can a finance committee apply any ethical responsibility in investments? Granted the best will in the world, how is it practically possible to carry any ethical judgment into effect?

We must ask, first of all, what ethical deficiencies exist in the investments we are called upon to deal with? Are there any?

An Example

Criticisms of corporations cluster about the treatment of the worker. This is illustrated by the history of the Steel Report of the Interchurch Movement. This report showed, for instance, that the corporation kept people at work seven days a week, twelve hours a day. This is the most striking instance, perhaps, of outstanding criticism by a Church group of a corporation for the treatment of its workers. It was clear. It was careful in its facts. It was convincing.

Would consistency have permitted a Church organization at the period when the report appeared, to invest in the stock of the steel corporation? Would it have been right for a Church finance committee to invest in steel corporation stock when the Interchurch report was showing that labor conditions in that organization were abominable?

If we conclude that a Church corporation should not invest in stock of the U. S. Steel Corporation at the time the report of the Interchurch Movement appeared, our sole reason for such refusal to invest comes because there was an opportunity for us to know with reasonable certainty that labor conditions inside the industry were bad. It follows then that any corporation about which we get authoritative information showing unjust conditions in its labor policy, cannot receive our investments.

This is not primarily a matter of correcting an injustice. It may be that our investments are too small to have any effect one way or the other. It is a matter of morals, of actual righteousness for the Church itself as the leader and exemplar in every department of life, cannot lower its standard or demands. There may be added the possible responsibility for wide publicity, or possibly sufficient investment power to compel a satisfactory arrangement. This, however, is not the primary objective.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

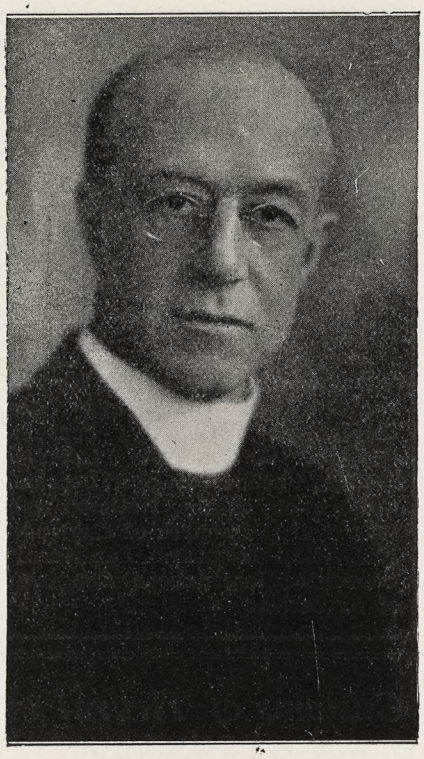
Investigation



Now take one step further. Have we the responsibility of investigation? It is certainly one thing for the Interchurch report to hand us a statement of conditions. It is quite another question whether we have a responsibility to initiate and promote an investigation for ourselves; perhaps even to compel an investigation. Even admitting that it can be done, is such a step a matter of moral obligation to a Church finance committee?

I am personally inclined to decide that such an obligation does rest upon the finance committee. Is it not undeniable that the Church has given to it as part of its responsibility the creation of a Christian society? This Christian society must respond to the attitude that our Lord exhibited in His life. His followers have as an obligation, an aggressive, continual effort to compel as far as they can, an application of His principles in every department of life. Certainly God's will fulfilled on earth as in heaven suggests a kind of society. It is equally certain that imperfect and unjust human relations in the industrial world is against the fulfillment of His Kingdom. It being your business, and mine in accord with His prayer that we say so often, to make "His Kingdom come," it is therefore our responsibility to use all the aggressive power we have, to create just conditions. Therefore, the finance committee of a Church has a responsibility to act aggressively in making such investigation as is necessary and as is within its power, to ensure the reasonable certainty of just conditions for labor in industry.

If our money is to be invested, by that fact is created an obligation to know. All admit that we ought to know enough about an investment to be sure of its safety as an investment. Is it right for a Church group to be interested in safety and not interested in human conditions in the industry, at least sufficiently to make some effort to try to get acquainted with them? There is a direct, important, heavy obligation on Church investors and pioneers in efforts for better things, to know. This obligation rests on Church officials investing for the Church.

Support Pioneers

Furthermore, we have corporations that of their own initiative are pioneering in working out better labor relations and juster labor conditions. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has succeeded in an exceedingly interesting experiment. A number of successful business men have developed very interesting methods for dealing with their workers. To be sure, most of these corporations are privately owned and are not on the market. Is there not a proper obligation on the finance committee deliberately to choose out, where it is possible, for investment, the corporations that are pioneering in any better system in the industrial world?

Rev. C. N. Lathrop

Social Industries

Again, is there not a further responsibility to invest our moneys with a very careful consideration of the difference in importance of the various industries in their contribution to the community? I suppose if one looks through the homiletic literature of the present day, he will find no subject more continually emphasized than the maintenance of the old type of the home. Many of the Churches demand that married people never use contraceptives in order to limit families. They think not only of the home, but the home with its ample fruitage of children. The Church is the one body of the community demanding the old-fashioned home with children. Not once nor twice do we hear the pronouncement as a certain fact that as the home breaks up, so the Christian faith breaks up. Your Church then creates for you a grave obligation to do your utmost to produce in the community, homes where this situation will be possible.

If clergymen will do less denunciation of divorce and marital difficulties and devote their attention to a supply of houses or apartments to be not only clean and decent, but sufficiently roomy to make possible a family with children—the required fruitage of the married life—they will be contributing to the decrease of divorce and marital difficulties. I question whether there is justice in the demand for the "old time family," while no ecclesiastical finger is lifted to plan a housing situation that makes obedience possible. Is this not a fair conclusion, then, that every Church finance committee ought to do its utmost, with proper consideration of safety, to promote home building associations, by furnishing the necessary capital, and by subscribing the necessary stock?

How to Do It

We come now to the critical problem: How can it be done? Admitting agreement with all that I have written, the problem of execution is by no means simple. Admitting that it ought to be done, how can it be done? My own experience with radicals has brought me to the recognition that many of them never made an investment; never cut a coupon; never owned even their own home; never employed anybody, never worked for anybody. They are the ones who cry for ethical changes and who have no responsibility, no sense of the difficulty on the practical side in making any change, and have nothing to lose in such a change. On the other hand, I find the investor, the financier, lethargic about any change, inclined to think that the world as it is, at least so far as business organization is concerned, is as good as sinful human beings deserve or can get. There ought to be a middle man, radical because a fearless pioneer, conservative because, while he is in motive a pioneer, he pioneers with complete consciousness of the concrete difficulties, and with all the facts clearly before him. This man I would call the Christian investor.

I present my own scheme, then, very tentatively with the feeling that the definite scheme is not at all so important as an attitude of mind on the part of Christian investors, a realization that we have a responsibility that we are not living up to today, that we are not pioneering, that we are not following an extraordinary opportunity for moral leadership; and that we are not doing all this largely because we feel timid before the greatness of the responsibility, baffled by the complexity of the problem, and because we suffer from that hook-worm disease, the lethargy of ownership.

I would have a bureau under a man of experience in industry and investments—perhaps an industrial engineer. It shall be the business of this man and his staff to make investigations in answer to any inquiry about social conditions in any industry on request from an inquirer. The investigations would be entirely factual, and the report would give only the facts. The conclusion would be left in the hands of the investor.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEED OF A BUREAU

The expense should be met by a fee for each report. I would expect many of our colleges and large foundations to begin to make use of such an expert commission. I believe an increasing number of individuals would be anxious to use it.

There are questions other than labor conditions, even deeper and more basic that need factual investigation, that have as far as I know never been studied factually. What is a just profit? What is the just relationship between profit and wages? The report of the Department of Research of the Federal Council of Churches on the Western Maryland R. R. presents an interesting question. The road was expensive to build and operate. Therefore income to pay its proper interest had to be large. Therefore the wages had to be kept at the lowest practicable standard. What was right in that condition?

Not long ago we were looking anxiously across the Atlantic at England, in the grip of a great, a terrible strike. We wondered each day which way the pendulum would swing. Would it go like Russia? The pendulum swung another way. Why? Partly because the whole subject of industry, of industrial relations, had been laid open to the sunlight of Christianity. Many strikers were Christians, members of Churches. There was a real contact between them and the rest of England in and through the Church. They and their problems had been remembered.

What is the future here in our own country? The Proletariat is the strength of communism. I believe that Communism is Anti-Christ. But I also believe that the Proletariat grows because Christians fail in their duty to deal justly with all men. It depends on Church groups more, I believe, than on any other groups, as to the future labor and capital relations in the United States. There are questions—fundamental questions—human questions—aching for consideration. I do not ask for radical action. I do not ask for acceptance of my platform, my method of action. I ask only for recognition of our own great influence, of our own great responsibility before God and the State; and action that accords with this high sense of the importance and place of Christian finance.

On the Cover

MONELL SAYRE, Harvard '97; official of the Carnegie Foundation from its establishment until 1913; The Church Pension Fund, Trustee 1913, Secretary 1913-1921, Executive Vice-President 1921; Director and Executive Vice-President, The Church Life Insurance Corporation; Director and Vice-President, The Church Hymnal Corporation; Trustee, St. Stephen's College; Vestryman, Church of the Resurrection, Park Avenue and 74th Street, New York City; Pension Advisor, the Federal Reserve System; Unofficial member, Pension Commission of the National Assembly of the Church of England, 1923-1926; Member, Permanent Committee, International Congress of Actuaries.

Customs of Tirurai in the Philippines

FAR down in the southern end of the Philippine Islands, on the island of Mindanao, there are 17,000 Tirurai, living in the mountains, south of Cotabato, in the district of Awang. Upi is the central barrio, thirty-five kilometers south of Cotabato, in a section of eight thousand hectares of excellent agricultural land, well adapted to the growing of rice, coffee and other upland crops. It is two thousand feet high, with a climate much cooler than in the lowlands.

The influence of the Jesuit missionaries of the early Spanish times did not extend as far as Upi, so this is indeed "virgin field." Certain pagan observances and beliefs make the Tirurai very responsive to our Church teachings. They have a belief in one God. They believe that they were people of Heaven who wandered away and were lost, and they expect and await a Saviour who will take them back to Heaven.

Near Cotabato is a mountain peak that resembles an over-turned boat. This is thought to have been the boat on which the Tirurai left heaven, which capsized, and they were unable to right it. The mountain is held in reverence as a sacred spot and no member of the tribe will set foot on it.

They believe that "cruel" people will be severely punished. It is "cruel" to steal from an old woman and leave her in want. Ordinarily "stealing" from some one who has plenty is not "cruel," only "bad." They believe that they have two souls, one similar to our conception of "soul," the other a soul that gives form to anything, even inanimate things. A bench, for instance has a soul. If the bench is destroyed the soul is lost. . .

Weddings are arranged by parents. The boy's parents contribute a dowry to the girl's parents, and also to several immediate relatives. This is a guarantee that he will be faithful. In the event of a separation, if the boy is to blame he receives none of this money back. If the girl is to blame it is returned. A wife has a right to ask for a separation if the husband is at fault. This differentiates them from other tribes. In such case the father will accompany the wife and they will lay the facts before some old and influential man of the district. Then a long conference will ensue, often lasting a week or ten days, while the merits of the case are being taken into account.

After the birth of each child the couple are remarried, and another dowry is given . . . Polygamy is fast disappearing among the Tirurai. The better classes acknowledge the right of the wife to object to polygamy on the part of the husband, who may not marry a second wife without the consent of the first.

The Tirurai people as a tribe do not use alcohol. They are fond of ornaments. They wear bracelets and anklets, and ear-rings that extend from one ear to the other, with strap under the chin, with pendants. The waist is tightfitting. The skirt is usually a plain bright color, yellow or cerise. Their necklaces are long, made in sections with a small gold bead of intricate design between the glass beads that form the greater part of the chain. Their ornaments are often valuable and many have been handed down from generations. The women color their lips and cheeks. They shave and pluck the eyebrows, making them a fine, thin line. . . .

They believe in purgatory. When a person dies a path is thought to open from his home to purgatory. It takes seven days to make the journey. At the end of the seven days the mourners feast in celebration of the soul's entry into the purgatory, where all Tirurai will remain until the promised Saviour comes and takes them back to the Heaven from which they have wandered away. . . They have a minute description of the trail between house and purgatory; at one place on the road a change is made from earthly clothing. The deceased is supposed to walk very slowly along the trail, with covered head. He dares not look back, for any one upon whom he looks will also die. Their judgment will consist of their passing over a bridge, under which is a cauldron of boiling water. The "cruel" ones will fall in—the others pass over in safety.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Both men and women work in the fields of necessity, so when there are young children an older one must remain at home to care for the smaller ones. The Rev. and Mrs. L. G. McAfee are planning to start a day nursery for the younger children—something absolutely unheard of among these pagan people of the Philippines. It is also believed that this unique undertaking will open the way to reach the older people, and by teaching them how to bathe, feed and care for their babies, may have a marked result on the infant mortality, now over 60 per cent. There exists a pathetic expectation that young babies will not live. It is most encouraging and amazing to see how readily these children respond to a little care. A bath and a glass of milk seems to improve them over night.

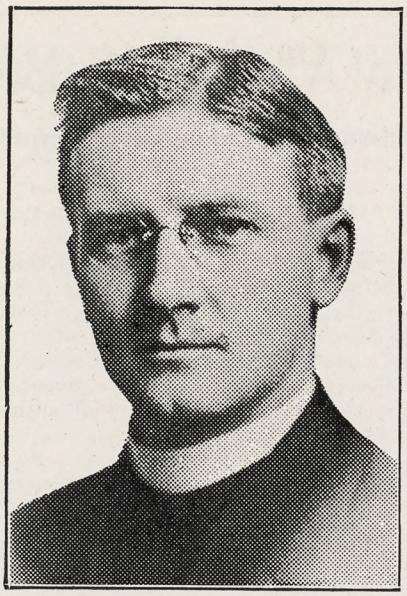
Young Peoples Column

By Rev. W. A. Jonnard

EXTRACTS
FROM CORRESPONDENCE

THE following may be interesting reading, coming as it does, from one very "high-up" in the Department of Christian Social Service, whom I know to be very much interested in young people of today, despite his seeming indifference:

"I am deeply interested in young people, and am much amused at most of the criticisms made about them. My own knowledge, unfortunately however, under my present conditions is very slight, and I would have no right to impose it on other people. I have never been able to see why young ladies should not wear short skirts or smoke cigarettes, and I question very much whether some young men get any drunker than they did in my days. If they do they must be comatose and harmless. I am also inclined to think that they are less perverted from the Christian faith. Thirty years ago, a Christian could often wake up in the morning wondering whether his religion had been entirely demolished the day before by some forward-looking scientist. I think that this danger has been more or less evaded, and that the great danger today is the Ibsenian morals.



"I think young people ought to talk to young people and I regret very much that the shadows are beginning to lie rather long toward the East as my sun begins to approach the Western horizon, so I do not see how I can help you out much.

"I object strongly to the effusions of the aged in criticism of the young, and am a great deal more interested in the criticism of the young of the aged, so I beg you to get young people to help you; and if I run across any young person who is keen on the social gospel, I shall be certain to let you know of him (or her)."

* * *

This isn't exactly apropos, but it was very feelingly and forceably inscribed by a young college girl, and deserves a place even so humble in this column.

"Nothing to eat but hash, Nothing to drink but tea,
Nothing to do but study hard, From Missions to ABC,
Nowhere to walk but the grove Nothing to dance with but girls,
Nothing to love but photographs, And nothing to 'string' but pearls.
Nothing to wear but shoes, Ugly and high and brown.
Nowhere to go but Church, Or chaperoned up to town!
Nothing to buy but fruit when we go to the little store,
Nothing but letters to read—Never a box anymore.
No one to see us but girls when we wear out pretty clothes,
No one but a St. Mary's girl could ever withstand all these woes!"

BISHOP BENNETT
Leader in Clergy Conference

The Church of the Incarnation, at Pandemai, far back in the Liberian hinterland, was consecrated by Bishop Campbell on his visit there in the spring. This is where the Rev. James Dwalu, an African, is working as priest and master of the Ramsaur Memorial School.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

Of the two words, "opinion" and "conviction," the latter is the stronger, since it binds one so firmly to certain claims that it is impossible to break away from them. If you're sure you're right, stick to it!

A woman entered a butcher's shop and said: "I want some cheese."

"Yes, miss," replied the grocer, smiling amiably; "I have some lovely cheese."

"You should not say 'lovely cheese'!" said the customer severely.

"But why not, miss? It is lovely cheese!"

"Because"—she tried to combine maidenly modesty with an air of learning—"because lovely should only be used to qualify something that is alive."

The grocer's smile broadened as he glanced at the Gorgonzola.

"Well, miss," he said, "I'll stick to 'lovely'!"

THE Wise
Rector
Encourages
His People to Be informed on the Whole
Work of the Church
Throughout the World.
He Knows that the Man or Woman
Thus Informed
Is Active Locally.

—o—

A Witness
Bundle Is the Easy and Effective Method.
Three Cents a Copy in Bundle
of Ten or More,
Payable Quarterly.
Sell Them on Sunday at the Door for a Nickel.

—o—

Order Now to Start
September First.

THE WITNESS
Quality—Brevity—Price
—and as a result—
LARGEST CIRCULATION
OF EPISCOPAL WEEKLIES

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ROMANISTS AND MASONS BATTLE IN WEST

Over Observance of Public School Week

Edited by
BISHOP W. B. STEVENS

BECAUSE it is believed that approximately 90 per cent of the alumni of American colleges graduate without possessing a substantial thinking basis relative to world physical science problems, a western college, Pomona, has announced that next fall it will offer a special course in contemporary physics for the student who knows little or nothing about the scientific world in which he lives.

* * *

The recently published journal of the diocese of California shows a total of one hundred clergymen, 12,934 communicants, 6,190 church school pupils and a total property valuation of $4,040,382.

* * *

Recent discussion between The Tidings, the official organ of the Roman Catholic diocese of Los Angeles, and The Masonic Digest, regarding the observance of Public Schools Week, has awakened reverberations within the ranks of Roman Catholics. The Tidings bitterly condemned the Masonic observance and said that Masons were trying to erect a super-government. Naturally The Masonic Digest resented this imputation.

The discussion was summarized in The Monitor of San Francisco, another Roman Catholic paper, and the following letter was received by the editors of that magazine from Robert L. McWilliams, past state advocate of the Knights of Columbus. Mr. McWilliams says:

"Burlingame, Calif.

"Editor 'The Monitor,'
"San Francisco, Calif.

"Sir: In the current number of 'The Monitor' appears what I cannot but regard as a striking example of religious intolerance in the making. You publish the article under the caption, 'Masons' Attack on Parochial Schools Lashed by 'Tidings'.' It appears that the Masonic Order in Los Angeles took the leading part in the celebration of 'Public Schools Week.' 'The Tidings' took exception on the ground that 'Public Schools Week' should be sponsored by a representative group of citizens rather than by 'a private secret organization.' Of course, what might have been expected happened. The organization attacked back sharply, and in its attack commented adversely on parochial schools. The ultimate result was but to stir up the fire of religious prejudices.

"In the same number of 'The Monitor' was published the masterly statement of Governor Smith dealing with his political and religious creed. In the course of it he said: 'I believe in the support of the public school as one of the corner stones of American Liberty.' To this, of course, every good American citizen agrees. Then why object to the celebration of Public Schools Week by the Masonic Order? Is not that organization as much entitled to lead in that particular activity as the Order of Elks to celebrate Flag Day or the Knights of Columbus to lead in the celebration of Columbus Day?

"The exception taken by 'The Tidings' can only be explained upon the theory that it saw in the activity of the Masons of Los Angeles something covert or insidious, a concealed attack on our parochial schools. There appears to have been nothing in the circumstances to justify such a construction. The fact that a certain branch of the Masonic Order in the neighboring state of Oregon may have taken an active part in the enactment of a statute designed to supress the parochial schools of that state certainly does not justify the imputation of 'The Tidings.'

"It will be recalled that it was a committee of California Masons that branded the alleged 'Knights of Columbus Oath' as palpably fraudulent and its circulation as more than unjustifiable.

"The Masonic Order would probably admit that it numbered many intolerant members within its ranks. But an equally high percentage of intolerance might easily be found in other organizations, not excluding those composed of Catholics.

"No constructive good is to be attained by bandying charges or even suggesting of intolerance on the part of the other man. A better policy would be to follow the advice of Colonel Callahan of Louisville and 'let each side muzzle its own fools.'

"Yours very truly,
"Robert L. McWilliams."

This letter brought a sharp comeback from a San Francisco attorney, Thomas C. Jordan.

"Fairfax, Marin County, Calif.
"Rev. Dr. Thos. K. Gorman,
"Editor 'Tidings,'
"Los Angeles, Calif.
"Rev. Father:

"I have just finished reading criticism of 'The Tidings' by the past state advocate of Knights of Columbus in California, as published in 'The Monitor' of this week.

"It has occurred to me that if the past state advocate was as eager and excited in his defense of God, Our Holy Mother, the Catholic Church and our priests and sisters, as he seems to be in defending his Masonic friends and the influences wielded by them, he would be doing a great deal more effectual and lasting work.

"As for the better policy referred to in the final paragraph of his letter and his authority for such a policy, Christian charity prevents me from showing the fallacy of such an argument.

"The Truth must prevail. In searching for Truth, it is always best to know who are our true friends. Let us 'smoke them out,' no matter what high official position they may sustain. To aid the state advocate in locating Truth, I enclose money order for a year's subscription to 'The Tidings.'

"More and greater power to you, Father, in your undertaking. No greater power for the good of our beloved country exists than in calling attention to the dangers surrounding her.

"Sincerely yours,
"Thomas C. Jordan."

* * *

The Church Schools of Utah held their annual presentation service on the afternoon of Whitsunday at the same hour as the Philadelphia service. Preliminary figures showed the offering to be much larger than last year. That is true throughout the Province. It is unofficially reported that the Spokane offering was nearly 200 per cent larger.

* * *

The first Church baptism, so far as is known, in Polk County, Oregon, was administered by Dr. Thomas Jenkins at the first visitation of the Bishop for confirmation at the seat of the State Normal School at Monmouth. Services are held at this important educational centre in a rented room.

* * *

Ramsay Hall, a parish hall for St. Barnabas Church, McMinnville, Oregon, was dedicated last Sunday. The presence of the Rev. H. M. Ramsay, a son of McMinnville, as well as of Judge William Ramsay in whose honor the hall is named, added to the occasion.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

SIXTY-TWO million of the 110,000,000 people of the United States have no religious offiliation, the Rt. Rev. Thomas C. Darst, D.D., Bishop of East Carolina, and chairman of the Church's national commission on evangelism, told clergymen from eighteen states at the third annual conference of the College of Preachers of Washington Cathedral.

"America is at the cross-roads," said Bishop Darst. "We are not going rapidly down hill to perdition, nor are we going up hill to an infinitely finer civilization.

"But America will go with the 62,000,000 unless the 48,000,000 get busy; unless our religion becomes a little more real with us, a flaming thing that shows the way.

"The Church has the solution to the world's problems, but in order to effect the solution, we must carry religion out into life."

Bishop Darst viewed the College of Preachers, one of the many activities of Washington Cathedral with nation-wide influence, as an endeavor, meriting commendation and support.

"I consider it one of the most significant gatherings held anywhere in the Church during the year," he said, "The possibilities of the plan are enormous. The Church is waiting for something this School of Prophets can give, and I hope the time is near when we can gather here in a permanent institution to discuss problems of Church and Parish and fit ourselves with new inspiration for service as ministers and servants of God. I believe and pray that this will come to pass, for it will fill a real need."

Bishop Darst's address was concerned with the "Follow Up of the Bishops' Crusade" and in pointing out the necessity of additional evangelistic effort on the part of the Church, he indicated problems of the nation as observed in interviews and conferences with bishops, clergy and laymen in various sections of the country during the past year.

Although, according to the speaker, Americans do not give as much thought to world problems as they should, there are, nevertheless, men who ask, "Has the Church any answer to the problems of a broken world trembling on the verge of even greater woes?"

The answer, declared Bishop Darst, is that nothing less than "a united Church can heal a broken world." "We must get together on things which have caused disagreements, together under the leadership of Jesus," he said.

MISS VIDA SCUDDER
At Wellesley Conference

The second and most important problem, in the opinion of the speaker, is the apparent indifference of the American people to religion and the assertion that only 48,000,000 people in the United States have any sort of religion was a challenge to his audience.

Bishop Darst scored the clergy for being partially responsible for this attitude. "Laymen tell me that they are not being fed when they go to church. Of course they should go to worship to partake of the blessed things God has to offer at his altar, but the fact remains that 22,000 communicants drifted away from the church during 1926. We should have found some way to tie these lives to the purpose of God."

The Church's national commission on evangelism will carry on for perhaps four years, the speaker said, providing preachers, leaders and lay workers for parishes feel the need of evangelism. The Bishops' Crusade will not have succeeded until it has reached the life of every individual, he declared.

In conclusion Bishop Darst said, "To know Him and make Him known is the thing that should follow the Bishops' Crusade, and to know Him you must follow Him, journey with Him and companion with Him."

* * *

Preaching in Grace Church, New York City, on "The Responsibility of Christians for Preventing War," the rector, the Rev. W. Russell Bowie, said: "It is right that we should not only remember the men who have given their lives in war, but that we should espouse a cause of our own which shall be great enough to justify their sacrifice. The dead have given their lives in devotion to the country in crises which they did not cause. It is the duty of us, the living, to serve our country, and the world, with that intelligent devotion which may prevent the crises that lead to the tragic waste of war. The first thing we need to do is to speak honestly as to what war is. It is easy to forget the real facts or to disguise them with rhetorical sentiment. There are those who still imagine that war means bands of music, flags fluttering on the avenues, the rhythmic thread of freshly drilled battalions—glamour and color and romance. But these things are only the shining front back of which lies war in its reality; war with its muddy trenches and its rusty wire, its long hospital corridors and its lengthening line of graves, its dirt and filth and savage destructions. At the entrance to Central Park, in this city, there stands Saint Gaudens's noble statue to General Sherman, beautiful in its art, but carrying still the old, untrue suggestion of war as a glorious thing. What did General Sherman himself say of war? Did he say, War is glory—chilvary—the thrill of a great adventure? He did not. He said, 'War is hell.' The twentieth century, even better than the nineteenth, knows that he is right. War is hell, not only because of its mad and insensate destruction of men's bodies and of the beauty which the generations patiently have built, but still more because war in its modern organization infects the spirit of whole nations with the blood lust and hatred which wherever they appear are a blight to the spirit of Christ.

"Our times call for an even more difficult patriotism than that which men have showed when they have followed their country into war. We need the patriotism whose purpose is to destroy war itself. This country might maintain its place of physical greatness among the nations through force of men and guns. It can only rise to true and immortal greatness in the heart of mankind and in the sight of God through that power of imagination and that devotion of will which shall dare to believe in the possibility of world peace, and shall give toward the building of it such effective leadership as we already know how to give in lesser things."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

A rector recently found that his copy of Plato's "Phaedo" in the original Greek had been borrowed from his library and returned. He was mystified as to which of his flock could have been interested in the book which he himself had forgotten that he owned. The borrower proved to be the wife of a Greek restaurant keeper. The rector has English books almost as high-brow as the "Phaedo," but his "hundred-per-cent - Simon-pure -Anglo-Saxons" do not borrow them. He writes to the Foreign - Born Americans Division, "Contact with the Greeks here has enriched my own ministry more than any other one factor. Keep on with your good work!"

* * *

Here's a good idea. In Western Massachusetts a Church call is made at least once in every three years upon every family, Episcopal or not, living in the rural regions of the diocese. The laymen do it, going out from the nearest parish two by two. The laymen at Lennox made close to a hundred calls in a couple of months, which is a lot when you realize the distances that must be traveled between farms. These calls are the only contact most of these families have with the Church; indeed with any outside agency.

* * *

On St. John Baptist Day, June 24th, in St. Mark's Pro-Cathedral, Grand Rapids, Mr. Seward Henry Bean was ordained to the Diaconate by the Rt. Rev. John N. McCormick, Bishop of Western Michigan. The Candidate was presented by Dean Ladd of the Berkeley Divinity School and the sermon was preached by the Rev. Henry Lewis, Rector of St. Andrew's, Ann Arbor.

The very beautiful musical Service was rendered by St. Mark's choir, of which Mr. Bean was formerly a member, and representatives of St. Paul's Church, Greenville, where Mr. Bean ministered as a lay-reader, were in attendance.

After the service, luncheon was served in the Parish House by the Campbell Fair Guild. Mr. Bean, who is a graduate of the University of Michigan and of the Berkeley Divinity School, will spend a year in one of the English universities while pursuing his theological studies.

* * *

The Rt. Rev. Ernest M. Stires, Bishop of Long Island, has accepted appointments which will keep him in his diocese nearly all summer. He has, however, closed his house in Garden City and taken his family to their summer home at Lake George. He has engagements for the Sundays of July in the eastern part of his diocese, and will be in his office part of each week for necessary diocesan business. He hopes to get in a visit to Lake George between Sundays.

* * *

The Long Island assembly of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew had a very successful meeting last Saturday afternoon at Port Washington. From two o'clock to five there was opportunity for baseball and swimming, and then a well-attended and interesting devotional meeting in the Church. The Rev. A. R. Cummings, Chaplain of the Brotherhood, led the devotions. After this the men sat down to supper in the parish hall, and after supper had the annual election of officers. Mr. Wm. F. Leggo was re-elected President, and the Rev. A. R. Cummings was re-elected Chaplain.

* * *

That Americans are finding in their own institutions the inspiration and cultural stimulus, once sought in foreign lands, is the belief of members of the staff of Washington Cathedral, who point out that every state in the union and several foreign countries were represented among the 225,000 pilgrims and worshipers visiting the Cathedral during the past year.

This widespread distribution of Cathedral visitors together with their great number, considering the fact that the structure is only partially completed, is regarded as striking indication of the nation-wide influence to be exerted by the Cathedral when as a completed edifice, standing in the nation's capital, it will both symbolize and stimulate the Christian faith of the American people.

Besides the daily services in Bethlehem Chapel and gatherings such as the College of Preachers and the

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

25,000 CHURCHES USE

OSTERMOOR CUSHIONS.

BUILT - NOT STUFFED.

Illustrated Booklet and Samples Free

Old Cushions renovated and recovered equal to new

Ostermoor & Co., Inc., Dept. C, 114 Elizabeth St., N.Y.

St. Albans School

SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS

Diocese of Chicago

Sixty miles west of Chicago.
Five miles off the Lincoln Highway

SCHOLASTIC:	Best of preparation for college. Boys this fall will be entered at Dartmouth, M. I. T., Yale, Princeton, Columbia, St. Stephens, Hobart, Kenyon, Annapolis, University of the South, Knox, Beloit, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Lafayette, Miami and Purdue.
ATHLETIC:	Every boy has an opportunity to enter the sports — Foot Ball — Basketball — Tennis— Track — Golf — Baseball — The School for two years has had an enviable reputation.
RELIGIOUS:	Great care has been given to have a good religious atmosphere. There are few obligatory services.
HOME LIFE:	The School has been to capacity for six years. Great care has been used in the selection of boys. The group enrolled has made it possible to have a full honor system under a council and an atmosphere of an ideal home.
CONFERENCES:	The Rector will be glad to make appointments at various centers during the summer. A visit to the school would be of value. The Chicago Office is Room 1411, Tower Building, Wednesdays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Address the School for literature and information.
ENROLLMENT:	Last year boys came from Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Florida, Louisiana, Montana, Colorado, Wisconsin, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Alaska.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Open Air Evensongs, which attract worshipers and participants from all sections of the country, many visitors are drawn to the Cathedral because it is the only example of 14th century Gothic architecture in America.

Schools, delegations of women's clubs, men's organizations and other groups frequently visit the Cathedral in a body. Among the groups visiting the Cathedral in recent months were the 36th annual Continental Congress of the D. A. R., headed by their National Board and the President General, Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau; the National Society of Colonial Dames; the Zonta Clubs of America; the War Mothers of New Jersey; the 4 H. clubs of the Department of Agriculture; the American Institute of Architects, and the Royal Arch Chapter of Masons of Baltimore, Md.

* * *

A scholarship at the Sewanee Summer School for Church Workers, young people's division, is the award made to Miss Katherine Wells of Laurel, Miss., who is the successful contestant for the best pageant written in the contest offered by the Committee for the Corporate Gift of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Province of Sewanee, of which Mrs. W. E. Wilson, is chairman. The contest for the Fourth Province was started in the early spring, and the decision has just been made by the judging committee of which Mrs. T. P. Waring of Georgia was chairman. Written on the six projects selected by the Woman's Auxiliary in the Advance Work of the Church's Program, the title of Miss Well's pageant is "A Song of Sixpence," and it will be presented at Sewanee during this season's summer school. Later an effort will be made to have it presented throughout the Province.

A close second to Miss Wells was Mr. Scott Keyes of Lexington, Ky., who has been given honorable mention by the judging committee. So good is Mr. Keyes' pagent, entitled, "These My Brethren," that the committee hopes to have both pageants printed under the same cover.

* * *

The latest summer church in the diocese of New Hampshire is being erected on the heights of Bear Island in Lake Winnipesaukee. The chapel is to be a memorial to the late Bishop Parker, who authorized the purchase of the site for it only a few hours before he left for New Orleans in October, 1925, to attend the General Convention from which he never returned.

There is no church of any sort in the extensive summer community where this chapel is being erected, and people of many communions are welcoming the initiative of the Episcopal Church in providing religious ministrations for all sorts and kinds of summer residents and visitors.

This chapel is being built around an old observation tower (which will be converted into the tower of the

Ask Me Another

These questions, with their answers on another page, were received anonymously. A copy of Cushioned Pews by Bishop Johnson will be sent to the author as soon as we learn who she is ("she" we judge from the handwriting).

1. Who built an altar to the Lord on Mount Ebal?
2. Who was the last of the prophets and what is the meaning of his name?
3. Where did the Transfiguration take place?
4. What is the street called on which our Lord took his last journey to torture and death?
5. What Sunday is called Refreshment Sunday?
6. Who said: "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge."?
7. What is the Benedictus?
8. What are Ember Days?
9. Where is the Bishop Tuttle Memorial House for training colored women?
10. Who is the Bishop of Shanghai?

Equipped by
American Seating Company

Emmanuel Episcopal Church, La Grange, Illinois
MARSHALL & FOX AND JOHN N. TILTON, ASSOCIATE ARCHITECTS
THE BERTRAM-GROSVENOR-GOODHUE ASSOCIATES, CONSULTING ARCHITECTS

THE ART APPEAL in carved-wood furnishings—in pulpit and pews, in chancel railings, reading desk, rood screen, or reredos, is winning the general acceptance of thoughtful church men and women of every denomination. Our designers and artisans are fully prepared to provide chancel arrangement and church furnishings which through artistic design and execution contribute to worshipful expression and atmosphere now so eagerly sought in church building in America.

American Seating Company
1024 LYTTON BUILDING · CHICAGO, ILLINOIS
NEW YORK · BOSTON

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

chapel) which has attracted visitors from all over the United States for nearly thirty years. The chapel tower will be constantly open all summer for visitors to see the wonderful outlook and they will be encouraged to use it freely. The chapel itself will also be open every day for rest, prayer and meditation.

* * *

At the memorial service for the Rev. Frederic Wyndham White in the Chapel of Our Saviour at the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane, the attendance filled the chapel to overflowing. As it seats nearly 600 people this was an eloquent tribute to the work that Chaplain White has done as the resident chaplain for the past thirteen years for the Episcopal City Mission Society in this institution.

Chaplain White's fourteen years of service here were characterized by the faithful performance of duty and unfailing kindliness to the patients and the staff of the hospital. He died on June 6 while still in active service, rounding out an active ministry of forty-two years. He became chaplain of the hospital two years before the beautiful Chapel of Our Saviour was opened for services.

This Chapel is one of the outstanding missionary undertakings of the New York Altar Guild, and is a monument to their devotion to patients in hospitals and inmates of correctional institutions, where they have generously and effectively aided the chaplains of the City Mission Society by making it possible for their ministry to be more dignified and effective.

* * *

A wireless message from Rev. John W. Chapman, head of the Church's mission in Anvik, Alaska, informs the Department of Missions that an epidemic of influenza has been raging in Anvik and the surrounding region. There have been twenty-nine deaths among the Indian people, all adults. The members of the mission staff have escaped, and the Indian children have come through with no deaths. The death of Indian parents has thrown a heavy burden upon the Anvik Mission. Dr. Chapman's message says that the mission must accept immediate responsibility for forty children. He pleads for a trained nurse to reinforce the staff, and for a house mother and assistant to fill the vacancy caused by the furlough of Miss Margaret Bartberger. He urgently needs also a layman accustomed to outdoor life and work who can assist in building and in the scores of odd jobs that have to be cared for in order to keep the buildings in repair, the wood-pile replenished and the work of the mission going forward. The addition to the mission family of a large number of orphaned children requires another building to cost $8,000, and at least $3,000 for food and other care for the children.

Bishop Rowe wires to the Department of Missions: "Anvik has my deepest sympathy. Once again I must ask all friends of Alaska to help me meet this desperate need. The Church has never failed to care for my helpless Indian people in Alaska, and I am sure it will not fail now. Dr. Chapman's forty years of service at this one post call on us for everything we can do to help him care for the people to whom he has devoted his life. His heart must be almost breaking as he sees the suffering the comparatively little money will relieve,

St. Albans The National Cathedral School For Boys

Thorough Preparation for Leading Universities. Splendid equipment, unexcelled location on Mt. St. Alban overlooking Washington. Eight years' course. Athletics for Every Boy.

Address: WILLIAM H. CHURCH
Head Master, Washington, D. C.

SAINT MARY'S
Knoxville, Illinois

An accredited college preparatory school with special department for girls in the grades. Athletics. Music. Art. Expression. Secretarial and Business courses. For catalogue write to the Rector.

FREEHOLD
MILITARY SCHOOL
For 80 Select Young Boys

A school with the personal touch. Just enough military training to inculcate habits of obedience, promptness, orderliness, cleanliness and self-reliance. The students' comforts, pleasures and sports are as carefully considered as their mental training. Healthful location. 42 miles from N. Y., 66 miles from Phila. For catalog address. MAJOR CHAS M. DUNCAN, P. O. Box W, Freehold, N. J.

SHATTUCK
A Church School for Boys

For 67 years Shattuck has been a leader among college preparatory schools in the West. It is not operated for profit. It aims to develop

High Scholarship,
Manly Character,
Christian Citizenship.

The military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall. Address The Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

"Taylor Hall, Racine, Wisconsin, from August 6th to August 27th, 1927, will be available for church people who may desire to spend their vacations on Lake Michigan. Room and board $20.00 per week. Apply to Mrs. George Biller."

SOMERSET HILLS
A Progressive Country Day and Boarding School. Primary, Intermediate and Senior Departments. Prepares for leading Secondary Schools.

Individual instruction makes rapid progress possible.
Outdoor life in the country.
Address: Rev. James H. S. Fair, Far Hills, New Jersey

MARGARET HALL
Versailles, Kentucky
In the Heart of the Blue Grass
College Preparatory School for Girls
Sara McDowell Gaither, A.B.
Principal

LORAINE
3 Ocean Parkway Ocean Grove, N. J.
FULL OCEAN VIEW
Located on one of the most Beautiful avenues in the resort at the Boardwalk.
TABLE A FEATURE
Hot and cold running water in all rooms.
Telephone: Asbury Park 5196. F. W. Rohland

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C. 27th year now in session. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

ROWLAND HALL
A School for Girls in the Wasatch Mountains
Salt Lake City, Utah
BISHOP MOULTON, Rector.

NASHOTAH HOUSE
Founded in 1842
Theological Seminary and Collegiate Department
For particulars address the dean
NASHOTAH HOUSE
Nashotah, Wisconsin

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 115 Franklin St., New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs, chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT
SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY
House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y. References required.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

and then realizes that he has not on hand even that little."

Bishop Rowe left Seattle on July 2 for Point Hope. He will have to spend the entire summer in Arctic Alaska and can not personally care for this Anvik emergency.

* * *

Armenian girls from the Church school of Holy Trinity Armenian Church, Fresno, California, made a pilgrimage to St. James' Cathedral, Fresno, to visit the school and attend the morning service of the church. The superintendent of the Armenian Sunday school suggested the idea in order to acquaint the Armenian girls with the worship of the Cathedral, and the methods of the school. The girls in the Cathedral, the teachers, clergy and the congregation cordially welcomed the opportunity for friendly contact with the Armenians.

Greeks, Armenians and other nationalities are represented in the adult education class which meets in our Cathedral parish house. The ladies of the Cathedral parish wanting to do something more personal than merely allow the use of the building, arranged with the consent of the school authorities, to serve tea occasionally after the classes, which creates an atmosphere of friendliness and also helps with conversational English. Only a few hostesses come each time as this seems to avert undue shyness on the part of the guests.

BISHOP PERRY
Sails for Unity Conference

* * *

From Kawagoe, Japan, a town of 32,000, two hours from Tokyo, Deaconess Ranson writes that opposition to the Christian Church is as intense as when she lived there eighteen years ago. She writes further, "I am very fortunate in my co-workers. Young Mr. Okumura was ordained priest last June (1926); he is very earnest and reverent. We have a daily Holy Communion at 6 a. m. I am so thankful for this, for I missed the regular devotional life most of all.

"Dr. Inagaki is still in charge, technically, and comes once or twice

ST. ANNE'S Open Air School, Box W, Charlotteville, Va.
Beautiful location in far famed Blue Ridge Mountains. College preparatory and elective courses. Fully accredited by State Board of Education. Open gymnasium allows sports in the fresh air in all weather. Riding taught by expert. Music. Art. Bishop of Virginia, President of Trustees. Laura Lee Dorsey, Principal.

SAINT MARY'S HALL
Faribault, Minnesota
Episcopal school for girls, founded in 1866. Beautiful new fire-proof building, large campus, out-of-door sports, excellent academic and special training. Prepares girls for all colleges.

Hannah More
DIOCESAN SCHOOL OF MARYLAND
Founded 1832
A Country School for Girls, fifteen miles from Baltimore. College Preparatory and General Courses. Music. Art. Supervised Athletics. Terms $600 to $800.
Principal
MISS LAURA FOWLER, A. B.
Box W, Reisterstown, Maryland

Kenyon College
GAMBIER, OHIO
Founded 1824
- - by - -
PHILANDER CHASE
First Bishop of Ohio
⌘ O ⌘
A men's college in a noble country setting, offering excellent facilities for work and attractive living; where a background of over 100 years of tradition and the present enrollment limitation of 250 contribute to the steadfast maintenance of high academic standards and educational ideals.

Samuel Mather Hall of Science
Erected 1926
A NOTABLE FEATURE OF PHYSICAL EQUIPMENT

WILLIAM FOSTER PEIRCE, D. D., L. H. D.,
President.
Address RICHARD C. LORD, Registrar.

104th YEAR BEGINS IN SEPTEMBER

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland.
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore.
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago.
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago.
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago.
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City.
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily, 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily, 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

a month. This was Mr. Okumura's desire.

"Our kindergarten has sixty-five on roll; we are refusing to take any more. Komano San is a splendid kindergartner, especially with the religious teaching. I never saw children from non-Christian homes better instructed. But the trouble is to continue it after they leave the kindergarten. We haven't been able yet to reach permanently any of the families. The mothers come to Mothers' Meetings, very occasionally to Church, and then all connection ceases when the child enters school. I am trying hardest of all now to do something by calling and to try to get them into the Church."

Deaconess Ranson and a Chinese gentleman are the only foreigners in the city and wherever they go, they command the curious attention of the whole population.

* * *

A Cabinet Minister addressed the Church Missions House staff on June 24, he being Dr. B. W. Payne, Secretary of Education in the Republic of Liberia. Dr. Payne is a native of the Mawa tribe. As a small boy he was sent by his mother to a Methodist school in Liberia and later graduated from Meharry Medical school in Nashville. Unlike most Liberians who come to this country, he returned to his own people and as doctor and educator has worked for their good for the past twenty years. He says his Government is deeply interested in doing its utmost to bear its own burdens, develop the country and train its people as Liberian citizens. Though a Methodist himself, he says the Episcopal Church has done more for the country than any other missionary agency because it has emphasized the training of native leaders and has consequently produced a large number of "preachers" and teachers.

Liberian children are sometimes betrothed before their birth. Before Dr. Payne was born, some one paid his mother three dollars to secure the future baby as a bride—and then he proved to be a boy. In his childhood among his tribe foreigners were so infrequent that he fled in terror at the sight of a man wearing clothes. He says that he is part Episcopalian because once when the head of his Methodist boarding-school had to come away she deposited all her boys with Mrs. Brierly at Cape Mount and he lived in that Episcopal Church school for nine months, reading his Prayer Book and learning his Collects.

* * *

The Rev. S. E. Carreras, a Cuban, is the missionary at Santa Cruz del Norte, Cuba, on the other end of the Island from Havana. He shares with all the other missionaries the responsibility for some 60,000

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York.
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D.
Sundays, 8 and 11 a. m.

Trinity Church, New York.
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York.
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York.
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, and 11 A. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp & Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind HOWE SCHOOL HOWE — INDIANA in a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

West Indians who have come from other islands and have been trained in the Church of England, and does what he can for them in addition to his main work, which is for the Cubans. Of this, he writes:

"Our Cuban Sunday school has an enrollment of 114 children from five years old up to twenty years . . . . The Church's influence is growing every day. We hold services from time to time at La Sierra, a place six miles from Santa Cruz, where I go on horseback up a steep hill. If we had an automobile we could hold services in other places and often. Around Santa Cruz there are half a dozen places, five to ten miles away, to which one can go by country roads. In all these the missionary cannot remain over night as there are no places where to stay. The houses of the Cuban farmer are very primitive in construction and in some the whole family sleep in one room.

"I have gone to La Sierra, San Matias and Echevveria to baptize children, but to go to those places cost round trip from $4 to $6 the automobile. The people are poor and they send for the Padre when they have three or more children to baptize. Then the parents of the different children get together in one house and meet the traveling expenses."

* * *

The Rev. Leslie W. Hallett was advanced to the priesthood at the Mission Chapel, Cass Lake, Minnesota, on the second Sunday after Trinity by Bishop Bennett.

Answers

1. Joshua.
2. Malachi. My messenger.
3. Mt. Hermon.
4. Via Dolorosa.
5. Fourth Sunday in Lent.
6. St. Stephen.
7. The song of Zacharias, father of John the Baptist.
8. Seasons of prayer for those to receive Holy Orders.
9. At St. Augustine's School, Raleigh.
10. Bishop F. R. Graves.

Clerical Changes

HADY, Rev. John Lowry, resigns as rector of St. Paul's, Doylestown, Penna., to accept the rectorship of historic Gloria Dei, (Old Swedes) Philadelphia.

POLLARD, Rev. Theophilus T., colored priest, has taken charge of St. Philip's, Jacksonville, Florida, coming from the diocese of Upper South Carolina.

SIDDERS, Rev. A. W., resigns as rector at Texarkana, Texas. Is to take a trip abroad, not accepting new work until the fall.

WAKEFIELD, Rev. Francis B., resigns at Federal Point, Florida, to take charge of St. Mark's, Palatka, Florida.

WOOD, Rev. Arthur, graduate this June of the General Seminary has accepted a curacy at All Saints', Providence, R. I.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.000 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, social. or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, Pesident,
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

The Oldest College of the Episcopal Church

Founded 1822

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE IN SEVEN YEARS?

THE ANSWER

Student body:	1919	90
	1926	250 (capacity)
Endowment:	1919	$ 675,000
	1926	$1,200,000
Tuition fee:	1919	$100 per annum
	1926	$200 per annum

(Whereas number of student body has more than doubled, income from student body has quadrupled.)

Professors' Salaries:	1919	$1,800 - $2,500
	1926	$3,500 - $4,000
Deficit:	1920	$20,000
Surplus:	1925	$ 600
Debt:	1920	$60,000
	1926	None

In addition to Hobart College for men, there is also William Smith College for women, a separate department on its own campus, where separate classes for women are taught by the Hobart Faculty. The student body at William Smith, which was less than one hundred in 1919, has now reached its capacity, one hundred fifty.

We are now on a firm, honest foundation. For two years, in 1925 and 1926, we have balanced our budget. We are looking forward to the future with a conservative but definite vision.

Because we have believed that a true college consists primarily of men rather than buildings, we have devoted the money raised so far to the building up of an efficient faculty and in equipping as completely as possible our present facilities. About $100,000 has been spent in equipment and in improving our existing property. No buildings have been added to those in use in 1919.

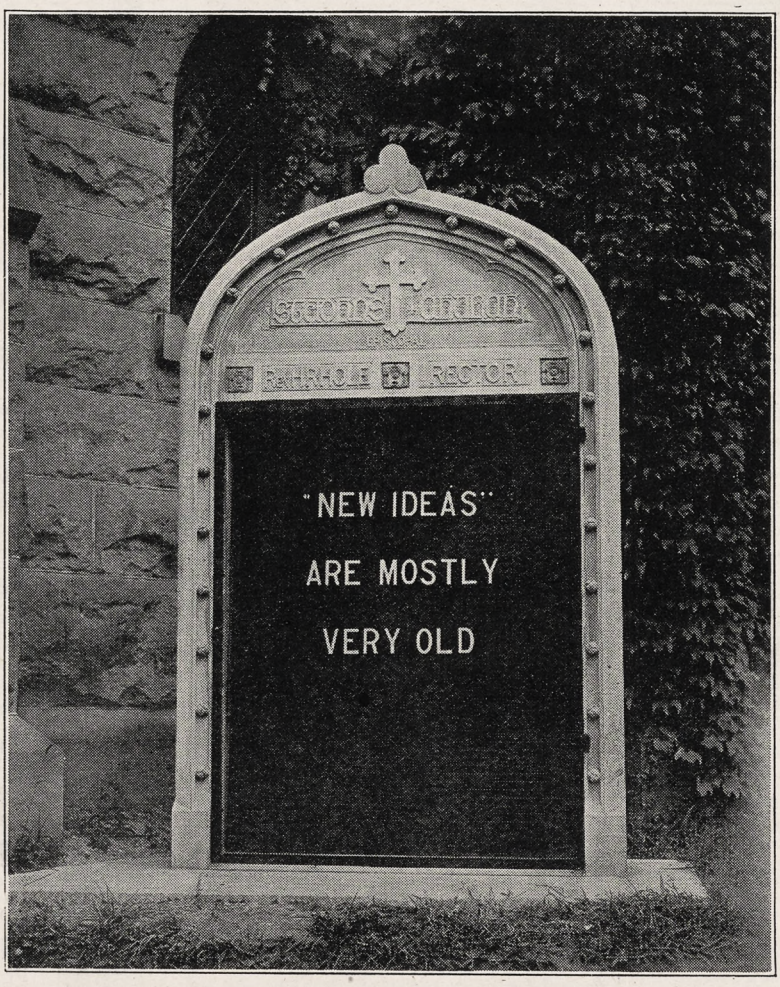
A SUMMARY OF OUR IMMEDIATE NEEDS

*Addition to Coxe Hall for Hobart Class-rooms	$ 40,000
New Heating Plant for the Hobart Gymnasium	10,000
New Reading Room for the Library	100,000
New Gymnasium for William Smith College	100,000
Total	$250,000

*Already provided for and in course of construction.

Our further needs are a new laboratory building for Physics and Chemistry to cost $250,000, and an additional endowment of one million dollars, not for expansion in number of students, but for further increase in our salaries and to provide additional instructors, so that our students may receive the best training possible.

On the strength of our past achievement, we solicit the aid and interest of Church men and women who believe that religion should have its proper place in the education of our youth.



Additional information as to our needs and purposes will be gladly furnished.

MURRAY BARTLETT,
President.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, JULY 28, 1927

A Wayside Pulpit

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration

For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 697 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co

Baltimore, Md.

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring

Inquiries given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403)
(Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders

or

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts.
NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE. N. J

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS

Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street

Designers of

HISTORICAL WINDOWS

Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.

Clerestory Windows

St. Thomas Church New York City

Stained Glass, Mural Decorations,

Glass Mosaics

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W. HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings
Gorgeous Combinations of Color
Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

The Charm of Golden-Voiced Chimes

is within reach of your church, too!

Imagine the rich, musical tones of

Deagan Tower Chimes

coming from the belfry of your church—a constant inspiration to worship; a golden voice eagerly awaited by multitudes every day. Write for plan.

Standard Sets $6,000 and Up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER

and 4 & 5 Duncannon St: Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal and
Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates on application to

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.
French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— OFFICE AND STUDIO —

221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

— PHOTOS, DESIGNS AND ESTIMATES UPON APPLICATION —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XI. No. 49 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE CHURCH

The Vine In England

BY BISHOP JOHNSON

WHEN Christ came on the earth, personal liberty was an irridescent dream, for which men were to be martyred, but which they were not destined to enjoy for many centuries.

The General Council of the Church came nearest to a free parliament of anything in which man had ever participated.

It was many centuries before men again enjoyed the freedom of speech and action which the last of these councils permitted.

The dominating temper of the Roman Emperor passed on to the Roman Pontiff, and Latin deference to authority replaced Greek freedom of thought.

Goose-Step Religion

Rome did to Greek theology exactly what she did to Greek literature. She standardized it and destroyed its grace and charm; and Western Europe was gradually regimentated into a mass formation with an ecclesiastical goose-step.

But the Vine had taken root in the British Isles, far removed from Papal domination.

When Pope Gregory sent missionaries to England about 600 A.D., they found the Vine flourishing among Celtic Christians without the mark of Roman ownership.

The island was largely populated with Pagan Saxons, whose conversion to Christianity was accomplished by Celtic and Roman missionaries, which resulted finally in a fusion under the overlordship of the Pope. But the Saxon Church drifted further and further away from this control until in the year 1000 it was a very nominal authority.

The last Saxon Archbishop Stigand, was exceedingly refractory. When William the Conqueror came into his power, he accepted the Papacy with reservations.

He would pay Peter's pence, but would not become a vassal to the Pope.

Struggle in England

In 1200 the Magna Carta declared that the English Church was free.

Succeeding monarchs assembled parliament chiefly to meet Papal aggression.

Successively the English Parliament, with the approval of the King, passed statutes aimed at foreign control of the English Church.

The Statute of Mortmain (1279) forbade the control of English estates by the Church.

The Statute of Praemuncie (1353) forbade Papal appeals, and the Statute of Provisors (1351) forbade the appointment of Italian favorites to English livings.

These things occurred under virile kings; under weak kings the abuses were enormous.

At one time (1400) more revenues went to Rome than to the royal coffers.

But we must remember that these conflicts were not in the direction of personal liberty.

It was a struggle between the crown and the tiara for control. The common people were inarticulate, but as a people they were more strongly attached to English monarchs than to Italian prelates.

It was inevitable that the King must wrest the power from the Pope before the people could take the power from the throne.

This explains why the act of supremacy shifted the control from the tiara to the crown. The people were not yet ready to exercise their power.

In the XVI century neither Luther nor Calvin dreamt of giving liberty to the common people. They themselves became the dictators of their constituency.

We cannot interpret XVI century policies in the atmosphere of our present liberties.

That was another struggle which was to follow the first.

Reformation

At that time people accepted domination as the divine right of their leaders.

Popular uprisings were unintelligible to Luther, who sided against the peasants of Germany in their revolt.

They were invariably suppressed by Pope and King and Reformer.

When England finally broke away from Papal control, first under Henry VIII, but finally and effectively under Elizabeth, the Church merely exchanged masters for the time.

In the absence of popular expression either the Pope or the King or a Dictator decided the issues of the day.

It is folly to look for popular freedom in that age.

It was a day of brute force.

Rome used force over Anglicans. Anglicans used force over the Scotch. The Puritans used force over the Quakers. The struggle was for the control of the Vine and 98 per cent of the English Clergy and people accepted English control rather than Italian.

The Reformation in England was a nationalist movement rather than a revolt against oppressive force.

But the Vine was not affected. The same faith, the same sacraments and the same ministry continued to prevail in English churches.

The Line Up

It was the bishops and abbots and deans and some of the nobles who sided with Rome. The vast majority of the Clergy and common people accepted the supremacy of the King in preferance to that of the Pope. The events which were destined to achieve human freedom were coincident with this shift in the proprietorship of the Vine in England.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

By the invention of gunpowder, the castles and armours of special privilege were doomed.

By the discovery of America, people began to have a world-wide vision which made for liberty.

By the capture of Constantinople, Greek teachers were scattered through western Europe and the invention of the printing press made universal education possible.

By the Reformation, Papal sovereignty over Western Europe was curtailed and by the supremacy of England on the high seas, English ideas replaced those of Latin origin.

But it did produce an awful muddle at the time.

There were parishes in England which retained the old mediaeval ritual and there were other parishes which discarded all ritual and adopted the barren services of Geneva.

Kings being what they were, it is not surprising that the royal head was upset and an act of uniformity grew naturally out of the act of supremacy.

Again force was summoned to compel the Vine to be pruned to an Elizabethan standard.

Like all exercise of force, it proved a boomerang and eventually impaired the royal sovereignty that it was expected to maintain.

The XVI century was no time in which to clap on a lid; the steam of personal freedom was generating too rapidly to prevent an explosion.

And so English uniformity was blown to bits and the persecution of offenders merely made the martyrs who were to germinate the sects.

But much had been accomplished and the way had been prepared, for the great experiment in the field of America, to which every branch of the historic church and every sect came, expecting to demonstrate the sovereignty of each cause and in our time accomplishing the hopeless mess of ecclesiastical chaos which nullifies the influence of Christianity and awaits the issue,—the survival of the fit.

But one thing had been accomplished at the expense of solidarity and that was the guarantee of human liberty which never would have evolved from the Ford factory of ecclesiastical or royal uniformity.

The scene now shifts to that melting pot of all religions which was eventually to become the United States of America.

The Vine has not been destroyed. It still exists in various varieties: the Roman, the Greek, the Anglican proprietorship does not alter the fact that the Vine still contains the faith, sacraments and ministry which are the marks of its continuity in the midst of the medley of religious claims which distract and paralyze our age.

The fact still remains that there is one Lord, one baptism, and one Eucharist, regardless of the ecclesiastical polities which still hope to monopolize the plant.

It is the blood of Christ in the sacrament of the altar which makes of one blood all those who conscientiously receive the same, and it is the same sacrament whether the priest who administers it be a Roman, Greek or Anglican.

ROUND ABOUT THE PARISH

The Job of the Parson

BY GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

THE PARSON who undertakes to write of his office and his work must examine his motives with the keenest scrutiny. If he finds himself writing with malice or uncharitableness, or if he writes that which brings his office into discredit and thereby distresses his brethren or the people, then he should cast away his pen and hie him to his prayers. But if with honest intent he desires to bring to his readers a more adequate knowledge of his thoughts, his trials, and his joys in the inestimable privileges of his office, then he may safely trust his words to do their errand and carry their message.

In the midst of so much misunderstanding of his office and his purpose, it is natural that he should desire, at times, to speak freely and without restraint of his work and life as he understands it.

What is his final conclusion about his office, as he meditates upon its diverse elements and as he stands apart and reflects upon his work and the kind of inner life the work developes within his heart? It is this: Could a young man know the richness of it all, could he feel the abundance of its interests and the vividness of its reality, he would forsake the meagre endeavor after selfish gain and seek the fulness of the work of the Ministry.

Its interest and its reality! Why, those are the very things the worldly man is doubtful about as he views the Parson going on his daily round.

Surely it cannot be interesting to the point of excitement to do that sort of duty! But it is. No man intent upon his fortune ever has a keener sense of a stimulating and invigorating impulse than the Parson, enthusiastic in his purposes. The result is not the same, oh no! but the chase brings zest and vigor. It is fascinating because no human concern or adventure is alien to his interest. In the variety of his work lies a charm that only variety gives. He probes into a hundred obscure byways of human life. He faces weekly a score of unforseen and absolutely new combinations on the chess-board of men's affairs. He becomes the companion and counsellor of high and low, rich and poor. He merges his personality for a time in a score of vocations and enlarges his mind by the new points of view. He contributes his portion of judgment, wisdom and skill and labor to numberless undertakings. The inspiration of his enthusiasm quickens every effort, either individual or collective, which it touches. His faith sustains tottering enterprises for the general good, and his convictions mould men's thinking by their very steadfastness.

Is it not interesting? And is it not real, too? There is no man whose life is so firmly planted four-square upon the realities as the Parson's. If you doubt it, scrape an acquaintance with one. It is not hard to do so. Let that develop into a friendship and then take his measure. You will find him no unreal idealist or impractical dreamer. I once knew a Parson whose friends discussed his probable career had he not gone into the Ministry. There was vast difference of opinion as to whether he should have become mayor of the city, president of the college, editor of the local paper, or general manager of a railroad company. He became a Godly Bishop instead and his power and influence turned many to righteousness.

The most cruelly real things in this world are sin, bereavement, poverty and loneliness. The Parson faces them all; he maintains the organizations, often amidst crushing difficulties, which ministers to those afflicted with the burden of these realities. He does it in the best way that he can, relying upon the greater realities, the things which though not seen are eternal. And best of all he does it from a conviction of the manifold privileges of such service. In other words, he does it because he wants to do it and not because he has to do it.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The young man would go into the Ministry because it gives him an opportunity for self-expression that is found very rarely in other fields of work. Many of our most desired offices demand partial men. They claim his mind that great material enterprises may be strengthened, but they care not about his heart. They claim his talents, that mighty achievements may be enriched thereby, but ignore his character. Who cares for the personal ideals of the architect if his skill and art are sufficient for a worthy and enduring building? Who cares whether the manager of a railroad be a vulgar boor, or a vicious worldling, so that trains run safely and on time?

Not so with the Parson. His is the universal profession. No unused talent can lie hid in the napkin. He undoubtedly has not all the characteristics of the average man; far from it. He has only the average assortment. But his work demands his all. If you want to feel the tug upon every little native talent you have, then become the Parson! No slightest inward grace or gift or skill but struggles for expression under the inspiring warmth of your work. Your Parish arouses every capacity for organization, your necessities stimulate every instinct for finance, your social intercourse awakens every grace of manner, your civic usefulness encourages every intelligent sympathy with movements for the general good, your friendships kindle every spark of intimate consideration for your fellows, your ideals animate you with a passion like only to that of the poet, your works of mercy impel you toward vast sympathy for human woe felt completely only by the most richly endowed, your preaching spurs you to the most vigorous intellectual activity, and your convictions inflame you and others with the highest conceptions of duty and service and God. The work demands every atom of energy, talent, grace, culture, judgment, and righteousness in your whole being.

Would you not think it worth while to live and act under such a spur? Self-expression is the crowning success and reward of life, and the opportunity for self-expression is its chief boon. A double measure of this opportunity has been bestowed upon the Parson.

Remembering this, let us examine the colors and textures of the fabric of the Parson's inner reflections. If I speak of discouragements I remember that you have them too, and then mine help me to understand yours. If I speak of annoyances, that is from the lips outward because every life must be fortified against annoyances and they disturb not the deeper flow of life's duties and compassions. The Parson is completely human. If he were not he would be a useless mortal to minister to human kind. Amidst those same outer conditions of change and trial that affect his fellows he does his daily work. But it may not be amiss for you to borrow his spectacles for a while and to look at this old world through them.

(To Be Continued)

On the Cover

THE wayside pulpit and announcement board pictured on the cover is at St. John's Church, Bedford, Indiana. It is made of Indiana Limestone, quarried in the city. The board is the work of the Winter Specialty Company of Davenport, Iowa, a firm which specializes in supplies for churches.

The Labor Sunday Message, 1927

Prepared by the Commission on the Church and Social Service of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, for use on Labor Sunday, September 4, 1927

THE CHURCH and Labor hold many common ideals. The Gospel of Jesus the Carpenter, which is the foundation of the Christian Church, rests upon the love of God, who is the Father, and the service of all men, who are brothers. The social ideals of Labor rest upon the essentially religious principles of service and sacrifice, of creative work, of brotherly friendliness, and of social justice. In the support of these common ideals, Labor and the Church stand together.

On this Sunday, devoted to the cause of Labor, it is appropriate for every Church to reaffirm its support and allegiance to the common moral issues to which both Labor and religion are committed. The Church holds that human personality is sacred, and opposes all forms of exploitation and human degradation. It protests against the employment of children of tender years in denial of their right to growth and education, and the employment of men and women for over-long periods of labor. It stands for the payment of wages sufficient both to sustain and to enhance life, the right of workers to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, and protection against unemployment and occupational accidents and diseases.

It is fitting, too, that every Church should continually affirm its belief in the application of the principles of Jesus in every industrial relation. The spirit of good-will expressed in advancing forms of industrial cooperation can reconcile the differences between management and men, and eliminate the human and material wastes of conflict. That these statements are not vague ideals, but are actual programs coming to pass, is shown by the proposals of the American Federation of Labor for cooperation with management to increase efficiency and production, and by the growing number of instances where Labor and management are actually working together for these same purposes.

Unceasing concern for the lot of the workers, their wives and children, is the inevitable expression by the Churches of that love which led Christ to turn to the multitudes and to become the passionate advocate of their welfare. The labor movement is the self-conscious organized expression of the workers' struggle for a more abundant life. It is impossible for the Church of Christ to devote itself passionately to the welfare of the masses of the people and not to have sympathetic relations with organized Labor. This does not mean that the Church should become partisan, but rather that it must fulfill the commands of Christ in expressing His intense human interest. In fact the Church has a right to expect the support of its members, in principle at least, in its efforts to lift the status of the under-privileged. In striving for the better life for them the Church finds itself touching elbows with Labor, and they together may perform a great service in the promotion of a more just and brotherly order in America.

The Minister in charge of Christ Church, Cedar Key, Florida, St. Mark's, Starke, and the Mission at Bronson, the Rev. Russell S. Carleton, finding that none of his young people would be able to attend the diocesan camp at Beacon Beach, organized his own camp, and took some fourteen boys and girls to Kingsley Lake for one week, during the month of June. The campers divided the expenses and the work of the camp and found the experience both profitable and pleasant.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Let's Know

SADDUCEES

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

THE Sadducees were hundred-per-cent reactionaries. As a party they came into existence in the second century before Christ for the particular purpose of opposing the Pharisees. They were aristocrats to the last breath. Anybody could join the Pharisees but it was only members of the aristocratic families who were welcomed into the ranks of the Sadducees. Consequently they were short in numbers but long in influence.

Their position is chiefly summed up in a series of negatives—they were against everything the Pharisees stood for. They accepted only the written law and made great sport of the religious traditions of the Pharisees; they denied the existence of angels and spirits; they denied the resurrection, immortality, the Messianic hope, and any idea of Providence. Being well fixed in this world's goods, they were quite sufficient unto themselves. Religion, to them, was a very minor consideration. They were a political party, ready to play into the hands of any political group which would let them live in comfort and security. Their only conviction seems to have been that the Pharisees were a lot of sentimental idiots. They controlled the high priestly offices while the Pharisees appealed to the common people.

The name "Sadducees" is a bit doubtful in its origin but probably was derived from the name of the high priest Zadok who dated back to King David. For a couple of centuries before our Lord's ministry they played for political control against the Pharisees—successfully, for the most part but not always so. Being thoroughly secular in their point of view, they were indifferent to the spiritual state of the nation. They used their religion as a source from which to draw arguments against the Pharisees.

That seems to be the reason our Lord found most of the opposition to His teaching coming from the Pharisees (who really had some religious convictions) but met His death only when He crossed swords with the Sadducees. As long as He confined Himself to religious teaching, the Sadducees did not care much what He said or how many people followed Him. But when He entered the Temple to cast out the money-changers, He was touching the Sadducees where they lived. For the high priests, who were of the Sadducean party, operated the system of exchange at the Temple from which they drew down considerable revenue. The Pharisees might have kept on arguing with Him on points of doctrine until they were weary but when He invaded the preserves of the Sadducees, He was quickly marked for destruction. For three years the Pharisees had gnashed their teeth against Him in futile rage but inside of a week the Sadducees brought Him to Calvary. The Sanhedrin (or Jewish Council) which condemned Him was a mixed body consisting of representatives of both parties but the Sadducees dominated it. When they turned down their thumbs, Christ was crucified. That, I think, answers the question as to why when the common people loved Him, he was put to death at the demand of the mob. The Sadducees had their crowd but I wonder how far it really represented the sentiments of the people?

With the final fall of Jerusalem and the collapse of the Jewish nation, the Sadducees had no further reason for existence. They disappeared, leaving only an evil name behind them.

About Books

OUR WONDERFUL WORLD. Emery Lewis Howe and Jean Gertrude Hutton. Abingdon Press. $1.40.

The aim of this new addition to the Weekday School Series of the Abingdon Religious Education texts is to help the child to discover that "in all things the hand of God hath wrought." Probably nine-tenths of the book is given over to the study of insect and plant life and animals and birds, all knowledge that a child has in the curriculum of the public school. The maximum time for religious education is three hours a week. Is it right to take this precious time for nature study? Build on it but do not major in it, we would say. Are we not duplicating in the child's experience what the adult has put into his life when he asserts that he worships God through nature on his Sunday hikes and on the golf course and does not need to attend public worship? It is possible to worship God through nature, but not probable. The child in his interest in the concrete and material loses sight of the spiritual and the eternal. God has been eclipsed. The tacking on of a bit of memory work is not going to make the truth vital to the child any more than a golden text used to do with the old-fashioned Sunday School lesson.

Let us do all we can to have all of God's universe speak to the child of his creator. But let the wonders of the world bring forth his praise and his thankfulness. Let the example of the ant and the spider be factors in his life, but remember that this cannot be accomplished simply by pretty stories of birds, beast, and plant life. It will only be achieved by God speaking through His church, His sacraments, His word, and the lives and teachings of his ministers.

Vera Noyes.

* * *

THE COLONIAL CHURCH IN VIRGINIA. The Rev. Edward Lewis Goodwin, D. D., Morehuse, Milwaukee, 1927.

Dr. Goodwin, the author of this book was Historiographer of the Diocese of Virginia from 1905 to his death in 1924. After his retirement from active work he set out on a task for which he has been collecting material for many years, the writing of a history of the Church in Virginia from its beginning at Jamestown in 1607 down to the present. His death cut short the work after the chapters dealing with the early days only had been written. But by using a series of lectures and papers written previously, especially some lectures on the lives of the first six bishops of Virginia, a connected and absorbing story has been produced by his daughter, Miss Mary Goodwin.

It is a thoroughly scholarly and worthwhile piece of work. The author has uncovered a lot of new source material, and has done much to overthrow the traditional theory that the English Church in the Colonies in the early days was spiritually dead.

It is a surprising thing that so little has been written on the history of the American Church—both in its early days and in more recent times. We of the church today hardly realize the important past which the church played in those first years of the American Colonies. Miss Goodwin and the Morehouse Publishing Company have done a real service in giving us this book.

C. L. Street.

* * *

THE SUPERFLUOUS MAN. Milton W. Brown. M. A., D. D. The Standard Publishing Co., Cincinnati.

This book is largely a compilation of commencement addresses delivered at various western and mid-western colleges. There is a tremendous amount of heat in it but very little light. Dr. Brown is one of those who believe that most if not all of our great universities are under the domination of a mechanistic evolutionary philosophy of life and are therefore on the high road to the damnition bow-wows. We are getting rather fed up on this sort of loose thinking. What Dr. Brown and men of his culture lack is first hand knowledge of what our universities are really teaching and the students really thinking. We agree with his conviction that Christianity not only does not stand in the way of human progress, but is its only hope. But we lost patience with him when he imagines that Wiggam and Watson are the only apostles of light and leading in the thought world today. In spite of his perfervid eloquence we are still convinced that there are thousands of intelligent and upstanding men and women coming out of our universities who have not bowed the knee to Baal.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Irvine Goddard.

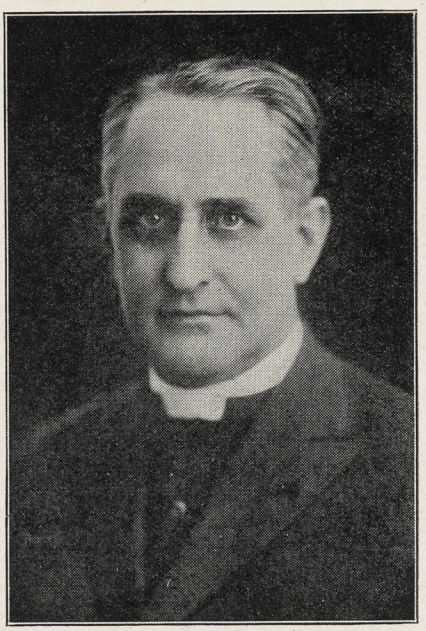
* * *

THE HOLY BIBLE AND NEW BIBLE HELPS FOR YOUNG FOLKS. Oxford University Press.

The Oxford University Press has recently published a new illustrated edition of the King James version, with an appendix of over a hundred pages devoted to a summary of bible history and an explanation of bible terms with diagrams and illustrations. There are also some 4000 questions and answers on the contents of the several books. This latter section pre-supposes a pedagogical method of doubtful value, and the illustrations are not always all that could be desired from the point of view of art. But the "helps" contain a large amount of information presented in an interesting and convenient form, and are calculated to be helpful not only in name but in fact.

The Bible Helps and the questions and Answers may be obtained in a small separate volume.

C. L. Street.



Young Peoples Column

By Rev. W. A. Jonnard

THE following resolution was passed at the Annual Convention of the Young People's Service League of the Province of Sewanee at Sewanee, Tenn.

"In view of recent discussion in the religious and secular press about 'Our Young People'—we, the members of the Young People's Service League in the Province of Sewanee, pledge to the Church through the presiding Bishop and National Council, our willingness to follow the counsel and leadership of older and wiser heads. It is our desire to uphold in every way the traditions and teachings of the Church and to do our share in the extension of Christ's Kingdom through our program of Service in the Five Fields. We wish to express our gratitude to those of the older generation who have shown interest and sympathy with the young people in the Church and especially those who have served as councillors in the Young People's Service League. We realize that the success of our organization depends in the greatest degree upon the securing of wise and prudent councillors in parish, diocese, province and national federation."

In commenting on the above resolution the Rev. Oliver J. Hart,

DR. ATWATER
Writes About the Parish

rector of one of the Tennessee churches, and one of the young people's advisors of the provincial organization, says, "When the young people themselves ask for help it is much better to given them that help than to sit on the side lines and criticise."

Such a resolution from our Southern boys and girls is one answer at least to the question "Are our young people drifting away from the Church?"

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

He is a wise person, indeed, who knows when to give attention to details and when to ignore them.

The wireless operator on a small vessel was allowed to take the wheel for a short spell. His first attempt was a poor show, and the course steered was very erratic, as shown by the wake of the vessel.

Just as a rather bad zigzag was made, the captain arrived on the bridge, scowled and remarked:

"Here, my lad, I don't mind you writing your name on the face of the ocean, but for heaven's sake don't trouble to go back to dot the 'i'."

* * *

Speakers are supposed to prove useful in instructing and entertaining. Sometimes, however, they serve a purpose for their audience which they never suspect.

His audience was so small that after talking for about half an hour the lecturer decided to wind up.

To prepare for the finish he said: "I fear, friends, I am detaining you, and so——"

There was a loud laugh from the center of the hall, and a voice yelled: "No, please go on, sir; it's still raining."

Ask Me Another

The questions and answers this week are by Miss Annis M. Tulane of St. Petersburg, Florida. A copy of Cushioned Pews has been sent to her.

1. Who wrote the Acts of the Apostles?
2. To whom was it written?
3. Which of the Evangelists were not Apostles?
4. From what mount did Our Lord ascend to heaven?
5. Where is the last mentioning of the Virgin Mary?
6. In whose house was the Upper Room?
7. What was the qualification for an apostle to take the place of Judas?
8. Who was chosen? How? By whom?
9. Name two great feasts of the Jews. With what feasts in the Church do they coincide?
10. How many were added to the Church at Pentecost?

MRS. H. E. McCURRY
President Woman's Auxiliary
St. James Church
Texarkana, Texas

"Thank You so Much for the Type of Magazine You Are Furnishing Us. Our Parish Has the Bundle Plan and We Enjoy the Copies Very Much."

—o—

Three Cents a Copy in Bundles. Sell for a Nickle.

—o—

Order Now for September.

THE WITNESS

Quality—Brevity—Price
—and as a result—
LARGEST CIRCULATION
OF EPISCOPAL WEEKLIES

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE ENGLISH CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by
A. MANBY LLOYD

THE CHURCH ASSEMBLY is now in summer session, in many respects the most momentous session yet held since the principal business is the submission by the House of Bishops of the Prayer Book measure for final approval. If no hindrances occur it is expected to come before Parliament in the autumn. There the opposition in the House of Lords will be lead, it is expected, by the Earl of Oxford and Asquith, and in the House of Commons by Lloyd George.

* * *

Here is a letter which appeared in the Daily Telegraph, written by Mr. Seton Churchill, an officer of the army, which presents the layman's confusion:

"Can any of your readers give me a clearly defined and logical reason why the bishops should continue to press on us this newly-proposed Prayer Book? Apparently it has not satisfied the enthusiastic wings on either side, and the medium party has never asked for it, as its members are quite satisfied with the existing liturgy, so far as doctrine is concerned, and do not want to see any disturbance introduced. Would not the bishops be well advised to withdraw a book in which there is so much controversial matter, and in its place to give us one enriched by some beautiful non-partisan spiritual and devotional collects and prayers suited for the special occasions, such as foreign missionary meetings, home missions, Sunday schools, children's services, harvest festivals, temperance and also purity meetings, all of a non-party nature?

Lord Halifax and the supporters of the English Church Union, the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament, the Cult of the Blessed Virgin, and other partisan organizations on that side have announced that the proposed book does not satisfy them. On the other hand the Church Association, which represents the most pronounced evangelical section of our Church, also the National Church League, which stands for the more moderate school of thought as represented by Dr. Knox, the late Bishop of Manchester, also the late Dr. Wace, Dean of Canterbury, are strongly opposed to the new Prayer Book. Can we imagine that a level-headed body of laymen in Parliament will be willing to accept a book which apparently satisfies neither of the enthusiastic wings, and which is only supported by moderate men who never asked for it, but who have voted for it in the vague hope that it will bring peace—which we now see to be hopeless. It would appear as if the bishops were riding for a fall, and are risking a nasty snub from the laymen's representatives in Parliament if they persevere in the attempt to force the book upon an unwilling laity."

* * *

The right of the "man in the pew" to form his independent judgment regarding the Revised Prayer Book was emphasized by Dr. Bertram Pollock, Bishop of Norwich. Preaching at St. Dunstan's-in-the-West at the annual service of the National Church League, Dr. Pollock said that the cry was raised, "Trust the expert; what right have ordinary folk to question the decisions of the learned about the right and the wrong in worship? Follow the direction of the doctrinal specialist as he sits in his study. Take your lead from the priest as he stands before the altar."

"This morning," said the bishop, "I am urging that the humble and devout Christian, the unprofessional Churchman, the man in the pew, is fully entitled to have his own opinion and to express it. By an instinct of 'sanctified common sense' simple people often go to the heart of a matter. I believe these inexpert worshippers can, through what Bishop Westcott called the logic of the soul, offer a judgment, well worthy to be regarded, as to whether this or that practice or teaching is able to justify itself as a part of English devotion, and has a right to claim a place in the public worship of the English Church and nation."

The new Book, he added, tended to exaggerate the outward and to desert the inward. "Specially," he said, "look at the service of the Holy Communion; the maintenance of the one service subjectively touches, to my thinking, a deeper truth of unity, a deeper spirit of fellowship, than the provision of two liturgies expected to conciliate two parties ranged externally into two outward schools. The compromise which you are aware that I have steadily pressed in regard to the new Prayer Book would exclude what I regard as the error of two services of Holy Communion and the dangers connected with Reservation."

* * *

The Church came in for abuse, along with medical men, at a recent meeting of a society whose purpose is to end vivisection. The question was raised as to the necessity of directing the work of the society so as to win the help of the Church, whereupon one of the learned members arose and said, "Personally I do not care a brass button about the Church. I do not think it is worth troubling about. In England it is at a terrible discount. In any great reform the Church never leads, any more than medical men do. Reforms have always been forced upon them from the outside. Therefore it is no good whatever troubling ourselves about the Church. We have got to get at the heart of the public. Then the Church and the medical men will tumble into their canoes and go with the stream, saying that that was exactly what they had believed all of the time."

* * *

The suggestion that we shall soon be travelling towards a pagan London is made by General Bramwell Booth in a letter to Salvation Army subscribers. The General writes: "All who think about this great collection of communities (London) must be deeply concerned by the mere possibility of a city of 10,000,000 with little recognition of God. We shall soon be moving towards a pagan London. Take as an illustration the difficulty of accommodation. There is one district with over half a million population, where the total accommodation of all places of worship is, I am credibly informed, less than 40,000." General Booth adds that in new districts provision is made for cinemas, dance halls, and public-houses, but very little for the service of God.

The Bishop of London agreed, when seen by a Press representative, that the danger was serious, but said that in his diocese they had been awake to the need of churches. "We have," he said, "built a church for every 10,000 of the population. In fact, the Church of England has built 260 churches in the last fifty years, and if we are backed up and have sufficient funds we shall continue to do so."

The Rev. William McCormick, of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, did not agree that there were any signs of approaching paganism.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

A TEN DAY demonstration for organized labor, which began with a prayer meeting and ended with a benediction, has just been held in the city of Passaic, New Jersey. Prominent labor leaders of the country have been telling three large audiences each day of the virtues of organization. There was nothing unusual in the addresses, even those of the more outstanding speakers, but the fact that this labor demonstration, with bands and bunting, was financed by a Church group is something new in American life.

Passaic and neighboring cities have been in a state of chronic strife for years, with recurring mass strikes and their aftermaths of bitterness and hatred. The Church League for Industrial Democracy, through its secretary, gave several months to a careful study of the situation and then cast in its lot with the unionists who are trying to build a constructive labor movement there. This ten day demonstration, directed by the heads of the United Textile Workers, the Workers Educational Bureau, and the Church League for Industrial Democracy was an intensive educational campaign on the benefits which unionism will bring not only to the workers but to the manufacturers and the community as well.

It is too soon to set down results but it is possible to say that the city has been aroused, and laboring men and women have found new evidence for faith in the Church. The campaign started with a great religious service in one of the city's churches, with hymns by trained choirs, prayers by doctors of divinity, and a "sermon" by Mr. James Starr, labor leader, in which he said:

"The whole tendency of the human race has been toward organization and co-operation. In this era of modern life no enterprise or worthy cause is launched or undertaken until there is established a unit of organization and organized effort. This tendency collectively to do things which were undertaken in the early stages of civilization by individuals, separate and standing alone, is nothing more than the exercise of a moral and legitimate right. No group of society organized for the purpose of accomplishing a definite and trustworthy purpose can, with any degree of fairness, challenge the right of any other group to do likewise.

"The oldest and greatest organization formed for the betterment of human kind is the religious organization represented by religion and the churches. It is significant that these organizations were formed by groups of people yearning for a good institution and the opportunity to develop the spiritual part of their lives.

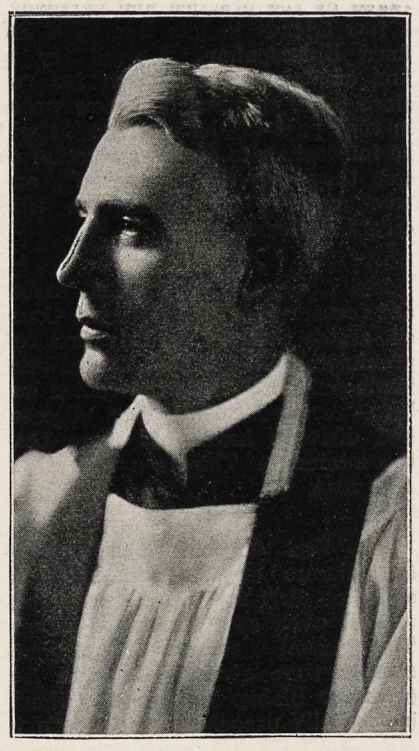
"The story of the organization of the Christian religion is a beautiful one. It tells of the appeal which the Great Leader made to the fishermen of Galilee. He taught among the laborers, and, working with them, he found His disciples. They were humble adoring followers, and they were inspired by the common purpose and the common ideal of Christianity as He expounded them.

"In accepting the teachings of Christ, the Church becomes the champion of the weak and the oppressed.

"It ministers to the spiritual need of its people and succors and sustains the unfortunate in the hours of death and tribulation. It concerns itself with all spiritual, social and moral problems.

"There can be no great separation between the material, the moral and the spiritual welfare of the mass of people.

"A proper solution of our econnomic and social problems means advancement in the spiritual welfare of the people. The individual and collective rights of all the people must be recognized and respected if peace and good-will is to be established and preserved. Men and women cannot improve morally and spiritually without time and opportunity.



"The interest the church is manifesting in industrial problems is highly appreciated and sincerely welcomed. This moral influence is of great value. We need more of the influence of the church and the spirit of brotherhood and good-will. Let us strive together, the church and organized labor, in making the lives of the people brighter and better, in bringing both material and spiritual blessings into their lives and into their homes.

"As the representative of organized labor, I present to you some of the outstanding reasons why there must be understanding between the church and organized labor.

1. They are both of the people; the masses of the common people.
2. Both are idealistic in character and are founded upon the innermost feelings of the heart and mind.
3. They both seek to promote the moral spiritual and cultural welfare of the people.
4. Both organizations are seeking to find the solution of social and industrial problems.
5. Both are endeavoring to raise the standard of living and the standard of citizenship."

* * *

Among the other speakers during the ten days were Mr. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, Mr. Hugh Frayne, representative of the A. F. of L. in New York City; Mr. Matthew Woll, vice-president of the A. F. of L.; Mr. Thomas Burke, president of the paper makers union; Mr. A. J. Muste, director of Brookwood Labor College; Dr. Norman Thomas, director of the League for Industrial Democracy; Miss Suzanne Brandeis, daughter of Justice Brandeis; Mr. Spencer Miller, director of the Workers Educational Bureau; Mr. Powers Hapgood, member of the miners union, and the secretary of

BISHOP JUHAN
Tells of Y. P. F. Conference

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

the Church League for Industrial Democracy.

While the Protestant Churches gave their endorsement through the opening union service, the Roman Catholics gave official endorsement through a letter from the Rev. John A. Duffy, administrator of the diocese of Newark, which was read in all of their churches on July 10th. The two daily papers of Passaic carried front page stories of the meetings each day.

* * *

Several subscribers, having read here a paragraph on the Federal Council's report on the Sacco-Vanzetti case, have written to ask if I consider the two men innocent. It is the opinion of a number of prominent lawyers and public men who have gone over the case thoroughly that the two men sentenced to die in Massachusetts for murder are innocent of the crime. They are guilty of having used their minds during the war days which was a sufficient crime in those days (when they were sentenced) to deserve most any sort of punishment that a star-spangled jury cared to hand out. I consider them martyrs just as we all now revere as heroes men and women who died several hundred years ago for ideas that the world has finally caught up with.

* * *

Believe it or not there has been received at this office documentary evidence for the existence of a body of Christians called REFINED EPISCOPALIANS. Subscriber Jellyman of Christ Church, Chicago, sent in the tale and the proof, without comment. I am therefore left to guess as to the founding of the sect, and your guess is as likely as not better than mine. First of all it is safe to say that it started neither in Boston or New York. Episcopalians in those cities, during the decades, have developed a refinement which is so finished that there have been complaints about it. I heard a tale this past winter of a man known among friends as a gentleman, being so pained by the refinement of a Church group that he considered founding a sect of "Roughneck" Episcopalians. Instead of doing so he moved West. This story leads me to the guess that this new sect had its beginning somewhere in the neighborhood of Chicago. Even there members of our Church carry but one gun, but it is quite possible that some immigrant to the city, accustomed to the quiet of Boston or New York, was outraged by the practice and persuaded a few friends to join him as a Refined Episcopalian. I shall try to find out more about them for you since I am planning on a few weeks in that part of the country. It will be interesting to discover whether or not they use the broad "a", and whether they have their tea with cream or lemon.

* * *

Mr. Charles A. Tompkins, assistant treasurer of the National Council, states that up to July first approximately 90 per cent of the minimum amount due on the quotas had been received. Forty-four dioceses and districts have paid more than the minimum. This is a record for July first.

* * *

The first summer conference of the diocese of Western Michigan ended on July 9th after a most successful week at Kalamazoo College. The usual summer conference courses were given, with such lecturers as Bishop McCormick (who is incidentally preaching this month in New York), Dean Jackson of Grand Rapids, Archdeacon Vercoe of the diocese of W. Michigan, Rev. W. G. Studwell of Battle Creek, Misses Vera Gardner and Helen Stevens of Grand Rapids, Rev. Gordon Reese, who by the reports made a great hit by supplying the animation (you see I really am improving on that slang about which there have been complaints), with special evening lectures by several ladies, a bishop or two and a few college presidents.

* * *

Racine Conference closed July 8th. My goodness so many of these conferences to write about. Well, registration, 170. Special preachers: Bishop Griswold of Chicago, Rev. Frank Gavin, a very human seminary professor from the General, Rev. Alfred Newberry, whom you will be glad to hear has finally cut out work for a short vacation, and Dean Hutchinson of Milwaukee. Dean Chalmers gave the sunset addresses and the Rev. H. L. Bowen of Chicago the noonday

Quick Relief for Croup and Whooping Cough

Just try Roche's Embrocation and see the quick relief it brings. No nauseous medicine to upset the child's stomach. Just rub it on the chest. Almost instantly it loosens the choking phlegm and breaks congestion. Used with finest results since 1802. Ends chest colds and bronchitis also.

Sold By All Druggists or

E. FOUGERA & CO., Inc., New York
W. Edwards & Sons, London, Eng., Props.

ROCHE'S EMBROCATION

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

♦ ♦ ♦

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

♦ ♦ ♦

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

St. Albans School

SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS

Diocese of Chicago

Sixty miles west of Chicago.
Five miles off the Lincoln Highway

SCHOLASTIC:	Best of preparation for college. Boys this fall will be entered at Dartmouth, M. I. T., Yale, Princeton, Columbia, St. Stephens, Hobart, Kenyon, Annapolis, University of the South, Knox, Beloit, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Lafayette, Miami and Purdue.
ATHLETIC:	Every boy has an opportunity to enter the sports — Foot Ball — Basketball — Tennis— Track — Golf — Baseball — The School for two years has had an enviable reputation.
RELIGIOUS:	Great care has been given to have a good religious atmosphere. There are few obligatory services.
HOME LIFE:	The School has been to capacity for six years. Great care has been used in the selection of boys. The group enrolled has made it possible to have a full honor system under a council and an atmosphere of an ideal home.
CONFERENCES:	The Rector will be glad to make appointments at various centers during the summer. A visit to the school would be of value. The Chicago Office is Room 1411, Tower Building, Wednesdays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Address the School for literature and information.
ENROLLMENT:	Last year boys came from Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Florida, Louisiana, Montana, Colorado, Wisconsin, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Alaska.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

lectures. A great feature was the pageantry class directed by the Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker, whom you know something about if you read these notes at all regularly.

* * *

Still another conference: Peninsula, run jointly by Delaware and Easton, held this year at Ocean City, Maryland. Attendance, 150. Chaplain, Bishop Cook. Faculty: Professor C. B. Hedrick of Berkeley, Professor A. A. Ewing of Philadelphia, Rev. F. E. Seymour of Philadelphia, Dr. C. J. Galpin, government department of agriculture, Rev. Elmer N. Schmuck of the field department, Miss Mildred Brown of pageantry fame, and Miss Dorothy Hedley of the Girls Friendly.

* * *

Bishop Creighton is back in New York after a year or two in Mexico for a two months' rest. He has nothing but good things to say of the country . . . "cultured, patriotic, thrifty, kindly." Wise Bishop.

* * *

Dr. Cadman, radio parson, preaching in St. Martin's, London, said: "Divorce is a greater evil than prohibition. Elmer Gantry is barnyard piffle and garage gossip. The book represents a huge ocean of mud in which the author is immersed." When asked about the American Rotary clubs Dr. Cadman said, "They are daily luncheons, not intellectual triumphs."

* * *

Daily vacation Bible schools are being conducted this month in Baltimore in seventeen Episcopal Churches, with an attendance of 1200.

* * *

Conference for the clergy of Maryland at Blue Ridge Summit, September 21-23, and one for laymen from the 23-25th. To get ready for Nation-Wide.

* * *

An interesting plan, that of a School for Lay Readers that is to run in Brooklyn next winter. It is hardly a school since it has but two sessions a week for a period of a month and a half. But the candidates for lay reader's licenses will be picked carefully and will be obliged to listen to lectures on important matters delivered by capable men, which is that much more than lay readers have ever been asked to do before.

* * *

Bishop Mosher visited Sagada and its outstations in May and confirmed nearly 200 people. Both Baguio and Sagada have had recent Christian weddings of young Igorot people, Mission children grown-up founding little Christian homes.

* * *

Naturally enough there was a full enrollment at the St. Paul School Conference, Concord, New Hampshire, for it has come to be one of the established institutions of the province of New England. It would be difficult to imagine a more beautiful spot for such a conference, with the buildings of the school placed at the disposal of the Church; a great play ground with twenty or more tennis courts, and a pond for canoeing and swimming, and a chapel which is said to be one of the most beautiful in the country with a reredos (the work of Irving & Casson-A. H. Davenport) which is an inspiration. The conference centre was here, with early celebrations and an assembly at nine at which the chaplain, the Rev. Henry Hobson of Worcester set the keynote for the day. Then the well attended classes, an afternoon of play, a sunset service by the pond, and a forum. Then just before bed the group meetings when five or six young people would gather with a leader and discuss whatever was uppermost in their minds. It all ended on July 5th with a great "experience meeting," presided over by Bishop Dallas of New Hampshire, when the young members and a few of the faculty told of what the Conference had done for them. Startling tales—perhaps too startling for such young people to relate—of a sense of comradeship with Christ, but it was all very impressive and beautiful.

* * *

"If we could only have another

THE PROBLEM

in life insurance is not whether you need insurance. It is how much you can afford to pay for.

By creating this Corporation, an effort has been made to help you solve this problem. The net rates offered to clergymen and their families and to lay-workers and their families mean either more insurance at the same cost, or the same amount of insurance for less cost.

* * *

All Inquiries Should Be Addressed to

The Church Life Insurance Corporation

14 Wall Street New York

(Operated under the supervision of the Trustees of The Church Pension Fund)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

two weeks and repeat the whole conference!" was on the lips of many as the Wellesley Conference drew to a close on July 7. There is no more beautiful spot than the sloping, wooded Wellesley campus, where Tower Court, like some medieval castle, crowns the college hill. Through its Gothic halls moved a varied throng of church workers; there was an enrollment of over four hundred. Bishops, clerics, sisters and officers of the Church Army were conspicuous for their garb, missionaries from abroad, women experienced in church work, laymen engaged in parochial activities, young people eager in spirit and happy in countenance, mingled and talked in the halls and at the tables. Wellesley College offered all that could be desired in the way of creature comfort, and the leaders of the Conference kept the spirit of the gathering on a high spiritual and intellectual plane.

Seriousness and fellowship, always characteristic of Wellesley, were marked notes of this year's Conference, and with these a very real and earnest religious spirit. Each day began with a largely attended celebration of the Holy Communion; an organ recital in the afternoon was greatly appreciated; a sunset service was held (weather permitting) on the shore of Lake Waban, and Compline, with its note of quiet trust, ended the day. Several devotional meetings under direction of Captain Greenwood of the Church Army, were more evangelical in character. Bishop Slattery was the Director of the Conference, and Rev. George L. Richardson was chaplain.

Every phase of church life was given attention. There were courses on theology, the Bible and Church History. Missions with special reference to China, held the foremost position. Religious Education and the social program were carefully and thoroughly discussed, and the arts of the church were not neglected—religious drama had one course, while the Music School is a department by itself. Theological professors who gave courses were Rev. Charles L. Wells of Sewanee, Rev. Leonard Hodgson and Rev. Burton Scott Easton of the General Theological Seminary, and Rev. James A. Montgomery and Rev. Royden K. Yerkes of the Philadelphia Divinity School. Among the church workers who gave courses were Miss Florence Newbold, Miss Grace Lindley, Mrs. W. B. Haff, Miss Evelyn Withers, Miss Laura A. Boyer and Miss Dorothy Coe. A valuable and interesting course was that given by Miss Vida D. Scudder, Professor of English Literature, Wellesley College, on the Gospel according to Saint Francis. The Music School had able instruction under Frederick Johnson, Rev. Winfred Douglas and Walter Williams. In the afternoons conferences were conducted and in the evenings the entire conference gave its attention to special subjects, among which were the lectures by Bishop Johnson of Colorado on the Development of the American Church, and the reports of missionaries—there was a large representation from China. The Music School assisted in a choral evensong and the drama class produced two pageants. An innovation was the handing over of the last meeting, gathering up the results of the Conference, to the direction of the young people. For all the closely packed program time was found for recreation and entertainment, including a baesball game, a picnic, canoeing, swimming and tennis. Motion pictures, shown one evening, told a "moving" story of the Conference and its activities.

* * *

The clergy of the diocese of Duluth met for a conference at Cass Lake, Minn., from June 20th to 25th. Various phases of the clergyman's work in relation to his parish, his diocese, and the general Church were discussed, under the leadership of the Rt. Rev. G. G. Bennett. It was decided to hold a Witness Week through out the diocese from Oct. 30th to Nov. 6th. This is to be a preaching mission on the one note, Personal Witness. A circulating library for the clergy was organized, each clergyman to receive two books a month. The chief diversions were baseball, bathing, fishing, and horse-shoe pitching. These annual Conferences have done more than any other one thing to promote a fine understanding and good-will among the clergy of Duluth.

* * *

The second annual summer school for Church workers was held at Cass

SAINT MARY'S

Knoxville, Illinois

An accredited college preparatory school with special department for girls in the grades. Athletics. Music. Art. Expression. Secretarial and Business courses. For catalogue write to the Rector.

FREEHOLD

MILITARY SCHOOL

For 80 Select Young Boys

A school with the personal touch. Just enough military training to inculcate habits of obedience, promptness, orderliness, cleanliness and self-reliance. The students' comforts, pleasures and sports are as carefully considered as their mental training. Healthful location. 42 miles from N. Y., 66 miles from Phila. For catalog address. MAJOR CHAS M. DUNCAN, P. O. Box W, Freehold, N. J.

SHATTUCK

A Church School for Boys

For 67 years Shattuck has been a leader among college preparatory schools in the West. It is not operated for profit. It aims to develop. High Scholarship, Manly Character Christian Citizenship.

The military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall. Address The rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

"Taylor Hall, Racine, Wisconsin, from August 6th to August 27th, 1927, will be available for church people who may desire to spend their vacations on Lake Michigan. Room and board $20.00 per week. Apply to Mrs. George Biller."

SOMERSET HILLS

A Progressive Country Day and Boarding School. Primary, Intermediate and Senior Departments. Prepares for leading Secondary Schools.

Individual instruction makes rapid progress possible.

Outdoor life in the country.

Address: Rev. James H. S. Fair, Far Hills, New Jersey

HARVARD SCHOOL

Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited, R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL

Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.

Address: Secretary

ROWLAND HALL

A School for Girls in the Wasatch Mountains

Salt Lake City, Utah

BISHOP MOULTON, Rector.

NASHOTAH HOUSE

Founded in 1842

Theological Seminary and Collegiate Department

For particulars address the dean

NASHOTAH HOUSE

Nashotah, Wisconsin

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 115 Franklin St., New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs, chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7,60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT

SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y. References required.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Lake, Minn., from June 25th to July 1st, with a good attendance of clergy and laity. In addition to a series of addresses on "The Fundamentals of Religion" by Bishop Bennett, there were courses on The Bible, the Prayer Book, Young People's Work, Teachers and Teaching, and Religion in the Home. Each day began with a celebration of the Holy Communion at 7 o'clock; classes were from 9 to 1; the afternoon was devoted to recreation, except for occasional conferences; in the evening there were impromptu and often clever programs of entertainment; and the day ended with a short service of prayer around a bon-fire on the beach.

* * *

The following cable has been received from Bishop Gilman, who is in Shanghai: "Have received the following message from Hankow: 'Convent of St. Anne, Shasi, residence at Ichang, looted by soldiers. Movements of our missionaries Wuchang, Hankow, free from interference. We do not anticipate any danger'."

* * *

Bishop Creighton confirmed fifty-one young Mexicans in his cathedral on Trinity Sunday. They were presented from nine places. Many of the Church papers in the last few weeks published an appeal for a sum of $150 to enable the Bishop to bring Mexican candidates in the vicinity of Mexico City to the Cathedral, as permission had been given him to confirm them there. He writes that sufficient funds were received to enable him to do this.

* * *

Since January 1st, confirmations in the Diocese of Maryland have totaled 1,370. Of these, 175 have been confirmed by the Bishop Coadjutor in special classes supplemental to regular visitations. These supplemental confirmations are largely adults and represent one fruit of the Bishops' Crusade.

* * *

During the summer the Maryland Church normal school, under the directorship of Miss Jane Millikin, is planning a number of changes in the system and schedule for the coming year. In the past there has been one lecture to the whole school in some general subject such as the Prayer Book, and a series of courses corresponding to the grades of the Christian Nurture series. In the future the eight courses of the Christian Nurture will be taught by grades and in addition eight elective lectures will be given so that the scholars may thus have the choice of one grade and one lecture each evening. The school will meet twice a month hereafter, and will close before Lent. The subject of the elective lectures are as follows:

The Old Testament Program of the National Church, Young People's Leadership, Church History, Church Doctrine, Stories and Story Telling, Principles of Teaching, The Prayer Book.

* * *

The Bishop of Florida writes of the fourth annual diocesan camp for Young People: "It was nearly midnight. I had been up and stirring since daybreak, yet I was neither tired nor sleepy. The night was wonderously clear and peaceful. The morning star shone with a luster that was almost dazzling. I watched it, not

ST. ANNE'S Open Air School, Box W, Charlotteville, Va.
Beautiful location in far famed Blue Ridge Mountains. College preparatory and elective courses. Fully accredited by State Board of Education. Open gymnasium allows sports in the fresh air in all weather. Riding taught by expert. Music. Art. Bishop of Virginia, President of Trustees. Laura Lee Dorsey, Principal.

Hannah More
DIOCESAN SCHOOL OF MARYLAND
Founded 1832
A Country School for Girls, fifteen miles from Baltimore. College Preparatory and General Courses. Music. Art. Supervised Athletics. Terms $600 to $800.
Principal
MISS LAURA FOWLER, A. B.
Box W, Reisterstown, Maryland

Kenyon College
GAMBIER, OHIO
Founded 1824
- - by - -
PHILANDER CHASE
First Bishop of Ohio
O
A men's college in a noble country setting, offering excellent facilities for work and attractive living; where a background of over 100 years of tradition and the present enrollment limitation of 250 contribute to the steadfast maintenance of high academic standards and educational ideals.

Samuel Mather Hall of Science
Erected 1926
A NOTABLE FEATURE OF PHYSICAL EQUIPMENT

WILLIAM FOSTER PEIRCE, D. D., L. H. D.,
President.
Address RICHARD C. LORD, Registrar.

104th YEAR BEGINS IN SEPTEMBER

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland.
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore.
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago.
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago.
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago.
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City.
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily, 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily, 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

from any mountain height, but from Florida's sandy shores, which the Gulf lapped at my feet. The scene stirred the words and tune of one of our great and familiar hymns: 'Watchman, tell us of the night, what its signs of promise are'.

"As I stood, I counted over the days of the two weeks of Camp Weed life that were coming to a close, and as I did so, a new sense of hope and satisfaction filled me, for Camp Weed, our young peoples' summer conference and training school, had surpassed all my expectations in its programs of pleasure and profit. I realized that its work was a bright beacon in the channels of the Church's future life.

"Be it known that the youngsters of Camp Weed took the work of the camp in a spirit of eagerness and seriousness. Every camper took in at least two credit courses, and took their examinations on the same, on the last day, and while we do not yet know how many of them passed these examinations, I make bold to say that some of them know a good deal more about the Bible and the Church than their fond parents."

* * *

The present head of the Department of Education of the Nationalist Government in Hankow is reported to have made the following statements to a Christian educator who was seeking information in regard to the future of Christian education in China:

"In principle there is no place for Christian education and education conducted by or supported by foreigners in the forthcoming Nationalist China's educational system, although this principle can not be put into practice as yet. He would exclude any institution financed by foreigners, but he is willing to acknowledge that there is a place for Christian schools pending the time when Government education really takes possession of the field.

"The Minister for Education will not make another code for the regulation of the educational system as a whole until he has had time to go into the matter more thoroughly. There is little money for education and even the date when the Ministry of Education can be organized is rather remote." There is at least one encouraging thing in the statement: China has a Minister of Education. There are countries, considering themselves more enlightened, with none.

* * *

There have been twenty-one baptisms of Japanese in Western Nebraska where Mr. H. Kano, a lay worker, is working among the sugar-beet farmers of that region. Mr. Kano has a Japanese young people's group organized. It is an indication of the type of people he has that two Japanese girls, members of our

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York.
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D.
Sundays, 8 and 11 a. m.

Trinity Church, New York.
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York.
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York.
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, and 11 A. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp & Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — In a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

Church school, graduated from the North Platte High School last year, each with an average above 90. At Grand Island when the Hall County Red Cross asked for flood relief, nearly a tenth of the amount came from the Japanese. Mr. Kano travels about in all weathers, especially at seasons when the farm work is in abeyance, and holds meetings in homes, schools and hotels, attended by Japanese from many miles around. He has classes for them in agricultural methods and civic matters as well as religion. He also talks to native-born Americans, telling Women's Clubs about Japanese art, and Church groups about missionary work.

* * *

A wise preacher, with insight into the meaning of the Christianity, should be able to build a sermon around this little tale:

When service began in the church in Hanyang (District of Hankow) on a recent Sunday a few soldiers came and stood in the church. When the Rev. Newton Liu was about to begin his sermon he said to them, "Please sit down." "But one of the soldiers," says the report, apparently in Mr. Liu's words, "rather a slow and dull fellow, answered quite angrily, 'No, we will not sit down. This is Chinese territory; we do not want any foreign undertaking here.' 'Strike, strike,' he continued. Another soldier joined him with the same tone. Mr. Liu immediately came forward and talked with them peaceably; Mr. H. C. Wu did the same. The former soldier cried out, 'Strike,' and moved towards the pulpit and struck it to the ground with a bench. Soon the officer in charge of these men came in and sent them away very sternly. Then he called all his men by a Whistle, and talked to them about this kind of behavior. He said to them that it was their duty to fight against imperialism, but here they were trying to practise imperialism themselves. He told them that they should not do that.

"When the soldiers caused the disturbance in the church all the children ran out of the building, but the adults stayed and Mr. Liu went on with his sermon. However, some sol-

Answers

1. St. Luke.
2. Theophilus.
3. St. Mark and St. Luke.
4. Mount of Olives.
5. Acts 1:14.
6. Mary's, the mother of Mark.
7. Acts 1: 21-22.
8. St. Matthias. By prayer and casting lots. The apostles.
9. The Passover and Pentecost. Coincide with Easter and Whitsuntide.
10. Three thousand.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.000 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, social. or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, Pesident,
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

diers again stood inside and outside the church.

"Afterwards Mr. Paul Wu and Mr. Liu talked with some of the soldiers about Christianity and what it meant. Never before had Mr. Liu felt that he could talk with them. He had greeted them pleasantly, but nothing more. Now the barriers are broken down and he has had several good talks with them since. He feels that this incident which began so unhappily has ended with a new opportunity for Christian work."

* * *

Sir Philip Gibbs, in an article in a New York paper, says: "I cannot make up my mind whether humanity in the mass is so incurably stupid that it is incapable of reaching a higher plane of civilized idealism or whether it has some natural and spiritual qualities which may one day lead it beyond our present state of conflict and disorder to a nobler vision of life." It is comforting to learn that he hasn't found the answer to a question which I am sure bothers a great many people. Has anyone the answer? And if there is no positive answer then what of Democracy and even of Christianity? What say?

* * *

Bishop Roots calls the attention of the department of missions to the need of a layman as treasurer in our business office in Hankow. In addition to being a careful accountant and a man with a reasonably broad business experience, Bishop Roots says:

"What we need is a person whose passion is the Christianization of the business methods of the Church from top to bottom through Mission Offices down to country vestries. I do hope we can get such a man."

The Rev. A. B. Parson, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York, will be glad to supply particulars.

Payment of

Principal and Interest Guaranteed

SECURITY: Participation certificates in obligations secured by first mortgages on improved real estate, guaranteed by the issuing company.

MORTGAGES: Not exceeding 60% of a conservative valuation of the mortgaged property. The mortgages are practically all on dwellings occupied by owners.

GUARANTY: Payment of principal and interest guaranteed by endorsement on each certificate by

NATIONAL SURETY COMPANY

the largest surety company in the world, with total resources of over $35,000,000.

Maturity — 2 to 10 years.
Price 100 and interest, yielding 5½%.

Peabody, Houghteling & Co.

(Established 1865)
10 South La Salle Street
CHICAGO

New York Detroit St. Louis Milwaukee

If You Are a Man Contemplating a College Course in Arts, Letters and Science

You will do well to investigate ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE, Annandale-on-Hudson, N. Y., particularly for the following reasons:

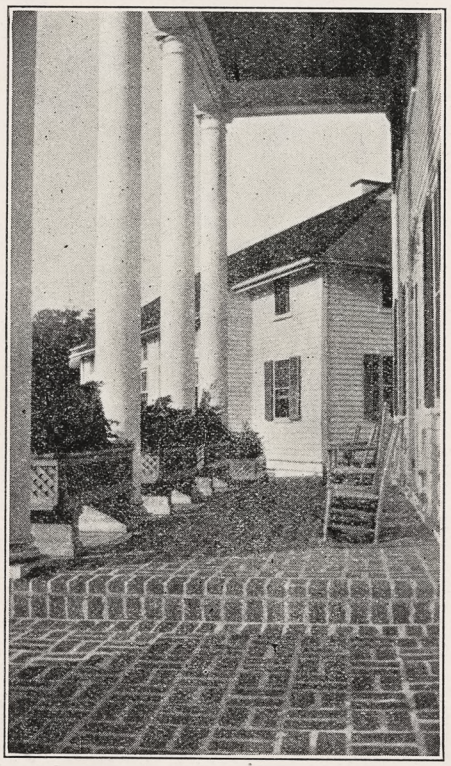
1. Its Academic Reputation. It is fully accredited by all rating agencies. It has methods of individual study unique in American colleges, highly commended by Commissioner of Education Frank Pierrepont Graves of New York State and many others. Every student is taught by a skilled and scholarly expert. Science and religion are both fearlessly faced as contributing to sane, modern thinking. St. Stephen's graduates are desired by the better medical, law and other professional schools, and secure unusual opportunities in the business world.

2. Its Location. It is near enough New York City to be accessible—95 miles; and far enough to be free from the noise, dirt and distraction of a metropolis. Its campus, of forty acres, overlooking the Hudson River and the Catskills, is one of the most beautiful country locations in the Eastern part of America. Its buildings and equipment are complete and modern.

3. Its Life. It is a place for gentlemen, sportsmen and men desirous of real learning. It is sanely athletic, varied in opportunity for enjoyment. It puts scholarship first. The individual counts. A sense of comradeship and unity marks the student life. Friendship of students and instructors is not merely desired but realized.

4. Its Cost. All of these advantages are available at a cost lower than in any college of first rank in America. Six hundred fifty dollars a year pays for tuition, excellent board, and a good room, heated, lighted and cared for, in a modern dormitory.

An enlargement of facilities enables us to accommodate in 1927-28 a few more men than usual.



Address all communications to me personally.

BERNARD I. BELL,
President.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, AUGUST 4, 1927

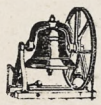
WYKEHAM RISE

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration



For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

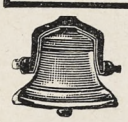
Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 697 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.

Baltimore, Md.



Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring

Inquiries given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403) (Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts. NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J.

Church Furniture

MEMORIALS IN CARVED WOOD

PEWS · ALTARS · PULPITS

SUNDAY SCHOOL

SEATING

American Seating Company

1024 LYTTON BUILDING CHICAGO

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings

Gorgeous Combinations of Color

Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

In Selecting a Memorial to a Loved One

what could be a happier, a more fitting thought than a living memorial of Golden-Voiced

Deagan Tower Chimes

serving through the years to keep alive the faith of those who have it, and helping, as no other means can, to re-awaken childhood reverence in those who have strayed. Write for literature. Standard Sets $6,000 and up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER

and 4 & 5 Duncannon St: Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery

Wood

Stone

Metal and

Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows

Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates on application to

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.,

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

EST. 1877

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— Office and Studio —

221-223 E. Fulton St. — Columbus, Ohio.

DESIGNERS · AND · BUILDERS · OF · ECCLESIASTIC · MEMORIAL · WINDOWS.

— Photos, Designs and Estimates Upon Application —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XI. No. 50 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

THE ANGLO-CATHOLIC CONGRESS

Many Notable Addresses

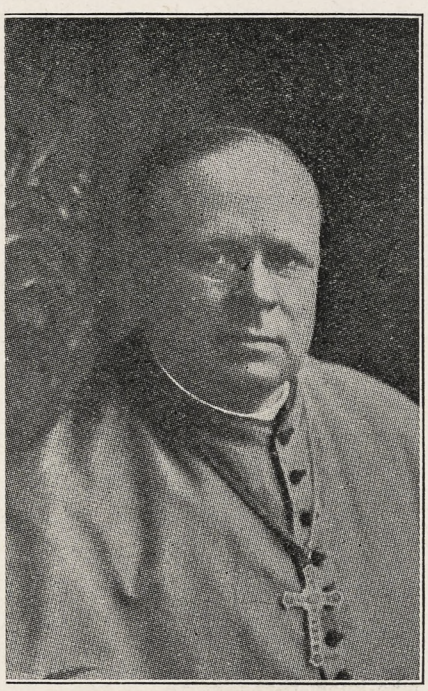
Reported by

A. MANBY LLOYD

CONGRESS Week at the Albert Hall began under two disabilities. Only a man with the vocal gifts of George Lansbury or the Bishop of Nassau (Dr. Shedden, who presided), can be comfortably heard. And an understanding to avoid controversy had been given. How is this possible when the Congress subject is the Holy Eucharist from the doctrinal and devotional point of view! It is the crux of the Revised Prayer-book which has roused certain extremists to insult the Bishop of London and has led Bishop Hensley Henson to describe them as belonging to "the Protestant underworld."

CONSPICUOUS FIGURE

A conspicuous figure on the platform was the Rev. Arthur Tooth, the oldest veteran of the Anglo-Catholic movement, who went to the prison in 1877 for wearing illegal vestments.



Dr. Tooth, who is nearly 90, was received by the chairman, the Bishop of Nassau, who rose from his seat and led him to the rostrom amid a storm of applause which lasted for some minutes. Yesterday was the 61st anniversary of Dr. Tooth's ordination as a priest of the Church of England and notwithstanding his great age he delivered a vigorous address.

"What we have really striven for is to bring back the Sacrament into the knowledge and frequentation of the people of England," said Lord Halifax. "We desire to see the Mass resume its proper place as the one essential act of Christian worship."

He hoped soon to make public the results of his negotiations which had extended over the past five years with Cardinal Mercier at Malines, Belgium, regarding steps to be taken for the reunion of the Church.

NOTABLES

Anglo-catholicism is supposed by the shallow-minded to make no appeal to the intelligence; to be, in fact, a kind of Ecclesistical Bourbonism. As a matter of fact, it is probable that half the distinguished people on the platform have leanings towards Modernism. And four of the youngest A.-C. leaders are recent Bampton lecturers. Perhaps the most notable is Dr. H. P. Williams, whose lectures on Original Sin have given him a European reputation.

BISHOP WEBB

He "sleeps o' nights."

The most arresting figure is that of the Bishop of Truro (Dr. Frere), who has a lean and hungry look, while not far off is Dr. Webb, Milwaukee, whose rotund figure and beaming face is a sure guarantee that he "sleeps o' nights." There is a whole row of Bishops in purple cassocks, including the Bishops of Corea, Guina, Willochra, Algoma, Labuan and Sarawak; doubtless Bishops Gore and Winnington Ingram will look in later. Among the laymen, the dark Jewish-looking man is Sir Henry Slesser, and Mr. Will Spens cracks a joke with Sir George Arthur. The religious Communities are all represented; there is Father Bull, S. S. J. E., Fr. Talbot of the "Resurrection," and Fr. Tribe of the "Sacred Mission." And the Pershore Fathers are there, with their Abbot, best known as Fr. Denys, rumored to be the most learned person and the most notable philosopher in England.

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

The chairman of the Church Congress Council, Bishop Chandler began the proceedings by blessing the Bishop of Nassau and installing him as President of the Congress. Then Dr. Shedden, with appropriate simplicity, and in the ringing voice which it is wickedly said nearly terrified the centenarian Coptic Patriarch into his grave three years ago in Cairo, opened the Congress with just the right reference to Frank Weston, to whose saintly life the audience, with bowed heads, paid a tribute of a minute's silence and the repetition of the prayer, "Eternal rest give unto him, O Lord, and let light perpetual shine upon him!"

The President's speech was very brief. He made it clear that the Congress had nothing whatever to do with controversy. "If there are any here," he said, "who wish to hear the Revised Prayer Book discussed, it is no use whatever their coming to the Albert Hall. They must go to Westminster." It was impossible for them to do any good by talking, but it was possible that good might be done by lifting the whole subject up to God in prayer. They could all unite in storming the heights of Heaven for the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Dr. Shedden proceeded to pay tribute to the Archbishop of Canterbury. Four years ago, Dr. Weston had said that the Archbishop helped them more than they knew. Those of them who really knew the Archbishop, the width of his understanding and the depth of his sympathy, could have little doubt that he was remembering the Congress in his prayers this week. "I have," said Dr. Shedden "had some little experience of the anxieties of piloting a vessel through shoal water in a literal sense. The piloting of such an awkward vessel as the Church of England can have hardly ever imposed a heavier burden of anxiety and responsibility on any Archbishop than at the present time."

View of Man

I am not going to give you verbatim reports of the speeches, mostly read. Truth to tell, there were many dull moments. St. Paul himself, reading Chapter One of Romans, would send us to sleep. What wonder if elderly ecclesiastics nodded before Dr. Williams had concluded his paper on "The Christian View of Man."

He began by quoting Hamlet's speech: "What a piece of work is man." The Renaissance, with its recovery of the Greek point of view, had brought with it a tendency on the part of man to glorify and worship himself. The tendency continued through the centuries until it culminated in Swinburne's audacious blasphemy: "Glory to man in the highest, for man is the master of things."

But with this pride there was a current of self-depreciation which finds its "most furious expression" in Shelley's phrase, "the outcast man." The great war shattered complacency, and the growth of analytic psychology had shown that man is "a theatre in which elemental and imperfectly co-ordinated impulses strive for the mastery." The world has learned to repeat the despairing cry: "Who shall deliver me from the body of this death?"

Dr. Williams proceeded to consider sin and redeeming grace, following the line of his recently published Bampton Lectures. His statements were very carefully worded, and I am conscious that it is extremely difficult to attempt to summarize his argument without the risk of misrepresentation. He examined with studied fairness the position of those who "repudiate the characteristic conceptions of Catholicism," which for the idea of a perfectly autonomous man substituted, what Dr. Gore has called, a man who is a king indeed, but "a discrowned king." What he needs is power "infused into him from without."

Dr. Williams went on to make an elaborate examination of the nature of sin which occurs because the sinner is out of harmony with God. With regard to grace, he quoted Professor MacKenzie's comparison of the Catholic and Protestant conceptions, declaring that the Scottish theologian misunderstood the Catholic point of view that "the grace of God is nothing other than God Himself redeeming and rescuing in the Person of the Son, sanctifying and healing in the Person of the Spirit."

To explain the working of sacramental grace, Dr. Williams referred to the methods of the psycho-analysts, declaring that the living Lord penetrated "the sub-conscious selves of His disciples through the power of His Spirit, and by inaudible, yet most real, suggestions of peace and purity, strength and unity, gradually transforming them into the image of Himself." The paper concluded with a brief consideration of the significance of death with an effective description of the Eucharist as "the medicine of immortality."

Beginners

It has been said the Oxford Movement was made out of books. Perhaps so; it is the initial stage of most movements. The French Revolution began with Rousseau, Bolshevism with Karl Marx. Pusey and Liddon were the Girondins; then came the Jacobins—the Pollock Brothers of Birmingham, Stanton, Dolling, Headlam and Conrad Noel. To-day the Episcopate and the Protestant laymen have to reckon with men like Frs. Mackay, Rosenthal, Ross, Jellicoe (nephew of a famous Admiral), and Wilfred Knox, brother of the clever Punchman, "Rounie." Then there is the vast army of unknown padres who took their baptism in the Great War, and who know that England is not going to be saved by Elizabethan gentility or Victorian priggishness. They have learnt to look for Christ in Slum as well as Sacrament: the dying words of Frank Weston, the saintly Bishop of Zanzibar, have entered like iron into their souls.

There was a time when Dr. Waggett gave painfully scientific analyses of Darwinism and delt aesthetically with the elements of worship. As he gets older he gets breezier, and there is today no more "taking" platform orator. The first laugh of the day was raised when the President said, that in one respect, Dr. Waggett was like the Gloomy Dean. He was always changing his University, but while Cambridge was his latest spouse, Oxford remained his Alma Mater.

I noticed an old lady with early-Victorian curls, so it is not surprising to find one Anglican paper rebuking Dr. Waggett for his flippancy. The dear man "interrupted himself with certain sallies." The fact is, official C. of Englandism is deficient in a sense of humor, or we should not, perhaps, have lost two of our wittiest brethren—I mean Ronald Knox and G. K. Chesterton.

Dr. Waggett

So Dr. Waggett came along and walloped Mrs. Proudie. His subject was "The Christian View of the World," and he began by remarking that it was, as Mr. Jack Jones would say, "a subject that could be talked about a lot." He warned us that the world with which he was concerned had nothing to do with the League of Nations or the woes of the Armenians, or even with the eclipse that so many of his friends got up early in the morning not to see. Then, as it were with an effort, Dr. Waggett turned to his manuscript. It is not too much to say that it was a perfect address for such a meeting — felicitous, profound, and yet always easy to follow.

Christian thought has as its centre "an absorbing belief in God." The Holy Eucharist is entirely "the gift of God." "It is the Presence of the Lord Jesus, the centre of our worship, the great daily means of grace, the food of the innocent and of the holy, the full restoration of the penitent, the consolation of the trembling and the sad, the bread of the strong, the support in the darkness of the spirits that depart hence in the Lord."

"The weight of the Christian fortunes is in the ordinary folk," and this common Christian philosophy is a commonsense mode of thought. And Dr. Waggett went on to a sentence which might be expanded into a volume. "Christian thought regards the actual, believes in the regular and the accountable, and reverences the human." Our Lord appeared in the world by Incarnation—and here was another suggestive assertion —"not for mankind only but for men and women and children."

"Be sure," said the speaker, "that He demands of us also the cure of this disgrace and that; the lack of proper dwellings for the multitude, the murder or the unredeemed captivity of persecuted races, the ignorance of actual unbelievers who fail to believe because we do not personally shine with the evidence of God."

Then came a typical Waggett interlude. The next part of his paper would have to be taken as read, and he was very sorry because it was "frightfully good." And then Dr. Waggett bade us not to fear, because the Eucharist has a human side, "a share even for our striving," for human spirit is among the weapons of God's real victory. . . We know not the measure in which the Almighty uses the human spirit to compose the instrument of His mercy and build the road of His august approach."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

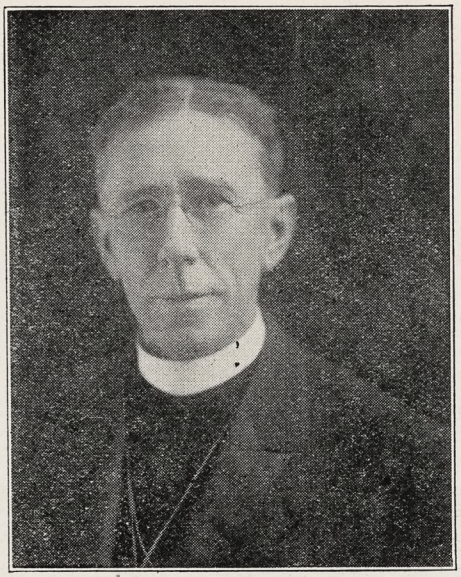
It would have been unreasonable to expect that the Congress could maintain the splendid level of this address. In all respects it was an inspiration.

And so, out into the sunshine to tea, music, gossip, and the renewal of friendships under the trees in Kensington Gardens.

God in Nature

At another session a tall, smartly-dressed young man, Mr. Coghill, was very nervous in talking about the Presence of God in Nature. He began by referring to its blind and blundering forces:



"The Nile floods its banks and part of Egypt is enriched. The Mississippi floods its banks and part of America is laid waste. Lightning will strike church, cottage or crag with dispassionate ferocity. Nothing is more palpable than the utter indifference of nature to human happiness and human catastrophe." Natural forces imply power, and the human mind must associate power with personality, but the intuition of the immanence of God in nature is, Mr. Coghill insisted, only an emotional intuition. "We may be emotionally satisfied to perceive God resident in the material composition of a flower, we are less glad to recognize Him in the material composition of a cancer. We may feel his essence interfused in hemp, not in the hangman's rope." Such feelings have the sham guarantees of emotion and appearance and tend to degrade religion.

* * *

The intervals between the papers were relieved by the singing of hymns not to be found in "Ancient and Modern." What would "Jix" have thought of a whole row of Bishops singing, "Hail, Mary, full of grace!"

Then Dr. Heald would get up and appeal for shekels and exhort us to "drop the Anglo." We are, he said, Catholics or nothing. I looked at the occupant of the Papal box, and detected a smile. Was it Fr. Woodlock, of the Society of Jesus? He will have something to talk about next Sunday at Farm St.

There were more or less learned papers, difficult to follow, by Fr. Relton, Dr. James, Sir E. Hoskyns and Dr. Goridge, which will be good reading in pamphlet form. My space is limited, and I must skip the reception given to the Bishop of London and the magnificent devotional address of Fr. Vernon, the greatest mission preacher of the day. The note of his teaching is simplicity and it is backed by a magnificent personality.

Bishop Moreland
Edits a Great Newspaper.

But I must not allow Sir Henry Slesser to pass. He is one of our great politicians, with the makings of a great statesman. The meeting was so excited, in anticipation, that it sang two hymns at the same time, while the organist apparently played a third.

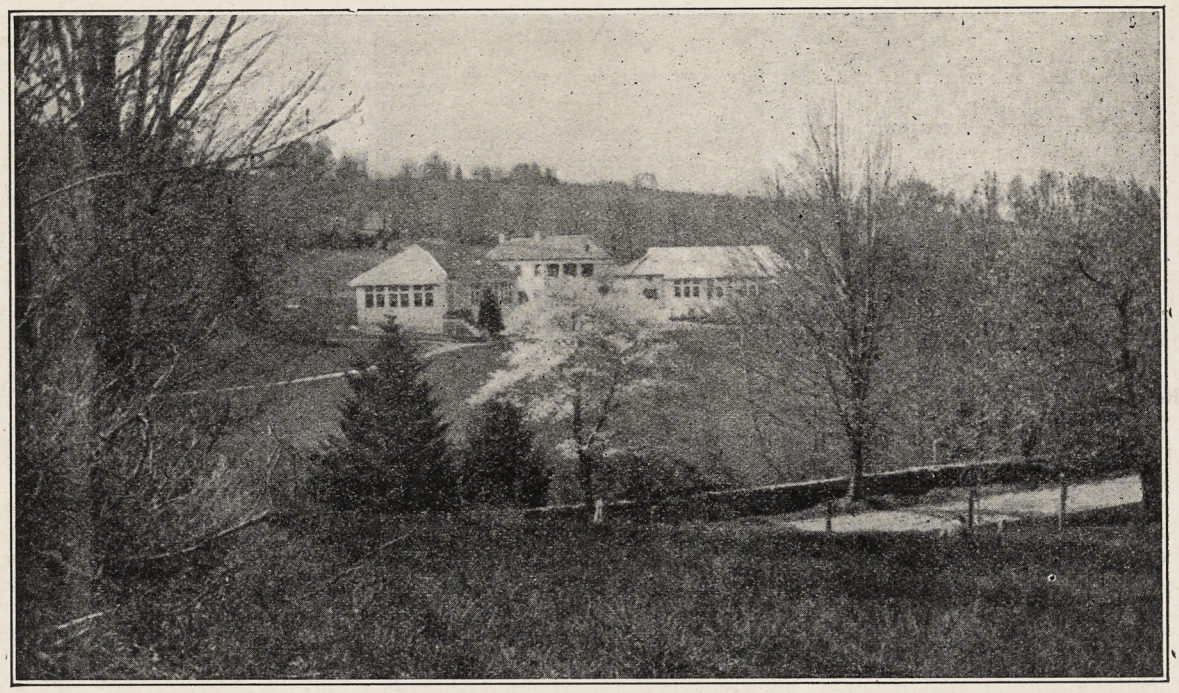
At a meeting in the city, Sir Henry had informed the loungers at the Cannon St. Hotel that the restrictions placed by the Rubrics of the Revised Prayer Book on the use of the Blessed Sacrament would make it impossible to vote for it in the House of Commons.

Sir Henry Slesser

But tonight (Wednesday) Sir Henry was calm and philosophic, a thinker who has made thinking popular. He referred to the learned papers that had been read at the Congress and to the fact that on this occasion it had been determined that the proceedings should be "rather more amateurish"— a wise policy, because the foolish sometimes see certain aspects and problems of life which do not impress themselves quite so closely on those who concentrate on the more critical aspects of our Faith.

Modern life is characterized by the breakdown of any standard by which we can conduct our lives. Men can no longer say what is right or what is wrong, which pictures are beautiful and which are ugly, what is wisdom and what is folly. We are suffering from the decay of belief, which began two centuries ago, and it is to this decay in belief that the world owes the fact that it is bereft of any standards. Plato declared that there were only three certainties — goodness, beauty, and truth. These are the eternal realities of life which the Catholic Faith exists to restore.

We must not be ashamed to be dogmatic. An open mind is like the open box in the fable, from which all gifts have flown away. It is the fashion nowadays to pretend that conduct is a mere matter of temperament or climate, and that truth is a mere matter of taste. The Catholic must fight against the prevailing pragmatism and relativity. The world declares that man is the measure of all things. The Church declares that God is the measure of all things. The Catholic has a definite standard of conduct which he finds set out in the Life of our Lord.



Catholics possess a power out of all proportion to their numbers because they have conviction. We live in a world of bewilderment, in which every fundamental idea is challenged and criticized; but we can say definitely that we have assurance and knowledge of what is right and what is wrong. The certainty that we have, and others have not, is the gift of faith. The certainty comes because we believe that the Kingdom of God can be found in the things of this world. In the Blessed Sacrament these ordinary things are consecrated and made divine. The Catholic Faith covers the whole of life and all the activity of man.

He supposed he was an Extremist. Everyone who believed anything at all was described as an Extremist in these days. But he fearlessly declared that the Church, in the widest sense, was a much more important institution than the State. He must not be misunderstood. Both the State and the family were Divine institutions, and the Christian State and its authority proceeded from God. Since the Reformation there had arisen the belief that the State was the final test of authority. First it was the King, then it was the Parliament, then it was the executive government; soon it might be the doctor. But to the Catholic the State's only justification was its success in promoting the Kingdom of God on earth. On the other hand the Church was a Divine institution, Divine and perfect, though Churchmen were often very imperfect.

Man was provided with every gift that he could reasonably need. Trouble had come because he had neglected and rejected the gifts and the bounty of God. It was for them to cling to the Church and to do all that they could to maintain her authority.

Every one of Sir Henry Slesser's points was loudly applauded, and his speech will certainly be remembered as one of the successes of the Congress.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

WYKEHAM RISE

Famous School for Girls

By Fanny E. Davies

THE completion of the first quarter of a century in the life of any institution is always a memorable occasion, emphasising the achievements of the past 25 years and the hope for the accomplishment of greater things in the future.

The Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the founding of Wykeham Rise is especially significant, marking as it does the development of a small private school into a recognised educational institution placed on a permanent basis with an influential board of trustees.

The School under its present name began in October, 1902, in a house on Washington Green, and in addition to the boarding department took over a small private day school for younger children. These small children proved a very enlivening addition to the early life of Wykeham Rise. Many of them entered college from the School,— three have their names on the gymnasium wall in the list of Basket Ball Captains,— and one of these stands out as the only girl in the history of the school who was awarded both the Courtesy Prize and the Ariste at her graduation. As these children grew up and went away to college, and married, the number of day scholars naturally diminished, but the second generation has now started and this year a day scholar, the daughter of a day scholar, carried off the honors of her form.

In less than five years the School had outgrown the available accommodation and for a time it seemed as though it might be necessary to leave Washington and settle in some place which would afford sufficient space. While various plans were under consideration a public-spirited resident came forward and offered to put up a suitable building and rent it to the School in order "to keep Wykeham Rise for Washington." His offer was gratefully accepted, and in 1907 the new building was ready for occupation. The large white Colonial building standing on the hillside with beautiful old maples and ash trees around it became a well known landmark on the Litchfield Road.

The new building was at once filled to capacity and with the larger numbers the school soon made its mark in scholarship and sports, holding its own even through the difficult years of the war. After the peace came a tide of great prosperity and the future looked very bright when, on Easter Day 1923, a disastrous fire completely destroyed the great main building. It was a tremendous loss, but the owners faced it courageously, determined that Wykeham Rise should go right on. So before the ashes of the old building were cold, plans for the new were under way. With incredible rapidity the new Wykeham rose from the ground and every corner of the dormitories was filled.

However, as time went on, it was felt that the future of the School would be better secured if it were reincorporated under a board of trustees. Friends of the School formed a committee and drew up a plan, according to which the owners agreed to transfer their interest in the property as a free gift to the trustees on condition that sufficient money were raised to build another dormitory and provide needed equipment. A campaign was undertaken and brought to a successful conclusion in the summer of 1926. The new dormitory is now completed and the School established as a non-profit-sharing corporation in the interests of education. The founder, who was also one of the owners, remains with the School as Head Mistress.

So through the generosity of her friends and daughters, Wykeham Rise takes her place in the long line of schools given to the cause of Education.

From the earliest days of the School it has been the desire of the Head to give the daughters of Wykeham Rise three good ships in which to sail on the sea of life—Citizenship, Scholarship, and Sportsmanship.

Citizenship naturally begins in school with responsibility for the well-being of that small community and the various offices of the Self-Government Association emphasise this. But it goes outside Wykeham Rise into civic duties when suitable opportunities occur; sometimes it is singing carols round the town at Christmas or a meeting for Near East Relief, an Armistice Day Celebration, helping at teas and suppers for the benefit of Church or charity and many other things, often so enjoyable that they do not even remotely suggest duty. One of the most delightful occasions was when forty girls, at Father Sill's invitation, went to Kent to give a performance of the "Mikado" for a war-relief fund. But those same girls worked steadily in the Red Cross rooms week by week and denied themselves many pleasures to help the sufferers in the war-stricken countries. It is interesting to see the contributions to the life of the School made by girls who have grasped the idea of civic responsibility and a special prize has occasionally been awarded to a girl who has rendered some noteworthy service to the community.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

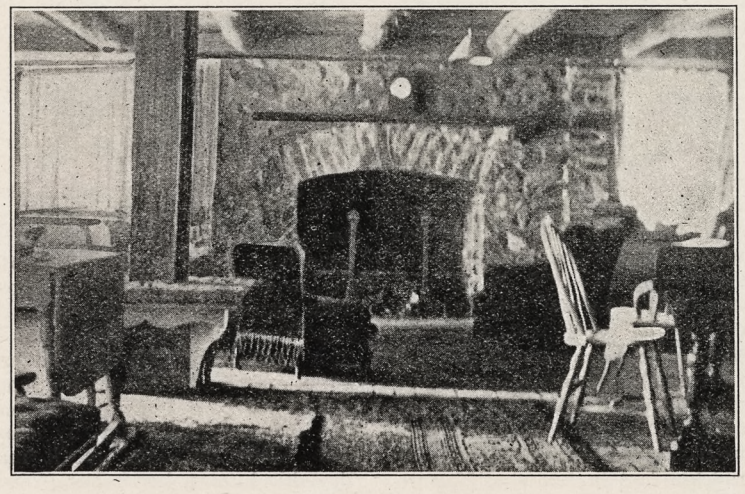
Wykeham Rise has always stood for a high standard of Scholarship, the passing of a certain number of College Entrance examinations being required for graduation. There was a Wykeham girl at Bryn Mawr when Wykeham Rise was only three years old. Today there are many of her graduates in the different colleges, and they have a fair number of Entrance and Graduate Scholarships to their credit.

There is always great rejoicing when a new Scholarship is reported, or an exceptionally high mark in examinations. The woes of the "College prep" and the terrors of examinations furnish the topic of many school songs year by year, and the red-letter girls are regarded with awe by those who never hope to attain that distinction. All these things are, in their way, a recognition of the value of Scholarship.

When one talks of Sportsmanship



WYKEHAM RISE CHOIR

one naturally thinks first of the inter-school games. They do bring a thrill and excitement into the everyday life of a school that nothing else does—the cheers, the singing, the contest, the victory—or the defeat. Wykeham girls, like all other normal creatures, take a keen delight in this. Basket Ball is the major sport and every new banner is hung in the gymnasium with joyful ceremony. Every game means training in self-discipline, self-direction and obedience to law—not such bad preparation for life, as St. Paul fully recognised.

Through it all comes the influence of the Church touching the young lives, though often unnoticed. The whole holiday and School Picnic on Ascension Day, a visit to the Glebe House, the rare privilege of helping with the Altar work, the Corporate Communion and breakfast for the choir at the Annunciation, and other similar things are a very real happiness to the girls who share in them and the memory remains when they are far away.

For the Wykeham girls come from widely separated districts: Savannah, Boston, Seattle, New York, Philadelphia, and so on all over the country. And when the old girls come back for re-unions and crowd into the Alumnae Bungalow it is wonderful to hear their varied experiences. They are in college, in business, married and have left the babies with grandmother, on the stage, teaching, what not; but they come back and forget all the intervening years as they recall the joyous or doleful past. And their spirit lives on. As a girl expressed it not long ago (she had not been back for over 15 years) "All the girls are new, all the buildings are new, everything's new, and yet it's the same old Wykeham."

THE OPEN FIRE
A corner at Wykeham Rise.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

A bishop was eating dinner with his host before the afternoon service at which he was to speak. He ate very little, explaining that it is not good for a preacher to eat heavily before a sermon. The housewife could not attend the service, as she had the supper to prepare. When her husband came home, she said, "Well, how was he?" The husband, drawing a sigh, replied, "He might just as well of et."

* * *

Owing to the absence through illness of the woman who taught the senior girls' Bible class, the young assistant minister was asked to undertake the duties for the day. He consented, but before beginning he said, smilingly: "Now, girls, I want to conduct your class just as your teacher does, so you might tell me what she does first."

A short pause, then the answer from a pert miss of 16: "Well, she always kisses us all round!"

* * *

In Washington they tell the story of a golfing clergyman who had been beaten badly on the links by a parishioner thirty years his senior, and had returned to the clubhouse rather disgruntled.

"Cheer up," his opponent said. "Remember, you win at the finish. You'll probably be burying me some day."

"Even then," said the preacher, "it will be your hole."

* * *

After the recent riot in Foochow, China, the resident Methodist bishop there cabled home, "Wife left for Manila. Everything quiet here."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

WHAT "PARISH" CAN MEAN

To Both Parson and Laymen

By

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

IF YOU were a parson you would speak with a certain pride of "My Parish." No Colonel speaks of his regiment, no Captain of his ship with more consciousness of possession than the parson speaks of his Parish.

He has a double image of it. It may be a group of people or a locality. The Parish is the village, the small town, or a section of the great city. Localize the Parish and it becomes picturesque. It has a charm of definiteness. One may take a good map and draw a red line about it.

You know the comfort of looking at a good map. I saw recently a map of the United States Geological Survey, and I found the very road over which, as a boy, I used to walk barefoot to the country post-office, that I might see the baseball scores in a city paper. I saw a little dot which the whole-souled surveyor put down to mark the very barn where I spent many a day trying to bury myself to the neck in the oats bin. I have half a notion that should I put that small dot under a powerful glass I could see the weather-stained boards of that barn. Mark Twain has given us a never-to-be-forgotten cave, and Defoe has made every boy long for an island. But most boys must be content with a barn. A good barn must be an old one filled with unexpected treasures. It must have a chest of forsaken tools, bits of chain, cog wheels, anything that suggests machinery and power. It must have a roomy loft. Surprises may lurk here. I once hunted in a dark corner of the loft for a litter of kittens, and found instead a nest of hornets, who welcomed me cordially and warmly. If kittens need guardians, provide hornets.

But I am wandering from the Parish. The Parish has an individuality. The very word has the Greek word "oikos" woven into its fabric. That Greek word means house. It is the place where he feels at home. It is that domicile which he must keep in order. It is his household. The priest is the good householder and housekeeper. No wonder he loves that Parish. Hawthorne saw his old manse with the eye of the spirit, and we are richer in vision because of his picture of it. The plutocrat of today, who never heard of Hawthorne, and who cannot see in an old house all its throbbing associations, may say, "If I had that old house I would remodel it and build an addition, and make it the finest house in the neighborhood"; but the true lover of this world's lasting treasures says, "This house, as it is, is the symbol and monument of the struggles of a race of worthy men and women. Destroy it and you destroy a thousand associations and memories more fruitful of good and happiness than all the restorations of your restless gold." So the true priest loves the Parish as it is. It is the part of God's footstool where his spirit is to prevail, if at all, where his hands are to sow, reap and gather, where his mind is to enlighten and his life is to inspire. It is his homestead from his Heavenly Father. While in his Parish he feels like the farmer who paces his acres, and has a pride that his foot falls on his own land.

It may be a very commonplace bit of the footstool which he has inherited. It may have its sordid streets; but even the most sordid of those streets may have a radiance all its own, because from one end to the other he once prayed, with all his fervor, that a blessed child might be spared to its agonized parents. Past the mean houses, past the squalid sheds, past the ugly alleys hastened the priest, while upward rushed his prayer. He did not know it then, but those very sordid surroundings burned themselves into his consciousness, and gave him a lasting sense of the unequal struggle that man wages with life if God is forgotten. On his return, hours later, the child out of danger, and the parents comforted, the consciousness of those buildings was mingled with his thanksgivings, and he had woven into the fabric of his life an experience which never permitted him to see on that street the ugliness of the surroundings, but the intensity of parent love, and the goodness of God.

Can a Parish long remain commonplace that becomes transformed by such experiences? Does the lover criticize the unpainted door when in answer to his knock that door is opened by his loved one? Does the father allow aestheticism to control his temperament when the soiled hand of a beloved hand reaches out to stroke his cheek in trust and responsive love? So with the priest. The mansion has no allurement that the humble home may not have for him, and his footsteps go indifferently, with eager tread, where God leads him whether through spacious parks to that hearth where gracious prosperity consecrates both heart and purse to Christ or through crowded little streets where noble simplicity gives its mite of possession, but wealth of affection, to Christ.

O yes, the Parish has its shadows as well as its lights. Some parts of the map are shaded, and he goes with heavy heart into these portions. Not necessarily because they are mean and unattractive. Sometimes they are not mean, but blossom as the rose. "Surely God is known in these palaces as a sure refuge." That is the thought of the priest as he sees these material blessings. Surely here may appeal be made and the satisfied life will pour out of its abundance to lighten the burdens of the many. His humor helps him in recognizing that children, no matter how old, playing with their toys, invent their own rules and methods of procedure, and interference or suggestion is met with petulance. The priest can but turn away, not judging, for he is not the judge, but laughing at the solemn and self-important way with which the dead-in-earnest imitators of real burden-bearers manipulate their playthings.

So the weather-beaten old Parish is his in its length and breadth. People walk the streets dimly supposing, if they think of it at all, that they are under the protection of the Flag. Side by side with the Flag is the Cross. They are under that also. The priest hinders no man in his movements in the Parish, but he says, "So long as you are here you must breathe its air and absorb the diffused elements in its environment." So it becomes his notion first, and later his conviction, that every man, woman and child is a parishioner. There he is right. The priest stands ready to do for each one what God would have done for each one. Can he do more? Or less? He prays for all in the Church. The bell rings into every man's ears.

So day by day the Parish grows dearer, more rich in human life and experience, and in the heart of it is the priest, reconciling men to God. That cannot be commonplace. So if you hear that your parson has a call to a prosperous Church, and has not gone, remember that he has enriched his own Parish by love, until the others seem poor by comparison. When he does go, it may be that his human heart has grown too sensitive to the trials and thrusts, by reason of that very love.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CLASSIFIED NEWS PARAGRAPHS

Of the Episcopal Church

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

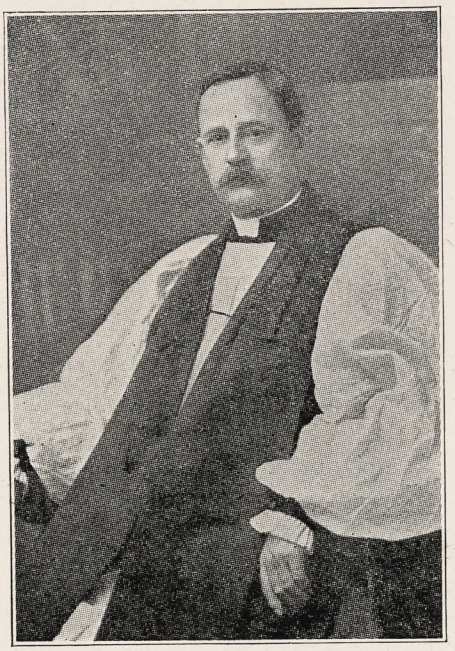
PREACHERS SAY

LeRoy Burroughs, pastor extraordinary at the State University of Iowa, said at the Racine Conference that folks should read their Bibles and Prayer Books. "Read them while shaving in the morning, or while washing the dishes, and meditate on what you read." Or if the home is a modern one let mother read while taking her after dinner smoke, and father can do it at the same time while he is washing the dishes.

* * *

Pastor Caleb Stetson of Trinity, New York, a church famous in the public mind because it stands at the head of Wall Street where money is made and lost without labor, was headlined last week for remarks he made casually about church weddings. It seems that Dr. Stetson is of the opinion that the church is a place for worship rather than for dress parade and that folks who never enter a church except at weddings should not be allowed to use the church as a background for photographs on such festive occasions.

AT THE FRONT



"The spirit of self-support is gaining steadily in the district of Kyoto (Japan)." So writes Bishop Nichols, with a list of new churches, parish houses and rectories enclosed.

* * *

Mr. Francis Wei, acting president of the Central China University, trained in Episcopal schools in China and at Harvard, in Massachusetts, hopes great things from the Nationalist movement in spite of the fact that his life has been threatened repeatedly by the extremists when he refused to turn the university over to them for communist teaching. He was later arrested as a communist himself in Shanghai but released after some difficulty.

* * *

Bishop Creighton of Mexico: "As a result of my observations during more than thirty visitations I am impressed with the fact that, despite many difficulties and under conditions which are unusual in the history of modern Christianity, we have suffered no retrogression nor has our work failed for lack of loyalty and effort on the part of our clergy and people." Hooker school has the largest enrollment in its history, and it has regular government inspection, and the government curriculum and regulations are followed. No religious instruction there. But "the constitutional provisions having to do with matters religious will admit of an interpretation sufficiently broad to give, eventually, full scope to our work." "Our duty as Churchmen in Mexico is to keep out of politics and to confine ourselves to our task of doing good in the name of the Master."

BISHOP BROWN
Dies Suddenly in London.

* * *

Constant difficulties in China, but the work goes on. Bishop Roots continues in Hankow (wants some laymen to come over to be treasurer of the district); Bishop Huntington has just ordained three deacons to the priesthood; Bishop Graves writes that services are going on as usual and that everyone is happy over the way the Chinese Christians have shouldered responsibility.

* * *

The Salvation Army is establishing a leper colony in India on the banks of the Ganges.

* * *

The Cuban Churchman, depressed over the present situation, with no universities, no hospitals, no medical work, few churches, few priests, is hopeful of the future since there are a couple of thousand children in the Church schools.

* * *

Bishop Graves writes from China that we should be happy that the work of the hospitals has been carried on. He recently presented diplomas to sixteen nurses who have completed training at three different Church hospitals. "Neat and business like nurses," he says.

* * *

Bishop Rowe of Alaska sailed from Seattle last month for his tri-annual trip to the Arctic.

CONFERENCES AND CONVENTIONS

New conference at Cloudcroft, New Mexico, an experiment which was so successful that it is to be repeated.

* * *

Oregon has had a three day course of study and recreation for its fifty-six lay readers.

* * *

There are millions of Jews who have forgotten their own religion who are as yet untouched by any other. It was this fact which was outstanding at the conferences in Budapest and Warsaw, where a hundred workers gathered to conside the "Christian Message and the Jew." Evangelical work among Jews was urged. John R. Y. M. C. A. Mott presided.

* * *

Two in one is the rule at the Hillsdale Conference. Adults and young people have separate classes but eat, sing, play and pray together. This conference under direction of the diocese of Michigan, in its sixth year, was well attended.

* * *

"I found God on the croquet ground." So announced a young lady who attended the summer school at Saratoga Springs. When asked to explain she said that it was there that she had met earnest consistent Christians who kept their tempers when they missed a shot. This conference which is for young people exclusively, brand new this year, is under the direction of the Rev. Arthur R. Cummings of Richmond Hill, Long Island.

* * *

No headliners or spellbinders on the program and yet the Gambier Conference this year was better than ever. Large attendance and a fine seriousness in classes and a lack of it outside. Dean White of Cleveland acted the perfect chaplain. Bishop Rogers had the largest class with a course of the Life of Christ.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

Valle Crucis School (figure out your own pronunciation) under the direction of the five Carolina dioceses closed a two weeks' session last week; good attendance but not as well scattered as it might be.

RURAL WORK

Bishop Johnson has held services this summer at places in Colorado that have had no church services of any kind for four years. There are places in the state of from 5,000 to 10,000 scattered population where no church services of any denomination are held.

* * *

Clergymen and workers from twenty-five dioceses attended the Madison, Wisconsin Rural Conference. Miss Agnes Penrose, Church Mission of Help, Albany, stressed the importance of the rural clergyman's work among the delinquent, pointing out that the temptations are often greater in the country than in the city.

Rev. Frank Gavin, professor, gave an address on "The Modern Trend of Religious and Philosophical Thinking." The world wants the truth unvarnished by doctrinal prejudice was the jist of it. A Methodist parson, the Rev. Dr. M. A. Dawber, said that the clergyman had to be the leader in everything in rural communities—cultural, mental, moral, physical and spiritual. Bishop Darst, crusader, stated that the Church is awake and that we were to go on with the work splendidly begun by the Bishops' Crusade. At the close of the session resolutions were passed endorsing various ideas and plans that had been presented to the group.

BUILDING

Cornerstone laid last month by Bishop Rogers for a a new St. Peter's Church, Lakewood, Ohio. The Rev. D. LeB. Goodwin is rector.

* * *

A new church and parish house has been contracted for at Springfield Gardens, Long Island—St. John's Parish.

* * *

Colored mission at Corona, Long Island, is to put up new buildings at once, likewise the mission at Floral Park.

* * *

New parish house is to be built this summer at St. Luke's, Fort Madison, La., Rev. J. H. Dew-Brittain rector.

* * *

St. Peter's, Bay Shore, Long Island, is building a new parish house. Rev. William R. Watson, rector.

DISTINCTLY WOMEN

Miss Mary S. Brisley has accepted an appointment as executive secretary of the New York branch of the Church Mission of Help. She comes to the job from Minneapolis, where she won a reputation in the Family Welfare Association. She succeeds Mrs. L. Frederic Pease who resigned because she is to move her home to New Haven.

* * *

Five nurses were admitted to the Guild of St. Barnabas for Nurses at Huntington, Indiana, by Bishop Gray. Miss Elizabeth Springer, superintendent of nurses in the hospital has done much to further the work of the Guild.

WARNING

Mr. Griffith, secretary to Bishop Longley of Iowa, the Rev. Frederick W. Clayton, in charge of All Saints, Omaha, for the summer, and the Rev. E. J. Randall, secretary of the diocese of Chicago, write in letters

CHURCH TRAINING
and
DEACONESS HOUSE
of Pennsylvania
For the training of Deaconesses, Missionaries, and Parochial Workers.
President, The Bishop of Pennsylvania. Warden, The Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, S. T. D.
Address
Deaconess Clara M. Carter
708 Spruce St. Philadelphia, Pa.

The Taylor Bell Foundry
LOUGHBOROUGH, ENGLAND
The World's Leading Bellfounders
CHURCH BELLS
SINGLY OR IN PEALS
CHIMES OR CARILLONS
AUTOMATIC OPERATION
Unequalled for Musical Qualities
Yale University — Birmingham, Ala.
Andover — Gloucester
Morristown — Cranbrook, Mich.
Harvard University
Germantown, Etc., Etc.
INQUIRIES SOLICITED

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation
◆ ◆ ◆
THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.
Chartered under Act of Congress.
Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.
Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.
◆ ◆ ◆
Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

St. Albans School
SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS
Diocese of Chicago
Sixty miles west of Chicago.
Five miles off the Lincoln Highway

SCHOLASTIC: Best of preparation for college. Boys this fall will be entered at Dartmouth, M. I. T., Yale, Princeton, Columbia, St. Stephens, Hobart, Kenyon, Annapolis, University of the South, Knox, Beloit, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Lafayette, Miami and Purdue.

ATHLETIC: Every boy has an opportunity to enter the sports — Foot Ball — Basketball — Tennis— Track — Golf — Baseball — The School for two years has had an enviable reputation.

RELIGIOUS: Great care has been given to have a good religious atmosphere. There are few obligatory services.

HOME LIFE: The School has been to capacity for six years. Great care has been used in the selection of boys. The group enrolled has made it possible to have a full honor system under a council and an atmosphere of an ideal home.

CONFERENCES: The Rector will be glad to make appointments at various centers during the summer. A visit to the school would be of value. The Chicago Office is Room 1411, Tower Building, Wednesdays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Address the School for literature and information.

ENROLLMENT: Last year boys came from Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Florida, Louisiana, Montana, Colorado, Wisconsin, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Alaska.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

to warn you against a man about 35, 5 feet, 11 inches; fair, medium brown hair; with a tooth in the lower jaw which is very noticeable because it isn't there. His name when last heard from was L. N. Sayre. Mr. Randall states that he claims to represent the National Council and the Church Pension Fund.

Mr. Griffith says he claims to represent THE WITNESS. (In any case he is a clever person who affiliates himself with prosperous institutions). Brother Clayton writes that Mr. Sayre swipped a bunch of All Saints' stationery and sat himself down and wrote a lot of nice introductory letters with the name of "F. W. Clayton" and "Thomas Casady" affixed. He also writes clergymen in remote centers on this stationary, begging cash for worthy causes. Tell the cops if he calls.

FINANCIAL

Close to two million dollars was contributed during 1926 through the parishes of Chicago for parochial, diocesan and general church work. Of this three quarters of a million was for current parochial expenses and another half million for special parochial expenses.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Six thousand children are enrolled in the Daily Vacation Bible Schools of Brooklyn. Of these schools fifteen are run in Episcopal Churches. The largest is at St. George's, Flushing, with enrollment of 155.

* * *

They get a full attendance at Anniston, Alabama, by means of the Gospel Bus. Five trips each Sunday—running about picking up the children and taking them home again after the school.

* * *

Miss Edna Eastwood, successful in religious educational work in Montana, is to take charge of the work at the Cathedral, Garden City, Long Island, this coming year.

* * *

PEOPLE

Canon Reade, smiling parson of Cincinnati, met with a serious accident on the way to the Gambier Conference. Car overturned, three fingers of his left hand had to come off. Yet he still smiles.

* * *

Bishop Reese, coadjutor bishop of Southern Ohio, on a forced rest on the M. D.'s say so, is taking a trip to the other side.

* * *

The Rev. Phillips Osgood, rector of St. Mark's, Minneapolis, has won a first prize of $500 for a sermon on the subject Eugenics offered by the American Eugenics Society.

* * *

Bishop William Cabell Brown of Virginia died of heart failure in London on July 25th. He was a member of the National Council, chairman of the House of Bishops 1922-1925 and was assessor to the Presiding Bishop. He is succeeded by Bishop Henry St. George Tucker.

* * *

Bishop Moreland of Sacramento, was recently the editor for a day of the big daily newspaper of his city, The Union. He directed the whole job and wrote the editorials himself in which he reminded journalists that they should uphold high standards and not stoop merely for the sake of sensations and the resulting circulation increase.

SOCIAL SERVICE

"To speak of social service as a department of Church work is a contradiction. Social service is the Gospel of Christ, not a department of it." So said the Rev. Harold Holt, assistant secretary of Social Service department, in an address before social service workers at Lakeside, Conn. "The national department, is, in the main, I should say, an evangelistic body and a clearing house of ideas. We are an evangelistic group

Virginia Episcopal School

Lynchburg, Virginia

PREPARES boys at cost for college. All equipment new and modern. A very healthy location on the suburbs of Lynchburg, within sight of the Blue Ridge mountains. The cost is made moderate through the generosity of the founders. A strong healthy religious atmosphere; an able faculty guaranteeing high scholastic standards, and a beautiful athletic field insuring the proper physical development of the growing boy. The school is a member of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States, which admits boys upon certificate to all colleges and universities where such method is accepted.

For catalog apply to

Rev. William G. Pendleton, D.D.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

primarily not a censoring body, not an administrative body but a body trying to get the world on a Christian basis by the recognition on the part of every constituent member of his social responsibility in his particular community."

* * *

The department (281 Fourth Avenue, New York) calls attention to three publications. First, reprint of papers on parochial, diocesan and provincial work, read at the Des Moines conference; second, the reprint of a paper read by the Rev. Edward S. White of St. Louis on the religious approach to S. S.; and a paper by Prof. Stuart Queen on the non-religious approach; third, a paper by Harrison Elliott of Union Seminary on mental hygiene and religious education. The first two cost fifteen cents each, the third, seventy-five cents, and this is not an advertisement.

* * *

Christ Church Cathedral, St. Louis, has a cathedral day each month for professional social workers—a service, then a conference, an hour for gossip and of course food. This could run under the GOOD IDEA head just as well as here.

* * *

The five dioceses of Pennsylvania have a joint committee on welfare legislation which informs churchmen of important pending social legislation. Also a GOOD IDEA.

SERVICES

Men and mules were too busy to bring members of a family from the farm to church for confirmation when a Bishop came the other day to a southern town. So the woman of the family took straw braid, made two hats, sold them for a dollar and paid a passing truck to bring her and her children to the service.

* * *

Bishop Garland of Pennsylvania ordained a large class of girl inmates of the state correctional institution, Sleighton Farms, presented by the Rev. Alfred Smith of the City Missions staff.

* * *

Rev. John B. Matthews, Marianna, Florida, was advanced to the priesthood recently by the Bishop of Florida.

FOREIGN BORN

Worcester, Mass., is soon to have a Syrian Jacobite clergyman from Jerusalem who comes to be the rector of St. Mary's Syrian Church. He was set apart in the Church of St. Mark, Jerusalem, which tradition says occupies the site of the house of St. Mark and the upper room. The Rev. Paul Samuel is his name and he is a chorepiscopus, which is not an "Ask Me Another" but a married priest, who exercises jurisdiction over other priests.

* * *

A Massachusetts parish—and there is nothing quite as American as a Massachusetts parish—had a confirmation class of nineteen recently. The class contained a Chinese, a Negro, a French woman, an Italian man—and two former Romanists.

EVANGELISM

Captain Mountford of the Church Army, has set to paper his impressions of the work done so far by the Army in Long Island which can be summed up with "encouraging." The clergy in whose parishes these missions have been held are more enthusiastic, "men of fine type, methods excellent, their visits stimulating and invigorating."

* * *

Two weeks' work for the Archdeacon of Utah, in June, outlined

St. Albans The National Cathedral School for Boys

Thorough Preparation for Leading Universities. Splendid equipment, unexcelled location on Mt. St. Alban overlooking Washington. Eight years' course. Athletics for Every Boy.

Address: WILLIAM H. CHURCH
Head Master, Washington, D. C.

SAINT MARY'S
Knoxville, Illinois

An accredited college preparatory school with special department for girls in the grades. Athletics. Music. Art. Expression. Secretarial and Business courses. For catalogue write to the Rector.

FREEHOLD
MILITARY SCHOOL
For 80 Select Young Boys

A school with the personal touch. Just enough military training to inculcate habits of obedience, promptness, orderliness, cleanliness and self-reliance. The students' comforts, pleasures and sports are as carefully considered as their mental training. Healthful location. 42 miles from N. Y., 66 miles from Phila. For catalog address. MAJOR CHAS M. DUNCAN, P. O. Box W, Freehold, N. J.

NURSING COURSE
of 2½ years, leading to R. N. degree.
Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll Now.
Send for full information to
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas,
Newark, N. J.

SHATTUCK
A Church School for Boys

For 67 years Shattuck has been a leader among college preparatory schools in the West. It is not operated for profit. It aims to develop
High Scholarship,
Manly Character,
Christian Citizenship.
The military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall. Address The Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

SOMERSET HILLS
A Progressive Country Day and Boarding School. Primary, Intermediate and Senior Departments. Prepares for leading Secondary Schools.
Individual instruction makes rapid progress possible.
Outdoor life in the country.
Address: Rev. James H. S. Fair,
Far Hills, New Jersey

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

ROWLAND HALL
A School for Girls in the Wasatch Mountains
Salt Lake City, Utah
BISHOP MOULTON, Rector.

NASHOTAH HOUSE
Founded in 1842
Theological Seminary and Collegiate Department
For particulars address the dean
NASHOTAH HOUSE
Nashotah, Wisconsin

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 115 Franklin St., New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs, chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens. Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT
SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y. References required.

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., LTD., 28 MARgaret Street, London, England. Craftsmen in Ecclesiastical Art. Woodwork, Metal Work. Vestments, Embroidery. Information and all particulars can be obtained through their distributor, Mr. Adrian A. Buck, 665 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London W 1 England

'Wanted, a pair of three-branch candle sticks. Any parish having a pair they would donate to a mission or sell at a reasonable price are requested to communicate with James Irving, Senior Warden, St. Paul's Church, Pipestone, Minn."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

by request, began with a trip from Provo, where he is in charge of St. Mary's Church, to Logan, in the northern end of the state, 130 miles each day, to take over the work from the Rev. Allen Jacobs, who was leaving for the Cathedral in Reno.

Next came a trip to the Coal Camps at Helper, where he hopes to build a church this summer. Helper is the center of some two dozen or more coal camps on the Denver and Rio Grande R. R., about 90 miles southeast of Provo. There are quite a number of Churchmen in these camps. The larger part of the population is composed of miners from the British Isles who are more in sympathy with our Church than with the denominations. The Home Missions Council of Utah some years ago asked us to promote work there.

The following Monday at daybreak Archdeacon Bulkley started on a 330-mile drive through the hills and across the desert to Ely, Nevada, where he arrived at 5 p. m., to meet the Bishop, returning from the Church Congress at San Francisco, and take him to Ibapah.

Then followed 110 miles to the Ibapah Indian Reservation, in western Utah. There are a couple of hundred Indians on this reservation. No religious work has been done there. The agent, Mr. Briganze, is anxious to have us take services there and it is planned to do so.

Then back, 275 miles across the Salt Desert and Wendover road to Provo, to get ready for Sunday. This, Mr. Bulkley says, is not much more than ordinary summer work.

GIFTS AND MEMORIALS

Washington Cathedral announces an unusual gift. Mrs. Ridgeley Hunt, whose collection of rare lace is famous, has given a strip of Spanish Needle Point lace, dating about 1640, for the altar of the Cathedral. The only other piece of similar lace of this period is in the Albert Victoria museum of London.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California
A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited, R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

LORAINE
3 Ocean Parkway Ocean Grove, N. J.
FULL OCEAN VIEW
Located on one of the most Beautiful avenues in the resort at the Boardwalk.
TABLE A FEATURE
Hot and cold running water in all rooms.
Telephone: Asbury Park 5196. F. W. Rohland

25,000 CHURCHES USE
OSTERMOOR CUSHIONS.
BUILT - NOT STUFFED.
Illustrated Booklet and Samples Free
Old Cushions renovated and recovered equal to new
Ostermoor & Co., Inc., Dept. C, 114 Elizabeth St., N.Y.

ST. ANNE'S Open Air School, Box W, Charlotteville, Va. Beautiful location in far famed Blue Ridge Mountains. College preparatory and elective courses. Fully accredited by State Board of Education. Open gymnasium allows sports in the fresh air in all weather. Riding taught by expert. Music. Art. Bishop of Virginia, President of Trustees. Laura Lee Dorsey, Principal.

Hannah More
DIOCESAN SCHOOL OF MARYLAND
Founded 1832
A Country School for Girls, fifteen miles from Baltimore. College Preparatory and General Courses. Music. Art. Supervised Athletics. Terms $600 to $800.
Principal
MISS LAURA FOWLER, A. B.
Box W, Reisterstown, Maryland

"ENTER TO GROW IN WISDOM"

For Information About the Requirements for Entrance

Address the Dean,
Trinity College
Hartford, Connecticut

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland.
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore.
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago.
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago.
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago.
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City.
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily, 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily, 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

A Nevada miner who died recently left his entire estate of $30,000 to St. Mark's Hospital, Salt Lake City.

* * *

St. Paul's, Buffalo, has received two legacies this past month to be added to the permanent endowment —$1,000 from the estate of Dr. Samuel D. Flagg of St. Paul, Minnesota and $50,000 from General Edmund Hayes.

ANNIVERSARIES

St. Paul's, Franklin, Tennessee, is the oldest church in that state—erected in 1825, with the first vestry elected in 1827. So this month sometime they plan a celebration there with the high dignitaries and all that goes with such a party.

* * *

St. Mark's Cathedral, Salt Lake City, celebrated the 60th anniversary of its founding last month.

Young Peoples Column

By Rev. W. A. Jonnard

PUBLICITY

IT may be argued by some that the youth of today are being given too much publicity, but what about youth's activities in the Church?

Even the best informed are surprised when reports come in to Diocesan or Provincial Headquarters telling of the work of our own young people in the Five Fields of Service. It would be well if certain self-appointed critics of youth, whose stock in trade seems to be a mass of glittering generalities of condemnation which they hurl at the youth of today, could be informed of the splendid service that thousands of our own youth in the Church are rendering.

But information is seldom available. One of our young people from Georgia wrote a company in Virginia handling a certain form of Church supplies asking if they made badges for Young People's Organizations, and this paragraph appeared in the letter, giving our young friend a rude jolt:

"As the assistant superintendent of an Episcopal Sunday School, I have never heard of the Young People's Service League. Where is their national headquarters? I'd like to know more about it."

The comment of the young person who sent the letter to me was very much to the point. It was: "He needs to be told." What better argument for publicity?

This was over a year ago. But, to cap the climax, I wrote the Company myself and received this reply:

"Thank you very much for your letter of November 1st, about the Young People's Service League. We have not heard anything from Miss Blank, and inquiry of one of the

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York.
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D.
Sundays, 8 and 11 a. m.

Trinity Church, New York.
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York.
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York.
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, and 11 A. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp & Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address
THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:
REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write
REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address
REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — in a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

Diocesan Representatives here fails to give us any information. If you have any information about this organization, I should certainly appreciate it."

Won't The Witness please page Bishop Murray and have him once again broadcast the wonderful achievement of the Young People's Service League of the Province of Sewanee who, in Jacksonville, and in his presence, presented as a Thank Offering, the sum of $1500.00 to the Provincial Department of Religious Education.

Or, let him who doubteth come to the Young People's Department of the Sewanee Summer Training School and hear the reports of Service given by wholesale.

The "Publicity Man" for a group of Gamma Kappa Delta's in Illinois writes me: "The play is over now and we have one hundred and twenty dollars more in our treasury than before, most of which is already pledged to the Church. But I don't think that is the greatest gain we derived from the play. It has given our young people's organization a good start on the years activities. We have experienced the joy that comes only from cooperation in hard work and interesting work. We got a good organized start for our activities of the season which are many."

My own Young People's League netted over two hundred dollars recently and had the same experience. With this sum they are doing a lot of work, and sending two delegates to the Summer School at Sewanee.

Clerical Changes

BLANKENSHIP, Rev. A. Hugo, resigns as rector of Emmanuel, Alexandria, Va., to become dean of Holy Trinity Cathedral, Havana, Cuba.

BURLESON, Rev. Theodore M., recently ordained deacon (third generation in the ministry—nephew of Bishop of S. D.), has been appointed in charge of St. James, Cashmere, Washington.

ELLEGOR, Rev. F. Wilcom, of New Rochelle, N. Y., has accepted the rectorship of St. Philip's, Syracuse, N. Y.

GIBSON, Rev. Franklin L., assistant at the Cathedral, Los Angeles, has accepted a call to St. Athanasius, Los Angeles.

JOHNSON, Rev. Charles Paddock, former member of Princeton faculty, who has just completed a course at the General Seminary, has been appointed student chaplain at Princton.

PAGE, Rev. John Mitchell, student chaplain University of Illinois resigns to accept charge of American Church at Dresden, Germany.

STONE, Rev. Morton, resigns as rector of the Holy Nativity, Beverly Hills, Chicago, to accept appointment as chaplan at University of Illinois.

SHOESMITH, Rev. Thomas, resigns as rector of All Saints, Lehighton, Pa., to accept the rectorship of Christ Church, Stroudsburg, Pa.

TRACY, Rev. H. L., resigns as head of Mississippi State School for the Deaf to become general missionary to the deaf in the four Virginia dioceses and Washington.

WRINCH, Rev. H. G., resigns as rector of Grace, Wabasha, Minnesota, to be assistant of Gethsemane, Minneapolis.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.000 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, social. or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, Pesident,
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address
THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to
REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
College Preparatory and General Courses
MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

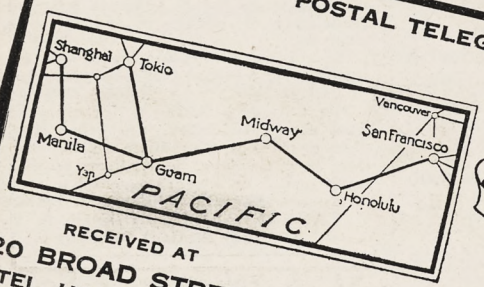
CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:
DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

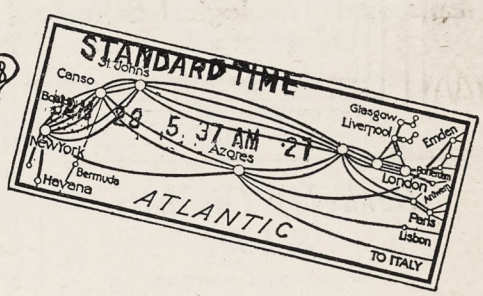
ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson



Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.



Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

COMMERCIAL CABLES

POSTAL TELEGRAPH (Landline System Throughout the United States)

THE MACKAY SYSTEM
COMMERCIAL CABLES
POSTAL TELEGRAPH
"THE PULSE OF THE WORLD"
CLARENCE H. MACKAY, PRESIDENT.

RECEIVED AT 20 BROAD STREET
TEL. HANOVER 1140

3CM FP27

PARIS 69
LCD WARD WELLS DRESHMAN AND GATES FOUR HUNDRED SEVENTYFIVE FIFTH AVENUE NY

274

BOARD OF GOVERNORS AMERICAN HOSPITAL OF PARIS CONGRATULATE YOUR FIRM ON THE GREAT SUCCESS OF OUR FOURTH CAMPAIGN IN FIVE YEARS UNDER DIRECTION YOUR MISTER KEEN STOP HIS CONTRACT WAS MADE TO RAISE THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS
AND FINAL REPORT MEETING TODAY BRINGS TOTAL TO THREE HUNDRED FIFTEEN THOUSAND SEVEN HUNDRED DOLLARS

WILLIAM R HEREFORD HONORARY SECRETARY

In four successful campaigns during five years, the firm of Ward, Wells, Dreshman & Gates has been instrumental in raising $1,266,000 for this hospital—"an imperishable, unbreakable tie between France and America."
(Ambassador Herrick)

Ward, Wells, Dreshman & Gates

Philanthropic Organization and Finance

475 Fifth Avenue, New York 612 Wrigley Building, Chicago

Originators of the Intensive Method of Fund Raising

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, AUGUST 11, 1927

REV. W. G. PENDLETON

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS

Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street

Designers of

HISTORICAL WINDOWS

Washington Memorial Chapel

Valley Forge, Pa.

Clerestory Windows

St. Thomas Church New York City

Stained Glass, Mural Decorations,

Glass Mosaics

The Charm of Golden-Voiced Chimes

is within reach of your church, too!

Imagine the rich, musical tones of

Deagan Tower Chimes

coming from the belfry of your church—a constant inspiration to worship; a golden voice eagerly awaited by multitudes every day. Write for plan.

Standard Sets $6,000 and Up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 697 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER

and 4 & 5 Duncannon St:

Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery

Wood

Stone

Metal and

Stained Glass

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.

Baltimore, Md.

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir.

Altar Linens, Embroideries, Materials. Clerical and Lay Tailoring.

J. M. HALL, Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403)

(Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND

220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows

Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates on application to

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders

of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

R. GEISSLER, INC.

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

EST. 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings

Gorgeous Combinations of Color

Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts.

NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE. N. J

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— Office and Studio —

221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

— Photos, Designs and Estimates upon Application —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XI. No. 51 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE CHURCH

The Vine In America

BY BISHOP JOHNSON

IT SEEMS as though the New World was reserved in the Providence of God for the assembling of all the various religious convictions and institutions which had taken root in Europe, and transplanted them in new soil in order, possibly, that the fit might survive.

The necessities and hardships of settlers in a new country forced America to become the cradle of free speech, free thought and free action.

In the first place, every kind of religion came over here and in the second place, none of them had sufficient preeminence over the rest to dominate the others successfully.

In 1607 the Established Church settled in Virginia. In rapid succession the Puritans invaded New England, the Dutch Reformed, New York, the Roman Catholics, Maryland, the Quakers, Pennsylvania, and the Baptists, Rhode Island.

Melting Pot

The Colonies became a melting pot for all sorts and conditions of Christians. Into this medley the Church brought that which she had received—the faith, the sacraments, and a commissioned ministry.

This was the essence of the Vine, but there were certain things which hung on the branches of the vine, which were destined to cause the Church great embarrassment.

She was the established Church of England, having as her chief pastor, the Bishop of London.

She was destined to feel all of the odium and few of the blessings which went with this alliance. Moreover, her candidates in the United States must cross the ocean to be ordained and then must take an oath of allegiance to the King at ordination,—an oath which was to cause great searchings of conscience to many in the days of revolution.

She was also confined to the use of the English Prayer Book, but without any prayer books in the pews. Small prayer books were very rare and exceedingly expensive.

The churches were practically without them, the clerk making the responses and the congregation relying upon memory for such responses as they made.

For a period of 170 years there were no confirmations, ordinations, or Episcopal ministrations of the Church in the Colonies.

Very few of the sixty clergy in the colonies in 1700 ever had surplices. Of these sixty clergy, forty lived in Maryland and Virginia.

The atmosphere in which the Church existed (except in the few cities) was almost identical to that found today in the mountains of Tennessee, where live the survivors of those days.

Low Morale

The first clergy who came over were consecrated men, but under the conditions, standards dropped and at the time of the Revolution the morale was not high.

During the 18th century and prior to the Revolution, the colonies were swept by a religious revival known as the Great Awakening, which started in Northampton, Massachusetts, by one Jonathan Edwards (1735); swept down the Atlantic Seaboard to Georgia, where it was taken up by a priest of the Church, George Whitefield, who carried it back to New England in a perfect conflagration of religious emotion without any corresponding accompaniment of high moral obligations.

It was crude and fiery and furnished the materials out of which Coke and Asbury built up the Methodist Church, drawing off large numbers of Englishmen trained in the Church of England, but neglected by her in the colonies.

Whitefield was the type of a reformer who villified everybody (especially his brother clergy of the Church) if they refused to accept his methods as the true way of life.

John Coode

There was another priest of those days who reminds us of some of our modern prophets. He filled the pulpit of his church on Sunday, lectured on the absurdities of Christianity during the week and discredited the Church of which he was a minister by his own eccentricities. His name was John Coode and he held forth in Maryland.

In this pre-revolutionary period Edwards and Whitefield regarded religion as primarily a matter of personal experience manifesting itself in some external enthusiasm.

No one doubts the sincerity of these men; the results failed to justify their assurance.

They burnt over the field and left the residue charred and infertile. They affected men zealously but not well.

The aftermath of the Great Awakening was wide-spread infidelity, championed by Tom Paine and exemplified in the cynical attitude of men toward religion. The rather sordid maxims of Poor Richard's Almanac formed the chief spiritual inspiration of the period which ushered in the Revolution.

The Revolution split the clergy in two groups: those who regarded their ordination oath to the King as a moral obligation and those who disregarded it in the interests of freedom.

Samuel Seabury remained loyal to his ordination vow; White and Provoost felt justified in ignoring it. More than sixty clergy of the Anglican Church were banished or suffered indignities, because of their Tory affiliations.

It mattered not to the mob that many of the most eminent Churchmen were leaders of the Revolution, and without them the inarticulate populace could have done nothing. The church bore the odium of its English attachment, especially from that large proportion of the population whose patriotism became active as soon as the war had been concluded.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Revolution severed the Church from her patron, the Bishop of London, and from her almoner, the Society for the Propogation of the Gospel. The clergy were left without salaries, without any corporate assembly, and without any popularity.

Heavy Baggage

As Bishop John Williams expressed it, "The Church was regarded as a piece of heavy baggage which the British had left behind in her evacuation of the Colonies."

Moreover, there were few clergy who had espoused the side of the patriots and were therefore acceptable to their own congregations.

Something had to be done to conserve that which remained.

In Maryland, Dr. William Smith, irascible, able and not over pious, led the Maryland clergy to organize for the protection of their property and income.

He gave the name, Protestant Episcopal, to the corporation which he formed and thus unconsciously committed us to this title, which was a prudent name in those times, but rather bulky for posterity.

He also is responsible for a much more primitive and acceptable practice. He invited laymen to sit with the clergy in this initial convention.

For more than a century this Church was the only ecclesiastical assembly in the United States of America which gave to the laymen an equal voice and vote in ecclesiastical affairs. We can forgive him the nomenclature in view of this happy restoration of the laity to their rightful position in Church affairs.

Samuel Seabury

In New England, under the leadership of Samuel Seabury, devout, resourceful and energetic, the Church assembled at Woodbury, Connecticut (1783) for a similar purpose but with a different emphasis. Since the days when Timothy Cutler, President of Yale College, and his associates had forsaken their Congregational affiliations for a ministry which had apostolic authority (1720), the Church in Connecticut had been devoted to the need of an Episcopate, and their concern was not for property but for valid orders. They elected Seabury as their Bishop and sent him to Great Britain for such consecration as he could get—if possible from England, if not from the Scotch Non-jurors, who were in the same disfavor with the English Establishment as were the Colonial rebels.

In Pennsylvania the Reverend William White, versatile, diplomatic and of unquestioned patriotism assembled the clergy and laity to effect a merger of the Church in the various colonies.

Merger

These three ideas, which originated separately, were to be subsequently merged, but they formed the questions for debate in the first convention of the Church, which met in Philadelphia (1784) and at which were representatives, clerical and lay, from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and South Carolina, Connecticut was dubious and Massachusetts was cautious. The latter sent a letter and the former held aloof. This aloofness was justifiable in view of the fact that the Convention settled down, not only to secure the Episcopate, but to dilute the Prayer Book in its theology and to delete from the Prayer Book everything that might give offense. The brashness of this first convention may be attributed to the fact that they were new at the business and optimistic as to the reception of their crude suggestions.

The Revised Prayer Book found little favor in the Colonies, and no favor at all from the English Prelates when their proposed revision became known.

In order to secure the Episcopate they had to retract their mangling of the Prayer Book and in order to win the cooperation of Connecticut they had to compromise their proposal to make the Bishops, when obtained, a sort of annex to the Convention rather than an integral part thereof.

Bishops were coming to the federated colonies laboring under great suspicion, from which suspicion they have not yet entirely escaped. No Episcopate ever was given such restricted powers and to this day, the energy of Roman Catholics and Methodists as compared with the inactivity of the Church is largely due, in my judgment, to the fact that those bodies are administered by a group of superintendents, while we have received our inspiration from a General Convention.

The final article in this series will appear next week.

Our Cover

WILLIAM G. PENDLETON is the headmaster of the Virginia Episcopal School at Lynchburg, Virginia, a school which he has brought to the front until today it is one of the finest of the Church schools. Dr. Pendleton was graduated from William and Mary College in 1903 and from the Virginia Seminary in 1907. He served as rector of two parishes in Virginia before taking up his present work.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

The minister was taking to task one of the young members of his flock. "William," he said, "I hear that you have been raising false hopes in several maiden hearts. If rumor does not lie, you are engaged to one girl in this village, another in Little Mudford, and a third in Ditchley. How do you come to do such a thing?"

William grinned uneasily. "Why, you see, I've got a bicycle," he replied.

* * *

The boat was sinking. The skipper rushed up to a crowd of scared passengers.

"Who among you can pray?" he asked them.

"I can," answered the minister.

"Then pray, mister," ordered the skipper. "The rest of you put on life-preservers. We're one short."

* * *

"How did the Smith wedding go off?"

"Fine until the parson asked the bride if she'd obey her husband."

"What happened then?"

"She replied, 'Do you think I'm crazy?' and the groom, who was in a sort of daze, replied, 'I do'."

* * *

Tombstone Dealer (after several futile suggestions)—How would just a simple "Gone Home" do for an inscription?

The Widow—I guess that will be all right. It was always the last place he ever thought of going.

* * *

Vicar to his Sexton "I find our garden fete is fixed for the same day as the eclipse. I think I must get it put off."

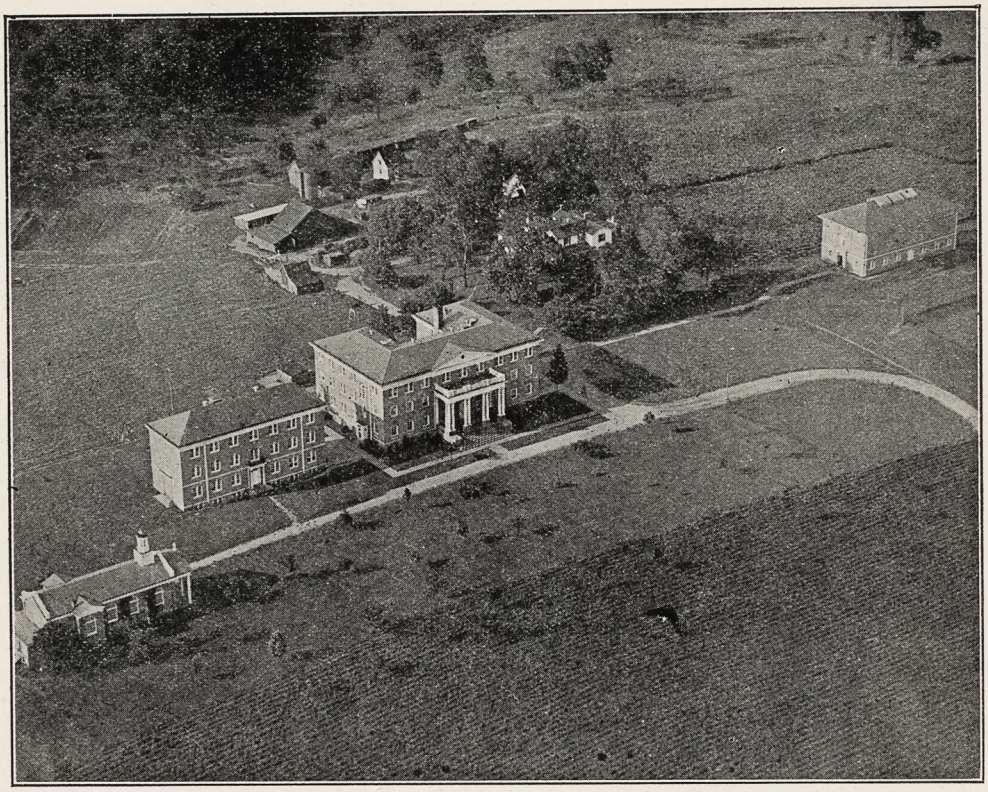
Sexton "You couldn't hardly do that, Sir, not a total eclipse you couldn't."

* * *

In a small village a new letter-box had been installed, causing much comment among the village children as to whom it belonged.

"It must be the minister's," said one little lad.

"It can't be," contradicted another, "don't you see what it says on it—'No collection on Sundays'?"



Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

VIRGINIA EPISCOPAL SCHOOL

By

REV. THOS. M. BROWNE

Rector, St. John's Church, Lynchburg, Va.

THE Church preparatory school stands as an answer to the challenge of an enlightened and informed demand for an adequately religious, moral and educational foundation.

I believe the Virginia Episcopal School has taken its place at the forefront of our preparatory schools. Its record in its short history attests better than words the reason for its high rank among Church schools. The history of the school is unique and very interesting. It is a real venture of faith which has borne beautiful results.

Some years ago a small group of men, under the leadership of Rev. Joseph B. Dunn, D. D., then Rector of St. Paul's Church, Lynchburg, Va., caught a vision of the great need and opportunity for a Church school for boys of limited means. After several efforts to induce the Diocese of Southern Virginia to launch such an undertaking, these men formed themselves into a Board of Trustees, and determined to found the school. A site of about one hundred and forty acres of land was obtained on the suburbs of Lynchburg, and a charter was obtained providing for the preservation of the property to the Church, and also that the school shall always be conducted at a minimum cost, so that boys of small means may perpetually enjoy its advantages. In order to keep the cost low, all equipment of course must be donated. At present the school has a plant conservatively valued at about $300,000, all of which has been the gift of friends of the movement. The Board showed its wisdom in selecting for the first Rector of the school Rev. Robert C. Jett, then Rector of Emmanuel Church, Staunton, Va. The school stands today as a perpetual monument to his work. He brought to the school a lovable personality, a true Christ-like character and an enthusiasm for the work which has been an inspiration to all with whom he has come in contact. He has stamped his own personality and character upon the institution in such a way that in the short time it has been in operation it has made an enviable reputation for its high moral and religious atmosphere. When Dr. Jett was elected as the first Bishop of the new Diocese of Southwestern Virginia, Rev. William G. Pendleton succeeded him as Rector of the School. He came to the school in 1920, and is successfully upholding the high standards set by his predecessor.

From the day the school opened its doors in 1916, it has been filled to capacity. At the present time it has accommodations for one hundred and fifty boarders.

Two aspects of her life stand out plainly, a vital religious atmosphere and an academic standing of the highest order, the latter maintained under difficulty on account of the low tuition charge.

Religious instruction is required in every form, giving the boy continuous contact with the ideals and impulses of Christian life. It cannot be emphasized too strongly in these days that education must be undergirded by a fine and intelligent Christian foundation. Linked up with her religious instruction is the Chapel, a beautiful building and a fine contribution to the Church's work. This building was an outright gift from a friend of the school. It is the heart of the school, and she feels that the Christian life of her boys is much more vital because of her having her own Chapel on the grounds.

From an academic standpoint her curriculum and teaching staff are of the very highest caliber. It is a real source of satisfaction to all interested that the graduates of V. E. S hold first rank in scholastic standing at our University. At the close of the past session, three of her graduates were elected to Phi Beta Kappa at the Universities of the state.

The boy's physical welfare is also continued and developed by compulsory gymnasium work and athletics of all kinds. Thus spiritually, mentally and physically V. E. S. presents a balanced preparation for Life.

The ideals of the founders of this institution demand recognition from the Church at large. She is determined that her religious life and her academic standards shall be maintained, but her policy of low tuition in order to open her doors to boys of moderate circumstances creates a serious problem. Comparison of the tuition of V. E. S. and schools of similar standing will be of interest. The school must depend for a measure of her support from persons who are interested in Church school education and able to assist financially.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

It was my privilege to be associated with V. E. S. several years ago in her religious instruction department. I experienced the fascination of her ideals and life, and I know of no more satisfying opportunity for doing great and still greater good than by interest in and gifts to the school. I heartily commend V. E. S. to the Church.

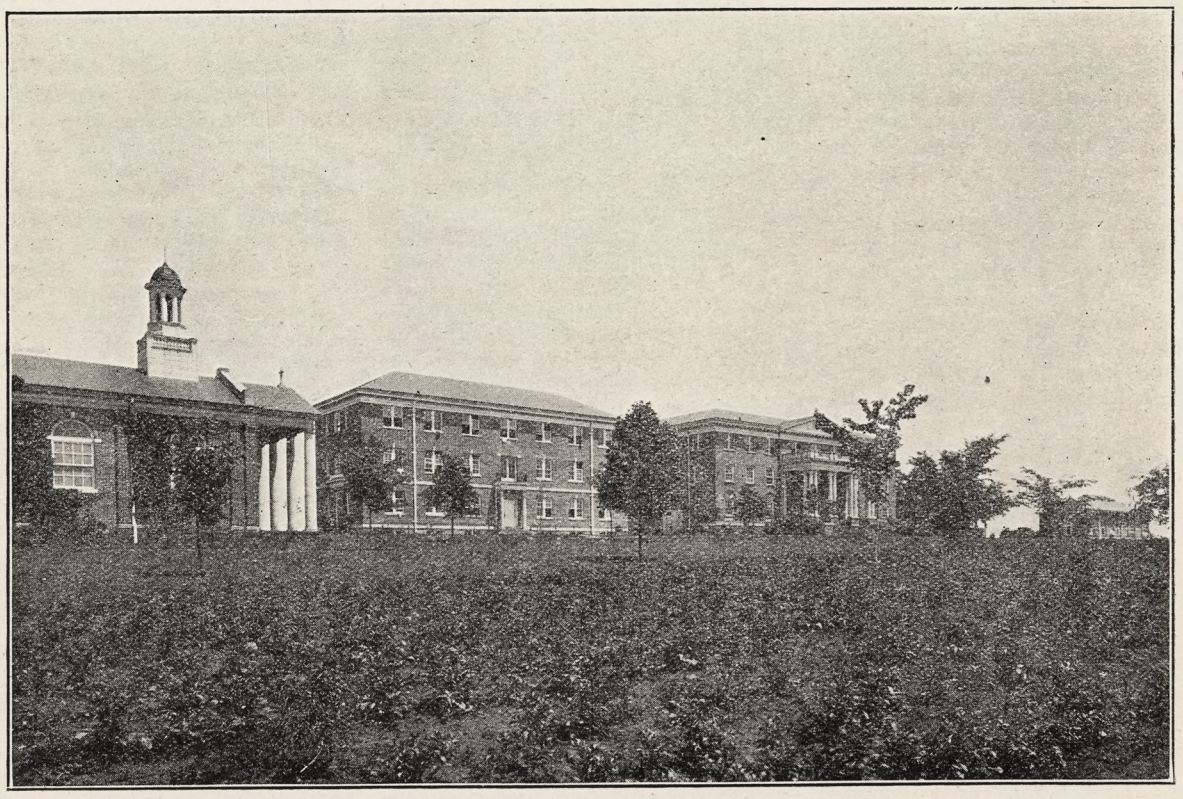
In her case the saying that "A prophet is not without honor save in his own country," does not hold true, as attested by the following editorial which recently appeared in the Lynchburg News, the daily paper owned and operated by Senator Carter Glass. This is even more striking when we learn that no one connected with the paper is a member of the Episcopal Church.

"One of the finest little praparatory schools in the State nestles in the hills a few miles from Lynchburg. Unheralded to the stranger, hard to find by the traveler or tourist, Virginia Episcopal School looms upon the horizon today as one of the best prep schools in the South.

"A member of the Southern Association of Accredited Secondary Schools, V. E. S. has adhered strictly to the requirements of this conference. Her faculty members are graduates of standard colleges; no more than five periods a day are taught by any teacher, thereby assuring the maximum efficiency of teaching effort; equipment of a literary and laboratory nature are at par or better. All of the standards of a modern school which insure for success are at hand. Yet it is the spirit of the school which makes it outstanding in the State. One is impressed with the feeling that he is among young gentlemen when he puts his foot on the campus. A spirit of real friendship and cordiality greets you. Kindness and courtesy are evidenced at every turn. And when you enter the institution you are amazed at other things. You find that the students' councils are in control of the school. They enjoy the utmost confidence of the president and the faculty. You can even find the student correcting his own examination papers. Sounds good, you say, but impracticable? But sit down and experience the thing and you will find that it is good.

"And when teams visit this little school for "battle to the death," you will find them treated as if they were at home. Nothing is left undone to make the 'invaders' feel as if they were within the walls of their own school.

"Recently a visiting team defeated V. E. S. at baseball by a very one-sided score. Not one minute, from the beginning of the game, when the home team was on even terms, until the last man was called out, did the V. E. S. student body cease their cheering for their favorites. And after the game, many, many times the writer heard the losers congratulating the members of the successful team.



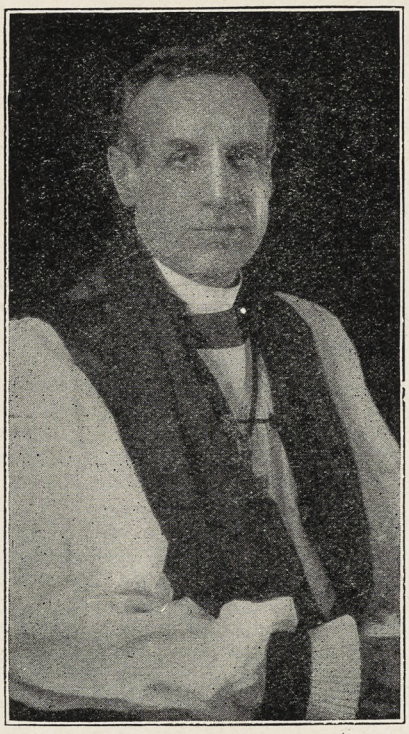
"It was truly a delightful occasion. It made an old-timer feel that the world was good after all, and that humanity was at as high a state of genuineness as ever. It made our heart warmer that V. E. S. existed and reconvinced us that our faith in fair competition, loyalty and red blood of our young American manhood was not in vain."

One Priest a Decade

By Rev. Samuel S. Drury

WHEN people ask whether there will be a Boy Conference on the Ministry this spring, and the answer is No, an explanation should accompany that important negative. It may be remembered that at St. Paul's School, among other places, conferences of boys on the Ministry have been held. The wide support of these conferences, their numerical significance, and the general spirit of wholesome comradeship therein developed, naturally prompt the question: When will there be another? The answer is: "We are ready to have another whenever the time seems ripe. The equipment is offered, the considerable financial backing required could probably be obtained, and to secure thirty clerics and laymen to act as leaders would not be difficult." Why then not have another?

I am told that the theological semi-



A View of Virginia Episcopal School

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

naries of the church are filling up. It is pointed out that perhaps through normal channels, without undue stressing, the Church is training enough officers for her army. For clerical statistics our most reliable supply would seem to be the office of the Church Pension Fund. Through that we learn that there are connected with parishes or missions 4,525 clergy. The Church Almanacks inform us that there are about one million communicants in the Church. That would mean for one minister, 217 people. It is fairer to base calculations on baptized persons. Here the figures are less easily obtainable, and must be conjectural. If we hazard the guess that there are 3,000,000 persons connected with, or looking to, the Episcopal Church, we find that the shepherding must be more widely spread. Is one shepherd sufficient for a flock of 650 souls?

Wise heads must ponder and temperate tongues must say whether we have, at this time, enough ministers in the Episcopal Church. Clearly our zeal for members should never lead to an ineffective ministry, an ignorant or backgroundless ministry; and as clearly it should not involve a ministry meanly recompensed. The cause of religion is not served by the shallowly prepared, though it has often been advanced by the meagerly paid. The latter is a reproach to the laity; the former is the burden of the Bishops. We need fearless and friendly investigation, resulting in publication. There is an economic factor which must be faced. Can a group of 217 confirmed people meet a budget which must include suitable maintenance for the pastor? Are the laymen of the Church willing to face that issue, here and now? Again, should a group of 217 confirmed persons, which we declare may rightly mean a flock of 650, be entrusted to an ill-educated or second-rate pastor? Must we conclude that a church like ours, which prides itself on a cultured clientele is, after all, unable to produce from itself enough clergymen for its future needs?

What interests me most is the church a decade, two decades hence. Supposing we have just enough parsons today, shall there be sufficient officers, apt and meet, learned, alert, cultured and sacrificing in 1937? Somehow I doubt it. When I realize, for example, that just in this province three effective and godly pastors of fifty have died within the month, carried off in their prime, I sadly ask: "Who shall rise up to take their places?" Perhaps some fledgling will be found; which will be as bad for the place as for him. Nothing is worse for the church than to push callow inexperience into posts requiring mellowed consideration. I am always regretful when I hear that young Mr. So-and-So, under thirty, has been offered the rectorship of the big church on the corner. He belongs, for a half decade of tutelage, off on the moors, where so many sages and saints of the English Church have spent their clerical youth; or in country lanes, where he might direct his leisure toward that deepening which our seminaries somehow do not induce. The last of life for which the first was made is the important part. The first twenty years of a man's ministry should be spent in obscurity.

BISHOP BOOTH
Leader at Albany Conference

Where are the men of ripened experience, men between forty and fifty, who can fill these sudden and sad vacancies? Can you, brother cleric, count twenty men of ripe middle-age whom you would confidently call to the parish where you might as laymen thoughtfully worship? No, the supply is scanty and the outlook is slim.

The real solution lies not in summer conferences however bright they be. It lies at home. Responsibility, like all the other virtues, begins at home. The increase of the ministry starts at home literally, of course, by the fireside, and almost as emphatically at the parish altar. The parish is that arable land whence candidates for the priesthood should spring; and therefore, although it were easy and pleasant to have another conference on the ministry for boys from all over the church, such as we are quite ready to have any June, this won't solve the problem. The parish must be the unit of supply. Priest and laymen should scrutinize the situation at home. They should blazon the question, from pulpit and from pew: Is our parish self-supporting? Even if plethoric with money, our parish may be running up a big deficit in man supply. We should ask where our present minister was produced; and where in the church are the priests who spent their boyhood with us? Is our parish, so far as candidates for the ministry goes, a parasite parish? To be explicit, decade by decade in the last fifty years, how many priests has our parish supplied to the church at large? Have we produced none and lived on other supplies? Are we parasites? It would make a not-too-local historical sermon if the rector were to recount the acts of our parish since 1827, with an especial study of the number of priests produced,— who they were, what they did, where they are.

A constant supply of able men for the ministry is about the most important of our present defects. Let us study it all together, and fearlessly print even our half-baked opinions? Why can't we be franker in fixing salaries, firmer in refusing, more zealous in recruiting? Will not every parish consider adopting as a sort of slogan: One priest a decade?, so that the causes of the Spirit, as the years pass, will be met by a steady supply of faithful and fit pastors?

Books

The Life of Prayer in a World of Science — William Adams Brown, Ph. D., D. D. Charles Scribner's Sons, N. Y. $2.25.

One of the most useful books on prayer, its significance and its difficulties, which has appeared in recent years.

Thoroughly scholarly and modern, it is at the same time devout and reverent, and, like everything of Dr. Brown's, is beautifully and interestingly written. This book ought to help anyone who finds prayer, not only why but how and when, a problem. There is a very full bibliography.

As Man to Man—Conde B. Pallen. The MacMillan Co., N. Y. $2.50.

The Editor of the Catholic Encyclopedia discusses Roman Catholic faith and practice in a series of imaginary conversations in commuter's smoker. Mr. Pallen is very skillful in erecting men of straw and then throwing them down and completely destroying them. It is hard to imagine however, even Protestants quite so stupid and ill-informed as some he encounters. With due allowance for special pleading the book ought to be a useful piece of painless propaganda. It is interestingly written and packed with information,— most of it accurate.

Frank R. Myers.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE PEOPLE OF THE PARISH

Their Relationship to the Priest

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

THE people! God bless them. What an assortment they are. When you have them on your heart, and likewise on your hands, they become the most important group of people in the world, for, humanly speaking, your career in your Parish lies in their hands. The Parson first dreams of moulding them into the forces they should be, and then he learns by experience to accept them as they are. If you ever have left a Parish, you know how quickly some of the people fade from memory, but you remember others with a grip that does not relax. Note when you go back for the first time how the people receive you, and note the doorsteps toward which your steps naturally turn. As a young Priest I went back to my first Parish. I had an idea that my return would cause a mild sensation. The first man I met was one that in my youthful enthusiasm I had endowed with an eternal interest in me and my work, although he had not gone to Church in my time. He took my hand, gave his intellectual make-up a shake to dislodge my name, looked into my beaming face, and said, "How do you do? Did you come in on "17"? (Every villager has a familiar acquaintance with trains, and calls them all by their first names.) He then gave an uneasy shift and continued, "I guess it's going to rain." I felt that it had rained, and that I was shivering in it. It was a rude shock. So complacently does youth count on age's interest in youth's existence.

When the people are about you, however, they assume in your eyes an importance which no one but you seems to recognize. That is right. To the Priest, every soul is the child of God, with a life to live to its end, and a heart capable of suffering. It may not seem interesting, but there it is, pulsating with its own hopes, ambitions, in its own way, bearing its own burdens. No life is commonplace. The faded, tired face is marked with tragic experience, and the gingham apron or worn overalls are badges of service in an army neither picturesque nor spectacular in heroism. But they are often heroic men and women, in whose hearts are the real worth of the true gold of character. So the Priest sees in them his treasures.

How astounded the Parish would be if it really knew how, in the mind of the Priest, the people were huddled together in groups. It would be shocking. Really they would decline to be so associated. Such close contact with undesirable persons would be unendurable. Yet there you are in the group. Walk into the next room, if you so desire, ladies and gentlemen, but you must give the pass word. How scandalized would be the fur-covered society woman, riding in her automobile and attending to her pleasure, if she thought she was the same kind of a soul as that horrid man idling on a street corner, his hands in his pockets and his face marked with the fear that he might have to do useful work. To the Priest they present the same problem, as souls. And how astonished would be the simple seamstress, honestly earning her bread, and doing her duty, could she learn that she was in the same niche with the prosperous banker, doing his duty, living honestly in the sight of God and man, and giving his tenth. To God's work, however, they give the same kind of support, material and moral. "By their works ye shall know them."

How interesting are those people in the Parish who totally miss the point. One woman in some distress said to her Priest, "The Church believes that the world will come to an end in the year 2013 does it not?" The Priest was puzzled, and gently replied that he thought not. "But it is in the Prayer Book." The Priest would like to see the place. She turned to the table given to find Easter Day. The date for Easter Day was given for every year up to 2013. There was no more room on the page. "There," she said, "there is no Easter Day after 2013." Quite right, from her point of view. It took some time to explain the value of that table. The Priest refrained from stating that according to her scheme the Church thought the world began in 1786.

Then there are people who make a fetish of Sunday, believing that it is a day of gloom founded on the sanction of the Jewish law. Good women there are who would not for worlds take a stitch on Sunday, and good men who would not venture near a ball game. Such Godlessness! Yet they never darken the door of God's house nor approach the Altar. No, indeed! You know the excuses, do you not? They are as familiar to the Parson as the days of the week. He smiles as he hears the excuses run glibly off the tongue, as if they had the force of the moral law. He longs occasionally to hear one good original excuse. But why do people excuse themselves to him at all? I always feel embarrassed when people excuse themselves to me for not doing their duty. It was as if I had been trying to please myself when I urged their duty upon them.

But we have wandered from the half-enlightened ones who think that Sunday is a day for hushed discomfort. When men worked all day in the fields, with the few beasts of burden for companions, what was more natural than that they should like to spend Sunday indoors with their books and papers and the family album? or that they should enjoy discussing the crops with their distant neighbors on the church porch? They wanted on Sunday what they did not get on week days. No doubt intelligent people in the torrid zone think of heaven as having a snowstorm occasionally. But what of our city workers, who spend the daylight hours in the heat and dust of busy shops, part of a great machine? They want to be out of doors on Sundays. Because such a one makes a garden on Sunday, it is his solemn affirmation that it is Sunday, a day different from the rest.

It is a big problem. A Parson was once asked, in the midst of a group of men in the smoke room of an ocean liner, what he thought of Sunday baseball. It was a generous question. Men listened for the reply. To evade, was to suffer humiliation; to discuss and argue was to invite opposition. He said: "Every man must do the first things of life first. He must not give to the Salvation Army the dollar that he ought to give to his wife. If he has worked all day, he may have his evening's amusement. If he loafs all day, he is a miserable sinner. The first things first, and then the second things. The first duty of Sunday is to keep the channels open between God and life. Life must have the proper spiritual balance. When this is secured, he may, even on Sunday, take steps to secure the proper physical and mental balance. If a man does his duty to God on Sunday, it is permissible for him to do the second things also. Consequently the only ones who have earned the right to play baseball on Sunday are the real Christians who do likewise their full duty to God on Sunday. It is their next privilege, if they care to take it. All others are barred." The group was silent. It was a new idea to have Christians claiming exclusive right to Sunday baseball. But I believe that, in principle, the Parson was right. What do you think?

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

WHAT MAKES THE IDEAL PARSON?

News of the English Church

Reported by

A. MANBY LLOYD

WHAT sort of minister does the average Englishman really like deep down at the bottom of his secular heart?

Mr. Lloyd George has dogmatically stated these four essential qualifications for a good clergyman:

He must be a good fellow.
He must have a message.
He must believe in it.

Lastly, he must know how to deliver it.

"When there is a man with a message and he can give life and fire to it he can always fill his church," adds Mr. Lloyd George. "Americans call such men 'live wires'."

One is tempted to doubt whether those four excellent qualifications are essential. What makes the parson "perfect," so to speak—understanding by "perfection" a certain fullness of character?

One can arrive at a conclusion best by the process of elimination. Parson Trulliber wouldn't stand a chance in these days. He was a parson on Sundays, but was much more interested in hogs than in "sheep" and tended them lovingly throughout the week except when eating, drinking, and sleeping. "I caal'd vurst" was his cry, as he snatched the ale-jug out of the hands of his guest.

Gone are the Trullibers with the eighteenth century, and yet a lot of them were "good fellows," hospitable and homely.

Parson Woodforde, the third volume of whose diary has just been issued, was one of the better sort, and no doubt liked by his people. He tells us of the prosecution of the village blacksmith for having a "tub of gin found in his house that was smuggled." An honest man, this very parson, in most things, he was not above buying this very gin.

Gone are the Woodfordes. They failed to convert their countrymen because they shared their vices and had few virtues to mark them as consecrated men. Is it not possible that "good fellowship" is an accidental but not an essential qualification?

Gone, too, is Mr. Chadband, "the man with a message," who, after a heavy meal of ham would wax most eloquent on the subject of "Terewth," and exhort his listeners to be joyful. And he probably believed in it.

It is more important for a parson to be quietly in touch with Heaven than to be restlessly consumed by a "message," lest he fail to interpret the patience of God, and preach an empty and fretful Gospel.

The average man has no use for the unctuous Obadiah Slope, the highly dignified Archdeacon Grantly, or the henpecked Bishop Proudie. He respects, but fails to understand, the agnoising Robert Elsmere and the ascetic Mr. Newcome.

The parson most likely to get his flock to heaven would be, rather, Father Luce, of "The End of the House of Alard," because he made his church the best parlour of the parish, to the horror of lovers of art. The gewgaws with which he decorated the walls were of a kind beloved by his people, and, finding them in the church, they found a home.

The danger of "live wires" and "popular preachers" is that they tend to obscure in people's eyes the more important functions of the ministry, and their work is often ephemeral. They come to a church and fill it, but it empties when they go.

The real craftsmen are the patient builders; the self-effacing, kindly, humorous, not painfully learned ministers, who, in our country villages and crowded cities, pursue their task of bringing God to man and man to God. To them (if anybody) the man-in-the-street will go when he wants help.

A "good clergyman" must be whole-hearted and devoted; "himself first training for the skies he best shall raise his people there;" he must be keenly interested in the small issues of life as well as the big ones; he must be an evangelical preacher of the Gospel in his life as in his pulpit.

There is one thing further which binds the life of the humdrum parson in golden fetters. It is the Cross.

* * *

After the serious business of the Anglo-Catholic Congress and the Evangelical fireworks sent up at the Kingston Conference, (when Dr. Knox, formerly Bishop of Manchester, made the announcement that "if the Prayer Book is accepted by Parliament, we shall have to ask ourselves whether we can continue membership or ministry in the Church of England"), it is a relief to turn to Mr. Eugene Corris' Reminiscences of the Prize Ring and famous Pugilists.

"Gene," as Mr. Corri is affectionately called, knows how to tell a story. One of the best is associated with the grim and unromantic Joe Beckett. A company of American tourists were being conducted over Canterbury Cathedral and were shown all the historic memorials.

"This," said the guide, "is Becket's grave," meaning, of course, Thomas a Becket. A young member of the party, with unconscious or conscious humour, replied, "Then he did meet Jack Dempsey after all."

Then there is the story told by Ernie Izzard, who was seconding a Welshman at the Ring. When Taffy came back to his corner he complained that his opponent was biting him. "Why don't you bite him, too?" Izzard said.

"I can't," replied the Welshman, "my teeth are in the dressing-room."

* * *

York Minster is commemorating its "thirteen hundred years of Christian life," and yesterday, at the midday service, at which 4,000 representatives of lodges and friendly societies were present, Dr. Henson, Bishop of Durham, and Past Grand Chaplain of the Freemasons of England, claimed that "Fremasonary was incomparably the greatest factor for good citizenship which human experience had known.

In England, he added, the disastrous breach between the Church and Freemasonry, which Latin countries had witnessed, had never come about. Every competent student would see in Masonic and Friendly Society Churchmen a bulwark against the onset of Anarchic principles.

At the evening service York Minster choir was reinforced by the cathedral choirs of Wakefield, Sheffield, and Bradford, and by the choir of Leeds Parish Church.

* * *

His mission church, inadequate for parish needs and unable to raise money by more usual methods for a larger building, the Rev. Percival Gay, of Vatley's End, Winterbourne, near Bristol, adopted the role of a wayside mendicant.

For 12 hours he sat behind a table receiving voluntary tribute from all who passed. Many made a special journey to contribute.

When night fell he had amassed a wonderful collection, including farm and dairy produce, china, confectionery, jewelry, artificial teeth, a live rabbit, second-hand clothes, books, pictures and a stove.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CLASSIFIED NEWS PARAGRAPHS

Of the Episcopal Church

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

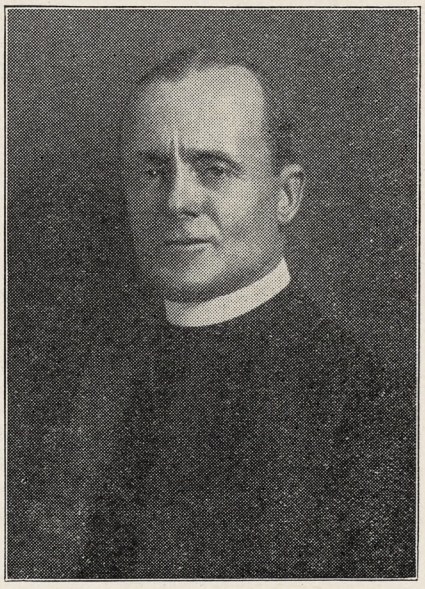
PREACHERS SAY—

"It is necessary to speak out and to speak out strongly" Bishop Manning told an interviewer of a London daily. "The attitude of the average man and woman toward the marriage tie in the United States today is such that the country stands on the verge of a great gulf, a gulf that may swallow up all that is most precious in our family life, and indeed, in our civilization, if the public conscience is not aroused to the imminence of the peril. I am afraid the churches are not as united on this question as they ought to be. There are among us so-called leaders and pastors who shirk from rebuking the evil because they fear that their outspokenness may drive out of the churches men and women who see no harm in the loosening of the marriage tie.

"The evil takes many forms, but the commonest and the one most glibly apologised for by pseudo-scientists and religious leaders false to their trust is called "companionable marriage." It consists of a couple joining their lives together for a term of years or months—just as the fancy takes them—so that they may give marriage a trial run, and if for any reason they tire of each other during that time they are free to go their own way.

"I know the many fine-sounding phrases that are employed to make this practice seem less wicked than it is, but I can see through all these devices of the devil. In plain English, what it amounts to is that marriage is reduced to the level of some of the great departmental stores, where you are allowed to take an article away, and if you do not like it you return it without any liability being incurred whatsoever.

"You cannot reduce the Kingdom of Heaven to the level of a departmental store. Marriage is a sacred contract in the eyes of God between two beings, and there can be no "trial run." To attempt anything of the kind is an affront to God Himself.



"No man can pick out a woman from among his acquaintances and say that he will take her to his home "on approval," as he would a piece of merchandise, on the understanding that if he is not pleased with his 'bargain' the woman can be returned whence she came, and the man can be free to roam around other 'stores' seeking someone more to his liking.

"There is no more sacred tie than that which binds a man to the woman who is to be the partner of his life and the mother of his children. There is no more sacred duty cast on men and women than to reproduce their kind within the bounds of a union sanctified at God's Altar.

"To say that men and women are to be free to trifle with such sacred things because a few neurotic people try to justify it by an appeal to "science' is monstrous; and it is time that the Church awoke to its duty.

"I cannot bind my fellows, but all the influence I can exert in the church with which I am associated will be on the side of those who mean to stop this affront to the Most High. I would go to the length of refusing to give the blessing of the Church to those who have been parties to one of these marriages on approval, even when their object was to legalise the union."

* * *

BISHOP MANNING
Talks on Modern Marriage

In an article in Liberty Mr. George Bernard Shaw says:

"This much I know, looking at life at seventy: men without religion are moral cowards, and mostly physical cowards too when sober.

"Civilization cannot survive without religion. It matters not what name we bestow upon our divinity—Life Force, World Spirit, Elan Vital, Creative Evolution—without religion life becomes a meaningless concatenation of accidents. I can conceive of salvation without a god, but I cannot conceive of salvation without a religion.

". . . The cause of Europe's miseries was its lack of religion."

LETTERS

In a recent issue the Young People's Column ran a letter by a person called by Mr. Jonnard, the editor, as a "higher-up in the department of Christian Social Service" in which the writer stated that he could see no harm in young ladies smoking or wearing short skirts. The Rev. Franklin H. Miller, observing curate of St. Mark's, San Antonio, Texas, writes, "It seems strange that one high up in the department of social service should be advocating habits of social deterioration. Young ladies smoke cigarettes not only to their own destruction but also to the destruction of the human race. (Mr. Miller here quotes his authorities, among them Mr. McFadden of "Graphic" fame.) "As to short skirts," goes on Mr. Miller, "your correspondent does not seem to know that below the knee is in the realm of art and hygiene; above the knee is in the realm of morals. The knee itself is a hinge, and like the elbow it is never beautiful, and therefor should be concealed as much as convenience and comfort will allow. The beauty of the leg lies in the double curve between the ankle and the knee; whoever possesses this line of beauty in its perfection may well let an observing world share in the joy of a glimpse of God's most beautiful endowment to the human race; and whoever does not possess it,—but I refrain from further advice or opinion." I fear that other subscribers will write in that Observer Miller refrained too late.

CONFERENCES AND CONVENTIONS

Synod of New York and New Jersey will meet in Rochester, New York, November 15-17.

* * *

"Gratifying success" is the correspondents' comment on the first summer conference in the diocese of Olympia, held at Annie Wright Seminary, Tacoma, July 9-16. Organized by Bishop Huston, who acted as dean. Attendance, 100 regulars and many transients. Able faculty with Bishop Barnwell, Idaho; Mable Lee Cooper, story-teller, and Miss Emily Tillotson, Woman's Auxiliary, who lectured on "The Church Awake." Bishop Huston, with a sprained leg which necessitated the carrying of a cane, won the tennis match.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

Bishop Oldham, Albany, has arranged for a clergy conference for three days in September. They are going to discuss matters that cannot be brought forward at diocesan convention as well as for spiritual fellowship. Several leaders from outside the diocese including the Rev. H. W. Foreman, secretary of rural work; Rev. G. Warfield Hobbs, editor of the Spirit of Missions; Rev. B. H. Reinheimer, executive secretary of Southern Ohio, and Bishop Booth of Vermont who is to lead a conference on "A Priest in the Church of God."

* * *

A special conference for parish secretaries is to be held this month in connection with the Sewanee Conference. Most of the time is to be given to discussion with secretaries doing their own talking. However, there are to be a few leaders including the Rev. Oliver Hart of St. Paul's, Chattanooga; the Rev. R. A. Kirchhoffer of Christ Church, Mobile, and the Rev. Loring Clark, national missioner.

* * *

Catholic Congress is to meet in Albany, New York, October 25th-27th. On the program: Loyalty to the Church by Rev. C. J. Harriman of Philadelphia; Nature of the Church by Rev. Julian D. Hamlin of Newport, Rhode Island; The Faithful Departed by Bishop Gray of Northern Indiana; Our Lady and the Saints by Fr. Burton of Boston; The Church and Society by Mr. Lawson Purdy of New York (Single Taxer); The Missionary Charter of the Church by the Rev. Robert F. Lau of the department of Foreign-Born Americans.

* * *

The Faribault Summer Conference is to be held at Shattuck School, August 28th to September 3rd. Leaders; Rev. Robert N. Spencer, Grace-Holy Trinity, Kansas City, Mo.; Rev. E. Croft Gear, St. John's, Minneapolis; Rev. Frank E. Wilson, editor of Let's Know, and rector of Christ Church, Eau Clair, Wisconsin; Rev. F. D. Tyner, St. Luke's, Minneapolis; Dr. Roy J. Colbert, professor at Wisconsin; Rev. C. B. Scovil, student chaplain at Minnesota; and the Bishop of Minnesota, the Rt. Rev. F. A. McElwain.

BUILDING

Chapel, tower and cloister, to be built at a cost of $100,000 is to be built at Rice Institute, Houston, Texas. Mrs. Edwin L. Neville has given the chapel as a memorial to her husband. The Rev. Francis Osborne is in charge of the work there with students.

* * *

The commission on architecture which they have in the diocese of Alabama met the other day with the congregation of St. Mark's, Troy, Alabama, to discuss the possibilities of a new plant, including church, parish house and rectory. The Rev. Thomas G. Mundy is the new rector of this parish—rather will be, the first of September.

* * *

The corner stone of the new building for the House of Bethany at Cape Mount, Liberia, was laid recently. The Rev. Josselyn Reed, acting rector of St. George's Church and acting superintendent of the Cape Mount District, officiated.

SOCIAL SERVICE

A milk fund for white and negro children in the district of Mississippi of which Greenville is the centre has been started by Bishop Bratton, and placed under the direction of the rector, the Rev. Philip Davidson. "The destruction of cattle, poultry

CHURCH TRAINING
and
DEACONESS HOUSE
of Pennsylvania
For the training of Deaconesses, Missionaries, and Parochial Workers.
President, The Bishop of Pennsylvania. Warden, The Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, S. T. D.
Address
Deaconess Clara M. Carter
708 Spruce St. Philadelphia, Pa.

ACTS OF DEVOTION
Compiled by an English group.
Not one phase of the modern man's life is neglected in this all-inclusive collection of prayers and services. Give worthy and dignified expression to those aspirations of the modern world which are firing the hearts of the younger generation. Beautifully bound and printed. Heavy binding. An ideal gift to one confirmed. A book which rectors will eventually have in the pews of their churches.
Sixty cents; add 8c for postage
WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Ave.
Chicago Illinois

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation
◆ ◆ ◆
THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.
Chartered under Act of Congress.
Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.
Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.
◆ ◆ ◆
Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

St. Albans School
SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS
Diocese of Chicago
Sixty miles west of Chicago.
Five miles off the Lincoln Highway

SCHOLASTIC:	Best of preparation for college. Boys this fall will be entered at Dartmouth, M. I. T., Yale, Princeton, Columbia, St. Stephens, Hobart, Kenyon, Annapolis, University of the South, Knox, Beloit, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Lafayette, Miami and Purdue.
ATHLETIC:	Every boy has an opportunity to enter the sports — Foot Ball — Basketball — Tennis— Track — Golf — Baseball — The School for two years has had an enviable reputation.
RELIGIOUS:	Great care has been given to have a good religious atmosphere. There are few obligatory services.
HOME LIFE:	The School has been to capacity for six years. Great care has been used in the selection of boys. The group enrolled has made it possible to have a full honor system under a council and an atmosphere of an ideal home.
CONFERENCES:	The Rector will be glad to make appointments at various centers during the summer. A visit to the school would be of value. The Chicago Office is Room 1411, Tower Building, Wednesdays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Address the School for literature and information.
ENROLLMENT:	Last year boys came from Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Florida, Louisiana, Montana, Colorado, Wisconsin, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Alaska.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

and vegetables by the flood renders this relief necessary to prevent pellagra and child starvation. This work is not covered by the Red Cross," writes Mr. Davidson.

RURAL WORK

Conference on small town and rural work was held recently in Christ Church, Bowling Green, Kentucky. Speakers: Rev. H. W. Foreman, national secretary of rural work; Rev. Bradner Moore of Mississippi; Miss Adelbert Thomas of the state board of health; Professor M. C. Ford of the Western Kentucky Teachers' College, and the Rev. J. L. Martin, St. Paul's, Henderson, Kentucky.

FREE FOR ASKING

The Rev. Louis M. Hirshon, St. Paul's, Maumee, Ohio, writes: "The choir guild has turned over to me six worn but clean and serviceable boys' and men's black cassacks. Do you suppose you could find the space to let some mission know that these may be had for the asking?"

SERVICES

"We are going to give 'Bloody Williamson County' a sane religious service." So writes the Venerable Charles Knight Weller, archdeacon of Cairo, diocese of Springfield. "Bloody Williamson" in whose bounds is the town of Herrin, noted for bloodshed, is harboring a considerable number of one hundred per centers whose patriotism expresses itself thru the iron fist and the Klu-Klux-Klan. A permanent location has been purchased in Herrin for a church, and recently the minister in charge, the Rev. George L. Whitmeyer, presented thirteen for confirmation at a service attended by so many that folks stood in the yard after the pews were filled. Preparations are under way for the opening of a chapel at Marion, county seat, a town of 11,000 where hitherto services have been held occasionally in the homes of Church folks.

* * *

What was probably the largest class ever confirmed in the diocese of Central New York was presented in Emmanuel, Norwich, recently. The number was 113, and was the result of intensive evangelistic work carried on during the past winter by the rector (Rev. Lloyd S. Charters) with the help of the entire parish. Other results: 73 baptised; 155 added to the communicant list; 5 deserters regained; 39 lost ones discovered and letters of transfer secured.

* * *

Heber Williamson Weller, son of archdeacon of Cairo, diocese of Springfield, was ordained deacon, July 24th. He is a nephew of Bishop Weller and the sixth generation to enter the ministry.

AT THE FRONT

"The outstanding feature of last year's work in Cuba was the failure of the Church at home to furnish the workers needed to carry on the work properly," write Bishop Hulse. There are still inviting fields which the bishop cannot open up because he is undermanned.

* * *

Bishop Roots has cabled the Missions House that arrangements for carrying on primary schools next autumn are progressing satisfactorily in Hankow, but that high schools cannot be opened before February, 1928, at the earliest. He asks for the return of Deaconess Julia A. Clark of Ichang and Miss Regina Lustgarten of Shasi both of whom will work in Hankow until it is possible for them to go to their stations.

* * *

Bishop Carson in his report on the accomplishments in Haiti during the past year says that the Church is moving forward rapidly. Two attractive churches of stone and brick

SAINT MARY'S
Knoxville, Illinois
An accredited college preparatory school with special department for girls in the grades. Athletics. Music. Art. Expression. Secretarial and Business courses. For catalogue write to the Rector.

FREEHOLD
MILITARY SCHOOL
For 80 Select Young Boys
A school with the personal touch. Just enough military training to inculcate habits of obedience, promptness, orderliness, cleanliness and self-reliance. The students' comforts, pleasures and sports are as carefully considered as their mental training. Healthful location. 42 miles from N. Y., 66 miles from Phila. For catalog address. MAJOR CHAS M. DUNCAN, P. O. Box W, Freehold, N. J.

NURSING COURSE
of 2½ years, leading to R. N. degree.
Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll Now.
Send for full information to
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas,
Newark, N. J.

SHATTUCK
A Church School for Boys
For 67 years Shattuck has been a leader among college preparatory schools in the West. It is not operated for profit. It aims to develop
High Scholarship,
Manly Character,
Christian Citizenship.
The military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall. Address The Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin
Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

ROWLAND HALL
A School for Girls in the Wasatch Mountains
Salt Lake City, Utah
BISHOP MOULTON, Rector.

NASHOTAH HOUSE
Founded in 1842
Theological Seminary and Collegiate Department
For particulars address the dean
NASHOTAH HOUSE
Nashotah, Wisconsin

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 115 Franklin St., New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs, chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT
SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY
House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y. References required.

Church Organizations or Agents can make money selling our Christmas Cards. Box cards contain twelve different designs—envelopes to match. Sample box postpaid, forty cents. Also personal cards with sentiment and name engraved or process engraving. Write for full particulars. Sherman Advertising Company, DeKalb, Illinois.

BIBLE ANNUITY BONDS YIELD AS HIGH AS 9%
Income for Life According to Age
Enjoy the financial advantage and spiritual satisfaction of owning Bible Annuity Bonds. They are issued on two lives, as husband and wife etc., in denominations of $100 and up. Fixed income paid throughout lifetime of one or two persons. Then principal goes to the Society's work of spreading the Word. Since 1809 the Society has distributed free, millions of Bibles to immigrants, seamen, prisoners, the sick and the blind.
Call or write for free pamphlets describing the work of the society.
NEW YORK BIBLE SOCIETY, (Dept. 33)
5 East 48th Street, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

have been built during the past year, and another is now under construction. Work on the Cathedral at Port au Prince is moving slowly due to shortage of cash but it is hoped that it will be possible to carry it on. There are twenty Church Schools, all of which are doing excellent work. The Bishop then speaks of the poverty of the people and of the really splendid support that they are giving to Church work in spite of it. The natives are really slowly starving, with everything dependent on sugar which has been down of late.

* * *

In Southern Brazil the number confirmed in 1926 was 295. The number of communicants has now passed the 3000 mark.

* * *

The Atlantic Monthly for August, which contains a review of "Sun and Moon," the recent novel by the Rev. Vincent H. Gowen, has also a personal letter from him, written late in April, in which he says:

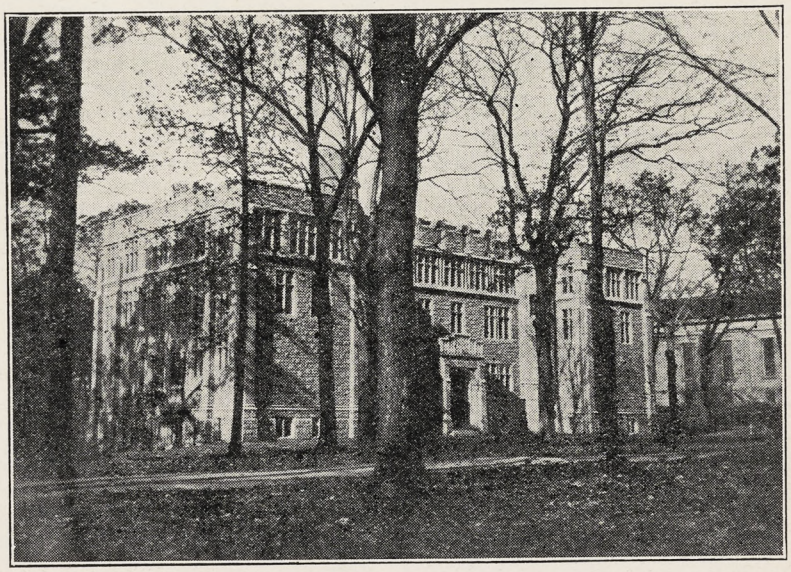
"Refugee conditions provide us with too much leisure and too little chance of using it profitably, so I have got the Bishop's permission to take a temporary position as supervisor of Chinese traffic on one of the British ships trading to Hankow. It was my only way of getting consular sanction to a further voyage upriver where the recent break between the communist and more moderate wings of the Kuomintang may provide excitement. Incidentally it may allow me the chance to visit my house, which I had to abandon to the tender mercies of the soldiers. I wonder whether they have made inroads on my library—I had about eight hundred books—and broken up the furniture, which a Ningpo carpenter made to my designs, to keep their fires going. This has been their practice in other places. . . . "

* * *

Our newest recruit at Sagada, the Rev. Lee L. Rose, writes:

"What the Church is attempting to do here is to make Christians of the Igorots. Religion is the primary consideration. The children, while they are living here in the school, live a Christian life. Religion begins and ends the day . . .

"But the mental development is not forgotten. We have two schools here in Sagada and five in the out-stations. Boys and girls alike are taught the



THE NEW YORK TRAINING SCHOOL FOR DEACONESSES
419 West 110th St. New York
Prepares women for life service in the Church as Deaconesses, or as Trained Workers.
Two-year Academic course.
Field Work in both Religious Education and Social Service.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California
A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited, R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

ST. ANNE'S Open Air School, Box W, Charlotteville, Va.
Beautiful location in far famed Blue Ridge Mountains. College preparatory and elective courses. Fully accredited by State Board of Education. Open gymnasium allows sports in the fresh air in all weather. Riding taught by expert. Music. Art. Bishop of Virginia, President of Trustees. Laura Lee Dorsey, Principal.

CROUP AND CHILDREN'S COLDS QUICKLY RELIEVED
Since 1802 or for 124 years mothers have known that Roche's Embrocation is the quickest relief for whooping cough, croup and colds. Just rub it on the child's chest Phlegm is loosened, congestion broken. Then relief comes.
Sold By All Druggists or
E. FOUGERA & CO., Inc., New York
W. Edwards & Sons, London, Eng., Props.
ROCHES EMBROCATION

Kenyon College
GAMBIER, OHIO
Founded 1824
- - by - -
PHILANDER CHASE
First Bishop of Ohio
O
A men's college in a noble country setting, offering excellent facilities for work and attractive living; where a background of over 100 years of tradition and the present enrollment limitation of 250 contribute to the steadfast maintenance of high academic standards and educational ideals.

Samuel Mather Hall of Science
Erected 1926
A NOTABLE FEATURE OF PHYSICAL EQUIPMENT

WILLIAM FOSTER PEIRCE, D. D., L. H. D.,
President.
Address RICHARD C. LORD, Registrar.
104th YEAR BEGINS IN SEPTEMBER

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland.
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore.
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month

Grace Church, Chicago.
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago.
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago.
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City.
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily, 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily, 12:10
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

things that boys and girls learn in the States, in the grades. In addition, they are taught things that will be helpful in an economic way when they go back to their homes. The girls learn weaving, lace-making, and some simple household tasks. The boys are taught gardening. No effort is made to carry them too far or to wean them away from their environment. We do not wish to make school teachers or clerks out of all of them. The desire on the part of the missionaries is to send boys and girls back among their own people who will gradually raise the standard of living in the village, and to send them back Christians. The first fruits are already visible, even to an outsider, or a new comer, when he compares Sagada or Besao, where the Church has been established for more than twenty years, with the neighboring villages where the surface has just been scratched.

"Occasionally, of course, there are individuals who show extraordinary promise. These are given help to extend their education, to go away to fit themselves for teachers, nurses, etc., but always with the hope that they will come back to the mountains and use their advantages to benefit their own people. There have been too many instances in which primitive boys and girls have been educated out of their environment where they have lost all sympathy and understanding with their own people. Every effort is made here to avoid that, and surely the instilling of Christian charity into the hearts of boys and girls will be the supreme factor in accomplishing this desire.

"No one who has been out here even for three weeks can doubt that this is a worthwhile task, and is worthy of all the effort, time, labor and money that can be given to it. I am whole-heartedly glad that I came."

PEOPLE

Rev. Francisco Diaz-Volero, archdeacon for Cuban work and president of the council of advice of the district, died on July 17th after more than twenty years of service in Cuba. From the bishop; "an outstanding clergyman with a sense of responsibility and initiative, an indefatigable writer in behalf of the Church's position."

* * *

Bishop Thomas of Wyoming, resigned, is preaching this month at Grace Cathedral, San Francisco.

* * *

Bishop Oldham of Albany sailed on July 30th for a two weeks' vacation in England.

* * *

Rev. John Gibson Gautt has resigned as rector of St. Peter's, Soloman's Island, Maryland, after fifty years of service in the ministry.

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York.
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D.
Sundays, 8 and 11 a. m.

Trinity Church, New York.
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York.
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York.
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, and 11 A. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp & Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind HOWE SCHOOL HOWE — INDIANA in a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

FOREIGN BORN

Writing of the million Mexicans in the United States, an editorial in the Washington Post says: "They are an undesirable element, and sooner or later the quota rule must be applied against Mexico in order to hold down this immigration."

To which the Los Angeles Times, writing from first-hand knowledge of the 175,000 persons of Mexican birth in Los Angeles County, replies that the Mexican element is distinctly desirable; that all aliens have among them some with whom we should willingly dispense but that the sweeping assertion of the Post not be justified. Mexicans have performed the bulk of the labor of "digging the foundations for our great buildings, laying our hundreds of miles of sewers and electric conduits, making and repairing our widely extended thoroughfares and highways.

"Recent statements have been made by Southern Pacific and Santa Fe officials that Mexican labor on their lines has been their salvation. They have owned quite frankly that had it not been for the industrious and dependable immigrants from Mexico they would not have known where to look for help in the construction of new rail lines and the maintenance of old ones. The same story is told by our Pacific Coast farmers, who in recent years have depended so largely upon Mexican help."

GIFTS AND MEMORIALS

Two gifts to the endowment of St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo, were printed here last week. Here is still another; $10,000 bequest from the estat of Lucretia Stanley Grosvenor.

* * *

Five thousand dollars is left to Washington Cathedral by the will of Julia M. Stout, who remembers six other institutions.

* * *

Three historic stones were recent-

Clerical Changes

DRAKE, Rev. F. E. resigns as rector of Christ Church, Albert Lea, Minn., to accept the rectorship of All Saints', Minneapolis.

ELLIS, Rev. A. D., resigns as rector of Christ Church, Tuscaloosa, Alabama, to accept the rectorship of St. Anne's, Nashville, Tennessee.

GESNER, Rev. Conrad H., recently ordained has been appointed canon of Calvary Cathedral, Sioux Falls, South Dakota.

GIMSON, Rev. Rowland K., of the diocese of Harrisburg has accepted appointment as city missioner of Newark, New Jersey.

KIRK, Rev. John F. resigns as rector of Our Saviour, Jenkinstown, Pa., to accept rectorship of St. Thomas', Glassboro, New Jersey.

POTTS, Rev. J. C., resigns as rector of Holy Cross, Jersey City, to accept Christ Church, Coxsackie, N. Y.

SMITH, Rev. C. F., rector of Christ Church, Big Stone Gap, Southwestern Virginia, accepts call to the Grace, Berryville, Va.

SMITH, Rev. Philip, resigns as rector of St. Stephen's, Florence, N. J., to accept St. Paul's, Tombstone, Arizona.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.000 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, Pesident,
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL

Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ly placed on exhibition in the entrance to Bethlehem chapel at the Washington Cathedral. They are the Sinai stone from the Chapel of Moses at Mount Sinai, an ancient manna pot in the form of a huge stone bowl, and the Columbus stone from the Island of San Domingo. The Sina stone was presented by Colonel Robert M. Thompson of this city. It came from the traditional site which is considered sacred by the Jews as the spot where the Ten Commandments were handed down to Moses. Centuries ago the site fell into Christian hands and the little Chapel of Moses was built there. Through all the vicissitudes of the Crusades and the ravages of the Turks this chapel was considered inviolate until it was destroyed by Germans during the World War. Colonel Thompson was given the stone as a token of appreciation of the abbot for his help in restoring the chapel. The cathedral authorities plan to cut this stone into slabs and place the slabs in the pavement before the high altar of the cathedral so that the priest when reading the Ten Commandments will stand on stone from the site where Moses is believed to have received them thousands of years ago.

The Columbus stone was the gift of the late William E. Curtis, world traveler and author, who received it from an old priest in the partially ruined church at Santo Domingo which dates back to the time of Columbus and was the first Christian church erected on the American continent. It had been part of the church.

The Jewish manna pot was presented by the Rev. S. Harrington Littell, American missionary, who receved it from the Rt. Rev. William C. White, Anglican Bishop of Honan, China. The manna pot was given Bishop White by a community of Chinese Jews in the western part of China, north of the Thibetan border. These Chinese Jews, who are Chinese in appearance, are believed to be descended from some of the Ten Lost Tribes of Israel, about whose fate there has been so much dispute in history.

* * *

CHURCH AND LABOR

Bishop Gailor of Tennessee, Bishop Moore of Dallas, Bishop Reese of Georgia and Bishop Tucker of Virginia are among the signers to a document recently sent to mill owners in the South calling upon them to place their industries on a more cooperative basis, with higher wages, shorter hours and labor representation. The document says:

"We bring before you the necessity for the improvement of certain social and economic conditions, especially in the textile industry, but existing also in other industries. These are, to speak briefly: the isolation of population in the mill village; the long working week, extending in many industries even to fifty-five and sixty hours; a certain amount of the seven-day week which still exists in some industries; the employment of women and of children between fourteen and sixteen at overlong periods of labor; low wage standards in some industries; the general absence of standards of living; the general absence of tries, with consequent depressed stand-labor representation in our factories."

ANNIVERSARIES

Rev. John W. Chapman, Anvik, Alaska, recently completed his fortieth year at this out post of civilization.

St. Peter's, Waterford, Pa., celebrated the 100th anniversary recently. Bishop Ward, diocesan, gave the speech.

NEGRO WORK

This is the thirtieth year of the Voorhees Normal and Industrial School, Denmark, S. C., one of the more recent to come under the auspices of the American Church Institute for Negroes.

* * *

Pullman porters in the Jacksonville district have an annual service in St. Philip's.

* * *

A mission for Negroes has been ogranized in Gary, Indiana.

THE FINANCIAL FACTOR

is, of course, of great importance in the purchase of life insurance. The amount of insurance that you can carry on your life must necessarily be controlled largely by your financial ability to pay the premiums.

The net rates offered by this Corporation to clergymen and their families, help towards the most generous solution of this problem.

All inquiries should be addressed to

The Church Life Insurance Corporation

14 Wall Street New York

(Operated under the supervision of the Trustees of The Church Pension Fund)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, AUGUST 18, 1927

BISHOP MIZE

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass ✠ mosaic ✠ church decoration

For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 697 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

The Taylor Bell Foundry

LOUGHBOROUGH, ENGLAND

The World's Leading Bellfounders

CHURCH BELLS

SINGLY OR IN PEALS
CHIMES OR CARILLONS
AUTOMATIC OPERATION

Unequalled for Musical Qualities

Yale University — Birmingham, Ala.
Andover — Gloucester
Morristown — Cranbrook, Mich.
Harvard University
Germantown, Etc., Etc.

INQUIRIES SOLICITED

The Charm of Golden-Voiced Chimes

is within reach of your church, too!
Imagine the rich, musical tones of
Deagan Tower Chimes
coming from the belfry of your church—a constant inspiration to worship; a golden voice eagerly awaited by multitudes every day. Write for plan.
Standard Sets $6,000 and Up.
J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.
Church Bells — Peals
McShane Bell Foundry Co.
Baltimore, Md.

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER
and 4 & 5 Duncannon St:
Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal and
Stained Glass

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring

Inquiries given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.
174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403)
(Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER
Hagerstown, Maryland

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
GLASS STAINERS
By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates on application to

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.), Ltd.
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS
FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.
1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

The Ellwood Potts Studios
1438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS
If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

Giannini & Hilgart
Stained Glass
English Artists
550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

R. GEISSLER, INC.
56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows
Monuments and Church Furnishings
IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR
CHARLES F. HOGEMAN
45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts.
NEW YORK
460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J

Windows of Merit
Beautiful Groupings
Gorgeous Combinations of Color
Well executed by
The Von Gerichten Studios
Columbus, Ohio. New York City

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.
— Office and Studio —
221-223 E. Fulton St. — Columbus, Ohio.
DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.
— Photos, Designs and Estimates Upon Application —
ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XI. No. 52 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE CHURCH

Final Article of the Series

BY BISHOP JOHNSON

THE Vine planted by the Master in the soil of the Holy Land spread over all the earth.

The essence of the organism lay in the faith and sacraments perpetuated by a valid ministry. The proprietorship of the vine by ecclesiastical hierarchies has been the content of Church History, as wars and not industry have been the chief interest in secular history. Rome has claimed sole ownership but has never been able to validate its claim. The Eastern Church, while repudiating the Roman claim, has been the victim of Mohammedan persecution and so, powerless to extend its branches. The Reformers mutilated the Vine in order to wrest the supremacy from Rome.

The Anglican Church kept the vine, but denied the Italian ownership.

Yet the Vine did not flourish vigorously in England. The Rule of the "Saints," during the commonwealth and of the "Sinners" after the commonwealth, produced a very sickly vine during the rule of the Georges. Its life sank very low.

18TH CENTURY

But with the expansion of English power in the 18th century, the vine revived and brought forth much fruit.

English ideals of life and freedom replaced those which previously had been held by the Latin races.

The United States of America became a new factor in world relations, and the Vine which had survived in England was transplanted into the soil of America when the English Church consented to consecrate bishops for her colonies and for the new Republic.

It was a feeble shoot which sprang up in the United States but it possessed all of the characteristics of the ancient Vine, with a freedom of life divorced from hierarchy and court control.

We must always bear in mind that proprietorship of the Vine by Pope or King is one thing and the Vine producing its peculiar fruit is quite another thing.

AMERICAN ESTABLISHMENT

When the Scottish bishops consecrated Seabury in 1784 and the English bishops consecrated White and Provoost in 1787—and when Seabury, Provoost and White consecrated Claggett in 1792, the apostolic order of the ministry was established and the faith and sacraments were insured to our fathers and their seed forever.

But this branch of the Vine was destined to have a precarious existence for a generation, so much so that its life nearly went out.

THE FIRST BISHOPS

When bishops were given to this country, there came also the English ideas of Episcopal responsibilities.

Whatever one may say for their integrity, these bishops inherited few ideas of aggressive warfare. They were witnesses of the faith rather than warriors making conquests. They were heads of an established church. They were good men, but they had no tradition that bishops were the instruments of apostolic missionary zeal. Like the first apostles, they remained in their Jerusalems until disaster threatened them.

From 1607 to 1784 the Church had been a group of very loosely related parishes. From 1784 until 1835 (when the Board of Missions was organized) the Church was a group of dioceses, chiefly concerned with their individual problems and very slightly interested in the tremendous problems that lay beyond the mountains.

The Church for a time existed in a sort of feudal provincialism.

The very presence of bishops was a novelty. It took many years for the parishes to submit to any diocesan yoke.

It took many decades before the Dioceses recognized a responsibility for the western states.

FIRST MISSIONARIES

Instead of sending bishops to Ohio and to Tennessee Chase and Otey were elected by small groups of self-inspired folks for consecration.

While the various sects were occupying the ground of the Midwest, the Church was digging in on the Atlantic seaboard.

Her own children, who emigrated beyond the mountains, were lost to the Church by the thousands.

In 1835 the Church sent Kemper to the Northwest and in 1838 she sent Polk to the Southwest, and in 1853 she sent Kip to California and Scott to Oregon.

It was the character and zeal of these Apostolic men which planted the vine in the great states of the far west.

Numerically the Church was weak, but it has steadily increased in its ratio to the population.

In 1830 there was but one communicant to every 400 of the population; in 1850 one to 200; in 1890 one to 100.

In 1830 there were only 30,000 communicants; in 1850, there were 80,000; in 1890 there were 500,000. Today there are over a million with a ratio of one to 93, in spite of the enormous immigration of Roman Catholics, which makes it difficult to maintain the ratio.

INTERNAL DIFFICULTIES

During this period, the Church has had grave internal difficulties, which have threatened her peace, but have never destroyed her unity. Except for the defection of a small group in the early seventies (known as Reformed Episcopalians), the Church has weathered every storm without loss or injury to its life.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

From 1845 to 1875, there was constant friction between High and Low Churchmen, until men came to see that the church had a mission to include that which was true in both Catholic and Protestant circles, and that uniformity is not essential to unity.

CIVIL WAR

In the Civil War, there was a temporary division between the North and South, which lasted over one General Convention, but as soon as the war was over, there was a complete recognition that the Kingdom of Christ should not be rent asunder over political issues.

In our own times there have been attacks upon the authority and doctrines of the Church from liberal individualists, rising here and there, but without seriously injuring the integrity of the Vine.

THE LITURGY

The value of our liturgy is to be found in the fact, that whatever the preacher may question or deny, the liturgy preserves and emphasizes, so that his transient protests against the faith are inevitably submerged in the persistent assertions of the service which go on after he has ceased to speak.

There have been only three or four trials for heresy in the past forty years. They have raised some temporary excitement which has abated as soon as the storm was over. In the main the Church has rested its case in the reiterated testimony of the Book of Common Prayer, which sets a standard of the faith which has proved baffling to the innovator.

It is almost as easy to cast Pike's Peak into the ocean as to make any essential change in the faith of the Church as set forth in the Prayer Book.

It has passed through two revisions within our memory and the changes effected were of a microscopic character in each.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion let us consider the Vine. Its essential life consists of the faith and sacraments entrusted by Christ to a commissioned ministry.

Its temporary proprietorship by Pope or King has not effected the life and fruit of the Vine, nor can it prevent the slip from growing even though it be outside the assumed proprietorship.

Many things may be hung upon the Vine from time to time, but they have no part in the life of the Vine.

This Church exists to preserve the faith, sacraments and ministry in such fashion that we all may enjoy the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. And that opportunity may be given for that variety and freedom which characterizes all of God's handiwork as distinguished from the mechanical uniformity of human systems and machines.

Our Cover

ROBERT HERBERT MIZE, the bishop of Salina, was born in Chicago in 1870. He graduated from St. Stephen's College in 1894 and from the General Seminary in 1897. He was first the rector of St. John's, Hiawatha, Kansas, then the rector of St. John's Military School, the diocesan school about which an article appears in this issue. He is at present the president of the board of trustees. In 1906 he became the rector of St. Andrew's, Emporia, and was called from there to St. Paul's, Kansas City, Kansas. He was consecrated in 1921.

Books

PROVERBS AND DIDACTIC POEMS. By Charles Foster Kent and Millar Burroughs. Published by Charles Scribner's Sons. Price $5.00.

This fresh translation of the Wisdom books which are so full of literary beauty, constitutes the most important of Professor Kent's scholarly achievements. The translation is couched in plain vigorous and idiomatic Angle-Saxon without falling into unlovely colloquialisms. It is a perfect joy to read Proverbs, Ecclesiastics and Job once more and to feel that we are as close to the meaning of these wise sayings and observations of Ancient Israel as is humanly possible for a translation to make it. It is indeed a fortunate circumstance that a former pupil and a man of identical spirit, Prof. Burroughs, could be secured to carry the work to completion. It would be difficult to tell where one man left off and the other began. All Bible lovers and the world of Biblical scholarship are indebted to both men for a refreshing rendition of this Wisdom Literature. Irvine Goddard.

THE SMOKING FURNACE AND THE BURNING LAMP. Talks on Toc. H. Edited by Rev. P. B. Clayton. Published by Longmans Green & Co. Price $1.50.

Toc H. stood for Talbot House in the Rue de l'Hopital Poperinghe. It was a rest house and much more for the soldiers in the deadly salient of Yyres, founded in memory of Gilbert, son of Bishop Talbot of Winchester. Smoking Furnace and the Burning Lamp is a series of inspirited talks and reminiscences, explaining the spirit and purpose of similar houses which are rapidly springing up in the large cities of the British Empire. It is a movement towards sincere and practical Christian democracy. Irvine Goddard.

WHAT EVERY WARDEN AND VESTRYMAN SHOULD KNOW—Henry Anstice., D.D. Edwin S. Gorham, N. Y. $.50.

The title fully describes the books and defines its value. Many a parish difficulty would be avoided if every vestryman were familiar with the contents of this little book.

Frank R. Myers.

CERTAIN SAMARITANS. By Esther Pohl Lovejoy. Published by The Macmillan Co. Price $3.50.

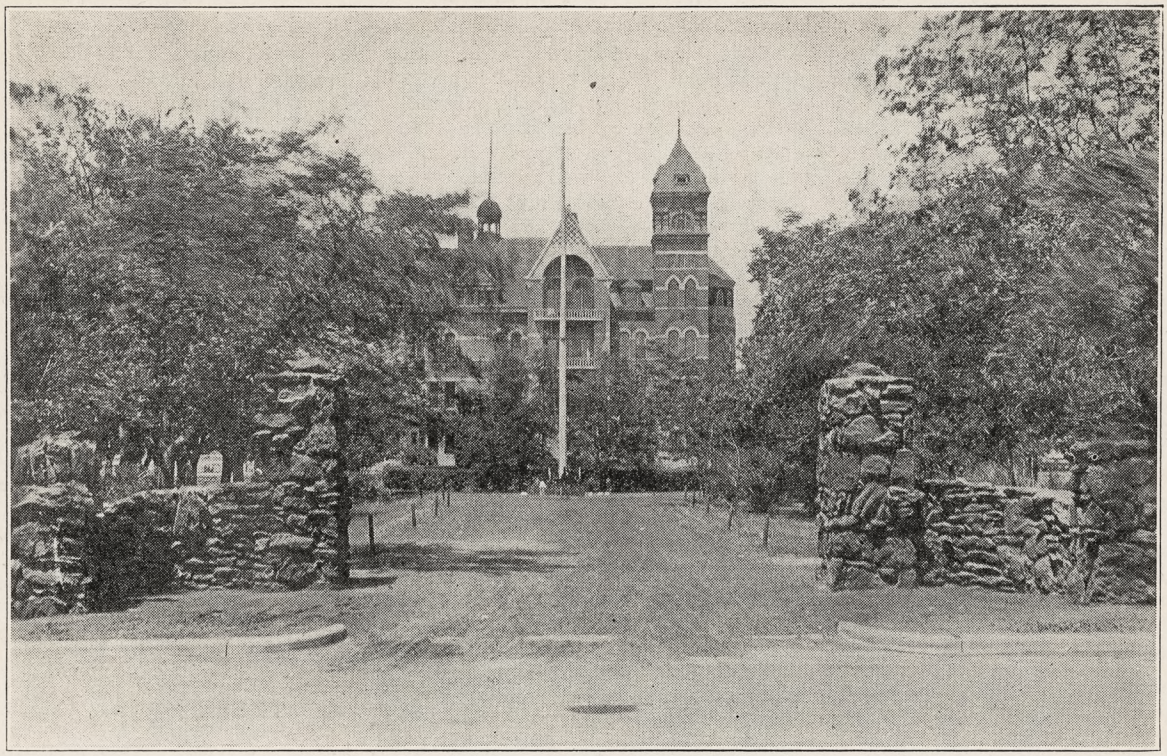
Certain Samaritans is a book attractively gotten up, and profusely illustrated. It is a recital of the adventures of women doctors who rendered valiant and efficient service during and after the war in different parts of Europe and Near Eastern countries. Dr. Esther Lovejoy is a rare romancer and tells her story of these American Women Hospitalers with real charm. Although eminent in her medical profession, she has a remarkable literary gift of expression. There is a marvellous blending of the comic and the tragic, the heroic and the unheroic making an otherwise sordid tale entrancing and fascinating. Great is a sense of humor.

Irvine Goddard.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots



As serious a study as history is, it has furnished us with many things to laugh at, one of which is that type of person who studies it superficially, and therefore is likely to make an amusing blunder at any time.

His ignorance of history recently shocked one of the woman friends of a young Buffalo society man. It was after a dinner party at his house and she was telling him what she had learned in her private history class. One thing led to another and all the time he was getting into deeper water. At last she surprised him by inquiring: "Now, tell me, Mr. Smith, what are the Knights of the Bath?" He stammered for a while and finally blurted out: "Why, Saturday nights, I suppose."

* * *

Here lies the left leg of William McSwipe,
The rest of him couldn't be found;
He sat on a powder keg smoking his pipe,
And the wind blew the ashes around.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. JOHN'S MILITARY SCHOOL

A Western Church School

By

Miss Dorethea Smith

OCCUPYING an imposing-looking building which is more than a little remindful of the days of Tudor castles—a building which seems to clamor for a promontory over some stern and rock-bound cliffs rather than a dell in the Valley of Saline—St. John's Military School holds a peculiar niche of its own in the life of Kansas. For since the day in 1887 when it was founded, this boys' school with its military atmosphere is the only military school in the state and the only church school for boys within a large region.

For this reason, because St. John's school is the only one of its type within the scope of several states, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and frequently Missouri contribute to the membership of the classes. Held together by bonds of fellowship and honor, the boys annually go through a program which includes not only strict educational training but moral guidance, athletic development and the moulding of men. Character is placed ahead of scholastic achievement in this boys' school and, much as system is stressed by the faculty heads of the institution, individuality is given reign over all else.

The year's program, in spite of the close supervision at which boys usually look askance, is such a varied one that the campus of the military school has become a place which boys and young men of Salina find more and more alluring. It is no unusual sight, either, to find Salina people parked in their cars along the parade ground on Sunday afternoons and on evenings when the boys of the school are holding drill or having any one of their numerous athletic contests. The athletic program of St. John's has been expanded within the past few years. It now embraces all those features which permit the school to schedule contests with other schools of the league in Salina's territory, a fact which has attracted to the military academy some stellar athletes.

Basketball, baseball, track, football—all are on the list of St. John's athletics. And in addition, for those boys who do not enter into those sports, there is the annual contest of the two military clubs, the Army and the Navy. The year's competitive spirit between the two clubs ends each spring with the annual field meet, an event of the commencement season which always attracts many visitors. The commencement season is the peak of the year for the institution,— a time when mothers and dads observe a "home coming," when they visit Bill and John and Henry for days at a time, attend brilliant luncheons and commencement ball, view the great parade, witness the presentation of medals and letters and watch the graduates receive diplomas at the hands of Bishop Mize before the altar of the dignified and imposing Christ Cathedral, Episcopal church in Salina. And just before commencement season dawns there is that period of freedom from school routine known as the annual camp, when the boys revert back to the primitive nature of man, crawl under blankets for a night's hard earned sleep in tents and engage in the other myriad and one things which a week at camp with a bunch of boys can compass.

There was a time in the past, well remembered by many in Salina, when St. John's Military School seemed almost as secluded as a monastery. The students got into town seldom in those days, and to see them walking along the narrow paths bordering Santa Fe avenue to the stern stone academy at the northern edge of the city was to feel that, once arrived there, they would be lost in a retirement imposed by the discipline of the institution. But that time has vanished. The stern stone building still stands at the northern edge of the city. And the boys still walk from town out to that building. But they no longer follow a shy, sketchy little rural path. They stride along a broad sidewalk which flanks a paved street along which automobiles fly bearing the license plates of practically every state in the union. The idea of seclusion for St. John's Military Academy vanished years ago and the school is now as much a part of life in Salina as is the most centrally located high school or public institution of any other kind in the city. But the same old discipline prevails, even to the extent that each boy enrolled there writes home once a week! If he doesn't—there are ways of seeing that boys and their older brothers learn to like doing the things which military discipline prescribes, even to the writing of letters, admittedly almost as much under the ban of boyhood as washing ears and using finger bowls.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

St. John's was founded by the Rt. Rev. Elisha S. Thomas, Bishop of Kansas back in 1888, and to this day his memory is kept fresh in the minds of the students by the use of Thomas Park, named in his honor and used in its woodland state as a park. The parade ground is a level tract surrounding the main school building, which is very appropriately known as Vail Hall. The barracks are in this building, while adjoining this main academy grounds is the Junior School, where the younger boys attend. It is a newer part of the school, and comprises the younger boys, the property being acquired in 1922 with the building which was erected to serve as St. Barnabas hospital, an Episcopal institution abandoned in that year in favor of the junior school of the academy. There is an armory equipped with government rifles and accoutrements. The outdoor rifle range allows the boys to express the training in that work which the school affords.

With all its advantages for scholastic training, athletic training, physical development and moral guidance the character building idea is the one on which this school for boys lays special stress. That ideal being foremost, the instructors are selected as living examples, the board of trustees feeling that it is by example rather than precept that boys learn to become men. For that reason only men of character whom it is felt boys may well pattern after are chosen on the faculty of this institution. Carefully as the student roll is supervised—and it is well culled—the faculty is even more rigidly censored.

With the advent of this last spring a change was made in the governing system of the school, and a stride forward was charted down. The plan is good not only for the institution, it is felt, but will be effective in its operation by binding the academp closer to the city itself. The old method of a board of trustees is again in force. The Right Reverend Bishop R. H. Mize, who has been rector of the school for the past eight years and who was at one time its superintendent, is president of the board and will be official head of the school. Other members of the board include E. A. Miller, vice president and treasurer of the Watson Wholesale Grocery company; C. A. Lee, vice president of the Kansas Ice & Cold Storage; Col. W. L. Ganssle, superintendent of St. John's; C. B. Dodge, president of the Homestead Building & Loan association; Earl C. Woodward, manager of advertising, Salina Journal; J. S. Hargett, manager of the Robinson Milling company; F. C. Utt, owner of the Utt Lumber company; Col. F. R. Fitzpatrick, of the Fitzpatrick Mortgage company; L. G. Gottschick, manager of the H. D. Lee Milling company; and C. F. W. Seitz, of the Seitz Drug stores. Col. Ganssle, who remains in the capacity of superintendent of the military school, has been in that position for twelve years while the return of Col. Roy W. Perkins as commandant is one of the most interesting of the new developments, "Perk" as he is familiarly known in Salina as well as over the state being a distinct adjunct to the faculty.

Enrollment at St. John's, now under way, indicates at least a 25 percent increase over that of last year and the school, with its new policy and its ever alert attention to the highest ideals of training for boys and young men will probably continue to increase its scope and influence as the years roll on. There never will be, however, any more than there is at the present time, an effort to build an enrollment of numbers only. The business of building men is the prime goal of this military school and the enrollment will never be allowed to grow so large that classes cannot be kept small enough for personal attention to each boy and for the pursuit of that ideal of developing character.

GRADUATING CLASS AT ST. JOHN'S

Young Peoples Column

By Rev. W. A. Jonnard

"D. G. B." is a well-known Editor whose initials appear daily in several Southern Newspapers with a bit of verse attached to them. The following from his pen was written especially for me as a companion-piece to the "We Strive To Please" published a few weeks ago in this column. The "idea" is my own, but my good friend "D.G.B." "set it to music." as it were. We shall hear more from him in this column.

THESE YOUNG ONES

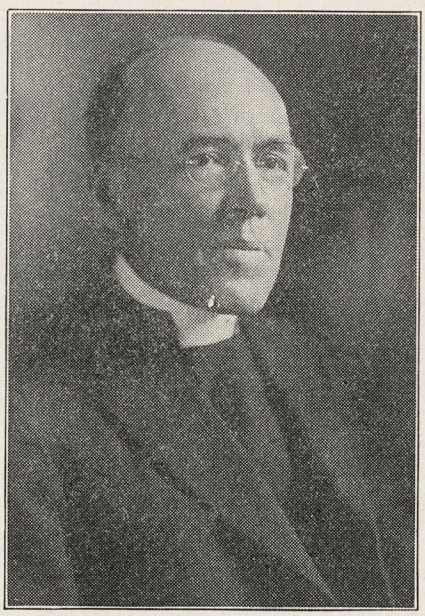
By D. G. B.

Oh, they're thoughtless at times,
May be frivolous too,
Immature in the things
That they say and they do:
But they haven't waked up,
They may still be a-draming—
They are not what they seem—
Something's under the seeming!

The realities stern
Of a strenuous life,
With its hardships and trials
And its stress and its strife
Have not calmed yet their hearts
To a steadier beating—
It's the first lap o' spring-time
They're only completing!

For back of the chatter
An eager brain's keen,
And deep in the breast
Is a heart that is clean—
Not a tissue of life
Has been tarnished nor tainted—
In truth they are never
Quite as bad as they're painted!

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.



THE BEGINNING OF A PARISH

The Thrill of the Early Days

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

THE charm that seems to hover over the origin of a Parish when one reviews the events from a safe distance, was not always apparent to those immersed in the struggle. What has created that charm? By what subtle process have the hardships been edged with splendor, and the trials been illumined with the gold of appreciative remembrance. Surely, years ago, when my little Parish paid its debts with difficulty, when the small congregations remained small in spite of all efforts, when a wheezy little organ was surpassed in its limitations only by a refractory furnace, surely those days had no romance in them. Yet, upon looking back, they seem to have had their compensations. It may be that I was very young, and the undeveloped Parish was the exact counterpart of my undeveloped ministry, and gave my soul quite room enough. At any rate, I love to think of those days. I think it is because we were all passing into a new experience and into a condition in which slow growth gave plenty of time to taste each new morsel carefully. We were Fletcherites then, and each new course was chewed into fine bits before it was assimilated. To-day, if we need new Hymnals, a hurried letter to the publisher brings them. In those days the purchase of new Hymnals seemed almost a sufficient reason for a special session of Congress. The pennies were counted, a home opened for a few neighbors who came and ate ice cream and listened to some music, thereby adding a few dimes to the pennies, until at length the order went. How eagerly we awaited those books. The music, sung from clear, fresh notes, seemed better the following Sunday. Those books were cared for, too. And the old carpet! It was almost a magic carpet, carrying the congregation to the seventh heaven of satisfaction. No hired hands scrubbed the floor that was to receive the precious burden, but the hands that had earned the money to buy that carpet.

How much we lose to-day by the lack of simple joy in growth, and how much the sense of possession is increased when pleasurable anticipation is reinforced by sacrificing cooperation. Build your Parish Church slowly, oh, men, and build into each brick, each article of furniture, each ornament, the devotion and interest of your people. That was the charm of it for us. We were growing. The miracle of growth is as interesting in institutions as it is in men or trees. We were all enthusiastic gardeners, planting, watering, watching, and then rejoicing when the first green blade appeared.

REV. W. H. MILTON
To Lead Carolina Clergy Conference

We were only creeping then. But how faithfully we crept. The Choir was small but good; the organizations few, but faithful. We did not fail to have our good times as a great family. We rejoiced in a large basement room, where we could meet as friends and enjoy simple pleasures. Even Thoreau, impatient as he was with all the elaborations of life, would have left his hut at Walden Pond to have spent such an evening. We had simple music, simple games and refreshments. The world was young in us, and we were children again. If you really want to wake up a Men's Club some evening, set the men to playing games that they enjoyed when young.

How we scrutinized the stranger in the beginning, when he dropped into service. He was full of possibilities. To the parson he was a pillar, to the Sunday School superintendent he was a parent, to the Treasurer he was a payer. The Choir did extra well, the ushers were attentive, and the sermon had a few cosmopolitan touches comprehensive enough to cover every possible mental, moral, or spiritual susceptibility of the stranger. And later, how disappointed the Parson was to find that the guest was but a chance visitor in the city, and would depart on the morrow, to see us no more.

But sometimes it happened otherwise, and a new family made its appearance to stay. We all brushed up a little then. It was like having company to dinner, and everybody was on good behavior. That was the charm of work in the beginning. We hoarded every scrap. A new face was like a new picture for the wall of the spiritual home. And new families came, and with them fresh strength and original ideas and growth. But the old names and faces never fade. I am not sure that the Parson, in after years, does not better remember the Parish as it was in the early years than as it was when he left it.

Count yourselves fortunate, oh, men and women and children, you who can share the noble work of founders and faithful servants in the beginning.

Dean Thornberry

St. Matthew's Cathedral

Laramie, Wyoming.

✕ O ✕

"Keep the bundle coming. Your paper is getting better all the time."

✕ O ✕

The Witness

Quality — Brevity — Price

and as a result

The Largest Circulation of Episcopal Church Weeklies.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

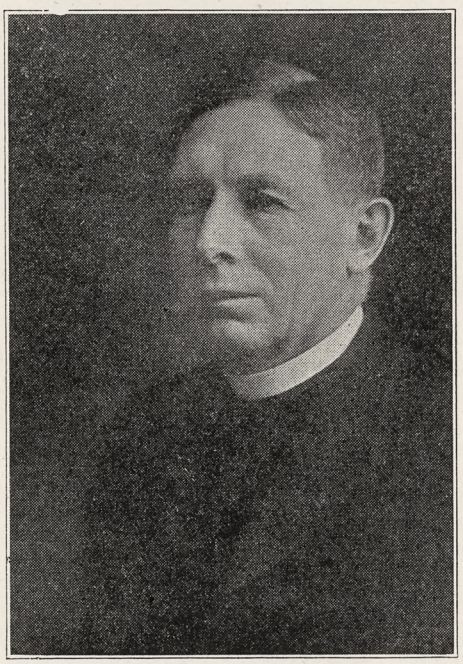
NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

IT IS due to comments received that I am giving up the Classified News idea and returning to the old gossip. The Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker of Chicago, an authority on newspapers, informs me that the change was a great mistake. My idea was to make it easier for you to find just what you are interested in, but Mr. Tucker's reply to that is: "It will do them good to hunt for it." Then a letter comes from the Rev. Irvine Goddard, summering in the east, and reading books for his reviews, in which he says: "I enjoyed your bunk in the paper almost as much as my reviews, so get back to it." So back I go.



* * *

It is not too soon to announce forthcoming good things; forthcoming, for we must wait until the opening of schools brings the parsons back to their jobs. First, a series by Bishop Johnson which will get under way next month. It is to be called "Why the Church Insists Upon——," with these for the articles, "An Apostolic Ministry," "A Definite Creed," "Confession of Sin," "Reception of Sacraments," "Eucharistic Worship," "Financial Support," "Missionary Activity." Sounds like real stuff.

Then Irwin St. John Tucker, whose articles on the Gospel of a Newspaper Man ran last Lent, has promised a series of articles on the Prayer Book as a Mystery Drama that I assure you will be worth the price of admission. Why, for instance, is the aisle of the church in the centre? Try that as an Ask Me Another. What is the significance of the Eucharistic candles, assuming of course that your church has them? Why is the Lecturn on one side and the pulpit on the other? Interesting bits of information to my way of thinking, and I know that you are going to enjoy this series which incidentally will lead up to a plan which has me enthusiastic and which I am sure will interest you. But I shall let Mr. Tucker—Friar Tuck he is called by those who know him well—tell you about it all later.

* * *

There is an offer on the back page this week which I shall appreciate having you read, particularly you parsons. There are no hooks on this offer. It is a genuine Auto Strop Razor with blade, strop, all in a pretty little box. Go into the store and you pay five iron men for one of these. Place your Bundle Order and you get it free. It is a mistake, some folks say, to make this offer; you are making people think that the razor is more valuable than the paper. The answer to that is that we have got to make folks read a few copies to realize that the paper is valuable. We think that it would be difficult to find more for three cents than you get in THE WITNESS. And you are not going to be cheating people, parsons, by asking your people to pay a boy at the church door a nickel for a copy each Sunday. Anyhow, the rectors who have really taken the Bundle Plan seriously—that is, make a real effort to interest their people in the paper—write that it does make a difference in the attitude of people. Let your people know that the Church is international, that it is concerned about something besides those parish topics which are discussed by the ladies over the tea cups, and you will find in time that you have a number of communicants who are real honest-to-goodness Churchmen and Churchwomen, keen to be on the job. So send your order along. After all, you are not running such a chance. You get the razor now. We will start the Bundle whenever you say —September or October. At the end of thirteen weeks we send you a bill for $3.90 of each ten copies. You pay the bill and tell us whether or not we are to keep on sending you the papers. Fair enough, isn't it? As "Ol' Bill" said, "If you know of a better 'ole go to it."

BISHOP BRENT
Preacher at Lausanne

* * *

Just one other word—there are three articles at hand by the great English clergyman, Canon James Adderley one on Prayer, one on Sacraments and the other on Repentance. Then an article on THIS QUESTION OF CAPITALISM by "Woodbine Willie" (The Rev. G. A. Studdert-Kennedy.) They will all be along in a few weeks. Now for news —sure it is pretty near time, I know it.

* * *

Bishop Brent was the preacher at the opening service on August third of the Lausanne Conference on Faith and Order and stressed the fact that the purpose of the conference was conference not controversy. "Through unity alone can the Kingdom of God be set up among men; through unity alone can the world know and believe that the Father sent Christ to reveal Himself to the human race."

One of the thorniest tasks of the Conference is that of a creed or common expression of faith. The debates in the committee considering this subject developed wide differences of opinion without any indication of a basis on which a common creed might be written.

Bishop Gore read a paper in which he said:

"Unless we accept the apostles' and Nicene creeds as authoritative statements of a common faith in Christ we might just as well abandon our efforts for unity and rest content with the pursuit of the moral and social aims of Christianity."

Dr. Lindskog of the Swedish Church said that creed depends upon interpretation. "Agreement in thought," he declares, "does not imply real or deep unity between souls."

Lord Sandes of the Scotch Church agreed with Bishop Gore. "We must find our doctrinal basis for union in Catholic symbols, though an authoritative restatement might some day be a task for the reunited Church." Lord Sandes also said that the accepted evangelical message ought to be taken from the New Testament setting forth the love of God and Savior both as redeemer, friend and brother and the free offer of salvation for man.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Bishop of Gloucester offered a concrete formula for the confession of faith, including the holy scripture and creeds set forth in the council of Chalcedon and Apostles' Creed.

J. Vernon Bartlett of Oxford, a Congregationalist, brought out faith in the gospel as distinguished from historical Creed, the last being the evangelical attitude.

Missing among the church leaders gathered at Lausanne are the bishops from Russia. Neither the bishop of "the Living Church" nor the Russian Church is permitted to leave the soviet republic.

The bishops of the Eastern Church outside of Russia have no easy path, because the countries from which they get their financial support, Russia, Roumania, Greece and Serbia, were hard hit by the world war. The big church estates were seized to be divided among the peasants in Roumania and to provide land for refugees in Greece. These eastern bishops with heavy beards, long hair and long black robes with gold ornaments dangling down their backs, form a picturesque feature of the conference. They are admired by the westerners for their keen knowledge of Church history.

The easterners claim that the Orthodox is the oldest Church. "If the west does not know whither it goes then the east does," they say. Although the Anglicans and American Episcopalians have much in common with the eastern church even as to the form of services, there is a difference which is hard to overcome.

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, who seems to express the American idea of modernism, said:

"If you have a good thing you can't keep it nice always. So it is with the Church. It must prove its worth and its life. Its power to communicate life is the test of the church's validity. The orthodox east takes the opposite point of view. It claims that the Church was inherited from God and is infallible. It remains to be seen whether we can reconcile the two opposed views."

* * *

San Diego, California, has organized a County and City Mission Society. The first act of the society meeting July 20th, was to pass a resolution asking for prayers. Twenty-one lay persons were elected to serve with Bishop Stevens and the clergy of San Diego as the board of directors.

* * *

Bishop Stevens writes that the summer schools of the Pacific Coast several of which have been reported here, were unusually fine this year, with large classes ably led. The twelfth year of the Oregon school, now called Gearhart, has a large number of young folks on hand. One of the finest courses was given by Father O'Hara, R. C., who is an authority on rural work; a course by the Rev. Dr. Ridgeley of China was also crowded. During the conference a service of blessing and farewell to two members of the school, Marian and Ruth Jenkins, was held. They sail as missionaries to the Hawaiian Islands this month. The announcement was also made of the gift of $10,000 which buys property near the ocean as a permanent home of the school.

* * *

You can blame Bishop Stevens for this story; it is authentic he says: In a discussion group at the conference at Asilomar, California, one of the students asked: "What am I to say when one of my group finds the 'New York Churchman' saying one thing and the 'Living Church' declaring the exact opposite?" To which the leader quickly replied: "Tell her to subscribe for THE WITNESS."

* * *

Bishop Beckwith of Alabama has just issued a new course of instruction for church schools. He is an authority on the Prayer Book upon which the lessons are based.

The Bishop's thesis is that in the church school the Church has instituted a school of influence, rather than of instruction. He holds that

A Church School in the lake district of high, healthful, Central Florida

The Cathedral School For Girls

Orlando, Florida

College Prepartory and General Courses.
State Accredited.

Music, Supervised Athletics.

Boarding and Day Pupils.

The Right Reverend Cameron Mann, D. D.,President.
Miss Clara Burton, Principal.

Catalogue Sent Upon Request.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

the churchman, of whatever age, learns chiefly through the practice of the worship laid down in the Book of Common Prayer, with the minister as instructor, commissioned by the Church. He may call to his aid such persons and books of instruction as can best illustrate and interpret that worship. The church school is the logical agency for this interpretation; the Book of Common Prayer is the logical text book. Mature persons of right character and judgment, of proven loyalty and through knowledge of the Church, are the logical faculty.

* * *

They asked the twenty-six clergymen who attended the Cornell Rural Conference to list the books which have proved most useful to them. Titles of sixty-three books came in only one of which was related to rural work. Apparently a great conference, anyhow they have a real live group of clergy there, led by Bishop Coley and lectures and conferences on most everything.

* * *

The Federal Council has some genius within who is a past master at picking out long titles: The Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America Commission on Evangelism and Life Service. It met at Northfield this summer and there worked out a plan for evangelism for this year which includes a study of the Life of Christ on the part of church members, (2) the deepening of the devotional life during Lent, (3) a definite program of instruction for the young, (4) the enlisting and training of members for the ingathering of members. The first Sunday in October has been called Rally Sunday, to be proceeded by a canvas of the parish, and that following the Rally an effort be made to win the indifferent and the absentees, and that the lay folks of the parish be enlisted in this visitation work. Finally there is publicity—they want the churches to talk more about themselves with printers ink. The report is signed by fifty or more famous pastors, including for Episcopalians Bishop Freeman of Washington, Bishop Talbot of Bethlehem (resigned) and the Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins of Philadelphia.

* * *

Lots of building going on out on Long Island. Here's some: St. Peter's, Rosedale, Rev. J. W. Burrow, rectory to be built at once. St. John's, Springfield, Rev. W. Gordon Craig, new church and parish house which is nearly complete. Grace Chapel, Corona, colored mission in charge of the Rev. Arthur G. Roberts, a new church and rectory is under construction. Belle Harbor, St. Andrew's-by-the-Sea, they have purchased a large lot beside the church for a parish house and rectory and at Floral Park a new plant is going up.

* * *

The Rev. Dr. Lacey, rector of the Redeemer, Brooklyn, speaking of the influx of foreigners said recently: "Foreign missions are at our doors. Every parish is challenged. Bohemiaville on Long Island is the only work of its kind in the American Church. St. Peter's, one of our oldest Brooklyn churches, is now the Syrian Cathedral. St. Michael's fell into the hands of the Ukrainians. When Bishop Burgess was ill the Syrian Archbishop Germanos leaped to his assistance and administered confirmation in four churches. Bishop Stires made a masterly plea at the diocesan convention on the subject. There is a challenge to go in and possess the land."

* * *

Young peoples camp, first ever held in East Carolina, was held in the Cumberland Hills last month for ten days. It was directed most successfully by the Rev. Frank D. Dean, M. D. of Wilmington. Lectures were given, including several on personal religion by Bishop Darst. Others by the Rev. G. F. Cameron of Ayden, and Rev. J. N. Bynum of Delhaven.

* * *

The Church in Colorado last year gave $25,000 to the National Council, raised $13,000 for its own work,

Wykeham Rise

Washington, Connecticut

A Country School for Girls in the Foothills of the Berkshires. Mid-way between New York and Pittsfield.

Has just completed it's twenty-fifth year.

Now re-organized under a Board of Trustees as a non-profit sharing corporation for the cause of Education.

College Preparatory and General Courses. Special Courses in Music and Art.

Horse- back riding, Golf, Archery and all Winter Sports. The twenty-sixth year begins September twenty-ninth.

For Information:

Fanny E. Davies, LL.A.
HEAD-MISTRESS

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

and received $10,000 from the general Church. Thus, more was sent out of Colorado than was expended in Colorado in spite of the problem that confronts Church people in that enormous field. They sent out $25,000 and spent $23,000 on their own diocese in missionary work. This money is spent chiefly in maintaining missionaries in extensive fields which otherwise would be without the services of the Church.

The Rev. J. A. McNulty of Alamosa cares for a territory about as large as Massachusetts in which he has church buildings at seven points, while he is called upon for services in the whole San Luis Valley.

The Rev. R. A. Johnson at Steamboat Springs is the sole priest in the northwest quarter of the State, having no neighbor at present in the diocese nearer than one hundred and fifty miles. His territory is about the size of New Hampshire.

The Rev. Eric Smith at Paonia has the care of a county as large as Delaware.

The Rev. John S. Foster at Montrose cares for the work in two counties, ministering to three established congregations.

The Rev. Bernard Geiser at Gunnison is the sole priest in a county as large as Rhode Island.

The Rev. Frank Nikel has the sole charge of the Church in the Arkansas Valley, having four congregations and a territory as large as Connecticut.

In all of these places there are towns in which we have from 10 to 100 communicants, giving each priest the oversight of two or three hundred scattered families.

* * *

Rev. Loring Clark, national missioner, is spending several week holding missions in and near Wilmington, N. C.

* * *

A thousand people gathered at the Huss Monument, Bohemiaville, Long Island, last month where exercises were held under the auspices of the Jan Huss Men's Club of which the Rev. Joseph H. Bond of Sayville is spiritual director. The speakers the Chechoslovak consul and the Rev. T. J. Lacey of Brooklyn.

* * *

Provost Hill of Aberdeen is to be the speaker at a service at the Redeemer, Brooklyn, on October 16th to commemorate the consecration of the first American Bishop in Scotland. A delegation of Scottish Church leaders will attend the service.

* * *

The first unit of the new Christ Church, Tacoma, Washington, has been completed, a beautiful parish house. They are now to build a church and a rectory. The Rev. Sidney T. James is rector.

* * *

Church missions was so interesting to the clergy of San Francisco at their July Round Table meeting that they voted to take the same topic for their meeting this month.

* * *

Cable from Bishop Graves—Reporting that the Chinese families that have been occupying our mission residence on Lion Hill have been forced out and the residence occupied by others. The cable does not state whether the residences have been taken over by the army. This seems likely in view of previous experience at Wuhu and elsewhere and in view of the concentration of troops of the Hankow Government along the Yangtze preparatory to taking Nanking, in accordance with the purpose announced by spokesmen for the Hankow Government.

* * *

Cable from Bishop Roots—Recommending that Miss Coral Clark should plan to work in the United States for the present.

Asking that Miss M. G. Cabot should return to the Church General Hospital, Wuchang, in September.

Asking that Miss Martha Boynton be appointed as secretary in succession to Miss Couch, and that she come out in September and begin studying the language.

That Miss M. J. Ravenel of the Church General Hospital return if her health is satisfactory. It is probable that Miss Ravenel will have to

HARCOURT
Church School for Girls
Recently Incorporated
GAMBIER, OHIO
The Rt. Warren Lincoln Rogers, D. D.
Chairman of the Board of Trustees
Miss Harriette Merwin
Miss Marion Eloise Lasher
PRINCIPALS

CHURCH TRAINING
and
DEACONESS HOUSE
of Pennsylvania
For the training of Deaconesses, Missionaries, and Parochial Workers.
President, The Bishop of Pennsylvania. Warden, The Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, S. T. D.
Address
Deaconess Clara M. Carter
708 Spruce St. Philadelphia, Pa.

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation
◆ ◆ ◆
THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.
Chartered under Act of Congress.
Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.
Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.
◆ ◆ ◆
Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

St. Albans School
SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS
Diocese of Chicago
Sixty miles west of Chicago.
Five miles off the Lincoln Highway

SCHOLASTIC:	Best of preparation for college. Boys this fall will be entered at Dartmouth, M. I. T., Yale, Princeton, Columbia, St. Stephens, Hobart, Kenyon, Annapolis, University of the South, Knox, Beloit, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Lafayette, Miami and Purdue.
ATHLETIC:	Every boy has an opportunity to enter the sports — Foot Ball — Basketball — Tennis— Track — Golf — Baseball — The School for two years has had an enviable reputation.
RELIGIOUS:	Great care has been given to have a good religious atmosphere. There are few obligatory services.
HOME LIFE:	The School has been to capacity for six years. Great care has been used in the selection of boys. The group enrolled has made it possible to have a full honor system under a council and an atmosphere of an ideal home.
CONFERENCES:	The Rector will be glad to make appointments at various centers during the summer. A visit to the school would be of value. The Chicago Office is Room 1411, Tower Building, Wednesdays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Address the School for literature and information.
ENROLLMENT:	Last year boys came from Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Florida, Louisiana, Montana, Colorado, Wisconsin, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Alaska.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

delay departure as in May our medical adviser reported she should have nine months in this country.

* * *

Cable from Bishop LaMothe—That the Rev. Y. T. Kong, rector of St. Peter's Church, Honolulu, died August 1. Many China missionaries who have passed through Honolulu will recall Mr. Kong and his admirable work.

* * *

The China Medical Association has collected some figures regarding hospitals in China, in the eleven provinces under Nationalist rule, quoted in the Shanghai Newsletter:

More or less normal under permanent staff, foreign or Chinese	38
Under temporary arrangement with Chinese staff	68
Closed	55

There are a few hospitals in these provinces not included in this list, mostly small. It is probable that these would not need to be added to the "Closed" list.

"It is no little satisfaction to know that sixty-eight hospitals are running under temporary arrangement with the Chinese staff but too much must not be made of these figures. In many cases the staff is inexperienced and hardly qualified for the heavy strain thus thrown upon it. Financial difficulties of a very grave character have also to be met and it is not likely that more than half of these can survive for any very long period. Among them also are four that though still running have been seized by the military. These are without exception large hospitals and the work now done in them is probably of an extremely poor quality. We know of one of which we are told that the doctors, both foreign and Chinese, have been expelled and the medical work is being done by male nurses in their place!

"The list of hospitals closed includes two that have been completely looted, probably many others have suffered to a less degree, and one has been destroyed by bombardment."

* * *

Here is a summary of news from Japan—Four Japanese deacons were ordained priests last year in the Tohoku district; two ordained deacons in North Tokyo and one priest. Three churches consecrated and two parish houses dedicated. Confirmations more than doubled those of the previous year, and baptisms increased fifty per cent. The training school for kindergartners and mission women at Sendai is in a flourishing condition. The graduates of the school are a real help in the evangelistic work.

* * *

More confirmations last year in Nevada than in any previous year. The district paid its appointment to the National Council in full and expects to continue to do so. Several missions have become self-supporting that previously looked for outside aid. Several new missions have been started.

* * *

Thirty acolytes were the guests of St. Urial's, Sea Girt New Jersey, for a day's outing on August 2nd. Five rectors of nearby parishes were also present.

* * *

All of the offerings during the summer at Trinity Church, New York, go to the support of mission work. The church maintains two pieces of social service work; the mission house on Fulton Street which ministers to the poor of that district and the Seaside Home on Long Island where poor children are given an outing by the ocean.

* * *

Whitaker Hall, school in Nevada, was sold some years ago. The money was set aside as the Whitaker-Barr endowment to be used as a loan and gift fund to assist young Nevada women to go through the state university. Four attended the university last year on this fund.

* * *

Twenty-four dioceses and six missionary districts were represented among the 250 who attended the Blue Mountain Conference at Frederick Maryland. This conference is unique in at least two ways; it is a general conference not confining itself to certain dioceses; elementary courses are not given but rather advanced ones for experienced workers.

* * *

A branch of the Young Peoples Fellowship with an enrollment of 100 members has been organized at

SAINT MARY'S
Knoxville, Illinois
An accredited college preparatory school with special department for girls in the grades. Athletics. Music. Art. Expression. Secretarial and Business courses. For catalogue write to the Rector.

FREEHOLD
MILITARY SCHOOL
For 80 Select Young Boys
A school with the personal touch. Just enough military training to inculcate habits of obedience, promptness, orderliness, cleanliness and self-reliance. The students' comforts, pleasures and sports are as carefully considered as their mental training. Healthful location. 42 miles from N. Y., 66 miles from Phila. For catalog address. MAJOR CHAS M. DUNCAN, P. O. Box W, Freehold, N. J.

St. Albans The National Cathedral School For Boys
Thorough Preparation for Leading Universities. Splendid equipment, unexcelled location on Mt. St. Alban overlooking Washington. Eight years' course. Athletics for Every Boy.
Address: WILLIAM H. CHURCH
Head Master, Washington, D. C.

NURSING COURSE
of 2½ years, leading to R. N. degree.
Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll Now
Send for full information to
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas,
Newark, N. J.

MARGARET HALL
Versailles, Kentucky
In the Heart of the Blue Grass
College Preparatory School for Girls
Sara McDowell Gaither, A.B.
Principal

SHATTUCK
A CHURCH SCHOOL FOR BOYS
For 68 years Shattuck has been a leader among the country's college preparatory schools of the highest order. It is particularly noted for High Scholarship, Manly Character, Christian Citizenship. A military boarding school founded to train boys for service, not for profit. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall. Address the Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin
Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

ROWLAND HALL
A School for Girls in the Wasatch Mountains
Salt Lake City, Utah
BISHOP MOULTON, Rector.

NASHOTAH HOUSE
Founded in 1842
Theological Seminary and Collegiate Department
For particulars address the dean
NASHOTAH HOUSE
Nashotah, Wisconsin

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 115 Franklin St., New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs, chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens. Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT
SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY
House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y. References required.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Trinity Cathedral, Reno, Nevada. Many of the members are university students.

* * *

We learn of a new use for a roll top desk; Mrs. Ancell of Mahan School, China, possessed a fine oak roll top desk. When the soldiers took the school for barracks they used the roll top as a scrubbing board and the desk itself for chopping their vegetables.

* * *

Dr. Ancell adds: "I feel it a tribute justly due to express the deep regret which the entire Yangehow staff, both Chinese and American, feel for the sad loss of Mr. Liu Han, the Chief of Police, who in April was shot down because he refused to produce on the oral demand of some private soldiers certain prominent residents of the city who were accused by the soldiers. The Sheng Kung Hui has through many years enjoyed the friendship of this exceptionally able and intelligent official, and from him has received much friendly help in various times of need. Among his last acts were the provision of an official escort for our ladies when leaving in March, and his attention to certain arrangements whereby our Pien Ming School property was protected from military occupation."

* * *

A conference for the clergy of East Carolina is to be held next month. Rev. W. H. Milton of Wilmington is to be the leader.

* * *

Letters have been sent to all the Bishops in China telling them of the proposal to re-open the Central Theological School in the autumn in Nanking. If it is not possible to open the school in that city, plans will be made to house the school on the St. John's Compound.

* * *

Plans also are being made to continue the Theological School in English at St. John's and four students have already signified their intention to return.

* * *

The Rev. John Gayner Banks, director of the Society of The Nazarene, Mountain Lakes, N. J., has been appointed mission preacher of Washington Cathedral. This distinction was conferred upon the Rev. Mr. Banks by official action of the Cathedral Chapter according to the announcement of the Bishop James E. Freeman.

* * *

Rev. George B. Scriven of the

ST. ANNE'S Open Air School, Box W, Charlotteville, Va.
Beautiful location in far famed Blue Ridge Mountains. College preparatory and elective courses. Fully accredited by State Board of Education. Open gymnasium allows sports in the fresh air in all weather. Riding taught by expert. Music. Art. Bishop of Virginia, President of Trustees. Laura Lee Dorsey, Principal.

25,000 CHURCHES USE
OSTERMOOR
CUSHIONS
BUILT - NOT STUFFED.
Illustrated Booklet and Samples Free
Old Cushions renovated and recovered equal to new
Ostermoor & Co., Inc., Dept. C, 114 Elizabeth St., N.Y.

THE NEW YORK TRAINING SCHOOL FOR DEACONESSES
419 West 110th St. New York
Prepares women for life service in the Church as Deaconesses, or as Trained Workers.
Two-year Academic course.
Field Work in both Religious Education and Social Service.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California
A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited, R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

PREPARES boys at cost for college. All equipment new and modern. A very healthy location on the suburbs of Lynchburg, within sight of the Blue Ridge mountains. The cost is made moderate through the generosity of the founders. A strong healthy religious atmosphere; an able faculty guaranteeing high scholastic standards, and a beautiful athletic field insuring the proper physical development of the growing boy. The school is a member of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States, which admits boys upon certificate to all colleges and universities where such method is accepted.

For catalog apply to

Rev. William G. Pendleton, D.D.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland.
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore.
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago.
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago.
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago.
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily, 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily, 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

district of South Dakota is to deliver lectures this coming year at Seabury Divinity School on rural sociology. He has been taking special work on the subject in New York this summer.

* * *

A social service clinic has been held this summer in Cincinnati for the theological students, under the direction of Dr. William Keller. The students are placed in agencies for the practical experience and conferences are held under the leadership of experts.

* * *

Preachers in New York—Trinity, Rev. J. A. Schaad of Augusta, Ga.; St. Thomas', Rev. High Moor of Atlanta, Ga.; Cathedral of St. John the Divine. President Bell of St. Stephen's College and Bishop Johnson, editor and Bishop of Colorado.

* * *

Rev. F. S. Fleming, rector of St. Stephen's, Providence, R. L., who was in an automobile accident in

BOOKS

Cushioned Pews
By Bishop Johnson
Forty essays that challenge the way of life of present day men.
$1.75 a copy

Foundation Stones
By H .P. Almon Abbott
A popular presentation of the teaching of the creeds. Recommended by the Presiding Bishop.
$1.25 a copy

The Bible and Evolution
By Postell Witsell
Contains statements on the subject by America's foremost educators.
50c a copy

The Way of Life
By Bishop Johnson
Setting forth the author's understanding of the meaning of a Christian life. 50c a copy

Lies
I Believe
The Wicket Gate
By G. A. Studdert-Kennedy
The most popular of present day English Church writers.
Each book, $1.60 a copy

WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Ave.
CHICAGO

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York.
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D.
Sundays, 8 and 11 a. m.

Trinity Church, New York.
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 7:30 and 11

St. James, New York.
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York.
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, and 11 A. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp & Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — in a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

July is out of the hospital but will be unable to resume his duties for another two months. His car ran into a tree as he avoided collision with an approaching car.

* * *

Bruce Barton, advertising man and preacher without license, compares the Church with the Business Work.

1. Church is less honest. Business never pads statistics. The rolls of the churches are horribly padded with inactive members.

2. Church does not have as much faith as business. Business welcomes change and pays experts to discover new methods that may mean the scrapping of millions of dollars worth of machinery. The Church on the other hand is "afraid that tomorrow may be different."

3. Business is flexible, the church is not. It used to be a social, mental and cultural center for rural folks. It still tried to be this in the urban age; result, competition with other agencies which are better able to supply these needs. Church needs to recognize its job . . ." an oasis of reverence, a giver of peace."

4. "Rich men, greedy men, hard-boiled men rule the church, take wine from the people, suppress Sunday games, condemn the impulses of hot blood. Greater sins they ignore."

5. Church raises barriers which keep out the best men from the ministry; absurb theological beliefs; asking them to conduct prayer meetings for a dozen completely saved people; making them live on shabby wages.

* * *

Successful and inspiring—the Blue Mountain Conference, Frederick, Maryland, from July 11th to 23rd. Hood College was placed at the disposal of the Church—an attractive place. The attendance was fine, the lecturers all experts. China, as at the other conferences this summer, came in for it at the hands of the Rev. Bernard Y. Tsen. Rural work, Negroes, Bishops' Crusade were the subject of special meeting—Oh yes, of course, Young People.

* * *

Auxiliary diocesan educational

Clerical Changes

ALLIGOOD, Rev. Howard, rector of missions adjacent to Washington, N. C., has taken charge of St. Phillip's, Campbellton, Good Shepherd, Tolar-Hart Mill Village and Christ Church, Hope Mills, N. C., with residence at Tolar Hart, Fayetteville, N. C.

DERBYSHIRE, Rev. A. J., rector of St. Timothy's, Columbia, S. C., has accepted a call to Trinity, Shelburne, Vermont.

FRYER, Rev. M. M., rector of Christ Church, Jerome, Arizona, has accepted a call to St. Mark's, Tonopah, Nevada.

MATTHEWS, Rev. Sidney A., has taken charge of St. Phillip's, Southport, North Carolina.

VEST, Rev. George S., rector of Grace Church, Berryville, Va., has accepted a call to be the rector of Emmanuel, Alexandria, Va.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.000 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, Pesident,
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
College Preparatory and General Courses
MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College
Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

secretaries are having a series of conferences this summer and fall in preparation for next year's work. They are being held in connection with the Church Conferences.

* * *

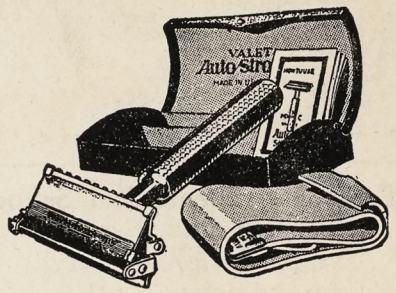
The Rev. Everett Holland Jones was ordained to the Priesthood by Bishop Capers, in Grace Church, Cuero, Texas, on July the 3rd, being the Third Sunday after Trinity. The Bishop preached the sermon and was assisted in the Ordination Service by the following clergy of the Diocese: Archdeacon B. S. McKenzie presented the candidate, the Rev. Samuel Capers, a classmate of the Rev. Mr. Jones, read the Litany, the Rev. Fred M. Brasier, of Port Lavaca read the Epistle and the Rev. K. L. Houlder of Gonzales, read the Gospel. The neighboring parishes closed their services for the morning and joined with the people of Cuero in attending this most impressive ordination service. Mr. Jones has just graduated from the Theological Seminary of Virginia.

Made by
American Seating Company

Interior Grace Cathedral, Topeka, Kansas

An Appropriate Memorial

THE entire chancel of the Grace Cathedral, Topeka, Kansas illustrated above is dedicated to the memory of Bishop Millspaugh, Bishop of Kansas, and was designed and executed by our wood-carving division.



We shall be pleased to confer on any plans concerning memorials in wood, special pieces or complete church furnishings.

American Seating Company

GENERAL OFFICES: 1024 LYTTON BUILDING

CHICAGO

Free to Rectors

Auto Strop Safety Razor. The "Gold Pal" that sells for $5 (includes razor, strop, blade and attractive case).

Order a Witness Bundle now to start September first. Agree to take ten copies a week for 13 weeks and the razor will be sent at once. Sent no money.

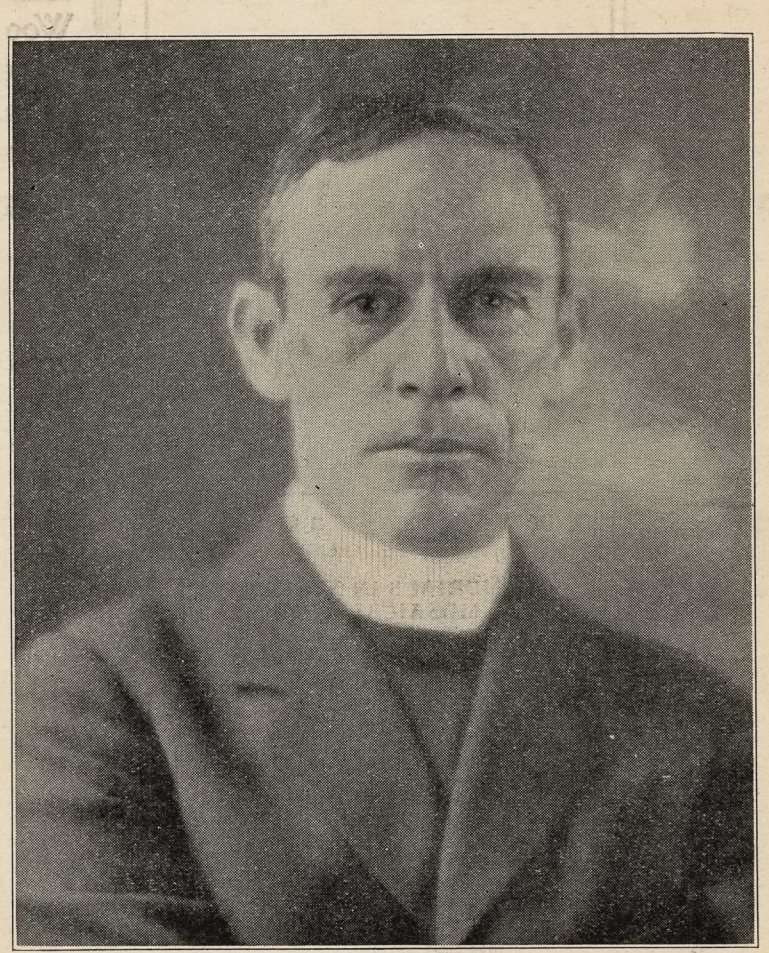
We bill you at the end of the quarter at 3c a copy ($3.90 for ten copies for thirteen weeks.) Have a boy sell the papers at the church door for a nickle.

A well-informed parish is an active one.

THE WITNESS,
6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago.

Send me a Bundle of —— copies (at least ten) starting September first. I will pay for them at the end of the quarter at 3c a copy. I understand this entitles me to an Auto Strop Razor.

Name .....



Street .....

City .....

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, AUGUST 25, 1927

REV. FRANKLIN J. BOHANAN

Copyright 2020, Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.
314 East 34th St. New York
worker in glass mosaic church decoration

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS
Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street
Designers of
HISTORICAL WINDOWS
Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.
Clerestory Windows
St. Thomas Church New York City
Stained Glass, Mural Decorations,
Glass Mosaics

The Charm of Golden-Voiced Chimes
is within reach of your church, too!
Imagine the rich, musical tones of
Deagan Tower Chimes
coming from the belfry of your church—a constant inspiration to worship; a golden voice eagerly awaited by multitudes every day. Write for plan.
Standard Sets $6,000 and Up.
J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

For "Daylight Projection"
of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use
BALOPTICONS
There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.
Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 697 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.
Church Bells — Peals
McShane Bell Foundry Co.
Baltimore, Md.

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:
EXETER
and 4 & 5 Duncannon St:
Charing Cross LONDON
ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS
in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal and
Stained Glass

Vestments
For the Clergy and Choir.
Altar Linens, Embroideries, Materials. Clerical and Lay Tailoring.
J. M. HALL, Inc.
174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403)
(Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY
BELLS

Moller Pipe Organs
The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.
M. P. MOLLER
Hagerstown, Maryland

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS
FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.
1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
GLASS STAINERS
By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates on application to
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.), Ltd.
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

The Ellwood Potts Studios
5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.
MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS
If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart
Stained Glass
English Artists
550 & 552 W. HARRISON St. CHICAGO

R. GEISSLER, INC.
56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS
ESTD 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Windows of Merit
Beautiful Grouping;
Gorgeous Combinations of Color
Well executed by
The Von Gerichten Studios
Columbus, Ohio New York City

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.
— Office and Studio —
221-223 E. Fulton St. — Columbus, Ohio.
DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.
— Photos, Designs and Estimates Upon Application —
ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Memorial Windows
Monuments and Church Furnishings
IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR
CHARLES F. HOGEMAN
45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts.
NEW YORK
460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 1 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

BISHOP THOMAS OF WYOMING

How He Met the Problems of the West

BY BISHOP JOHNSON

AT THE RECENT meeting of the House of Bishops, the Rt. Rev. Nathaniel S. Thomas resigned as Bishop of Wyoming.

For eighteen years he has served the Church in this district, and it seems fitting that something should be said of the work which he has accomplished in that period.

On a recent automobile trip in which we traversed some twelve hundred miles in Wyoming we had an opportunity to observe the situation which confronted him and the methods which he has employed in meeting it.

It is not the purpose of this article to discuss the personality of the man, nor his ecclesiastical relations but to confine ourselves to the provision which he has made for doing the work of the Church in an exceedingly difficult field.

Wyoming has a larger area than New York and Pennsylvania combined and its entire population is no larger than that of Syracuse, N. Y.

It has one city of about twenty-five thousand inhabitants and three more which together will account for about twenty-five thousand more.

The balance of the population is scattered over the area above described, on ranches, in hamlets and villages separated from one another by magnificent distances.

In this trip we motored four hundred miles in one stretch, out of the sound of a railroad train and frequently the interval between human habitations of any sort was thirty miles.

The isolation of ranches and towns under such circumstances is appalling, when one contemplates the task of giving adequate spiritual ministrations to them. In many western states such remote places are entirely destitute of any religious services, because of the expense and difficulty in providing them.

BISHOP THOMAS

One of the first things which Bishop Thomas did on his arrival in Wyoming was to travel on horseback for a month, surveying his field. He brought to his task three great talents.

He had the gift of enthusiasm which is apt to be depreciated in our church because it always involves expense. Sedentary bishops do not cost so much.

He had visions of how the task ought to be done and was not satisfied with a partial program.

He had an unusual ability to present his visions to material wealth in such a way as to be convincing. He has personally raised very large sums of money, so that his district is much better supplied with equipment than any other which I have visited.

For ten years Bishop Thomas pursued a policy of meeting the peculiar needs of his district in a masterful way. He planned, he raised the money, he executed.

Then came one of those industrial changes in the policy of institutions which is in the interest of efficiency but which invariably works a hardship on those who have become proficient in the old way.

Bishop Thomas encountered this industrial change when the Church adopted the budget system and requested missionary bishops to refrain from personal solicitation of funds.

It was the intention and expectation that the Church should continue to finance these missionary districts more abundantly than ever, and in many cases, it so worked out, but Wyoming was the exception to the rule. At first the National Council gave to Bishop Thomas the full quota that his projects required, but it soon became evident that a continued appropriation to Wyoming of the large sum which the situation demanded seemed to work a hardship on other districts where the need was equally great but the equipment for meeting the need was not so complete or expensive. The necessity for retrenchment became evident and there grew up a deficit in the overhead of Wyoming projects which Bishop Thomas could not meet in the old way and which the National Council did not feel justified in continuing in the new. What were these projects and what was their justification?

The See City of Wyoming is Laramie which is the university town of the State. It is a city of cultured people entirely surrounded by sage brush, less than 10,000 in population. Here is a Cathedral worthy of any place, but much more valuable here than in New York, because of the rarity of such structures in the State. Here is a Church home for boys and one for girls, where the children from the isolated sections can come up to Laramie, attend the public schools of that city and receive religious instruction and spiritual care during their high school course.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The value of this is inestimable in a state where half the population live fifty miles from a high school.

Here he also built an orphan asylum for the children of these isolated districts whose parents may have died far from any friends or relatives. Here he has a broadcasting station at which a service is held every noon for those on ranch or in hamlet who desire to be fed and a Sunday service for those in the state who otherwise would never hear the word of God.

In the northern part of the state is a reservation on which are a thousand Indians the remnants of the once powerful Arapahoe and Shoshone tribes. These Indians are poor and the government provision for their needs is inadequate.

On this reservation Bishop Thomas has built a complete industrial, educational and spiritual plant to meet their urgent needs.

Here the Rev. John Roberts, much beloved by the Indians, has devoted his entire ministry. It is surely fitting that the Church should carry on this work of restitution for the wrongs committed by our race against the original inhabitants of the land.

In Jackson's Hole there is a complete hospital which ministers to a circuit of several hundred miles.

When Bishop Thomas made his horseback survey, he learned that out of five deliveries, three mothers had died on ranches for lack of adequate medical attention.

Incidentally this hospital is the refuge for those who are the victims of motor accidents on their way to Yellowstone.

In nearly every hamlet of 300 people, there is a beautiful little chapel with regular ministrations from time to time.

It was a comfort in this long tour to pass many little Episcopal Churches which held the only services available to the people. And Wyoming is the only state west of the Alleghenies which has a ratio of one communicant of every sixty of the population. (The ratio of the whole Church is one to ninety-three.) This in itself is a tribute to the work of Bishop Talbot (1887-1898) and Bishop Thomas (1909-1927).

After touring Wyoming and observing these things, I made certain refections which I desire to pass on to my readers—

1. If the Church with its wealth and intelligence were alive to the situation, it would equip every Missionary District with the same generosity with which Wyoming has been equipped.

2. It would be joyous and proud to maintain a district so adequately cared for as Wyoming.

3. It would now make use of Bishop Thomas to visualize the need of sending the Gospel in an adequate way to the hundreds of thousands of unchurched people living in small towns throughout the length and breadth of this land.

It seems a pity that Bishop Thomas might not have been permitted to finance the projects which he had begun in his own way. It was a generous way to provide for a human need. When one sees this need eye to eye, he realizes the inadequacy of the efforts made to reach the isolated by all religion bodies.

Bishop Thomas has set up the mechanics for doing so, but unfortunately it is expensive. So are medical clinics, community chests, country clubs, university foundations. All these are fine but they somehow lack the human touch which Bishop Thomas' methods provided in the District of Wyoming.

Let us hope that some way will be found to carry on this work on the adequate scale in which it has been conceived and executed.

I have been informed that before Bishop Thomas leaves he will have taken care of all deficits, which were brought about, not by the inability of Bishop Thomas to meet the obligations which he had incurred, but because a change in the system of the church (for the better unquestionably) caught him with projects that cost much but which he was stopped from financing in the way in which he had begun.

For once I was not ashamed of the meagre way in which the Episcopal Church takes care of its lonely children in the little places, but I was sorrowful that our church was so poor that it could not do this work all over the west.

It would mean that in fifty years the Episcopal Church would lead the west in numbers and in influence.

Our Cover

FRANKLIN JOHNS BOHANAN is the rector of Rock Creek Parish, Washington, D. C., coming to the National Capitol from Trinity Cathedral, Easton, Maryland, where he was dean. He is a native of Maryland, is a graduate of St. John's College and of the General Theological Seminary in 1902. He was the rector of St. Andrew's, Norwich, Connecticut until 1917. He was a Canon of Washington Cathedral for a short period before taking up his present work.

Books

A CHURCH SCHOOL BOOK OF PRAYER AND PRAISE. Rev. Maurice Clarke. Published by Morehouse Publishing Co. Price 80 cents.

Superintendents of Church Schools will be very grateful for this book of services for the Church School. There is a freshness and vitality as well as a liturgical soundness evident in each service.

* * *

THE GREAT PHYSICIAN. A manual of devotion for those who care for the sick. Selected and arranged by A. J. Gaynor Banks and W. Sinclair Bowen. Published by The MacMillan Co. Price $2.00.

This is the work of a priest of the Church and a physician of some eminence. It will be extremely helpful to the clergy in their ministrations to the sick and a god-send to many a sufferer. To clergy and laity alike we can commend this book.

* * *

A BOOK OF OFFICES AND PRAYERS. For Priest and People. Compiled by two Presbyters of the Church. Published by Edwin Gorham, New York. Price $1.50.

This second revised edition of this well known book of devotion is made necessary by the revision of the Book of Common Prayer. Some of the prayers of the older edition have been omitted and newer ones added which is a decided improvement and will be welcomed by those who use the book in their devotions.

* * *

ASK ME A BIBLE QUESTION. George Stewart, Ph. D. Published by the Century Co., New York. Price $1.50.

There is nothing like being up to date and this book is an attempt at an up to date method of religious instruction. We might call it a sublimation of the current craze of question asking, which is the prime impertinence of the year. There are 940 questions in the book and the reviewer would certainly be embarrassed were he to meet this Biblical Fusillade unawares. And so would some others. Buy the book and save yourself the embarrassment.

Irvine Goddard.

Copyright 2020 Archives of the Episcopal Church /DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE PLACE OF THE CREED

In the Christian Religion

By

BY CANON JAMES ADDERLEY

WHEN once my heart had been touched by religion, as it was when I repented of my past sins and set to work to fight my temptations and to say my prayers, the whole matter changed. I began to see that things I had said and done in church were real and meant something. For instance, I had said the Creed, but it had not meant anything in particular. I began to love it, or rather to love the things I said I believed in. I see now that there is a great difference between saying you believe a thing and saying you believe in that thing. I like that text in the Bible where it says that the devils believe and tremble. I used to say the Creed in the way I suppose the devils say it. Only I did not tremble. The devils tremble because they know it is true, but do not intend to act upon it. They do not believe in God. They only believe there is a God. I remember one of the padres saying to me: "When we say in the Creed that 'Jesus died' we mean a great deal more than the soldiers did who came to Pilate and told him that Jesus was dead. They only meant that the prisoner whom he had condemned to death had died. But when we say the same words as part of our Creed we mean that there is something of tremendous importance in Christ's death for us and for all mankind."

Then again, I see that to believe in a person means much more than believing in a thing or in some theory or practice. I might say that I believe in art or science or in taking exercise, but it would not mean so much as saying that I believe in Raphael or in Oliver Lodge or in the late Mr. Sandow. Believing in these persons would be accepting their rules and principles as the best, trying to imitate them or obey them, founding my action upon their particular doctrines or orders. So belief in Jesus Christ means more than believing in Christianity. Believing in His perfect Humanity or perfect Divinity means that I must commit myself to Him as the Way, the Truth and the Life, He becomes my living Master and King, my Saviour and my God. This belief requires a particular ordering of my life which is different from what I should consider binding on me if I did not believe in Him. To say that it does not matter what you believe seems to me nonsense. I used to dislike that word "dogma" until I understood what it meant. A dogma is a truth of which we are sufficiently convinced to call upon all to accept it. Science has dogmas such as that the earth is round and is moving very rapidly (though it looks flat and immovable), that the sun is millions of miles away (though it looks quite close to us), that the moon is very much nearer to us than the sun (though it looks as if it were about the same distance away), that flowing water is made up of millions of particles separated from one another by gaps (though it looks continuous).

Nobody would deny such dogmas of science. If I ask myself why I believe these things I say that it is because those whom I can trust because of their knowledge tell me them. Many things I believe which are quite beyond my comprehension as, for example, what science tells me about the ether and the electrons and the atom. Sixty thousand million million atoms lie on the surface of every square inch of water! I am not surprised that I cannot altogether understand that which has to do with the Being whose eternal Mind is behind the universe. I take the Creed as being the best way that those who know have found to express certain truths about God and Jesus Christ, and which the vast majority of Christians have believed and still believe with me. It would be unreasonable, in my opinion, to suppose that I know more about Jesus Christ than the most learned theologians and still more than the Saints have come to know. The Saints are the experts in the religion of Jesus Christ.

They are quite unanimous about the main points in the Creed. They believed in God the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit. They believed that God was shown to man in Jesus Christ. They believed in the teaching and example of Jesus. They believed that He is alive for evermore and that we can pray to Him and get into communion with Him. They believed that His Church is a Divine society, and that He still influences us by His Holy Spirit. This is roughly speaking what we acknowledge to be true when we say the Creed. Some of the sentences of the Creed were not put into shape until the Christian religion had been going on a long time. It took some hundreds of years to agree on the exact wording of it, but the main truths were believed and acted upon all the time. Now I say that it makes a lot of difference whether I believe this to be true or not. If I really believe it I shall think it a matter of vital importance to order my life according to Christ's teaching. When I fail or fall into sin I shall seek and expect to find relief by trusting and believing in Christ more thoroughly. I shall make experiments, and I shall find, as indeed I have found, that the experience of the saints is mine too. More than this I shall want others to believe it all with me. I shall believe that if the world were Christian all evils would be overcome and peace and justice and love would reign.

All that Jesus lived and died for can come about in the world at large. There is plenty of use in the Creed if we really believe it and intend not to leave off maintaining it as true in the face of an unbelieviing world. The truth shall make us free. Blake's famous song which we are so fond of singing is a song of faith. Is there not some use in singing this if we mean it?

"I will not rest from mental fight
Nor shall my sword sleep in my hand
Till we have built Jerusalem
In England's green and pleasant land."

Reprinted by arrangement from THE TORCH, organ of the Industrial Christain Fellowship.

St. Paul's Chronicle

Fairfield, Connecticut

Rev. Delmar S. Markle
Rector

"THE WITNESS is a remarkable paper which seems to succeed wonderfully in being all that a weekly church paper should be. For the average layman with a limited amount of time to devote to Church reading THE WITNESS will fill the bill in a splendid fashion."

THE WITNESS

Quality — Brevity — Price

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE PAYERS AND THE PROMISERS

In the American Parish

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

WHAT would a Parish be without the sense of some duty unfulfilled, some dream unrealized? Surely nothing could be more disastrous than to reach maturity at one bound. The young life is that which feels that every day's work is a preparation for something better. No matter how far into the past you may record the day of your birth, you are young if each day is a new birth to some richer share in real living. The Parish which reaches a point where it says only, "See what a past I have had, how rich in gifts and splendid in service," is reading its own obituary, no doubt well deserved. But the Parish for me is the one that says, "See what a future lies before me." It has a future because it has people with vision, with patience, and loyal perserverance.

Each member of the Parish is a promissory note. "On demand I promise to pay my share to the Parish with heartfelt interest." I mean by that, that each member of the Parish has accepted a definite something from the Parish and he is pledged to pay something back.

Promisers are of two sorts, reliable and unreliable. The reliable promisers are a boon to parochial life. I know many of them. Their minds are alert to the needs and their very presence lends strength to every enterprise. They are not intending to withdraw because their pew happens to be occupied on some Sunday. Not at all. They are glad to have others there. They are braced to stand the shock of the unexpected and prepared not always to have their own way. They do not think that an umbrella needs a day of rest on a rainy Sunday after a week's exertion in business circles. Such a substantial group of people is the hope of a Parish and its strength.

But there are promisers who always remain so. When the Parish endeavors to collect they are bankrupt. Here is a man with talent for organization. It is an earnest of good things. The Parish not only needs the talent but counts on it. Slowly and gradually it turns toward that talent as the flower turns toward the sun. Tha person arouses in the Parish the consciousness of a need which he alone can satisfy. Then comes the test. "Thou art the man of the hour" says the Parish. But the poor promiser sinks into the seclusion of his selfishness and the Parish finds itself resting on a broken reed.

Here is the man of wealth. Slowly but surely there begins in the Parish a process of readjustment toward that wealth. The imagination of the Parish has included it among the assets of its possible growth and service. The taste for beautiful surroundings, for the hoilness of beauty in the house of God, grows keener. The man or woman of wealth has not only inspired hope, but has summoned a vision of larger usefulness. Deny it, you cannot, oh, men of wealth, that the subtle presence of your power within the boundaries of the Parish has infected the 'Parish conscience' and it views its work in the light of the possible opportunities, counting on you. Then the test comes. But the mere promiser, the mere trifler, who has shaped a whole group in its growth, withholds at the last and the Parish quivers under the blow.

So with each one. There is something in your life that has spurred others on to activity in the expectation that you will make good. The Parson in preparing his sermon is doing so with full confidence that you are agreed to hear it. The janitor in lighting the fire has a tacit agreement with your conscience that some space in the church is being warmed for you and that you will appreciate that effort by occupying that space at the proper time.

The Parish accumulates strength by the reliability of its payers. Not merely the payers of money. That is only an incident. Money is the easiest thing a man can pay. Money carries every message impartially. It is like the boy delivering telegrams. We must read what the money says. One contribution has this message, "The giver will not work but sends money instead." That is permissible in many instances. But another message reads, "I give my money that I may give myself with it." Such contributions are doubly valuable.

Few people realize the wealth of personal power at their command. They undervalue themselves. But they take satisfaction in proclaiming that, were it in their power, they would fully carry out their good intentions. They enlarge upon what they would do if they had another's wealth. "How to spend another's money" is a lively exercise for the imagination. How the dollars would fly. Were these idle dreams realized the land would become dotted with every conceivable sort of refuge for the needy and worthy. The castles of mad King Louis of Bavaria would be rivalled in grotesqueness by the lavish philanthropy of the dreamer. Mr. A., if he had Mr. B.'s wealth, would build and endow a home for left-handed dyspeptics, and Mr. C., under similar conditions, would create a fund for furnishing Henry James' novels to the mothers of red-headed children. Yes, we all have some plan for Mr. B.'s money.

But we all forget that to spend money well requires more wisdom than it does to acquire it. Many a man gives himself away when he spends. The real need is for men who knows how to spend. To create institutions is easy. To inspire the living forces that shall vitalize the institution is the difficult task.

The Parish needs the wealth of your heart and head more than it needs the contents of your purse. Your money will follow where your heart leads. The Parson yearns for his people to see the real needs about them and to satisfy them. Your heart wealth is yours to command. The more you expend the more it grows.

There is an earnest soul struggling in life's battle, who needs a word of praise. When you meet that man or woman why do you take refuge behind a discussion of the weather, and erect a barrier? Why not blurt right out, "You ought to feel proud that you are making your way against odds. I hope you will win." That man or woman will take heart and go with renewed energy to the task.

The payer has the habit of giving a little praise whenever he gets a good chance. Judicious praise is a very inexpensive gift, and it is as welcome as "rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." Perhaps Isaiah had just had a comfortable conversation with an admiring friend when he penned that sentence. Eulogies of the dead may be beautiful and well-deserved, but they are like the precious wine offered to the lips that will nevermore open to receive it.

A great hearted friend of mine once said, "I like to give my bouquets when people can smell 'em." Try it. There was once a man who determined to say one kindly word of praise to every person he met during a whole day. He did it as an experiment, and continued it as an investment. At first he found it difficult, as he happened to meet the most contrary, "orneriest" man of his acquaintance. He had to resort to the expedient of commending the man's cravat, which, no doubt, the man's wife had selected. At the end of the day he found himself in a pleasant glow of interest in his fellows and in the evening, when he read the letter asking him for a contribution for a playground for children, he made out a check with a flourish. If you don't want to feel kindly toward your fellowmen, if you don't want to become charged with civic pride, if you don't want to bear your share of public enterprise, then for goodness' sake don't soften your heart by appreciation of the good qualities of your friends. Be a grouch—and when men see you trudging home in the snow on a winter's day, in your effort to cure dyspepsia, they will laugh slyly at you and wish they they might throw a snowball at you to cheer you up.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

There is a vast comfort in paying all one's debts. When you count up your blessings, not the least will be that you have done something worth while for your Parish and that you have done it cheerfully and carefully. For little by little, by your effort, is upbuilt, among your fellows, the Kingdom of God.

Young Peoples Column

By Rev. W. A. Jonnard

THE Sewanee Young People's Service League Handbook is now ready, and this announcement means a great deal, even if I say so. It is a lose-leaf book containing about 225 pages, very conveniently arranged. It has ten special sections and a Bibliography.

Section 1. Introduction—contains the purpose of the Y. P. S. L., its history in the Province of Sewanee, the Prayer, Pin, Motto, and all necessay information along this line.

Section II. Organization—is devoted to Parochial and Diocesan organization. Two forms of Parochial organization are given, and a suggested constitution; duties of officers, how to start a new League, and suggestions to counsellors. A form for a Diocesan constitution, and duties of these officers. Also a diocesan standard of efficiency.

Section III. Programs—how to plan a program, suggestions to League speakers, a few points in Parliamentary Law, the various types of programs with several samples of each, and at least one for every Church Season. Contains approximately seventy-five programs.

Section IV. Service—planning a Service Program; lists of Service in the Five Fields.

Section V. Fellowship—the importance of fellowship, planning a fellowship program. A few stunts.

REV. W. A. JONNARD
Figures in this Week's News

Section VI. Special Services.

Section VII. Money making devices—showing how some Leagues have made money—with suggestions for entertainments, and other matters of finance discussed.

Section VIII. The Y. P. S. L. in rural districts, showing that the Y. P. S. L. is not limited to large places, and showing how one or two young people can be League Members.

Section IX. Prayers — Certain prayers that have been written especially for the Y. P. S. L., and others that are suitable for Young People's Meetings.

Section X. Hymns, Songs and Yells—contains some of the Church hymns especially appropriate for young people, hymns adapted to League use from other sources. Sewanee hymns and songs, and others suitable for camp fires, together with the State songs used at the Sewanee Summer Training School.

Appended is the Bibliography. Here is given a suggestion for a "minimum" League Library, and long list of books that will be helpful in the work and should go on your book shelf.

In getting up this book the young people of the Fourth Province (for they themselves have written and edited it) have borne in mind the needs of Young People's Service Leagues and other Young People's Societies throughout the country—as seen by many young people and counsellors going about in League work.

The editor writes "We have tried to make this book a workable handbook, and we hope it will be of use to our friends in other parts of the country as well as the Province of Sewanee."

The book may be obtained for 50c, from Miss Emma Twiggs, 531 North 20th Street, Birmingham, Alabama. Bishop Juhan, of Florida, has supervised its preparation, and claims it is a "dandy" production!

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

The country is interested in a new fad—that of answering of questions in questionnaire form as a test of mental prowess. Books of "Now I'll Ask One" and other titles are selling like wildfire. They are filled with questions which the observant but not necessarily well-educated person is supposed to know.

To counter this craze we propose a series of ten questions called "Now Don't Ask Me Another." They would be different. For instance, these might be taken as a sample:

1. Is it cold (or hot) enough for you?
2. Where were you last night?
3. Where do we go from here?
4. What is an ornithorhynchus?
5. Why does a child like candy?
6. Did anybody ever read through the Congressional Record?
7. Who hit Billy Patterson?
8. For what is Pukwana, S. Dak., noted?
9. Who was the seventh vice-president of the United States?
10. What's his churchmanship?

* * *

An editor of the Far West dropped into church for the first time in many years. The minister was in the very heart of the sermon. The editor listened for a while and then rushed to his office.

"What are you fellows doing? How about the news from the seat of war?"

"What news?"

"Why, all this about the Egyptian army being drowned in the Red Sea. The minister up at the church knows all about it ,and you have not a word of it in our latest. Bustle around, you fellows, and get out an extra edition."

* * *

A Scottish minister was on his usual visiting rounds when he came across one of his old friends.

"And how has the world been treating you, Jock?" asked the minister.

"Very seldom!" replied Jock sadly.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE Rev. J. Vernon Bartlett, Congregationalist, of Oxford University placed the problem of the Creeds before the Conference on Faith and Order, at one of the closing sessions of the meeting at Lausanne, Switzerland.

"Our differences as to the possibility of fuller unity with regard to the views on the sacrament present our most crucial problem because of the diversities in conception," said Dr. Bartlett. "It is particularly true with the sacrament of the Lord's last supper and the holy communion in which inner unity ought to find Christian expression, but which become a dividing line and a barrier to fuller fellowship. Concern about this is the main reason for the conference.

"We are here with a new spirit and method of approach. We have an advantage over our predecessors since the schism between the east and the west began. We met with a new sense of common Christian experience as disciples of one Lord despite differences of understanding and experience. Another advantage is our sense of the part played by past history in addition to varying temperamental and personal environment in producing divergent conceptions.

Dr. Bartlett traced the history of the sacrament, pointing out the Catholic and evengelical conception. He said: "I acknowledge that at certain points Catholic piety has better safeguarded true Christian values." Dr. Bartlett further pointed out that the evangelicals lay stress upon the order of the phrase "word and sacrament" and not vice versa.

There is no likelihood that Churchmen will reach an agreement uniting the churches and codifying beliefs, but this conference is sure to create good will. Many say that the conference is worth while just to afford contast between the denominations. The delegates have learned to respect each other's opinion and the result is religious tolerance.

Nathan Soederblom, archbishop of Upsala, Sweden, gave a practical discourse in favor of unity. His broad experience enables him to understand the fundamental differences between the churches as well as the points of common belief.

"The blessing of church unity," said the archbishop, "is worth the price of our pious research in order to distinguish what is useful and important regarding faith and organization. All manifestations of Christian unity beyond the limits of creed and nationality tend toward a common secret and mysterious communion of all believers in God and Christ. Then all lines of difference disappear. Even the Roman Catholics regard the first and second articles in the creed of Father and Son not strictly as a matter of faith. They consider the third article on the Spirit and the church as dogma. Church unity can best be obtained by the precept: Love thy neighbor as thyself.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

"The only question worth while in life is 'What doth it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?' If one persuades himself that he can save his soul and at the same time ignores his neighbor he ceases to be a Christian. He is nothing more than a selfish mystic.

"The question of how Christians are to manifest unity is really a question of how Christians are to manifest their Christianity. Figs do not grow on thistles. It is not a question of formula or creeds for the Master alone counts."

Dr. Ainslie of the Disciples of Christ, proposed a league of churches along the lines of the league of nations. Dr. Ainslie's idea did not shock the delegates half as much as his American acquaintances. Indeed, the idea was well received by many.

The Bishop of Gloucester suggested a concrete form of unity, for example, in the hypothetical country where the Lutheran is the national church with an Orthodox church in the minority, each having its traditional form of service and church life. He said it was impossible and undesirable to make the change suddenly, but the object could be attained providing the ministries united, each bishop occasionally officiating at the other church.

There might be united synodical meetings to discuss religious education. They could unite ocasionally in their services, but there is no reason why a separate church life could not continue side by side.

* * *

The picture on page eight is of the choir at Harvard School, Church School of Los Angeles. The next to the last person in the procession is, I take it, the headmaster of the school, the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, a graduate of Trinity College and Berkeley Divinity School, who has served there for seventeen years. Besides him if my eyes are good is the distinguished editor of the Churchman, the Rev. Guy Emery Shipler. And besides him, easily picked out by his vestments, is the Bishop Coadjutor of Los Angeles, Bishop Stevens.

Harvard School opens for the 28th school year on September 20th. The enrollment is limited to 300 and the school is invariably filled each year.

THE Rev. Charles Street, chaplain at the University of Chicago, and Book Editor, is attending the Conference on Faith and Order in Switzerland; there for his own pleasure, and incidentally to write a few articles on this historic meeting for THE WITNESS. They will be along as fast as boats travel—a couple of weeks probably—but they will be authentic and hence worth waiting for.

There is an excellent faculty of twenty-six experienced men. Eleven buildings are in use, one of which is a very beautiful chapel. The school has purchased twenty-five acres on Beverly Boulevard about five miles from the Pacific Ocean. The tract lies between the new sites of the University of California at Los Angeles and Occidental College. The site is an extremely beautiful one, and when modern fireproof, beautiful buildings are erected, The Church and Southern California will have a school plant that will be unexcelled.

The school is a Church School with the Bishop of Los Angeles as President of the Board of Trustees.

* * *

The Woman's Auxiliary of the diocese of California held its corporate communion service at Grace Cathedral, San Francisco, on the Feast of the Transfiguration. A unique feature was in connection with the service was the all day intercessions for the Lausanne Conference. Because of the deep interest of the Bishop of the Diocese the Rt. Rev. E. L. Parsons, the Church in the Diocese of California, is manifesting an unusual interest in the World Conference on Faith and Order.

* * *

Bishop Finlay of Upper South Carolina again had charge of the young people's camp of the Diocese of Upper South Carolina this year. This is the fifth year of the camp, which has grown from a small group who gathered at an improvised camp in their first year, to a group of some two hundred who for three years have been occupying the grounds and equipment of Camp Transylvania near Brevard, N. C.

The campers are the older boys and girls who come largely from the two Diocese of South Carolina with a few additional members from East Carolina. Bishop Finlay feels that the camp this year has been the best ever held by the Diocese.

In addition to the recreation and the worship at the camp there is Church instruction throughout the morning with courses on Y. P. S. L. program building and methods, the Five Fields of Service, the Prayer Book. Church History, personal religion, and two courses by Bishop Finlay on the Bible. The camp lasts for two weeks and presents an excellent opportunity for the development of leadership in the Church.

* * *

A letter from the President of St. Stephen's College, the Rev. Bernard Iddings Bell:

"May I have the opportunity of a small space in your columns to deny a rumor which seems to have become current to the effect that St. Stephen's College has abandoned its connection with the Episcopal Church and has become a secularized institution. There is no foundation in fact for this report.

"What St. Stephen's College has done is to enlarge the scope of its work. In former years it existed almost entirely for the purpose of training men who intended to go into the ministry of the Church and to some extent men who expected to serve it in lay capacities. It is now, and has been for some years, the avowed purpose of the college to serve in the name of the Episcopal Church the large community surrounding Annandale, nearly one hundred miles in every direction, which contains no men's college, and to provide a thorough general collegiate training in Arts, Letters and Sciences for men of all denominations. The college also wishes to provide for those who desire it, from all parts of the country, a somewhat different method of instruction than that common in American colleges, a method which stresses individual and original work on the part of the student.

"The college has enlarged its Board of Trustees, according to a new Charter procured from the State of New York last spring, including in the membership of the Board a certain number of persons, mostly of the neighborhood, who are not Episcopalians. A majority of the Board continues to be Episcopalian and the President of the college must also be an Episcopalian. The Bishop of New York, three persons elected by the Province of New York and New Jersey, the director and the Secretary of the New York Society for the Promotion of Religion and Learning and one member of the Standing Committee of the Diocese of New York—all of them Episcopalians—are members ex officio of the Board. The Charter provides that the services shall always be those of the Episcopal Church and under the direction of the Diocesan. These provisions insure that the college will remain Episcopalian in religious policy but also insure that the instruction shall be in no sense narrow or partisan. There has been and is no desire on the part of those associated with us who are not Episcopalians to change in any way the religious policy of the institution.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

It may seem unnecessary to say all of this through the Church press but it seems advisable in view of the fact that many persons, apparently misled by rumor, have expressed themselves as distressed at what they deem a secularization of a Church institution."

* * *

Messrs. Tallmadge and Watson, architects, have completed plans for the new Grace Church, Chicago, which is to face Indiana Avenue in one of the busiest business locations in the city. The church will also serve St. Luke's Hospital as a chapel. The Rev. Robert Holmes is the rector.

* * *

Again let me urge rectors to use the coupon on the last page of this issue. You are getting a lot for your money ,and I promise you real articles that your people should read. Just clip out that coupon now and shoot it along to us.

* * *

I shall have an announcement to make here next week or the week after in regard to the editing of these items. The fact is that I am not responsible for all of this end of the paper and it will all be made clear by a pretty little notice which we will insert. First it is necessary to wait for a response to a letter addressed to a gentleman of the South whom I hope is to help us out as Bishop Stevens is doing for the west. Then the three of us will leave it to you to pick out what belongs to each of us for blame and praise.

* * *

At St. James Church, St. James, Long Island, of which the Ven William Holden, archdeacon of Suffolk, is the rector, they are making a feature of their Sunday evening services, to this end they are having some notable men as their preachers. On August the 14th, the Rev. Philip J. Steinmetz of Philadelphia was with them and on August the 21st the Rt. Rev. Frank W. Creighton, Missionary Bishop of Mexico.

St. John's Parish, Savannah, Ga., Rev. W. A. Jonnard, rector, was the scene of an interesting baptism on the seventh Sunday after Trinity, when the rector baptized Douglas Beveridge Seabury, Jr., last male descendant of Bishop Seabury. The infant, less than a month old, is the son of Douglas Beveridge Seabury, Sr., and Mary Wakefield Seabury, of Savannah. The father was baptized and present for confirmation just a little over a year ago by the same rector in St. John's.

* * *

The annual retreat for the clergy of the diocese of Vermont will be held at Rock Point, Burlington, from September 12th to 15th.

MRS. A. A. GUTGESELL'S
CHRISTMAS NOVELTY
GIFT BOOK

Established 1912

If your Church or Society needs money, we offer

A Safe and Attractive Plan

Send your order for Sample Book NOW, as they are made up during the summer months.

The new 1927 Christmas Novelty Gift Book contains a beautiful line of colorful, engraved, hand colored and printed Christmas Cards, Enclosure Cards, Seals, Ribbons and Tissue Paper for Christmas Packages, also many Novelties—all arranged in attractive display.

Your Profit Is Fifty Percent

Originator and pioneer of this plan for Church and Benevolent Societies.

Sixteen years experience in getting out annual lines for this purpose.

Creative Artists and Designers of well known ability.

Our own perfectly equipped plant for manufacturing.

An organization of efficiency that maintains throughout the season a service nationally known for its promptness and reliability.

For information and testimonials address

MRS. A. A. GUTGESELL, Inc.
521-529 So. 7th St.,
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

St. John's Military School

ESTABLISHED in 1887 by the citizens of Salina, Kansas, under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. It is a preparatory school for boys from 8 to 18 years of age. The capacity is one hundred and twenty boys, who are instructed and sponsored by a faculty of ten men. The course of study and text books are those adopted by the State Board of Education. About fifty percent. of the boys are from Kansas, the rest live in Colorado, Oklahoma, Wyoming, Montana, Missouri, and Nebraska.

A modified military system is used as a means of developing neatness, obedience and self-reliance in the cadets. Athletics are offered for all of the boys. Time devoted to studies and recreations is supervised by competent instructors. The aim of St. John's is to develop well rounded men of character.

Address:

THE SECRETARY,

St. John's Military School

Salina, Kansas.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

At Cape Mount, Liberia, seventeen children were baptized by the Rev. H. A. Conover on a Sunday in May.

* * *

St. Stephen's Parish, Baker, Oregon, is waging a campaign to raise sufficient funds to build a new parish house on foundations laid in 1922. The new building is to be named Nevius Hall, after one of the early missionaries of Eastern Oregon, a priest who built six of the eleven churches in the district. St. Stephen's is in serious need of new equipment. Under the ministry of the Rev. Herbert Pressey, the activities of the whole parish have been greatly stimulated, especially among the young people.

* * *

The first Young People's conference of the province of the Southwest was held at the Helen Dunlap School, Winslow, Arkansas, this summer.

The chaplain of the conference was the Bishop C. S. Quin, who not only served as chaplain and advisor, but who also taught a course on "Personal Evangelism."

Other members of the faculty were the Bishop E. Cecil Seaman, bishop of North Texas who taught a course on the Life of Christ; Rev. Karl M. Block, chairman of the National commission of young people, who conducted a course on program building for young people's organizations; Mrs. C. S. Quin, Counselor of the Y. P. S. L. of the diocese of Texas, conducted a course on a church awake; and Miss Dorothy M. Fischer, organizing secretary of the province of the Southwest taught a course on "Method of Works."

There was a total registration of fifty-six, representing the Missionary Districts of Salina, Oklahoma, North Texas, New Mexico and the Dioceses of Missouri, Arkansas.

* * *

The Bishop of Long Island has been devoting the summer Sundays to the large summer communities on Long Island. On June 26th he visited Trinity Church, Greenport, and confirmed forty persons. On the following Sunday, July 3rd, he celebrated the Holy Communion and preached in St. Andrew's Dune Church, in Southampton. Here, in the course of his sermon, he called attention to the large number of rapidly developing communities on Long Island, especially in Queens, and asked the members of the congregation to consider, as they looked over the square miles of standardized houses with no church spires arising in their midst, whether that significant fact did not challenge their Christianity and their patriotism.

A member of the congregation wrote an article describing the effect of this statement and the Bishops Appeal, which was printed in four or five of the larger New York papers, and in thirty or more papers of Brooklyn and Long Island. One result of that sermon and of the publicity which was given to it has been the setting aside in at least a dozen communities of desirable sites for new churches.

On July 17th Bishop Stires preached in the morning at Bridgehampton, in the afternoon at Hampton Bays, and at night in St. John's, Southampton, where he confirmed forty persons. On Sunday, July 24, Bishop Stires preached in Quogue, greeted here as in all the other summer communities by a congregation which filled all available space. Again in Quogue great interest was expressed in the Bishop's plan for the building of new churches in the new and rapidly growing communities. He has been assured of strong cooperation in the development of his plans. On Sunday, August 21st, the Bishop preached in St. James Church, St. James, L. I. The Bishop's health is excellent and he declares that the more intimate contact with these large summer congregations has been an encouraging and exhilarating experience. He believes that much good for the church and the diocese will result.

* * *

A great day, beautiful by glorious sunshine, was celebrated Sunday, July 24th, 1927, in Ketchikan, Alaska. On this day at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the cornerstone of St. Elizabeth's Mission was laid.

It was a great day because it marked two significant steps in the progress of the native people of southeastern Alaska. It marked the

HARCOURT
Church School for Girls
Recently Incorporated
GAMBIER, OHIO
The Rt. Warren Lincoln Rogers, D. D.
Chairman of the Board of Trustees
Miss Harriette Merwin
Miss Marion Eloise Lasher
PRINCIPALS

CHURCH TRAINING
and
DEACONESS HOUSE
of Pennsylvania
For the training of Deaconesses, Missionaries, and Parochial Workers.
President, The Bishop of Pennsylvania. Warden, The Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, S. T. D.
Address
Deaconess Clara M. Carter
708 Spruce St. Philadelphia, Pa.

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation
◆ ◆ ◆
THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.
Chartered under Act of Congress.
Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.
Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.
◆ ◆ ◆
Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

Chicago Real Estate Bonds
Our experience with First Mortgage Chicago Real Estate Bonds, covering a period of twenty years, is outlined in a leaflet which we have just prepared.
The leaflet contains a brief analysis of some of the causes underlying the perfect record of safety borne by such issues handled by us during this period.
It is a concise statement of facts, which have a value for every investor. Copy of this, together with circulars describing our current offerings, will be sent on request.
Peabody, Houghteling & Co.
10 South La Salle Street
CHICAGO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

beginning of a condition of self-reliance, in that this mission has its own native minister, Mr. Paul J. Mather, and its own native vestry. Every timber and board in the building has been placed there by native hands. Not a white man has been called to lift his hand in the erection of the Church or Parish Hall.

It also marked the beginning of a new relationship with the white population. The city turned out as a whole to greet this step of progress.

* * *

In the West fifty years of parochial life means much. St. Thomas' church, Canyon City, Oregon, will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary this summer. The people of the parish have invited the clergy and executive council of the district to meet with them for the observances which will be held from the 22nd to the 25th of September.

* * *

The annual Midsummer Conference of the Lay Readers Association of the Diocese of California was held at St. Alban's Brentwood, Contra Costa County, on August 20th and 21st. The archdeacon of the Diocese, the Ven. Noel Porter was in charge of the Conference.

* * *

"News Notes" is the publication of the Department of Religious Education of the Province of the Pacific. It is a pocket size booklet of sixteen pages edited by the Rev. Hoyt E. Henriques and is a demonstration of what can be done in the way of concentrating suggestions and data in a small space.

* * *

The Presbyterians have taken a leaf out of the book of the Episcopalians and have created a Pension Fund for the clergy, which will be administered along the lines of our own. An initial sum of fifteen million dollars was raised under the direction of a committee of laymen who retained the firm of Hedrick, Marts and Lundy of New York as counselors and directors.

The American Protestant Hospital Association is to meet in Minneapolis in October. Episcopalians on the program are the Rev. Dr. Thomas Hyde on Jersey City who is to speak on the development of Episcopal Hospitals; Bishop James Wise of Kansas, who is to be the preacher at the Sunday service, and Dr. W. C. Stoner and Dr. C. S. Woods, both of St. Luke's Hospital, Cleveland.

* * *

Professor Abraham Cronbach of the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati is making a study of the peace resolutions and pronouncements of the various churches, later to be issued as a pamphlet. For Episcopalian he lists a resolution of the National Church Assembly of the Church of England Peace League passed in 1920; the resolution of the Lambeth Conference in 1920; resolutions of the General Conventions of 1922 and 1925; resolution of the Washington Synod passed in 1923 and one offered but not passed by the diocesan convention of Virginia in 1923. And just to prove that Dr. Cronbach is not partial to one side he lists a resolution passed at the General Convention of 1922 favoring intervention in the Near East. He asks that further information be sent to him. We will be grateful for your help. Surely other diocesan conventions have taken up this question, and I take it that he does not want merely resolutions that were acted upon favorably. If you will send information to me I shall see that it gets into the hands of this scholar.

* * *

The Rev. William Way of Charleston, S. C., has been appointed a director of the American Peace Society of which Congressman T. E. Burton of Ohio is president. Plans are now under way of the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the society next year.

* * *

Work was begun in July on the new building for St. Anne's Mission, El Paso, almost our only work for Mexicans along the border.

* * *

On a single week-day in August the visitors' book in Trinity Church, New York, contained signatures from Guatemala, Porto Rico, Spain and the Argentine.

* * *

Our American Church in Europe held their annual Convocation on July 13 and 14 in the Guild Hall of the Pro-Cathedral Church of the Holy Trinity, Paris. Bishop Brent presided as Bishop in charge of American Churches in Europe. The dele-

SAINT MARY'S
Knoxville, Illinois
An accredited college preparatory school with special department for girls in the grades. Athletics. Music. Art. Expression. Secretarial and Business courses. For catalogue write to the Rector.

FREEHOLD
MILITARY SCHOOL
For 80 Select Young Boys
A school with the personal touch. Just enough military training to inculcate habits of obedience, promptness, orderliness, cleanliness and self-reliance. The students' comforts, pleasures and sports are as carefully considered as their mental training. Healthful location. 42 miles from N. Y., 66 miles from Phila. For catalog address. MAJOR CHAS M. DUNCAN, P. O. Box W, Freehold, N. J.

NURSING COURSE
of 2½ years, leading to R. N. degree.
Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll Now.
Send for full information to
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas,
Newark, N. J.

MARGARET HALL
Versailles, Kentucky
In the Heart of the Blue Grass
College Preparatory School for Girls
Sara McDowell Gaither, A.B.
Principal

SHATTUCK
A Church School for Boys
For 67 years Shattuck has been a leader among college preparatory schools in the West. It is not operated for profit. It aims to develop
High Scholarship,
Manly Character,
Christian Citizenship.
The military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall. Address The Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin
Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

ROWLAND HALL
A School for Girls in the Wasatch Mountains
Salt Lake City, Utah
BISHOP MOULTON, Rector.

NASHOTAH HOUSE
Founded in 1842
Theological Seminary and Collegiate Department
For particulars address the dean
NASHOTAH HOUSE
Nashotah, Wisconsin

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City. City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs, chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens. Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT
SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY
House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y. References required.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

gates from every parish were present except the Rev. Dr. Walter Lowrie of Rome. The Convocation expressed its heartfelt regret at the Bishop's resignation of his European charge, which takes effect at the end of this year. It also recorded its desire that each of the European parishes should be given opportunity to make definite contributions to the national Church program.

Bishop Brent reiterated the fact that our churches are not in Europe for the purpose of proselyting, but to maintain friendly relations with all continental churches and especially to serve Americans living abroad and tourists. The Bishop reported conferences with the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of Gibraltar, and reaffirmed his belief that the American Church should have a resident bishop in Europe.

* * *

In Montana, Miss Eastwood, working on behalf of scattered and isolated Church people, has enrolled 703 names, in 392 families, in 190 places where we have no parish or mission. She has been directing religious education by mail, including preparation for Confirmation.

* * *

One of Bishop Gray's major problems in Northern Indiana, and indeed a Church problem of national importance, is the Calumet District, a great industrial center, the extension of Chicago, with which it cannot be incorporated because it is in a different state. Methodists, Presbyterians, Roman Catholics, are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in this district. Bishop Gray's appropriation is less than $4,000.

* * *

Omaha has a Negro clergyman, the Rev. J. A. Williams, who has worked nearly thirty-six years in one mission, St. Stephen's, and last year saw it admitted to the diocese as a parish.

* * *

A baby, three days old, died in Pekin, Ill., the other day, the child of Serbian Eastern Orthodox parents. There was no Eastern priest there, and they asked the Rev. George Clark of St. Paul's Church to help. He baptized the baby and later had the burial, using the Serbian service.

* * *

The little mission at San Sebastian, in the state of Jalisco, Mexico, had a meeting, an account of which ap-

ST. ANNE'S Open Air School, Box W, Charlotteville, Va. Beautiful location in far famed Blue Ridge Mountains. College preparatory and elective courses. Fully accredited by State Board of Education. Open gymnasium allows sports in the fresh air in all weather. Riding taught by expert. Music. Art. Bishop of Virginia, President of Trustees. Laura Lee Dorsey, Principal.

CROUP AND CHILDREN'S COLDS QUICKLY RELIEVED

Since 1802 or for 124 years mothers have known that Roche's Embrocation is the quickest relief for whooping cough, croup and colds. Just rub it on the child's chest Phlegm is loosened, congestion broken. Then relief comes.

Sold By All Druggists or

E. FOUGERA & CO., Inc., New York
W. Edwards & Sons, London, Eng., Props.

ROCHES EMBROCATION

THE NEW YORK TRAINING SCHOOL FOR DEACONESSES
419 West 110th St. New York
Prepares women for life service in the Church as Deaconesses, or as Trained Workers.
Two-year Academic course.
Field Work in both Religious Education and Social Service.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California
A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited, R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

Virginia Episcopal School

Lynchburg, Virginia

PREPARES boys at cost for college. All equipment new and modern. A very healthy location on the suburbs of Lynchburg, within sight of the Blue Ridge mountains. The cost is made moderate through the generosity of the founders. A strong healthy religious atmosphere; an able faculty guaranteeing high scholastic standards, and a beautiful athletic field insuring the proper physical development of the growing boy. The school is a member of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States, which admits boys upon certificate to all colleges and universities where such method is accepted.

For catalog apply to

Rev. William G. Pendleton, D.D.

Copyright 2020 Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland.
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore.
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago.
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago.
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago.
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City.
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily, 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily, 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

pears in a parish paper from the nearby city of Guadalajara. It may be better appreciated after reading from Bishop Creighton's report for 1926 the section about this region:

"The state of Jalisco has presented baffling problems during the year. The mission in the city of Guadalajara, the Rev. Lorenzo Saucedo, missionary, has gone steadily forward, but due to the disturbed political conditions in this state our outmissions, under the direction of the Rev. Efrain Salinas, have suffered real persecution.

The mission at Tlaljomulco was twice attacked by religious fanatics, incited by the local Roman priest. Each time one of our devoted laymen was killed. For three days the village was cut off from communication with the city of Guadalajara, and, as the Rev. Efrain Salinas described them, they were 'three terrible days.' Our people, however, all remain loyal. When I visited San Sebastian, which is three miles from Tlaljomulco, in July (1926), these splendid Indians, true witnesses to the faith, came over to attend the service and greet me. Mrs. Cruz Gomez, whose husband had been killed, came with her small children, one of whom was wounded in Mr. Gomez' arms, when the assassins killed him.

"I am sorry to report that since then San Sebastian has suffered persecution. We had to bring our people down to the school for a time. They are back now, but for safety, they have to go out to the hills to sleep, returning during the day. San Sebastian has been closed, but Mr. Salinas is making an effort to reopen it."

Less than a year later we read as follows about San Sebastian in the aforesaid parish paper, translating quite literally:

The Rev. Jose N. Robredo (a deacon, ordained last March), made a speech to the congregation, to tell them the amount of the quota assigned to San Sebastian at the diocesan convention, and that it should be covered as soon as possible. He asked that each one give his opinion as to what would be the best way to make this contribution to the support of the Church.

They all replied that they were disposed, with a very good will, to give the quota which was necessary from each one in order to cover the amount assigned by the convention.

Then there arose (literally, sprouted) among them various ideas as to the best method of thus cooperating and aiding the Church. One said that the proposed amount should be equally divided among heads of families so that it could be paid at once, in grain or in money. Another said that of every hundred measures of grain five should be given to the

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York.
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D.
Sundays, 8 and 11 a. m.

Trinity Church, New York.
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York.
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York.
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, and 11 A. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp & Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — in a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

Church. And one more said that he thought, perhaps basing it on Leviticus 27:30-32, it would be more pleasing to God to give a tenth of all that He gave them through their work.

Two weeks later an extra session took place, in which, in a manner truly Christian, it was agreed that the quota should be divided equally among the heads of families. all promising to complete it as quickly as possible.

Since the above was written, another edition of the paper has come saying that at last the longed-for tranquality has spread its wings over the little village of San Sebastian and the faithful have been able to return to their homes and their farming. The Church never abandoned them, even in the midst of much danger. The rebellion has prevented them from building the chapel they hope for, but they have the land for it, partly a gift from a layman who also very kindly (bondadosamente) has been lending his house for the Church services.

Clerical Changes

BAXTER, Rev. Charles W., formerly rector St. Mark's, Waterloo, Iowa, at present Priest in Charge, Grace Cathedral, Topeka, Kansas. To become rector, Church of the Holy Communion, St. Peter, Minnesota, and Priest in charge of the missions at Belle Plaine, Henderson and Le Sueur.

WILLIAMS, Rev. W. H., rector at Rocksport, Mass., to be chaplian of the school for American Boys at Dordogne, France.

BREWSTER, Rev. H. S., rector of St. Paul's, Modesto, California, has accepted a call to be the Dean of Gethsemane Cathedral, Fargo, North Dakota.

MEAD, Rev. Lynne B., rector of churches at Madison Heights, Boonesboro and Schuyler, Virginia, has accepted the rectorship of St. Peter's, Huntington, West Virginia.

POOL, Rev. Harry R., rector of All Souls, Littleton, N. H., has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. Michael's, Brattleboro, Vermont.

SHIRLEY, Rev. J. A., assistant at All Saints', Pasadena, California, has accepted the rectorship of St. Luke's, Monrovia, California.

CUSHIONED PEWS

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

A book to stimulate a more active Christianity.

$1.75 a Copy

WITNESS BOOKS

6140 Cottage Grove Ave.

Chicago

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.000 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, social. or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, Pesident,
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE FINANCIAL FACTOR

is, of course, of great importance in the purchase of life insurance. The amount of insurance that you can carry on your life must necessarily be controlled largely by your financial ability to pay the premiums.

The net rates offered by this Corporation to clergymen and their families, help towards the most generous solution of this problem.

All inquiries should be addressed to

The Church Life Insurance Corporation

14 Wall Street New York

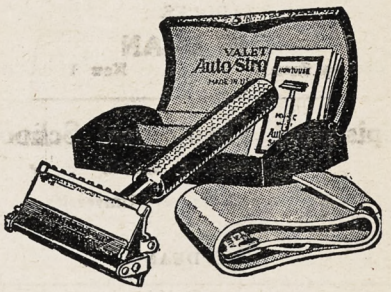
(Operated under the supervision of the Trustees of The Church Pension Fund)

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS

By



BISHOP JOHNSON

50c For Single Copies
$4.00 For a Dozen Copies

WITNESS BOOKS

6140 Cottage Grove Ave. Chicago

Free to Rectors

Auto Strop Safety Razor. The "Gold Pal" that sells for $5 (includes razor, strop, blade and attractive case).

Order a Witness Bundle now to start September first. Agree to take ten copies a week for 13 weeks and the razor will be sent at once. Sent no money.

We bill you at the end of the quarter at 3c a copy ($3.90 for ten copies for thirteen weeks.) Have a boy sell the papers at the church door for a nickle.

A well-informed parish is an active one.

THE WITNESS,
6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago.

Send me a Bundle of —— copies (at least ten) starting September first. I will pay for them at the end of the quarter at 3c a copy. I understand this entitles me to an Auto Strop Razor.

Name .....

Street .....

City .....

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, SEPTEMBER 1, 1927

THE INTERCESSION, NEW YORK

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration

For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 68 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.

Baltimore, Md.

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring

Inquiries given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403) (Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS. COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts. NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE N. J.

Church Furniture

MEMORIALS IN CARVED WOOD

PEWS · ALTARS · PULPITS

SUNDAY SCHOOL

SEATING

American Seating Company

1024 LYTTON BUILDING CHICAGO

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings

Gorgeous Combinations of Color

Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

The Charm of Golden-Voiced Chimes

is within reach of your church, too!

Imagine the rich, musical tones of

Deagan Tower Chimes

coming from the belfry of your church—a constant inspiration to worship; a golden voice eagerly awaited by multitudes every day. Write for plan.

Standard Sets $6,000 and Up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER

and 4 & 5 Duncannon St: Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery

Wood

Stone

Metal and

Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows

Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates on application to

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

EST 1877

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— OFFICE AND STUDIO —

221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

— PHOTOS, DESIGNS AND ESTIMATES UPON APPLICATION —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 2 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

THE QUEST OF THE SANGREAL

The Purpose of Summer Conferences

BY REV. IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

I thank my God always on your behalf, for the grace of God which is given you by Jesus Christ: that in everything ye are enriched by him, in all utterance, and in all knowledge. I Cor. 1. 4.

I thank my God upon all my remembrance of you, always in every supplication of mine on behalf of you all making my supplication with joy, for your fellowship in the gospel from the first day until now. Phil. 1. 3.

While the benediction of Summer Conferences is still upon us, let us take stock of our gains from them, and the obligations that result therefrom. Never while we live, will we forget the fellowship in the gospel which was nurtured there; the joy of the early eucharist in the quiet of morning, and the blessed good-night of compline, and all the frolic that alternated with study in things of God.

Fellowship in the gospel was the great joy of St. Paul, as he waited in his Roman prison for the sentence of Caesar. Fellowship in the Gospel buoyed him up, in whatever sea of perplexity and suffering he chanced to meet shipwreck. And it is this fellowship, growing sweeter and saner and ever more precious, that the summer conferences, spreading wide and far over our church help to foster and deepen.

Never was there more need for it. We have come upon a time like that horror of great darkness which fell upon the people of Israel when their Temple was destroyed, and the sacrifices came to an end, and the priesthood was no more. Darkness in the heaven, and upon the earth perplexity, with the sea and the waves roaring, and men's hearts failing them for very fear. When the armies of Titus destroyed the Temple, there were many who cried "There is no God!"

When Jesus was crucified, those who had believed in him felt that the world had been turned upside down, that God had been dethroned, and that the Roman Caesar had set his seat in the heaven of heavens.

But then came the joyful message, "He is risen!" and the fellowship of the Gospel began to send its mighty pulsings to the ends of the world, with its ringing message that defeat for the cause of God is victory indeed.

We have come upon such a time, when the faith of our fathers has seemed to fall before an onrushing wave of blackness; when the cry has gone forth across the world, "There is no God, there is no good, and there is no evil! there is neither hell nor heaven!"

Arthur and His Knights

Such a time came in Britain, when the Roman legions were withdrawn to guard the city by the Tiber against invading armies from beyond the rivers. For four hundred years Britain, a Christian land, had lain in security behind her wall. Churches, convents, monasteries, arose everywhere. Then when the armies were withdrawn, the seamen came swooping down from the east and north, harrying and destroying all that pleasant land.

There was no court, there was no judge, there was no right arm of defense left them. Churches were burned, convents sacked, villages went up in flames before the Northmen. The litany of that time gave utterance to their anguished fear in the words, "De furore Normannorum, libera nos, domine!" ("From the fury of the Northmen, good Lord, deliver us!")

Back, and still further back the Christian believers were driven, until out of the mountain fastnesses of Wales a Christian king made headway against them, with a band of warriors whose fame has rung round the world. Arthur is the name whereby we know this Welsh prince, and we are familiar with the names of his chief warriors, Launcelot, Tristram, Gawaine. But so daintily has romance woven the tapestry of their lives that we are apt to think of the knights of the Round Table as spending their days in a pretty Maytime picnic, with bright colors and mincing courtesy, instead of in the stern, rough, deadly desperation of mortal struggle which really was their life.

When Arthur arose the land lay prostrate and terror-torn beneath the ravaging barbarians. Everywhere towns were deserted, roads unsafe; the people cowered in holes and corners. Arthur sent out his men to overthrow robbers, to re-establish justice on the spot, with every knight his own judge and executioner as well. To keep them faithful to their trust, he swore all to fealty by the oath of the Sangreal.

The Sangreal, frequently called the Holy Grail, was the sacred chalice in which Christ celebrated the last supper. The Latin word for chalice is "cratella," a diminutive form of "crater," a bowl. "Sancta Cratella" became softened down to "Saint Graal,"—"Sangreal."

Joseph of Arimathea, in whose upper room the Last Supper was held, was a rich man. Jews of that day became rich in only one way—by trade. Wherever Rome's law went, Jews went as merchants and financiers. Rome had taken over Britain more than half a century before, chiefly to control the tin mines of Cornwall and the wool of Southdown. Roman settlement proceeded rapidly, and it is evident, from the nature of things, that Jews, who financed Julius Caesar, had a hand in the mercantile affairs of Britain.

(A sermon preached at the Racine Conference Reunion, Church of the Advent, Chicago.)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

JOSEPH OF ARIMATHEA

Joseph of Arimathea very possibly had derived his riches from Britain. In any event, the story is so persistent and universal as to be accepted by the Catholic church as a part of authentic tradition that Joseph of Arimathea carried the chalice in which the Lord's supper was celebrated to Britain, where he enshrined it at Glastonbury. In the ground beside it he planted the spear with which the Lord's side was wounded, and it took root and blossomed. This spear was made of thornwood; and the holy thorn of Glastonbury still grows. A cutting from it has been transplanted to Washington Cathedral, where it flourishes.

The Church in the British Isles was founded direct from the Table of the Last Supper, and from Calvary, and the Sepulchre, and the Resurrection.

But when the Northmen began to ravage the isle, the holy chalice disappeared. Doubtless some devoted guardian carried it away and hid it in a mountain fastness of Wales, where it has remained hidden until this day; although it may be that some barbarian raider found the sacred relic and melted it down.

Whatever its fate, the quest of the Sangreal kept the knights of Arthur true to their obligation. The quest of the Sangreal has passed into our language, as the expression of the search for the ideal, for the truth, for sacred things hidden from the common gaze.

It is in this quest that we of all the Church conferences are engaged. We are seeking for the blood of God in the lives of men; for the red current of living truth that pulses out from the heart of Christ, and makes all things good worth sacrifice to attain.

ORDER OF THE SANGREAL

Never, I say, was there more need for an Order of the Sangreal. It is fashionable to ridicule truth and to deny goodness. The press teems with echoes of the flippancy of the age toward anything sacred. And those who by their Christian fellowship are pledged to seek good and to deny evil, too often stand dumb and incapable, helpless to tell the truth they believe because they do not know enough.

"I thank God," St. Paul wrote to the people of Corinth, "that in everything ye are enriched by him, in all utterance and in all knowledge." How seldom the two go together! Richness of utterance all too often means poverty of knowledge. Those who talk the most know least. The shallows babble, but the depths are dumb. St. James makes an interesting comment which is obscured by a faulty translation. "Lay aside," says he, "all superfluity of naughtiness." The words should read "all overflowing of nothingness." It is only nothingness which overflows, like the fizz on top of soda water. Rare, indeed, is it to find those enriched both in knowledge and utterance; knowing, and able to tell what they know.

Into such a fellowship of the Gospel, rich both in knowledge and in utterance, these summer conferences call us. But the light we have shared upon the Mount of the Transfiguration fades quickly away. We have studied, and have played, and have worshiped, and been lifted up. But the glory departs all too soon.

Let this be our care and joy, to perpetuate this fellowship of the Gospel in an Order of the Sangreal; of those who seek for the truth of God in the affairs of men. Our games and laughter may be the means of praise: as the last psalm says, "Praise God with cymbals and with dances." Francis of Assisi and his followers who turned the world upside down, called themselves "Joculatores domini—jesters of God."

But let our fun, and our pageantry, and our singing, and our study of missions and of social service, lead up by graded steps to the altar of God where burns the chalice of His blood, which sanctifies us and makes us clean. Let us bind ourselves together, all we who have attended these summer conferences, to defend the truth of God by a fellowship of the Gospel which believes, and therefore speaks; rich first in knowledge, then in utterance, that it may uphold the truth of God.

Our Cover

ONE OF THE most beautiful churches in New York City is the Chapel of the Intercession, one of the churches of Trinity Church Parish. The church, of which the Rev. Milo H. Gates is the vicar, is also the largest in New York with a communicant list of over three thousand. The picture shows the organ built by the Austin Organ Company of Hartford, which is a masterpiece of the art of organ building. The hand-carved organ casing is the work of the firm of Irving & Casson-A. H. Davenport Co. of New York and Boston.

Youth: "I tore up the sonnet I wrote last week."

Damsel: "Tore it up? Why, that was the best thing you ever did."

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

One day there came to a hospital clinic a negro woman with a fractured jaw. The surgeon, intent on discovering the exact nature and extent of the injury, asked numerous questions, to all of which the patient returned evasive answers. Finally she admitted that she had been "hit with an object."

"Was it a large object?" asked the physician.

"Tol'able large."

"Was it a hard object or a soft object?"

"Tol'able hard."

"Was it moving rapidly or slowly?"

"Tol'able fast."

Then, her patience exhausted, she blurted out: "To tell you de troof, doctah, Ah wuz jes' nachelly kick' in de face by a gen'tleman friend."

* * *

It is related that a certain man, who apparently didn't like Buddha, came up to him and called him a lot of very ugly names. Buddha listened quietly until his reviler had quite run out of epithets, and then said to him:

"If you offer something to a man, and he refuses it, to whom, then, does it belong?"

The man replied, "It belongs, I suppose, to the one who offered it."

Buddha said, "The abuse and vile names you offer me, I refuse to accept."

George B. Kerwan

Lay Reader

Harriman, Tenn.

"THE WITNESS is exactly the paper I need to give to those who know little or nothing about the Episcopal Church. I have used the Bundle Plan for two years and will continue to do so."

THE BUNDLE PLAN: Ten or more copies to one address. Sell for a nickle at the church. Pay for them quarterly at three cents a copy.

The Witness

Quality — Brevity — Price

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

AUTHORITY, INFALLIBILITY AND ANARCHY

The Clash Between these Conceptions

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

IT IS A matter of regret and a cause of controversy that people, who differ as to what the Christian religion essentially is, should attempt to argue as though they were talking about the same thing.

These controversialists start from different premises and so they cannot hope to arrive at the same conclusion.

To one group, the Holy Catholic Church is the Kingdom of Heaven on earth, founded by Christ, endowed with the gift of the Holy Spirit and possessing the permanence which His promise seemed to imply.

To the other group, the Christian religion is a personal matter, the Church is more or less of a voluntary association and imposes no binding obligation on the individual Christian. He may belong to this society or that, so long as he makes a public confession of Christ in some form—

To one group, the Gospel is something that comes to us from Christ embodied in an institution, which is the interpreter of Holy Scripture, and to the other group it is something that comes embodied in a book which each group may interpret as it sees fit.

To one group, the Church is the pillar and ground of the truth; to the other group, their own particular interpretation of the Bible is the basis of faith and action.

The first group therefore regard the Church as something which is inspired by the Holy Spirit to guide us into all truth and to keep us from fatal error; while the other group believe that inspiration is a purely personal matter which comes to any individual or collection of individuals who pray and study the Bible.

Both groups regard the Bible as inspired, but the former look upon the Church as the final interpreter and the latter believe that Holy Scripture is a matter of private interpretation.

The Roman Catholic and the Fundamentalist are the extremists of these positions.

The former attaches infallibility to the Papal interpretation of the Bible and the latter attaches finality to their own interpretation, whereas the Church has no theory of infallibility, either of Church or Bible, but it does exact obedience to its authority.

This may seem to be a distinction without a difference but you can easily understand the difference if you transfer your thought to the state which we believe to be an institution having authority but not infallibility.

If you will think of the Constitution as your political Bible and the Courts as the Church, you will have an intelligible analogy.

An absolute monarchy, claiming divine right, might assume that the constitution was infallible and the authority of the monarch final. Such has been the political theory in Russia—

Or, having overthrown this theory of government, the Soviet may think that his own theory of government is absolute and any who resist this theory should be executed.

But we Americans take a different position. We do not hold either constituiton or courts to be infallible, but we do believe them to have authority, even though sometimes the element of human error may creep into the decisions of the court.

In other words, infallibility is not a human attribute and we need not expect it in any institution which men are called upon to interpret, or to rule.

It is just as thinkable as to claim impeccability to the human head of a human institution. The results do not justify the theory.

So we believe that the Church is an institution founded by Christ, endowed with the Holy Spirit, possessing authority over our spiritual lives insofar as authority is necessary for corporate faith and concerted action, but not to the point where it destroys the personal liberty of the individual in a fraternity whose service is perfect freedom.

In order to have a corporate faith and concerted action, we must have a body politic in which there are the necessary officers to perpetuate and direct it.

It is not the function of an institution to suppress liberty but to produce such cooperation as may be necessary to insure it. It has never been the tendency of those who leave the Church to promote liberty but rather they have resented the freedom in the Church and substituted a system of regimentation for the liberty to which they objected. They have almost invariably narrowed the faith and practice of the Church to suit their own theories.

It is the reaction from this suppression which today has produced the hostility to any creed and any authority in religion, and so taken way the institutional values of the Church.

Institutions are not limitations of human life and liberty, they are rather that which give permanence and continuity to human action.

And on the other hand the absence of institutions is not a sign of superior refinement but rather a reversion to our barbaric ancestry.

The absence of conventional ceremony is not a sign of culture but of boorishness.

And the abuse of government is no argument for its abandonment but rather for its correction.

There are those who see in the power of Christ an absolute monarchy in which all initiative and personal liberty is submerged into the Nirvana of passive obedience to any misrule which may have the label of authority.

There are those who crave a certain uniformity of type in order to bolster up their sense of consistency.

There are those who want no restraint or constrain in their religious life and practice, but as a rule such persons are apt to be intolerant of those who disagree with them. The barbarian is not necessarily amiable because he lacks convictions.

There are those who believe that there should be enough authority to restrain license and enough freedom to insure liberty and who do not worry their heads about a certain diversity in religious faith and practice—

As a mere matter of comfort I much prefer to associate with the last group and as a matter of conviction I believe they most nearly approximate the value of authority and power on the one hand and of initiative and liberty on the other.

Such persons do not fit into either picket fence, but then I am not so sure that God intends us to be pickets on a fence. I rather suspect He prefers us to bear fruit in the garden which is properly fenced but not all fence, and which has a diversity all its own.

Real authority I believe comes somewhere in between infallibility and anarchy. In Church and state I want authority; not too much, but some, and I want that authority impersonal and not prejudiced.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

YOUR PLACE OF WORSHIP

Interwoven With Precious Memories

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

YOUR church may stand on some broad avenue, stately and imposing, or it may nestle among meagre dwellings on a side street; it may be of stone and have a great tower, with clanging bells, or it may be of wood, with a little rickety pair of steps and a wobbly steeple, but it is your church, and you love it.

If it is a small church so much the better. Every good workman wants a tool that fits the hand and a small church is more often better adapted to the workers and more suited to the service of the plain people than a large one. A large church may become too much like a public institution, while a small church gives a sense of brotherhood that strengthens the impression of the Fatherhood of God. Fortunate is the large church that can give the feeling of human interest to the worshipper. Many, no doubt, do so, inspired as they are by large-hearted and sympathetic leaders, and they are blessed in their work.

The furnishings of your church may be simple, but you have furnished it gloriously for yourself. A thousand precious memories have woven themselves into its fabric. Here in its hard pews you sat as a child gazing with open-eyed wonder at the awful figure of a Sunday School Superintendent, and amazed at his confidential relationship with the Lord. You are especially awed by his intimacy with Abraham, Moses, Saul, and David. Did he not tell that David thought on a certain occasion and how scared he was in his heart when he saw Goliath approaching? You did not like to ask but you did want to know whether that Superintendent was on the side of Israel or in the camp of the Philistines to see the fight. Perhaps you looked in the picture book in an attempt to discern his face among Israel's heroes. At least the teacher of the Bible Class, with his precise manner, and air of authority, must have advised Solomon about building the temple.

When you grew older you stayed to Church. Was that Willie Jenkins in the choir in his white cotta? He had pulled your ear at Sunday School and now he stood up there singing like a saint. You grew slightly drowsy, and the sustained cadence of the prayers was interwoven with the impression made upon your eye by the curious pattern of the chancel window. Once a strange minister came, and the periods as he read them did not quite correspond to the pattern and you were confused. He was not in the same place in the chancel, either. (Later you would have thought this an evidence of High Church, and would have written to the Bishop.) Yes, the temple was making its impression.

DEAN CHALMERS
Teaches at Evergreen.

During the sermon you always watched the little broken pane of glass in the side window. You could see the sparrows flitting about outside. What would happen if a sparrow should discover that window and come into the church? You nourished that hope for many a Sunday. You had an idea that the solemn usher would be scandalized and might perhaps try to catch the sparrow with the little bag fastened on a pole which was used to take up the collection. That pole interested you, too. It was such a graceful bit of ceremony to take up the offering with the pole delicately poked between the rows of people. For two years, as it was swung along, by the barest fraction of an inch had it missed hitting the bald head of the man on the end of the second seat in front. The pole certainly had its possibilities. You did not know that the pole was not used in another church in the whole state. But it was a memorial pole and could not be supplanted.

Then the solemnity and beauty of the service began to impress you. You grew to love the familiar words and the splendid tunes. You wondered how soon you, too, would approach the Altar with reverence and receive from the hands of the Priest the sacred elements of the Holy Communion. The time came at last and with a group of your companions you approached to receive the blessing of Confirmation. The little temple that night became a great Cathedral and the kindly Bishop a veritable Apostle.

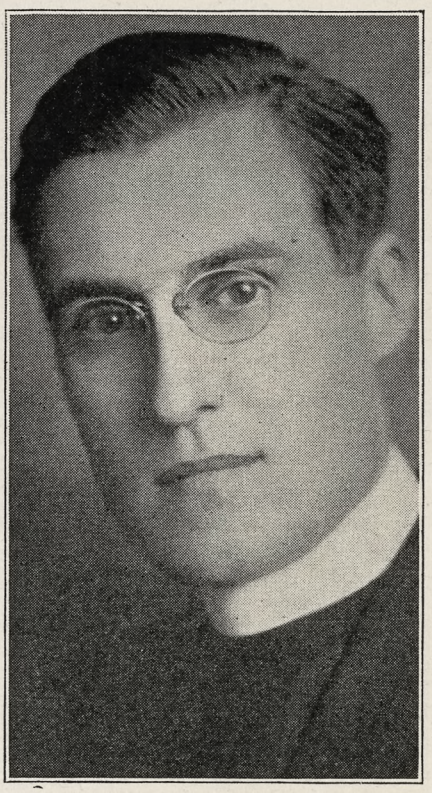
The day came also when, with rejoicing, you stood before the Altar again, this time with the one who was to be the partner of your life's joys and sorrows.

How indifferent you are to the appearance of that church as it appeals to the casual visitor. It has been furnished by you from the precious treasure chest of memory and every imperfection has a glory of its own. If it were not so we should be strangely affected by our Churches. For not many of them have any claim to abstract beauty. They represent the height reached by our people in appreciation of architectural excellence. A sturdy building committee gets what it likes and the result is what was called a building of the Graeco-baptist style of architecture. When prosperity came to your land and people began to travel, there arose an imitation of the luxuries of unaccustomed surroundings, and home and church were erected and furnished in the style so felicitously called "early Pullman or late North German Lloyd."

How does the parson feel about his church? He loves it. His people gather there. Mis message is delivered there. There, by Baptism, he brings the children into the Kingdom of God. But he does not want it to be fussy, to have a hanging garden of brass ornaments for a chandelier and a box of jig-saw scroll work for a pulpit. He wants simplicity, dignity, peace. He desires the pews to be furnished with God-fearing men and women. He wants them to love the church because it shelters the Altar, to which all may bring their burdens. It is the temple of the Living God, and there is the Altar of reconciliation, and the spot made sacred by the real presence of the Saviour.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Are Small Colleges Being Wiped Out?



By Rev. Frederick W. Clayton

WE ARE living in an age of centralization, amalgamation and standardization. Almost every department of national life has been touched by these things. Mr. Ben C. Clough of Brown University, writing in The Saturday Review of Literature, says:

"Although the Commencement speakers did not say much about it, the American college is, this year, at the turning of the ways. The large utilitarian university has come to stay on the American scene, by the same token the small liberal college is fast disappearing, but most people do not realize what has happened and is daily happening. It may well be that mass production of university degrees is desirable (though that remains to be demonstrated), but no intelligent middle-aged American who will reflect on the matter can doubt that something unique, precious, and American is going to join the stage-coach and the Sagamore."

Several factors are bringing about the passing of the small college. One of the most important, of course is the financial one. It is true that a great many small colleges have not been successful in keeping their educational standards on a very high level of efficiency. The North Central Association of Accredited Colleges was founded to remedy this defect in the central states. Much good work has been done by the members who make up the Association. They are for the most part connected with large state universities and tax supported schools of the Central States. They are accustomed to handling large sums of money which they are not responsible for raising and, of course, do not feel the burden of financial worry. Consequently in putting up the standards of the colleges within its territory they have made it very difficult for the small college to spend on education the amount of money they have imposed upon them. Quoting from The North Central Association Quarterly, I find that eight colleges have been dropped from the Association during the year. They are all old colleges but owing to the financial stress of the times have not been able to raise the necessary endowment to meet with the standardized requirement. It may interest the readers of this paper to know what these requirements are. Therefore I am printing them here.

"The college, if a corporate institution, shall have a minimum annual income of $50,000 for its educational program one-half of which shall be from sources other than payments by students, and an additional annual income of $5,000, one-half of which shall be from sources other than payments by students, for each 100 students above 200. Such colleges, if not tax-supported, shall possess a productive endowment of $500,000 and an additional endowment of $50,000 for each individual 100 students above 200. Income from permanent and officially authorized educational appropriations of churches and church boards or duly recognized corporations or associations shall be credited to the extent actually received as 5 per cent income toward the endowment requirement, but to an amount not exceeding the average annual income from such appropriation in the preceding five years, provided, however, that this shall not apply to more than the amount required in excess of $300,000; and provided, further, that colleges electing to qualify under this interpretation be subject to annual review for accrediting."

REV. F. C. GRANT
Takes up his new job.

I have no quarrel with the intellectual standard set by the North Central Association. That is very good and can be lived up to by most small colleges. The only difficulty is in this everlasting race for financial supremacy, the alumnae of most schools today are being continually bled for funds. There must be an end somewhere, else the small college will soon become a thing of the past. Quoting from a paper read by President Smith to the College Presidents Association at Des Moines, May 4, 1927:

"The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary schools, in my judgment, is manipulating plans and methods that are intended, if possible, to squeeze out every denominational college in its territory. I think the colleges who have joined that association have put their heads into a noose that will strangle them to death. That association, composed over-whemingly of superintendents and principals of high schools, sets itself up as the dictator to the colleges within its membership. They are stating how many teachers you must have. They are practically saying how much you shall pay those teachers. They are saying how much endowment you shall have. They fix the requirements of the teacher's training. All this is done without the permission or consent of the denomination, Board of Trustees, or the college authorities, themselves. Thus the denominational schools and the independent colleges are in the clutch of the tax-supported schools of the central states of this Union."

The failure of Tabor College was a financial one. It was utterly impossible to meet the requirements of this Association and at the same time keep the school open. A boy leaving Tabor College and wishing to enroll as a student in another college must have his credits transferred and accepted by the other college. In most instances the colleges in the North Central Association would not accept our credits because we could not meet their financial requirements. Consequently the students got very disappointed and while they enjoyed their college training, the religious life of the institution, and the general moral tone of the place, they felt it was useless to go on when other colleges would not recognize our standards.

We are drifting to an educational autocracy. The intention of the self-styled educators of today is to educate the upper half only of those who take the intelligence tests. No republic can live under such a system. It is the high intelligence of the average citizen of America that keeps our republic on a sound and substantial basis. It is the training of character in terms of religious truth. It is the training of the heart and soul as well as the mind that makes a complete man. This cannot be done entirely in the classroom.

Buy from
WITNESS ADVERTISERS

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

LONDON IN THE DOG DAYS

News from the Other Side

Reported by

REV. A. MANBY LLOYD

LONDON in the Dog-days! Everybody out of town — so runs the legend. Still, even in August you can hardly cross the street in safety; the Strand, Oxford Street, theatres and cinemas, " Lords' " cricket ground, the White City—all packed.

The four men who were arrested during the Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration in Hyde Park and round the American Embassy were charged before Mr. Gill, the magistrate at Westminster Police Court. They included a cook, a waiter and a seaman, and they got off with five "bucks" apiece.

There was a big demonstration in Hyde Park to celebrate the S.-V. respite. The whole attitude was triumphant and good-tempered, finishing up with "hare and hounds"— the "hares" being several young Fascists who were identified by the crowd and hunted by several hundred Communists who "hounded" them to a bus. The facts of the case were summarised in a column letter published in the Times, and it may safely be said that all classes, equally fed-up with Anarchism, are dissatisfied with the conduct of this case.

The proceedings at Trafalgar Square (which I witnessed) savoured of the ludicrous. An electric chair was exhibited and Tom Mann obliged with a revolutionary Chinese song. Frankly, I preferred the entertainment at Maskelyne's, with the vanishing lady trick and the Chinese conjuror.

* * *

Professor Nicholas Murray Butler's interview with a London journalist has provoked much discussion. According to American opinion, says the Evening News, the world's six greatest men are Mussolini, Edison, Marconi, Orville Wright, Henry Ford, and George Bernard Shaw.

"Looking again at the names of the 'Big Six' we feel bound to doubt whether our own choice would have included any of them except Signor Mussolini.

"Bernard Shaw is certainly one of the foremost playwrights of his day as well as one of its foremost intellectuals. As a force in English literature, however, he no more compares with Rudyard Kipling than H. G. Wells, as a novelist, compares with Thomas Hardy.

"As to Edison, Marconi and Orville Wright, all these men have supplied valuable links in the chain of scientific research that has led up to some great and commercially exploitable discovery or invention; but it is impossible to apportion the credit between them and those who broke the ground before them. Had there been no Langley there would have been no Orville Wright. William Friese-Green invented the cinematograph. The names of Reis and Graham Bell are recalled by the telephone, and those of Chappe, Cooke and Wheatstone, Morse and Oersted by the telegraph. Clerk-Maxwell Hertz, Fleming, De Forest, Poulsen and other scientists have helped to perfect wireless. As for Henry Ford, he anticipated others in the mass production of a cheap motor-car, but is not thereby better entitled to be considered greater than —if he exists—Mr. Woolworth.

"Now it is possibly true, at least to some extent, that posterity is the best judge of who was great. History shows us, however, what sort of men come to be reckoned great finally. Looking over the great names — Shakespeare, Napoleon, St. Paul, Abraham Lincoln, Confucius, Aristotle, and a hundred others—we discover that they became great not only because they had outstanding genius, but because there was ample scope in their age for greatness. There is still scope for it, as Signor Mussolini has shown.

"A new religious revival, a new jurisprudence, a new philosophy, another golden age of art and literature, new social and economic structures—there is room for all of these things. But their creators are not at present in evidence."

* * *

Roughly speaking, there are three economic and ethical ideals trying to put the world right. Citizens sharing equally in Communism; citizens owning equally in Distribution (the philosophy of Belloc and Chesterton); citizens competing equally was the old idea of the Manchester School. To-day they are all up in arms against the common enemy—Monopoly, The Boss, The Trust, or whatever alternative name you have for the Devil.

A controversy has arisen from the clash between the first two schools of thought at the recent Anglo-Catholic Summer School. Their sub-divisions are legion, but since Maurice B. Reckitt went over to the Distributionists there has been more scope for word-play.

Social health and truth, he says, (in a letter to the Church Times) will be essentially the fruit of a synthesis. Mr. H. N. Brailsford has something vital to suggest to G. K. C.; so have Major Douglas, G. D. H. Cole, A. J. Penty, and even Henry Ford.

My friend, Paul Stacy, is a convinced Douglasite, who puts his finger on a weakness in most discussions at the Summer School, by pointing to the fact that everything is now in the hands of the central control of finance through privately manipulated banks.

* * *

It was fifteen years ago since I went to the Monday evening services at St. Albans, Holborn. In those days it was to hear the saintly Fr. Stanton, an orator whose Olympian eloquence was only matched by his Franciscan simplicity. We shall not look on his like again. So one was prepared for disappointment in his successor, Dr. Ross. The two men are as different as chalk from cheese, but Dr. Ross is also among the prophets. Built on different lines, physical and intellectual, he must be ranked among England's foremost preachers.

He preached from the Benedicite— "all ye children of men, bless ye the Lord."

Rapidly sketching the philosophy of evolution (which he accepts with reservations) and the anthropological discoveries of the last 50 years, he said, after all what marks man at every stage, from the rest of creation is his mind. In bulk the elephant may beat him; the eagle in sight, the peacock in beauty—but in mind man stands pre-eminent.

The sermon was an analysis of mind and spirit too lengthy for recapitulation; too connected to be abbreviated. It was delivered with fire worthy of a Methodist minister, and in a pronounced Cockney accent he hit out at modern vices, and was especially hard on the gambling element. He related how he was walking round his parish only that week and passed a number of workmen repairing the roads. Suddenly one of them blew a whistle and called for an early sporting edition of the evening paper. The men all "downed tools" and began eagerly discussing the sporting news and the betting odds.

(Continued on page 15)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

EARLY in November, 1877, Elizabeth Mason Edson, in her father's parish, St. Anne's, Lowell, Massachusetts, took the first step in the venture of faith which resulted in the creation of the Girls' Friendly Society in America.

In November, 1927, the Society, now fifty years old, will meet in Boston to keep its fiftieth anniversary, to commemorate its foundress, to give thanks for the first half century of its work, and to plan for the future which, like the future of all that relates to youth, is full of problems and of promise.

The vision of a Society working under the Anglican Church and composed of all girls who would accept and promise to uphold a high standard of character had come first in England in 1873, to Mrs. Townsend, a young woman whose interest in the girls on her husband's estate had given her a realization of their needs and of the possibility of meeting them through an organization in which they would find friends and companions, adult leadership and a strong religious influence.

Mrs. Townsend was far in advance of a time when organized social work was almost unknown, but her enthusiasm, her clear vision and her zeal quickly won friends for the movement and in 1874, five people met at Lambeth Palace and the Girls' Friendly Society came into being. Enrollment began in England on the first of January, 1875.

A little more than two years later, Miss Edson read of the work, saw its possibilities and at once took steps to begin it in her own country by calling together the first branch at St. Anne's. Her correspondence shows that from the first she visualized and planned for a national organization, a fact which explains to a great extent the rapid and uniform development of the American work.

In 1886, the existing units of the Society met in New York and the Girls' Friendly Society in America came officially into being, although the work had virtually existed for several years.

* * *

The picture is of those attending the School of the Prophets at Washington Cathedral this summer.

Let's see—Bishop Rhinelander in the center, he being the boss of the party. At the extreme left in the front row is Dean Bratenahl of the Cathedral. And 'way in the back is Sam Booth — the Rt. Rev. Samuel Babcock Booth of Vermont. And there are others I recognize—Louis Pitt of Newark, Frederic Fleming of Providence, Al Lucas of Philadelphia—but go ahead and pick them out for yourself.

* * *

New evidence has come to light that these columns are actually read. Several weeks ago we ran notice that the Rev. Louis Hirchon of Maumee, Ohio, had some choir vestments which his parish would gladly give to some mission. A card from him: "Pull out that notice please. I have had letters from about every state in the union asking for the vestments. Believe me if I ever have anything to advertise I am going to use THE WITNESS."

* * *

Evergreen, a little Church hostel, twenty-five miles from Denver, situated in the mountains beside a running stream, has housed more than three hundred guests this summer who attended its various conferences. There has been in addition a large number of transient guests.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Evergreen consists of four domitories, a meeting house and a refectory. Its summer program consists of a diocesan conference for high school boys and another for high school girls; a Church workers conference for any who care to attend; a School of the Prophets for the clergy; a Retreat for the clergy.

The high school conferences are under the direction of a diocesan committee consisting of Bishop Ingley, Malcolm Lindsay and Miss Elspeth Rattle. They were not large but the enthusiasm and response from those who attended made its promoters very happy. The Church workers conference had an excellent faculty consisting of Dean Chalmers of Dallas, the Rev. Don Frank Fenn, who was the chaplain, Professor Gared Moore of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, the Rev. Boyer Stewart of Nashotah, Dean Brown of Colorado, and several others. Canon Douglas was in charge of music and Bishop Johnson lectured on Church history in the evening. About fifty attended. Following this conference was one for the clergy, attended by twenty-five, under the same faculty. Courses were also provided for the ladies who accompanied them. For charm and profit and economy combined these conferences have an unique place in the life of the Church. They are largely due to the generosity of Canon and Mrs. Douglas that the diocese of Colorado possesses such an adequate plant for the purpose.

* * *

The new dean of the Western Theological Seminary, The Rev. Frederick C. Grant, has taken up residence at 2145 Orrington Avenue, Evanston. This will likewise be the editorial address of the Anglican Theological Review.

* * *

The Rev. Thomas J. Lacey of Brooklyn, New York, famous for his work with the foreign born, remained in the city during the summer. His excellent little parish paper gives the reason:

"The rector remains home through the summer because he desires to make common lot with the congregation, few of whom get away for a longer period than two weeks. Brooklyn is by no means deserted during the heated spell. A ride in the subway during the rush hours will disillusion the sceptical."

* * *

An English Dean was recently the visiting preacher at the Cathedral in Denver. During a conversation with Bishop Johnson he said: "What

MRS. A. A. GUTGESELL'S
CHRISTMAS NOVELTY
GIFT BOOK

Established 1912

If your Church or Society needs money, we offer

A Safe and Attractive Plan

Send your order for Sample Book NOW, as they are made up during the summer months.

The new 1927 Christmas Novelty Gift Book contains a beautiful line of colorful, engraved, hand colored and printed Christmas Cards, Enclosure Cards, Seals, Ribbons and Tissue Paper for Christmas Packages, also many Novelties—all arranged in attractive display.

Your Profit Is Fifty Percent

Originator and pioneer of this plan for Church and Benevolent Societies.

Sixteen years experience in getting out annual lines for this purpose.

Creative Artists and Designers of well known ability.

Our own perfectly equipped plant for manufacturing.

An organization of efficiency that maintains throughout the season a service nationally known for its promptness and reliability.

For information and testimonials address

MRS. A. A. GUTGESELL, Inc.
521-529 So. 7th St.,
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

St. John's Military School

ESTABLISHED in 1887 by the citizens of Salina, Kansas, under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. It is a preparatory school for boys from 8 to 18 years of age. The capacity is one hundred and twenty boys, who are instructed and sponsored by a faculty of ten men. The course of study and text books are those adopted by the State Board of Education. About fifty percent. of the boys are from Kansas, the rest live in Colorado, Oklahoma, Wyoming, Montana, Missouri, and Nebraska.

A modified military system is used as a means of developing neatness, obedience and self-reliance in the cadets. Athletics are offered for all of the boys. Time devoted to studies and recreations is supervised by competent instructors. The aim of St. John's is to develop well rounded men of character.

Address:

THE SECRETARY,
St. John's Military School
Salina, Kansas.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

queer names you have, really I am quite unable to fathom you people. Fancy calling a place Tombstone." To which remark he received the following come back: "No funnier than your own. Take Liverpool for instance. Why didn't you call it Stomachpump and be done with it." To which the dean could reply only with his broadest "Fancy."

* * *

Twelve stained glass windows have been placed in St. Luke's, Gladstone, New Jersey, since the beginning of the year.

* * *

A bronze statue of the late Booker T. Washington a replica of the famous Keck memorial at Tuskegee Institute, has been unveiled on the grounds of the Booker T. Washington High School at Atlanta, Ga., the gift of white and colored citizens of Atlanta.

* * *

Here is a Modern Lullaby, clipped from a Boston paper and sent in by a generous helper:

Hush-a-by baby, pretty one sleep,
Daddy's gone golfing to win the club sweep,
If he plays nicely—I hope that he will—
Mother will show him her dressmaker's bill.

Hush-a-by baby, safe in your cot,
Daddy's come home and his temper is hot;
Cuddle down closer, baby of mine,
Daddy went round in a hundred and nine.

* * *

Bishop Gailor of Tennessee confirmed a class of twelve men and nine women at St. Paul's Church, Chattanooga, Sunday, August 7th. He stated that he had occupied the office of Bishop for thirty-three years but that this was the finest summer time class that had ever been presented to him. It was the first time during the Rectorship of Dr. Oliver J. Hart that the Bishop has ever held confirmation at St. Paul's.

The size of the class and the unusual time of its presentation showed evidence of the loyalty and enthusiasm of the Men's Service League of St. Paul's and the fine spirit of appeal that Dr. Hart is making to his congregation and to the city of Chattanooga generally.

* * *

A cable from Shanghai, dated August 16th, reads: "Soochow Academy occupied Chinese soldiers."

When it became necessary for the entire American staff at Soochow to leave the city after the Nanking incident of March 24, Soochow Academy continued in operation under the direction of a committee of Chinese teachers. This plan was adopted at the request of the Chinese themselves. For a time, the experiment seemed to be justified. Later, difficulties developed and it became necessary to close the institution shortly before the regular date of closing for the summer holiday.

Soochow Academy was established in 1902 by the Rev. B. L. Ancell. Next to St. John's Middle School, it is the oldest middle school in the Missionary District of Shanghai. Under the headmastership, first of Dr. Ancell and then the Rev. Henry

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

ST. ANNE'S Open Air School, Box W, Charlotteville, Va.

Beautiful location in far famed Blue Ridge Mountains. College preparatory and elective courses. Fully accredited by State Board of Education. Open gymnasium allows sports in the fresh air in all weather. Riding taught by expert. Music. Art. Bishop of Virginia, President of Trustees. Laura Lee Dorsey, Principal.

HARCOURT
Church School for Girls
Recently Incorporated
GAMBIER, OHIO
The Rt. Warren Lincoln Rogers, D. D.
Chairman of the Board of Trustees
Miss Harriette Merwin
Miss Marion Eloise Lasher
PRINCIPALS

THE NEW YORK TRAINING SCHOOL FOR DEACONESSES
419 West 110th St. New York
Prepares women for life service in the Church as Deaconesses, or as Trained Workers.
Two-year Academic course.
Field Work in both Religious Education and Social Service.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited, R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

CHURCH TRAINING
and
DEACONESS HOUSE
of Pennsylvania

For the training of Deaconesses, Missionaries, and Parochial Workers.
President, The Bishop of Pennsylvania. Warden, The Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, S. T. D.
Address
Deaconess Clara M. Carter
708 Spruce St. Philadelphia, Pa.

St. Albans School
SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS
Diocese of Chicago

Sixty miles west of Chicago.
Five miles off the Lincoln Highway

SCHOLASTIC:	Best of preparation for college. Boys this fall will be entered at Dartmouth, M. I. T., Yale, Princeton, Columbia, St. Stephens, Hobart, Kenyon, Annapolis, University of the South, Knox, Beloit, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Lafayette, Miami and Purdue.
ATHLETIC:	Every boy has an opportunity to enter the sports — Foot Ball — Basketball — Tennis— Track — Golf — Baseball — The School for two years has had an enviable reputation.
RELIGIOUS:	Great care has been given to have a good religious atmosphere. There are few obligatory services.
HOME LIFE:	The School has been to capacity for six years. Great care has been used in the selection of boys. The group enrolled has made it possible to have a full honor system under a council and an atmosphere of an ideal home.
CONFERENCES:	The Rector will be glad to make appointments at various centers during the summer. A visit to the school would be of value. The Chicago Office is Room 1411, Tower Building, Wednesdays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Address the School for literature and information.
ENROLLMENT:	Last year boys came from Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Florida, Louisiana, Montana, Colorado, Wisconsin, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Alaska.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

A. McNulty, it has done excellent work. Several of its graduates have become clergymen of the Church in China. Some have studied and are studying medicine. Others are successful business men.

The student body normally numbers about 325, of whom approximately one-third are usually Christians.

* * *

The world has not changed an awful lot since Joan of Arc was burnt at the stake, if you know what I mean. Some will.

* * *

During September the preachers at the Church of the Incarnation, New York City, Rev. H. Percy Silver, rector, are the Rev. Carroll M. Davis, domestic secretary of missions; the Rev. Edward S. Travers of St. Peter's, Saint Louis; the Rev. Elmer N. Schmuck, general secretary of the field department. The rector is to preach on the 18th.

* * *

The Rev. Walter E. Bentley, actor-preacher-missioner, has sailed for London to take charge during this month of Holy Trinity Church, Selhurst. He returns in October and is to conduct a mission at St. Mary's, Kansas City, Missouri, commencing the 15th.

* * *

The Rev. Dr. Delany of St. Mary-the-Virgin's, New York, has some comments to make on modern sexual relationships in his sermon last Sunday. Here it is as reported in a New York paper:

"Two traditional Christian moral ideals are being subjected to a rapid-fire attack by the radicals of today: motherhood and virginity. These radicals would reverse the customary order of things. They try to persuade women that they may have as many children as they like if they are unmarried but if they are married they must not bear children at all. According to this new gospel motherhood is a sin if you are married, and virginity is a sin if you are not.

"Most of us have been brought up to believe that motherhood is one of the noblest of feminine vocations. It is the acme of unselfishness and sacrifice. There is no memory more highly cherished than the memory of a good mother. We are what we are today, for better or for worse, because of what our mothers made us to be before the age of six.

"The Christian religion has always proclaimed these ideals. Next to Christ, the Church has venerated Mary, who was both virgin and mother. The keeping of her feasts, like the feast of the Assumption, exerts a purifying and inspiring influence upon both women and men. Devotion to her through the ages has had a tremendous effect in making our ideals of womanhood what they are today.

"For Christian women there can be only two alternatives, motherhood or maidenhood. For Christian men also these two ideals are sacred. Every high-minded Christian man regards himself as committed to the duty of preserving them. He can do this best by reverencing in every woman or girl either the dignity of her motherhood or the sweetness and purity of her maidenhood."

No Christian is going to fight with him very much about that. I hope that next Sunday Dr. Delany will preach on "men and boys reverencing the dignity of fatherhood and the sweetness and purity of manhood." I have a lot of sympathy for women who refuse to allow the entire burden for purity to be placed upon them.

* * *

If you are interested in the rebellion of youth here is a story from China that contains the proverbial 'kick'. It is from Bishop Graves: "The training of students for the ministry in this Mission which in-

SAINT MARY'S

Knoxville, Illinois

An accredited college preparatory school with special department for girls in the grades. Athletics. Music. Art. Expression. Secretarial and Business courses. For catalogue write to the Rector.

FREEHOLD

MILITARY SCHOOL

For 80 Select Young Boys

A school with the personal touch. Just enough military training to inculcate habits of obedience, promptness, orderliness, cleanliness and self-reliance. The students' comforts, pleasures and sports are as carefully considered as their mental training. Healthful location. 42 miles from N. Y., 66 miles from Phila. For catalog address. MAJOR CHAS M. DUNCAN, P. O. Box W, Freehold, N. J.

St. Albans

The National Cathedral School For Boys

Thorough Preparation for Leading Universities. Splendid equipment, unexcelled location on Mt. St. Alban overlooking Washington. Eight years' course. Athletics for Every Boy.

Address: WILLIAM H. CHURCH
Head Master, Washington, D. C.

NURSING COURSE

of 2½ years, leading to R. N. degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll Now. Send for full information to

DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas,
Newark, N. J.

MARGARET HALL

Versailles, Kentucky
In the Heart of the Blue Grass
College Preparatory School for Girls
Sara McDowell Gaither, A.B.
Principal

SHATTUCK

A CHURCH SCHOOL FOR BOYS

For 68 years Shattuck has been a leader among the country's college preparatory schools of the highest order. It is particularly noted for High Scholarship, Manly Character, Christian Citizenship. A military boarding school founded to train boys for service, not for profit. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall. Address the Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

Money in Old Letters

Look in that old trunk up in the garret and send me all the old envelopes up to 1880. Do not remove the stamps from the envelopes. You keep the letters. I will pay highest prices.

GEO. P. HAKES, 290 Broadway
New York, N. Y.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL

Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.

Address: Secretary

ROWLAND HALL

A School for Girls in the Wasatch Mountains

Salt Lake City, Utah

BISHOP MOULTON, Rector.

NASHOTAH HOUSE

Founded in 1842

Theological Seminary and Collegiate Department

For particulars address the dean

NASHOTAH HOUSE
Nashotah, Wisconsin

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs, chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens. Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT

SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y. References required.

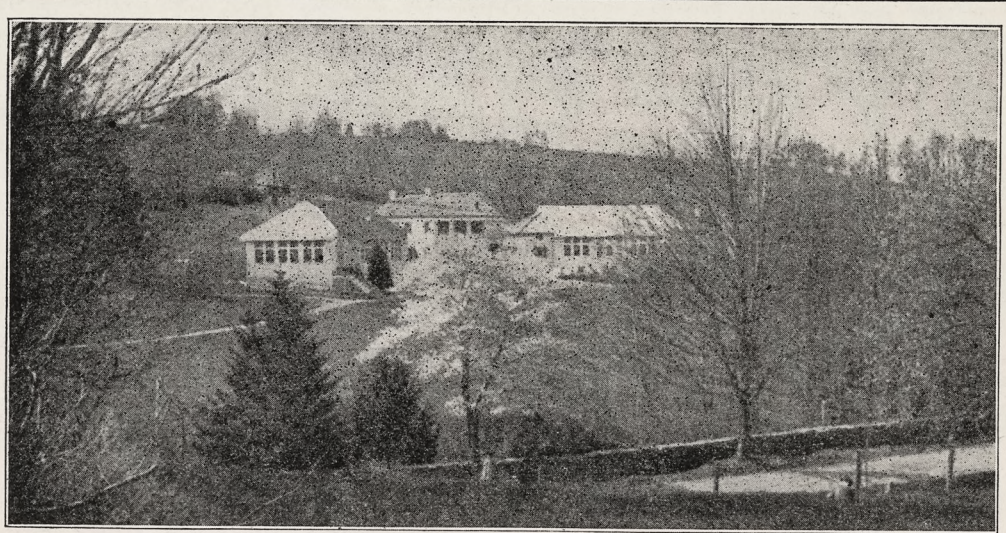
A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., LTD., 28 MARgaret Street, London, England. Craftsmen in Ecclesiastical Art. Woodwork, Metal Work Vestments, Embroidery. Information and all particulars can be obtained through their distributor, Mr. Adrian A. Buck, 665 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London W. I., England.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

cludes the dioceses of Shanghai, Anking and Hankow, has been conducted in several places. Theological education in English has been carried on at Boone University and at St. John's University. Students educated in Chinese only have been sent to the Central Theological School in Nanking, which is the theological institution of the Chung Hua Sheng Kung Hui. Catechists have been taught in the schools for Catechists at Hankow and Wusih.

"In the destruction at Nanking on March 24, Dr. Ridgely, acting dean of the Central Theological School, had his life threatened, was stripped of his clothing, and had his house looted by soldiers of the Southern Army. He came to Shanghai with the other missionaries from Nanking. From that time on, the new buildings of the school have been occupied by one regiment of soldiers after another and great damage has been done to the buildings.



"In consequence of the evacuation of American missionaries the school for Catechists at Wusih had to be closed. On March 28 St. John's University had to close, being threatened from within and without, and the theological school there was suspended.

"The facts concerning the theological school at Boone University have been published by the dean, Dr. Sherman, and are as follows: 'During April and especially during the early part of May, a spirit of insubordination to the school authorities grew rapidly in the Middle School. The students began to take things more and more into their own hands and by the sixth of May there was but a semblance of school discipline there. The students left the school for days at a time without permission from the teachers. They went out of the compound, which was ordinarily against the rule, any hour of the day or night. They demanded that the required school assembly and school prayers be not held in the same hall. Then they used the school assembly to make speeches denouncing Christianity and denouncing their teachers if the teachers made any statement which the student body did not approve of. The culmination of this hostility came on Sunday, May

25,000 CHURCHES USE
OSTERMOOR
CUSHIONS.
BUILT - NOT STUFFED.
Illustrated Booklet and Samples Free
Old Cushions renovated and recovered equal to new.
Ostermoor & Co., Inc., Dept. C, 114 Elizabeth St., N.Y

The Taylor Bell Foundry
LOUGHBOROUGH, ENGLAND
The World's Leading Bellfounders
CHURCH BELLS
SINGLY OR IN PEALS
CHIMES OR CARILLONS
AUTOMATIC OPERATION
Unequalled for Musical Qualities
Yale University — Birmingham, Ala.
Andover — Gloucester
Morristown — Cranbrook, Mich.
Harvard University
Germantown, Etc., Etc.
INQUIRIES SOLICITED

Altar Rails
Memorial Tablets
Grille Doors
Made to order
SKETCHES AND ESTIMATES FURNISHED
J.W. Fiske IRON WORKS
ORNAMENTAL IRON WORK
80 Park Place ~ New York
ESTABLISHED 1848
WRITE TO DEPT 5B

THE MAIN BUILDING

WYKEHAM RISE
Washington, Connecticut

A Country School for Girls in the Foothills of the Berkshires. Mid-way between New York and Pittsfield.
Re-organized under a Board of Trustees as a non-profit sharing corporation.
College Preparatory and General Courses. Special courses in Music and Art.
Horse-back riding, Tennis, Golf, Archery and all Winter Sports.
The twenty-sixth year begins September twenty-ninth.

FANNY E. DAVIES, LL. A.
Head Mistress.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore.
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month

Grace Church, Chicago.
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago.
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago.
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily, 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily, 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

8, when the Middle School students staged a demonstration against the Divinity School and its students. On Sunday morning, at the time of the usual Church Service, they had a procession around the compound with banners on which were inscribed "Down with Religion," "Theological students are social parasites," etc. They stamped through the first floor of the Divinity School building, shouting dire threats against the Divinity School students. The next day it was decided that it was impossible to carry on the Divinity School work and it was closed for the term.

"It is unnecessary to comment on what happened to these various institutions at Nanking, Wusih, Shanghai and Wuchang. The facts speak for themselves."

* * *

In the district of Anking there is not a single missionary at his regular station.

* * *

There are thirty-five missionaries in the district of Shanghai.

* * *

St. Mary's, Kansas City, Missouri, is to celebrate its 75th anniversary next month.

* * *

Of the 177 missionaries who have left China eleven have been transferred to the Philippines (always have a tough time with that word; never know whether it is two "i's or two "p's") five to Japan and one to Honolulu.

* * *

Diocesan conference at Little Rock, Arkansas, October 4th and 5th on the Church's Program. Rev. Loring Clark will be the leader.

* * *

Conference for laymen is to be held at Racine, Taylor Hall, on September 30th-October 2nd. It is under the direction of the National Commission on Evangelism and Mr. Courtney Barber of Chicago is in charge. Nice place, nice food, a charming hostess in Mrs. Biller, and a good lot of leaders including the Rev. Alfred Newbery, Rev. D. H. Browne and Rev. H. W. Prince.

Clerical Changes

ELLIOT, Rev. G. H., has resigned as rector of Christ Church, Somerville, Massachusetts, and has accepted a call to the Holy Nativity, South Weymouth, Massachusetts.

KENDALL, Rev. Ralph J., has accepted a call to St. John's, Albany, and St. Timothy's, Athens, Alabama.

MUNDY, Rev. Thomas G., rector of St. John's, Albany, and St. Timothy's, Athens, Alabama, has accepted a call to Troy, Alabama.

NEFF, Rev. E. R., assistant at the Advent, Birmingham, Alabama, has accepted a call to St. Wilfred's, Marion, Alabama. He will also serve as chaplain of the Marion Institute.

TABER, Rev. Grieg, chaplain of Pawling School, Pawling, New York, has accepted a call to All Saints', Ashmont, Massachusetts.

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York.
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D.
Sundays, 8 and 11 a. m.

Trinity Church, New York.
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York.
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York.
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, and 11 A. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp & Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — In a Sound Body

HOWE — INDIANA

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

Manby Lloyd's Article

(Continued from page 8)

"What a scandal that men should leave their work and neglect their duty to absorb themselves in this filthy degradation of so-called sport."

Fr. Stanton took these things less seriously, and I was told the following story, hitherto unpublished. He was with his rough lads in what was known as his "Thieves' Kitchen." An urgent message came for him—some parish bore or some parish routine work. "Tell them," said the Father, "tell them that I'm busy with my ordination candidates."

It is humor and kindly commonsense that is going to win the world—not windy declamation.

* * *

Lady Oxford has a grievance against American visitors passing through London. It appears they leave cards at 44 Bedford-square, but there is no address, and Margot is unable to trace them up.

In her "Lay Sermons," just published, these migrants are reported as saying, on return to their own country: "Well, we did think after the hen luncheons, the large dinners, the balls, the parties and the motor drives we gave Mrs. Asquith when she was in the States, she might at least have returned our cards. But I suppose now she is a Countess, she looks down on us."

Under the seriousness of these lay sermons lies a delightful gaiety. No doubt she would draw more people to St. Pauls than the Gloomy Dean. She is more versatile.

Thus, besides Isaiah and St. Paul, Pope and Wordsworth, she takes Margot herself for a text, telling us all sorts of things, such as the fact that she once designed an apron skirt for hunting women, and suggested an advertisement—rejected by her father—showing Lady Macbeth using Tennant's soap. She would have liked to be an interior decorator, and her doctor told her she had the "best sort of bad nerves." Again:

"I am a sportsman rather than a naturalist.

"I was born with a tempestuous nature, difficult to tame and hard to harness.

"I could have done many things rather badly and a few rather well.

"Neither my husband nor I has ever believed in the influence of the Press.

"I am always precise, seldom brilliant and never indiscreet.

"I am a great believer in holidays and do not think one can have too much fun in life.

"Accuracy is unknown to a woman. . . . My sex are born embroiderers.

"To be truthful when you are untempted is simple."

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.000 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President,
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary

An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago

College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

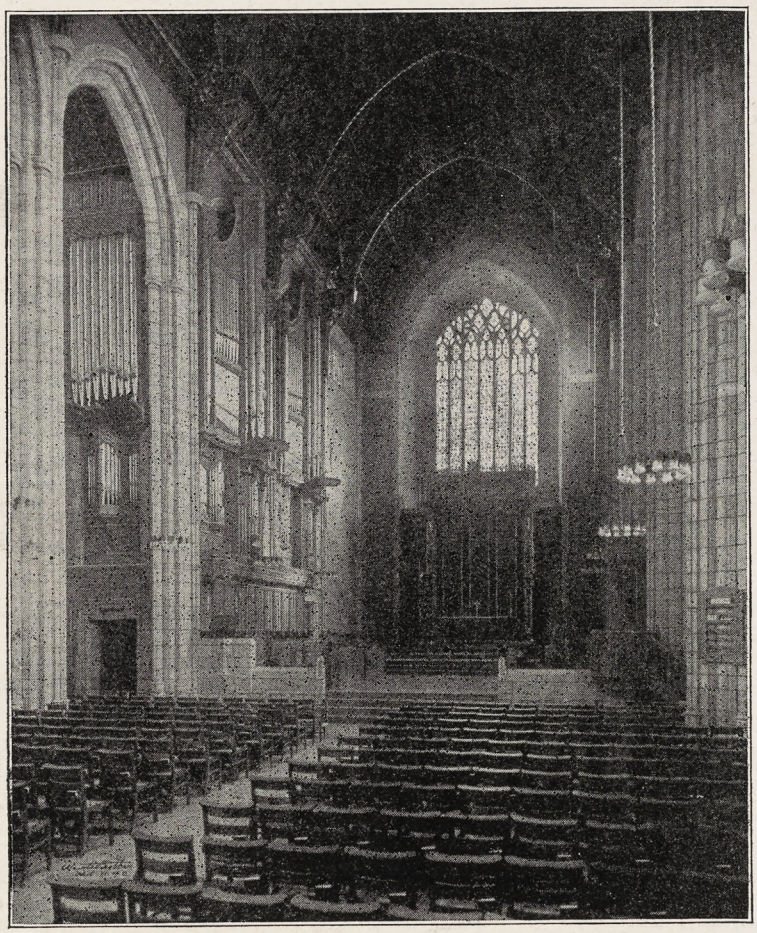
CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL



MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary

College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Chapel of the Intercession. B. G. Goodhue, Architect.

All the interior wood trim, Chancel furniture and Organ Cases made and installed by Irving & Casson–A. H. Davenport Co.

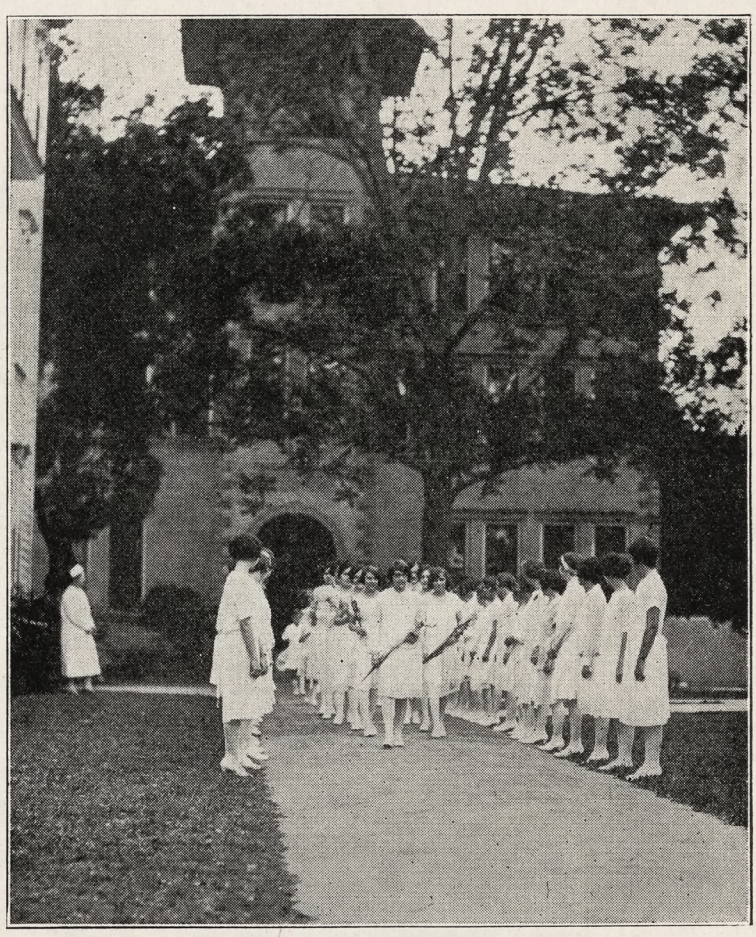
Who have been making a high grade of woodwork, furniture, upholstery and draperies for more than fifty years, and would like to estimate on your requirements



Show Rooms and Offices at

601 Fifth Ave., N. Y. C., and 575 Boylston St., Boston

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, SEPTEMBER 8, 1927

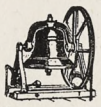
CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

Worker in glass ☒ mosaic ☒ church decoration ☒



For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films, use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 697 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.

Baltimore, Md.

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring

Inquiries given prompt attention

J. M. HALL. Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403) (Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts. NEW YORK

60 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N J

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS

Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street

Designers of

HISTORICAL WINDOWS

Washington Memorial Chapel

Valley Forge, Pa.

Clerestory Windows

St. Thomas Church New York City

Stained Glass, Mural Decorations, Glass Mosaics

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings

Gorgeous Combinations of Color

Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

In Selecting a Memorial to a Loved One

what could be a happier, a more fitting thought than a living memorial of Golden-Voiced

Deagan Tower Chimes

serving through the years to keep alive the faith of those who have it, and helping, as no other means can, to re-awaken childhood reverence in those who have strayed. Write for literature. Standard Sets $6,000 and up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER

and 4 & 5 Duncannon St: Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery

Wood

Stone

Metal and

Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates on application to

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— Office and Studio —

221-223 E. Fulton St. — Columbus, Ohio.

DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

— Photos, Designs and Estimates upon Application —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 3 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

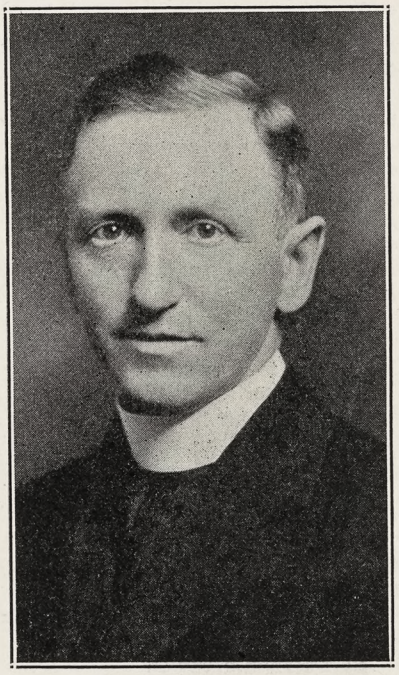
Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

RELIGION ON THE CAMPUS

What Should Be Given the Students

By REV. FREDERICK W. CLAYTON



SOME years ago I attended an ordination service in St. Nicholas Cathedral Newcastle-on-Tyne. The words of the preacher have remained with me ever since. He was emphasizing the real work of a priest and in so doing, by way of contrast, he told the candidates what the world expected of them. He said: The modern priest is expected to visit like a doctor; preach like an orator; play like an expert; teach like a college professor; to be an authority on social service, and if time permits, to pray like a Saint. This is often the world's estimate of the Priesthood because many of us have given that impression.

What Religion Is

Many people think today, and especially college students, that religion is a thing to be explained and understood in a scientific way. But instead religion is the relationship between God and man, and that relationship is preserved and kept alive by prayer and worship. The life of a college student is made up of pleasure, athletics, and some study. The one thing they do not get is that for which the Church stands and the one thing the Church should not emphasize is the thing they already acquire in college. When I listen to the Salvation Army band sometimes playing badly, and one of their number talking in an earnest but disconnected way about God, I am led to believe that the biggest thing they do, is not the music they produce or the words they utter, but the mere fact that they stand on the corner of a busy street in a uniform which proclaims to the world that they believe in God and man's need of redemption.

Church's Work

The greatest work the Church does on the campus is silent. It is the daily celebration of the Holy Communion. We ought to have there beautiful Churches, not large parish houses, daily services not evening meals, sermons on the life and teaching of our Blessed Saviour, not exhortations on the relationship of psychology to religion. The Bishop of Manchester puts it clearly in his book Christus Veritas: "The Christian life is a supernatural life; we neither make it nor discover it; God gives it, we receive it. And this is the truth of chief importance to the whole life and purpose of the Church. The most seductive and the deadliest of all temptations that come to man is the temptation to suppose that by himself he can achieve his destiny. It is false. Man can be all that he is destined to be when God indwells him."

Rev. F. W. Clayton

Dr. E. F. Scott says almost the same thing in his treatise on the Ethical Teaching of Jesus: "It is commonly assumed, more or less consciously, that men themselves must bring the Kingdom into being. The very programme of Christianity, as it is often understood in our days, is to establish the Kingdom of God on earth by the concerted effort of all good men. To Jesus this conception would have been meaningless and even repellent. The Kingdom, as He knew it, was God's, and men could no more establish it than they could make the sun rise in heaven."

Need of Belief

We do not want a secularized Christianity. We want a firm belief in God as an object of worship. Human knowledge and human faith are in the last analysis, reflections, interpretations of human experience. If there be a God and He has revealed Himself to man, it is within human experience that the revelation has been made. When, therefore, the Christian affirms his belief that there is a God and that He has made Himself known to man, he implicitly affirms his belief that God is an object of human experience. Religious men do not value their religion primarily for the feeling which it invokes, but as a means of contact with a Divine reality outside themselves. We keep in touch with this Divine Reality through His Church. The late Canon H. S. Holland sums up this idea very beautifully in the following words: "Christ prepares His Church to become the eye of the body. He raises into sensitive life an organ through which He may act upon the whole. The loose thinking, the vague feeling of the crowd, these bar and control the free action of love. Christ's Church exists in order to make possible, to make known, to make active, the work which Christ by His Incarnation, Death and Resurrection achieved once for all."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

I do not think our real need can be answered in terms of extending our range. We have accumulations of power, but we dissipate it. We push out in all directions; but there is no agreement as to the direction on which we are to concentrate for the great push. It is not that kind of energetic but futile activity that we need. Rather we need, and need imperatively, the men who will dig patiently and stedfastly till they come down to the immovable rock. Breadth of mind is worshipped as a fetish; it is depth of mind, men whose thoughts go very deep, that is the real requirement.

HUMILITY

The great outstanding virtue that creates the spirit of true worship is humility. One of the best definitions of humility is given by the great Bernard of Clairvaux, who was the greatest spiritual influence in Europe during his lifetime. "It is truth about ourselves in our relation to God." Yet the truth which bows us prostrate before God lifts us while it bows us. It is this humbleness of heart that makes men realize their real dependence upon the Divine love of God. The religious man is the man who goes through life sure in his heart of the living God and of His love and care for men, with the determination to do God's will because God loves him and he loves God, and with the conviction that God will show him what His will is and enable him to perform it. In the bustle of college life we need this surety.

Christianity is a rich complex; it has gathered a variety of oddly assorted associations with the passing of years, Semitic, Hellenic and Pagan, but there is something common to all the Churches. It is summed up in terms of a Person, that is Jesus as the personification of religious and moral truth, His belief as to the character of God, and adopting the appropriate attitude of man towards Diety of such a character. Inward restlessness is balanced by the abundance of His peace. The morally-shot-to-pieces find in Him a shepherd seeking His wandering sheep, the discouraged find in Him a Father looking for the return of the Prodigal. There are no limits to the influence of Jesus. Thus we have the Church's great message, the devotion of all to the common good and the goal of complete redemption.

The student needs the religion of Jesus Christ like anyone else and that religion presented to him not in terms of lectures but in terms of sacramental truth, not in terms of entertainment but in terms of quiet meditation and prayer.

Young Peoples Column

By Rev. W. A. Jonnard

IN THESE days of "youth's rebellion" and traditional disregard of the fifth commandment, it is refreshing to find the following dedication in the front of a school-girl's annual. The school, by the way, is one of our Church Schools, and whether thereby hangs the tale, or not, I have nothing to say. I leave that to the experts.

This is the dedication: "To those who have always loved us, who always will; to those who always share our sorrows and our joys; to those to whom we owe all that we are, and all that we hope to be; we, the Class of 1927, with the deepest respect and love, do dedicate this, the 29th yearbook of St. Mary's

To

OUR MOTHERS AND FATHERS."

* * *

So many redeeming traits are making themselves apparent in youth that it ill behooves us to criticize. But more than once I've been told in confidence by young people that the last thing on earth they would do would be to go against the wishes of father or mother - - where a principle was involved. And yet, these same youngtsers fail utterly to give even the semblance of this idea to the parent. In more than one instance, when friend mother has laid down the law, the daughter has told the mother where to get off, and even threatened to leave home, and then, weepingly confessed to me she had not the slightest idea of doing any such terrible thing, that she doesn't know how she could have said such a thing to her mother, et cetera ad infinitum.

Where is the companionship that should exist between mother and daughter, father and son, today? Have we lost it entirely in this generation? Where is the viewpoint of youth we should try to see so often? Are we parents taking the trouble to find out? Do we not frequently give our sons and daughters the impression that we do not trust them, when really we are merely trying to take care of them, save them from making mistakes, keep them out of trouble? Haven't we learned that, after all, youth cares nothing for the experience of old age; that youth is busy learning from youth's own experience?

There is a solution to this constant friction, this constant misunderstanding, this constant "daggers' point attitude" somewhere. And we must seek until we find, in prayer and with grace. For after all, even the most daring youth possesses the element of caution to an extreme degree. Even the famous "Lucky Lindbergh" did not sail away on his (to some) foolhardly and intrepid flight without advice and counsel, without consulting the best scientific knowledge possible regarding weather conditions, geographical, and aeronautical data, and the like. It is my firm conviction that the key can be found to unlock this door, barring the right relation between youth and youth's parents. And it lies very close to the Altar the Pulpit, the Church. Shall we not seek - - and find?

Books

THE IDEAS OF THE FALL AND OF ORIGINAL SIN, by N. P. Williams, D.D., Longmans Green & Co.; $7.50.

The lectures which make up this book of over five hundred pages are the Bampton Lectures for the year 1924. The doctrines centering about the "Fall" and original sin are thought little of today. To re-examine them from the point of view of the history of Christian thought and to re-interpret them in modern terms as Dr. Williams here very ably does is well worth while.

The thesis of the book is that the severe doctrine of the "Fall" and of original sin supposed by most people to be held by the church - - the doctrine formulated by Augustine and glorified by Calvin - - has not been held generally by the Church Catholic and cannot lay claim to being an official part of Catholic doctrine. Augustinianism being disposed of, Dr. Williams, with considerable courage and more ingenuity, propounds a doctrine which puts the "Fall" back before the creation of man making it the apostacy from the will of God of an hypothetical spirit of the universe - - a sort of free and self-conscious elan vital - - assumed to have been the first created thing and the source of all other created things. This accounts not only for human imperfection, but also for the unconscious evil and cruelty in the subhuman realm. As far as man is concerned, his "Fall" is not so much a fall as a failure to climb. And the "original sin" which goes with this, Dr. Williams sees as the inherited weakness of man's social instincts as over against his ego-instinct and his sex-instinct. He would have us throw the term "original sin" out of our theological vocabulary, and put in its place "inherited infirmity."

Stated thus briefly, this new doctrine of the "Fall" sounds bizarre in the extreme, but Dr. Williams' learned and skillful defense of it is stimulating and well-nigh convincing. The sections dealing with original sin contain perhaps the most valuable suggestions of the construc-

(Continued on page 15)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE CATHEDRAL SCHOOL

The Southern School for Girls

By

REV. ALFRED EVAN JOHNSON

THE Cathedral School for Girls in Orlando, Florida, was founded in the year 1900 by Bishop William Crane Gray, first bishop of the missionary district of Southern Florida which in the year 1922 became the diocese of South Florida. The Right Reverend Cameron Mann, D. D. Bishop of South Florida, is president of the board of trustees of the school. His interest in its development has been unfailing and he has done all in his power to promote its welfare.

The school has made continued progress under successive principals among whom special mention may be made of the late Deaconess Parkhill, of the Reverend Randolph P. Cobb, who held the office acceptably for ten years, and of the present principal, Miss Clara Burton, whose efficient leadership has done so much for the school.

The situation is a beautiful one overlooking Lake Eola. The purpose of the school is to maintain a high standard of scholarship with abundant opportunity for physical development under a competent director. A resident nurse gives constant attention to the care of the health of the pupils.

The school is accredited by the State Board of Education and prepares pupils for college entrance. At the commencement on June second, Bishop Mann conferred diplomas upon ten graduates and gave certificates to four other members of the senior class who had entered for the final year only.

Stress is laid upon religious instruction and the development of moral character. The resident faculty and pupils attend the morning service on Sunday at St. Luke's Cathedral and there is a Bible class on Sunday evenings. There are also daily prayers morning and evening. For some years past a Confirmation class has been prepared by the chaplain and presented to the Bishop.

A bright and joyous tone of life is

THE GRADUATING CLASS

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

encouraged and many evenings are marked by merry festivities. The annual May Day Festival and the due observance of national holidays have been noticeable features of the school programme.

The very reasonable charge for board and tuition may well be taken into consideration by parents who desire to send their daughters for the training of a Church school in a mild and healthful climate.

RELIGIOUS VAGARIES

The Need of Convictions

By

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

YES, I have seen the United States census report. Quite a varied assortment of us Christians, I find. Enough to suit everyone's taste, it might be imagined. But they still spring up all over the land. It almost seems that whenever a person gets a new religious idea he wants at once to found a religious sect to put it into practice.

This multiplicity of sects is rather confusing to the plain man. It seems rather hard to believe that there are any underlying truths for religion, under these circumstances. The various denominations represent to the man in the street the preferences, hopes, surmises or guesses of certain groups of people, large and small.

We must be rather patient with such an attitude, because it is not so much the fault of the man, as it is of the Christians themselves. If ten different physicians should endorse ten different remedies for lumbago, each claiming the exclusive efficiency of his own remedy, the average man might well conclude that there was some degree of conjecture about their conclusions.

What Is a Creed?

This condition of religious organizations has raised a very large crop of counter conjectures, which serve as a balm to the conscience of the man content to evade the duty of making a little investigation for himself. He forgets that there are certain truths which all the synods, councils or conventions in the world cannot make untrue, and that there are certain facts in the realm of religion which can never be voted into anything else. These truths and these facts are the only necessary and defensible "creed."

But large groups of people who proclaim themselves liberal have set up a series of mottoes by which they proclaim some independence of thought and action. They are merely proclaiming their own inability to distinguish among things that differ. These negative assertions are trotted out before the parson and put through their paces, when people want to convince him of the largeness of their hearts. The most common are these. "One Church is as good as another." "No hide-bound creeds for us." "Be sincere and you are right." "We are all trying for the same place."

Such persons need a little of the wholesome warning that was recently sounded in the Boston Transcript in the following paragraph:

Danger of Breadth

"Breadth of religious views is sometimes claimed as a virtue when it may represent little but intellectual and spiritual indolence. As President King said in "The Moral and Religious Challenge of Our Times," 'Many a man prides himself on his breadth and tolerance, when his breadth only means that he has put all ideals practically on a level, and his tolerance is not true tolerance at all, but only an indifference undisturbed by conviction.' The one who is proud of his religious breadth needs to be very sure that, at the same time, he has a depth of earnest conviction that holds him to essentials with an unceasing grasp. Otherwise his life will become not broad merely, but thin and weak. Let us cultivate depth of conviction, and not that ability which is based on no solid conviction, of agreeing with everybody."

The absurdity of the application of such liberality to other domains of truth is quite apparent.

A Conversation

"I am pretty liberal in my views, I guess," said the Liberal man. "I do not take much stock in all these rigid doctrines that the Churches make up. I guess it does not make very much difference what we believe so long as we are sincere in it. Let every man believe what he wants to, that is what I say."

"Right you are," says the Churchman. "We are too much the victims of illiberality and narrowness. Here we have a narrow and illiberal state insisting that a man must stand examination and get a permit before practicing medicine. Absurd. If the physician is sincere he is all right. Let him believe that the appendix is in the brain and let him operate. What an old fogy the druggist is, any way. Here he sticks to the old formalism of labels and formulae, when he should exercise the glorious liberty of a free man by mixing drugs, not according to the writing of some state-ridden physician, but according to color. Yes, indeed, let him learn the color of the patient's wall paper, and then mix his drugs to make an aesthetic effect that will not jar upon the patient's eyes. What a narrow, illiberal lot teachers are, too. Here they have been teaching for many generations that three times three are nine. Get something new! Get out of that rut! Revise that old multiplication table whose victims and slaves you are. If you are sincere it will be all right. And what an absurd idea we have about property and a man's rights. If you see a good umbrella, don't be a narrow dolt and think of the eighth commandment, but be liberal and sincere. Take it."

"I don't mean that," said the Liberal man.

"No, you don't. You wish to apply it only to the things of a man's soul and salvation. Your position is therefore narrowness and bigotry. It is the truth that sets us free. Come, be broad, liberal, and sincere and base your living upon God's truth in His Church."

After writing this paragraph a little parable flashed across my mind. It seemed to illustrate the disastrous effect of carrying liberal mottoes to their logical conclusion. It may perhaps illustrate the logical processes by which the people group themselves into scattered and ineffective religious societies together with the constantly growing fringe of individualistic tassels on the varigated robe of our ecclesiastical fabric. Here it is:

A Parable

A man carrying a large bottle hastened into a drug store. "Here," he said, "fill this bottle, my daughter is sick."

"But what do you want in it?" asked the druggist, eyeing the unlabelled bottle first, and then the man.

"Oh, I really don't care. One drug is as good as another. Give me some of that pink there. My daughter likes pink."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

"But," said the druggist not knowing whether it was a joke, or the mild fantasy of a lunatic, "that pink liquid is a hand lotion, and would not do your daughter any good."

"Oh, you know I am not the kind that is narrow about color. All colors are trying to do good, and the color is all right if one only is sincere about taking the mixture. But you may give me that rich brown stuff."

"One drop of that," said the druggist, "would make your daughter indifferent to colors, too. Have you not consulted a doctor, and have you no prescription?"

"Yes, I did call a doctor, and he gave me a prescription, but I do not believe in hide-bound prescriptions. I once had a little rash on my skin, and the doctor gave me a prescription for a lotion, and I saw that the largest part of it was aqua. I put the blamed stuff on, and it had too much hanged aqua in it, for it hurt like the mischief. I told the doctor the next time he tried to torture me by applying an overdose of aqua to my skin, he would hear from me proper. So, no hide-bound prescriptions for me. One drug is as good as another, except aqua. Come on, fill the bottle."

"I cannot take the risk without a prescription," said the puzzled and disgusted druggist.

"Well, why not? Aren't all sick people trying to get well? They all want to get to the same place. What difference does it make what way they take? I'll tell you, I'll take the most popular thing. That must do the most good, as it is most used. Mix us up half and half from those large red and green bottles in the window. They must be good sellers, as you have so much of them."

The druggist, in amazement, mingled with amusement, complied, and two colored waters filled the bottle.

"I'll do more," he said, "I'll add a pinch of something to give it flavor. This is a stimulant also. Your daughter will feel better at once. It will not reach the heart of the trouble, not at all. It will not be hard to take, and will not wage a battle with the disease. It will not leave the system purified and wholesome. It will not bring any of nature's great forces to aid the stricken body, but it will give your daughter a temporary sense of relief, and great high spirits, and she will feel better for a while."

"Just what I want," said the man. "Her birthday is near, and we want her to be cheerful on that day. And I'll tell all my friends and if you don't sell all the contents of those red and green bottles, before a week, I'll miss my guess. Mix up another lot and get ready for business."

The man left and the bewildered druggist sat down to think. Was the man right? Did the people want sparkling colored water, with a little stimulant in it? He would try. A great sign was prepared. "A Drugless Drugstore." It was hung over the door. "Come and be cured," was in the window. "Health and Health Only" appeared between the bottles. "Feel good and you are well." "One drug as good as another." "No drugs as good as any." "Abandon the worn-out prescription." "What are mere words?" Select a color. If you choose as near right as you know how, you will be well. No use to learn how to make a better choice." "Every man according to his lights, but don't get more light. It is foolish and unnecessary." "Don't trust the trained and licensed doctors. They will make you use drugs according to science."

REV. GAYNOR BANK
He Preaches on Health

How the crowds came and the jars emptied. How the store grew. By the end of a month, barrels of colored water had been distributed. The drugs vanished. Pretty soon one man discovered that he could buy a jar and mix his own water, and it looked just as good as the druggist's. It did not take long for the crowds to discover the fact. Then came the deluge. Every man had his own drug store for his exclusive use. The druggist was deserted. He was dismayed. "Oh!" he said, "I have it. I will put in a player piano. I will have a conjuror come and do tricks behind the counter. I will remove the prescription case and have a tableaux. I will get some man to lecture on this and that."

A few came back, and the store filled somewhat. Once in a while he ventured to say "drugs" and almost caused a panic, so great was the resentment. There was a steady sale of colored water to those who did not want to take the trouble to prepare it for themselves.

And the people ascribed their pains and their weaknesses to Providence. Their ignorance they called "Twentieth century enlightenment and liberality."

* * * *

It is to be hoped that when we shall be fortunate enough to have the printed reports of the great universal conference on Faith and Order that one immediate result will be to emphasize the value of religious convictions, and to banish once and for all, the popular and misleading conception that every man's religion is the sum total of his surmises.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

In a restaurant a hat fell off a peg and dropped right on top of a piece of pie that was covered with whipped cream.

The owner of the hat called a waiter..

"Well," said the waiter, "what do you want, a new hat or another piece of pie?"

* * *

"Pop, what's congenial employment?"

"Anything that pays a bigger salary."

* * *

An Englishman was boasting to an American friend that he came from a long line of noblemen.

"My great-great-grandfather," said he, "was touched on the head by the king and made an earl."

"That's nothing," replied his American friend. "My great-great-grandfather was touched on the head by an Indian and made an angel."

The Witness Fund

EACH YEAR the Witness asks any who care to do so to send in a bit extra with their subscription renewals in order that we may continue sending the paper to a considerable number of people who otherwise would be without the paper. We hope to be presented each year with $500 for this purpose. We acknowledge with thanks the following donations to the Witness Fund:

Mary D. Chafee	$ 8.00
Mrs. Keorge Champ	1.00
Mr. R. B. Leaks	2.00
Rev. O. R. Berkeley	1.00
Mr. C. M. Higley	1.00
Mrs. N. M. Jones	1.00
Mrs. W. J. Fitzsimons	.50
Total for 1927	$134.00

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

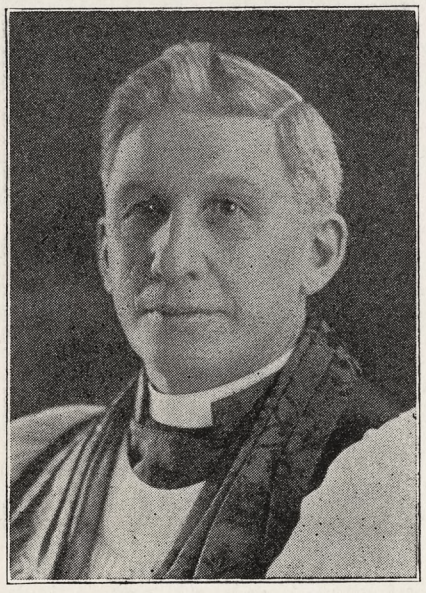
In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE most unique Church gathering in the United States is that of our Indian Churchmen among the Sioux. This year it was to have met at Standing Rock, in the northern part of South Dakota, but was transferred to Pine Ridge, in the south, when it was decided that the President would make a visit to that reservation.

The Convocation met on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, August 14-16, and the President appeared on the day following.



Notwithstanding the fear that the throng attracted by the visit of the President might interfere materially with the effectiveness of the meeting, and that possibly it would also divert the attention of the members of Convocation from its own affairs, the meeting proved to be one of the best ever held. The attendance was large and the interest maintained throughout. Those present at the final service on Tuesday evening compared favorably in numbers with the congregation at the great opening service Sunday morning. Many white visitors were also present for the whole or a part of the time.

The chief news events of Convocation were the presence on Monday morning of Commissioner Charles H. Burke, a native of South Dakota, and a Churchman. He received a cordial welcome from his Dakota friends and spoke most earnestly of the great contribution made by the missionaries to the solution of the Indian problem. The Government, he said, could never have accomplished what it has done without them. He desired still closer co-operation and earnestly urged the Indian people to make for themselves a worthy place in the citizenship of the nation.

Convocation met in three groups,—the men, the Woman's Auxiliary and the Young People's Service League,—and the days were filled with services and sessions of all sorts. The total offerings brought amounted to almost $4,000, and were presented on the altar at the closing service. The early Communions were especially well attended, the communicants ordinarily reaching 400 in number. Some 2500 of our Church folk were in camp.

At the closing service Bishop Burleson expressed his gratitude and appreciation of the work done by the Rev. Messrs. Joyner, Clark and Shaw in making such admirable arrangements for the Convocation on such short notice, and also to the members for their earnest and loyal participation throughout.

* * *

BISHOP BURLESON
Tells the Coolidges

The visit of President Coolidge to the Pine Ridge Reservation was set for Wednesday, August 17, the day following the close of the Niobrara Convocation, on the fairgrounds two miles from our church. Ten thousand Indians were awaiting him and an elaborate pageant had been prepared. Notwithstanding this fact, the entire body of helpers, catechists and clergy, and a large proportion of the members of Convocation remained to give him a welcome as he came down the highway past the Church of the Holy Cross. Arrangements had been made for him to stop two minutes. At 12:30 the clergy assembled and vested. An intercessory service was then held in the church, which was crowded. Petitions were made for the President, the country and our missionary work among the Dakota people. At the close of this service, singing a Dakota hymn, the procession marched out and took its place on the sloping bank by the roadside, with the vested group of clergy in the center.

The presidential party arrived promptly and President and Mrs. Coolidge and their son John very graciously alighted and joined the group. After the inevitable photograph, Bishop Burleson spoke for a moment, requesting the privilege of presenting the President a message which had been prepared by the Convocation. This was enclosed by a beautiful old beadwork tobacco pouch and was given to the President by three veterans in service, Revs. Amos Ross, Philip J. Deloria and Dallas Shaw. Three representatives of the women, Mrs. Julia Deloria, Mrs. Lucy Ross and Mrs. Nancy American-Horse, then gave Mrs. Coolidge, from the women, a lovely beaded deer skin bag containing a pair of moccasins. The whole group then sang one verse of "America" in the Dakota tongue, which concluded the ceremony. The Presidential party returned to their conveyances.

Brief as it was, this event must have been strikingly significant to the President, who has somewhat overmuch of the spectacular presentation of Indian life, now utterly gone, with its decoration of warpaint and feathers.

* * *

At 1:30 on the afternoon of Friday, August 19, on the invitation of the President, the bishops, clergy and other residents of Camp Remington were received by him at the Game Lodge, which is his summer home. Our Church camp is a bare twelve miles from the President's summer residence, and our little Chapel of the Transfiguration in the midst of the camp is the nearest place of worship.

About thirty-five paid their respects to the President and Mrs. Coolidge, who shook hands with them all. Bishop Burleson took advantage of this opportunity to present Mrs.

The Witness

All items for the news columns of the paper should be sent to

416 Lafayette Street,
New York City

except those of the far West which should be sent to—

Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens
619 S. Figueroa Street
Los Angeles, California

Correspondence in regard to Bundle Orders and Subscriptions should be sent to

6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

Correspondence in regard to advertising should be addressed to the New York office.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Cooildge, for her son John, the gift of an Indian bead-work belt and watch.-fob which the Young People's Service League, at the Nobrara Convocation, had prepared for him. This was received most graciously by the first lady of the Land, and an appreciative note of thanks has been received from John Coolidge and transmitted to the donors.

* * *

The Message composed and presented in the Dakota tongue was as follows: To His Excellency the President of the United tSates of America:

You have come to the land of the Oglalas where dwell the descendents of those who offered the last resistance to the white man. Here are the children and the grand-children of those who fought on the Little Big Horn. It is the home of the last and most stubborn of the fighting Sioux. A few miles to the west of you is Wounded Knee. Here your soldiers killed many of us. From the Black Hills you have come, where your summer home stands in the midst of our sacred region, the invasion of which by the gold-seeking white man brought on the final struggle.

We repeat these facts to show the contrast between yesterday and today. Fifty years ago those who killed Custer hated the white man; now in the same place are gathered hundreds of Christian Indians engaged in religious meetings. Members of the Episcopal Church representing the Sioux nation throughout the State of South Dakota, one hundred bishops, clergy, and lay workers, five hundred more delegates representing a body of five thousand communicants, greet you in this message of loyalty and respect.

This is an example of the great change which has taken place in Indian conditions. No longer are the tamahawk and scalping-knife stained with white blood, nor will they ever be again in fact they no longer exist. We seek not the lives of our white brothers; it is rather some of them who seek the little we possess.

To you who are our great White Father, we present our loyal and respectful greetings. You hold our future in your hands; you and your successors control our destiny. With the passing of the free life, the old world of the Indian disappeared forever. If we live at all, we and our children must live the new world of the white men, and we must have your help to do this.

Therefore we are glad you have come among us, hoping that you may see the Indian as he really is. You have seen much of the war-paint and feathers and dances. Those are all things of yesterday, which mean little today, and will mean nothing tomorrow. The hope of our people lies in education, industry and religion, and we pray that you will help us find those necessities for a useful life.

Many of us are still children of the primitive world which has disappeared, and most of us have had little chance to learn fully the best things in the white man's way of life. Give to us, Great Father, understanding, sympathy, patience and protection. In the America which was ours before it was yours, we desire to take our place in the ranks of Christian citizenship.

Praying God's blessing upon you, and His guidance in the discharge of the great duties of your high office, we are

Your Children of the West,
Signed in behalf of Convocation by:
Amos Ross
Philip J. Deloria
Dallas Shaw

* * *

Faculty members from four of our theological seminaries took a six

Still Selling Rapidly!
Lewis Browne's
THIS BELIEVING WORLD
by the author of
"Stranger Than Fiction"
Ninth Large Printing
$3.50

Harry Emerson Fosdick
The Modern Use of the Bible
How can you spend ninety cents of your book money to better advantage?
90 cents
Cloth Bound

THE WRESTLE OF RELIGION WITH TRUTH
By Henry Nelson Wieman
Author of "Religious Experience and Scientific Method."
A readily intelligible refutation of two opposing claims that have perverted religion again and again, the one denying that religion has any need of truth and the other that religion has all the truth it needs. Probable price $2.25

Morals in Review
By A. K. Rogers (Yale)
"The Apostles of the good life on dress parade." Begins with Socrates and includes the proposals of Plato, Aristotle, the Epicureans and the Stoics. Thomas Aquinas, Hobbes, Spinoza, the English Rationalists, Kant, Hegel, Schopenhauer, the English Unitarians, Martineau, Huxley, Spencer, and Guyau. Not the work of a second-hand reporter but that of a competent scholar, based on thorough study of the original sources. Probable price $3.50

Secrets of Effective Living
By James Gordan Gilkey
Companion volume to his "A Faith for the New Generation." The platform of modern liberalism as a working faith. Price $1.75

The Original Jerusalem Gospel
By J. M. Crum
The average man may not know that there is an "original" gospel buried away in the contents of Matthew, Mark and Luke. It is here printed separately to give it literary form and its relations to our New Testament gospels set forth in a fashion both interesting and intelligible to the untrained layman. Price $2.25

Judaism and the Modern Mind
By Maurice H. Farbridge
A reverently written book on the majesty of this ancient faith and its traditions, addressed to his fellows regardless of race or creed by a cultured Jewish scholar. Price $2.25

Fear: The Autobiography of James Edwards
By John Rathbone Oliver
The statement is made advisedly that every minister has at least one extremely difficult "personal problem" among his parishioners that this book fits like a glove. Price $2.50

The Making of Luke-Acts
By Henry J. Cadbury
Luke's two-volume history was the most ambitious literary undertaking of early Christianity. An unusual approach and a copious fund of new illustrative details combine to produce a fascinatingly fresh picture of "the first age of Christianity." Price $3.00

The Religious Mind
A Psychological Study of Religious Experience
By C. K. Mahoney (Dakota Wesleyan)
Credits religious concepts rationally based on the experiences of religion with the ability to perform the same function as that performed by the concepts similarly based on other phases of experience. Price $2.00

Messianic Speculations in Israel
By Abba Hillel Silver
A remarkable book for range of study which covers fully and intelligently the persistence of the Messianic hope among the Jews and the repeated appearances of men who claimed the Messiahship. Probable price $3.50

B. H. Streeter's
Reality
A sterling good book which without any blowing of trumpets is steadily making new friends
$2.50

J. Warschauer
The Historical Life of Christ
The most recent scholarly full-length life of Christ.
400 pages :: Octavo
$5.00

60 Fifth Ave. THE MACMILLAN COMPANY New York City
Atlanta Boston Chicago Dallas San Francisco

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

weeks' course in the New York School of Social Work this summer. The national Department of Christian Social Service organized the effort, convinced that such a course would be of practical value in bringing to the Seminaries a better understanding of social work. The General, Cambridge, California and Seabury schools were able to co-operate. Their faculty representatives lived together in the General Seminary, and took a course in the Method of Social Case Work, with two days of field work; various members of the group also studied Community Organization, the Nature and Varieties of Human Behavior, and Crime and Punishment. The social work instructors and directors welcomed the plan.

Seminary students have done social work in the summer time, to supplement their seminary training, and two seminaries are providing case work as a part of their course. For members of the seminary faculties to take the actual course in social work will be a help in relating the theological students' training to the rest of their seminary course and to their later problems of pastoral work.

* * *

In an effort to discover why so few men in the Church are active factors in bringing others into membership and what must be done to correct this condition, the Brotherhood of St. Andrew and the Commission on Evangelism are co-operating in calling a conference of men of the fifth province, to be held at Taylor Hall, Racine, Wis., Sept. 30, Oct. 1 and 2.

Plans for the conference, announced by Mr. Courtenay Barber of Chicago, chairman of the committee, provide for three days of frank discussion of problems facing men of the Church. The Rev. Alfred Newbery, rector of the Church of the Atonement, Chicago, and former assistant secretary of the Department of Social Service of the National Council, has been selected as leader of the gathering.

The conference is part of a definite program of follow-up on the Bishops' Crusade. It is an effort, according to Mr. Barber, to capitalize one results of the Crusade and to make such results permanent. Diocesan commissions on evangelism are to be asked to establish active committees on evangelism in each parish and mission. Study groups and preaching missions in parishes are other phases of local work which will be promoted.

* * *

Things looked up a bit last year in New Mexico. They always have trouble in districts in this part of the country with migratory parsons who camp down for a few months and then start off with a job just begun. But last year there was less of this and a resulting increase in the work. "Mining towns" are still depleted

MRS. A. A. GUTGESELL'S
CHRISTMAS NOVELTY
GIFT BOOK

Established 1912

If your Church or Society needs money, we offer

A Safe and Attractive Plan

Send your order for Sample Book NOW, as they are made up during the summer months.

The new 1927 Christmas Novelty Gift Book contains a beautiful line of colorful, engraved, hand colored and printed Christmas Cards, Enclosure Cards, Seals, Ribbons and Tissue Paper for Christmas Packages, also many Novelties—all arranged in attractive display.

Your Profit Is Fifty Percent

Originator and pioneer of this plan for Church and Benevolent Societies.

Sixteen years experience in getting out annual lines for this purpose.

Creative Artists and Designers of well known ability.

Our own perfectly equipped plant for manufacturing.

An organization of efficiency that maintains throughout the season a service nationally known for its promptness and reliability.

For information and testimonials address

MRS. A. A. GUTGESELL, Inc.
521-529 So. 7th St.,
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

St. John's Military School

ESTABLISHED in 1887 by the citizens of Salina, Kansas, under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. It is a preparatory school for boys from 8 to 18 years of age. The capacity is one hundred and twenty boys, who are instructed and sponsored by a faculty of ten men. The course of study and text books are those adopted by the State Board of Education. About fifty percent. of the boys are from Kansas, the rest live in Colorado, Oklahoma, Wyoming, Montana, Missouri, and Nebraska.

A modified military system is used as a means of developing neatness, obedience and self-reliance in the cadets. Athletics are offered for all of the boys. Time devoted to studies and recreations is supervised by competent instructors. The aim of St. John's is to develop well rounded men of character.

Address:

THE SECRETARY,

St. John's Military School

Salina, Kansas.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

there but where these adverse conditions are absent a steady Church growth has been noted. Grace Mission, Carlsbad and St. Andrew's, Roswell, expect soon to give up the small sum they are still receiving from the outside and go on the parish list. Both have built fine parish houses recently. At the Church of the Holy Faith, Santa Fe, they have just completed one of the finest parish houses in this part of the country.

* * *

The Rev. LeRoy F. Baker, senior presbyter of the diocese of Harrisburg, died on August 8th, at the age of seventy-nine. He has been prominent in diocesan affairs having held many of the important offices, including delegate to two General Conventions.

* * *

Christ Church Shaker Heights, Ohio, is to build a church to cost $65,000.

* * *

How does your congregation hold up during the summer? At least one church, St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston, reports crowds during the hot weather. Its location off the Common and the preaching of the Rev. Dr. Sullivan of Newton Centre are given as the reasons.

* * *

Mr. Percy Sylvester Malone in his column Gargoyles which is one of the features of the CHURCHMEN tells this delightful story about Dean Inge.

Dean Inge received a cable from an American publisher: "Will you write your life? Will pay $10,000." On his refusal, a second cable followed. "Will you write life of Christ? Lower rates, of course."

* * *

This is from the CHURCH TIMES, diocesan paper of Milwaukee, in it's comments on the Racine Conference:

"One of the most extraordinary courses was that of the Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker in Church Pageantry. This course included studies in the dramatic appreciation of the Prayer Book offices. Suggestions from various clergy and laity who took the course may lead Mr. Tucker to publish in periodical form some of these studies in symbolical liturgology which in time may be brought together in book form. This perhaps is one of the most novel and yet practical results of the conference."

These lectures are to appear in serial form, with illustrations, in THE WITNESS, commencing October first. The series by Bishop Johnson on the Teaching of the Church will start at the same time. So friends order your Bundle now please. I know how hard it is to get folks to read anything religious. But if you will take just a small bundle, say ten copies, and then occasionally mention in the announcements that something in the particular issue that is on sale is worth reading you will find that the papers will go. And some rectors who have been particularly successful with the Bundle Plan write in that it does make a difference in their parishes after a bit. Order ten copies now. Have them sold at a nickle. We will bill quarterly at three cents. Try the plan this winter.

* * *

Archdeacon Christian of Kansas arranged a rustic chapel under one of the spreading giant hemlocks at Cassells, Colorado where he took his vacation. It had altar and all the furnishings and here several com-

WINSTON-INTERNATIONAL
LOOSE-LEAF BIBLE
A PRACTICAL BIBLE FOR NOTES
Contains over 250 loose-leaf pages for personal notes that may be inserted in any number of pages between any pages in the Bible. Looks like a regular Divinity Circuit bound Bible.
Send for Illustrated Catalog of Bibles
THE JOHN C. WINSTON CO., Publishers
American Bible Headquarters
456 WINSTON BUILDING PHILADELPHIA

ST. ANNE'S Open Air School, Box W, Charlotteville, Va.
Beautiful location in far famed Blue Ridge Mountains. College preparatory and elective courses. Fully accredited by State Board of Education. Open gymnasium allows sports in the fresh air in all weather. Riding taught by expert. Music. Art. Bishop of Virginia, President of Trustees. Laura Lee Dorsey, Principal.

THE NEW YORK TRAINING SCHOOL FOR DEACONESSES
419 West 110th St. New York
Prepares women for life service in the Church as Deaconesses, or as Trained Workers.
Two-year Academic course.
Field Work in both Religious Education and Social Service.

HARCOURT
Church School for Girls
Recently Incorporated
GAMBIER, OHIO
The Rt. Warren Lincoln Rogers, D. D.
Chairman of the Board of Trustees
Miss Harriette Merwin
Miss Marion Eloise Lasher
PRINCIPALS

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California
A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited, R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation
◆ ◆ ◆
THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.
Chartered under Act of Congress.
Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.
Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.
◆ ◆ ◆
Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

St. Albans School
SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS
Diocese of Chicago
Sixty miles west of Chicago.
Five miles off the Lincoln Highway

SCHOLASTIC:	Best of preparation for college. Boys this fall will be entered at Dartmouth, M. I. T., Yale, Princeton, Columbia, St. Stephens, Hobart, Kenyon, Annapolis, University of the South, Knox, Beloit, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Lafayette, Miami and Purdue.
ATHLETIC:	Every boy has an opportunity to enter the sports — Foot Ball — Basketball — Tennis— Track — Golf — Baseball — The School for two years has had an enviable reputation.
RELIGIOUS:	Great care has been given to have a good religious atmosphere. There are few obligatory services.
HOME LIFE:	The School has been to capacity for six years. Great care has been used in the selection of boys. The group enrolled has made it possible to have a full honor system under a council and an atmosphere of an ideal home.
CONFERENCES:	The Rector will be glad to make appointments at various centers during the summer. A visit to the school would be of value. The Chicago Office is Room 1411, Tower Building, Wednesdays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Address the School for literature and information.
ENROLLMENT:	Last year boys came from Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Florida, Louisiana, Montana, Colorado, Wisconsin, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Alaska.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

municants came for Sunday and Saints Days celebrations. Archdeacon Christian also had services on Sundays at the hotel.

* * *

Dr. A. W. Tucker of St. Luke's Hospital, Shanghai, writing on July 18th, says:

"We have been very busy all spring and summer but am thankful to say haven't had a hint of unrest or trouble from our staff. They have given splendid cooperation, in fact have seemed to be glad to have a job without outside interference. Our subscriptions are below normal but otherwise the conditions haven't affected us.

"We seem to be having a lull in the Nationalism just at present. There is a feeling, though, that it is a lull before the storm, and optimism is hard to find."

* * *

"The Southern Mountaineers" was the topic chosen by Bishop Gray in an address which he gave before a gathering at the 39th Annual General Conference of the First Brethren Church, convened at Winona Lake, near Warsaw, Indiana.

Bishop Gray spent four years among the mountaineers of Tennessee about thirty years ago, and has made many visits there since that time The content of his address was the story of his experiences among these people, and of the forward strides that have been made there both religiously and educationally in the past thirty years.

Several hundred delegates from all parts of the country attended the meeting, the conference opening August 25th and closing Sunday, September 4th. Bishop Gray was accompanied by the Rev. Howard R. White, Archdeacon of Northern Indiana.

* * *

The Church schools at Centralia, Nashville, Mt. Vernon, Carlyle and Salem, Illinois, held a teachers' and leaders' conference in Centralia August 28th, at which the winter's work was discussed and plans made for a larger work and a better standard of methods so that all the schools would be working by the same rules and grading by the same points in the standard. Miss Nellie Smith, the educational director will not teach in any of the school which will run on Sunday but will move over the field and help direct the activities but she will teach in the church schools of Carlyle on Monday and Nashville on Wednesday and in that way she will have a regular contact with the whole field of five counties. Plans are being worked on conducting a Teachers' Training Class in Centralia.

* * *

Attention was focused on the power of religion as a health-producing factor in human life in a series of four sermons delivered by the Rev. John Gayner Banks at Washington Cathedral during the month of August, on "The Redemption of the Body."

This marked Dr. Banks' initial appearance in the Cathedral pulpit since his appointment as Mission Preacher. His sermons were based on the experience gained in five years of work and study in the field of Christian Healing as director of the Society of The Nazarene, a society working in the Church to promote the teaching and practice of healing as an intrinsic part of the Church's function.

In his messages the speaker dwelt strongly upon the fact that healing is no longer a queer phenomenon or a

MARGARET HALL

Versailles, Kentucky

Accredited Church School for Girls, in the Heart of the Blue Grass.

College Preparatory and General Courses. High Standards; Music; Supervised Athletics; New Indoor Swimming Pool.

SARAH McDOWELL GAITHER, A. B.
Principal

SAINT MARY'S

Knoxville, Illinois

An accredited college preparatory school with special department for girls in the grades. Athletics. Music. Art. Expression. Secretarial and Business courses. For catalogue write to the Rector.

FREEHOLD

MILITARY SCHOOL

For 80 Select Young Boys

A school with the personal touch. Just enough military training to inculcate habits of obedience, promptness, orderliness, cleanliness and self-reliance. The students' comforts, pleasures and sports are as carefully considered as their mental training. Healthful location. 42 miles from N. Y., 66 miles from Phila. For catalog address. MAJOR CHAS M. DUNCAN, P. O. Box W, Freehold, N. J.

MOTHER

Here Is a Wonderfully Quick Relief for Whooping Cough and Croup

Since 1802, or for 124 years, Roche's Embrocation has been endorsed by mothers because it gives the quickest relief ever known for whooping cough and croup. Just rub it on the child's chest. Penetrating deeply, it breaks congestion, loosens the choking phlegm, and relief comes at once. You should keep it always handy for emergencies.

Sold By All Druggists or
E. Fougera & Co., Inc., New York
W. Edwards & Sons, London, Props.

ROCHE'S EMBROCATION

NURSING COURSE

of 2½ years, leading to R. N. degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll Now. Send for full information to DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING Hospital of St. Barnabas, Newark, N. J.

Confirmation Instructions

by

Bishop Johnson

50c a copy $4.00 a dozen

WITNESS BOOKS

Money in Old Letters

Look in that old trunk up in the garret and send me all the old envelopes up to 1880. Do not remove the stamps from the envelopes. You keep the letters. I will pay highest prices.

GEO. P. HAKES, 290 Broadway
New York, N. Y.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL

Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

ROWLAND HALL

A School for Girls in the Wasatch Mountains

Salt Lake City, Utah

BISHOP MOULTON, Rector.

NASHOTAH HOUSE

Founded in 1842
Theological Seminary and Collegiate Department
For particulars address the dean
NASHOTAH HOUSE
Nashotah, Wisconsin

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City. City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT

SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y. References required.

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., LTD., 28 MARgaret Street, London, England. Craftsmen in Ecclesiastical Art. Woodwork, Metal Work Vestments, Embroidery. Information and all particulars can be obtained through their distributor, Mr. Adrian A. Buck, 665 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London W 1., England

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

"nine days' wonder" in the Christian churches of this land. The laity even more than the clergy recognizes that this is an integral part of the Christian Gospel and, incidentally, one of the criteria of its authenticity.

* * *

They are going into rural work in earnest in North Dakota; a live committee is on the job with a campaign of education; a survey is to be made by experts; leaders are to be developed; libraries are to be established.

* * *

Rev. H. R. N. Woart, recently ordained was appointed by the Bishop of Liberia to serve in the interior of that country. Soon after arriving at the station his wife's little sister died. Soon after that his only son died. Still he sticks to his post and is now at work building a mission church.

* * *

They have a difficult time finding appropriate names for their cars in Montana. As I recall it Bishop Fox's car a year or so ago was "Fox Trot." This summer he borrowed Bishop Faber's Ford and in the diocesan magazine offers several suggestions for a name as a result of a rather hard trip.

"I am not sure whether Bishop Faber has adopted a name for his Ford or not. But after our drive over Priest's Pass I think 'Fervid Fanny' would be quite appropriate, for she certainly got all 'het up' because we asked her to go over the Divide. Twice we stopped to cool her off, each time giving her a cooling potion of pure spring water. But almost as soon as she started up again her fervid spirit manifested itself. If she were a bird I would call her a 'Rare Bird.' She is like some people. She is really a hypochondriac. There is always something the matter with her. This time in addition to the few ills that I have mentioned her brakes were weak so that when we started down hill from the top of the divide we had to hold her back by using the reverse."

* * *

A certain farmer of Dallas County recently sent the sum of fifty dollars to the Rev. E. W. Gamble of Selma, Ala., for social service work in that community. This gift was an expression of gratitude to God for an abundant rain which came in time to save his crop.

* * *

At Fort Stanton, New Mexico, though the chaplaincy is under the auspices of the federal government and within the confinements of an old army post our chaplain, the Rev. M. J. Swift, has found so general a response to his ministrations that we have organized a mission and have had set apart by permission of the government an attractive chapel with its altar, chancel, and the traditional furnishings of the Episcopal Church. A Church school has been in operation which is attended by the children of the government officials as well as the Marine Hospital patients, who form the greater part of the population of Fort Stanton.

* * *

Brent School for American children at Baguio, Philippine Islands, has a change of headmasters in the departure of Mr. Lewis O. Heck who has been there for four years, during which time a girls' dormitory was built, thus giving the advantages of Brent School, hitherto for boys only, to American girls in the Philippines and China: the senior boys' dormitory was enlarged, the school stable was rebuilt into a chapel, the laboratory and library were improved, manual training was added to the course, and the long deferred athletic field was completed. Mr. Heck returns to Johns Hopkins University for further study and expects to enter the ministry. He is succeeded, by Mr. H. C. Amos of the Newark Academy.

* * *

The Rev. Charles F. Penniman of St. Paul's, Meridian, Miss., after studying, with his parochial Church extension department, Mr. Goodwin's book, Beyond City Limits, found Alabama his natural rural field. By arrangement with Bishop McDowell, the three Episcopal groups at Livundoubtedly facilitate the sale of life insurance, but they must be paid. Their commissions, as such, must come out of the premiums paid by the assured. The elimination of agents is one of the reasons that the Church has at its disposal an opportunity to procure standard life insurance at net rates, stripped of all "loading."

AGENTS

The facilities of this Corporation are cordially extended to all clergymen and their families and all lay-workers and their families. Information will be sent upon request.

All Inquiries should be addressed to

The Church Life Insurance Corporation

14 Wall Street New York

(Operated under the supervision of the Trustees of The Church Pension Fund.)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland.
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore.
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month

Grace Church, Chicago.
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago.
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday 10:30.

St Chrysostom's, Chicago.
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8
Daily, 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily, 12:10
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

ingstone, Gainesville and York, Ala., have been organized into a rural unit, and placed under Mr. Penniman and his lay workers.

* * *

Here is advice on beet raising and other interesting subjects that comes from Mr. H. Kane, who works among the Japanese in Western Nebraska: "During the month of May, we had very changeable weather—hot, sultry, thunder shower, lightning, then hail, snow, blizzard, then some time strong sand storm—some shifting wind took young beet plants away and frost killed some, thus farmers replanted them.

"Useless to say, sugar beets will bring good amount of money some year but sure risky crop on light, sandy soil. Particularly very close attention is required for them at their early stage.

"On May 8th we had Sunday services and Church school for children. Thirty-five were present at St. Andrew's Church of Scottsbluff, in spite

BOOKS

Cushioned Pews
By Bishop Johnson
Forty essays that challenge the way of life of present day men.
$1.75 a copy

Foundation Stones
By H .P. Almon Abbott
A popular presentation of the teaching of the creeds. Recommended by the Presiding Bishop.
$1.25 a copy

The Bible and Evolution
By Postell Witsell
Contains statements on the subject by America's foremost educators.
50c a copy

The Way of Life
By Bishop Johnson
Setting forth the author's understanding of the meaning of a Christian life. 50c a copy

Lies
I Believe
The Wicket Gate
By G. A. Studdert-Kennedy
The most popular of present day English Church writers.
Each book, $1.60 a copy

WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Ave.
CHICAGO

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York.
Madison Ave. at 35th St
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D
Sundays, 8 and 11 a. m.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 7:30 and 11

St. James, New York.
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York.
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, and 11 A. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp & Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta 6 P. M
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ

St James', Philadelphia
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8
Daily 7:30 9, and 6
Holy Days and Thursdays 11

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country: its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — In a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

of blizzard and cold day. We all sang hymn happily and studied the Scriptures. We have earnest desire to worship Him and pray to Him and serve to Him. The service at Morrill, Nebraska, was also of great success and blessing.

"During my absence, Mr. Ono, the buddist priest of Denver, Colorado, was in the valley, giving lectures and making calls. Our brethren entertained him nicely as our guest and showed him real friendship. We, Japanese residents in Nebraska, have to make more harder efforts to cultivate our spiritual life and elevate it to higher standard to His Glory. Some day, not only the buddist priest but also the priests of Islam, Parasees, Brahma or Jain may call on us and have visit with us. We must always be ready to show them our Christian friendship and confidence.

"On the Decorating Day, I visited the Fairview Cemetery of Scottsbluff and paid the tribute to the people who passed away. I counted thirty Japanese monuments. After prayers, I read the Psalm 125 for them."

* * *

St. Stephen's, Escanaba, Michigan, has started on the construction of a new $25,000 plant.

Books

(Continued from page 4)

tive part of the book. The "new psychology" is still new enough to be a precarious foundation for theology, but the statement in this book of the doctrine of sin in psychological terms is immensly refreshing and will be of permanent value in spite of the questionable social standing of the "social instinct" in the best psychological circles. This doctrine of inherited weakness of will has the result of minimizing rather than increasing the guilt of the individual. Clearly if weak social instincts are part of my original inheritence, I am not so much to blame for my transgressions. But - - and this is the important point - - if this is the case, I need all the more the help of the Church and the sacraments to win through to moral victory.

This is a big book and an expensive book, but for those who believe that theology really matters, it is well worth possessing and working through.

* * *

DRAMATIC ACTIVITIES. Grace Sloan Overton. Published by the Century Co. No price given.

Dramatic Activities is a group of dramatizations admirably suited for Christmas, Easter and other occasions. Religious educational workers will find it very suggestive and helpful.

Charles L. Street.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, jurnalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
College Preparatory and General Courses
MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Ward, Wells, Dreshman & Gates

Announce with pleasure
the addition to their staff of

Dr. Stephenson Waters McGill

For Several Years Field Secretary of the Department of Education of the Presbyterian Church in America

Since 1919 Dr. McGill Has Organized Campaigns
Which Produced Some Thirty Million Dollars for Colleges and Other Church Activities.

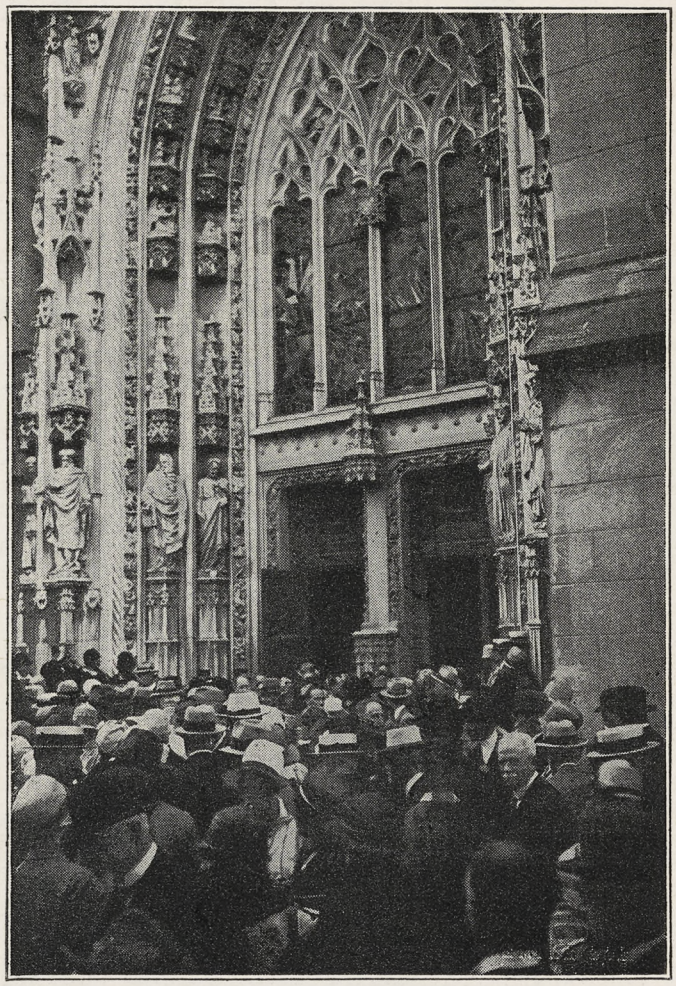
Our quarterly bulletin "Financing Social Progress"
will be sent upon request.

WARD, WELLS, DRESHMAN & GATES

Philanthropic Organization and Finance

475 Fifth Avenue, New York - - - - - 612 Wrigley Building, Chicago



Originators of the Intensive Method of Fund Raising

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

WHAT OF CAPITALISM? — Studdert-Kennedy

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, SEPTEMBER 15, 1927

THE FIRST SESSION ADJOURNS
AT THE
LAUSANNE CONFERENCE

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration

For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 697 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.

Baltimore, Md.

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring

Inquiries given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403) (Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

151 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts. NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J.

The Taylor Bell Foundry

LOUGHBOROUGH, ENGLAND

The World's Leading Bellfounders

CHURCH BELLS

SINGLY OR IN PEALS
CHIMES OR CARILLONS
AUTOMATIC OPERATION

Unequalled for Musical Qualities

Yale University	Birmingham, Ala.
Andover	Gloucester
Morristown	Cranbrook, Mich.

Harvard University
Germantown. Etc., Etc.
INQUIRIES SOLICITED

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

1438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings
Gorgeous Combinations of Color
Well executed by
The Von Gerichten Studios
Columbus Ohio. New York City

The Charm of Golden-Voiced Chimes

is within reach of your church, too!

Imagine the rich, musical tones of Deagan Tower Chimes coming from the belfry of your church—a constant inspiration to worship; a golden voice eagerly awaited by multitudes every day. Write for plan.

Standard Sets $6,000 and Up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER
and 4 & 5 Duncannon St: Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal and
Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates on application to

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— OFFICE AND STUDIO —

221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

— PHOTOS, DESIGNS AND ESTIMATES UPON APPLICATION —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 4 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

WORLD CONFERENCE ON FAITH AND ORDER

I. Program, Problem and Personnel

By

REV. CHARLES L. STREET

LAUSANNE, SWITZERLAND.—The World Conference on Faith and Order is almost over—that conference for which so many years have been spent in preparation, on which so many of the best minds in the churches have been working, and on behalf of which so many faithful people have been praying. It has been a gathering of truly ecumenical proportions. Among the five hundred delegates there have been representatives from every continent and many races. Side by side have been seen English bishops and American bishops, representatives from China and from Japan, bishops of the Eastern Church with long beards and flowing robes, native bishops from India and Negro bishops from America—all met together to acknowledge a common Saviour, to learn to know each other better, to understand better each others' different points of view, and if possible to make a beginning toward a common understanding of the Christian faith as the foundation of a United Church.

Place of Meeting

As I write this on the last day of the Conference, looking out of the window of my room in the Palace Hotel across Lake Lemau at the Alps piling up range upon range to the south and east, it is born in upon me that Lausanne is an ideal place for such a gathering as this. Switzerland—a little country set high up in the clouds—has become of recent years the home of high aspirations and earnest efforts toward understanding and good will. Surely there is no place where understanding and good will are more sorely needed than among the divided followers of the Prince of Peace.

The large meetings were held in the Cathedral at Lausanne. Meetings of the several sections and committees were held in various hotels and public buildings. The meetings of the Conference itself were held in the main assembly hall of the University of Lausanne which comfortably seated the nearly five hundred delegates and had a gallery high up along one side which held about a hundred people more.

Brent and Garvie

At the first business meeting Bishop Brent was elected President of the Conference and at his request Dr. Garvie, Scotch Congregationalist, was made deputy-chairman. Bishop Brent's influence for fairness, moderation and lofty purpose was one of the major factors in the success of the conference. In order to relieve him Dr. Garvie presided at many of the sessions. In spite of his white hair and full white beard Dr. Garvie made an alert and effective chairman. He was one of the people at the conference who seemed equally at home in English, French and German, and was quite capable of calling recalcitrant delegates down in their own language when occasion arose. The only trouble with him as chairman was that when he got excited he lapsed into Scotch when no Scotch interpreter had been provided.

Difficult Task

The conference had a tremendously difficult task. Not only were the members divided by cherished theological beliefs apparently as far apart as the poles; Greeks believing in seven sacraments and Quakers believing in none; Anglicans believing in Apostolic Succession and Congregationalists believing in something quite different, but they were divided as well by language. The interpreters had a busy time of it. The German interpreter took a real joy in his work. The simplest announcement, like the hour of the next meeting, he proclaimed in German with all of the fervor of a Patrick Henry saying "Give me liberty or give me death." The French interpreter was no less efficient but considerably more casual. When his time came he would jump to his feet like a jack-in-the-box, let go a stream of French and sit down again almost before he got through.

Important People

Important ecclesiastics were to be seen on every side. There was Bishop Temple of Manchester, one time infant prodigy at Oxford, destined, according to some, to follow in his father's footsteps as Archbishop of Canterbury. He was altogether one of the most valuable members of the conference. There was Bishop Soederblom, Bishop of Upsala and Primate of Sweden, with flowing mane and vigorous gesture, spurning interpreters and making speeches indiscriminately in French, German and English. There was the saintly Bishop Irenee of Novi Sad and Bishop Stefan of Bulgaria who was saying mass in his cathedral in Sophia when it was bombed not long ago and went right on saying mass without so much as turning around. There was Bishop Headlam of Gloucester, better known as a scholar than as a bishop, long, lanky and remote, sprawling around in his seat in a most unepiscopal fashion, and looking very much bored by the discussions.

Women Heard From

There was Miss Lucy Gardiner, a Quaker, prominent in the Copec movement in England. It was she who read a memorial prepared by the women delegates at the conference. After calling attention to the fact that out of over four hundred delegates only seven were women the memorial goes on to this: "The signatories of this document make no claim to state what is the right place of women in the Church, and in fact not all of them are agreed on all points. But on one they are agreed: That this is a matter that cannot be decided either by men or women alone. It is not for women to claim and for men to give, but as the Church unitedly sets out on a quest for deeper spiritual unity we believe that in this matter also we shall unitedly see fresh light and a fresh revelation of God's will." "At this hour in the Conference we do not ask that this, one of the problems of 'Order' be discussed. We do ask the prayers of all that the gifts of women as of men may be offered and used to the full in the great task that lies before us—that of the evangelisation of the world through a Church united."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Formal Speeches

The formal speeches were scattered through the sessions. Bishop Brent's opening address on "The Call to Unity," Bishop Nicholas on "The Sacraments," Dr. Parkes Cadman on "The Church," Professor Deissmann on "The Gospel," to name only a few, were among the noteworthy events of the conference. The real business was done in the less formal meetings. The program committee had prepared an outline of seven topics for discussion: The Call to Unity, The Gospel, The Church, The Church's Common Confession of Faith, The Ministry, The Sacraments, and The Unity of Christendom. In order to study these matters the conference was divided into sections. During the first ten days three sections studied questions 2, 3 and 4. During the second part of the time the conference was redivided into three other sections for the study of subjects 5, 6 and 7. When they got down to work the sections were redivided into small committees for study and discussion. Thus everyone in the conference had a part in its work. Three days practically free from other meetings were given over to this committee work twice during the conference. When the sections had finished their study they reported to the whole conference, the reports were criticised and sent back to the section for further changes. The final reports, to be submitted to the whole conference on its last three days, is to be the subject matter of my second article, with a third to follow on the significance of the meeting.

This Question of Capitalism

What Are the Real Facts?

By

REV. G. A. STUDDERT-KENNEDY

THERE are thousands of men who think that Capitalism is the devil. That is the only definition of it they either know or need. It is responsible for all the miseries of life in great societies and must be destroyed. The destruction of Capitalism is the panacea of all evils and the only way to peace and prosperity. This is the religion of millions of men and women in the modern world.

It is a simple faith which makes no demand upon the intelligence of its followers and owes its power largely to its simplicity? Socialism is God. Capitalism is the devil. Life is a battle between God and the devil. That is all a man needs to know, and all he needs to do is to join the proletariat army and fight. There you have a simple, all-embracing faith which to them explains the meaning of the world and man's duty to it.

Laziness—and Truth

I talk to scores of men whose philosophy of life, when you take away the trimmings, is just that—no more, no less. Our longing for simplicity is a snare which often leads us into gross and disastrous errors, and causes us unwittingly to fight our friends and aid our enemies. It does this because it is the result of laziness, and laziness cannot give us truth. There is a true and simple faith that we can gain, but it is not easy to gain, it only comes to crown honest thinking and unselfish living. It cannot come to those who close their minds and harden their hearts. If we are to fight the devil it is necessary to be quite sure what he is and how he works, and what powers we must use against him.

It is no use trying to fight poison gas with heavy guns or kill influenza bugs with a blunderbuss. They will not touch the enemy in either case. It is a terrible thought, but true, that millions of men in the world today are frantically trying to cure themselves of small pox by cutting off the spots. That is what everyone is doing who holds the simple faith of "to the deuce with Capitalism."

It will be a step in the right direction if I can induce my readers to stop and ask themselves: "What do I mean by Capitalism when I defend or oppose it?" It will be a further step if I can persuade them to do the same about Socialism. It is disastrous that these two important and difficult words should degenerate into terms of abuse bandied about with nothing behind them but passion.

Capitalism in its essence is a method of production and distributing requiring much fixed capital—that is, much expenditure of energy in producing tools and labour-saving appliances. The man who first thought of using a plough, or even a spade, to prepare the soil before he sowed the seed, took a step towards Capitalism. He expended energy in making something which he could not eat, drink, or wear—something with which he could not satisfy any natural desire, but which he believed would make it easier for him to satisfy his desires in the future.

While he was making the plough he had to live, and it was necessary, therefore, that he should put by something to live on during the time spent in making it. There you have the essence of Capitalism. A spade is a simple form of capital, a railway is a highly developed and complex form. But both are essentially the same thing. They are tools or labour-saving contrivances. A railway requires the expenditure of enormous quantities of energy for its construction, energy of hand and brain. While it is being constructed it does not satisfy any natural want, or even make it easier to satisfy natural wants. The men who made it cannot live on it, and yet they must live, and so they must be kept going on what has been saved. They must be fed and clothed out of what has been put by and not immediately consumed.

Now it is quite clear that if these enormous tools are to be made and used and kept in repair—for like all material things they have a habit of wearing away—a railway wears out just like a shirt—there must be a perpetual process of putting up or saving. Men must not consume all they produce at once, but must keep some of it to give to the men who produce tools and maintain them in proper repair.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE MEANING OF "CAPITAL"

It is this business of making tools and keeping them in repair that leads to the necessity of large savings. Under modern conditions, with our enormously increased and constantly increasing populations, the tools are a necessity—we could not live without them. And that means that the savings are a necessity, too. It is unfortunate but almost inevitable that the word "capital" is applied both to the tools and the instruments, and to the savings necessary to produce them and keep them in repair. The reason of this is that the men and women out of whose savings the tools are made not unnaturally claim to own and control them.

It is this claim to own and control both the tools and the savings necessay to produce them that is the source of all the trouble. Modern tools are so large and complex that no one man could possibly save enough to produce any number of them or keep them in repair. Many men must, therefore, be either persuaded or compelled to save and to sink their joint savings in the making of tools. If they are not compelled or persuaded to save, our tools will wear out and our people will starve. Many men must be found who can and will administer and control the savings wisely and well.

The crux of the question, therefore, comes to this: How are men and women to be compelled or persuaded to save? How are we to procure the best and wisest people to administer and control the huge surplus that must be accumulated? The enormous modern fortunes which make the inequalities of wealth and poverty so glaring and so gross are in part the inevitable result of huge populations which make huge savings an absolute necessity. A man dies worth 250,000 lbs. and his will is published in the paper. A man with 37 shillings a week reads the paper and the contrast drives him mad. He thinks that this man owned a quarter of a million in the same way as he owns his miserable pittance.

Of course, this is not true. The man administered and controlled a quarter of a million of savings—not necessarily his own savings, mind you—and was paid for doing it by interest on it. He may have been overpaid—probably was—but to take his fortune and distribute it among the men who earn less than two pounds a week would mean that you took away that much from the savings of the community as a whole and consumed it immediately.

I know a woman who has 100 lbs. capital which she has saved. She controls it and decides what it shall do. For her self-denial in saving it and her trouble in administering it she gets five pounds every year. She is a Capitalist. If you want to get rid of people like her you must find some way of making people save, and other people to decide what is to be done with collected savings, and administer or find others to administer them as they think fit. Natural self-interest will insure that they administer them for the good of all, and that the chance of gain will be adequate inducement to keep sufficient people saving. It is not claimed that this works perfectly, but merely that it works better than any other likely method.

G. A. STUDDERT-KENNEDY

WANTED—NATIONAL TRUSTEES

We must somehow find trustees for our national savings, and unless those trustees are both wise and honorable, we shall all suffer as a consequence. It is manifest that men and women who are trustees—and every Capitalist is one more or less—are vested with enormous power, and therefore have to bear a corresponding responsibility. This power and this responsibility must be vested in some body of people. Who shall they be, and how can we best insure that they perform their duties well? That is the issue.

Reprinted by arrangement from THE TORCH, organ of the Industrial Christian Fellowship.

Young Peoples Column

By Rev. W. A. Jonnard

THE Counsellor system is used in the South and West in the work of the various Young People's Societies of the Church. Those familiar with the work of successful societies pay testimony to the importance of this system.

The importance of having wise counsellors for young people's societies cannot be gainsaid. The influence of such leadership is enormous and yet, as Counsellor, the adult acts only in an advisory capacity and keeps in the background both literally and figuratively.

To quote from a little leaflet of suggestions for Counsellors of the Y.P.S.L. of the Diocese of Upper South Carolina:

"The Counsellor is the backbone of the League and is there to GUIDE and NOT to dictate, and must keep in the background as much as possible. He must be able to work WITH and not FOR the League, and be able to subordinate his personality so that the personality of the others will have a chance to develop.

"Above all, he must have FAITH in the members and never let them know he is disappointed in them. He must also win their confidence.

"He must set for them a high standard of personal life and effort and never consider anything for the good of the League and its members as too much trouble. The success of the League depends largely upon the guiding hand and influence of its Counsellors. Discouraging moments—even failures—are bound to come, but in the end it is all worth while."

The job of being a Young People's Counsellor opens up a wonderful field of opportune service in the Church, and the results, while they cannot be charted, are of value to the Church of the future.

Many summer schools and young people's camps are having very remarkable success in their conferences for counsellors on the subject, "Leadership of Youth." Many Diocesan Young People's Conventions have a limited number of adult Counsellor-delegates and these are not only given place on the program, but an hour is set apart for separate conference.

In the words of one counsellor, his job is "to see that the young people snap into their duties as officers and members of committees, and to use the telephone constantly with the question, "Can I help you with your job, or have you commenced to do it yet?" In the words of another counsellor, she acted as a "perpetual memoranda pad" for the young people. But, besides this, there is the wonderful chance to help youth establish standards for themselves, with a sympathetic understanding of what they are thinking and doing, and to bring them into closer fellowship with the "Master Counsellor."

And the job of Counsellor is a big one—too big for any one person; there ought to be two or three. Some of the details not mentioned are: assisting with the Sunday evening programs and other entertainments, chaperonage, assisting in athletic and recreational activities, helping solve the problem of finance, keeping alive the ideal of Christian Service as well as suggesting details of such in the Five Fields, and a hundred other things that constantly present themselves.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Do you bid for the job? Could you?

THE CHOIR VISIBLE

A Few Practical Suggestions

By

REV. GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

IT IS a delicate matter to write of choirs. No parson would ever dare to write of his own choir unless he were as fortunate as I have been with an honest, faithful and capable choir. But I shall err on the safe side, and write of other choirs, possibly yours.

You may ask what I mean by an honest choir. Simply this: A choir offering the ministry of praise and making the music an act of worship toward God and not an act of entertainment for the congregation.

Now you must not conclude that all paid choirs are therefore dishonest. Some paid choirs are thoroughly honest and sincere. But in the volunteer choir there is a peculiar integrity that avoids the possibility of insincerity which may rise when men and women are paid for their voices alone. It seems as if there might be a reasonable doubt of the moral right of a church to pay men and women to sing the "Credo." "I believe in God the Father Almighty,—and in Jesus Christ, His only Son; in the Holy Ghost; the Holy Catholic Church; the Communion of Saints; the forgiveness of sins; the Resurrection of the Body, and the Life everlasting," when the aforesaid singers did not believe a word they uttered. Have our vestries seriously considered the danger of allowing their faith to be sung before God by those who have not that faith? More than the voice of the singer should be tested by the choirmaster. The question should be asked squarely, "Can you honestly sing and mean the words which you may be asked to sing in this choir?" No minister would be tolerated if it were known that he held doctrines contrary to his public utterances. Why should he ask less of those who lead the ministry of praise?

Nor do I believe in the practice of "stars" in the choir. They are apt, like Browning's star, "to throw, now a dart of red, now a dart of blue," toward any one who appears to infringe upon their fancied prerogatives. Not all singers have equal ability to be sure. But each ought to be offering the best he has and that offering ought to be appreciated for its honesty. That is one reason why we should never permit the choir to be augmented by talented singers on special occasions. If your faithful choir is good enough for other Sundays it ought to be good enough for Easter. The "stars" themselves, when their magnitude is enlarged by too exclusive an assignment of solos, are apt to become the object of undue attention from the nimble wit of the lesser lights. One particularly aspiring young lady in a choir in Alaska, whose voice carried with it the suggestion of an enduring contest, was called the "Heavenly Anthem" by her fellow choristers. Their explanation of the epithet was suitably contained in a line from a familiar hymn:

"Hark how the Heavenly Anthem drowns all music but its own."

The anthem has established itself with choir more than with congregation. The serious fault of the anthem is that the words are too often slighted in favor of the melody. With some anthems, especially with those detestable bits of meaningless sentiment known as sacred songs, this fault of the indistinctness is a decided advantage. The supervision of the words, however, should be without mercy on the part of the parson. We have too many so-called sacred songs which run about like this:

"How long must I wander on life's dewy paths
While a sweet bird in blue heaven sings;
How long must sweet flowers in fair gardens bloom,
Before I get angelic wings?"

When your choir gets to that stage it is time to do something radical. It would be better for the choir to relieve the minister by chanting the notices. That is quite an idea. The congregation would get some benefit from that. It would not take long to get up a whole hymn of notices, say to a familiar tune like St. Anne:

"The Dorcas Guild will meet again:
On Thursday next at nine:
Please bring your sewing and your lunch,
Get some one else to 'jine.'"

In what celestial sphere were bishops born and under the spell of what divine harmonies were they brought to the Episcopal throne that they should be the targets toward which so many special anthems should be directed at the time of the visitation of the parish. Why should the simple people of the pews, who enjoy the plain anthems and chants of the choir, be overlooked, and the chief pastor, whose ears have rung daily with anthems, be thought the "occasion" for a tremendous outburst of song. I use the word "occasion" advisedly, for the bishop is not only a person and a very welcome one in our parishes, but, so great is all that is implied in the person, he becomes an occasion at the time of his visitation. Let us honor our bishop by giving him the music that we think is good enough for ourselves.

And now a word about vestments. It is quite the proper thing for the democratic people of this land to think of vestments as a bit of formalism, an assumption of righteousness or a badge of fashion or high-toned display. How far wide of the mark is such a judgment! There is no formalism in a proper uniform. The most delicious bit of real formalism, that might almost be called ritualism, was recently proposed in a church that would look upon vestments as idolatry. It was in the form of a general letter requesting that the men of the congregation wear frock coats and high hats to the morning service. If anything can beat that for unadulterated formalism and unbounded self-consciousness, I have yet to hear of it. But vestments for the choir are most democratic. The simple white cotta, symbolic of purity, removes every distinction between purple or fine linen and homespun. It opens the privileges of the choir to the poor and rich alike. It relegates to the realm of absolute unimportance every distinction of dress. The simple cap banishes the inharmonious display of millinery. As one wit said: "It places every head on an equal footing." The vestments are a badge of brotherhood and equality before God.

Give words of encouragement to your choir. It is not an easy matter for them to prepare to sing. Remember their constant faithfulness and let not an occasional lapse bring criticism to your lips. A few words of praise will bring cheer to their hearts and success to their efforts.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

HARLEM, the home of jazz, "blues," and night clubs—the Negro Heaven of fiction—is in reality a place where overcrowding, rent exploitation, and the lack of non-commercial recreational facilities is breaking up the family life of the Negro; where the number of mothers forced to abandon home duties for outside work is four to five times as great among Negroes as among the white population; where the proportion of delinquent and neglected children is four to six times as great among the Negro as among the white population of New York City.

These are some of the conditions revealed in a report on "Delinquent and Neglected Negro Children in New York City," published this month as the result of a seven months' investigation by a Joint Committee on Negro Child Study, representing some thirty social agencies, in cooperation with the National Urban League and the Women's City Club of New York. The report deals not alone with Harlem, but with the five boroughs of New York City and the conditions described relate to the several centers of congested Negro population.

The report points out that in the last ten years, through migrations from the South, the Negro population of New York has increased at a rate nearly four times as great as the increase in general population; that there are now in this city more than 200,000 Negroes; that largely as a result of enforced parental neglect and because of the lack of organized recreational facilities there has been since 1919 a considerable increase in the delinquency and neglect of Negro children as against a decrease in delinquency among white children.

* * *

"The Church must recognize the existence of industrial problems. It cannot remain aloof from labor. It must win its way into the hearts and lives of working people through a manifestation of deep interest in their material welfare as well as the spiritual welfare," declared President William Green of the American Federation of Labor.

He continued: "The membership of the American Federation of Labor wish very much that the Church might understand and know the true aims and purposes of organized labor. We invite a careful study and feel confident that such a study will lead to the conclusion that organization among working men and women is the inevitable development of industrial progress for protection against exploitation and oppression.

"It is not expected that the Church would take a position upon the question of the open-shop or the closed-shop or upon technical trade matters which occasionally cause dispute and controversy between employers and employees, but where would the Church go for an expression from labor upon moral, economic, social and humane questions if not to organized labor?

"Attempts to exercise economic control over working men and women have caused many bitter industrial conflicts. These conflicts have caused much suffering and engendered human hate. They have divided employers and employees into two hostile camps and have caused each group to feel that industrial strife represented a normal development of industry and that the differences between employer and employees were insurmountable.

"It is this development in the relationship between employers and employees that has caused men whose lives are devoted to the promotion of peace and understanding deep concern. They have felt that there is a common basis upon which the producing forces in industry can stand and a point of understanding that can be reached so that all can work toward the accomplishment of one common purpose.

"The conflicting claims and clashing interests between employers and employees call for the exercise of good judgment and self control. The exercise of these qualities is a primary requisite to the establishment and maintenance of industrial peace."

* * *

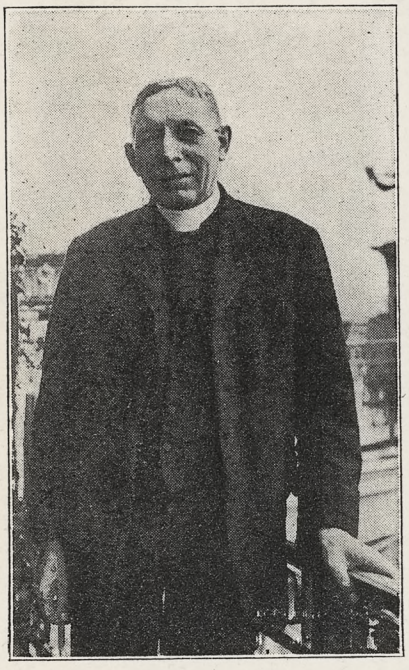
The Rev. John K. Shryock, one of our missionaries from China, now in this country, celebrated the Holy Communion recently in the Home for Incurables in Philadelphia. "Many of the patients," he says, "could not even hold the wafer, and all the cases were hopeless. I gave a talk on our mission work in China, but of course I said nothing about contributions. Yet after the service those poor people collected three dollars for mission work and gave it to me. With their consent I bought a stethoscope for a medical student in St. John's, Shanghai, who needed it.

"I don't know when anything has touched me so deeply as this unasked gift from these unfortunate people."

* * *

The Rev. C. T. Bridgeman in Jerusalem has had the good fortune to receive a box from Mowbray containing thirty-eight volumes, of the best and latest Anglican theological writings, without any hint of the donor. It is a fine addition to the library. Tourists returning from Jerusalem speak warmly of Mr. Bridgeman's kindness to them. He was just leaving, early in August, for six weeks in Cyprus where he was to take the English services on Mt. Troodos.

* * *

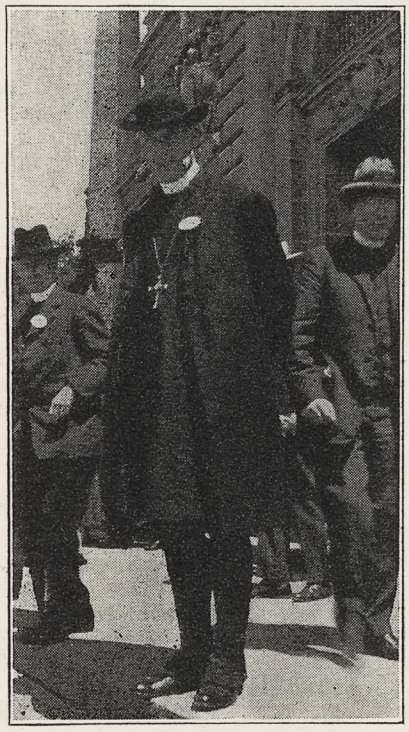


Some gentleman, speaking in Hartford, Connecticut, last week, suggested that churches give way to luncheon clubs (Rotary, Kiwanis, etc., etc.) The topic was further discussed from the pulpit of St. John's Church, Hartford, by the rector, the Rev. William T. Hooper, as follows:

"We are all, I know, well aware of the development during the last twenty-five years of business and professional men's groups known as luncheon clubs. These clubs, which are I believe entirely American in their origin, have come to have a place for good in almost every community in the country. And in spite of the satires hurled against them they mark a desire for fellowship and altruism which is an indication of genuine brotherhood among men. When however, a claim is made for these clubs that they be made a substitute for the church, a definite misunderstanding of both institutions has come about. A luncheon club in the very nature of its purpose cannot become a church. Nor can the church become a luncheon club.

"It is grievous and muddled thinking to claim for either the identical purpose and place of both. It is not my purpose to take too seriously the statement of one person on this topic. As an interested member of one such club, I am speaking, not without experience. I am well aware that such a club may take the place of church in this or that individual life and so far as it goes it is good. Philanthrophy and humanitarian ef-

(Continued on page 10)



Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

BISHOP BRENT
the Conference Chairman

REPRESENTATIVES OF THE ANGLICAN COMMUNION AN Representatives of the Episcopal Church in this photograph: Bishop Manning, Dr. William Sturgis. Bishop Temple of Manchester is at the right end

BISHOP HEADLAM of Gloucester, England

CHURCH LEADERS OF THE U
(Standing): W. O. Thompson, Presbyterian; Robert A. Ashworth, Baptist; John A. Marquis, Presbyterian.
(Seated): M. G. G. Scherer, Lutheran; A. J. Brown, Presbyterian; W. E. B ciples; Bishop Manning, Episcopalian; J. R. Stevenson, Presbyterian.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ION AND THE EASTERN ORTHODOX CHURCH AT LAUSANNE.
nning, Bishop Parsons, Bishop Perry, Rev. George Craig Stewart, Dean Washburn, t end of the long standing line; Bishop Gore is on Bishop Manning's left.

BISHOPS MANNING AND GORE
in a private conference

THE UNITED STATES AT LAUSANNE.
otist; Bishop Cannon, Methodist; Professor William Adams Brown, Presbyterian;

. E. Barton, Congregationalist; Bishop Brent, Episcopalian; Peter Ainslie, Disterian.

BISHOP TEMPLE
of Manchester, England

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

(Continued from page 7)

fort are among man's God-like impulses, but they are far from the the measure of his spiritual, intellectual or even physical capacity.

"Rather now would I raise the whole question of keeping clear before us the deeper functions of the church, as distinct of the estimable but far less fundamental power of the multitude of organizations we refer to as secular groups.

"Of the church I am sure all men would agree that it has answered in all the ages the deepest needs of human nature. In the succeeding centuries it has, now in strength, now in weakness, it has sanctified and hallowed life as nothing else has. In our own day and generation, the church, in its varied aspects and emphasis, still stands as the witness of the ultimate supremacy of the things of the spirit.

"It calls to children, youth and age, and bids them live life, vigorously and happily but it ever reminds them that life and purpose must be linked with something greater than themselves.

"I know full well the voice of the church at times seems discordant and without unit of power. Yet it is always possible in the end to discern the effort to declare 'The Word of the Lord.' To take all that life holds and consecrate it to a purpose which has a faith not less than the ultimate triumph of goodness over evil, the banishing of suffering through sacrifice and one day in life as we know it that God shall be all in all."

* * *

President Potts of St. John's University, Shanghai, has this to say of the Nationalist movement in China: "The Movement has stirred the people to such an extent that in the end it must lead to important consequences. The demand for racial equality which is rapidly spreading in eastern countries creates many problems not only in Christian missions but in international relations. If we look beyond the chaos and destruction and the violent anti-foreign spirit of the present period we can see we are entering upon a new era in history, and that one of its great problems will be the adjustments of relations between East and West. Will the new era be ushered in peaceably or will it involve the nations in a long struggle? Time only can show."

* * *

In order to meet the "already over organized" argument which rectors frequently put forth as a reason for not starting a chapter of the Daughters of the King, that Church society is urging rectors to transform their existing altar guild into a chapter. The members continue the altar work and add to it the personal service of the Daughters of the King.

MRS. A. A. GUTGESELL'S CHRISTMAS NOVELTY GIFT BOOK

Established 1912

If your Church or Society needs money, we offer

A Safe and Attractive Plan

Send your order for Sample Book NOW, as they are made up during the summer months.

The new 1927 Christmas Novelty Gift Book contains a beautiful line of colorful, engraved, hand colored and printed Christmas Cards, Enclosure Cards, Seals, Ribbons and Tissue Paper for Christmas Packages, also many Novelties—all arranged in attractive display.

Your Profit Is Fifty Percent

Originator and pioneer of this plan for Church and Benevolent Societies.

Sixteen years experience in getting out annual lines for this purpose.

Creative Artists and Designers of well known ability.

Our own perfectly equipped plant for manufacturing.

An organization of efficiency that maintains throughout the season a service nationally known for its promptness and reliability.

For information and testimonials address

MRS. A. A. GUTGESELL, Inc.
521-529 So. 7th St.,
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Equipped by
American Seating Company

Emmanuel Episcopal Church, La Grange, Illinois
MARSHALL & FOX AND JOHN N. TILTON, ASSOCIATE ARCHITECTS
THE BERTRAM-GROSVENOR-GOODHUE ASSOCIATES, CONSULTING ARCHITECTS

THE ART APPEAL in carved-wood furnishings—in pulpit and pews, in chancel railings, reading desk, rood screen, or reredos, is winning the general acceptance of thoughtful church men and women of every denomination. Our designers and artisans are fully prepared to provide chancel arrangement and church furnishings which through artistic design and execution contribute to worshipful expression and atmosphere now so eagerly sought in church building in America.

American Seating Company
1024 LYTTON BUILDING · CHICAGO, ILLINOIS
NEW YORK · BOSTON

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Those desiring further information may have it by writing the publicity chairman, Miss Julia N. McLean, Portland, Connecticut.

* * *

Bishop Seaman of North Texas consecrated St. Paul's Cathedral, Oklahoma City, on August 28th.

* * *

The Good Samaritan, Oak Park, Illinois, is to build a parish house to cost somewhere around $20,000. The clergyman in charge of this parish until recently was a member of the Northwest Mounted Police. Bet all the boys want to go to his Sunday School . . . , girls too, if he only wears that snappy uniform the Mounted Police alway wear in the movies.

* * *

The bishops of Montana, Faber and Fox, are spending this month ministering to the isolated and unattached Church folks in their district. Bishop Faber is in the southeast accompanied by the Rev. J. L. Craig, while Bishop Fox is in the southwest with the Rev. W. F. Lewis.

* * *

The Synod of the Province of Sewanee will meet in Trinity Church, Columbus, Georgia, October 25-27.

* * *

Of the entire enrollment of 408 colleges and universities in the United States last year, 39 per cent of the students were partially or wholly self-supporting, according to a survey of the Bureau of Education. The students of these institutions earned in this time $25,500,000.

* * *

They are discovering interesting things during the process of restoration at Westminster Abbey; bright decorations which some had considered an innovation of present day artists. They are at work on the gates of Henry VII chapel upon which are depicted in heraldry the claims that he put forward to the throne.

* * *

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew runs several summer camps for boys, not the least important of which is Camp Woodcock down in Kentucky. It has just closed a most successful year with an enrollment of forty-seven boys.

* * *

The Rev. Dr. Wilford Lash Robbins, dean of the General Theological Seminary from 1913 to 1916 died at his home in Bethel, Maine, on September 5th.

* * *

St. Paul's, Rochester, N. Y., was badly damaged when struck by lightning recently.

* * *

An old bell was unearthed, rusty and worn, at Christ Church, River Forest, Illinois. We ran a word here about it a bit back. They are fixing it up nicely and plan to hang it eventually in a new church tower. "Got the bell, now it is up to you folks to dig up the cash to build a tower to hang it in" is the general idea, if you know what I mean.

The Witness

All items for the news columns of the paper should be sent to 416 Lafayette Street,
New York City
except those of the far West which should be sent to—
Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens
619 S. Figueroa Street
Los Angeles, California
Correspondence in regard to Bundle Orders and Subscriptions should be sent to
6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago
Correspondence in regard to advertising should be addressed to the New York office.

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

A Church School in the lake district of high, healthful, Central Florida

The Cathedral School For Girls

Orlando, Florida

College Prepartory and General Courses.
State Accredited.

Music, Supervised Athletics.

Boarding and Day Pupils.

The Right Reverend Cameron Mann, D. D., President.
Miss Clara Burton, Principal.

Catalogue Sent Upon Request.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The board of religious education of Long Island is planning a dedication service for the opening of Church Schools. This has been developed along the lines suggested by the national department and it is felt that it will serve as an inspiration to teachers and pupils alike at the beginning of the Church year.

* * *

Preachers this Fall at St. Stephen's College include Bishop Atwood, former bishop of Arizona; Dr. McCune, rector of St. Ignatius, New York; Bishop Griswold of Chicago; Dr. Alexander Cummins of Poughkeepsie; Bishop Lloyd of New York; Dr. Murray Bartlett, president of Hobart College; Dean Sargant of Long Island; Father Huntington of O. H. C.; Rev. John Suter of "281"; Dean Lathrop of "281" and the Rev. C. E. McAllister, secretary of Newark.

* * *

Riga is the capital of Latvia, a republic in northern Europe. Bishop Staunton Batty, in charge of English Churches in Europe, writes of his last visit there:

"At Riga I was met by Mr. Harrison (English chaplain), and taken to the Legation where I was the guest of our Minister, Sir Tudor Vaughan. On the following day I preached and celebrated at 11 o'clock. At 5:30 I was due at the Cathedral where Archbishop John had arranged a special service. As we approached the Cathedral I was amazed to find the streets crowded and the square outside packed with people. The clergy of the Cathedral in their brilliant robes met at the foot of the steps and conducted me to the door where Archbishop John awaited me. The Cathedral was crowded from end to end and the service, which included two addresses from myself and the Archbishop, was of a most impressive character. At the close the Archbishop requested me to give the blessing and we then proceeded to leave the Cathedral. This took over twenty minutes as the crowd pressed around asking for my blessing. Outside we found a greater crowd than ever and in addition a host of cameras and cinematographs. The Archbishop insisted on taking my arm and I believe a photograph of us in this posture appeared in most of the English and Latvian papers. It was altogether a very wonderful experience. I have had many proofs of the friendliness of the Orthodox Church towards the Church of England, but I have never met with such cordiality as at Riga."

* * *

Bishop Creighton of Mexico, preaching at St. James, Long Island, the other evening had this to say: "Our usual idea of missions is to convert the heathen to the knowledge of the life and love of Jesus Christ: this is part of the propaganda of the Church, but another and greater part is to help those who have been seeking the Way to find the path into which we have ourselves been led, a fraternal gesture of assistance. I regard our work in Mexico in this way —part of our better relations with a great and friendly nation.

"We are in juxtaposition with Mexico, though there are many in the United States who deny the evidence of the map or refuse to recognize it. For some time our only con-

Money in Old Letters

Look in that old trunk up in the garret and send me all the old envelopes up to 1880. Do not remove the stamps from the envelopes. You keep the letters. I will pay highest prices.

GEO. P. HAKES, 290 Broadway
New York, N. Y.

SAINT MARY'S
Knoxville, Illinois

An accredited college preparatory school with special department for girls in the grades. Athletics. Music. Art. Expression. Secretarial and Business courses. For catalogue write to the Rector.

FREEHOLD
MILITARY SCHOOL
For 80 Select Young Boys

A school with the personal touch. Just enough military training to inculcate habits of obedience, promptness, orderliness, cleanliness and self-reliance. The students' comforts, pleasures and sports are as carefully considered as their mental training. Healthful location. 42 miles from N. Y., 66 miles from Phila. For catalog address. MAJOR CHAS M. DUNCAN, P. O. Box W, Freehold, N. J.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

THE NEW YORK TRAINING SCHOOL FOR DEACONESSES
419 West 110th St. New York

Prepares women for life service in the Church as Deaconesses, or as Trained Workers.
Two-year Academic course.
Field Work in both Religious Education and Social Service.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited, R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

NURSING COURSE
of 2½ years, leading to R. N. degree.
Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll Now.
Send for full information to
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas,
Newark, N. J.

Confirmation Instructions
by
Bishop Johnson
50c a copy $4.00 a dozen
WITNESS BOOKS

ROWLAND HALL
A School for Girls in the Wasatch Mountains
Salt Lake City, Utah
BISHOP MOULTON, Rector.

NASHOTAH HOUSE
Founded in 1842
Theological Seminary and Collegiate Department
For particulars address the dean
NASHOTAH HOUSE
Nashotah, Wisconsin

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City. City.

ORGAN FOR SALE
ESTEY 9 STOP: SALICIONAL 8, OBOE 8', St. Diapason 8', Harmonic Flute 4', Diapason 8', Dulciana 8', Melodia 8', Octave 4', Bourdon 16', Pneumatic Action, electric blower and motor. All in A1 condition. BARGAIN: $1,550.00 net cash as it stands. Also oak-brass pulpit, and oak communion rail at a sacrifice.
Moving into new and larger church. Communicate with The Church of the Holy Nativity, Garrison Ave. & Edgerton Road, Baltimore, Md.

ASSISTANT WANTED
FOR RAPIDLY DEVELOPING NEW ENGland parish; communicant strength 1,000; Church School 750. Adequate salary for right man. Liberal churchmanship. Box H., Witness, 416 Lafayette St., New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs, chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens. Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT
SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY
House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y. References required.

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., LTD., 28 Margaret Street, London, England. Craftsmen in Ecclesiastical Art. Woodwork, Metal Work, Vestments, Embroidery. Information and all particulars can be obtained through their distributor, Mr. Adrian A. Buck, 665 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London W. I., England.

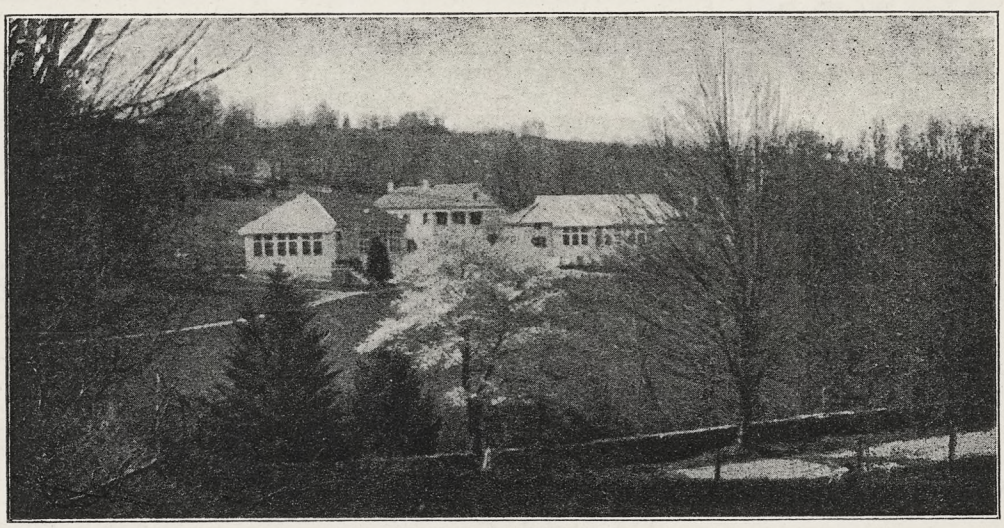
Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

tact with her has been through those who go out to engage in enterprises distinctly not altruistic. We should not condemn these men who are pioneers, who wrestle with and conquer the problems of the soil, who wring a new means of livelihood from hacienda and mountainside—theirs is the same spirit as that which conquered our own land for us, and when they succeed they ultimately benefit the whole land as well as themselves. These men sometimes look askance at us who are there through altruism: They have no time for friendly fraternal gestures.

"Mexico today is sensitive and self-conscious, applying herself indefatigably to the solution of her vast problems. One of the greatest is that of education and she is making fine progress with it. Over one and one-half million children are now in the public schools, being taught not only book knowledge, but everything that makes for good citizenship. There are schools for the blind, for the sick, for the crippled, reclaiming the wastage of the past as far as may be, there is a great Home for Indian children from which they can attend the best public schools. All these are making for uplift, and we who work there want our share in this. We sometimes find this difficult at present, but I believe that all the obstacles will be overcome.

"I have been registered for work in the Cathedral, with the English congregation, and in Tampico. I am also allowed to bring in from the country to the Cathedral classes for confirmation and candidates for ordination.

"Work with the Mexican is not without its odd features: for one thing there is almost no idea of time. To give you an example of this, I held a Confirmation in the Cathedral this spring, to which several village priests were to bring their classes. The service began at eleven in the morning: I confirmed one group, preached the sermon and had begun the communion service when a priest with another group appeared at the door. The confirmation service was said and the second group confirmed, and the second part of the service was again under way when a third group appeared! I really have no idea what time it was when that Confirmation was finally completed.



"The villages are poor to the last degree and have suffered to the utmost from raids and counter-attacks. One village has been three times destroyed, and three times those destitute people have rebuilt our Church before they have touched their own homes. There are three hundred inhabitants in this town, of which more than two hundred and fifty are of our Communion.

"Mexico has a great Indian prob-

25,000 CHURCHES USE
OSTERMOOR
CUSHIONS.
BUILT - NOT STUFFED.
Illustrated Booklet and Samples Free
Old Cushions renovated and recovered equal to new.
Ostermoor & Co., Inc., Dept. C, 114 Elizabeth St., N.Y

St. Albans The National Cathedral School for Boys
Thorough Preparation for Leading Universities. Splendid equipment, unexcelled location on Mt. St. Alban overlooking Washington. Eight years' course. Athletics for Every Boy.
Address: WILLIAM H. CHURCH
Head Master, Washington, D. C.

EARN MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH, SCHOOL OR SOCIETY
Sell 5c Chocolate Covered Bars
Highest Grade — 20 Varieties
30 days to pay.
Offer not good in West or South
For Particulars write
L. E. AUSTIN 601 W. 110th St.
New York City

THE MAIN BUILDING

WYKEHAM RISE
Washington, Connecticut

A Country School for Girls in the Foothills of the Berkshires. Mid-way between New York and Pittsfield.
Re-organized under a Board of Trustees as a non-profit sharing corporation.
College Preparatory and General Courses. Special courses in Music and Art.
Horse-back riding, Tennis, Golf, Archery and all Winter Sports.
The twenty-sixth year begins September twenty-ninth.

FANNY E. DAVIES, LL. A.
Head Mistress.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland.
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore.
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago.
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago.
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago.
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily, 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily, 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

lem, for which none can despise her that she is struggling with it. We in the United States have none, for we have annihilated ours. Mexico is making a conscientious effort to make of her Indians not wards but citizens, by raising their standards. This cannot be an insurmountable difficulty: God will not allow that humble and earnest effort to fail.

"Social service is our great medium of work now in Mexico. In Mexico City our consul has called the Casa del Sagrada Nombre "an oasis in a desert of woe." This institution takes in from the streets the homeless children, of which there are thousands in Mexico City alone, gives them an education and a hope of life. At night it brings in the waifs who have no bed but the stones of the street, no blanket but old newspapers: and the teachers are sleeping five in a room that there may be room for as many children as possible. All these children go regularly to San Jose every Sunday for instruction.

"Hooker School, of which you have all heard, is at present without religious service, as the chapel was reluctantly dismantled this spring. But with the advice of the authorities we are now planning to place a church so near the school that the pupils may go out into the street and of their own volition attend its services, this being the requirement of the government.

"In one school I found that the teacher's spelling lesson consisted of words like 'altar'—which of course called for some explanation when they were defined—and by the time the lesson was over the children had a pretty good idea of what those words meant.

"Mexico feels that for four hundred years she has paid the dominant church too much in money and sacrifice and blood, and the day of reckoning has come. Christ has never been presented to the Mexican people; he has been obscured by countless statues, blood-dripping, tortured, a Christ that never was.

"They are ready and eager for that

Clerical Changes

ASHE-EVEREST, Rev. W., resigns as rector of St. Luke's, Seattle, Washington, to be the rector of St. Clement's, Honolulu.

BAKER, Rev. Edwin P., resigns at Kemmerer, Wyoming to become rector of Christ Church, Douglas, Wyoming.

BAKER, Rev. Richard Henry Jr., resigns as assistant of St. James, Baton Rouge, La., to be the rector of St. John's, Waynesboro, Virginia.

DURRANT, Rev. Henry, resigns at Hyattsville, Maryland, to be the rector of St. Paul's, Louisville, Kentucky.

DuDOMANIE, Rev. Alfred L., resigns as rector of St. Mark's Waupaca, Wisconsin to take up work at St. John's Military School, Salina, Kansas.

JENKIN, Rev. Harold, has resigned as priest-in-charge of St. Andrew's, Syracuse and the Onondaga Indian Reservation, due to the loss of his voice. His present address is 172 Emma Street, Syracuse.

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York.
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.

Trinity Church, New York.
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York.
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York.
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, and 11 A. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp & Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — in a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

Christ who could say to fishermen and peasants and tax-collectors, 'Follow Me.' And Mexico will follow that Christ. God help us to speed the day!"

* * *

The two divisions of the Presbyterian Church of Scotland have started an order known as "Greatheart Order of World Friendship," with an official organ, Greatheart. The members are pledged to show friendship to foreigners, to learn all they can about other peoples and countries and to take an interest in the League of Nations. The order now has over 10,000 members in thirty countries.

* * *

The World Service Commission of the Methodist Church reports that nearly $100,000,000 is now held by eighteen denominations for ministerial pensions. Pensions paid last year totalled $8,014,737 to 27,261 pensioners. Denominations with funds of over a million dollars each are: Episcopal, $20,649,000; Northern Methodists, $19,000,000; Northern Baptists, $13,526,000; Northern Presbyterian, $12,348,000; United Church of Canada, $4,179,000; Congregationalists, $9,730,000; Lutherans (Mo. Synod), $2,700,000; Southern Presbyterians, $1,654,000; Disciples, $1,062,000; Lutherans, (Aug. Synod), $1,060,000.

* * *

A baby possum was recently found wandering about the grounds of Washington Cathedral—if possums wander; anyhow one was there, maybe hanging from a tree by his tail. Anyhow his likeness is to be carved in stone on one of the bases of the cathedral.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

Father—"Young man, I understand you have made advances to my daughter."

Young man—"Yes, I wasn't going to say anything about it, but since you have mentioned it, I wish you could get her to pay me back."

* * *

Customer—"No-no! I simply could not walk a step in shoes that pinch like that."

Assistant—"I'm sorry, madam, but I've shown you all our stock now. These shoes are the ones you were wearing when you came in."

* * *

Bride (at 1 a. m.)—"Oh, Jack, wake up! I can just feel there's a mouse in the room."

Husband (drowsily)—"Well, just feel there's a pussy cat, too, and go to sleep."

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, jurnalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

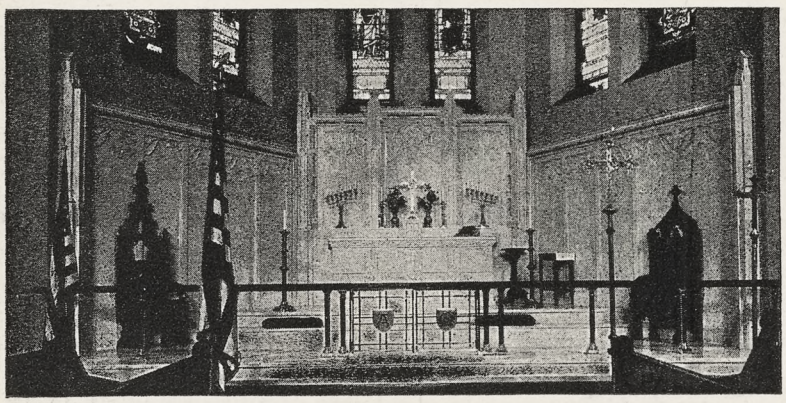
Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

START YOUR BUNDLE

A SERIES OF SEVEN ARTICLES BY BISHOP JOHNSON

The Teaching of the Church



A SERIES BY IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

The Prayer Book as Mystery Drama

START THE FIRST OF OCTOBER

Order a bundle of ten or more copies to start October first for six months, and we will send you free of charge a five dollar Auto Strop Safety Razor. Three cents a copy, payable quarterly. Sell for a nickel.

THE WITNESS

A Remodeled Sanctuary

An added beauty has been given to St. Paul's, Dubuque, by the new Altar and Appointments of the Sanctuary.

The Church Beautiful

Dignity and Beauty without extravagance, with plans to meet the needs of the Parish, and prices that are ALWAYS fair and consistent. This is the policy which is responsible for so many Episcopal Churches bringing to us their construction or equipment problems.

We are pleased to consult with the Clergy and Laity and Architects in charge of Church construction

SPAULDING & CO.

Representing The Gorham Co's Ecclesiastical Department

Michigan Avenue at Van Buren Street, Chicago

CHALICES
CANDLESTICKS
PROCESSIONAL
and ALTAR CROSSES
ALMS BASONS
STAINED GLASS and other Appointments suitable for Memorials and
Thank Offerings

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, SEPTEMBER 22, 1927

What the Church Teaches

A SERIES OF SEVEN ARTICLES

BY

BISHOP JOHNSON

The Prayer Book as Mystery Drama

BY

IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

Both Series Start In October

Your Attention is Called to the Last Page

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass ☒ mosaic ☒ church decoration ☒

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS

Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street

Designers of

HISTORICAL WINDOWS

Washington Memorial Chapel

Valley Forge, Pa.

Clerestory Windows

St. Thomas Church New York City

Stained Glass, Mural Decorations,

Glass Mosaics

In Selecting a Memorial to a Loved One

what could be a happier, a more fitting thought than a living memorial of Golden-Voiced

Deagan Tower Chimes

serving through the years to keep alive the faith of those who have it, and helping, as no other means can, to re-awaken childhood reverence in those who have strayed. Write for literature. Standard Sets $6,000 and up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 62 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER

and 4 & 5 Duncannon St: Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery

Wood

Stone

Metal and

Stained Glass

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.

Baltimore, Md.

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

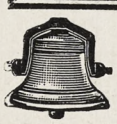
131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring

Inquiries given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.



174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403) (Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows

Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates on application to

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders

of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

R. GEISSLER, INC.,

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

EST. 1871

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W. HARRISON St. CHICAGO

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

151 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J.

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings

Gorgeous Combinations of Color

Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— OFFICE AND STUDIO —

221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

— PHOTOS, DESIGNS AND ESTIMATES UPON APPLICATION —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 5 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON BROTT BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

INFORMING THE PARISH MIND

The Evangelism of Printing

By

ELWOOD LINDSAY HAINES

IN THIS age when a glib reference to the latest book is a sure-fire way of opening a conversation, and the number of current magazines suggestively displayed on the library table is generally accepted as a gauge of intelligence, one is painfully amazed at the complacent ignorance of Church people about matters of vital importance to their Church. The vestryman who had never heard of the Nation-Wide Campaign may be a rare find, but he is a fair representative of our Church membership, so far as a working knowledge of the Church's Program, and current events in the Church's life are concerned. Ask the average layman what he thinks of the Lausanne Conference and he will answer with a blank stare. Ask him for his opinion of the League of Nations, and he will surprise you.

There are published in the Church, in addition to the official publications of the National Council, four weekly, three monthly and two quarterly magazines of a more or less general nature, some eighty-five diocesan papers, and twenty-five or more periodicals devoted to special interests in the Church. In addition to these, the leading Anglican Church publications are available through our Church publishing houses. Yet, in many a parish of 100-500 communicants, the regular readers of any of these publications, with the exception of diocesan papers that are distributed gratis, may be counted on one's fingers, with a few digits to spare. What is wrong? Why must Church papers continue to operate at a loss, and send out frantic financial appeals? Surely it is not because people have no interest in the affairs of their Church, comparable, let us say, to their interest in making their homes attractive, or the raising of their children. Rather, it is because they have never had it put up to them, and in a large measure do not know that such informational and inspirational agencies as THE WITNESS, etc. exist. If the informed mind naturally precedes the awakened conscience, it becomes the business of every parish priest to put before the eyes, and even into the hands of his people some one or more of the splendid publications of the Church.

There are several effective methods of securing recognition for current Church reading matter in the parish. Sample copies placed conspicuously on the parish-house table, occasional mention from the chancel of some helpful article in a Church magazine, frequent quotations therefrom in the parish paper, and the listing in the parish paper now and then of all Church publications, with the necessary subscriptional information, encouraging subscribers within the parish to pass on their copies to other parishioners when they are through with them—these are only a few of the means of arousing a general desire to take advantage of the provided ways of informing the mind with regard to the Church. Such an educational movement must of course be initiated by the Rector himself. He should "start the ball rolling," and leave it to his publicity committee, department of religious education, or a parochial representative for Church magazines to keep it in steady progress, aided and abetted by his unflagging encouragement.

But this alone may not be sufficient. In one parish, a retired clergyman of great charm and considerable wisdom was secured for a house-to-house canvass for WITNESS subscriptions, and succeeded in obtaining sixty-five with very little difficulty. Doubtless there are numbers of men who would be glad to do this sort of thing, and rightly done, it represents a real ministry. It introduces a new clerical face and voice into the home, which in itself, may be extremely valuable. Enlisting boys to sell the weekly editions at the door following the Church services, or having copies on sale on the vestibule table, with a convenient receptacle there for the purchase money — either of these methods has proven effective. It has been found that the sale is vastly encouraged by reference being made by the Rector in his announcements to some helpful article in the current number, with the reminder that copies may be purchased after the service. A rare opportunity for the securing of subscriptions, with a profit allowed for organizations undertaking to do so, is afforded by parish suppers and bazaars.

Finally, those rectors who are prompt to recognize the importance of the printed word will be missionaries in behalf of the official publications of the Church. The General Church Program is fascinating reading, and should be purchased and read by every vestryman. The Church at Work should not be left dusty and desolate on the free literature table in the church, but should, somehow, be actually placed in every home. The Spirit of Missions is beyond question the finest missionary magazine published, and is the official voice of the National Council. As such, it has a message for everyone in the parish bounds.

Can we afford to be indifferently enduring toward ignorance, when solutions are in such easy reach? Must we not, of necessity, become "evangels of the printed word," that the wills of our people may become enlisted in winning the world.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

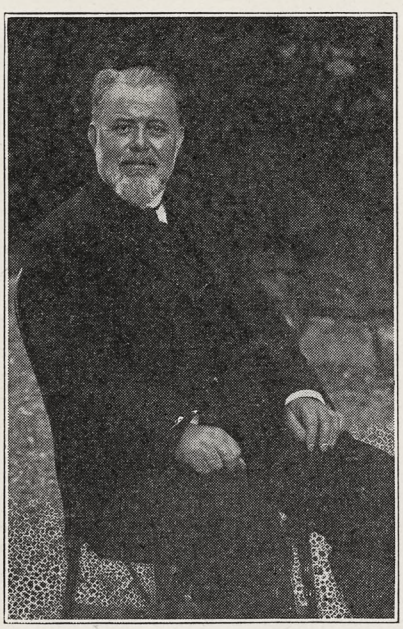
WHERE CONFERENCE SESSIONS WERE HELD

WORLD CONFERENCE ON FAITH AND ORDER

The Achievements at Lausanne

By

REV. CHARLES L. STREET



THE most important sessions of the world conference came on the closing days when the reports of the several sections were presented to the whole body of delegates for final approval. First the preamble, written largely by Bishop Brent, was adopted. This document, the platform of the conference, reads as follows:

We, the representatives of many Christian communions throughout the world, assembled to consider under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, the things wherein we agree and the things we differ, receive the following series of reports as containing subject matter for the consideration of our respective churches in their common search for unity.

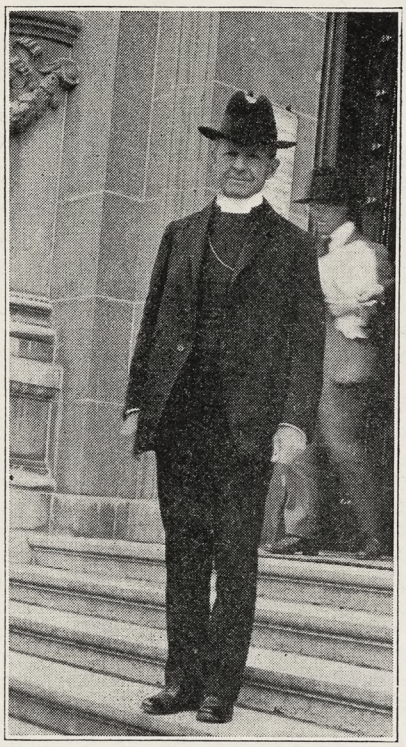
"This is a conference summoned to consider matters of faith and order. It is emphatically not attempting to define the conditions of future reunion. Its object is to register the apparent level of fundamental agreements within the conference and the grave points of disagreement remaining; also to suggest certain lines of thought which may in the future tend to a fuller measure of agreement.

CAREFUL PREPARATION

"Each subject on the agenda was first discussed in plenary session. It was then committed to one of the sections, of more than one hundred members each, into which the whole conference was divided. The report, after full discussion in subsections, was finally drawn up and adopted unanimously or by a large majority vote by the section to which it had been committed. It was twice presented for further discussion to a plenary session of the conference when it was referred to the churches in its present form.

BISHOP GERMANOS
Greek Bishop in England

"Though we recognize the reports to be neither exhaustive nor in all details satisfactory to every member of the conference, we submit them to the churches for that deliberate consideration which could not be given in the brief period of our sessions.



"We thank God and rejoice over agreements reached; upon our agreements we build. Where the reports record differences, we call upon the Christian world to an earnest reconsideration of the conflicting opinions now held, and a strenuous endeavor to reach the truth as it is in God's mind, which should be the foundation of the church's unity.

WILLS UNITY

"God wills unity. Our presence in this conference bears testimony to our desire to bend our wills to His. However we may justify the beginnings of disunion, we lament its continuance and henceforth must labor, in penitence and faith, to build up our broken walls.

"God's Spirit has been in our midst. It was He who called us hither. His presence has been manifest in our worship, our deliberations and our

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

BISHOP PERRY
of Rhode Island, at Lausanne

whole fellowship. He has discovered us to one another. He has enlarged our horizons, quickened our understanding, and enlivened our hope. We have dared and God has justified our daring. We can never be the same again. Our deep thankfulness must find expression in sustained endeavor to share the visions vouchsafed us here with those smaller home groups where our lot is cast.

TOWARD ONE GOAL

"More than half the world is waiting for the Gospel. At home and abroad sad multitudes are turning away in bewilderment from the church because of its corporate feebleness. Our missions count that as a necessity which we are inclined to look on as a luxury. Already the mission field is impatiently revolting from the divisions of the Western Church to make bold adventure for unity in its own right. We of the churches represented in this conference cannot allow our spiritual children to outpace us. We must gird ourselves to the task, the early beginnings of which God has so richly blessed and labor side by side with the Christians who are working for indigenous churches until our common goal is reached.

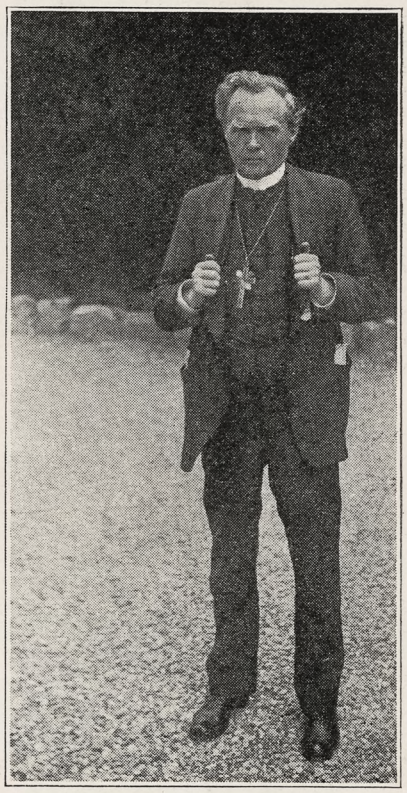
"Some of us, pioneers in this undertaking, have grown old in our search for unity. It is to youth that we look to take the torch of unity. We men have carried it too much alone through many years. The women henceforth should be accorded their share of responsibility. And so the whole church will be enabled to do that which no section can hope to perform.

"It was God's clear call that gathered us. With faith stimulated by His guidance to us here, we move forward."

The value of the conference must be judged in terms of the conference's purpose as stated in this preamble. The purpose was "emphatically not" to "define the conditions of future reunion" but "to register the apparent level of fundamental agreements within the conference, and the grave points of disagreement remaining."

On the part of everyone at the conference there was manifested an eager desire for unity and yet it was seen by all that no permanent unity could be founded on any basis which disregarded important differences in belief. How great these fundamental differences are the conference showed very clearly. Yet it also showed that a clear statement of differences and a sincere desire on the part of everyone to understand the viewpoint of everyone else is the first step toward reconciliation.

FELLOWSHIP



One of the important results was the fellowship and mutual understanding which developed out of the three weeks of living and working together. Many people have gone home from Lausanne with a new sense of the importance of a united Church and a new understanding, and regard for, Christians of other communions. The significance of the conference reports can only be appreciated when it is remembered that they represent the coming together to a common mind of individuals of vastly different beliefs.

THE CALL TO UNITY

The first topic, The Call to Unity, was not assigned to a special section for study but a statement covering it was incorporated in the preamble.

MESSAGE OF THE CHURCH

The report on the second topic states that "the message of the Church to the world is and always must remain in the Gospel of Jesus Christ." It goes on to say that the Gospel "is more than a philosophical theory; more than a theological system; more than a program for material betterment. The Gospel is rather the gift of a new world from God to this old world of sin and death." It is "the sure source of power for social regeneration. It proclaims the only way by which humanity can escape from those class and race hatreds which devastate society at present, into the enjoyment of national well-being and international friendship and peace."

BISHOP SOEDERBLOM of Upsala, at Lausanne

NATURE OF THE CHURCH

The report of the Nature of the Church, in the writing of which Bishop Temple of Manchester had a large part, states that the "Church of the Living God" is one and "is constituted by His will, not by the will or consent or beliefs of men." It enumerates among the marks of the Church on earth the acknowledgement of the word of God as given in Holy Scripture, the observance of the Sacraments, and a ministry for the pastoral office, the preaching of the Word, and the administration of the Sacraments. The report then points out how different churches differ in their interpretation of these points.

COMMON CONFESSION

The report on the Church's Common Confession of Faith accepts the Apostles' Creed and the Nicene Creed and expresses the conviction that the Holy Spirit may enable the Church to express the truths of revelation in other forms "as new problems may from time to time demand."

THE MINISTRY

The last three subjects turned out to be the most difficult and the ones which laid themselves open to the most misunderstanding and controversy. Section five, whose subject was the ministry, went exhaustively into the theories of the ministries represented at the conference. The report states the points of agreement and the points of difference at length. After speaking of the episcopal, the presbyteral and the congregational systems the report says: "We therefore recognize that these several elements must all, under conditions which require further study, have an appropriate place in the order of life of a reunited Church."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Sacraments

In the sixth report the conference "testifies to the fact that the Christian world gives evidence of an increasing sense of the significance and value of the sacraments" and expresses the belief that "this movement should be fostered and guided as a means of deepening the life and experience of the churches." At the same time the fact is recognized "that in the gifts of His grace God is not limited by His own Sacraments." The importance of Baptism and the Holy Communion is stressed and the different views on these two sacraments are set forth.

Unity

The last subject, The Unity of Christendom and the relation thereto of existing Churches, proved to be the most difficult of all. It did not come up for final discussion until the last session, and as agreement on it did not seem likely it was received and referred to the Continuation Committee which later appointed a special committee to consider it.

Results

Four significant things seem to be established for the Christian Church as a result of these reports. First, there was explicit recognition of the importance of agreement on central doctrines. There are many who say that the important thing about Christianity is its spirit and that it does not matter what you believe as long as your heart is in the right place. But clearly if Christians are to work together in a united Church the spirit of Christianity must be stated in terms which can be agreed upon and which can be preached.

Second, there was explicit recognition of Jesus Christ, not simply as a great ethical teacher, but as Lord and Saviour. The interpretation of Christianity as a vague humanitarianism has been much in fashion of late. This corporate acknowledgement of the divinity of Christ may serve to reawaken the popular mind to the importance of this fundamental doctrine of the Christian religion. Third, there was the acceptance on the part of the conference of the Apostles' Creed and the Nicene Creed. Fourth, there was the acceptance of the conception of the Church as One and as a divine institution, and the acknowledgement of the importance of a ministry and sacraments. As to just what is meant by ministry and sacraments there is vast difference of opinion, but to have them explicitly recognized as essential parts of the Church is a distinct gain.

The Official Position

In the official words of the conference the reports of these several committees were not "accepted" or "approved," but were "received" to be passed on to the churches for further study and consideration. The work that is to come will be the most important part of the work of the Lausanne Conference. We will be able to call it a success only insofar as its spirit works its way through the churches and its accomplishments and its statements are made the subject of study and the object of prayer by the rank and file of our church people. If this is done, by the time the next conference meets there will have been laid a strong foundation for further understanding, and another onward step toward the realization of a united Christianity.

A Smoke Screen

The Sacco-Vanzetti Case

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

AS A PEOPLE we seem to have reduced religion to a sentimental flirtation with divine love and politics to an emotional hysteria over things that are of no consequence.

We love to sing hymns that we do not really mean and to support causes that do not really reflect our convictions.

Nicholas Murray Butler is delivering a series of articles on the "Lost Art of Thinking" and one hopes that he will succeed in recalling this departed muse.

Now that the Boston anarchists have been tried and executed there should be time for a little honest reflection. There are two separate questions before the American people in this case. The first is whether the two men were guilty or not guilty.

We have great respect for Professor Frankfurter's sincerity and ability and we are inclined to believe that certain legal technicalities of the law may have been violated. We are not sure of this because we have not read the record, and even if we had we doubt whether the judge, the governor and the three able and disinterested gentlemen were really guilty of judicial murder. It is almost unbelievable.

It is fair to assume that they all wanted to be just and that they were sincere in their findings. At any rate my sympathies were with Governor Fuller. I do not believe that any governor should be placed in such a trying position. The executive pardoning power is a relic descending from the divine rights of rulers, which divine right unfortunately does not bestow upon them expert judicial ability.

The pressure upon Governor Fuller was extremely unfair, and he met the situation in a courageous and fair minded way.

Having appointed his commission he was justified in abiding by their findings. It is always a grievous thing if any man is executed without a fair and impartial trial but it is one of the limitations of human conduct that such things may happen.

Except for the possibility of a bias in Judge Thayer's charge, which has usually been assumed, and has not been demonstrated, I believe that the men were probably guilty, although it is not capable of mathematical proof.

At the same time I sympathize with the protest of those who felt that justice had not been done.

But the Sacco-Vanzetti case was something more than the execution of two men for a crime which they may or may not have committed. It was the occasion for a smoke screen on the part of certain lawless elements against the courts and against legal procedure.

It seems strange that a group which has never hesitated to put innocent people to death without the form of judicial action should yell their heads off when some of their own number are executed.

Their interest in the lives of Sacco

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

and Vanzetti was subordinate to their interest in discrediting lawful government. In a way it was hypocritical.

In the first place the effort to terrorize American courts by threats and riots were not only futile; they were injurious to the cause of those very men in whose interest they were attempted.

To blow up the house of the mayor of Baltimore because a judge in Massachusetts has rendered a questionable verdict is of course a far more outrageous crime than the execution of these two men, and makes one wonder whether a mad dog is not more dangerous to society than a merely vicious one, and whether these two men were not far more dangerous to society because they were anarchists than they could possibly have been if they were guilty of murder. I have long since felt that the average anarchist is the kind of a bigot who claims the right to injure his fellow men with impunity and then sets himself up as a martyr when society treats him with the same dose.

I sincerely believe in free speech and have no sympathy with those misguided patriots who would suppress it; but I believe that a riotous crowd of anarchists is about as deserving of severity as any other group of ravenous beasts; not because one would suppress their opinions but because law exists to protect society from their violence.

Whatever sympathy one may feel for the two prisoners as to their guilt there is no question but that they were representatives of the most dangerous enemy of American institutions; viz, the kind of people who believe in killing their fellow men if they disagree with them.

I hold no brief for the privileged classes. They are, and always have been, unreasonable enough, God knows. But they are not dangerous lunatics and they do permit some twenty million people in the United States to own automobiles; whereas the other group would not permit the intelligentsia to walk on two legs, so intolerant is their venom.

As I have said I prefer a vicious dog to a mad one, because as a rule the former will let you alone if you let him alone; whereas a mad dog will bite anybody, perfectly indifferent to the misery that they cause.

The unfortunate phase of this case is the fatuous credulity of the intelligentsia who believe that the smoke screen rolled up in this particular case had any mercy toward human life hidden behind its ominous gloom.

One wonders which is the greater danger to our country; that our courts will execute prisoners unfairly in any great numbers, or that some day America, like France and Russia, will learn that people who hate venomously can never govern wisely whether they are partisans of the privilege classes or the third international.

One wishes that Christians could realize that the Church has ceased to be universal, but that atheistic anarchy realizes the value of unity as the basis of destroying that which they are utterly incapable of building. You cannot build a fraternity among men on a vacuum or a negation.

Let's Know

ON FISHING

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

I RETURN to my column in THE WITNESS after a summer dedicated chiefly to fishing. Some people smile down good-humoredly on fishing as a lazy-man's recreation. They picture him under a hot sun dozing in the back of a boat, with a long bamboo pole projected over slimy water, while a few large-eyed fish casually eat away at his worms. Such poor, misguided urbanites have learned all their fishing from the newspaper comics. They have never known the exhiliration of wading against the current of a swift-flowing stream, whipping the pools with a spangled fly in eager anticipation of the quick splash, the sharp strike, the taut line, the curved rod, and the skillful play to bring to net the gamiest little swimmer in the watery kingdom. The lazy man had better let it alone.

Doubtless it was more than coincidence that our Lord drew his leading apostles from the ranks of fishermen in the Sea of Galilee. They were quite sure to be men of patience, perseverance, and dependability. The old fiction which identifies lies with fish stories is a wicked libel. A real fisherman is a sportsman and he plays the game. If you want to know what a man is made of, spend a few days with him on a fishing trip.

It's time we revised our patronizing attitude toward the apostles which paints them as simple-minded, ignorant fishermen. Two thousand years ago the fishing industry in the Sea of Galilee offered an occupation of no small importance. Its waters were famous all over the Roman Empire for the fine quality of the fish produced. It was an organized business. The fish were shipped alive to be served even at the emperor's table and there were also pickling factories on the shore of Galilee to preserve them for sale on a slower market. Some twenty-four different species were found in that lake alone. They were taken with a drag-net, a hand-net, or a hook and line. The fishermen worked in groups—a kind of primitive corporation. They had business dealings in all probability with every part of the Roman world. Josephus speaks of 330 fishing boats in this lake which measured in its greatest dimensions thirteen by eight miles. To be a successful fisherman under such circumstances meant that a man had to be enterprising, industrious, keen-witted, able not only to catch fish but to transact business with many kinds of men and, perhaps, in several dialects. Our Lord didn't pick fishermen because they were all He could get. He picked them because they were the kind of men He wanted. It was out of a large number of disciples that the Twelve were selected and five of them came from the one city of Bethsaida, which is a Hebrew name meaning the "House of Fish."

All this is written, not in defense of my summer vacation, for I enjoyed it and that suffices. Neither is it written in the hope that everyone who reads it will promptly turn fisherman, for our good waters are already being fished too hard. But it is written in honor of the Apostles who were far more competent men than most people seem to realize. We have been so anxious to disconnect the Gospel from the highbrows that we have reduced the Apostles to rather uninspiring proportions. I think if they were here today, the Church would have reason to be proud of them.

CUSHIONED PEWS

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

A book to stimulate a more active Christianity.

$1.75 a Copy

WITNESS BOOKS

6140 Cottage Grove Ave.

Chicago

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

DEAN INGE DELIVERS A LECTURE

On Spiritual Religion

Edited by

A. MANBY LLOYD

THIS page is inteded to be impartial so if one week you read about Anglo-Catholics or the Biretta Brigade, do not be surprised to read the next of Breezy Bishops and Gloomy Deans, who seem on the surface to be nothing more than Quakers in leggings.

Last week the Dean of St. Paul's published in one of our secular papers what appears to be his views on the priesthood. He left the ordinary secular reader in no sort of doubt as to what he understood a "priest" to be—namely, a person for whom the Lord Christ has no use. He tells us that no "intermediaries" are needed between God and His people; that Christ "founded no new religion, no organized Church, no priest."

* * *

Again Dean Inge had things to say at the annual conference of Modern Churchmen which recently met at Birmingham. Speaking on "The Spiritual Nature of the Christian Religion" he said that we were living at the end of perhaps the most extraordinary epoch in human history, a period of social, political, economic, and intellectual change to which, he thought, there was no parallel. It had been marked especially by two characteristics—the advance of applied science and a vast increase of wealth and population. These developments had given the age a somewhat materialistic tone, for there had been no corresponding advance either in art or in spiritual life. Western society had been considerably dislocated; "déraciné" explained the Dean, for the convenience of those who spoke a broader language than the people of these isles. As might be expected, they heard some crying out that they wanted a new religion. Others said they wanted the old religion; while yet a third party said they wanted no religion at all. The Dean gave his answers to the first and second propositions, and said revivals were shallow things. They were strong only when they disguised a new inspiration as antiquarianism, and strove to restore something that never existed. "He who really looks back," said the Dean, in a remarkable passage, "is like Lot's wife. The deserts of theology are strewn with these melancholy monuments."

* * *

As for the fool who said in his heart, "There is no God," let him go to Moscow; it would prepare him for the worst that might befall him in another life. The Kingdom of Heaven was like a householder, who brought out of his treasure things new and old; not so much some things that were new and other things that were old as new things that were old before the world was, and old things that still bore new fruits and flowers. There was no Scripture against pouring the old wine into new bottles.

DEAN INGE

What did they mean by Christianity? asked the Dean. They must try to be clear about the answer to this question. Nor could they hope to answer it without a very broad view of the course of history during the last 2,000 years. It was not easy to disentangle the essential from the accidental, because religion, like some chemical substances, was never found pure, and no great Church presented or could present the pure gold without much alloy. The subjective convictions of the individual must affect his judgment as to what the religion of Christ was meant and ought to be.

There might be a few present who doubted whether a universal and spiritual religion could be found in the teaching of the earthly Christ. He could not argue the question there, but he was convinced that we knew a great deal about Jesus of Nazareth; that the main character of His revelation stood out strong and clear, and that it was in broad outline very much what they had all been taught to believe. The Gospel was a religion of moral redemption, not of social reform. Social legislation lay simply outside the range of Christ's teaching. Those things were left by Him to the law of love.

* * *

Persecution, continued the Dean, seldom destroyed a religion, but it narrowed and hardened it. He had no wish to deliver an anti-Roman polemic. For the political philosopher the Roman Church was perhaps the most interesting phenomenon in history. Its worst side was the political, its best was its wonderful traditional system of mind-cure developed empirically through the gathered experience of the confessional. Catholicism apart from its imperialism, was best understood as an art. Protestantism was a revolt against a Church stifled by formalism and unethical legalism. It proclaimed the freedom of the individual conscience and the right of immediate access to God. It was thus in part a return to the original Gospel. The shifting of the center of gravity in religion from authority to experience ushered in a new period in which both Protestanism and Mysticism must play a prominent part. The chief seat of authority in religion would be no longer the Church nor the Bible, but the testimony of the Holy Spirit, the Inner Light, interpreting the teaching of the New Testament. The Church of the future would have its center in Jesus Christ but in a living and self-revealing Christ, with a fresh message for each generation. Such was the faith of all "Modern Churchmen." But they had to remember that spiritual religion was the most difficult, as it was the highest kind of religion to live by. The spiritual Christian needed to be a very earnest and good man living under strict self-discipline, and testing all his thoughts, words and actions by the obedience of Christ. If he failed to do that he would be a dilettante and the Kingdom of God was not brought any nearer by dilettantes.

* * *

The Bishop of Birmingham, in welcoming the conference to the city referred to the succession of great leaders and their activities in Birmingham in the past. For the greater part of the time, he said, the Church of England was dull, lethargic, and often retrograde, but he thought that in modern times a change had come about. He looked forward to a future in which the Church

(Continued on page 15)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

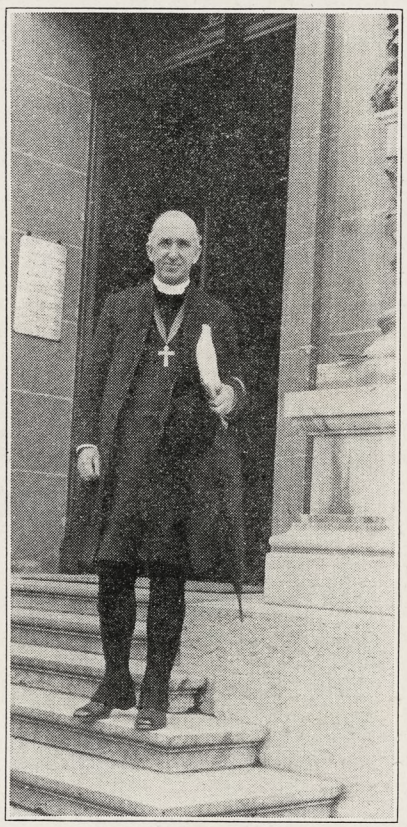
NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

A CONFERENCE of bishops interested in the development of the Church's rural work is being held at Columbus, Ohio, (September 20-23 inclusive). The conference, unique in the annals of the Episcopal Church is being organized under the leadership of Bishop George W. Davenport and the secretary of the division for rural work of the National Council.



The program of the conference includes the following subjects and leaders—The Importance of Rural America, Dr. Vivian; The Episcopal Church and Rural America, Rev. Dr. M. A. Dawber; Conference by Dr. Dawber; Educating and Arousing the Church to the Value of Rural Work, Bishop Rogers; Enlisting and Training Men for the Rural Ministry, Bishop McDowell; Increasing the Efficiency of the Clergy Now in Village and Country, Bishop Green; The Use of Laity in Country Work, Bishop Darst; Methods of Carrying on Rural Work in Diocese, County and Parish, Bishop Ferris; The Church and Country Life Movements, Mr. C. J. Galpin; Social Service in Village and Country, Bishop Gray; Religious Education in Village and Country, Bishop Strider.

The subjects for discussion cover some of the most important phases and problems of rural church work. The bishops chosen to lead the discussions represent practically every section of the United States east of the Mississippi and are particularly interested in the subjects assigned them. Dr. Vivian is head of the College of Agriculture of Ohio State University, a Churchman, a pleasing speaker, and vitally concerned with American rural life. The Rev. M. A. Dawber is head of the Department for Rural Work of the Methodist Church and a regular and welcome lecturer at the summer schools for rural clergy. Mr. C. J. Galpin is a member of the United States Department of Agriculture, a Churchman, and lecturer at the school for rural clergy. Mr. Galpin will discuss the Church and rural America from a national standpoint.

The conference is housed and the discussions held in the Athletic Club of Columbus, one of the finest clubs for men in the Middle West.

* * *

Twins were born to a mother in a town near Sagada a few weeks ago and the mother died. It is a custom to put to death a baby whose mother dies, and twins are looked upon as omens of misfortune. Among the Igorots generally, one is sacrificed, the stronger, since it is the "anito" or spirit child. In this case, since the mother died, both babies were to go too. But along came a Christian Igorot who knew this was wrong and also knew a way to save them. He put the babies into a milk-box and brought them to Sagada, to the Sisters at the Girls' School. They were taken to the Dispensary and cared for and baptized. One of them later fell ill and died but the other lives.

BISHOP OF HONDURAS
A Delegate at Lausanne

* * *

The 1927 session of the Sewanee Summer Training School closed with a bit of ceremonial, which gave symbolic expression to the aim of the school. On the stage of the hall in which the closing meeting was held stood a white cross, a replica of the memorial cross on the brow of the mountain at Sewanee. Before the cross was set a lighted candle. Bishop Green of Mississippi, director of the adult division, wearing his Episcopal vestments, lit his candle from the light before the cross, and in turn the deans of the school's departments kindled their light from his. The members of the school, coming forward, lit their candles from those of the deans, and passed silently out of the hall. Before the kindling of the lights, the Bishop had given this charge to the members of the school:

"Dearly beloved, who have sojourned here on this mountain, take with you hence that which you have received here. Teach those who are led by you the song of faith which you have learned here. Kindle in their hearts the light that has shined upon you here. And may the God of Peace who brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus Christ, the great shepherd of the sheep, make you perfect in every good work to do His will, working in you that which is well-pleasing in His sight; through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen."

The closing ceremonial rang true to the spirit which manifested itself throughout the whole of the Sewanee Summer Training School this year. In earnestness of purpose, in faithfulness of work, in responsiveness to the call to service, in numbers, in the ability of the teaching staff, the school reached this year its highwater mark. This has come as the result of eighteen years of development, of careful planning, and of hard work on the part of the leaders of the school.

The official statistics are as follows:

The school continued in session for four weeks, from July 26th to August 24th. The Young People's Division opened July 26th and closed August 9th. The Adult Division and the School of the Prophets, meeting simultaneously, opened on August 10th

The Witness

All items for the news columns of the paper should be sent to

416 Lafayette Street,
New York City

except those of the far West which should be sent to—

Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens
619 S. Figueroa Street
Los Angeles, California

Correspondence in regard to Bundle Orders and Subscriptions should be sent to

6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

Correspondence in regard to advertising should be addressed to the New York office.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

and closed on August 24th. The total number of students, faculty, and staff registered in the Young People's Division was 194; in the Adult Division and School of the Prophets was 283; a total of 477. In addition there were seventy-five visitors making a grand total of about 552.

One of the important gatherings of the Summer School is always the annual Rally of the "Grand Confederated Fellowship of the Contributory Tribes of the Southland," of which the constituent units are composed of the people from the several Southern States, and each bears an equally grandiloquent title. That of South Carolina, for instance, is "The Grand Uncontaminated, Unconciliated, and Unreconstructed Society of Secessionists of South Carolina." When the Tribes assemble, each answers the roll call with its own song, yell, and high sign, and offers its own special gift. Underneath the surface of burlesque there is always a more serious purpose, and the humor of the roll-call modulates into a more serious note as the program develops, until finally the climax is reached with the recitation of pledge to the Flag of America and to the Cross of Christ, with benediction from the senior Bishop present.

This year, the gifts offered by the Tribes were largely gifts of life. Louisiana offered a girl about to enter the mountain mission field, and a boy about to enter the theological seminary. Tennessee offered two of its girls who have given themselves to educational service. South Carolina offered a son and a daughter of that state, both of them missionaries on furlough from China. Three members of the faculty of the School of the Prophets—a Bishop, a Doctor of Divinity and a Doctor of Philosophy, enacted a pageant prophesying the reconciliation and the co-operation of Science and Religion.

* * *

Rev. Cuthbert O. S. Kearton, rector of Grace Church, Waterford, New York, died on September 6th following an illness of six weeks. He had been the rector of Holy Innocents, Albany; Trinity, Geneva, New York; Trinity, Marshall, Michigan and Grace, Cherry Valley, New York.

* * *

Requests come from rectors in college towns for us to print their names and addresses so that parents and pastors may notify them of young people entering colleges in their neighborhood. It is obviously impossible for us to print them all. We do, however, urge both parents and rectors to notify student pastors of these young folks entering their folds. Pages 182-187 in the Living Church Annual has the names and addresses of all the student pastors.

* * *

Wouldn't you like to dig into a child's head and discover really why he admires and dislikes certain things. Why, for instance, does my son, six, enthuse so over Tom Mix and Buck Jones? I have a hunch that he really admires their horses rather than the men, but that is just

RAISE MONEY ECONOMICALLY

Does your church need money for a new building, an addition, or to pay an old debt? Employ the services of an experienced, successful firm like Hedrick, Marts and Lundy. Millions have been raised for churches of many denominations.

Latest large effort directed by members of this firm was the successful campaign ending last May for $15,000,000 for the Presbyterian Pension Fund.

You plan the building and tell us how much money you need. We do the rest.

"Financing Philanthropy" quarterly paper on finance, free on request

HEDRICK, MARTS & LUNDY, Inc.

Member Joint Board of Campaign Counsel and Planning

527 Fifth Avenue - - New York

Protection Against the Future

is a perfectly normal desire, born of wisdom. By insurance we can provide somewhat adequately against leaving our dependents in immediate need. How adequately, depends upon the current cost and its relation to our financial abilities.

The insurance, in all standard forms, offered by this corporation, is issued at net rates, stripped of all loading. In addition, refunds are paid, further reducing the cost. Our facilities are cordially offered to clergymen and their families and to lay-workers and their families. Inquiries are invited. We have no agents.

—o—

All correspondence should be addressed to

The Church Life Insurance Corporation

14 Wall Street - - - - New York

(Operated under the supervision of the Trustees of the Church Pension Fund).

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

a wild guess. Anyhow what started me off on that is the bit of news which has just arrived that Buck Jones, wild west movie actor, staged two performances in Hollywood, for the benefit of Christ Church, Sherman, California. They are building a new church, in fact have it all built. But there is considerable debt hanging over it which the rector, the Rev. A. H. Wurtele, says Mr. Buck Jones helped to remove.

* * *

Miss Iyo Araki, famous throughout Japan as head nurse of St. Luke's International Hospital, Tokyo, a visitor in this country at the invitation of the Rockefeller Foundation, was formally welcomed by the staff of the Church Missions House, New York, on Tuesday last at a tea given by the department of missions. Araki San (San standing for Miss) is the nurse who during the earthquake of September 1st, 1923, when St. Luke's Hospital was damaged by the quake and destroyed by fire, carried patients into the nearby excavation, and when trapped by the flames, covered her charges with blankets, while with a dishpan, she kept these wet with accumulated rain water through the terrific ordeal of five hours. Not a patient was lost and Araki San's uniform, scorched and burned in a score of places, is one of the treasured keepsakes in St. Luke's museum.

* * *

Rev. Charles F. Sweet, for 26 years one of the Church's missionaries in Japan, died in Peekskill, New York, September 10th, at the age of 72 years. Going to Japan in 1896, Dr. Sweet became a member of the staff of Trinity Catechetical School which later developed into the Central Theological College of the Church in Japan. He therefore had an opportunity for sharing in the training of several generations of theological students.

* * *

The diocese of Springfield gave $5 to the Birthday Thank Offering in New Orleans. Right now they have nearly $150 salted away for the offering to be presented next year in Washington, and there is a full year to go.

* * *

Bishop White of Springfield has just finished the first vacation that he has had since he was consecrated in 1924. Been fishing for a month up in Minnesota. Good idea.

* * *

Every parish in the diocese of Springfield has a rector, and all but two missions are under the pastoral care of a priest. This is the first time that such a happy state could be reported.

* * *

Be interesting to know just how much praying was really done for the success of the Conference on Faith and Order. In Ohio the diocesan Auxiliary sent prayer leaflets to all branches with the request that daily prayers be held.

* * *

Fifth annual conference for church workers among colored people is to meet at St. James Church, Baltimore, October 4-6th. All sorts of interesting speakers on every conceivable subject.

* * *

Calvary, Westerly, Rhode Island, is raising $6,000 for a new organ.

* * *

Permission to print fifty thousand Bibles and fifty thousand New Testaments has been granted to the

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

A Church School in the lake district of high, healthful, Central Florida

The Cathedral School For Girls

Orlando, Florida

College Preparatory and General Courses.
State Accredited.

Music, Supervised Athletics.

Boarding and Day Pupils.

The Right Reverend Cameron Mann, D. D., President.
Miss Clara Burton, Principal.

Catalogue Sent Upon Request.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

American Bible Society by the Soviet government. They will be distributed in Russia by the Baptists.

* * *

A memorial service for Mrs. William Lawrence, wife of the retired bishop of Massachusetts, was held at Bar Harbor, Maine, last Sunday at the same time as her funeral at St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston. The service was read by Bishop Manning of New York.

* * *

Grace Church, Salem, Mass., has been left $2,000 by the will of Charles R. Frye of that city.

* * *

Mr. Sydney Webber, organist of St. Luke's Cathedral, Portland, Me., has accepted a similar position at All Saints,' Worchester, Massachusetts.

* * *

St. Paul's, Fairfield, Connecticut, is being enlarged and a parish house is being built, all due to the gift of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Jennings.

* * *

Rev. J. A. Williams, negro, has been on the job in St. Stephen's mission, Omaha, for thirty-six years. Not a mission now for it was admitted as a parish last year.

* * *

The tenth annual Silver Bay conference on industry met September 1st-4th with over 600 people attending. Among the speakers were Dr. James A. Britton, chief medical examiner, International Harvester Co.; Dr. George B. Cutten, president, Colgate University; Haley Fiske, president, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.; C. E. Lindquist, general secretary, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; Professor Elton Mayo, Harvard University; Arthur T. Morey, general manager, Commonwealth Steel Co.; Dr. William C. Poole, minister to Christ Church, London; Dr. Peter A. Speck, head of Slavic division, Library of Congress.

Subjects discussed included "American Industry and the World," "The Scientific Approach to Industrial Relations," "Ideals for Medical Service in Industry," "Improving Industrial Relationships on the Railroads," "Labor's View on Co-operation," "From Ellis Island to American Citizenship," "New Responsibilities of Modern Business," "Progress in Eliminating Human Wastes in Industry," "The Spiritual Dynamic."

Group discussions were held as follows: "Taking the 'Con' Out of Conferences," under leadership of C. S. Ching, supervisor of industrial relations, United States Rubber Co.; "Indications of an Outstanding Foreman Leader," John H. Frye, American Telephone & Telegraph Co.; "The Industrial Rehabilitation of Men," Robert T. Kent, general manager, Bridgeport Brass Co.; "Financial Incentives," J. M. Larkin, assistant to the president, Bethlehem Steel Co.; conference on railroad situation under leadership of J. B. Parrish, Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co.; and "Thrift Plans," W. H. Winans, Union Carbide Co.

* * *

An interesting inter-denominational, inter-racial community center, where members of a score of churches and seven races will meet for conferences, devotions and recreation, is being established at Kaneohe, on the cool windward side of the Island of Oahu, twelve miles from Honolulu.

The settlement is named "Kokokahi," Hawaiian for "one blood." It is sponsored by Theodore Richards, for a score of years treasurer of the Hawaiian Board of Missions, and it was dedicated this summer by services held under the auspices of the Honolulu Inter-Church Federation. It will be ready for use about the first of next year, it is believed.

Richards purchased a large tract of land overlooking the beach at Kaneohe, and is disposing of it to an especially selected group of churches and individuals at prices below those prevailing for surrounding land. Beach property at Kaneohe has been much in demand recently, and many Honolulans have erected week-end homes there. In addition to the low prices offered by Richards, he proposes to use one-tenth of the sale price of the lots for improvement of the reserve portion. There he intends to build a large open-air pavillion, a kitchen, tennis and volley-ball courts and other buildings. He will also blast out coral rock near the beach to provide good swimming and build piers to the deep water to make boating and fishing available.

Twenty-two churches were selected to be given first choice of lots, which range in price from $500 to $6000. These churches drew for opportunity to select their lots. Meanwhile, vari-

SAINT MARY'S

Knoxville, Illinois

An accredited college preparatory school with special department for girls in the grades. Athletics. Music. Art. Expression. Secretarial and Business courses. For catalogue write to the Rector.

FREEHOLD

MILITARY SCHOOL

For 80 Select Young Boys

A school with the personal touch. Just enough military training to inculcate habits of obedience, promptness, orderliness, cleanliness and self-reliance. The students' comforts, pleasures and sports are as carefully considered as their mental training. Healthful location. 42 miles from N. Y., 66 miles from Phila. For catalog address. MAJOR CHAS M. DUNCAN, P. O. Box W, Freehold, N. J.

HARVARD SCHOOL

Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited, R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

NURSING COURSE

of 2½ years, leading to R. N. degree

Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll Now

Send for full information to

DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING

Hospital of St. Barnabas,

Newark, N. J.

Confirmation Instructions

by

Bishop Johnson

50c a copy $4.00 a dozen

WITNESS BOOKS

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL

Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.

Address: Secretary

THE NEW YORK TRAINING SCHOOL FOR DEACONESSES

419 West 110th St. New York

Prepares women for life service in the Church as Deaconesses, or as Trained Workers.
Two-year Academic course.
Field Work in both Religious Education and Social Service.

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City. City.

ORGAN FOR SALE

ESTEY 9 STOP: SALICIONAL 8, OBOE 8', St. Diapason 8', Harmonic Flute 4', Diapason 8', Dulciana 8', Melodia 8', Octave 4', Bourdon 16', Pneumatic Action, electric blower and motor. All in A1 condition. BARGAIN: $1,550.00 net cash as it stands. Also oak-brass pulpit, and oak communion rail at a sacrifice.

Moving into new and larger church. Communicate with The Church of the Holy Nativity, Garrison Ave. & Edgerton Road, Baltimore, Md.

ASSISTANT WANTED

FOR RAPIDLY DEVELOPING NEW ENGland parish; communicant strength 1,000; Church School 750. Adequate salary for right man. Liberal churchmanship. Box H., Witness, 416 Lafayette St., New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs, chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up. Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52

HOUSE OF RETREAT

SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY. House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore, Long Island, N. Y. References required.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ous racial committees had drawn up lists of individual members of various churches who would be offered the opportunity to take up individual lots among their racial groups. Nationalities drew in the following order, determined at a previous drawing: Hawaiian, Japanese, Portuguese, Korean, Filipino, Chinese and Anglo-Saxon.

* * *

This from the Rev. Samuel Shoemaker, rector of Calvary, New York City:

"Of course we want self-expression and we need schools and colleges which will bring out real individuality instead of molding boys and girls alike and turning them out after a pattern. But before you can express yourself, you must be something and have something to express. Self-expression is not letting yourself go and riding roughshod over the decent conventions of life. There can be no true self-expression without continual reference to moral law and social obligation. Men and women cannot justify anything by saying they are merely expressing themselves. How many plead insanity as an afterthought when a murder has been committed cold-bloodedly? It is time for us to center our minds on that part of our lives which is free and to declare again for men's moral responsibility. This is a very serious state of affairs. You tell a lot of young people everything about a man's physical descent, and nothing about his spiritual ascent, and you have made a clear way for them to evade most of their obligations. The way of scientific materialism is the way of moral death. The utter ennui of a generation of youth which has exhausted all possibilities of sensation and squeezed all the enthusiasm out of life! When will we learn that we cannot pursue happiness directly; that it comes only as a by-product of service and right living; that it dies when we seek it; as a flower wilts for being held too tightly in one's hand?"

* * *

Church Army is still at it; they have pretty much covered New York and Vermont and Rhode Island, and are now ready to start preaching missions in the neighborhood of New Bedford, Mass., under the chairmanship of the Rev. "Jack" Groton. A training center will be opened soon in Rhode Island if all goes as planned, there to train American young men for this Church Army work that has proved so worthwhile.

* * *

St. George's, Mt. Savage, Maryland, is being renovated and improved. New pews and choir stalls, paint and floor covering. Cost $5000—a gift.

* * *

The Federal Council, stirred by current reports that the churches are losing in membership, have issued a statement declaring that the real facts are just the opposite. Figures are presented for twenty-five leading denominations showing that they have grown almost fifty per cent during the last twenty years.

* * *

Here is a new Bible game, sent to me by the Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker. There is a text for every occupation, so he says. See if you can match these for your own calling:

School teacher—Precept upon precept, line upon line, here a little and there a little; for with stammering lips and a strange tongue shall the Lord teach this people.—Isaiah 28:10.

Bootblack—How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth glad tidings, that publisheth peace!—Isaiah 52:7.

Having your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace. —Ephesians 6:15.

Bond Salesman—Remember my bonds.—Colossians 4:18.

Barber—In those days shall the Lord shave with a razor that is hired.—Isaiah 7:20.

Stenographer—See what large letters I write unto you with mine own hand.—Galatians 6:11.

I Tertius, who write this epistle, salute you.—Philippians.

Real Estate—They shall build homes, and inhabit them.—Isaiah 65:21.

Lawyer—Plead thou my case, O Lord, with them that rise up against me.—Psalms 35:1.

Banker—Let each one of you lay by him in store.—I Corinthians 16:2.

Grocer—Remember the cucumbers, and the melons, and the leeks, and the onions, and the garlic.—Numbers 11:5.

Newspaper man—I speak the truth, I lie not.—Galatians.

* * *

Writing of a recent visit to the San Blas country in southeastern Panama, Bishop Morris of the Canal Zone says that he spent eight interesting days there and during that

WINSTON-INTERNATIONAL
SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLES
SELF-PRONOUNCING
Contain specially prepared Helps to Bible Study and many Attractive Illustrations suitable for children.
Send for Illustrated Catalog
THE JOHN C. WINSTON CO., Publishers
American Bible Headquarters
456 Winston Building Philadelphia

Whooping Cough Soon Relieved

Roche's Embrocation is the quickest relief known. Just rub it on the child's chest. At once it breaks congestion, loosens choking phlegm and then relief comes. Equally good for croup, chest colds, bronchitis.

Sold By All Druggists or

E. FOUGERA & CO., Inc., New York
W. Edwards & Sons, London, Eng., Props.

ROCHE'S EMBROCATION

What About Our Mexican Mission?

The work as a whole and some of its effective units are discussed by Bishop Creighton and other authoritative writers

in the OCTOBER issue of

The Spirit of Missions

Join the Growing Army of Readers

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS

281 Fourth Avenue - - - - - New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore.
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month

Grace Church, Chicago.
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago.
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily, 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily, 12:10
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York
139 West Forty-sixth Street
Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D., Litt.D.
Sunday Masses, 7:30, 8:15, 9, 10:45.
Vespers and Benediction, 4.
Week-day Masses, 7, 8, 9:30.

St. John's, Cynwyd, Pa.
The Birthplace of the Lenten Offering
When in Philadelphia attend services here. Call Cynwyd 1382 for information.
Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, D.D., Rector
Sundays 8 and 11 A. M.

time held four services, baptized two children and confirmed one. "The Garvey people are very active in that vicinity and on every side one sees their propaganda. Apparently all pictures of the British Royal Family, formerly in every West Indian home, have been removed, and in their stead appear radical mottoes and chromos. But the church retains their affection and they seemed pleased with my visit. I got in touch with virtually all the white families also.

"Through the kindness of the manager of the local development corporation we made arrangements for them to attend the Sunday services, which they did, coming from the distant plantations on motor rail cars. It was very interesting. So much mud I had never seen before, except on the shorter visits to the same place. There are not even foot paths, much less roads, only the ties of the narrow guage road to walk on when one has waded that far. No vehicles of any kind.

"What we are to do about the Indians I cannot see. Occasionally they come singly or in pairs to a service, and those I met on the islands and at the dock were friendly enough. Some of them work for the corporation. I hope we may commend the Church to them, but the only definite Christian work ever attempted was suppressed three years ago by the government under the San Blas agreement and the woman worker deported, although she had made herself entirely welcome.

"There is a small mission but as it may be the beginning of something important in this region it seems worth while to send this report. A forceful and mature West Indian clergyman would probably do the most good as things now stand."

* * *

A memorial service for General Wood was held at the Cathedral of St. Mary and St. John, Manila. The huge edifice, with a seating capacity of a thousand, was crowded to the doors, with several hundred unable to gain admission.

Clerical Changes

HEMINWAY, Rev. Truman, former chaplain at St. George's School, Newport, Rhode Island, has taken up his work as rector of the Epiphany, Winchester, Mass.

LYNCH, Rev. Francis F., rector of Rock Spring Parish, Harford County, Maryland, has accepted a call to Trinity Church, Victoria, Tex.

MAC DONNELL, Rev. A. H., in charge at St. Helena and Mt. Winans, Md., has accepted an appointment as assistant at St. Timothy's, Philadelphia.

RICHARDSON, Rev. J. A., rector of St. Mary's, Philadelphia, has accepted an appointment as lecturer on Church History at the General Theological Seminary.

TRAVIS, Rev. William T., rector of St. Mark's, Kansas City, Mo., to be rector of St. Simon's, Chicago.

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York
Madison Ave. at 35th St
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 7:30 and 11

St. James, New York.
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York.
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, and 11 A. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp & Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — In a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100.000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

to gain admission. The service was conducted by Bishop Mosher and a large number of clergy, including several army chaplains. General Wood had been confirmed in the Cathedral in 1907, and was a regular attendant whenever he was in Manila.

MANBY LLOYD'S LETTER

(Continued from page 8)

would show renewed vigour, energy, and capacity for spiritual leadership in central England. His expectations might be disappointed, but if controversy was a sign of health, they could claim to be a not entirely unhealthy religious community. Modernism was still much misunderstood, and was often misrepresented and maligned. In reality it was a constructive movement of a positive religious value. It represented the attempt of scholars and thinkers to present Christianity as a faith which modern educated men and women could accept, and was neither unhealthy nor unhappy. Some traditions associated in the Christian belief must be abandoned as the result of the vast change in men's outlook during the last half-century. The modernists were not responsible for such growth of knowledge. They accepted it as part of our development and culture, and therefore they deserved the gratitude of thoughtful citizens because they refused to ignore the problems to which the new knowledge gave rise. They were trying to make the Church of England adjust its outlook to men's changed conception of the universe and humanity's past. He regarded the modernist movement as the most promising and the most important in the Anglican Church at the present time. It aimed at joining spiritual enthusiasm to truth. The orthodoxy of the future was being shaped by those who, too often by ignorant fanaticism, were represented as troublesome heretics today.

In Memoriam

JESSE ALONZO PHILLIPS

Born the sixth of February, 1907.

Entered into Life Everlasting, the eighteenth of August, 1927.

The Burial Office was said in St. Paul's Church, Bloomsberg, Diocese of Harrisburg, on the afternoon of Saturday, the twentieth of August, at four o'clock. In this Church which was founded by his Great-great-great Grandfather, The Reverend Caleb Hopkins, in 1792, he was baptized, received the Apostolic Rite of Confirmation, made his first Communion and was a member of The Choir for ten years.

But he lives. Somehow he lives. And we who knew him intimately do not forget. We still feel his beautiful eyes on us. We still remember that wonderful smile of his and "long for the touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that is still."

"Requiescat in pace"

M.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, jurnalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago College Preparatory and general courses Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

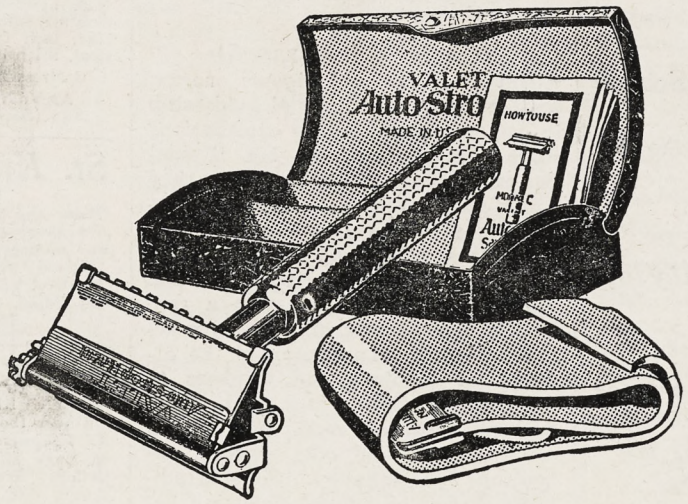
To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson



Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

FREE! FREE!

THIS
$5.00
AUTO STROP
RAZOR

THIS
$5.00
AUTO STROP
RAZOR

Start a Witness Bundle of at least ten copies and agree to continue it for six months and this razor will be sent free, (includes razor, strop, blade, in attractive case as pictured). Order now to start October first. The razor will be sent the day your order is received. Pay nothing now. We will bill quarterly at 3c a copy (10 copies for 13 weeks, $3.90).

THE BUNDLE PLAN. A bundle of papers to one address. A boy sells them at the Church door for a nickel a copy—we bill quarterly at 3c a copy.

Keep your people informed on the work of the Church throughout the world and they will be active in the Church locally. Prove it by adopting the Witness Bundle Plan.

— — — — — — — — — —FILL OUT AND MAIL TODAY:— — — — — — — — — —

The Witness, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago

Send.....copies starting October first. I agree to pay for them at 3c a copy quarterly and to have them sold at a nickel a copy. I understand this order entitles me to a razor at once.

Name.....

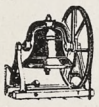
Street.....

City.....

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ON JOINING THE CHURCH—W. E. Johnson

The WITNESS



CHICAGO, SEPTEMBER 29, 1927

THE MANAGEMENT of The Witness is so confident of the unusual merit of the series of articles by Bishop Johnson and Irwin St. John Tucker, both to start in October, that this means is taken of urging rectors to adopt the WITNESS BUNDLE PLAN. Ten or more copies sent to one address to be sold at the church door at five cents a copy. An invoice is sent you quarterly at three cents a copy. Keep your people informed on the work of the Church throughout the world and they will be active locally. The informed mind precedes the awakened conscience.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.
314 East 34th St. New York
worker in glass mosaic church decoration

For "Daylight Projection"
of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use
BALOPTICONS
There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.
Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 69 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.
Church Bells — Peals
McShane Bell Foundry Co.
Baltimore, Md.

Vestments
For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring
Inquiries given prompt attention
J. M. HALL, Inc.
174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403)
(Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.
TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.
1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows
Monuments and Church Furnishings
IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR
CHARLES F. HOGEMAN
45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts.
NEW YORK
60 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J.

The Taylor Bell Foundry
LOUGHBOROUGH, ENGLAND
The World's Leading Bellfounders
CHURCH BELLS
SINGLY OR IN PEALS
CHIMES OR CARILLONS
AUTOMATIC OPERATION
Unequalled for Musical Qualities
Yale University — Birmingham, Ala.
Andover — Gloucester
Morristown — Cranbrook, Mich.
Harvard University
Germantown, Etc., Etc.
INQUIRIES SOLICITED

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs
The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.
M. P. MOLLER
Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios
5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.
MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS
If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart
Stained Glass
English Artists
550 & 552 W. HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit
Beautiful Groupings
Gorgeous Combinations of Color
Well executed by
The Von Gerichten Studios
Columbus, Ohio. New York City

The Charm of Golden-Voiced Chimes
is within reach of your church, too!
Imagine the rich, musical tones of
Deagan Tower Chimes
coming from the belfry of your church—a constant inspiration to worship; a golden voice eagerly awaited by multitudes every day. Write for plan.
Standard Sets $6,000 and Up.
J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:
EXETER
and 4 & 5 Duncannon St:
Charing Cross LONDON
ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS
in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal and
Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
GLASS STAINERS
By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.), Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.
56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST. 1877

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.
— Office and Studio —
221-223 E. Fulton St. — Columbus, Ohio.
DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.
— Photos, Designs and Estimates upon Application —
ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 6 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago Illinois under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

ON JOINING THE CHURCH

Why You Cannot Join the Episcopal Church

By

REV. W. EVERETT JOHNSON

"Then they that gladly received his word were baptized: and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls." Acts 2-41.

Peter had just preached the first Christian sermon. It is only a few weeks from the time that he had been with Christ and heard from Him "things pertaining to the kingdom of God." As the result of Peter's sermon about three thousand persons have been baptized. One can imagine the joy this brought to Peter and the other apostles. Let us suppose that one of the three thousand comes to Peter with this request, "now that I have been baptized, I would like to join the church." It is easy to imagine the astonishment of Peter giving a reply something like this: "Baptism is the only way of joining the Church that Christ taught us, and far be it from me to add to that which he taught; you are as much a member of the Church as you ever can be."

An Innovation

It was nearly fifteen hundred years later before any follower of Christ had the nerve to add a requirement that did not come from Him. Then some of those followers introduced a practice that has been continued by their successors to this day, a practice known as "joining the church." But, to do this consistently they had to introduce a qualifying adjective to the word, church, and that adjective indicated separation from other Christians; so one may join the Congregational Church, or the Presbyterian Church, and sadly enough in the language of our day, one may join the Episcopal Church. At the start of this innovation the Congregationalists were consistent and called their units, societies, and not churches.

We do speak of joining a society as a man may say, "I have joined the Odd Fellows." There are, at least, three steps to be taken in joining a society, an application from the candidate, an acceptance of the application by the society, if it be not a rejection, and some form of initiation, however simple. In making an application the candidate understands that he may be rejected, and that if he be accepted into membership, he may be expelled for any cause upon which the members of the society may agree.

We All Belong

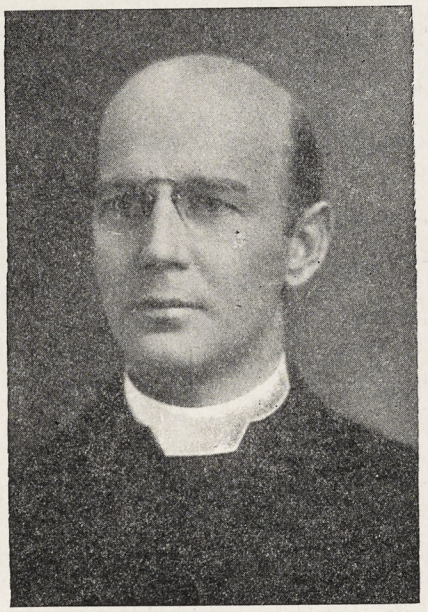
There are two societies to which we all belong, although we do not usually give them that name; they are the family and the state. We became members of those two societies by an act of God, so you do not say, I joined my family on a certain day, but I was born into it. If you were born in the United States, you do not say, I joined the United States, but I was born a citizen. You may quarrel with your family and leave them; you may be disloyal to your Country and emigrate; but you are always a son of your father and mother, and a native of the United States. Since God gave you membership in your family and nation, the relationship in each is therefore interminable.

When you repeat the Lord's Prayer you begin by an admission of relationship in a family by saying "Our Father," and to a state by saying, "Thy Kingdom." Christ plainly declares that you must be born into that relationship by baptism. Your catechism tells you that by baptism you were made a child of God and an inheritor of the kingdom.

By being born in the United States you became a member of what? Let us say that you were born in Ohio; were you first a citizen of Ohio or of the United States? You became first a citizen of the United States and then a citizen of Ohio. When you became of age you moved from Ohio into Iowa and so became a citizen of that state. Did you make application to the authorities in Iowa for citizenship? Certainly not; you became a citizen by right of your birth in the United States and not as a privilege from the state of Iowa.

Baptism

An infant is baptized by a priest of the Episcopal Church according to the ritual of the Prayer Book. From any words or acts of that



THE Rev. W. Everett Johnson, one time rector of the Church of the Redeemer, New York City, and now at San Benito, Texas, is issuing a series of leaflets for the use of Lay readers and those who are called upon to read aloud at meetings of guilds or adult classes. These leaflets, to which the name Church Readers has been given, are short and pithy, dealing with things that Churchmen ought to know. The editorial in this issue is one of them. They can be secured by sending twenty-five cents for three, a dollar for twelve, or six cents each in quantities of twenty-five or more, to his address. We commend them especially to lay workers who have to make addresses — and are sometimes put to it for material.—I. P. J.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ritual it would not be possible for a stranger to know that he was in an Episcopal Church—not a word is said about the Episcopal Church. Immediately after the baptism the priest declares that the child is "grafted into the body of Christ's Church." A little later in the thanksgiving prayer God is thanked for regenerating the child and incorporating him into the holy Church. At the same time another child is baptized in Greece by a priest of the Greek Church. These two children are as two children born in two different states of the Union, each equally a citizen of the United States, each of these children is equally a citizen in the Church.

When the Greek child becomes of age he comes to this country to make his home here. Having always been faithful in the performance of his duties to the Church, he desires to continue doing so. Finding here many churches of many names in his new home, he visits a number of their pastors to learn just how he stands as to his Church membership. They all greet him cordially and invite him to join the church they respectively represent. He deeply resents the idea that he must join anything; is he not as much a citizen in the kingdom of God as any of them? Finally, he comes to a priest of an Episcopal Church with the same credentials of his standing in the Church in Greece that he has shown to the others. This priest says to him at once, "You do not have to join anything, nor can I extend to you any privileges. You are by right as much a member of the Church as I am." He is as a native citizen of the United States moving from one state to another; he is a citizen in his adopted state by right of his birth in the United States.

By his baptism that Greek, even as you or I, was added to the three thousand who were baptized after Peter's sermon in Jerusalem. And yet, the Episcopal Church is the only American Church in which this Greek, or any other Christian foreigner, arriving in this country enters by right of birth in baptism. The others may greet him as cordially and invite him most urgently to join their respective societies, but it is by invitation, and invitation implies a privilege extended. You invite a man to enter your house, but you would not think of inviting him to walk on the sidewalk in front of your house—your house is your castle, your sidewalk is a public highway. A denominational church is the possession of a limited number of people who maintain it; and if you wish to join it, it is by their courtesy that you are accepted. The Church is the highway of God in His kingdom open to all its citizens by right of their birth; a highway running through nations and ages; the right of way of the children of God on which we as citizens work that it may be kept open and fit for those journeying Godward.

BISHOP OLDHAM
At Girls' Friendly Convention

AN INCLUSIVE CHURCH

But, the Episcopal Church can claim less than one per cent of the population of our great Country—what is her position toward the great number of those who have been baptized with water in the name of Trinity but membership in some denominational organization. It is the same as that which has been indicated for the Greek. The Church does not limit the administration of baptism to her priests; she instructs her laymen to baptize in an emergency and accepts such baptism when administered. So one of these denominational Christians, able to satisfy a priest as to his baptism, cannot join the Episcopal Church—he is a member by virtue of his birth into the kingdom of God. Thus it is that the Episcopal Church, bearing the reputation of being a most exclusive church, is the most inclusive of all the great religious organizations of America.

Finally, there are the unbaptized who may come asking that they be made members of the Episcopal Church—it cannot be done. We can do for them just what Peter and the other apostles did for those who repented and believed nearly nineteen centuries ago, and that is add them to that original three thousand who first traveled the highway of God. To claim to do more would be mixing the commands of God with the inventions of men as did the Pharisees of old.

No one has become the master of any language until he is able to think in it. We of the Episcopal Church have a language that has been spoken for ages by those traveling the highway of God, but our children have never learned it well enough to be able to think in it. In worship we use the ancient, but not dead, language, but when we get outside of our churches we think in the language of a divided Christianity and so it may startle many to be told that no one can join the Episcopal Church. "My child was baptized into the Episcopal Church" is a frequent remark, made by those who when present at the baptism of their children never heard a word about the Episcopal Church uttered from the beginning to the end of the service. These same people attend the services of the Church in which the words, Episcopal Church, are never mentioned. Could the apostles come to life and attend one of those services, the English would not be understood, but the real language of the worship would not be new, save for a few local references.

Let's Know

BETWEEN SUNDAYS

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

EVERYONE will agree that the worship of God should not be confined to Sunday Christianity certainly is not meant to be a one-day-in-seven religion. Periodically we hear some blistering remarks about religion in the home. Well, whether we like it or not, the modern home is not what it used to be. Particularly in cities where people live in the smallest possible room space and where long distances to business necessitate the hurried exit of various members of the family each morning and their continued absence from home until evening, the question of family worship becomes quite complex. Yet Christian worship must not be confined to Sunday. Doesn't it make it all the more necessary that churches should be open all day? The following is taken from a letter on this subject which has just come to my desk:

"Sometimes I am in Boston. Then there is difficulty. At my dear Church of St. John the Evangelist I find a Church which is in use every day of the week. There is no musty odor there but an atmosphere of prayer because it is a praying Church. It ministers to all kinds of people as one can easily see who Letters stating problems addressed to the Editor of this column will receive his attention as soon after being received as possible.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

drops in there for a few minutes of rest or prayer.

"But I am not always in Boston. Every afternoon when I come from my work I pass two Roman Catholic Churches. Often I should like to stop but I don't feel that I really have a right to. Then later I pass our Church which is closed from Sunday to Sunday and I go on my way with a bit of heartache because of what I am denied. To find an open Church I have to go to a neighboring city. In the summer it is even worse. I have been during August in a small town where absolutely no service is held during the rector's vacation. One can be homesick for the Sacrament as well as for less important things."

How many of our Church people feel that way—and how many more of them ought to? I know the difficulties. I know the vandalism and petty thievery which endanger an open and unwatched Church building, especially in the larger cities. I know the problem of week-day services in smaller places where one priest may be in charge of congregations in two or more towns and is therefore not always in one place. Living in northern Wisconsin, I know the expensive question of heating a building during the winter months, particularly if there is not a chapel attached to the Church. Yet people ought to have the privilege of entering the peaceful quiet of the House of God as a refreshing retreat from the over-busy life of the street and the office.

One day in Lent a woman telephoned me (not a communicant of the Church) to ask if the Church would be open that afternoon. "Certainly," I replied, "Evening Prayer is said at 4:30." "Yes," she said, "but I want to go in before that. I have a real problem on my hands and I want to get quietly into the Church where I can think and pray it out." "The Church is always open," I told her. "Go right in and help yourself any time you please." That woman was there for more than an hour before 4:30 and stayed through the service.

Certainly it is worth some serious consideration.

THE PLACE OF PRAYER

In the Christian Religion

BY CANON JAMES ADDERLEY

IT BECAME clear to my mind that I must find a use for prayer or I could not really claim to be a Christian. One thing was very evident. Prayer has always been and still is the chief spiritual occupation of Christians. They pray privately every morning and evening. They pray when they are in any danger. They pray for others and with others. Yet somehow for a long time I could see no use in it at all. I did it in a half-hearted sort of way because other people did it. I asked God for things, but I scarcely ever believed that He would or could give them to me. I did not wait for an answer. It was all a mere form.

Two things altered my view of prayer and made it more real to me. One was that I came to believe in the Fatherhood of God: the other was that I came to understand that prayer does good to the man who prays, apart altogether from what he asks for and whether he gets an answer or not.

Now first about the Fatherhood of God. Many people seem to think of God as a rather cruel tyrant living up above the clouds who does not love us very much and will not even attend to us unless we please Him by prayers and sacrifices and hymns of praise. I never believed in that kind of God, and that is why prayer seemed to me futile. It was not that my prayers were not answered: it was that I could not believe that such a God existed, and so I knew that my prayers never meant anything at all. But when I read the Sermon on the Mount, and especially when I studied the pattern Lord's Prayer, I came to see that God is not far off, but close by, that He loves us more than any earthly father loves his children. In fact "God is Love." This is why our Lord taught His disciples to begin their prayer with "Our Father." As I think about religion I am more and more sure that everything depends on our having a right idea of God. Jesus Christ taught us the right idea of God, and it was a better idea than any Jew or heathen had ever had or now has. The object of all religion is to get into touch with God, and we must first have an idea of what God is like to whom we pray. We wonder why our religion seems to do us no good. It is because some of us are living even our religious life with a totally wrong view of what God's will is towards us. We do not know the God of the Lord's Prayer. He is a real Person against whom we can sin by disobedience and want of affection, a Person who loves us individually and whom we can love. Christ pictured God to us as the father in the parable of the prodigal son, waiting for his wandering son to come home, caring about him when the boy had forgotten him as the woman looking for her lost coin, as the shepherd pursuing his lost sheep. He told us that God could number the hairs of our head, and knew when a little sparrow fell to the ground. That is something like a God. He is a God worth praying to. Now here I come to the second thing I realized which gave me a use for prayer. I saw that prayer was not to make God attend to me, but to make me attend to God. God orders us to pray, not for anything He needs for Himself. We cannot add to His glory. We are not required to persuade God to do this or that or the other, He orders us to pray in order that we may become the sort of people who know why this or that or the other is necessary for us. He wants us to become people who love the things that He commands and desire that which He promises. He knows our necessities before we ask. But He does want us to know our real needs, and the greatest of those needs is our everlasting need of Him.

So He tells us to tell out our desires to Him that we may learn to be humble, and by expressing them in words to find out what our needs really are and feel our impotence. By prayer we become the sort of people with whom God can deal effectually to save them. We come to Him like patients to a doctor, putting ourselves in His hands to be healed.

But this idea of humble sonship puts us also in a new relationship to others. To say "Our Father" rightly, is in two words to bind ourselves to all mankind in brotherhood. There is no such thing as a selfish prayer or, rather, no selfish prayer ever gets us to God and man at once.

Now I do not say that this is all the use of prayer. If I have space I will some day write about public worship. What I have tried to do is to show what my own private prayer has come to mean to me since I understood what prayer meant in general.

I do not say long prayers. I do not read them out of a book. I just try to keep quiet for a minute or two and think of our Father. I try to listen to his voice, and I am perfectly certain that He does speak to me sometimes. I believe that I should hear Him much more often if I let myself listen. I am rather afraid to hear the truth from God.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Then I try to be very practical and talk to God about quite ordinary everyday things, such as my work, or my games, or my politics. I try to see what these ordinary things sound like when spoken of in the presence of God. One of my padre friends told me the story of Brother Lawrence, who was a cook, and wrote a classical book about the "Presence of God," a book I advise all to read, especially that part where he says that he felt God nearer when he was washing the pots and pans in the kitchen than when he was in Church. That is a tremendous comfort for us chaps who have not much time for Church. I am sure it is true. It is just this mixing up of ordinary life with prayer that has given me a use for it. I commend this to those ignorant people who laugh at us Christians for praying, and to any Christians who feel a doubt about the value of prayer.

Reprinted by arrangement from The Torch, organ of the Industrial Christian Fellowship.

Books

ESSAYS IN CHRISTIAN POLITICS AND KINDRED SUBJECTS. By William Temple, Bishop of Manchester, Longmans Green & Co., New York. $2.75.

Reviewed by Rev. Alfred Newbery

This book began as an attempt to preserve for a wider public Bishop Temple's editorials in The Pilgrim. To a selection of these have been added various addresses.

One does not look in them for a comprehensive presentation of the Bishop's thought, but the helpful illuminations of vexing problems, and we may add, is not disappointed. Bishop Temple has been a stalwart champion of the social gospel, and makes short work of any attempt to dualize on spiritual values, and let us say economic or political values. He is not a "radical" in the sense that he makes proposals calling for revolutionary action: he is thoroughly radical in that he demands a revolution in thought—a replacing of Christianity at the center of our organized life whether we be looking on it with the squint called political or economic or something else. "The Christian conception of anything," he says, "is always the real essence of that thing, not some remote Utopian and perhaps impracticable ideal." That is radicalism. Again "industry has been organized on a false basis. Its essence or spirit is co-operative: its organization or body is competitive. It will find its peace when those who are engaged in it discover and adopt a method of conducting it which corresponds with its real nature."

These are illuminating and helpful thoughts and they have sound reasoning clearly expressed behind and around them. The two sentences quoted above define an enormous social task before us.

The same treatment prevails throughout the book. One could wish that the first section, dealing with social questions, with the addition of the essay, "Christianity and Marriage," from the second section had been published alone. A less ambitious publication would have been the result, but also a wider circulation of that which the writer is so supremely fitted to give and which Christian living so badly needs, doggedly accurate, heartening, and clear leadership on the principles which must underlie our social relationships.

Books Reviewed in this paper may be purchased from WITNESS BOOKS, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Add ten cents to stated price for postage.

PRESIDENT BONSALL
Of St. Andrew's Brotherhood

The corner stone for a new parish house for St. Paul's Church, Fairfield, Conn., was laid last Sunday. Just how much it is to cost is not reported but they have $30,000 in the fund, a sum which was raised locally in a very short time under the leadership of the rector, the Rev. Delmar S. Markle.

Cheerful Confidences

THE PROBLEM OF THE CHURCH

By Rev. George Parkin Atwater

WE SAT in the study and talked. He was an older and more experienced Parson and his hair was white. We had both worked in a part of the land unsympathetic, as a whole, to our labors and to the work of the Church in general. We had been long accustomed to the meetings of the Clergy, where the theme of many a discussion had been not how to apply our resources to the outstanding needs, but how to create the very resources on which our continuance in the work depended. It was a sort of endless circle. If the Parson were competent to maintain a Parish which could support him, then he might remain and put all his energy in the effort to compel that Parish to maintain him.

My brother Parson was opening the riches of a great experience for my advantage, and I listened to his words.

"We hear continually," he said, "of the problems confronting the Church, and the obstacles to her progress. Some intellectual friend urges that the trouble with the Church is that men are absorbed in advanced scientific speculations that discredit the Church. We hear that the Church has lost her hold upon the masses because of her cold respectability. We hear that the thousand interests which absorb men leave no time for the more remote interests with which they declare the Church to be occupied. We hear that ministers are given to the theorizing or to petty parochial activities and do not face the real issues of living.

"On the other hand we are told that the remedy lies in this or that program or method. A hundred suggestions are made, every one of which, we are assured, will make the Church stronger.

"Don't be misled by these, my boy," and the older Parson smiled. "I see upon your shelves the books in which newer programs are set forth and the old ways disparaged. They are all very well, but they remind me of surgeons who operate for troubles that some old-fashioned remedy has always relieved."

"But the old-fashioned remedies seem to have failed," I interrupted.

"Yes, because they cannot be applied by those like yourself who read these books. They can only be applied by the people."

"There are two overwhelming and fundamental causes for the weakness of a Parish," he continued, "and there are two simple remedies."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

"That makes one hundred and two suggestions," I put in.

"But these two have the merit of having been justified by experience. The two greatest obstacles to the growth of the Kingdom of God on earth today, are, simply that so many people do not go to Church on Sunday mornings and that the people do not voluntarily support it."

He was warmed up now.

"You can easily see how it is. How can you teach if you have no disciples? How can you inspire if the congregation is at home, each concerned about his own affairs? And do you not spend a vast portion of your time devising means to get people to do that which they ought to do of their own accord, go to the church in which they claim membership. Think of the appeals you make, of the homes you visit, of the labor spent in providing attractive music. And all for the purpose of getting people to Church. Is it any wonder that the Minister is stirred by a feeling of success when the congregation grows a little? Yet the very first obligation of the people is to put the Minister above all these methods and to be in its place, ready for the words, the leadership, the grace that shall set the vast army of Christian people against the enemies of our race and nation. So devastating has become the stay-away habit that the ordinary Parson has only strength and zeal sufficient partly to accomplish a result which ought to be the starting point of his labors and not the end of them.

"Every stay-at-home is casting a vote against the Church; is urging that the Minister be dismissed and its doors closed; is promoting the downfall of God's Kingdom.

"The relative minor problems of the Church would disappear if each one who professed and called himself a Christian were to be in his place on Sunday morning. The Parson would be relieved of a vast measure of his heart-breaking labor.

"And again, vast numbers of our people do not pay toward the support of the Church. If it were not for the generous and great-hearted few our Churches would die of poverty. The condition of the alms basin on a Sunday almost justifies the thought of the Parson, about to announce the offering after the sermon, 'Here is where I get a penny for my thoughts.'

"By reason of this we are involved in a great scramble for money. Chicken suppers and bazaars abound. Catch-penny devises are promoted on all hands. The Church is a furore of worldliness.

"Nor does it respect the rights of others. Every business man will tell you that the habit of sending beggars for Churches among the merchants has become a nuisance, only tolerated for fear of lack of patronage. It is a species of blackmail for which religion pays a heavy toll in the end.

"Why is it? Simply for the reason that many of our people fail to pay their pledged obligations. They are deaf to every appeal. The Minister urges and pleads but they resist. They drag the very heart out of him by their indifference. They make him do the labors of a Hercules to keep the credit of the Church good.

"And again false pride seizes them. They forget the lesson of the widow's mite. Aside from those who pledge and pay not, there are those who do not realize that the ones who might give a small sum each week, and fail to do so, are the ones who in the aggregate create the crushing deficits. The Church, far from despising small gifts, welcomes them, and promotes the givers to places of honor among the larger contributors.

"The remedies are simple. If each person would attend his Church, and pay his part, much of the burden resting upon the Parson would go rolling on its way to oblivion. The Church, with steam up, and bunkers full of coal, would face the storms that now threaten to engulf her."

My friend paused and looked at me for endorsement of what he said. I found refuge in a question.

"What would the Parson do then?" I asked.

"Do! do! He would do his real work. He would feel the inspiration that comes from whole-hearted support. He would have a hearing and a chance. He would not feel like the promoter that Holmes tells us of, who arranged that every one on the earth should 'boo at the same minute in hopes that the vast sound would be heard in the moon. But everyone became so interested in hearing this tremendous noise that when the time came no one uttered a sound, except a deaf woman in the Fiji Islands. The earth was never so still before. Each one is willing that all the others should do their duty and that would be a huge result. But I must go home. I have to send out notices to be sure of a choir for Sunday, and to write an appeal for a large Easter offering for our deficit. I must take this to the printer's and then return and address three hundred envelopes. Tomorrow I shall fold and enclose the appeals and mail them. Our deficit, by the way, is just a little luxury that our people permit themselves, because it adds a certain zest to the Easter service to have the opportunity of raising it, to arouse their interest. Good-bye."

I saw and wondered if what he said were true. But all Parishes are not alike and no two men have exactly similar experiences. Every one has his own problems and they become magnified under the stress of discomfort. As I prepared to go and see my sick I made up my mind to ask some Parsons if those were their experiences. Are they yours?

The next day I dropped in to see my friend. I found him in bed. "I am suffering from an attack of indigestion," he said. "I felt it coming on yesterday."

So had I.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

No one doubts the propriety of an employer inquiring into the qualifications of an applicant for a position. Applicants for positions have just as much right to examine the employer as to his qualifications, and now and then they are unexpectedly subjected to a cross-examination, as the following story testifies:

He was a terrible "short" man, but he knew a real live business woman when he saw her. She was applying for a position as confidential clerk and typist, and he turned upon her a rapid fire of questions.

"Talk slang?"

"No, sir."

"Know how to spell 'cat' and 'dog' correctly?"

"Yes, sir."

"Use the telephone every other minute?"

"No sir."

He was thinking of something else to ask her when she took a hand in the matter and put a few queries.

"Smoke cigars when you're dictating?"

"Why—er—no," he gasped in astonishment.

"Slam things about when business is bad?"

"No."

"Think you know enough about grammar and punctuation to appreciate a good typist when you get one?"

"I think so."

"Want me to go to work or is your time worth so little that—"

He interrupted her enthusiastically by saying:

"Kindly hang up your things and let's get at these letters."

The Rev. Karl Block of St. Louis is to be the principal speaker at the fall convocation of the diocese of Lexington which is to meet in Calvary Church, Ashland, October 11th and 12th. His subject will be "The Church's Mission."

* * *

Bishop Reese of Southern Ohio, ordered to Europe by his physician, has returned and preached last Sunday in Boston.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS FROM THE OTHER SIDE

Controversy Between Inge and Chesterton

Edited by

A. MANBY LLOYD

QUITE by accident I read of the death of Bernard Gilbert, whose genius was brought to your notice in this column some months ago. He has passed almost unnoticed. He wrote verse in the Mixo-Lydian dialect of the Lincolnshire Fens which is more plastic than the Dorian dialect of Yorkshire:

"There ain't no God!
'Coz if there were
My boy what's under foreign sod
Would be alive and here
Instead of when young William Porter
What never listed when he orter
Has his farm,
And braunges yonder safe away from harm."

His wonderful series "Old England" is a God's-Eye view of rural life. He understood village life as no man has done since Cobbett, and in the fulfilment of his plan had almost invented a new art. Some of his books were very expensive and always scarce.

Writing to an imaginary Mr. Lapelle, a Shaw-worshipper, he poured out the most entertaining criticism of art and economics, ancient and modern. Shaw once went to a village school run by Conan Doyle and Grant Allen. He told the children that the game laws were not passed for the protection of birds and rabbits and other wild things. It was not because they loved animals but because they liked to shoot them. This was a sample of all laws made by the grown-ups and then, amid roars of delight from the children, he proceeded to deduce that the first duty of a child was to disobey its parents and grown-ups generally. This aroused Gilbert's wrath. So he says Wells and Shaw are disruptive artists, hard at work teaching citizens to smash up our community. They don't come up to Anatole France but they do their worst.

* * *

These are the dog days and there is nothing much more exciting than the Gloomy Dean's articles that are running in a daily paper. His last aroused the ire of Chesterton. Dr. Inge wrote about the "Next Religion." Rather odd, says Chesterton, for the Dean of St. Paul's, who is in an official position. Suppose a general, in command of Ludgate Hill defending London, were to talk about the next nationality. Dr. Inge says "that this religion will be Christian need not be doubted; that it will not be Latin Catholicism is certain; but it is equally certain that it cannot be Protestantism as we have known it." To which Chesterton retorts that the Dean claims supernatural powers for the prophet that he denies to the priest.

Finally, says Inge, his new Protestantism will have for its "seat of authority" not the Bible but the "mind of Christ." That seems quite simple and satisfactory, says G. K. C. So long as you and I are quite certain that our minds are exactly like the minds of Christ everything will be quite easy. We need not discuss what is to happen when the Calvinist and the Christian Scientist each believes that the special and separate doctrine represents the mind of Christ. It is simply a matter of having a mind like that of Christ, and while we are about it it will be well to have one like that of Shakespeare. We all remember the man who said he could write like Shakespeare if he had a mind to.

* * *

Unjustifiable cruelty was condemned as marring real sport by the Rev. Basil Bourchier at St. Jude's-on-the-Hill, Hampstead.

Mr. Bourchier said bitter things about stag-hunting, welcomed greyhound racing, and regretted the effect of betting on sport.

"In nine cases out of ten there is little to complain of in fox-hunting," said Mr. Bourchier, "but there is the truth—a poor, miserable creature, dead-beat, crawling into a hedgerow, its tongue hanging out and its brush trailing on the ground. What I plead for, in the name of sport, is that whenever a kill takes place it should be of a sporting character, and the 'digging out' process should be ruled out."

He said that if "those creatures who hunt the stag" could not kill by what they called fair means they killed by foul: "And they have the insolence to talk of themselves as sportsmen!" he added.

Of hare hunting he could pretend to have no love. Pigeon-shooting was an abomination, while otter-hunting and rabbit-coursing were practically in the same class. Personally he hailed greyhound racing as one of the finest "inventions" of the age, and he saw in it real sport, which would go far to eliminate cruelty.

* * *

To the profound grief of all who live in the narrow streets about the London Docks, E., Father Wainwright, the 80-years-old vicar of St. Peter's, Old Gravel-lane, is lying ill in his house beside the church where he has worked with almost incredible self-sacrifice for more than 53 years.

Six weeks ago the old man was kneeling in a pew at the church saying his private devotions after Mass when a verger noticed that he had been kneeling an unusually long time. Going over to him he found that Father Wainright was ill and the old man was carried tenderly to his house, where he has remained ever since.

Until he was taken seriously ill about two years ago Father Wainright regularly paid midnight visits to the London Hospital or St. George's Hospital to visit the dying.

He would leave about two in the morning and it is generally considered that he walked home in his sleep. On one of his last midnight visits he felt tired and sat in a doorway, where he fell asleep. A kindly policeman found him there and carefully led the old man back to his house.

These visits gained Father Wainwright the name of the "Midnight Vicar."

Tales of his self-sacrifice are numberless. He is said to have lived on four hours of sleep and a meal and a half a day. When he had served the poor in the parish for 50 years he was given a cheque for £1,000, and promptly spent it on the church schools, which he kept going without the aid of any Government grant so that he could run them in his own way.

The Witness

All items for the news columns of the paper should be sent to

416 Lafayette Street,
New York City

except those of the far West which should be sent to—

Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens
619 S. Figueroa Street
Los Angeles, California

Correspondence in regard to Bundle Orders and Subscriptions should be sent to

6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

Correspondence in regard to advertising should be addressed to the New York office.

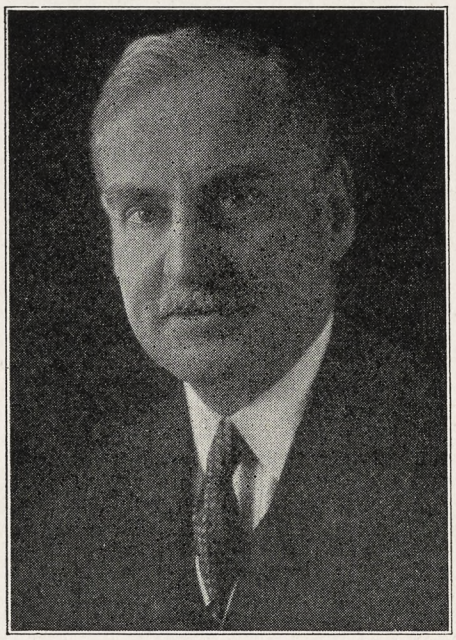
Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD



THIS paragraph has no business under the heading of News, but I am limited to the tail end of this paper fortunately so that anything I wish to say must go here. I would like to put a head to it for I believe I have a good one:

THEY'RE ALL WRONG BUT ME

Health and the Church

I suppose sometime or other during the lives of most of us this matter of health comes to the front. It has never interested me particularly. Doctors I have always looked upon as thoroughly scientific men to whom I was to turn in case of need and there receive a prompt answer with guess work eliminated. This summer, as the result of a bit of reading, I have given some thought to the matter. Books did come in for review and since they have not as yet perfected the game of golf so that it can be played in the evening there was nothing better for me to do than read. The first book, and the one that started the whole business was Fear by Dr. "Jack" Oliver, a specialist of Baltimore, who at one time, I am told, was a student at the General Seminary. A startling book which shows what happens to a man that gives too much thought to the functioning of his heart, liver or what have you. Being a doctor and not a parson he takes no text. Being a parson I shall pick one for him—"Perfect love casteth out fear." Think of others more and of yourself less, trust in God and with a decent life lived the chances are you will live long enough. It is a story of a fellow who nearly scared himself to death and of the treatment he was given; no medicines, no knives, but just the cultivating of a right mental attitude and this near dead man went home well even though minus a few hundred dollars. Oh I believe they did yank out all of his teeth but pretty ones were substituted, so that aside from a temporary inconvenience due to inability to hold a cigar in his mouth the patient was satisfied.

Well, sir, I was impressed with that book and it started me on further inquiry, always silly. I read too much, and as a result now come forward with the proposal that something corresponding to our conference on Faith and Order be held for the medicine men. When one looks into matter religious one is stuck by the sharp disagreement among followers of One Lord; a disagreement which these fellows are willing to admit and have at least started to do something about. The disagreement among medical men while no less pronounced, is less discussed. They have "ethics" which apparently is for the sole purpose of preventing them from talking about each other's mistakes. I read considerably and talked with so-called experts and as near as I could get at it they do not seem to know any more about health than the layman of ordinary intelligence.

GEORGE WHARTON PEPPER
Speaker Before Brotherhood

I could give cases. For instance there is my friend . . . . . , who got himself in bad shape and went to the experts of two cities about it. They agreed that it was cancer. Not much chance for him but they would do what they could. So he was told what he could eat, which was not much; how far he could walk, which wasn't far; how long he could sleep if at all after they had talked with him for ten minutes. Being a parson he asked them where God came in on this business. "Tush, tush, my boy, don't worry yourself about that." Not being satisfied with their answer he jumped their hospital and refused to have anything more to do with them. Then being an obstinate cuss, he proceeded to break every rule they had laid down for him; he ate pancakes every morning with thick gooy syrup all over them; took an automobile trip of 13,000 miles, traveling sometimes 400 miles a day; went up in airplanes, climbed mountains, slept on floors in damp cabins and did a lot of other silly things. I saw him the other day, three months after leaving the doctors. He says God has cured him. And he sure does look it; good weight, happy, joyous, with a firm conviction that God rules, which is something not to be sneezed at. You can figure it out anyway you care to; but there you have it, a half dozen doctors agreeing that he had about six months to be with us, and the fact that he feels better today than ever before in his life. I met one of the doctors a few weeks ago; "How is . . ." he asked. "Getting better so they tell me!" I replied. To which he said "Something funny about his case. That man ought to be dead by now." Which shows that more than one person can have a mental attitude.

Well I have read books that advocated milk and raw eggs, and books that say that both are full of bugs. Get rid of your teeth or don't . . . . have it anyway you want on the best of authorities. Cut out meat and live on a diet as near like that of a cow's as possible. Eat bulky food. Don't eat bulky food, it irritates. You can get it all from these experts.

What to do, what to do? Maybe my friend, the Rev. Dr. . . . . , will have ideas; always a sensible man. I dropped in on him at lunch time; after all one must eat. And there he was surrounded by fruits, nuts, honey and funny stuff in cans. "What's the idea, cook away?"

"No," he replies, "I am just now learning how to live intelligently. Do you realize what happens to a piece of meat when you swallow it?"

And if what he said is true it is awful.

"Cut the stuff out," he went on, "eat natural food, nuts, cereals and whole wheat. Then change your intestinal flora by the free use of . . . . . ."

"Wait a minute. What's this flora business?"

And he took five minutes to tell me of a battle going on inside me with a couple of armies of fifteen billion bugs each. Sort of a law and order bunch against the wild fellows . . . . "reds" I gathered from what he said . . . . and our job is through proper diet, to reinforce the law and order side. Then he handed me three or four books the size of dictionaries, written by Dr. Kellogg of the Battle Creek Sanitarium, which proves it all.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Fortunately business began to pick up about that time so that I never did have the chance to read in them —no one could possibly read them through.

Now the question I want to ask is "Who is right?" 'Is the game to forget the whole business; leave it to God. Or are we to follow a man like Dr. Kellogg who certainly has an exciting story to relate. Or possibly combine the two. We have several societies in the Church that concern themselves with this problem. It is also true, I am afraid, that the Church is constantly losing members who go over to Christian Science. What should the attitude of the Church be toward doctors, health and the Faith? It seems to me to be a matter worth discussing.

* * *

The daily vacation Bible school of St. George's, Flushing, Long Island, had an enrollment of 154 this past summer for a seven weeks' session under the direction of the rector, the Rev. George Farrand Taylor. One of the features was a class in dramatics in which the children acted out Bible stories.

* * *

The rural work of the Church depends as much upon the devotion, leadership and training of the country ministry as upon any one factor in the whole rural problem. Realizing this fact, the division for rural work of the department of Christian social service has this last summer selected and placed under the tutelage of certain of the rural clergy of the Church seven seminary students. The students chosen have all expressed the intention of spending many years if not their whole ministry, in village and country work. As for the clergy under whom the students have been placed, they are all prominent and successful leaders in country church work.

The cost of sending each student amounted to approximately $500, the total sum covering a salary of $10 per week for twelve to fifteen weeks, and board, room, transportation to and from the field, and the purchase or rental of a car and maintenance of the same. The whole experiment cost some $3,500.

The experiment was made possible very largely by the Woman's Auxiliary. Inspired by the study book for the year, "Beyond City Limits," by Rev. F. D. Goodwin and the companion volume by Miss Laura F. Boyer, the Auxiliary gave, or made possible, the scholarships needed. Some were given by diocesan branches, some by parish branches, others were contributed by informal groups of Auxiliary members, and one was given anonymously as a result of the appeal of an Auxiliary member.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Diocese of Pennsylvania was the first to respond to the call, gave two full scholarships, and so made it possible for Mr. Worth Wicker of the Philadelphia Divinity School to spend the summer with Rev. F. D. Good-

3c

Bishop Johnson
Bishop Stevens
Studdert-Kennedy
Geo. Parkin Atwater
Frank E. Wilson
James Adderley
Charles Street
A. Manby Lloyd

Articles regularly by such a group, and all of the important Church news in

BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

—o—

You get it all for 3c a week by ordering a bundle of at least 10 copies. Sell them at the door for a nickel.

—o—

AN INFORMED CHURCHMAN IS AN ACTIVE ONE

—o—

ORDER A BUNDLE NOW TO START OCTOBER FIRST.

The WITNESS

6140 Cottage Grove Ave.
CHICAGO

Chicago Real Estate Bonds

Our experience with First Mortgage Chicago Real Estate Bonds, covering a period of twenty years, is outlined in a leaflet which we have just prepared.

The leaflet contains a brief analysis of some of the causes underlying the perfect record of safety borne by such issues handled by us during this period.

It is a concise statement of facts, which have a value for every investor. Copy of this, together with circulars describing our current offerings, will be sent on request.

Write for Leaflet W.

Peabody, Houghteling & Co.
10 South La Salle Street
CHICAGO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

win, and Mr. J. R. Kuhns of Seabury Divinity School with Rev. E. S. Ford in the Western Counties Mission, Diocese of Newark.

Rev. Lyman Bleecker, lately ordained by the diaconate, was enabled to spend three months with the Rev. C. R. Allison in County Mission Work in Western New York as a result of the generosity of members of the Auxiliary of New York. The Auxiliary of Christ Church, Bronxville, New York, sent Mr. W. G. Christian of the Virginia Seminary to Rev. George B. Gilbert of Middletown, Connecticut.

The Auxiliary of the Diocese of Maryland provided funds for a scholarship for Mr. Albert C. Morris of the Virginia Seminary and sent him to Rev. Bertram Brown of Tarboro, North Carolina.

Several parish branches of the Diocese of Chicago joined in sending Mr. Elmer Lofstrom of Nashotah for three months' training under Rev. David Clark of South Dakota, and Mr. Charles Hawtrey of the same Seminary was sent to Rev. H. R. Hole of Michigan, as a result of a scholarship given by one who did not wish his name known.

* * *

Bishop Rowe expected to devote the entire summer to making his triennial visit to Point Hope. He planned to follow the usual route of steamer to Victoria, then U. S. revenue cutter, at the end of July, to Point Hope, returning to Nome early in September. On his arrival in Nome he found that it was impossible to get to Point Hope this year by water. The only other possibility was the air. He left for Point Hope August 3, by airplane, stayed over August 4, and returned to Nome on August 5. The distance was 700 miles each way. Speaking of his experience the Bishop describes it as "great." "The Point Hope people were excited; it was their first view of an airplane." In spite of its brevity the Bishop had a fine and helpful visit and confirmed a class of thirty, prepared by the Ven. F. W. Goodman. From Point Hope the Bishop received and forwarded to the Church Missions House, $50 as the gift of the Point Hope people on account of the Church's Program for 1927. The real significance of such a gift as that can only be understood by those who know something of the property of the Eskimo people and the precarious life they lead in their search for food and fuel. It is not too much to say that every one of those dollars represents at least the equivalent of $20 from the average member of the Church in the United States.

The Bishop says that this mode of Episcopal visitation is expensive, but does not tell the exact amount that he has had to pay for the journey. He does say "As I have traveled over Alaska on foot, with dogs, canoes, small boats, gas boats, steamers, railroads autos, etc., the airplane was the only method I had not used so it was a fitting climax to use it at last."

* * *

The last of the seven mighty arches which are to support the roof of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York has been "turned." "For fifteen years I have dreaded the day when we would have to 'turn' those arches," said Mr. F. T. Young, president of the firm of builders. "But our plans were carried out so that when the last arch was in place our calculations were proved to be as exact as is humanly possible." Each arch was "centered" on a temporary steel scaffolding but the arches themselves are of solid masonry. Says Mr. Ralph Adams Cram, architect, "It is just as straight and honest masonry as that of Chartes or Amiens or any other Gothic cathedral of Europe."

* * *

Very few people know of the practical service rendered by the International and Foreign Missionary Society. Through the gifts of many friends and the enterprise of its committee it has erected at Ventnor, just below Atlantic City, five cottages available for the use of missionary families on furlough. These accommodations have been a great blessing to scores of families, some of them members of our own mission staff. A new building known as Richards Cottage was dedicated on September 8. The cost of the building and furniture is approximately $24,000 of which about $20,000 has already been provided. The committee hopes that it may not be necessary to borrow $4,000 in order to complete the project.

* * *

Miss Lillian Boyd, school teacher of Boston, has become director of religious education at St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston.

* * *

Five churches of Newton Centre, Massachusetts, had a joint service on Sunday to listen to the story of Lausanne as told by one of the delegates, the Rev. Edward M. Noyes, Congregationalist. Sort of carrying on the spirit of the conference, what?

* * *

The conference of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew is to be held in Philadelphia, Holy Trinity parish, October 15-16th. The Satur-

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills.

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

The thief in your church is Indifference. Indifference steals the congregation and the Sunday school. Indifference employs every modern method to entice church members. He uses the park, playground, resort, automobile, movie, theatre, the gun and the rod —everything imaginable to steal the people from your church. You must take advantage of modern methods and overcome this great giant Indifference.

Indifference is your biggest competitor. Meet competition by creating and holding interest and enthusiasm.

Hundreds, yes, thousands, of churches have learned that there is nothing so successful as a parish paper. A local church paper gives strength and power to meet Indifference.

Your church can have its own local paper without cost if you follow our plan. In fact, you can make it a source of revenue. Ask for free samples of local parish papers and particulars.

The National Religious Press,
Grand Rapids, Mich.

Send me free of charge full particulars and samples.

NAME .....

STREET .....

CITY .....

Wit.—Sept.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

day afternoon session to be attended by both men and boys, will be devoted to a welcoming address by President Bonsall and addresses by Rev. Floyd Tomkins, host, and Bishop Garland of Pennsylvania. Other speakers the first day: Professor Twitmyer of the University of Pennsylvania on "Adolescent Boyhood"; Leon C. Palmer, general secretary of the Brotherhood on "The Brotherhood Today and Tomorrow." A service of preparation for Holy Communion will be held in the evening with Bishop Cook of Delaware as leader.

Sunday, corporate communion with Bishop Garland as celebrant and at the eleven o'clock service to be held in Old Christ Church Bishop Lloyd, suffragan of New York, will speak on "The Layman of the Future." In the afternoon the subject is to be "Practical Plans for Personal Workers" with the following speakers; the Rev. "Jack" Hart, student pastor at Pennsylvania; Rev. Frank Cox, rector of Ascension Memorial, New York; Captain B. F. Mountford leader of the Church Army in this country. The final meeting in the evening will be addresses by the Hon. George Wharton Pepper whose subject will be "The World Awake to Evangelism."

* * *

In June the department of missions received a telegram from the Rev. John W. Chapman of Anvik, Alaska, telling of a severe epidemic of influenza which had carried off a large number of adults, leaving forty orphan children to be cared for. He asked for $11,000 to meet the emergency. On the third of this mouth Dr. Wood, secretary, wired Dr. Chapman that the money was in hand, donated by friends of his in the States. Dr. Wood also wired that his staff was to be reinforced by the addition of three women workers and one priest, his own son, the Rev. Henry H. Chapman of Fairbanks, Alaska, who is to spend this winter helping his father. On the third another wire was received from Dr. Chapman expressing his great gratitude.

* * *

A Men's Church League has been organized, with headquarters in New York City, for the purpose of evangelizing the world. An attempt is to be made to pledge a million laymen of Protestant churches to do their best to win one other to Christianity each year.

* * *

Rev. George Craig Stewart, delegate to the Lausanne Conference, was the speaker at the Round Table of Chicago at their first meeting on the 19th. He spoke on the conference and on the high church movement among the Lutherans of Germany.

* * *

Bishop Gray of Northern Indiana conducted a retreat of the Sisters of St. Mary of the province of the Midwest at Kemper Hall from the 6th to the 11th. Sisters were present from Kenosha, Chicago, Davenport, and Fond du Lac.

* * *

The National Council reports thru Mr. Franklin, treasurer, that a new record has been established. "We have passed September first without borrowing any money from the banks." Twenty-five dioceses have paid the minimum amount expected of them on their budget quota to September first, and five have paid their full amounts for the year.

* * *

The National Council has spent this year in China $100,000 more than would have been spent in a normal year due to emergency needs of missionaries. In a statement to the press before starting on his way to China Dr. John W. Wood, secretary of missions, said that the Church is to press its work in China without curtailment despite the setbacks that have been encountered. "Except where slight reductions in appropriations have been suggested by the bishops in China we plan to go ahead on the basis laid down in the budget formulated by the General Convention in New Orleans."

* * *

After an absence of seven months during which time he underwent a major operation, the Rev. J. Howard Gibbons, rector of the Ascension, Frankfort, Ky., has returned to his parish. He has also resumed his other duties, diocesan secretary, editor of the diocesan paper and correspondent for the Church weeklies.

* * *

A conference of Oriental students was held at Taylor Hall, Racine, Wisconsin, during the week of September 7th, with students present from India, China, Japan, the Philip-

SAINT MARY'S
Knoxville, Illinois
An accredited college preparatory school with special department for girls in the grades. Athletics. Music. Art. Expression. Secretarial and Business courses. For catalogue write to the Rector.

FREEHOLD
MILITARY SCHOOL
For 80 Select Young Boys
A school with the personal touch. Just enough military training to inculcate habits of obedience, promptness, orderliness, cleanliness and self-reliance. The students' comforts, pleasures and sports are as carefully considered as their mental training. Healthful location. 42 miles from N. Y., 66 miles from Phila. For catalog address. MAJOR CHAS M. DUNCAN, P. O. Box W, Freehold, N. J.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California
A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited, R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

NURSING COURSE
of 2½ years, leading to R. N. degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll Now. Send for full information to
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas,
Newark, N. J.

Confirmation Instructions
by
Bishop Johnson
50c a copy $4.00 a dozen
WITNESS BOOKS

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin
Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

THE NEW YORK TRAINING SCHOOL FOR DEACONESSES
419 West 110th St. New York
Prepares women for life service in the Church as Deaconesses, or as Trained Workers.
Two-year Academic course.
Field Work in both Religious Education and Social Service.

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City. City.

ORGAN FOR SALE
ESTEY 9 STOP: SALICIONAL 8, OBOE 8', St. Diapason 8', Harmonic Flute 4', Diapason 8', Dulciana 8', Melodia 8', Octave 4', Bourdon 16', Pneumatic Action, electric blower and motor. All in A1 condition. BARGAIN: $1,550.00 net cash as it stands. Also oak-brass pulpit, and oak communion rail at a sacrifice.
Moving into new and larger church. Communicate with The Church of the Holy Nativity, Garrison Ave. & Edgerton Road, Baltimore, Md.

ASSISTANT WANTED
FOR RAPIDLY DEVELOPING NEW ENGland parish; communicant strength 1,000; Church School 750. Adequate salary for right man. Liberal churchmanship. Box H., Witness, 416 Lafayette St., New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs, chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT
SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY
House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y. References required.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

pines, Jamaica and the United States. The discussion was upon the political and religious problems of the Orient and the Occident. The conference was under the management of the Orientals, the chairman being Mr. Haridas Mazumdar, an Indian student. A service was held on the 11th, the order of worship being drawn up by Mr. R. Ronquillo from the Philippines and included the Beatitudes, the General Confession and the Gospel for the day. Short addresses were given by the chaplain, Professor A. Haire Forster and by Mr. Kataska, a Japanese Episcopal priest. Buddists, Shintoists, Hindus, Confucianists, Quakers, Episcopalians and others joined in this service which was begun by three minutes of complete silence. After dinner stories, illustrating the humor of many races were one of the features of the gathering. A paper, The International Bombshell, exploded at breakfast each morning and neither age nor race was safe from its shells. Among Occidentals present were Miss Grace Lindley, Dean Lathrop and Mr. Leidt from "281" and the Rev. D. A. McGregor of China who spend several years in religious work in India. Mrs. Biller, director of Taylor Hall, made an ideal conference director and hostess. Mr. M. Matsushita of Japan was elected chairman for the 1928 conference.

* * *

The synod of the IV province is to meet in Columbia, Georgia, October 25th-27th.

* * *

Margaret Hall, Versailles, Kentucky, the diocesan school for girls, opened its thirtieth year September 15th, with pupils enrolled from New York, Florida, California, Missouri, West Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky. The Bishop of the Diocese presided at the opening of the school.

During the summer extensive improvements have been made upon the school property, especially the gymnasium. An indoor swimming pool 45x25 feet, with all the necessary equipment for a pool, has been completed and ready for use this term. No girl's school in Kentucky has such a feature. The school will also have a winter tennis court.

* * *

A graduate school for the Western Theological Seminary opens this week in Evanston, Illinois, with the reopening of the undergraduate school planned for the fall of next year. The classes of the graduate school are to be held in the parish house of St. Mark's Church.

* * *

Dr. Rudolph B. Teusler of St. Luke's Hospital, Tokyo, is at work on plans for the permanent buildings and it is hoped that construction on the first unit may soon begin.

* * *

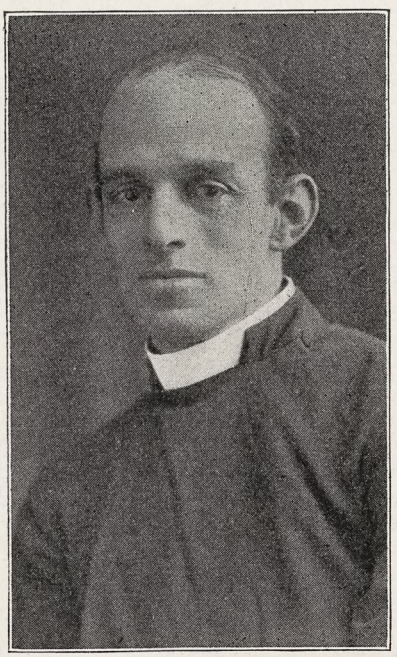
The national council of the Girls' Friendly Society, this year celebrating their fiftieth year of work in this country, is to be held in Boston from November 2-6th. Among the leaders so far announced are Miss Adelaide Case of Teachers College, New York, Bishop Oldham of Albany, Bishop Slattery of Massachusetts, and Miss Era Betzner of New York. Bishop Murray, presiding bishop, is to preach at the closing service, which is to be held in Trinity Church. The conference plans to divide into groups for the following discussions: International Understanding, Jesus' Way with People, a study of religious values, Jesus and the World Today, a study of social standards, and New Roads to our Goals, a discussion of leadership problems and opportunities.

* * *

Seventy clergymen of the diocese of Albany attended the conference held at St. Agnes School on September 14-16th. The purpose of the conference, arranged by Bishop Oldham, was to promote fellowship among the clergy and to provide an opportunity to discuss matters that could not be brought forward at conventions. Among the speakers were Rev. W. H. Foreman, rural secretary of the National Council; Bishops Oldham and Nelson, Rev. G. Warfield Hobbs, editor of the Spirit of Missions; Rev. B. R. Reinheimer of Southern Ohio and Rt. Rev. Samuel Booth of Vermont. The event, by vote, is to be repeated annually.

* * *

Plans are under way to place a memorial window in St. Mary's Cathedral, Memphis, Tennessee, in memory of Bishops Otey, Quintaid and Beatty.



* * *

The tenth synod of the province of Washington is to be held in Roanoke, Virginia, October 18-20. The opening devotional service is to be led by Bishop Cook of Delaware. The session will be largely devoted to a discussion of the boarding and day schools under Church administration within the province. There are about forty of these and many head masters and principals and members of the faculty are expected. The association of schools under church influence in the province will hold its annual meeting at the same time. This is the first time in the history of the province that the Church boarding schools have been featured at a synod meeting and much good in the way of a better mutual understanding is expected to result. Few people realize the high position in the educational world occupied by the schools of the Episcopal Church.

* * *

The Rev. Thomas Casady, rector of All Saints, Omaha, is to be con-

25,000 CHURCHES USE
OSTERMOOR
CUSHIONS
BUILT - NOT STUFFED
Illustrated Booklet and Samples Free
Old Cushions renovated and recovered equal to new.
Ostermoor & Co., Inc., Dept. C, 114 Elizabeth St.. N.Y

I Pronunce Them
A NOVEL
By
Rev. G. A. Studdert-Kennedy

A STARTLING story dealing with the modern problem of marriage and divorce and the attitude of the Church toward this problem, NOW READY—$2.15 postpaid.

WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Ave.
CHICAGO - - - - ILLINOIS

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland.
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore.
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago.
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago.
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago.
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City.
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily, 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily, 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York
139 West Forty-sixth Street
Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D., Litt.D.
Sunday Masses, 7:30, 8:15, 9, 10:45.
Vespers and Benediction, 4.
Week-day Masses, 7, 8, 9:30.

St. John's, Cynwyd, Pa.
The Birthplace of the Lenten Offering
When in Philadelphia attend services here. Call Cynwyd 1382 for information.
Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, D.D., Rector
Sundays 8 and 11 A. M.

secrated bishop of Oklahoma in his parish church on October 2nd. The sermon is to be by Bishop Johnson of Colorado. * * *

The seventh annual Bishop's Day for the Indians on the Uintah Indian Reservation in Utah was held on Sunday, August 7, at the Church of the Holy Spirit (Indian). Randlett, Utah. The Bishop, Archdeacon and clergy gathered at Randlett on the Thursday preceding to help in preparation, constructing an out-door altar, rehearsing the choir and getting ready for the "feed" and games that were to follow the service. It was a beautiful day. The colorful vestments and the decoration of the altar blended with the green of the lawn and the trees and made a really wonderful setting for the hearty and dignified service. This annual outdoor service is one that is looked forward to by all the people living in the Reservation country. More than fifty of our Indian and white communicants received. The Bishop's sermon was interpreted in Ute by Charlie Traverse, who is one of the leading Indians among the Utes, a communicant and active worker for the Church, taking part in all the services at Randlett.

After the service, while the clergy and workers were meeting the Indians, the Archdeacon took charge of the Indian feast. With the assistance of Mr. Gregory and some of the young people, some seven hundred plate-fulls of good dinner were served. Some of these were repeats but by the time the supply of beef and bread and potatoes was exhausted all the Indians were completely satisfied and to satisfy an Indian with food is a real task. They came in line to the table, received their filled plates and passed on to eat whereever they could find room and shade. Dinner was topped off with an ice cream cone for everyone.

While for an hour or two the dinners were settling the clergy with cars journeyed around taking the choir members to their homes, in most cases too far for walking. About four, the games, under the direction of the Archdeacon, began and for several hours Indian men and women and boys and girls had a joyous time with tugs of war, races and a game of shinny between two teams of Indian women.

As evening came near, the Indians and other visitors began to leave and the clergy, pretty well tired out, journeyed to Roosevelt for an evening service there in Trinity church.

* * *

The Commission to visit China, in accordance with the request of the Bishops, expects to sail from Vancouver on October 13th.

Owing to the death of Bishop Brown and the additional responsi-

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York.
Madison Ave. at 35th St
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m., 4 p. m.
Daily 12:30.

Trinity Church, New York.
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York.
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York.
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11 A. M., and 8 P. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp & Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — In a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

bility suddenly thrust upon Bishop Tucker, it has been necessary for the latter to ask to be released from his agreement to serve on the Commission. Bishop Sanford of San Joaquin has kindly agreed to take his place.

The Itinerary of the Commission so far as determined at present will be approximately as follows:

China—October 28th to December 10th. Address, care Mr. M. P. Walker, 20 Minghong Road, Shanghai, China. Cable address—Amchumiss, Shanghai.

Tokyo—December 15th to January 1st. Address, St. Luke's Hospital, Tsukiji, Tokyo, Japan. Cable address—St. Lukes, Tokyo.

Kyoto—January 2nd to 12th. Address, Karasumaru-Dori, Shimotachi-Uri, Kyoto, Japan. Cable address—Amohumiss, Kyoto.

Philippine Islands—January 15th to February 15th. Address, care Bishop Mosher, 567 Calle Isaac Peral, Manila, P. I. Cable address—Bishopstod, Manila.

Decision has not yet been made as to whether the Commission will travel westward across India to Jerusalem for the meeting of the International Missionary Council in March, or return eastward across the Pacific.

Clerical Changes

BLACKSHEAR, Rev. W. S., resigns as rector of St. John's, Versailles, Kentucky, to study a year at Oxford University, England.

BIGELOW, Rev. Frank H., rector of Christ Church, Pomfret, Conn., has resigned to devote all of his time to educational work.

CLAYTOR, Rev. Edward M., resigns as rector of Trinity, Edgefield, South Carolina, to accept charge of St. Paul's, Quincy, Florida.

CORBIN, Rev. C. Canterbury, rector of St. Augustine's, Asbury Park, N. J., has accepted the rectorship of St. Augustine's, Atlantic City.

deOVIES, Rev. Raimundo, resigns as rector of Trinity, Galveston, Texas, to accept appointment as chaplain at the University of the South.

HALLOCK, Rev. Frank H., professor of Old Testament at Seabury Divinity School has been called to the rectorship of St. Luke's, Buffalo, N. Y.

HOPSON, Rev. Sidney M., ordained deacon by Bishop Juhan on September 11th has been placed in charge of St. George's, Fort George Island, Florida, and the work at Bethany Hall.

LAUDERBURN, Rev. Frederic C., assistant at Trinity, Pittsburgh, Pa., has accepted appointment as instructor in pastoral theology at the General Theological Seminary.

MELLEN, Rev. Arthur H., has resigned as rector of St. Clement's, East New York, to become the assistant at Christ Church, Brooklyn, N. Y.

MILLS, Rev. James, rector of St. Paul's, Duluth, Minnesota, has accepted the deanship of St. Paul's Cathedral, Oklahoma City.

TEMPLE, Rev. Charles H., vicar of All Saints, Whalom, Mass., and assistant at Christ Church, Fitchburg, has accepted the rectorship of St. Mark's, Warren, Rhode Island.

WALTON, Rev. Basil M., resigns as rector of St. Paul's, Orange, Texas, to accept charge of St. James', Lake City, Florida.

WINECOFF, Rev. Thomas E., resigns as rector of St. James', Riverton, Wyoming, to accept the rectorship of the Good Shepherd, Scranton, Pa.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary

An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago

College Preparatory and general courses

Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Course

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Now You Must Know the Why of Missions

NEVER has there been a more critical time in the Missionary life of the Church. With China in turmoil, and the Mexican situation so ominous, many are asking if the Church's efforts have been justified, and if the work shall go on.

Vestrymen, officers and teachers of Church Schools, leaders of parish organizations, all Church workers, must be ready to answer these questions.

THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS
SUPPLIES THE ANSWER

Generalizations will not do. Facts fresh from the fields are needed, and these are to be found in every one of the monthly issues of THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS.

In the October number is the first comprehensive survey of our work in Mexico since the new Constitution, with its drastic restrictions on Christian work, was made effective.

Every issue brings just the information, in story and picture, that Church people need, must have, to keep up with the rapidly shifting course of events that effect so vitally the Church's efforts to evangelize the world.

Mail Your Subscription Order Now

THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS,
281 Fourth Ave., New York.

.....1927

Enclosed is $1.00 ($1.25 in Canada). Send THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS for a year, beginning with the.....issue, to

Name .....

Local Address .....

City ..... State .....

TO THE CLERGY: You read The Spirit of Missions. You must realize the importance of its monthly message for your parishioners. Will you not bring it once more to the attention of your peoples and urge them to subscribe?

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

FIRST OF SERIES BY BISHOP JOHNSON

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, OCTOBER 6, 1927

IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration

For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 635 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co

Baltimore, Md.

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring

Inquiries given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403) (Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts. NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J.

Church Furniture

MEMORIALS IN CARVED WOOD

PEWS · ALTARS · PULPITS

SUNDAY SCHOOL

SEATING

American Seating Company

1024 LYTTON BUILDING CHICAGO

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings

Gorgeous Combinations of Color

Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio New York City

In Selecting a Memorial to a Loved One

what could be a happier, a more fitting thought than a living memorial of Golden-Voiced

Deagan Tower Chimes

serving through the years to keep alive the faith of those who have it, and helping, as no other means can, to re-awaken childhood reverence in those who have strayed. Write for literature. Standard Sets $6,000 and up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER

and 4 & 5 Duncannon St: Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery

Wood

Stone

Metal and

Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows

Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.,

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.,

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

EST. 1877

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— OFFICE AND STUDIO —

221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

— PHOTOS, DESIGNS AND ESTIMATES UPON APPLICATION —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 7 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

THE ASSUMPTION OF FAITH

The Introduction to a Series of Articles

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

THE Christian life is an experiment based on an assumption. So is every other kind of life. There is no such thing as infallible certainty in anything that we do. Marriage, business, scientific investigations are all of the same character. You have no assurance in anything which you do that the thing is going to work out as you have planned it.

The element of uncertainty is that which gives the spice of adventure to human endeavor. Religion is no exception to this general rule.

I believe in God because it is the only assumption upon which I can justify myself in living a life of moral purpose. It is not a choice of several assumptions. It is a choice of two; either there is a personal being who created me with personal capacities or there isn't.

Whatever attributes I may assign to God I believe that He exists because such belief is far more credible than that there is no other source of moral action than the material world out of which we may have been evolved.

I accept Lord Balfour's reductio ad absurdum of the materialistic position. I cannot believe that certain neurons, having assembled themselves together in a non-intelligent fashion finally created the mind of man which in turn assumes to analyze the non-intelligent forces that created it.

I believe in God as the author of moral action and also as the one who determines the ultimate destiny of moral conduct. I believe in God as one who made us, within and without; as one who created the order which exists in the universe and also the mental processes by which that order is apprehended and utilized; as one who originated the moral law and also formed the conscience by which that moral law is accepted; as one who created whatever lies beyond this life on earth and as one who implanted the spiritual desires by which His creatures seek immortality.

I believe that the law of evolution, in so far as it has been demonstrated and not guessed at, justifies rather than nullifies my soul's desire.

For in every stage of the evolutionary process there was an instinctive force within the living organism which pressed on to a higher life which lay beyond the experience of that organism.

For example, if the monkey became a man he did it at the expense of any previous experience in his simian life. He pushed on to something which he could not scientifically have apprehended. Moreover evolution assumes a definite purpose in creation of which man is not necessarily the last word. He is merely the last stage in the evolutionary process of which we are aware, but our awareness is no sign that this creative genius has exhausted itself. I assume that the monkey was confident in the day of his ascendency that nothing more wonderful lay beyond.

As a scientific being I assume that the order and progress in the universe is a sign of the oneness of the God who made it all and gave it the order and purpose which makes it intelligible.

Upon this assumption I try out the experiments of a religious life and find enough satisfaction in the experiment to justify its continuance. What I can't understand is that anyone should question my right to such an experience, or question my intelligence because I do so. If I were to devote my life to collecting postage stamps or working out cross word puzzles I do not imagine that it would be anyone's business but my own. At least I would be let alone.

The antagonism to religion is to me one of the greatest proofs that it is not futile. If it were it would not invoke opposition.

If anyone will bother to read the story of scientific research he will find that it also has come to us through much opposition. I am told that this opposition has been ecclesiastical, as though the Church were a person instead of a composite group of all kinds of men in every age.

The reason why those who opposed scientific research were Churchmen is because they were, in that age, the only people with intelligence enough to be scientists or to oppose them, for as a matter of fact the scientists were churchmen as well as their antagonists. If they had not been Churchmen they would never have been educated enough to become scientists. Roger Bacon was a monk, and if he had not been in a monastery he never would have become the student that he was.

If you attribute the opposition of science to ecclesiastics you must also acknowledge that the development of science was ecclesiastical too, because there was no other source of intellectual stimulus but that which the Church produced in the Middle Ages.

So man goes on in the adventure that we call life, experimenting upon assumptions, in the face of ridicule and opposition.

The God who made the world and us has always rewarded the persistent seeker after truth with marvellous revelations of His law. But no scientific seeker in the XIV century could have demonstrated to the world the practical wisdom of his endeavor, for it seemingly ended in futility and a prison cell, yet all that we now enjoy came to us because these visionaries persisted in their visions.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

So it is perfectly sane to trust the intuitions with which Providence has endowed us and to hope that those who seek for moral and spiritual realities will find them if they pursue their quest with sincerity and patience. In any event the man who has devoted his life to spiritual endeavor has followed a line of action with which he was endowed by his Creator. In other words he has assumed that God is good and intelligent and that the spiritual aspirations within us are a tribute to that intelligence and goodness which I believe are beyond man's understanding and analysis.

In short I believe in God rather than in man, even though the man in question seems to know a great deal.

Let's Know

CONSCIENCE FUND

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

EVERY now and then someone writes up the Conscience Fund of the national Treasury Department. I think it has never been discussed in this column, so, for the sake of our readers to whom it may be new—here goes.

The Fund dates from 1811, in the administration of President Madison. It consists of sums of money sent by anonymous persons to relieve their consciences of some dishonesty perpetrated against the government. No inquiries are ever made as to the identity of the senders but the money is turned into the national treasury and a separate account kept in the books. The account now shows a total, after more than a century, of nearly $600,000, representing amounts all the way from a one-cent postage stamp to $80,000 in cash.

For instance, there was a Union soldier who deserted during the Civil War, taking with him an army mule. Many years later, as a successful farmer, he returned the price of the mule with interest since the time of his desertion. Then there was the case of a wealthy New York importer who had won a suit against the government for an over-charge on some imported merchandise. After several years he determined that the judgment had been too liberal, so he purchased a thousand dollar government bond, tore it in half, and returned one half of the useless document to the treasury.

Some ten years ago a registered package came in containing $30,000 in currency. An anonymous letter came separately explaining that the sender had once defrauded the government out of $20,000 and that he was making restitution up to the scriptural four-fold standard, of which this was the final payment. It was the largest amount ever received by the Fund.

The largest returns come from smugglers—people who have beaten the custom officials. One penitent tore $8,000 in two pieces, sending one half with a letter stating that if the treasury would acknowledge the receipt of it he would send the other half—and he did it.

One return came all the way from England. It was sent by the Rev. Prebendary Bariff, Vicar of St. Giles' Church, Cripplegate, London, with a letter saying that it had been given him by an unnamed person who had once upon a time cheated the United States government and now wished to make amends. The sum enclosed ran to more than $14,000.

A letter from North Dakota enclosed ten dollars saying—"There is a lot more due in the near future. All of us become honest as we near the Great Hereafter. I need only sign my name as 'Conscience'". It may seem as tho that letter indicates an instance of one being frightened into honesty. Yet what a wholesome thing it would be if people could, throughout life, keep an eye on eternity. The reaction from so-called "other-worldliness" in religion is likely to result in such absorption in "this-worldliness" that people lose all perspective of eternity. There is a future life and the complexion of it is determined by the kind of life we lead here. It is not something to be frightened over but a fact to be reckoned with. Maybe that is why we are given this thing called Conscience.

On the Cover

THE Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker is a priest of the Church, an author and lecturer of prominence who is at present engaged in journalism. A series of articles on The Prayer Book as Mystery Drama is to start in THE WITNESS next week. In addition to this unusual series we are to feature a series by our editor, Bishop Johnson, on the Teachings of the Church, the following subjects being the weekly topics: An Apostolic Ministry; A Definite Creed; Confession of Sin; Reception of Sacraments; Eucharistic Worship; Financial Support; Missionary Activity.

Does Might Make Righteousness?

By Rev. Alfred Newbery

WE ARE all familiar with the philosophy summed up in "might makes right." It has worked and is working havoc in international relationships, and is all too frequently the basis on which many a home is run. We are in grave danger of teaching it to our children when we attempt to settle all disagreements between them or between us and them by the fiat of authority. "Possession is nine points of the law" is most of the time another way of saying "might makes right." A more modern equivalent is "try and get it."

But putting aside a few subtle rationalizations, we are certainly aware as individuals at least that "might makes right" is a sinister fallacy. We are more or less consciously sinning when we act upon it. It grows less and less easy to defend. It is an open enemy, and while we cannot pretend that it is a dying enemy, we can claim that it is the easier to handle for its being openly known for what it is.

But it has a covert twin, still working against us in the dark, the more dangerous because the less recognized. It might be called "might makes righteousness." It works this way.

In this terrible age of nervous strain and enforced proximity with our hectic industrialism and our equally hectic attempt in recreation to escape from the monotony thereof, in our pigeon-hole apartments, and mad urge toward economic independence, it frequently happens that people get on each other's nerves. A harried parent trying in vain to cope with a cool, hard, hostile stranger who is, curiously enough, that parent's son, or daughter; a young man trying to escape the toils of a proprietorship that calls itself parental love; a sister fighting the antagonism of a brother, who, with the privileges of the domestic tyrrany and its opportunities, criticizes her dress, her friends, her religion, or the lack of them; these are liable to what is called a nervous break down. It is more accurately in a great many cases a spiritual breakdown, for it is the inability to keep or create an inner life of harmony which precipitates matters more often than lack of sleep, poor food, or a definite physical defect or weakness. It is primarily a case of maladjustment as the social worker would call it. Somewhere there has been a surrender, a surrender of spiritual integrity. There has been a giving in to the desire to hate, and at the same time to be aloof from the rasping personality which is making all the trouble. There has been an abandonment of those values the cleaving to which would mean a healthy detachment.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

And all this is summed up on the oft-expressed and more often felt notion, "when I am well enough I can stand it, but when I am physically below par, I go to pieces." Let us not be misunderstood. Human association can produce a burden too heavy to be borne. There are probably cases where it is wise to flee. But they are greatly outnumbered by the cases where the burden is unbearable simply because we are carrying it the wrong way.

If spiritual integrity is directly dependent on physical tone, then we might as well throw up the sponge. There is no such thing as spiritual integrity to fight for. If might, our physical well being makes righteousness, our inner harmony, then salvation is for the economically and naturally favored few.

In the cool presence of God, I can see that other so intimate and so strange person, parent or brother or sister or child or roommate, with a vision that approximates my Father's. I can see them struggling with hates and fears, with suppressions, and inhibitions. I can see love warped into the hunger to dominate, I can see yearning for companionship distorted into jealousy. I can see symptoms of spiritual diseases. And then close to the heart of God, I can pity without condescension, I can be aloof without contempt, I can intercede without superiority. And I am free. Not free from conflict. I must fight those diseases in myself. But free because my enemy is not parading in my own heart as physical weakness, because the source of my strength lies not in tonics or flight, but in clearing my house of desires to fight back with the same weapons wherewith I am being attacked and in opening my doors to the spiritual power that is always available if I am living toward integrity. It is not might that makes right. It is not might that makes righteousness. But if I turn to Him, He will hide me privily by His own presence from the provoking of all men: He will keep me secretly in His tabernacle from the strife of tongues.

THE WORLD IS RUN BY NOBODIES

They Are the Everyday Heroes

BY REV. G. A. STUDDERT-KENNEDY

IT WAS a bit of conversation set me thinking. It often is. An idle word often tells you more than a set speech. It is what people say when they are off their guard that betrays their real thoughts.

"Who's that?" I ask a friend, about a quiet-looking man with grey hair that had nodded to him as we passed out of a cheap restaurant.

"Oh, nobody," my friend replied. "He's a clerk in one of the offices near here, and he grubs at this place."

He was Nobody. It set me thinking about the millions of nobodies who do the work of the world, and upon whom the somebodies depend.

I was going up to Liverpool from Euston that night. It is a great train. Gets up to seventy in places. I would be driven by Nobody. Tearing, roaring, rattling over the rails, three or four hundred lives depending on Nobody.

World Run by "Nobodies"

The 'bus I boarded outside the restaurant was driven by Nobody, to whom I entrusted my skin and bones with the utmost confidence. The food I had in my stomach, making me feel at peace with all the world, was cooked by Nobody in the kitchen of the restaurant.

The waitress who served me looked as if she thought she was Somebody. And so she was, bless her heart! But there is a lot in that. The Nobodies work behind the scenes, the Somebodies appear upon the stage. It's the limelight does it. But there is a lot of stuff that looks all right by limelight that would look small beer if you brought it out into the sun.

What the world suffers from nowadays is a great deal too much limelight and too little sun. The world is really run by Nobodies, and whether it is a happy or a miserable world depends almost entirely upon what sort of bodies the Nobodies are.

I have just been reading a book on Russia by a friend of mine. He is a good chap, and knows what he is talking about. He speaks their lingo like a native and has travelled there for years. It is a tragic tale he has to tell. It is a book to make you weep. I know Russia is a controversial subject, but this book does not make you feel like taking sides. It just makes your heart ache.

Tale from Russia

It reveals the truth that even supposing the Somebodies in Russia had been saints and geniuses they had an impossible job on. What makes it impossible is the failure of the Nobodies, and the result is misery. My Heaven, what misery! We have some of our own, but it is not in the same street.

Here's a quotation that has burned itself into my memory word for word. A Russian workman describing some travel impressions at the end of 1926 says:

"I came to the town of Omsk; there, at the very station, neglected children were lying quite naked; I certainly counted more than thirteen of them. But on the market by the station I saw about ten more like them, running about naked, collecting all kinds of refuse and eating it. Afterwards I came to Samara, and as soon as I entered the station—and it was at least midnight by then—I saw stark naked children lying on the bare ground cowering together in the cold."

That does not bear thinking about. It is partly due to the Russian Somebodies. All controversies apart, they have made tragic and terrible mistakes. But it is clear as daylight that the main cause is that the poor old Russian Nobody has not wakened up yet. He is still rubbing his eyes and blinking at the world.

Our Everyday Heroes

As I read I thanked God for the quality of the British Nobody. People grouse at him, but in our hearts we know that he is as sound a body as ever worked for bread. It is easy to see the black spots in the life of this little island of ours, but taking it all round, it is amazing what gets done, and in the main Nobody does it.

His name never appears in the papers, unless he wins a crossword puzzle, or happens to die doing his duty in some dramatic way. He has no brilliant gifts and cannot make a speech. He may be a bit prejudiced, stupid, and slow to move, but he goes on doing his job, and doing it decently and well.

We know we can trust him to do it, and so the world goes round. It wobbles and shakes a bit at times, but for the most of us there is bread to eat and clothes to wear. Trains and 'buses run to time, streets are cleaned, drains are mended, ships go sailing on the seas, and Nobody does it.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

A Debt We All Owe

We get so used to it we take it all for granted—unless Nobody strikes. Then we realize our need of him, and he becomes Somebody at once, if it is only somebody to curse. But that is a bad way of looking at it. It means that we only see in the limelight, and that our eyes are blinded by the sun.

We do not realize the truth about the world in which we live, the ordinary, everyday, nothing-to-write-home-or-to-the-"Daily-Mail" about world. We do not realize our debt to Nobody, and we set too much store by Somebodies.

Of course, there must be Somebodies. We could not do without them. But it is clear that everybody cannot be somebody. If everybody were somebody nobody would be anybody. That is as plain as the nose on your face. If everybody were somebody we would all be on a dead level, and then we would all be dead. The only kind of level you can reduce human beings to is a dead level.

So long as man is man alive he won't live on a level, but we need a sense of perspective and proportion to see the world as it is, and we must remember that Nobody is a very important body on whom we all depend. We need to remember it ourselves if we are Nobodies. "What does it matter what I do or think? I can't make any difference. I'm nobody." That is what we are tempted to think. But we must not think it. It does matter. It matters more than anything else.

In a sense the whole bag of tricks depends on you. If you fail, and such as you, the show goes bust even as it is, and all hope of making it better goes bust too. We need to remember it most of all if we are Somebodies. Anybody who forgets his debt to Nobody is a silly fool. He is what men call "a self-made man," and that is bound to be an awful mess. I have met them in my time, these self-made men. Men of "independent means" who owe no man anything.

They make me want to laugh, like clowns in a circus. As if any "means" could be independent, and any man could live without a debt to all mankind. The more a man has the more he owes to Nobody. I know that I owe him so much that I could never hope to pay my debt in full. I'd like to if I could, Heaven knows! But I just have not got it either on me or in me. I'll be a debtor all my life, and know it—the longer I live the more cause I find to say, "Thank God for Nobody."

Reprinted by arrangement from THE TORCH, organ of the Industrial Christian Fellowship.

Dr. William Keller
Works with Seminarians

Cheerful Confidences

IN THE DAYS OF THY YOUTH

By Rev. George Parkin Atwater

IN THE feeding of the multitude, the few loaves and fishes were furnished by a "lad." Does it say that he gave them unwillingly or that he was paid for them? I am afraid to consult the narrative again, fearing that I may find some hint that the lad did not surrender them freely and gladly. If he didn't he was unlike my boys and girls. But no doubt he was as other children are, susceptible to the appeal of love and eager for service.

How we all enjoy the children young and old. Was it not Lowell who in maturity passed a "Home for Incurable Children" and remarked "I ought to be in that home?" The white-haired may be children, enjoying life's simple pleasure with zest, romping at the fireside, and rushing pell-mell through all the staid primness of empty solemnity, with a dash of sprightliness (oh, so wicked in one so old) that gives a flavor of exquisite delicacy to their companionship. The middle-aged children, full in the stream of life's work, yet manfully, playing, how strong they are. They meet life's shocks with a smile. They are the ambassadors of the Kingdom of Heaven. "Except ye be converted and become as little children," runs the Divine message. Phillips Brooks was one of these. It was incomprehensible to many a person adjusted to the angular preciseness of unconverted maturity that such a pure soul should at times exhibit such hilarity and joyousness. But the wise knew.

We love the young children. They have a part of our Parish which is unique. They are a perpetual wonder, a joy and a reward. Watch them come to Sunday School some morning—little girls with white stockings and shoes and fluffy skirts, walking with all the dignity of their elders—boys who reverse the practice of the patriarchs and lament because they cannot romp and rend their garments.

It is a joy to corner a few of them and tell them stories. They like all sorts of stories, serious and whimsical. "When I was in college," you begin, and all faces turn toward yours, "I gathered a bushel of walnuts." (Little mouths begin to water.) "I put them in a d-a-r-k closet. When I went for them two days later, they were a-l-l gone. (Awe and sympathy.) I didn't see them until the next year when I went to the tree and there they were hanging on the tree." (First silence and then a chorus of protests.)

Do you remember your Sunday School treats at Christmas? The person who forgets his own childhood has no clue to the best entertainment for his children. Today, alas, the children are surfeited with toys, candy, novelties and excitement. The simple pleasures have passed. The parents who can fire the imagination of their child so that he rejoices in the simple joys of home are wise in their generation.

What is it that delights the children at Christmas time? Not the gifts alone, but the Christmas atmosphere. There is an air of expectancy on Christmas Eve that transforms every ordinary experience and casts a radiance over every ordinary condition. Then is the time to gather the children for their treat. The very stars seem brighter. If the earth is mantled with snow, as it should be, there is a tingling feeling of comradeship with every tree and bush. They too are decked with ornaments for the birthday of Christ. The bells ring out good cheer. The heavens once more seem to ring with the song of the angels, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, goodwill toward men." The warmth and light of the Church suffuse an indefinable glow and cheer very different from ordinary occasions. From every point something seems to be closing in on that assembly, something that warms the heart.

Then the entertainment. Scared little boys arise and in a loud monotone declaim the Christmas odes. Dainty girls, far more equal to the occasion, recite with more modulated voices the well known Christmas verses. Someone sings. Then comes a hush. Sleigh bells are heard. The Sunday School Superintendent, with the air of not only being on good terms with Santa Claus but with all goblins, fairies, elves and gnomes, complacently steps aside, smiling the familiar smile; in bustles Jim Wiggins, dressed in what appears to be a red kimona outlined with asbestos wool. An ancient beard that looks as if it had been worried by a dog, hangs from Jim's lower jaw. That beard has evidently not rehearsed its part, for it sometimes wiggles when Jim speaks, sometimes not. The children are charmed into silence. Little Susan in the front row shyly shrinks back while Mary and Martha gaze with open eyes. David gives a chuckle of delight and Frank calls out "Hello, Santa." Little Clementine Wiggins cannot refrain from saying to her neighbor, "It's papa."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

In the meantime Santa has been delivering his speech about his reindeer and gifts and good little boys and girls. He begins to distribute the bright yellow oranges and the incomparable candy. The Parson and Superintendent, with a familiarity that is astonishing, help Santa Claus and even venture to give him directions. As if Santa did not know what to do! Jim in the meantime is suffering from the intolerable heat and wishing by this time that the whole thing were in Jericho—no—Petrograd.

Little Dorothy gains confidence and approaches the Parson. "My little brother could not come tonight. May I take a bag of candy to him?" The Parson glances into her eager face and, overlooking the fact little brother is only seven weeks old, hands out an extra bag to Dorothy. This encourages Donald. "My aunt is visiting here from the West. May I have some candy for her?" The Parson cannot resist Donald. A shy little tot comes near and places herself under his observation. "Have you your candy?" "No, I do not belong to this Sunday School." "That's all right, take it along." So they come until the tree is stripped, and Jim is released. The children return home happy, and the parents proudly tell each other how well the children recited.

But the children take home other impressions, too. The Christmas story is not forgotten. It bears fruit in their lives. So the right of children to enjoy life must always be satisfied. Happy is that Parish family that recognizes this. No efforts spent on their behalf are wasted. And if in later years the man or woman will rehearse the experiences that moulded their characters, they will find not the least to have been the forces that centered in the wise interest of the Church in their childhood.

First Aid for Whooping Cough

Mother, just rub Roche's Embrocation on your child's chest and see the quick relief it brings.

Very soon it loosens the phlegm and overcomes congestion. Once you have learned its value, you will never be without it for emergencies.

Sold by All Druggists or

E. FOUGERA & CO., Inc., New York

W. Edwards & Sons, London, Eng., Proprietors

ROCHE'S EMBROCATION

John Rathbone Oliver

FEAR

The Autobiography of James Edwards

You have one parishioner and "personal problem" whom this book fits like a glove

$2.50

B. H. Streeter's

Reality

A sterling good book which without any blowing of trumpets is steadily making new friends

$2.50

THE WRESTLE OF RELIGION WITH TRUTH

By Henry Nelson Wieman

Author of "Religious Experience and Scientific Method"

A readily intelligible refutation of two opposing claims that have perverted religion again and again, the one denying that religion has any need of truth and the other that religion has all the truth it needs. Price $2.50

New Studies in Mystical Religion
By Rufus M. Jones
Author of "The Inner Life," etc.

Back of it is ripe scholarship, but it is written for the general reader interested in the verities and realities of vital religion. Price $1.75

Understanding the Apostles' Creed
By Donald McFayden

After putting the creed of the primitive church into a particularly well-designed historical frame, Dr. McFayden seeks to extract its elements of permanent value. Probable price $2.50

The Religious Mind
By C. K. Mahoney (Dakota Wesleyan)

Credits religious concepts rationally based on the experiences of religion with the ability to perform the same function as that performed by the concepts similarly based on other phases of experience. Price $2.00

The Religious Attitude
By Angus S. Woodburne

An original and stimulating inquiry into what constitutes the difference of species between the religious attitude and that of the (1) scientist, (2) the artist, and (3) the moralist. Probable price $2.25

Morals in Review
By A. K. Rogers (Yale)

"The Apostles of the good life on dress parade."

Begins with Socrates and includes the proposals of Plato, Aristotle, the Epicureans and the Stoics, Thomas Aquinas, Hobbes, Spinoza, the English Rationalists, Kant, Hegel, Schopenhauer, the English Unitarians, Martineau, Huxley, Spencer and Guyau. Not the work of a second-hand reporter, but that of a competent scholar based on thorough study of the original sources. Price $3.50

The Plastic Age of the Gospel
By Andrew C. Zenos

Keeps the growth of the collection of writings contained in the New Testament subordinated to a constructive reading of the mind of Christ, each writer serving but as another avenue of approach to the Master's own secret life. Probable price $2.50

Getting Acquainted With the New Testament
By Frank Eakin

Technicalities are reduced to the minimum because prepared directly and exclusiveiy for the rank and file of church people who are interested only in the kind of knowledge that they can readily understand and put to practical use. Price $2.50

The book that proves religion is here to stay.

Lewis Browne's

THIS BELIEVING WORLD

by the author of

"Stranger Than Fiction"

Ninth Large Printing

$3.50

Harry Emerson Fosdick

The Modern Use of the Bible

Form a book club, members to buy and read and discuss it.

320 pages—90 cents
Cloth Bound

60 Fifth Ave. THE MACMILLAN COMPANY New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS FROM THE ENGLISH CHURCH

Meeting of English Scientists

Reported by

A. MANBY LLOYD

THE Bishop of Ripon last Sunday preached at Leeds to a congregation which included many members of the British Association of Scientists who were holding their annual meeting there.

Am I wrong, he said, in thinking that the several sciences increasingly feel the need of a philosophy to co-ordinate them and so make greater the certainly as well as the fruitfulness of each? Cannot we see how dangerous it is to add to them further unless we are making a parallel progress towards the moral and spiritual superman? And if we want a saving, inspiring, elevating influence upon personality can it come from anything less or lower than personality itself? Who can save man but ultimately a personal god? Science has tried to think of this universe as matter working mechanically, and, except for purely practical purposes, has had to give up that world view. Now we have, in Professor Haldane's words, "to try to think of the universe as personality." What is this but a coming back to the opening of the old Greek creed: "I believe in one God, the Father Almighty"? Some means we must find for putting personality once more in the saddle, instead of letting things ride the world to a ruin already visible ahead.

After all, we could get on very happily if aviation, wireless television, and the like advanced no further than at present, disappointing as it would be for those whose life work has lain in such fields. Dare I even suggest, at the risk of being lynched by some of my hearers, that the sum of human happiness outside scientific circles would not necessarily be reduced if for, say, ten years every physical and chemical laboratory were closed and the patient and resourceful energy displayed in them transferred to, say, recovering the lost art of getting on together and finding the formula for making both ends meet in the scale of human life? Much, of course, we should lose by this universal scientific holiday in possible new forms of comfort and convenience, new means of making more money for the few at the cost of less work for the many. And a right curiosity on many points would have to go unsatisfied for a time, but human happiness would not necessarily suffer. It would give the non-scientific, 99 per cent of us, some chance to assimilate the revolutionary knowledge which the 1 per cent have acquired.

* * *

That evening 2000 people, mostly miners and working people, crowded into Salem Congregational Church, Leeds, to hear Sir Oliver Lodge. Nearly an hour before the meeting began a large queue of working men, many of whom had walked some miles to be present, lined the street outside the church. Many of them had to be turned away, owing to the church being crowded out. The meetings usually are not open to women, but an exception was made yesterday, when the Duchess of Atholl expressed a wish to hear Sir Oliver's address, and was present with Miss Lodge, Sir Oliver's daughter, on the platform.

Sir Oliver said: "I shall take for my subject Sir Arthur Keith's presidential address to the British Association. Some people seem to be depressed to find that they are related to the animals. They don't like it. I daresay that is a very proper feeling, because we have really got above that. We are here to wipe out the ape and the tiger. My message to you is: Try to look the facts in the face and realise their meaning and you will find they are better than your imaginings. What is was not made by chance. It was made with a great object, a great purpose, a great foreseeing aim. The doctrine of evolution is progress, advance of growth, and no stagnation. It is the opposite of stagnation. If we were already perfect there would be nothing to look forward to. We have plenty of time ahead, plenty of hope and opportunity. We can help each other to go on along the road towards something better. If we had been perfect in the past it would be depressing, but if we are descended from the animals let us take heart, and say: 'Well, we have got on so far. What is coming next?' We have got up a bit. We have got up a good deal, but there is a long way to go still. Our bodies came from dust, true. But the body is not the whole of man. The dust will go back to the earth, but there is the spirit. That is another matter. That is ourselves. There is no going back for that. That has to go on. We not only have an animal ancestry. We have a Divine ancestry.

"Evolution is full of hope. If scientists begin denying things, I say then they don't know. Listen when a man asserts, not when he denies. The spirit that denies is Mephistopheles. A man of science has necessarily rather a narrow outlook, because he is compelled to specialize. He has to wear blinkers to keep him to the road and to keep him from being frightened by things at the wayside. I have had my blinkers taken off. The result is I don't go ahead with the young, but I do see things they don't see. I see a lot of phenomena—psychic phenomena we call it—they don't see. The scientific man won't admit it is there, but he will have the blinkers taken off soon. There is a spiritual as well as material world. I tell you of my own knowledge that we are in touch with the spiritual world. There is a vast reality beyond. We are guided much more than we know from beyond. We are not the highest beings in creation.

"The Bishop of Ripon today was preaching what may be taken as a somewhat pessimistic sermon. He was expressing the sort of feeling we are all liable to sometimes—the feeling that we are going too fast and that the rush of discovery was too painful. My old grandmother had the same feeling when she was told of some novelty in my younger days. The bishop said we should call a halt for ten years' time, and read each other's papers and widen our outlook. No, we cannot call a halt, even if we would. We must go forward. We can have no stagnation. The Deity conceived a great scheme. It was brought into existence incarnate in matter. We belong, though, to the spiritual world, and are only locked up in matter for a short time. We have only to wear the blinkers for some sixty or seventy years. We are a wonderful creation on the upgrade. The other things are but the little obstacles on the road. In order that we may overcome them we can have no holiday. We must press forward towards the mark of our high calling in Christ Jesus."

Miss Vida Scudder, prominent Churchwoman and author of note, sailed last week with friends for Italy, there to continue her study of the Franciscan movement. She has already produced several books on St. Francis and the Franciscans, the most recent of which is 'Brother John."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

FROM time to time the announcement appears in this paper that each writer is alone responsible for what appears under his name. I hold opinions, for example, that are not shared by any of the other editors and it is certainly trying their patience to have their mails filled with letters pretesting against an opinion which is not theirs but mine. Of course this works all the way around. For instance I have received several letters about the article Bishop Johnson wrote on the Sacco-Vanzetti case, the writers of them apparently thinking that because I am connected with the paper I must of necessity share all of the opinions expressed in it. The fact is that two or three months ago I reproduced in this column the report on that case which was issued by the Federal Council of Churches, the burden of which was that there was certainly sufficient doubt as to the guilt of these men to make a new trial imperative if justice was to be done. Incidentally a number of good Episcopalians discontinued their subscriptions to the paper because of it. Bishop Johnson did not feel called upon at that time to give up his connection with the paper because I allowed to appear here an opinion which he did not share. Neither do I feel called upon to resign because he prints an article on the case with which I disagree. It may not add to the charm of the paper to find contradictory opinions expressed within its brief sixteen pages, but it certainly adds to the pleasure of working for it to know that one is associated with free men.

* * *

Annual conference of the clergy of Maine was held at St. Mark's, Augusta, on September 21-23, with the bishop of the diocese and two representatives of "281" in charge.

* * *

The women of the Province of the Midwest are to meet at Taylor Hall, Racine, Wisconsin, October 19 and 20. The Rev. Charles L. Street is to speak on social service, Bishop Gray of Indiana on religious education and Bishop Page of Michigan also on social service. Church extention is to be handled by the Rev. J. M. Johnson with special emphasis on rural work. At the mass meeting the speaker is to be Bishop Darst who speaks on the results of the Bishops' Crusade.

VIDA D. SCUDDER
Sails for Italy

The rector at Shreveport, Louisiana, sends in an item under the heading "Apostolic Results of Apostolic Service." It seems that for the past five years he has called upon Bishops within a radius of several hundred miles to preach for him during Lent, and has done it successfully. As a result the devotional life of the parish has been deepened and along with it has come material gain which has expressed itself chiefly in a bit of new property which is one of the finest sites for a church in the entire south. Another index of the value of these services is a confirmation class this year of fifty-two.

* * *

Drive is on, under the direction of Ward, Wells, Dreshman and Gates, for a million dollars for St. John's Hospital, Brooklyn, New York. The campaign was started with a dinner when Bishop Stires spoke on the great need of the institution which is under the direction of the Church Charity Foundation, which also runs a home for the aged, another for the blind and cottages for orphaned children. St. John's Hospital does a larger amount of charity work than any hospital on Long Island and does it all without regard for color or creed. Its capacity is now ninety-six beds and as the bishop pointed out, "each day the sad part of the Christmas story is enacted. There is no more room in the Inn." The proposed new hospital will have 202 beds of which fifty-four will be in private rooms. Every contribution made during the campaign is to go into the building fund, the money

HANDBOOKS on the MISSIONS of the EPISCOPAL CHURCH

A uniform series of books, generously illustrated, containing maps, reading lists, index and provision for the annual supplements whereby they are kept up to date. No other publication tells so completely or so vividly the story of the Church's work in these missionary fields. Each book treats of a single field.

Volumes already issued are:

I.	CHINA	$0.40
II.	JAPAN	.40
III.	PHILIPPINE ISLANDS	.40
IV.	LIBERIA	.40
V.	THE WEST INDIES	.50
VI.	SOUTH AMERICA	.40
VII.	MEXICO	.40

The Set of Seven, $2.75 Postpaid.

Price includes annual supplement service.

- - Address orders to - -

THE BOOK STORE
CHURCH MISSIONS HOUSE
281 Fourth Avenue New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

for campaign expenses having been already provided. When the new hospital is completed the old one is to be made into a Home for Incurables.

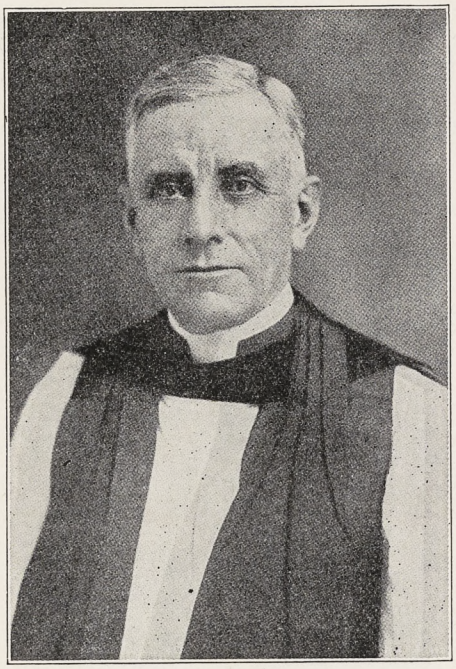
* * *

Bishop Johnson, editor, is to hold a mission in St. Mark's, Augusta, Maine, October 16-21st. The nearby parishes of Waterville, Hallowell, Gardiner, Richmond, Dresden Mills, Brunswick and Auburn are to be represented.

* * *

St. Paul's Memorial Chapel at the University of Virginia was dedicated on September 18th by Bishop Tucker. Presiding Bishop Murray took part in the service, as did also Bishops Beverly Tucker, Thomson of Southern Virginia and Jett of Southwestern Virginia. Bishop Beverly Tucker, former rector of the parish, preached.

* * *



Seventy-five clergymen of the diocese of Virginia attended a clergy conference last month at Richmond. The leaders were Mr. Louis B. Franklin, Rev. W. H. Milton of Wilmington, N. C.

* * *

They have a night branch of the Woman's Auxiliary in Washington. It seems that so many women are now gainfully employed, etc., etc. Good idea.

* * *

Mr. W. C. Mushet, for many years treasurer of the diocese of Los Angeles, died at his home in Los Angeles on Sunday, September 18th, 1927. Mr. Mushet was a member of many diocesan boards and a deputy to many General Conventions. He was versed in all phases of Church life, especially Church finance. He had been a member of the City Council of Los Angeles and at one time was City Auditor. His many activities in the Church and community made him a citizen and churchman of unusual usefulness and prominence

BISHOP LLOYD
Preacher for Nazarene Society

For twenty-six years St. Dorothy's Rest has been doing work for convalescent children at Camp Meeker, Sonoma County, in the Diocese of California. Some months ago one of the cottages, Lydia House, was destroyed by fire. A new building to replace it has been given by Mrs. Louis F. Monteagle of San Francisco. On August 8th this new building was dedicated by the Rev. Dr. J. O. Lincoln. The address was by the Rev. Dr. Deems of Trinity Church, San Francisco. An Open Air Theatre has been given to St. Dorothy's Rest by Dr. and Mrs. Lincoln who for many years have sponsored this interesting work.

* * *

Long before the opening day the enrollment at Howe school was complete. The houses are filled to capacity and boys are waiting to come in. The faculty has been enlarged to make smaller the sections in the different forms and to secure increasing personal attention for the boys.

The building program has been continued, a new building every year. This summer a new, modern power house was erected. This will house the central heating plant, the electric generator, the wells and electric pumps and the huge coal bins. The school now has ten fine large buildings and several houses. Its equipment is modern and adequate in every way. Future plans look toward a library building, a natatorium and the enlargement of the assembly hall and the gymnasium. Some of these buildings are promised by friends and alumni.

The graduates of Howe are meeting with excellent success in college. The percentage of those passing the College Entrance Examination Board examinations increases each year and the general average of the academic work is recognized by the colleges and universities for its high quality.

Now that the school has for several years been filled to capacity, the question of future enlargement is a pressing one. The present conviction of Fr. Young and the trustees is that the school can do more for the cause of education and the benefit of boys by strengthening the quality of the work and the character of the boys by holding the number to 270. With this number a great deal of personal care and at-

NELSON PRAYER BOOK AND THE NEW HYMNAL

Possess this beautiful new edition of the Prayer Book: use it in your devotion; enjoy its clear, readable type, its fine paper. This Prayer Book is published under certificate of approval from the custodian of the Standard Prayer Book.

Increase the joy of the service by the use of this beautiful new hymnal—the last word in satisfying book construction. The hymnal is authorized and approved for use by the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America.

Printed on fine white paper and thin India paper, they may be purchased singly or in combination. Prices 50 cents to $22.50. For Sale by all Dealers.

Thomas Nelson & Sons 383-385P—Fourth Avenue New York

START RIGHT

— When You Raise Money

Preliminary plans are never more important than in a money-raising effort. The first announcement is of prime importance.

Every church should consult a firm like Hedrick, Marts & Lundy before launching an important campaign. Start right—and results are more certain.

Over $200,000,000 has been raised for churches and similar institutions in recent years by members of this firm and associates.

"Financing Philanthropy," quarterly paper on finance, free on request.

HEDRICK, MARTS & LUNDY, Inc.

Member Joint Board of Campaign Counsel and Planning.

527 Fifth Ave. New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

tention can be given to each boy. As the demand of more and more boys to enter Howe increases, it is possible that another unit may be built.

* * *

As a result of the Summer Conference of the Lay Reader's Association of the Diocese of California, a course of instruction for lay readers is to be given this academic year at the Church Divinity School of the Pacific. The Class will meet one evening a week at the School building in San Francisco.

* * *

The funeral of Mrs. Ellen Douglas Wheaton Brewer, wife of the Rev. W. A. Brewer, Rector of St. Paul's Church, Burlingame, California, took place at St. Paul's Church on Thursday morning, August 25th. The place of Mrs. Brewer was a large one in the community where for many years she had lived and the church was filled with hundreds of people from all walks of life. The service was conducted by Archdeacon Porter.

* * *

This past summer a number of seminary students again went to Cincinnati where they were placed on the staffs of the various social service agencies of the city, there to get experience by actually participating in the work. The plan was under the direction of a prominent layman of the city, Dr. William Keller, who has devoted a great deal of his time to this enterprise during the past few summers. Conferences were held weekly in Dr. Keller's home with men and women prominent in the various social service fields leading in the discussions.

* * *

Under the auspices of the newly created field department of the Diocese of Maryland, Rev. Roger Walke, Chairman, a Conference of the clergy was held in St. Peter's Parish, Solomon's Island, Sept. 21-23. The Island is at the southern-most tip of the diocese, between the Patuxent River and the Chesapeake Bay. The site and weather proved ideal for the three days.

The conference was held to prepare for the work of Fall and Winter and it was hoped that the entire body of clergy would be present. Only twenty-nine found it possible to attend, but their enthusiasm and interest was full assurance of the value of the meetings. The Conference was graced by the presence of the Presiding Bishop of the Church, The Most Rev. John G. Murray, and the Bishop Coadjutor of the Diocese, the Rt. Rev. Edward T. Helfenstein. The extra-diocesan leaders were the Rev. J. I. Larned of the national field department, and the Rev. Arthur M. Sherman, president of Boone University, Wuchang, who has just returned from China and was able to give a most valuable and vivid account of the present situation in that missionary field.

* * *

The clergy are often, and quite justly, charged with poor business methods. This accusation of course comes from lay business men who have had unfortunate experiences in parish ventures. A recent occurence in the diocese of Maryland indicates that the shoe sometimes fits the other foot. The diocesan field department attempted to organize a Laymen's Conference to discuss the work of the coming winter. Five hundred personal letters of invitation were sent out to a carefully selected list of laymen from every parish in the

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

Clergy and Laity

are represented almost equally amongst our policy-holders, — among them, five Bishops. The net rates at which their policies are written, together with the periodical refunds made to policy-holders, reduce their insurance costs to a minimum.

The facilities of the Corporation are cordially extended to clergymen and their families and to lay-workers and their families. Inquiries are invited. We have no agents.

All correspondence should be addressed to

The Church Life Insurance Corporation

14 Wall Street New York

(Operated under the supervision of the Trustees of The Church Pension Fund.)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

diocese. In each letter was enclosed a postcard for reply. To these letters only 40 per cent bothered to reply at all. One is curious to know what happened to the other 300 postcards. Incidently it might be noted that only fifteen laymen accepted the invitation and the conference was given up. Take that, laymen.

* * *

That School for Layreaders in the diocese of Long Island, about which a paragraph appeared here once upon a time, opened last night with a banquet. That is the real way to open a school—ought to be a great success. The idea, you will recall, is to prepare layreaders for their jobs by making them listen to lectures.

* * *

St. Matthew's, Brooklyn Manor, Long Island, is to build a new $85,000 church. They have $12,000 in pledges, nearly three times that in cash, and probably the banks will take care of the rest while the pledges are coming in. The Rev. F. V. Baer is rector.

* * *

Last year a Bible class was held at the Epiphany, Washington, D. C., with a membership of close to 1000. They started again last Sunday and expect an even larger attendance before the year is over. The Rev. "Barney" Phillips is the rector.

* * *

Last year twenty-five clergy attended the fall clergy conference in Ohio. This year there were ninety-six clergymen and forty-seven laymen. Bishop Rogers told of the Lausanne Conference, the Rev. W. M. Sidener, rector at Steubenville, told of the Anglo-Catholic Congress, and the Rev. F. B. Bartlett told of the plans of the National Council for the coming year. There were also lectures on rural work by a couple of men who attended the Madison conference, and one on China by the Rev. Hollis Smith, a missionary.

* * *

Fine new parish house has been erected for Christ Church, Tacoma, Washington. This parish is the result of a merger of two parishes, Trinity and St. Luke's, the former founded by the Rev. L. H. Wells,

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California
A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited, R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

NURSING COURSE
of 2½ years, leading to R. N. degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll Now. Send for full information to
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas,
Newark, N. J.

St. Albans The National Cathedral School For Boys
Thorough Preparation for Leading Universities. Splendid equipment, unexcelled location on Mt. St. Alban overlooking Washington. Eight years' course. Athletics for Every Boy.
Address: WILLIAM H. CHURCH
Head Master, Washington, D. C.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin
Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., LTD., 28 MARgaret Street, London, England. Craftsmen in Ecclesiastical Art. Woodwork, Metal Work Vestments, Embroidery. Information and all particulars can be obtained through their distributor, Mr. Adrian A. Buck, 665 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London W. I., England.

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City. City.

ORGAN FOR SALE
ESTEY 9 STOP: SALICIONAL 8, OBOE 8', St. Diapason 8', Harmonic Flute 4', Diapason 8', Dulciana 8', Melodia 8', Octave 4', Bourdon 16', Pneumatic Action, electric blower and motor. All in A1 condition. BARGAIN: $1,550.00 net cash as it stands. Also oak-brass pulpit, and oak communion rail at a sacrifice.
Moving into new and larger church. Communicate with The Church of the Holy Nativity, Garrison Ave. & Edgerton Road, Baltimore, Md.

ASSISTANT WANTED
FOR RAPIDLY DEVELOPING NEW ENGland parish; communicant strength 1,000; Church School 750. Adequate salary for right man. Liberal churchmanship. Box H., Witness, 416 Lafayette St., New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs, chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

HOUSE OF RETREAT
SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY House of Retreat and Rest. Bay Shore Long Island, N. Y. References required

The Divine Commission
A SHORT SKETCH OF CHURCH HISTORY
By the Rev. Frank E. Wilson, S. T. D.
Bishop Anderson of Chicago says: "Dr. Wilson has done a brilliant piece of work in this sketch of Church History. It is not easy to put into 280 pages the history of the Church from its apostolic beginnings to the election of Dr. Murray as Presiding Bsihop of the American Episcopal Church in 1925.
"The book is well proportioned, each subject receiving such consideration as its relative importance merits. Dr. Wilson has a fluent style. His book is easy reading. There is not a dull page in it. It is to be hoped that it may be widely read, especially by the laity of the Episcopal Church, for whom it seems to be particularly intended."
16 Illustrations. 306 Pages.
Price, Cloth, $1.00 postpaid.
THE BOOK STORE
CHURCH MISSIONS HOUSE
281 Fourth Avenue New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

who later became the bishop of Spokane. This new parish house is called Wells Hall in his honor. The rector is the Rev. Sidney T. James, formerly dean of the pro-cathedral of St. Luke's. Bishop Huston dedicated the building on September 15th. And here is something that is new: the contractor, Mr. J. E. Bonnell, finished the building for $5000 less than the contract price. He was given a gift for the feat.

* * *

Conference of the Society of the Nazarene, healing organization of the Church, was held at Grace Church, New York, the week of September 18th. Bishop Lloyd was the preacher the evening of the opening day.

* * *

Synod of the province of New England is to be held in Boston October 25th and 26th; addresses by Dean Lathrop on social service, Rev. Fleming James, professor at Berkeley, and Rev. Allen W. Clark, student chaplain at Dartmouth, on deepening the spiritual life, and Bishop Davies of Western Massachusetts on developing a provincial consciousness. At the Episcopalian Club dinner the speakers are to be Bishop Slattery and Mr. Alden G. Alley of the League of Nations Non-partisan association.

A Request

THE National Council and its Departments will hold their regular fall meetings in New York; October 11, 12 and 13 next. They will welcome the prayers of our people that they may be rightly guided in their deliberations.

May I ask that, if possible, prayer be offered in our churches on one or more of the Sundays previous to the meetings.

Faithfully yours,
JOHN GARDNER MURRAY
Presiding Bishop and President of the National Council.

A new organization, largely for young people, has made its beginning in the diocese of Chicago, inspired by the Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker, whose lectures were the feature this year of the Racine Conference. Those who read Mr. Tucker's article in a recent issue of this paper will understand the purpose of the organization which is called the Order of the Sangreal. If you missed that then read his articles on the Prayer Book, to start next week. The organization has nine degrees, each stressing some phase of Church activity. A group of mid-western clergymen make up the national council of the order, including Rev. Charles Street, chaplain at the University of Chicago, Rev. Herbert Miller of Champaign, Illinois, Rev. LeRoy Burroughs, student chaplain at Ames, Iowa, Rev. A. Haire Forster, professor at Western Seminary, Rev. M. Boyer Stewart, professor at Nashotah, Rev. Norman Quigg, rector at Streator, Illinois, Miss Vera Noyes, director of religious education in the diocese of Chicago, Sylvester Lyman, president of the young people's service league of Chicago and the Rev. Mr. Tucker.

* * *

Mission schools and colleges in China will be more needed in the future than they have been in the past; but they will comply with the requirements of the Nationalist or other successful government, including official registration, the passing of control into Chinese hands, and voluntary instead of compulsory study of Christian religion and attendance upon Christian chapel services.

This is the consensus of opinion of a number of leading educators and authorities upon things Chinese to whom Dr. A. L. Warnshuis, secretary of the International Missionary Council, recently addressed the question, "What is the future of mission schools and colleges in China?"

Facsimile of three color poster for wall display. See accompanying advertisement.

for

Bible Sunday

Do you observe Bible Sunday? This year it comes on December 4, or the nearest convenient date.

The American Bible Society offers several pieces of appropriate and attractive literature to help you make the observance of Universal Bible Sunday most interesting and useful.

This literature is furnished without charge. What is desired is not an offering, but an exaltation of the Bible in the thought of the world.

The topic this year is "The Bible and the Home."

There is a beautiful three color poster; a brochure prepared by a skilled author and publicist for the use of pastors and other public speakers; and an illustrated four page leaflet for general distribution.

This material is sent free upon request by pastor or church.

AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY
Bible House, Astor Place
New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York
139 West Forty-sixth Street
Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D., Litt.D.
Sunday Masses, 7:30, 8:15, 9, 10:45.
Vespers and Benediction, 4.
Week-day Masses, 7, 8, 9:30.

St. John's, Cynwyd, Pa.
The Birthplace of the Lenten Offering
When in Philadelphia attend services here. Call Cynwyd 1382 for information.
Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, D.D., Rector
Sundays 8 and 11 A. M.

Said Dr. Delany, assistant rector at St. Mary the Virgin's, New York, last Sunday: "Christians should be proud to be sufferers and should realize that religion is not profound unless its followers embody the elements of sternness, sorrow and self-discipline. Anyone who knows anything of life cannot be altogether free from perplexity and suffering, if only in mind. It is the superficial and self-indulgent who can pass through the world without having their hearts touched with sympathy. The religion of Christ makes the strongest appeal to the suffering, the poor, the sick and the disinherited. The average Christian congregation is made up not of the brilliant and the beautiful but of quite ordinary human beings, the neurotic, the plain and uninteresting, the lonely, the unmarried, the clumsy and the stupid."

* * *

Rev. Takaharu Takamatsu of Kioto, Japan, rector of St. Mary's Church, has arrived in this country to do post-graduate work at the General Theological Seminary. He is an interpreter of note, acting in that capacity for the royal family on their visits to Kioto. He is at present engaged on articles on the New Testament which are to appear in a new Japanese Encyclopedia.

* * *

Rev. Stanley C. Hughes, rector of Trinity, Newport, R. I., has received a gift of $5600, the income of which is to be used for work among boys of the city.

* * *

Jitneys and now airplanes are common means of transportation these days for parsons, but it is not every-

Clerical Changes

COX, Rev. William E., resigns as rector of the Holy Comforter, Richmond, Virginia, to take up missionary work in Arizona.

DUNSTAN, Rev. Arthur M., archdeacon of New Hamsphire, has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. Thomas', Dover, New Hampshire.

GASKILL, Rev. Frank B., resigns as rector of St. George's, Olyphant, Pa., to accept the rectorship of St. Peter's, Mallford, New Jersey.

LAWRENCE, Rev. T. N., resigns as rector of St. Mary's, Bellville, Texas, to accept the rectorship of St. Paul's, Macon, Georgia.

SPAULDING, Rev. Charles Edward, connected with Bucks County Mission, has accepted the rectorship of St. Barnabas', Philadelphia.

STEINMETZ, Rev. Francis C., former rector of Christ Church, Norfork, Virginia, has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. Mary's, West Philadelphia, Pa.

WALTER, Rev. G. B., resigns as rector of Christ Church, Springfield, Mo., to accept the rectorship of the Redeemer, Sayre, Pa.

WATT, Rev. J. S., resigns as priest in charge of Cornwall Parish, Drakes Branch, Virginia to accept a call to Nottoway Parish, Southampton County, Virginia.

WELLER, Rev. E. W. M., rector of St. Thomas, Brandon, Vermont, has resigned to accept the rectorship of St. Andrew's, Scotia, N. Y.

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m., 4 p. m.
Daily 12:30.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursday, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11 A. M., and 8 P. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursday, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 7:45.
Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp and Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue. address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — in a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100.000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

body that goes to church on a minelayer. The canon missioner of the cathedral at Manila was to take services at Corregidor, an army post across Manila Bay. The regular launch being out of commission, he made the trip on a government minelayer.

* * *

The realization that we are always in the presence of God is one of the most significant teachings of Christ, said the Bishop of Panama last Sunday, preaching at Grace Church, New York. "We must realize that we are in a spiritual world and that in all our daily activities we are constantly surrounded by the divine presence."

* * *

Fond du Lac is to have a bishop coadjutor, a special convention for the election being on the books for November.

* * *

Corner stone laid for new church and parish house for St. Matthias, East Aurora, New York. The rector of the parish is the Rev. Henry de Wolf de Mauriac.

* * *

Miss Beulah Curl of Denver, Colorado, has accepted an appointment as director of religious education at St. Mark's, Toledo.

* * *

Mr. Lewis B. Franklin, treasurer of the National Council, has just concluded a series of conferences in the diocese of Southwestern Virginia on the work of the Council.

In Memoriam

F. W. Robertson has said that it would be "desolate to have no one in our own circle of friends from whom we could receive sympathy in our hopes. We should become tainted by the world if it were not for Christian friends." I wonder sometimes if the laity fully realize how much it means to the clergy to find laymen of sympathetic understanding in their hopes and their ideals. It was my great privilege for many years to count as such a friend the late Mortimer Matthews, a laymen of the Diocese of Southern Ohio, who recently passed away at his summer home in Michigan. Mortimer Matthews was a son of the Hon. Stanley Matthews and a brother of the Bishop of New Jersey, and also of Mother Eva of the Community of the Transfiguration. Two of his daughters are Sisters in the same Community. He lived a life of devotion to his Master and was surrounded in the intimacy of his family circle with those who shared in his faith and hope. He was essentially a Christian gentleman who never intruded his convictions upon others and never yielded those convictions to popular demand. He had that rare combination of gentleness and firmness, which could maintain a position unflinchingly and yet manifest no bitterness toward those who assailed that position most aggressively. He could suffer defeat without any desire to retaliate and he could win a victory without any assumption of arrogance. His faith and love created an atmosphere in his home which was reflected in those who had the privilege of the contact. He was a living example of how strong an influence can be excited by a quiet devotion to the Master. It was a privilege to know Mortimer Matthews and it is a source of great comfort that this Church can produce among its laity such generous and loyal sons. May the Good Lord grant to Him eternal fellowship with those who love as he loved—BISHOP JOHNSON.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, jurnalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary

An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College

Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL

Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Financing Church Needs

FIVE years ago Ward, Wells, Dreshman & Gates, specialists in the important work of financing hospitals, colleges and other philanthropic institutions, were called into consultation concerning the needs of an Episcopal Church. In this case the need was for $100,000 to complete a parish house. A considerable sum had been raised, but $100,000 more was needed to consummate the enterprise. The Vestry had little faith in the ability of the Church to produce this sum.

As a result of conference a campaign was undertaken which produced over $135,000 in subscriptions.

A by-product of this campaign, as of every similar effort, was the increased devotion to the Church of those who participated by working and giving.

During the five years since this campaign the firm has been continuously engaged in assisting Episcopal Churches to finance their church buildings, parish houses, schools and endowments. It now has in hand several campaigns for the coming season, including two Diocesan campaigns for $1,000,000 each, one of which is for a hospital and the other for Church missions.

Among the church enterprises that have been thus assisted during the last five years are the following:

Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia	$1,946,000
National Cathedral (local), Washington, D. C.	1,059,627
Episcopal Divinity School, Philadelphia, Pa.	1,008,927
Church of the Heavenly Rest, New York City	600,000
St. Margaret's School, Waterbury, Conn.	302,406
St. John's, Hartford, Conn.	155,000
Calvary Church, Summit, N. J.	152,000
St. Andrew's, Albany, N. Y.	141,000
St. Paul's, Brooklyn, N. Y.	135,628
St. Martin's, Providence, R. I.	122,000
St. Paul's, Yonkers, N. Y.	110,286
St. Mary's, Ardmore, Pa.	110,000
St. Paul's, Albany, N. Y.	110,000
St. Luke's, Rochester, N. Y.	103,000
St. John's, Passaic, N. J.	100,000
St. Thomas', Mamaroneck, N. Y.	77,400
Grace Church, White Plains, N. Y.	65,000
St. Paul's, San Diego, Cal.	63,000
Church of the Advent, Chicago, Ill.	61,737
Church of the Redeemer, Pelham, N. Y.	60,520

Our quarterly bulletin "Financing Social Progress" gives further details and will be sent upon request.

WARD, WELLS, DRESHMAN AND GATES

PHILANTHROPIC ORGANIZATION AND FINANCE

475 Fifth Avenue, New York 612 Wrigley Building, Chicago

Originators of the Intensive Method of Fund Raising

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, OCTOBER 13, 1927

REV. LE ROY BURROUGHS

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration

For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 61 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.

Baltimore, Md.

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring

Inquiries given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403) (Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts. NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J.

The Taylor Bell Foundry

LOUGHBOROUGH, ENGLAND

The World's Leading Bellfounders

CHURCH BELLS

SINGLY OR IN PEALS

CHIMES OR CARILLONS

AUTOMATIC OPERATION

Unequalled for Musical Qualities

Yale University — Birmingham, Ala.

Andover — Gloucester

Morristown — Cranbrook, Mich.

Harvard University

Germantown, Etc., Etc.

INQUIRIES SOLICITED

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W. HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings

Gorgeous Combinations of Color

Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

The Charm of Golden-Voiced Chimes

is within reach of your church, too!

Imagine the rich, musical tones of

Deagan Tower Chimes

coming from the belfry of your church—a constant inspiration to worship; a golden voice eagerly awaited by multitudes every day. Write for plan.

Standard Sets $6,000 and Up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER

and 4 & 5 Duncannon St: Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery

Wood

Stone

Metal and

Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows

Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.,

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.,

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

EST. 1877

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— OFFICE AND STUDIO —

224-228 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

— PHOTOS, DESIGNS AND ESTIMATES UPON APPLICATION —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 8 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

WHY THE CHURCH TEACHES

1. An Apostolic Ministry

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

OUR ancestors were once savages and man has a tendency to revert to wild habits. Human nature is very like the prairie. In its native state it is covered with buffalo grass. When you plow up the buffalo grass then the battle begins. If man is industrious the plains are covered with corn and wheat. When he relaxes there springs up weeds. The buffalo grass never comes back.

Man has a similar background. Christian missionaries visited our Anglo-Saxon forefathers and rescued them from their savage state. Henceforth the Anglo-Saxon must either give himself to a life of spiritual effort or revert to a condition far worse than his original status. A civilized man gone wrong is far more worthless than a savage.

The story of human progress is the development of institutions. Savages have no word for home; no knowledge of constitutional law; no conception of universal brotherhood. A savage is a local egotist who knows no obligations beyond those of his tribe or clan. He has no sympathy for a stranger; no mercy for an enemy.

Christ came to found a universal brotherhood in which there was to be neither Jew nor Greek, bond nor free, male or female, but all were to be one in Jesus Christ. There were to be no caste animosities, no racial jealousies, no double standard of morals. Men were everywhere to be of one kinship, for the Lord has made of one blood all nations of the earth.

To accomplish this difficult task Christ founded an institution which his apostle affectionately called the household of faith, and which the Creed of Christendom calls the Holy Catholic Church.

It was a courageous effort to introduce a spiritual fraternity into a barbarian world.

Those who affirm that Christ did not form an institution but merely preached a Gospel seem to me to ignore three things:

First, the plain testimony of Holy Scripture confirmed by the history which follows.

Second, the necessity of such an institution to raise men out of savagery.

Third, the absolute necessity of an institution to achieve any real universal brotherhood.

It would have been just as absurd for a Roman Emperor to make Britain a part of the Roman Empire without utilizing an institution as it would be for Christians to convert Africa without organizing the natives into any ecclesiastical organization.

Did anyone ever hear of any savage tribe which has ever been made a part of the civilized world without the use of that institution which we call government to replace the chaos of tribal individualism in their savage state?

It is not merely an academic exegesis of scriptural texts which convinces me that Christ instituted a Church to accomplish His purpose; it is that it is the only possible way in which the isolated units of barbarism could ever have been cemented into any conceivable form of Christian fellowship. Indeed the unanswerable proof of this statement is to be found in the fact that whenever a sect of people has resisted the Church as an organization it has immediately replaced the Church with another organization which at first they refused to call the Church, but ultimately were resentful if you did not acknowledge that it was just that.

In short we must have an organization in order to achieve the purpose for which the Church is founded. You cannot make men of different race, caste and condition become members one of another in a household of faith without providing the household into which they are to be so bound together.

Nothing but the most hopeless prejudice can affirm that we can create a household without a house; fraternity without a lodge; unity without a unit. So much for the necessity of a Church to accomplish the purpose of the Gospel.

Now if there was and is a Church what are its essential characteristics? For what does it exist?

First: it exists to bear witness to a certain faith, in order that our belief may be founded upon facts and not theories. "Be ye witnesses unto me" said Christ to the Apostles in His farewell address to them; and St. John replies in the same spirit: "That which we have seen with our eyes and our hands have handled of the Word of life declare we unto you."

The first function of the ministry is to testify to the facts as these facts have been handed down for our acceptance. St. Paul speaks of the ministry as having a trust which is to be safeguarded, a form of sound words which is to be preserved.

Manifestly this requires a continuity in the organization to which the faith was entrusted. When you break the chain you destroy the character of the witness.

"That which thou hast received of me" commit thou to other men who in turn will pass it on. The Church values its apostolic ministry because it has handed down a treasure which was committed unto it.

Second: the Church exists to administer the sacraments which Christ entrusted to it under the direction of the Holy Spirit with which He endowed His ministers.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Apostles believed that they had received a unique gift on the Day of Pentecost in response to our Lords promise and command. They believed that they in turn bestowed this gift of the Holy Spirit in the laying on of hands. The Apostolic ministry has believed continuously ever since that this gift, bestowed by Christ on the Apostles, is extended to them.

Accordingly in Holy Baptism, in Confirmation, in the Holy Eucharist, we invoke the Holy Spirit to be the agent in bestowing this gift in each sacrament. And in ordination, by laying on of hands, the Church from the beginning has believed that men were authorized to administer these sacraments.

Christ commissioned a specific number of men to exercise a ministry in His name; they in turn commissioned others, and this principle thus established has gone on ever since. The Apostolic ministry is an historic fact, bringing down to us an order which is not self-constituted but which has in it the note of a power derived from the authority that Christ possessed, so we may say that—

Third: the Church exists to preserve the authority of Christ in an unbroken line.

"As my Father sent me even so send I you" is the origin of such a ministry.

But there is still another note which is most important. The Church is something bigger than a religious society existing in America in the year 1927. It includes all the faithful in all ages and in all climes.

Fourth: the Church exists to bring all the faithful into a common brotherhood.

This brings us back to our savage origin and emphasizes the necessity of a definite institution which can bring order out of chaos. The problem which faces the Protestant world today is not unlike that which faced our colonial ancestors. They broke with the English government as the Reformers broke with the historic Church. But having successfully revolted they were confronted with another problem. What principle of unity and cohesion was to unite them in the future? The colonies refused to submit to Massachusetts, New York or Virginia. The colonies had repudiated George III but they had not repudiated the fundamental principles of Anglo-Saxon law. The union must be such that no one colony should be supreme and yet all colonies included. In doing this they adopted the parliamentary principles of the English race. What were these essentials?

First, constitutional law which has its analogy in the Apostles Creed.

On the Cover

LEROY S. BURROUGHS is the student pastor at the State University of Iowa, Ames, where he has done a most successful work with college students. He graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1916, had two years at Nashotah, and then went to Iowa State to serve on the faculty in the department of English. In 1919 he was appointed a Student Inquirer at the University and when that work was completed last year he remained as Student Pastor. There are plans now for a beautiful church at Ames, a campaign for funds being now in progress.

Second, a flag which became the fraternal bond of all of the states. This has its analogy in the sacramental symbols of our religion.

Third, a legalized succession of officers by inauguration which would prevent dictatorships and unauthorized legislation. This has its analogy in our commissioned ministry.

Fourth, a union in which no individual or no colony would have supremacy but in which all were to be merged into one fellowship. This has its analogy in an apostolic ministry which is neither personal nor provincial.

If we were to abandon the principle of Episcopal ordination what would we substitute therefor?

The supremacy of Luther or Calvin or Wesley? The domination of Baptists or Congregationalists or the dictation of the Papacy?

Any such subservience would destroy the note of universal fellowship which must include all who have followed Christ in the Brotherhood, Greeks as well as Romans.

Episcopal ordination is the common practice in all ages and at all times, excepting only in the comparatively small fraction of Christendom which we call Protestantism and which is not a brotherhood in any universal sense but rather the negation of an abuse.

If the colonies had carried their negation of George III to the same extremities there would have been no United States of America but simply a collection of very belligerent colonies, each intent on its own aggrandisement and profoundly jealous of all the rest.

Such is exactly the situation of Protestant religion today because in their anxiety to protest against Rome they have ignored the constitutional safeguards by which they might have perpetuated their brotherhood. Instead of this they have preferred to turn over to lodges and to luncheon clubs the great principle of which the Church was founded to promote, "the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace."

It is the penalty which Protestantism has paid by attempting the hopeless task of imposing the dictatorship of some great religious leader upon the whole of mankind. No matter how great he may have been he was not great enough to make of one family all nations of the earth. It takes more than a big chief to accomplish this stupendous task. It requires the existence of a Catholic Church bound together by universal custom.

Next article of series: Why the Church Teaches a Definite Creed.

Cheerful Confidences

POWER OF PUBLICITY

By Rev. George Parkin Atwater

DURING a recent long ride in a Pullman car, I talked with a group of very intelligent men and women, in one of the compartments. There were six of us altogether. One man was senior warden of a large parish. We discussed religion.

One man said "Why do not the churches get together and start something that will command the attention of the nation and inspire the people and give them a thrill and an incentive to work, and the hope that united action in the churches may accomplish something worth while." He got warmed up on this theme and enlarged upon it with such vigor that he became convinced that he had found a solution for the problems of the church.

It was a fresh idea to him evidently and he had had no glimmer of it when he entered the train. He wound up as follows. "Take Lindbergh. Now, he did something that made everybody talk—and he gave a tremendous impetus to aviation. That's what I mean. All get together and hold out a great vision to the people."

The others looked to me for an answer. They were evidently impressed and were politely putting it up to me to think up the great thriller, before we broke up.

"That seems to be a good idea," I began, "if we could get the cooperation that Lindbergh had. He got pages of publicity in every newspaper in the land. Publicity was the means by which the thrill of his exploit was transmitted to all hearts. Now as a matter of fact the churches have, this very summer, done the very thing that you suggest. They have united in a tremendous project. They prepared for it for seventeen years, and it has just reached its culmination."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The listeners looked a little amazed, as if I were indulging in hyperbole.

"Has anyone here heard of the Conference of Faith and Order, held at Lausanne in Switzerland?"

Not a soul had heard of it. So I traced its origin and the main facts.

"Now what happened to that Conference. It did not get as much publicity in the press of our land as one single New York minister got when he fired a few of his deacons. The press did not see any news value of consequence in the meeting of representatives of nearly one hundred Christian Churches from all over the world. The people of this land, because of the power and attitude of the press have become much more concerned about Henry Ford's new car, than about any constructive results for Christianity that might emerge from Lausanne. If the newspapers had given one half the publicity to that Conference that they gave to Lindbergh, Christianity would have been greatly advanced. Lindbergh deserved it, but so did Lausanne.

"Moreover, I want to say this: The Christian leaders of our land, in scholarship, in constructive activity, in their attitude toward the problems of the Church, are a full generation in advance of the popular belief and opinion as to their position. It is the laymen who are floundering about in the confusion of undigested learning, and are uttering platitudes about antiquated notions, and not the clergy."

But here came the call to dinner and of course that ended the discussion.

PRAYER BOOK AS MYSTERY DRAMA

1. The Necessity of Ritual

By

REV. IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

FOR some years I earned a living as a lecturer, going from one small town to another town equally small in the Middle West. In every town the main street was certain to display from three to seven signs announcing the meeting place of mystic orders;— Knights of Pythias, Loyal Order of Moose, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, Masons, Odd Fellows, Improved Order of Redmen, Woodmen of the World, Modern Woodmen of America, Federal Order of Eagles, and an array of others.

In each of the lodge halls, where ordinarily I lectured, were great cupboards and long rows of closets, filled with paraphernalia of purple and red, with gold and blue robes, with infinite varieties of decoration made of brass and tin and glass jewels, with staffs and spears and scepters, with crowns and regalia that defy description.

Ritual is the breath of life to small town folk. It is fellowship set in mystic glamor. Great winds out of the past blow upon the tea merchant, the dentist, the hardware store clerk, as he robes himself in garments of splendor and hears himself addressed with exalting titles.

Every lodge hall has altars and chairs of state, pulpits and rostrums set all around the raised dais which rings the polished floor. Each such hall savors the flavor of hidden ceremonies which link the humdrum life of the average man with vague, mysterious things.

Only in his churches does the small town man rebel against ritual. Only in the small, bare, plain auditoriums devoted to the worship of Almighty God does he shut the door against beauty. Only in dealing with mystery itself does he rob himself of mystery, and of that humility which comes thereby.

Once an order of women attended an Episcopal church where I was to preach. They came wearing strange garments, and each carried a silver-tipped spear, and bore a shield upon her arm. After the service one of them said to me: "It was a good sermon, all right, but we don't care for all that ritual." I said "Don't you have ritual in your lodge? Why did you carry those spears?" She replied, "Oh, them! That's different! We always do that in our lodge."

More than once a man who wore the buttons of half a dozen lodges, each involving complicated ceremonies and intricate vestments, has smiled in a superior way and said in my hearing,"I don't believe in ritual" when invited to a liturgical church.

Ritual of Hate

This is abnormal. It is a ritual of hate, an inheritance from forefathers who rebelled against beauty. When ritual went out of their churches, it blossomed forth again, effusively and with excessive and choking luxuriance, in the lodges, where there was no all-dominating tragedy of sacrifice and redemption to keep it sane.

This rebellion against ritual is a by-product of the industrial revolution, when towns became covered with soot and grime and the countryside was defaced with hideous scars of mine and factory waste. Men whose lives were ugly felt strange in churches that were beautiful, whereupon they made their churches ugly also. Puritan worship, with its bare meaninglessness, echoed the barrenness of lives in milltown and in slum.

The customary Protestant service is a chain of unrelated performances. First a hymn standing, then a hymn sitting, then a short prayer, then an anthem, then a long prayer, then announcements, then collection, then sermon. The sermon is the main thing. Everything else is classed as "preliminaries."

It was from long experience in attending such churches and in speaking in them, alternately with lectures delivered in lodge halls resplendent with color and redolent of recollections of colorful ceremonial, that the dramatic philosophy of a ritual worship began to force itself upon me.

Studied from this point of view, the Book of Common Prayer reveals itself as a masterpiece of dramatic psychology, a mystery drama, without a peer in the world.

Ritual Coming Back

Ritual, the orderly way of doing a supremely important thing, is beginning to reassert itself throughout the religious world. A Presbyterian church in Oak Park last Christmas had a procession with lighted candles. Methodist churches everywhere are adopting vested choirs. Prayers out of the prayer book are printed—in the wrong order—in many a Protestant hymn book. But they pick up fragments here and there while omitting the main point. Ritual reenters the churches wrong end to.

Ritual is a necessity of life. The housewife has a certain ritual of accomplishing the housework. If she doesn't, she never gets through. A mechanic has a certain ritual of going about his trade. There is a definite ritual about cashing a check, or filling an order, or arguing a case. Rules of order are the necessary condition of any sort of public meeting for action. Calling the roll, reading of the minutes, reports of committees, unfinished business, new business, election of officers—these are all necessary ritual.

Sunrise and sunset, winter and summer, day and night, seed-time and harvest, these all are ritual, and our life depends on their orderly succession. "Each in his own order... let all things be done decently and in order. . . "

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

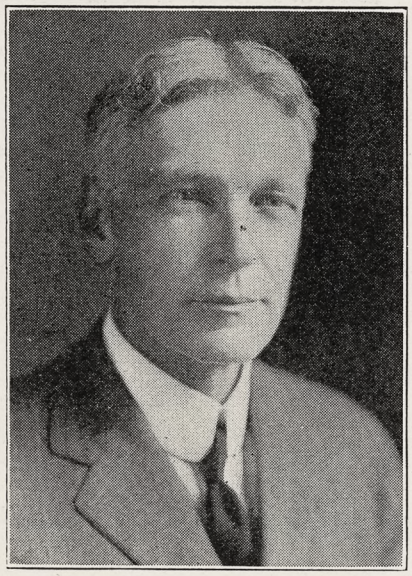
Why Rebellion

Being a necessity, why was there a rebellion against it? Because a time came when ritual smothered meaning. As the Preface to the English Prayer Book says, "There was more business to find out what was to be read than to read it when it was found out."

Excessive foliage means no flowers, no fruit. The meaning was swallowed up in the luxuriance of its own expression.

Processes of law were intended, and are still justified, as aids to justice. But legal technicalities sometimes so smother justice and defy common morality that smouldering resentment arises, which bursts out in rioting and lynch law. The fault is not primarily with the mob, but with the smothering of justice.



What matters, then, is to make so plain the meaning, the profound philosophy, the sublimity of the spiritual drama in each stage of ordered worship, that it cannot be forgotten nor hid.

Drab little churches, meaningless services, throw all the emphasis on sermon and singing. Intelligent ritual being abolished, and sermon and singing not being sufficient, all sorts of mock liturgies, clownish rituals, have grown up. Worship is turned into a vaudeville, the leading preacher of Protestantism is an acrobat with vituperation for his gospel; strange and senational antics are substituted for the solemn unfolding of a tremendous truth by the orderly processes of a Mystery, like those in which the Christian church was born.

Christian worship began in dramatic action before the Bible was written, before the church was assembled. Christ said "Do this in remembrance of me," and the church gathered around that action. The Bible gathered around the church.

The disciples united in "the breaking of the bread and the prayers" long before Paul began to write his Epistles. "He was known to us in the breaking of bread," the disciples said on the Resurrection night. The first Christian sermon, that of St. Peter at Pentecost, was accompanied by an intensely dramatic act; the baptizing of three thousand in Jerusalem. It must have been by pouring, not immersion; there is not enough water in all Jerusalem to immerse 3,000 persons.

Those three thousand converts continued steadfastly in the Apostles' doctrine and fellowship, in the "breaking of the bread" and in "the prayers." These words are unmistakable.

Dr. John Wood
Sails for China

The Act began first; the baptizing, the breaking of bread, were the acts around which the Gospel church gathered.

Dramatic Acts

These acts were in their nature dramatic acts, setting forth a mystery. "Buried with him by baptism" —"Repent and be baptized"—"death unto sin, new birth unto righteousness"—these were words far from being coined by the New Testament writer. They are much like the ordinary ritual language of mystical orders of the day. Cults of Dionysus, Pythagoras, Mithras used such words. Process of initiation, of enlightenment, of philosophical teaching embodied in dramatic action, were familiar.

These actions were the shell; the teaching is the kernel. The dramatic plunging of the body under water, or the pouring of water upon the body constituted a vow to a certain kind of life, in obedience to certain beliefs (the apostles' doctrine) in connection with a certain group (the Apostles' fellowship) cemented by certain definite acts of worship (the breaking of the bread and the prayers).

Well, now: every act of our worship is definitely sacramental, as well as definitely symbolic. Our Prayer Book is the heir and companion of a long line of formularies of worship. It is the ancestor likewise of a great number of contemporary rituals.

Wherever the natural need for liturgical worship is suppressed or obscured in a church, it blossoms out in a lodge. It is coming back, wrong-end foremost, into the churches. Let us see if we can help forward an understanding of "What mean ye by this service?" . . .

Next week: Ancient Mysteries.

About Books

The Divine Commission, a Sketch of Church History. By Frank E. Wilson, S.T.D. National Council, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York. 1927. $1.00.

Reviewed by Bishop Anderson

DR. WILSON has done a brilliant piece of work in this sketch of Church history. It is not easy to put into two hundred and eighty pages the history of the Church from its apostolic beginnings to the election of Dr. Murray as Presiding Bishop of the American Episcopal Church in 1925. At best it can only be a bird's-eye view; but it is high praise to say that it is a bird's-eye view of the main movements and events in the history of the Church. The book is well proportioned, each subject receiving such consideration as its relative importance merits. Dr. Wilson has a fluent style. His book is easy reading. There is not a dull page in it. Some of it, however, makes very painful reading, but it would not be history if these portions were left out. One cannot write the history of the Church and omit the sad story of persecutions from without and from within, or the political machinations of those in power, or the religious intolerance of bygone times, or the unseemingly wranglings over Creeds and Councils, or the cruelties of the Inquisition, or the moral depravity which on some occasions found a home in high places. There are times when one almost loses sight of the Divine Commission. One might like to have less of the political side of Church history and more of such matters as the normal religious life of the people, even in the "dark ages," the development of Christian art and architecture, the establishment of colleges and universities, the benevolent work of the monasteries, the lives of the Saints, and the missionary zeal which carried the gospel to pagan lands. Not that these are overlooked or that they receive disproportionate treatment in what can only be a swift glance over the centuries; but one somehow feels that Dr. Wilson's desire to stand erect has caused him to lean backwards in presenting the seamy side of Church history. This is not to find fault with Dr. Wilson's book, but with the facts which he could not ignore. It would be pleasanter reading if the emphasis had been placed on the bright side—if less were said about Kings, Courts, Popes and politicians, and more about scholars, saints and missionaries; but this would be one-sided history, while Dr. Wilson gives both sides without any preaching or special pleading.

The first nine chapters bring the story down to the Council of Constance and the birth of Protestantism in Europe in the sixteenth century. These chapters deal with the original Commission to the Apostles, the persecutions of the Christians, the great Councils of the Church, the rise of the Papacy, the expeditions of Knights and Crusaders, the Eastern Church, the great schism and the establishment of Protestantism under the leadership of Martin Luther.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The last four chapters follow the course of Church history within the Anglican Communion. The pre-Reformation Church of England and its communion with and relation to the rest of Christendom; the difference between the continental Reformation and the English Reformation; the unbroken continuity of the pre-Reformation and post-Reformation Church of England are all clearly brought out. It is sometimes forgotten that the issue between the Church of England and the Pope was not over Catholic doctrine and practice but over uncatholic and unhistorical claims and practices; while the controversy with Puritanism was at bottom an issue between revolution and reformation. The movement on the Continent was a revolt against the Church, which Protestants would justify and Romanists condemn. The English movement was a reform within the Church. The political movements which ran parallel with the religious movements of those days are another story. As Dr. Wilson says, "To worry out of these events a conclusion that Henry VIII started the Church of England is a fearful and terrible way to handle the facts of history. . .The Pope was dispensed with, but the Divine Commission was preserved as a matter of course."

The book concludes with a chapter on "the Colonial Church" and one on "the Episcopal Church." Admirably they tell the story of feeble beginnings, handicaps, struggles and victories.

It is amazing how much the author has been able to say in so short a space, and it is a literary achievement of high order to have said it so well that one does not want to put the book down until it is finished. It is to be hoped that it may be widely read, especially by the laity of the Episcopal Church for whom it seems to be particularly intended. It is short, readable, fair and informing—the sort of book for which inquiries are often made. Those who do not want to wade through the troublesome waters of medieval history might well get this book for the sake of the last four chapters.

Educational day of the Woman's Auxiliary, Albany, was held on September 30th, with sixty leaders, representing about as many parishes, there to study The Church Awake, by William Sturgis. In the afternoon Bishop Creighton spoke on the work in Mexico.

EDITOR WILSON
Writes Another Good Book

Let's Know

PRINCE'S PSALM

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

DAVID was preparing to bring the Ark of the Covenant up to the capitol city of Jerusalem. The Ark was the symbol of God's Presence and it was to be restored to Israel after many wanderings hither and thither. The event was one of real solemnity and David was preparing himself and his people to honor God through this act of devotion. So he composed the Psalm which is numbered 101 in the Prayer Book. In the first five verses he sings of his own determination to acquit himself becomingly as the king of Israel and in the remainder of the Psalm he states his purpose to surround himself only with the right kind of courtiers and councillors.

"My song shall be of mercy and judgment: unto Thee, O Lord, will I sing.

"O let me have understanding: in the way of godliness.

"When wilt Thou come unto me: I will walk in my house with a perfect heart.

"I will take no wicked thing in hand; I hate the sins of unfaithfulness: there shall no such cleave unto me.

"A froward heart shall depart from me: I will not know a wicked person."

There is David's standard for himself. As a servant of God and a leader of his people, he must walk answerably to his calling. But he realizes that he cannot govern his people entirely by himself. Certain authority must be delegated and those who work under him must be of the right sort. So he sets a standard for them. Unfit persons shall have no place in his establishment.

"Whoso privily slandereth his neighbor: him will I destroy.

"Whoso hath also a proud look and high stomach: I will not suffer him.

"Mine eyes look upon such as are faithful in the land: that they may dwell with me.

"Whoso leadeth a godly life: he shall be my servant.

"There shall no deceitful person dwell in my house: he that telleth lies shall not tarry in my sight.

"I shall soon destroy all the ungodly that are in the land: that I may root out all wicked doers from the city of the Lord."

It has been called the "Prince's Psalm." The story goes that once upon a time Ernest the Pious, Duke of Saxe-Gotha, sent a copy of it to an unfaithful minister as a bit of warning. So it became a proverb in that country, if ever a minister were guilty of bad conduct, to say, "He will soon get a copy of the Prince's Psalm to read." It has been a favorite bit of Scripture for many a saintly Christian. Let us hope that when our people read it in public worship, they may catch the spirit of it, even if there be no princes in our more or less democratic country.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

Charles Lamb was once persuaded to attend a Methodist "experience" meeting in company with a friend.

The friend spoke with great fervor and self-abasement, and finally Lamb himself was called upon to address the meeting. He rose and stuttered out:

"I have nothing to say as to myself, but I can quite c-c-confirm what my friend has said as to his being a m-m-miserable sinner."

* * *

Sunday School Teacher (trying to impress the children with the supremacy of God)—Now children, who is it that is far above me, and of whom I stand in great awe?

Small Boy—Your wife!

* * *

After Dr. Carl S. Patton has been preaching a few weeks at the First Congregational church in Columbus, having accepted the call to succeed Dr. Washington Gladden in the pastorate, a woman of the congregation remarked to him one day:

"O Dr. Patton, I do so enjoy your sermons; I never had sense enough to listen to Dr. Gladden."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS FROM THE ENGLISH CHURCH

Meeting of English Scientists

Reported by

A. MANBY LLOYD

THE Ecclesiastical Committee of Parliament which has to report on the Prayer Book Measure will begin on Thursday the crucial stage of the Inquiry.

Serious doubts are expressed whether the task can be completed in time for the Prayer Book Measure to be dealt with during the autumn session. Possibly there will be an adjournment till next year. This will suit both Evangelicals and Anglo-Catholics, both of whom wish the Prayer Book Measure at the bottom of the sea.

* * *

Alfred Noyes, a poet to be bracketed with Rudyard Kipling and the Poet Laureate—Sir Robert Bridges—has not wasted any time in replying to the childish taunts of Sir Arthur Keith, who dragged the Bible and the Bishops into his recent address to the British Association. It is a blind conflict says Alfred Noyes, for the antagonists are dealing with different orders of fact, as though an artist were to quarrel with a savant over the nature of sunset—one man talking of physical vibrations, and the other man talking of beauty.

The press has fastened on the obviously humorous suggestion of the Bishop of Ripon (who said he would probably be lynched for making it) that science shoud take a rest for ten years, for digestive purposes. It was a tactical blunder, but no worse.

Sir Arthur Keith knows very well that the man in the street often thinks of his "Apelike Ancestors" as living only a few thousand years before the Ancient Britons and that his ideas about Evolution are more fantastic than those of even a Dayton Fundamentalist. Loose phraseology about our "cousin," the gorilla, is unscientific and misleading, in exactly the same way as "the six days" of Genesis are misleading if substituted for the periods of geology. But Genesis was not a scientific treatise. It has the greatest opening of any work in literature, and on the title page there still stands written in indelible letters, "In the beginning God created the Heaven and the Earth."

Sir Arthur himself affirms that it is still possible to reconcile science and religion. But the dispute is not about the process of evolution, rather about its underlying cause. There was a time when this planet was lifeless. Suppose that a Sir Arthur Keith from some other planet could have been dumped upon the shore of one of our lifeless seas. Would he believe that, if he were endowed with immortality and waited there patiently upon the jellyfish, he would see at last great steamers going by; and that, eventually, a little boy would run up to him and offer him "The Times?" If he were told that this would be entirely due to the actions and reactions of the physical elements around him, he would certainly not be satisfied with his recent explanations of that portentous fact.

There was a time when the solar system was in a gaseous condition. Time, stretched into millions of aeons is not an explanation of the evolution of Westminster Abbey from a gas. We must not be blinded by the multiplicity of intermediate details. Suppose that Sir Arthur had seen the process of evolution passing before him as quickly as a moving picture, from an hour when the planet was lifeless up to the hour when he saw three crosses on a hill, and heard a voice crying, "Eloi, Eloi, lama sabacthani." Whether it were a God, or a man, or a cousin of a gorilla that hung there—would not that weird and terrible vision demand, even from a savant, more explanation than chemistry can give us?

* * *

Natural selection, says our poet, is not enough. It cannot even begin to work until varieties of life exist from which the selection is to be made; and the Augistinian Abbot, Mendel, broke the theory down from the other side. . . . But if it was not blind chance, what was it? Darwin himself affirmed that it was Something as far above the mind of Newton as the mind of Newton was above that of a dog. The comparison was hopelessly inadequate; for the stages between the dog and Newton are measurable "quantitatively." But the distance between Newton and that Something Else is given only in that ancient Book which Sir Arthur Keith seems to brush aside.

By a grim irony, therefore, the whole argument turns on the question—"Has this process of evolution any real ultimate explanation at all?" Unfortunately, Sir Arthur Keith, with his merely "biological forces"—and Alfred Noyes prefers the Logos—unintentionally suggested an ultimate negative. Science, in the face of its own axiom, is explaining everywhere the greater by the less. The real clue to evolution must be sought in its highest results, and in the goal to which it is moving, rather than in the jellyfish.

It is not the ape that gives the clue to Shakespeare, but Shakespeare that gives the significance to the ape. Ultimately we shall have to explain the jellyfish by what we can dimly anticipate of Godhead rather than by nothingness that we can dimly see through a mist of electrons. The only reality, ourself, is akin to the Reality it apprehends in that Voice from without, "I am the Vine; ye are the branches."

And that, finally, is the family tree of man.

* * *

A plea for healthy outdoor games on Sundays was made from the pulpit recently by the Rev. Basil J. Bourchier, at St. Jude-on-the-Hill, Hampstead.

Which in the sight of Heaven, he asked, was the more acceptable—a tennis match or a gossip match? To concentrate upon one's lawn or one's neighbor? To give the younger generation approval of their enjoying themselves in the playing fields or to give them every facility for gambling in corners or getting up to all manner of mischief?

"Give me your fine, clean young Englishman, who, not ashamed of his religion, never lets Sunday pass without paying his homage to his Creator, but who, having done this, makes his way with clear conscience to the links or the footer field. He glorifies God equally in both."

The Sunday School, except for the very young, should, he said, be transferred to the forenoon, which was obviously the proper time. All too long they had been content to try to impart religious knowledge to young people who came for that purpose less than half an hour after their h aviest meal of the week! Oh, for a little commonsense!

The Rev. Robert C. Wilson is now with his family at Bethel, Vt., recuperating after treatment in Washington for a disease contracted in China. Mr. Wilson will not be able to return to the mission field, but it is hoped that after a time he may be able to work in this country. His recovery is thought to be satisfactory.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

EIGHT bishops of the Church, representing constituencies with large country populations, participated in a conference in Columbus, Ohio, through September 20th to 22nd, the certain effect of which will be to make the rural church problem in the United States a vital and immediate task of the whole Church. There has been a disturbing if vague realization in the Church that the rural problem was becoming acute. This Columbus Conference, notable for its great informative value and its spiritual quality, brought the problem to a focus in a series of significant findings, adopted unanimously, each one of which touches a vital need developed at the Conference. Following a preamble in which it is declared that "Rural Church work is of supreme importance not only for its own sake and its immediate field, but because of the constant immigration of the people from the country to the city," and that "The future salvation of our national life, the very preservation of our civilization depends upon an adequate answer to the constant need of country life for devoted leadership;" and further that "All organized religion must give itself to the evangelization of the countryside, a condition which can best be brought about by diligent religious education, constant and constructive social service, and persistent pastoral work," the findings embrace the following chief points:

That a committee be appointed to present to the House of Bishops a book of services, with a request that the House of Bishops authorize its use among those unfamiliar with the Church. This committee will be composed of Bishop Jett, Bishop Gray and Bishop Davenport.

That the Commission on Evangelism and all diocesan authorities without delay carry the Bishops' Crusade into every village and hamlet in the land.

That the various theological seminaries include in their curricula, definite courses in rural work, that the bishops and clergy seek opportunity to present to the men of the seminaries the call to the rural ministry.

That a larger use be made of laymen in village and country work, not only in matters of social service and religious education, but in preaching as well. That the objectives of the rural division of the Department of Christian Social Service, as well as the suggested program for provincial and diocesan social work receive the earnest support of the entire Church.

That the Brotherhood of St. Andrew consider the advisability of establishing a school in one or more of its summer camps for the training of laymen in evangelistic work in village and country, and that the Woman's Auxiliary and all of the great corporate agencies of the Church extend their activities into the villages and hamlets and open country of America.

And that finally, the National Council provide funds for the sending of seminary students into the rural fields of the Church each summer, for training in rural church work.

Those participating in the Conference included Bishop Davenport, of Easton, who presided, Bishop Booth, bishop coadjutor of Vermont, Bishop Frank A. Juhan, of Florida, Bishop Robert C. Jett, of Southwestern Virginia, Bishop Gray, of Northern Indiana, Bishop White, of Springfield, Bishop Ferris, Coadjutor of Western New York, Bishop Rogers, Coadjutor of Ohio.

Without exception, all of these bishops voiced difficulties encountered in working among rural populations with regard to the unfamiliarity of the people with the form of service of the Episcopal Church, and their inability to follow intelligently the service as prepared in the Prayer Book. Similarly, the bishops, practically without exception, deplored the lack of clergy for work in the rural sections and extolled the services which are rendered in that connection by devoted laymen whose scope of activities they believe requires broadening in the interests of the Church.

* * *

The Church Army has established a training center at the Bishop McVickar House, 66 Benefit Street, Providence, R. I., where keen young American laymen may be trained for lay evangelism within the Episcopal Church of America. The faculty is being chosen from clergy within easy reach of Providence, priests will give instruction in such subjects as Prayer Book History, Church History, Study of Old and New Testament and Christian Evidences. The practical side of the training will be in the care of the Church Army. The industrial parishes in and around Providence will form an excellent field for actual work each week-end. The immediate need is that of suitable men for training. Candidates should be unmarried and between the ages of twenty and thirty, and of the highest type. Clergy are asked to recommend keen fellows willing to sacrifice much for the sake of Evangelism in the Church. Enquiries are invited. Application to be made to Captain B. F. Mountford, Diocesan House, 416 Lafayette Street, New York, N. Y.

* * *

I was talking with a New York publisher the other day. He told me of a novel they are soon to bring out. "It is a very fine story. Oh, there is a shady passage or two, but they were put in merely with the hope that it would cause the Boston police to suppress the book. If we can bring that about we are sure to sell a hundred thousand copies."

* * *

The American Tract Society, which has been reorganized in the last few years, has given striking proof of their new policy of cooperation. They have just published the principal offices of our prayer book in Italian, with the English in parallel columns. It was recently stated at an interdenominational meeting by a Baptist Italian minister of Waldensian training, that the prayer book of the Episcopal Church is the best devotional book to give to Italians.

This Bilingual prayer book was prepared under the auspices of our Foreign Born Americans Division, and its cost shared by the American

ANNOUNCEMENT

THERE will appear in this paper next week an article by Professor Easton.

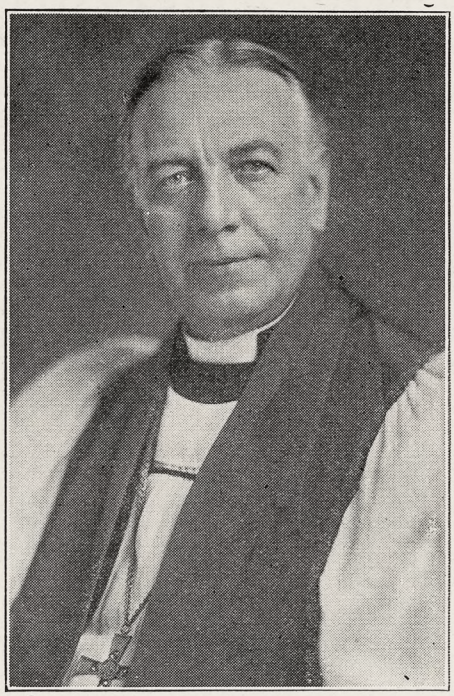
THE HISTORY OF THE GENERAL SEMINARY

Thinking that there may be those, particularly among the alumni of the Seminary, who would like to have extra copies to give to parishioners and other friends we take this means of calling it to your attention. A bundle of ten or more copies will be sent to you if the order is received not later than Tuesday morning, October 18th. The cost is 3c a copy and we shall appreciate prepayment so that billing may be unnecessary.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Tract Society and our Department of Missions, with contributions from some of the bishops who have Italian missions in their dioceses.

* * *



Contract has been let for a new $45,000 church for St. Andrew's, Emporia, Kansas, Rev. J. Herbert Smith, rector. The new church will be of English Gothic, and will be connected with the parish house which was built several years ago.

* * *

The Rev. Henry Baldwin Todd resigned as rector of Trinity Church, Waterbury, Connecticut, early in the summer due to some sort of rumpus over the placing of a memorial tablet. He was asked to reconsider at a large parish meeting, peace and harmony have been restored, and he is to remain.

* * *

The fifth annual clergy conference of Newark was held last month at the new Holiday House of the Girls' Friendly Society at Delaware, New Jersey. There was an address of welcome by Bishop Stearly and an address by Bishop Overs on Christianity as a World Factor the first evening. The following morning Canon H. Adye Prichard spoke on the Devotional Life and Professor Yerkes of the Philadelphia Divinity School lectured on the New Testament and Modern Life. "We are still fooling the laity," he said. "They still think we can interpret the Bible. They do not know that most of us cannot even read Greek." Bishop Penick, coadjutor of North Carolina, led a conference on preaching,

BISHOP FREEMAN
Is an Optimistic Man

and Bishop Overs came back again for the relating of his experiences as bishop of Liberia. Then there was a ball game with the Jersy City clergy against the rest of the diocese which wasn't so good apparently, as the score was 25-5 in favor of Jersey City, which proves that there are either good ball players in Jersey City or terrible ones outside.

* * *

Bishop Winchester of Arkansas is

HANDBOOKS on the MISSIONS of the EPISCOPAL CHURCH

A uniform series of books, generously illustrated, containing maps, reading lists, index and provision for the annual supplements whereby they are kept up to date. No other publication tells so completely or so vividly the story of the Church's work in these missionary fields. Each book treats of a single field.

Volumes already issued are:

I.	CHINA	$0.40
II.	JAPAN	.40
III.	PHILIPPINE ISLANDS	.40
IV.	LIBERIA	.40
V.	THE WEST INDIES	.50
VI.	SOUTH AMERICA	.40
VII.	MEXICO	.40

The Set of Seven, $2.75 Postpaid.

Price includes annual supplement service.

- - Address orders to - -

THE BOOK STORE
CHURCH MISSIONS HOUSE
281 Fourth Avenue New York, N. Y.

NEW BOOKS

A carefully selected list of new books are here offered for your consideration.

I Pronounce Them
By G. A. Studdert-Kennedy.
The first novel by the author of "I Believe," "Lies," etc., dealing with the problems of marriage.
$2.15 postpaid.

The Divine Commission
By Frank E. Wilson.
Bishop Anderson says: "Dr. Wilson has done a brilliant piece of work in this sketch of Church History." $1.10 postpaid.

Fear
By John R. Oliver.
An unusual autobiography dealing with the conquest of fear.
$2.65 postpaid.

Essays in Christian Politics
By Bishop Temple
Alfred Newbery says: "Accurate, heartening and clear leadership in the principles which must underlie our social relationships."
$2.85 postpaid.

Acts of Devotion
By an English group.
A book of prayers to buy in quantity for Church use.
70c a single copy.
60c a copy for ten or more.

Modern Use of the Bible
By Harry E. Fosdick
You paid $2.50 for this two years ago; it is now printed in boards for discussion class use at $1.00 a copy, postpaid.

Reality
By B. H. Streeter
A book that is indispensable for the clergyman who wants to be up to the times. $2.65 postpaid.

Cushioned Pews
By Bishop Johnson.
Not new, but a book that everyone should have. Order your copy if you haven't one. $1.75 postpaid.

WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minnesota, where he has passed successfully the first stage of an operation on his throat, the second part to be performed shortly. The doctors are much encouraged as to his condition.

* * *

The Fellowship of Reconciliation, of which Bishop Paul Jones and the Rev. Nevin Sayre are secretaries, are to send a mission to Central America to promote good will.

* * *

Cable from Port au Prince, Haiti, received at the office of the National Council on September 27th, announces the death by drowning of the Rev. Paul Holly. Mr. Holly was a grandson of the late Bishop Holly and was ordained to the diaconate last June upon the completion of his work at the Philadelphia Divinity School.

* * *

Normal School for Church Workers opened last Wednesday evening at St. James', Chicago, and is to continue for ten consecutive Wednesday evenings. Faculty: Professor Goodspeed, University of Chicago, on the New Testament; Rev. Frank R. Myers, St. Edmund's, Chicago, on the Periods Between the Testaments; Rev. D. A. McGregor, St. Mark's, Glen Ellyn, on the Program of the Church; and then the courses on the various grades of the Church school by Miss Anna Murray, Miss Edith Adams, Miss Marion Stacey, Miss Dorette Bergemann and Rev. Malcomb Ward.

* * *

Ringing words of optimism for Christianity and the forces for good in the nation featured the remarks by Bishop Freeman of Washington at the service celebrating the fourth anniversary of his consecration.

"Four years is a comparatively brief space of time in which to review events moving so swiftly," said the bishop. "Anyone in Washington must be conscious of important changes which have taken place. Obviously, as Bishop of Washington, my primary obligation is always to the diocese and I am happy to observe that substantial progress has been made in it. In spite of recent statements purporting to show a decline in the Christian Church, we notice a steady and a healthy growth. My conviction is that this is registered not alone in increased membership gained through confirmations but in increased congregations as well.

"I believe that religion has lost none of its popular appeal and never will because, as a French writer once said: 'Man is incurably religious.' That the Church has need to 'lengthen its cords and strengthen its stakes' is evident. The conviction grows upon me that if Christian forces concentrated more largely upon vital matters concerning the upbuilding of the moral and spiritual character of the people and gave less heed to the things extraneous to Christianity itself, we would enter upon a new era marked by a great spiritual awakening."

* * *

The report from the hospital in Evanston where Bishop Griswold recently underwent a very serious operation is that he is steadily improving.

* * *

Eighty laymen of the diocese of Newark met for conference over the week-end of September 17th and listened to Bishop Stearly, Bishop Overs and Secretary McAllister.

* * *

At the Choate Clergy Conference, Wallingford, Conn., held September 26th-28th under the chairmanship of Rt. Rev. Edward Campion Acheson, bishop coadjutor of Connecticut, the clergy unanimously asked the Church Army to provide and equip and man a motor mission van similar to the ones operated by Church Army in the dioceses of New York and Vermont, for work in that diocese next season. By gifts and promises made on the spot the cost of the caravan was more than guaranteed by the clergy themselves.

* * *

Nearly four hundred boys, from forty different parishes, were at Camp Frisbie, the boys' camp of the diocese of Michigan, this past summer.

* * *

A conference of Virginia Liberal

FIRMS WHOSE ADVERTISEMENTS

appear in this paper place them for two reasons: First, they believe that it pays to reach a selected group of Church families; second, they believe that a Church paper is worthy of their support. It is for the editors to justify them in their second reason. It is for the readers to prove to them that they are right in the first.

Won't you please give WITNESS advertisers an opportunity to estimate on your needs when you contemplate purchase in their various lines? Of course it will help us if, in writing them, you make mention of

THE WITNESS

Chicago Real Estate Bonds

Our experience with First Mortgage Chicago Real Estate Bonds, covering a period of twenty years, is outlined in a leaflet which we have just prepared.

The leaflet contains a brief analysis of some of the causes underlying the perfect record of safety borne by such issues handled by us during this period.

It is a concise statement of facts, which have a value for every investor. Copy of this, together with circulars describing our current offerings, will be sent on request.

Write for Leaflet W.

Peabody, Houghteling & Co.

10 South La Salle Street
CHICAGO

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills.

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Churchmen is to be held at St. Paul's, Richmond, October 25th and 26th. Among the leaders and subjects are: the Country Parson by Rev. Frederick Goodwin; the Town Parson by Rev. William A. Brown; the College Parson by Rev. Noble Powell; The Modern Use of the Bible by Rev. Thomas K. Nelson; the Interpretation of the Creeds by Rev. J. Lewis Gibbs; The Administration of Holy Communion by Rev. W. A. R. Goodwin; the Church's Place in Community Activities by Rev. R. Cary Montague; the Church in the United States by Rev. H. H. Covington.

* * *

Bishop Moulton of Utah is to devote some time this coming winter in assisting Bishop Stevens in the diocese of Los Angeles.

* * *

Something new in the diocese of Pennsylvania this year; a conference is to be held from the 26th to the 28th for the clergy, and from the 28th to the 30th for the laity, on the relationship of the diocese to the work of the National Council. Bishop Garland is to preside at both conferences.

* * *

Two large congregations listened last Sunday to sermons on the Lausanne Conference; the larger at the Cathedral where Bishop Manning, one of the more prominent delegates to the conference, spoke of it as a great and notable event in Christian history. The other sermon was preached by the poet rector of St. Bartholomew's, Rev. Robert Norwood, who gave it as his opinion, according to the newspapers, that the Confer-

25,000 CHURCHES USE
OSTERMOOR
CUSHIONS
BUILT - NOT STUFFED

Illustrated Booklet and Samples Free
Old Cushions renovated and recovered equal to new.
Ostermoor & Co., Inc., Dept. C, 114 Elizabeth St., N.Y.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited, R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

Church Kalendar for 1928
(THIRTY FIFTH YEAR)
THE HANDSOMEST AND MOST USEFUL KALENDAR PUBLISHED
THOUSANDS SOLD BY CHURCH SOCIETIES
Kalendar Months in Colors. Tables of Lessons for Holy Days and Sundays. Proper Psalms for Seasons, Days, and Special Occasions. Tables of Psalms. "Black Letter" Saints Days.
SAMPLE POSTPAID 40c CIRCULAR FREE
ASHBY PRINTING CO.
Publishers - ERIE, PENNA.

WINSTON-INTERNATIONAL
TEACHERS' BIBLES
SELF-PRONOUNCING
Containing References, a Concordance and the most authoritative Aids to Bible Study. Printed in Black Face Type. Beautiful Bindings.
Send for Illustrated Catalog
THE JOHN C. WINSTON CO., Publishers
American Bible Headquarters
456 WINSTON BUILDING PHILADELPHIA

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., LTD., 28 MARgaret Street, London, England. Craftsmen in Ecclesiastical Art. Woodwork, Metal Work Vestments, Embroidery. Information and all particulars can be obtained through their distributor, Mr. Adrian A. Buck, 665 Fifth Avenue, New York City

Hospital of St. Barnabas
SCHOOL OF NURSING
Offers 2½ years course leading to R. N. Degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll now.
For full information, address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas
Newark, N. J.

MARGARET HALL
Versailles, Kentucky
Accredited Church School for Girls, in the Heart of the Blue Grass.
College Preparatory and General Courses. High Standards; Music; Supervised Athletics; New Indoor Swimming Pool.
SARAH McDOWELL GAITHER, A. B.
Principal

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London W. 1. England

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin
Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request, Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City. City.

ASSISTANT WANTED
FOR RAPIDLY DEVELOPING NEW ENGland parish; communicant strength 1,000; Church School 750. Adequate salary for right man. Liberal churchmanship. Box H., Witness, 416 Lafayette St., New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, albs, chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses $7.60 up, burse and veil $15 up; Silk damask cope $120; Silk damask chasuble $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Cleveland 52.

The Divine Commission
A SHORT SKETCH OF CHURCH HISTORY
By the Rev. Frank E. Wilson, S. T. D.

Bishop Anderson of Chicago says: "Dr. Wilson has done a brilliant piece of work in this sketch of Church History. It is not easy to put into 280 pages the history of the Church from its apostolic beginnings to the election of Dr. Murray as Presiding Bsihop of the American Episcopal Church in 1925.

"The book is well proportioned, each subject receiving such consideration as its relative importance merits. Dr. Wilson has a fluent style. His book is easy reading. There is not a dull page in it. It is to be hoped that it may be widely read, especially by the laity of the Episcopal Church, for whom it seems to be particularly intended."

16 Illustrations. 306 Pages.

Price, Cloth, $1.00 postpaid.

THE BOOK STORE
CHURCH MISSIONS HOUSE
281 Fourth Avenue New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ence was "A pathetic failure." Dr. Norwood was not present at the conference.

* * *

Corner stone for parish house for All Saints mission, Irondequoit, New York, was laid by Bishop Ferris on September 24th. This is a new parish, suburban to Rochester, which was organized in 1925, and has shown remarkable development under the direction of the rector of St. James,' Rochester, the Rev. Francis A. Ransom, who is in charge.

* * *

On Monday of last week Bishop Manning addressed the New York Churchmans Club when fully two hundred clergymen welcomed him back to his diocese. Bishop Manning gave a most inspiring address on the Lausanne Conference and dispersed any doubts there might be in the minds of his hearers as to the remarkable success of it. At the close of his address Bishop Manning called attention to an error that appeared in the report of his Cathedral sermon as reported to the press, in which he is made to say that the Anglican Church, as a result of its middle theological position, is now in a position to be arbiter among the churches. He denied not only making the statement but of holding any such idea.

* * *

St. Ann's Church for deaf mutes, New York City, celebrated the 75th anniversary of its founding last Sunday. The sermon was preached by Bishop Manning and interpreted by Miss Virginia Gallaudet, daughter of the founder.

* * *

At the administrative committee meeting of the Federal Council of Churches, September 23rd, the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman bore eloquent testimony to the genuine spirit of catholicity displayed at the Lausanne Conference. "Despite the fact that the conference met to discuss theological differences it must be regarded as a visible expression of the growing oneness of the disciples of Christ." Dr. Cadman was followed by Bishop Cannon, Methodist, and Dr. Robert Ashworth, Baptist, two other delegates to Lausanne, both of whom stated most emphatically that the conference was a success beyond their expectations.

* * *

Bishop Overs and the Rev. E. M. Schmuck, field secretaries of the National Council, were the conference leaders when the clergy of Bethlehem met last week at Reading.

* * *

Bishop Slattery of Massachusetts was the preacher in the chapel of Harvard University last Sunday. During the week he kept office hours at the university so that students might consult with him.

* * *

By the will of the late John F. Tracy, Christ Church Cathedral, Hartford, Connecticut, receives $5000, of which amount $2000 is to go into the dean's discretionary fund.

* * *

Boston is to have an industrial conference week in November under the auspices of the Federation of Churches. Meetings are to be held with labor and employer groups, and services held in various churches, speakers from all parts of the country interested in the Christianizing of industry being imported for the occasion.

* * *

At the Church of Our Redeemer, Lexington, Massachusetts, a junior congregation has been organized with an enrollment of close to a hundred. The service, under the direction of the senior warden, is to be like the regular service for adults, only adapted to those of tender years.

* * *

Every Sunday afternoon at the Messiah, Boston, there is a conference, addressed by a distinguished speaker, for students of the Boston district. On the 9th the speaker was Mr. Henry Goddard Leach, editor of The Forum, who spoke on "Are Americans Intolerant?" Other speakers during the season are to be Whiting Williams, who is to answer the question as to whether or not the laboring man has any use for religion (some day I should like to hear the same speaker take that subject the other way around); Bishop Dallas of New Hampshire on the Vitality of Religious Experience; Dr. Alfred Worcester on the sex problem; Leslie Glen on religion as an asset to students; and Kirkley Mather, professor at Harvard, on Are Men Mere Machines?

* * *

Bishop Nicholai of Serbia, in this country as the guest of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, preached recently in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York. Coming from the Balkans, between the

Everybody Enjoys
PATERSON SMYTH'S
People's Life of Christ
A fresh, reverent, modern treatment.
As fascinating as fiction, but true in every detail to the Scripture record. Pocket Edition $1.50
Large Illustrated Edition, $2.50
FLEMING H. REVELL CO., 158 Fifth Ave., N Y.; 851 Cass St., Chicago

CHURCH WINDOWS
MEMORIALS
THE·BEST·IN·DESIGN·COLOR SCHEME·AND·CRAFTSMANSHIP
SPECIAL·STUDIES·PREPARED·TO·MEET·THE·REQUIREMENTS·OF·EACH·INDIVIDUAL·PROJECT
YOUR·INQUIRY·SHALL·HAVE·OUR·PROMPT·AND·STUDIOUS·ATTENTION
THE·GEORGE·HARDY·PAYNE·STUDIOS Inc.
ESTABLISHED·1892 · PATERSON·NEW·JERSEY

Free to Asthma and Hay Fever Sufferers

Free Trial of Method That Anyone Can Use Without Discomfort or Loss of Time

We have a method for the control of Asthma, and we want you to try it at our expense. No matter whether your case is of long standing or recent development, whether it is present as Chronic Asthma or Hay Fever, you should send for a free Trial of our method. No matter in what climate you live, no matter what your age or occupation, if you are troubled with Asthma or Hay Fever, our method should relieve you promptly.

We especially want to send it to those apparently hopeless cases, where all forms of inhalers, douches, opium preparations, fumes, "patent smokes," etc., have failed. We want to show everyone at our expense, that our method is designed to end all difficult breathing, all wheezing, and all those terrible paroxysms.

This free offer is too important to neglect a single day. Write now and begin the method at once. Send no money. Simply mail coupon below. Do it Today.

FREE TRIAL COUPON
FRONTIER ASTHMA CO.,
621 F, Frontier Bldg., 462 Niagara St., Buffalo, N. Y.
Send free trial of your method to:
.....
.....
.....

LITTLE WITNESS BOOKS

THE PERSONAL CHRIST
By Bishop Johnson. 50c a copy.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH
By Bishop Johnson. 35c a copy.

EVOLUTION
By Geo. Craig Stewart. 35c a copy.

THE BIBLE AND EVOLUTION
By Postell Witseli. 50c a copy.

THE WAY OF LIFE
By Bishop Johnson. 50c a copy.

FOUNDATION STONES
By H. P. Almon Abbott. $1.25 a copy.

ESSAYS TOWARD FAITH
By A. Q. Bailey. 50c a copy.

A MAN'S RELIGION
By J. A. Schaad. 35c a copy.

VICTORY OF THE CROSS
By N. R. High Moor. 50c a copy.

WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

TEN MAGAZINES for 10¢
10¢ NOW
The smartest, most interesting, entertaining and instructive Magazine in America! 10 weeks for only 10 cts. Special introductory offer. No magazine like it. Full of important facts, pictures and the best, most popular fiction. For all members of the family. Send name, address and 10 cents immediately. Grab this limited offer now.
The Pathfinder, Dept. N. 163 Washington, D. C.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York
139 West Forty-sixth Street
Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D., Litt.D.
Sunday Masses, 7:30, 8:15, 9, 10:45.
Vespers and Benediction, 4.
Week-day Masses, 7, 8, 9:30.

St. John's, Cynwyd, Pa.
The Birthplace of the Lenten Offering
When in Philadelphia attend services here. Call Cynwyd 1382 for information.
Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, D.D., Rector
Sundays 8 and 11 A. M.

East and the West, he spoke of the Orient and Occident as twins who have become separated from and suspicious of each other.

"The East says it represents wisdom and the West says it represents power," Bishop Nicholai said. "The East has been striving all through the years to get more wisdom, and the West has been striving all through the years to get more and more power. What is wrong with the East is that it lacks divine revelation, and what is wrong with the West is that it lacks inspiration.

"In consequence the wisdom of the East has sunken into a spiritual sadness, nothingness, idolatry, ignorance and laziness. The power of the West has sunken into brutal wars, revolutions, suicides, divorce, fear, crime, troubles everywhere that cannot be settled merely by human power.

"In the East the wisdom has been collected without Christ, and in the West the power has been collected without Christ. So both are powerless. Him who brings a better wisdom and a better power; Him who is wiser than the East and stronger than the West, both have failed to heed, and as long as this is the case the East and the West always will be hostile to each other.

"In all this clamor Christ soothingly whispers through the generations, 'Without Me Ye Can Do Nothing.' He is wiser than the East. He is stronger than the West. Christ ought to come to the East to clean their minds and to elevate their hearts. He ought to come to the West to instill more kindness, more brotherly love.

"What we need today most of all is that Christ's revealed wisdom should rectify and vivify the wisdom of the East, and that His divine inspiration should spiritualize the power of the West."

* * *

St. Luke's Memorial Hospital of Ponce, Porto Rico, was founded in memory of Charles Henry Thomas, M. D., through the generous gift of his widow, Mrs. Charles H. Thomas, of Cincinnati. It is maintained and administered by the Church for the benefit of the people of Porto Rico, without distinction of race or religion.

For the past nine years Miss Ellen T. Hicks has been the efficient Superintendent of St. Luke's. She brought to her work there trained experience gained in Bryn Mawr Hospital and St. Luke's Hospital, Manila. Under her direction the Church's medical work in Porto Rico has moved forward steadily to larger and better service. Among the most recent developments are the building of a Nurses' Home, the equipment of a pathological laboratory, and the

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily: 7:30 and 10 A. M. and 5:00 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m., 4 p. m.
Daily, 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursday, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder , D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11 A. M., and 8 P. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursday, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 7, 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., Fri., and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30 and 11:00 A. M., 5:00, 6:15 and 8:00 P. M.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp and Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — In a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100.000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

improvement of the X-ray department. Two plans still awaiting accomplishment are a dispensary and a children's ward. Without these St. Luke's can not find a place upon the list of accredited hospitals in Porto Rico. Public health work is another direction in which Miss Hicks plans to extend the ministry of St. Luke's. She considers it one of the most important community services that a hospital and its nursing staff can render.

* * *

There are advantages in Mexico. For instance here is a nice harmless battle which Bishop Creighton describes and which he was privileged to witness free of charge. A scrap like that here would cost in the neighborhood of forty dollars:

"Juan is a Spaniard, hard working, frugal and polite, who is 'dueno' of the grocery and wine store just across the street from our house. He is short, stocky and agile. His eyes flash when he talks and his smile is beguiling. But Juan didn't smile yesterday. He was collecting a bill.

It was almost time for my Confirmation class from Hooker School to come for their instruction and I was thinking over my lecture. It is hard to think, however, when there is a disturbing chorus of excited voices in the street just below the study window; so I gave it up and went out on the terraza to see what it was all about. It was simply Juan collecting a bill from our Mexican neighbors.

He was shouting at the top of his lungs and gesticulating with all the energy of one of Don Quixote's windmills. So were our neighbors, all of them,— the gentleman of the house, his wife, their criadas and, I think, several of their relations.

Quite a crowd had gathered and, encouraged by the audience, the de-

Clerical Changes

ADAMS, Rev. Harold B., resigns as rector of Christ Church, Troy, N. Y. to accept a call to Christ Church, Meadville, Pa.

BERNARD, Rev. W. C., resigns as rector of St. Michael's, Brattleboro, Vermont, and has retired.

DOTY, Rev. Walter P., graduate this past year of the Divinity School of the Pacific, has accepted an appointment as curate at St. Paul's Cathedral, Los Angeles.

HAUSE, Rev. B. M., assistant at St. Paul's Columbus, Ohio, has accepted an appointment as assistant at St. James's, Los Angeles.

KIDD, Rev. Gordon L., vicar of St. Andrew's, Trenton, N. J., has accepted a call to St. John's, Richfield Springs, New York.

ROSEBAUGH, Rev. John H., director of religious education, Connecticut, has accepted a call to the rectorship of the Atonement, Tenafly, New Jersey.

STONE, Rev. Arthur W., chaplain of the Navy, has been transferred from the Boston Navy Yard to the Navy Yard at Charleston, S. C.

WELD, Rev. Edric A., of Brookline, Mass., has accepted a call to St. Stephen's, Middlebury, Vermont.

WALTON, Rev. Basil M., rector of St. Paul's, Orange, Texas, has been placed in charge of St. James', Lake City, Florida.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports, camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

baters, sad to relate, came to blows. Not that the blows hit any one, but still they were struck. I am inclined to think that accuracy was not exactly desired. The torrent of words never ceased, however breathless the combatants became.

Juan was very much in the minority and at a disadvantage because the women folks and criadas kept pulling him away from their champion, the debtor. However, Juan was full of fight and always went back. A favorite gesture which became quite popular before the melee was over, was a wild slap into space and then a grab at coat lapels and a vigorous and vicious shaking.

How long this battle might have continued I do not know, but while it was at its very worst and the air was being soundly slapped amid terrific outcries, some one discovered a boy with an automobile tire which was promptly confiscated and forced between the combatants, much to their surprise and distress. Who can fight manfully with a big auto tire held menacingly between champions of virtue and debt?

The debtor's wife grabbed her husband in the very moment of his contemplation of this horrid interruption and shoved him into the house and then planting herself defiantly in front of him, she gave Juan a mean look of contempt."

* * *

New parish house has been opened by St. Matthew's Church, Detroit, with all of the things that usually go with a nice plant, and this in addition, an apartment for the rector.

* * *

Ground was broken last month for a new church for Saint Columba's parish, Detroit.

* * *

The diocese of Michigan is after a million dollars' endowment fund. The drive will come next month. The interest on the fund will take care of several of the outstanding needs of the diocese. The firm is under the expert management of Ward, Wells, Dreshman and Gates.

* * *

The two schools of the diocese of Washington, the National Cathedral School for Girls, and St. Alban's, the Cathedral School for Boys, opened last week with large enrollments. Several women have been added to the faculty of the girls' school, including Miss Olive H. Pott, a graduate of the school, who for the past few years has been on the faculty of St. John's University, Shanghai.

* * *

A glowing report of the work done by the Church Army in Vermont comes from our correspondent there, the Rev. A. B. Crichton. "Hundreds of calls on scattered people and have held innumerable services up and down the state. We cannot express our gratitude to these men and to their great organization for all that they have done for us." The latest Church Army worker in Vermont is Captain Tom Greenwood who last week made a great hit with the young people of St. Paul's, Burlington, with an illustrated talk.

* * *

Wong L. Ham, a native of China and now a prosperous business man of Rutland, Vermont, is one of those who shows in a practical way his belief that the work of the Christian missions in China must not be interrupted by the warfare that is now going on there. A few days ago Mr. Ham visited the Meneely Bell Company's plant at Troy, N. Y., to inspect two bronze church bells that were especially made as his gifts to two different churches in Tai Shan, Canton, shipment of which is being made this week via the Panama Canal.

* * *

Diocese school for Church workers is being held at the Cathedral, Boston, on Thursday evenings. The list of subjects is large and varied; the faculty composed of experts, including Mrs. Edward Barney, Miss Margaret Marston, Miss Eva Corey, Deaconess Pennock, Miss Lucy Sturgis, Mrs. Maude Copley, Rev. E. M. Paddock and Mr. Frank Lincoln.

* * *

Mr. Randall Norton, head of the preparatory school for St. John's University, Shanghai, with his wife (a daughter of Bishop Graves), is now at the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Norton, in Middletown Springs, Vermont, hoping that conditions may be such that they can return and reopen the school in the fall of 1928.

TWO INDISPENSABLE BOOKS

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS
By Bishop Johnson

The standard book of instructions that is used in hundreds of parishes.
50c a copy. $4.00 a dozen

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH
By George P. Atwater

A classic that rectors give to questioners, clubs dramatize and classes use in discussion groups.
65c a copy, paper; 10c boards.

WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

A GAIN IN CIRCULATION

of 1385

Was Made During THE FIRST WEEK of October.

—o—

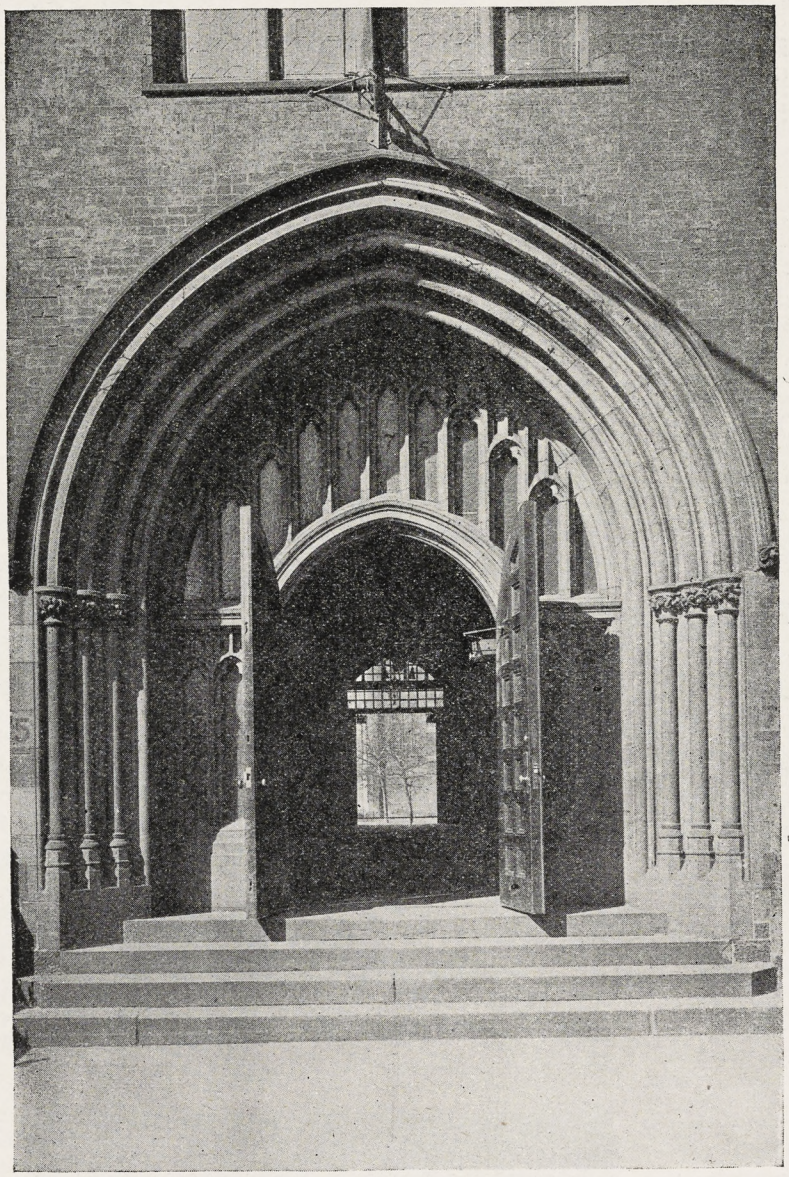
Are your people reading a Church weekly regularly?

—o—

Remember, an informed mind precedes an awakened conscience.

—o—

Order ten or more copies at three cents a copy. Have them sold at five cents by a boy at the church door. Later, when the people are familiar with the paper, the boy or parish organization can take annual subscriptions, for which we allow a liberal commission.



The WITNESS

QUALITY — BREVITY
PRICE
and as a result
LARGEST CIRCULATION
of the
EPISCOPAL WEEKLIES

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

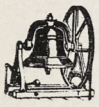
CHICAGO, OCTOBER 20, 1927

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

514 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration



For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 687 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.

Baltimore, Md.

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring

Inquiries given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403) (Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts. NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J.

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS

Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street

Designers of

HISTORICAL WINDOWS

Washington Memorial Chapel

Valley Forge, Pa.

Clerestory Windows

St. Thomas Church New York City

Stained Glass, Mural Decorations, Glass Mosaics

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained - Glass

English · Artists

550 & 552 W. HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings

Gorgeous Combinations of Color

Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

In Selecting a Memorial to a Loved One

what could be a happier, a more fitting thought than a living memorial of Golden-Voiced

Deagan Tower Chimes

serving through the years to keep alive the faith of those who have it, and helping, as no other means can, to re-awaken childhood reverence in those who have strayed. Write for literature. Standard Sets $6,000 and up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER

and 4 & 5 Duncannon St: Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery

Wood

Stone

Metal and

Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

GLASS STAINERS

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows

Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.,

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

EST. 1877

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— OFFICE AND STUDIO —

221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS · AND · BUILDERS · OF · ECCLESIASTIC · MEMORIAL · WINDOWS.

— PHOTOS, DESIGNS AND ESTIMATES UPON APPLICATION —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 9 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

PRAYER BOOK AS MYSTERY DRAMA

The Ancient Mysteries

By

IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

WHEN St. Paul wrote, and St. John, and St. Peter, it was to men and women in small towns, or in large towns with what we call today the small-town complex. Their converts were part of a world empire crisscrossed and shot through with religious philosophies embodied in guilds and cults and secret societies, much like our own.

Each of these Graeco-Roman cults had its root in some ancient mythology: and each had as its immediate object mutual aid, protection, insurance, and redemption.

This term "redemption," used so constantly in the New Testament, has a very definite meaning. Slaves were "redeemed" out of captivity by the payment of a price. They banded together to buy each other out, by accumulating small sums in a common treasury.

In the Old Testament "redeemer" also has a technical meaning. There being no regularly appointed officers of justice in the wild tribes of the desert, each man's nearest kinsman was his "goel" or "redeemer," and was bound to seek vengeance against his injurer. A slain man's eldest son, or brother, or tribal chief, was his avenger, or redeemer.—"I know that my Avenger liveth."

In the New Testament the Redeemer ends the term of slavery by paying the purchase price to the owner. Much of St. Paul's imagery is built upon the doctrine that Christ's death paid the price of freedom from sin to the great Accuser.

Ancient Ceremonies

In the cult of Dionysos it was customary to drink wine at the ritual feasts. Getting drunk was esteemed a sort of religious act of devotion to the god who caused the increase of "corn and wine and oil." St. Paul's letter rebuking the Christians of Corinth for getting drunk at the communion proves that some of them mistook the Christian mysteries for those of Dionysos.

Another very widespread ceremonial, the bath in the blood of the bull of Mithras, is constantly referred to by the New Testament writers. In this ceremony men went into a pit in the earth, and a consecrated bull was slain on a platform just above them, so that hhis blood ran down into the pit, and the candidates were besmeared with his gore. "Washed in the blood of the Lamb" has reference to this, and compares the spiritual cleansing of belief in Christ to the horrible ceremonial of the Mithras cult.

Such phrases abound in the Epistles. Without some knowledge of the mysteries that were commonplace among Greek and Roman alike, we miss much of the point of the daily Bible lessons. For the epistles were written, and the creeds formulated, by men so familiar with these things that they formed the background of their consciousness.

The word "mystery" occurs in the New Testament some twenty-five times. In each case it has the same meaning; a ritual secret, delivered to students who had undergone a course of preparation to be worthy of receiving it. "Mystery" does not mean, like our common newspaper phrase, an untraced murder, or the theft of jewels by some thief who escaped without a clue. It means a truth to be had for the searching. "Mystae" were men prepared by long processes of initiation to receive the illumination of knowledge.

Christ's words are full of injunctions as to this method of teaching. "Unto you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God" he said to the disciples, "but not unto all' . . . "Cast not your pearls before swine." . . . "Ask, and ye shall receive; seek and ye shall find: knock and it shall be opened unto you." His parable of the Sower is really a parable of the Soils. Only that seed which fell in good ground, ground which had been prepared, with stones and weeds removed, could bring forth good fruit.

In laying such emphasis on the "mystery of the fellowship" the apostles carried out this direct injunction of Christ; and by so doing they classed the gospel with a secret that can be told only after due preparation.

So far from being an offense against common sense, this method is instantly justified by ordinary intelligence, which perceives the folly of trying to teach higher mathematics to one who has never learned to add.

Religion Is Mystery

Attempts to "explain religion," which begin by taking out of it all the mystery, end by taking out of it all the religion and all the intelligence as well.

I have, for example, a new five tube radio set. With it I received a booklet telling how to tune it and operate it. It begins thus: "This receiver is based upon an all-capacity bridge circuit developed after three years of intensive experimental work —It has been felt for a long time that existing forms of radio frequency amplification were accomplishing only a fraction of the theoretical possibilities of such amplifiers, being limited in their performance by the effect of grid-to-plate capacity coupling in the amplifier tubes."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

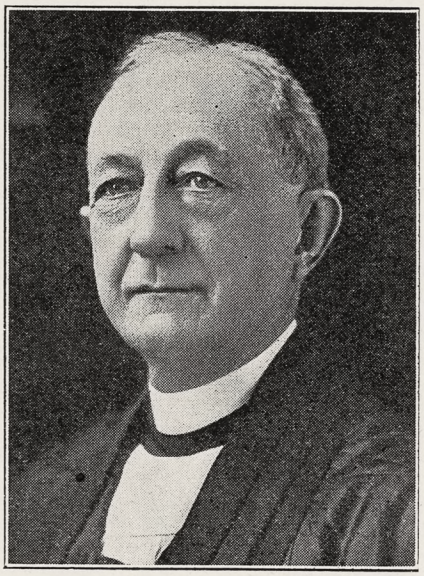
To me, this is pure nonsense. And yet a man who has studied radio enough to know the language, and has put a few sets together, understands it perfectly. It is a "mystery"; the meaning is there, but it requires study to understand it. A radio set is a mere combination of wires and vacuum tubes and electric currents.

Human beings are far more complicated, infinitely more delicate. The science of correcting errors in such a set as a human soul is therefore much more complicated and far more delicate than that of repairing radio sets.

Theology is such a science, but it has been degraded by amateurs, who, incapable of understanding difficult problems, sweep them away and announce that anything beyond their own elemental formulas is "bunk."

"Mystery" in medieval life meant something slightly different. It meant the handing down of a craft from master to pupil. They spoke of the "Mystery of tanning," of shoemaking, of baking, of goldsmithing, of cabinetmaking, and haloed each common craft with a dignity it is only just beginning to recover.



In those days a Master of Arts meant a man who was master of a trade. His "masterpiece" was his sample cabinet, or sample pair of shoes, made to prove that he could do work fitting him to take rank among the masters. A bachelor of arts was an apprentice at a trade. The word "bachelor" means a cowherd, a menial servant.

Today the degrees of B. A. and M. A. mean anything in the world except the sturdy honest information they once conveyed. The holder of those degrees has had a certain number of quarts of lectures and reading poured through his head, and more than likely has lost the use of his hands in the process; master of no art except memory.

The Middle Ages

Splendor and strength of the guilds made the Middle Ages glorious. "Mystery Plays" were religious pageants presented by the Mystaes which meant, simply and honestly, the trades. On Corpus Christi day the Mystery of Cordwainers, or Butchers, or Tanners, or Bakers, each presented an episode in a common Passion Play.

"Guilds merchant" answered to our commercial clubs, with much the same zeal for municipal pride, and much the same stress on honest goods. Craft guilds were like great labor unions, plus trade associations, with much more religious color than these have, but with the same general plan of assuring a fair standard of workmanship in return for a fair standard of life.

Bishop Winchester
Ill but Getting Better

Medieval life was colorful and church ceremonial was colorful too. "God," they reasoned, "has covered the world with color. Therefore, he likes color. Therefore, let us use it in worshiping him."

To God they gave the best they had. They played games to the glory of God, and held tournaments of archery and jousting in honor of Our Lady and St. Martin. "If we can sing to the glory of God," said they, "then we can make shoes and tan hides and build tables to the glory of God." Each guild had its own patron saint, and set forth some aspect of the Christian faith in the Mystery Play on its patron saint's day, or on the great Corpus Christi festival, which was their Labor Day.

The Prayer Book came into being against the background of the colorful texture of medieval life. It is like the manuscript of a play, containing only the spoken words and bare directions for entrance and exit. Actors and stage setting, are presupposed.

But what is the plot of the play? It is outlined in the Creed—"I believe in One God."

Next article of series: "The Creed."

Annual dinner conference of rectors, officers and teachers of Church Schools in Long Island was held October 4th at St. Ann's, Brooklyn, with Bishop Creighton, a former rector, telling of the work in Mexico, Mr. Franklin telling of the work of the National Council, and Miss Frances Edwards speaking on the modern Sunday school. There was an exhibit of work done in various schools this past year.

Let's Know

BELOVED PHYSICIAN

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

THERE are several interesting questions about St. Luke. He appears quite suddenly on the scene of the Apostolic Church as a travelling companion of St. Paul. No one knows when or how he became a Christian. His name is unique—probably an abbreviation of some longer name like Lucanus. He was with St. Paul not only on his second and third missionary journeys, but also during the Apostle's captivity in Rome. An ancient writer says that he never married, and died in Bithynia at the age of seventy-four years. He is known to have been a physician and an old tradition says that he was also a painter. His day comes in the Church calendar on Oct. 18.

An interesting theory has been advanced that he was the "man of Macedonia" at whose request St. Paul changed the course of his travels and carried the Gospel for the first time into what we now call Europe. It is well authenticated that St. Luke wrote the Acts of the Apostles as well as the Third Gospel. In the 16th chapter of Acts he describes how a man of Macedonia appeared to St. Paul in a vision, saying, "come over and help us." Then he proceeds to tell how "we" went on into Macedonia. Evidently it was there at Troas, where the vision occurred, that St. Luke first joined the Apostle. The theory is that he and St. Paul talked things over and that St. Luke convinced the Apostle of the advisability of crossing over into Macedonia which was his own home country. With that conversation strong in his mind, St. Paul went to sleep and beheld the vision of his friend imploring him to come over.

Most physicians of that day came from Greece, of which Macedonia was a part and it may well have been St. Luke's home. His description of the ship-wreck in Acts 27 shows him to have been very well versed in nautical matters, and we know that the Greeks were the great sea-faring people of that day. He travelled with St. Paul as far as Philippi, which was a prominent Macedonian city, and was left there while St. Paul continued down to Athens. Perhaps Philippi was his native city. Moreover, it was characteristic that the author of the account should have omitted any identification of the "man of Macedonia" if it were the author himself, just as St. John is content to refer to himself in the Fourth Gospel merely as the "beloved disciple."

We know that St. Luke was very devoted to St. Paul during the closing years of the Apostle's life, watching carefully over his failing health. It is quite likely that he was a man of means to be able to leave his practise and give his exclusive attention to his Christian friend. As his career drew to a close, St. Paul wrote to St. Timothy saying "only Luke is with me" (2 Tim. 4:11).

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

In any case, we have, in the person of St. Luke, an example of a high class, well educated man giving himself in utter loyalty to his Master. He spent himself in the cause of Christ, retiring into voluntary obscurity behind the towering figure of the missionary Apostle. Doubtless we often wish we knew more of him, but our respect for him must be so much greater as we see how he lost himself in the service of our Savior. And in an age like this which seems obsessed with an aching craze for personal publicity, it is a very wholesome thing to keep alive the remembrance of the modest Evangelist who may also have been the "man of Macedonia."

THE GENERAL SEMINARY

A Brief Review of History

By

REV. BURTON S. EASTON

ON THE 27th of May, 1817, General Convention, meeting in the City of New York, adopted a resolution which stated in part: "It is expedient to establish, for the better education of the candidates for holy orders in this Church, a General Theological Seminary, which may have the united support of the whole Church in these United States, and be under the superintendence and control of the General Convention." And the resolution continued: "That this Seminary be located in the City of New York." The prime movers in the matter were representatives of the Diocese of South Carolina, which had been agitating in this direction for a number of years, and it was Bishop Theodore Dehon, of this Diocese, who actually drafted the resolution.

The next responsibility fell on a committee appointed to raise funds. By October of the next year enough progress had been made to name two professors, the Rev. Samuel F. Jarvis and the Rev. Samuel H. Turner, and on May 1, 1819, work actually started with six students. At first the sessions were held in the vestry of St. Paul's Chapel and then, after cold weather began, in corresponding quarters in St. John's Chapel—until the sexton of the latter edifice notified them that they must provide their own coal. A hospitable school for young ladies was their next refuge until in the following spring General Convention ordered the removal of the Seminary to New Haven, where "professors and students might live comfortably at a moderate expense."

Faculty of One

Professor Jarvis had by this time resigned, so at the new opening in New Haven there was a faculty of one, Dr. Turner, who was assisted gratuitously by Bishop Brownell of Connecticut. But by the close of the year there were twenty-one students, while sufficient funds had been secured to engage the Rev. Bird Wilson as an additional professor. In the meantime, however, the Diocese of New York, now deserted by the General Seminary, opened a theological school of its own, and almost simultaneously Jacob Sherred, a wealthy vestryman of Trinity Church, died, leaving by will, $60,000 to a seminary "to be established by the General or Diocesan Convention." and, naturally, both institutions laid claim to the bequest.

To settle the dispute a special session of General Convention was called, which solved the problem very simply by uniting the two schools, bringing the General Seminary back to New York once more. But this time it had a permanent home in prospect, for Mr. Clement C. Moore, a well-to-do physician who was also a specialist in Hebrew, presented sixty city lots, forming the block now bounded by Ninth and Tenth Avenues and Twentieth and Twenty-first Streets. By 1827 a suitable building had been erected, and the Seminary took up its residence on the ground which it occupies today.

First Graduation

Work, however, had gone on uninterruptedly. The union of the two institutions had provided at last an adequate faculty. The earliest students—who included George Washington Doane, Manton Eastburn and Benjamin Dorr—entered the ministry without formally graduating, but in 1822 the first diploma was conferred on a certain William L. Johnson. Next year, however, there were six graduates, and from that time the annual commencement exercises have been held with invariable regularity; in 1833 there were twelve diplomas awarded and in 1836 the size of the graduating class had increased to twenty-eight, fairly representative of a settled future.

In the class of 1824 Henry John Whitehouse and in the class of 1825 William Rollinson Whittingham were destined to reach the episcopate; this early beginning was prophetic of the fact that fully a fourth of all the bishops of our Church should be graduates of the General. And prophetic also was Mr. Whitehouse's election as the second bishop of Illinois, for in the planting of the Church throughout the West twelve dioceses and missionary districts were to choose General graduates as their first bishops.

Unfortunate Bequest

A remarkable occurrence in the early history of the Seminary was its pauperization through receiving a handsome bequest. In 1829 a Mr. Kohne, of Philadelphia, died, bequeathing the sum of $100,000, an amount sufficient at the time to relieve all immediate financial worries. But the gift was subject to a life interest, which did not expire until 1853, effectually preventing all use of the money when it was most needed. And, of course, the fact of the bequest was a total deterrent to gifts in the meantime; everyone knew that the money had been left and consequently refused to contribute to an institution so bounteously endowed. Or, as the finance committee, put it, "this legacy, promising future wealth, had tended to present impoverishment.". All the more because the City of New York had laid on the Seminary a heavy assessment for water-front improvements.

Rigid economy was consequently needful; the small salaries of the Faculty were reduced and the entire expense for maintaining a student for the year was computed at $70.95! None the less students continued to come, and by 1834 they passed the number of sixty, far more than the only Seminary building could accommodate. A mortgage was the only resource and the second building was erected; it is still standing and still bears its old name—the West Building—although it is now in the center of the quadrangle.

Little by little, however, additional endowment was accumulated. A chair of Ecclesiastical History was established in 1835 by Mr. Peter G. Stuyvesant, and was filled by William R. Wittingham, until his election as Bishop of Maryland. And a start was made with a library endowment. But the financial difficulties of 1837 prevented any elaborate expansion.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CHAPEL AT THE GENERAL

THE OXFORD MOVEMENT

Shortly afterward came the first repercussions of the Oxford Movement. The Churchmanship of the General thus far had been extremely simple, most of the faculty not even wearing vestments when officiating at the chapel services, while the tone of the teaching was the traditional Evangelicalism. The student body, ever, was naturally affected by the newer views and one of the graduates of the class of 1842, Arthur Carey, announced his adhesion to the Tractarian scheme. His ordination to the diaconate was consequently protested, but the professors of the Seminary felt bound to protect him; they did not share his opinions but believed that officials of a general institution should stand above partisanship. A storm of protest followed and the Convention of South Carolina, which had demanded the establishment of the Seminary, now demanded its investigation. The trustees promptly appointed a committee which examined the situation and reported that the Seminary "appeared to be in perfect accord with the doctrines, discipline and worship of the Church." From this the Evangelical bishops Eastburn, McIlvaine and others appealed to General Convention, which instituted a new examination and confirmed the earlier findings. But Dr. Wilson, then acting as Dean, and Dr. Moore, worn out by the controversy, resigned.

MORE WORRIES

Fresh financial worries followed. The Kohne legacy, paid at last was absorbed by a new assessment laid by the city, and the controversies, despite their baseless character, had alienated many of the laity. And the outbreak of the Civil War nearly completed the ruin of the institution; the worst of the situation was relieved by the sale of certain real-estate holdings and for a while the trustees contemplated selling the entire New York property and removing the Seminary to Mamaroneck. Fortunately this plan was never carried into operation.

THE WAR

A general reorganization followed the Civil War, a permanent Deanship now being created, whereas hitherto the office had been held by the members of the faculty in rotation. And the Deans in order have been John M. Forbes, George F. Seymour (afterward Bishop of Springfield), Eugene A. Hoffmann, Wilford L. Robbins and Hughell E. W. Fosbroke, the present incumbent; the fact that there have been only these five Deans since 1869 has produced an excellent continuity of policy. Dr. Seymour, a trained teacher and theologican, succeeded in carrying out important improvements, but it was Dean Hoffman to whom above all others the Seminary owes most. Under him it was literally rebuilt throughout, only the old West Building remaining. At the conclusion of his administration the students were housed in dormitories built after the Oxford plan, with a dining hall that matches the beauty of its English models and an admirably equipped gymnasium. The faculty were provided with dwellings of an equally substantial character. A handsome library building housed the rapidly growing collection of books and to these were added priceless treasures, of which the Guthenberg Bible is the chief. Class rooms and administration offices followed in due sequence. The endowment was increased to a sum then (in 1902) adequate for the ordinary needs of the Seminary. And, above all, the Memorial Chapel of the Good Shepherd gave the devotional life of the school a worthy center. Only one element in Dean Hoffman's plans was left unaccomplished, a building that would contain an appropriate assembly hall, but funds for this are largely in hand and its erection is hoped for in the not very distant future.

The one criticism that has been made of Dean Hoffman was that his zeal for upbuilding the external fabric of the Seminary was not accompanied by an equal zeal for its intellectual advance. None the less the records of the classes that graduated under his administration contain the names of twenty-two bishops.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Under Dean Robbins, however, the faculty was strengthened and the devotional life was greatly quickened. And in 1917 the trustees called to the Deanship Dr. Fosbroke, who had spent his entire career as a teacher. The opening years of his administration, naturally, were disturbed by America's entrance into the World War—which almost depleted the student body—but the time was used in perfecting plans for educational reorganization which are now largely in effect.

The Present Day

At present the General Theological Seminary is staffed by a faculty of eleven full professors, assisted by six lecturers and five instructors, with a student body of 125 men. The latter are from forty-seven different dioceses and missionary districts and include graduates of fifty-four different colleges and universities; the General Seminary is consequently "general" in a very obvious sense of the word. It is "general" also in its organization, for it alone among the Seminaries of our Church is under the direct control of General Convention. Each triennium the House of Bishops elects five bishops as trustees and the House of Deputies elects five clergymen and five laymen; as these serve for six years, thirty members of the Board are chosen by the representatives of the Church at large. Of the other trustees three are ex-officio, the Presiding Bishop, the Bishop of New York and the Dean of the Seminary, while nine others are chosen by the alumni. So there are in all forty-two trustees of the Seminary, who direct its entire policy. The present Chairman of the Board is the Bishop of New Jersey.

The Dean of the Seminary is elected for life and has very large powers. Professors are chosen in the first instance for five years and at the end of that period are reelected for life; theoretically they can be removed for due cause by the trustees but in practice such action has never occurred and academic freedom is taken for granted. And before any elections of new professors can take place the opinion of the faculty must be asked; in recent years, at least, the trustees have invariably agreed with this opinion when expressed.

Admission to the Seminary is entirely governed by the Dean and Faculty, who have full power to reject any applicant; in practice a college degree is almost indispensable as a prerequisite. The academic requirements throughout the course are high and students with more than two conditions are dropped from the rolls. Instruction for the most part is conducted by the lecture-tutorial method; namely, the general outline of any course is discussed by its professor in two hour periods once each week, but the adaptation of the course to the needs of individuals is in the hands of a group of tutors. These tutors investigate the abilities of their students and assign appropriate work to each, allowing the more able men to study more or less along their own lines while the less competent are trained in accord with the requirements of each case. The tutors have, moreover, the important reponsibility of coordinating the various fields of theology; students frequently have great difficulty in learning the bearing of the historic subjects on the systematic and vice versa.

President Ogilby
Announces Gifts to Trinity

Seminars

In more advanced lecture courses the professors themselves act as tutors, but most of the advanced courses are conducted as seminars, as the number of elective courses is large the number of students in each is correspondingly small. And in the courses for graduates—a very important part of the Seminary's work—the seminar method is followed almost exclusively. Joint seminars, conducted by two or more professors from different departments, aid here in the important task of coordination.

From the beginning of a student's career at the General, consequently, until his final departure—possibly two or more years after graduation—he is trained continually in independent work. As a result the Seminary's library plays an extraordinarily important part in his education. And this library ranks among the important technical libraries of the United States. At present it contains slightly over 80,000 bound volumes, besides many pamphlets and an important collection of manuscripts, and accessions are at the rate of two thousand volumes annually. Nearly two hundred periodicals are received, making its resources virtually complete for most purposes, while many fields it covers most minutely. Special needs are filled by inter-library loans—within the past five years the library has never failed to secure, temporarily or permanently, any book that has been asked for. Students naturally have access as well to the vast library resources of the other New York institutions.

St. Peter's Church

Practical subjects are taught by lectures supplemented by field work. The Professor of Pastoral Theology is at the same time rector of St. Peters Church, which is distant from the Seminary less than half a city block, and selected students work in the parish under his personal direction, learning all aspects of pastoral duties by direct experience. The remaining students are given similar training at other parishes and missions in and about New York City. Students desiring to specialize in Christian Sociology are sent to one or more of the many local institutions that have full technical equipment for such instruction and the courses there are credited towards the Seminary diploma. In certain instances courses in other subjects receive similar credit.

In the Chapel the Holy Communion is celebrated and Morning and Evening Prayer are said daily, and at noon there are special intercessions of an informal character. Special sermons, usually by visiting preachers, are frequent. There are two Quiet Days each year, normally in Advent and Lent, while ample provision is made for training in meditation. All students of the Seminary are members of its Missionary Society, which holds frequent meetings for the study of missions and for devotional purposes. The study of missions is moreover, required, courses in devotional theology are given at intervals.

As a general institution of the whole Church, the Seminary, in the words of its catalogue, "welcomes students of all shades of opinion within the Church." There is no charge for tuition. The cost of room and board for each year is $350 but scholarship aid is given when necessary. In New York City, of course, opportunities are abundant for suitable remunerative work.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

About Books

ENGLISH CHURCHMEN
Reviews of Four Books
By the Rev. C. L. Street

ST. THOMAS OF CANTERBURY—Sidney Dark
THOMAS CRANMER—A. C. Deane.
ARCHBISHOP LAUD—A. S. Duncan-Jones
THOMAS ARNOLD—R. J. Campbell
Macmillan—1927. Each $1.50

This series of studies of lives of great English Churchmen is under the general editorship of Sidney Dark, Editor of the London Church Times. It has been the policy to select, in each case, a biographer who is sympathetic with the man whose biography he writes, and to show him in relation to the historical period in which he lived and to the church movements in which he had a part.

The first three of these men were alike in that they were Archbishops of Canterbury, who gave their lives in defence of the church. Mr. Dark pictures in a fascinating manner the stirring days of Thomas Beckets struggle with Henry II. He traces the development of this very human saint as deacon, courtier, diplomat, and archbishop to the time when he died, murdered in his own cathedral, rather than betray his ideal for the church which he served.

Thomas Cranmer was forced by his times into inconsistencies which it is hard for us to understand. The author and translator of prayers which have stood the test of centuries, he was at the same time a weak bishop and unlike Thomas, his predecessor, denied his principles in a vain attempt to save his skin. But as one reads Canon Deane's account of Cranmer's life, one realizes some of the difficulties that this Cambridge don had to face, taken from Jesus College willy-nilly and set down in the archbishop's chair. One can not admire him, but one can partly understand. And there is this to be said for him, that when the end came he recanted his recantations and went to the stake like a man.

Archbishop Laud is often thought of more as a statesman than as a bishop, but it was he more than any other individual in the critical times in which he lived who established in men's minds the idea of the church of England as not Papal on the one hand and not Calvinist on the other. The lives of these three men make us realize what peaceful times we live in, after all.

Thomas Arnold was a person of a very different sort, who lived in a very different age. Dr. R. J. Campbell describes in an illuminating way not only the events of his life, but his relation to the Christian Socialist movement and the Oxford movement, and his work as Headmaster of Rugby.

There is no better way to become interested in the history of the church and to learn the meaning of Christian loyalty than by reading the biographies of great churchmen. Any one of these four books would be good to start on.

Cheerful Confidences

THE THOUGHTLESS RICH

By Rev. George Parkin Atwater

WHEN St. Peter sees your estate appraised at more than $10,000, and you approach the pearly gates, he will surely ask you, NOT "How much did you give to charity?" but "Did you pay your small creditors promptly?"

The failure of the rich to pay their small bills promptly is the yellow peril of our land, and they furnish the color.

The abuse of credit by those able to pay promptly is a menace to our social and economic structure, and it is a stimulus to crime, to poverty, to the dissolution of families, to business failures, and to a score of evil things.

Many a man who prides himself upon his righteousness and his patriotism is worthy of being put in custody as one who stirs up sedition, because he arouses hatred and malice and rebellion against existing institutions, by reason of the hardships he imposes by his failure to pay his small bills promptly.

Many a woman who spends a day working to raise a few dollars for some relief agency, or for charity, would be far better employed at home writing checks for the payment of her bills. There would not be the need of so much relief work if the rich would pay their bills promptly.

Certain feathers have gone out of style because to secure them involved cruelty to the birds. If all the unpaid-for hats and gowns would go out of style because they involved cruelty to the milliners and dressmakers, there would be more consistency in our attitude.

Small creditors of all trades and professions are the victims of the thoughtless rich. They sink under the strain of having to furnish capital to support the rich in their shameless neglect.

When some woman "caught in the very act" says to her accusers, "The rich people would not pay me promptly and forced me out of my business," who is the more guilty, the poor woman in despair, or the rich parasite who made her condition inevitable.

Failure to pay small bills promptly is adding to the army of malcontents in our land. It is a disease as deadly as typhoid.

Among the quite possible things, nothing would add more to our economic stability than to have every one pay his bills promptly.

HAVE A HEART, you fairminded, just, reasonable, and compassionate rich people. Let not a day pass before you do an act of justice and pay your small creditors. Set an example. You would not sleep nights if you knew the results of your carelessness.

HAVE A HEART, likewise, every one of you, of whatever means, and pay your small bills at once. You will have a "clean" feeling for having done so.

I wish every newspaper in our land would copy this appeal. They might bring relief to hundreds of their readers.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

A Sunday School teacher was telling her class all about the cannibals and missionaries who went out to foreign countries. "What do you think would be the first thing the missionaries should teach the cannibals?" was one of the questions she put to the class. One bright little boy answered, readily: "I know, teacher. They should teach them to be vegetarians."

* * *

Anxious mother: "And is my little boy really trying?"

Tired S. S. teacher: "Very."

* * *

Prison chaplain (to prisoner about to be discharged): "Now, my man, try to remember what I said in my sermon last Sunday and make up your mind never to return to this place"

Prisoner (deeply moved): "No man who ever heard you preach would want to come back here."

* * *

The Sunday School teacher was talking to her class about cruelty to animals.

"I once knew a little boy who cut a cat's tail off," she said. "Think of it, children, he took a knife and cut its tail off. Can anyone tell me a Bible verse that should have taught this boy that he was doing wrong?"

There was silence for a moment. Then a small boy waved his hand frantically.

"What is it, my boy?" asked the teacher.

"What God hath joined together let no man put asunder," he shouted.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

A PROJECT of international friendship between the young people of the United States and of Mexico was announced today by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. This undertaking, it was stated in the announcement, has been prompted by the success which attended last year's project of sending doll messengers of friendship to Japan, which were distributed in the Japanese public schools on Doll Festival Day and, according to reports from Japan, produced a profound impression on the nation.

It is now proposed that "Friendship School Bags" be sent to the children of Mexico, each bag to contain articles of interest and help in the life of school children. The Mexican Vice-Minister of Education has approved the project and will distribute the bags in the schools of Mexico, of which there are said to be about 15,000 with 1,250,000 pupils.

The "friendship bags," according to the announcement, will be sent by day schools and Sunday schools, by special groups of all kinds in the various religious organization, and also by individual children and adults. The bags, which will be made of durable fabrikoid, decorated with a beautiful design, including the Mexican and American flags, are to be especially manufactured for the Committee. The school or group participating in the project will add certain articles to be bought or made, and will send the bag by parcel post direct to Mexico City.

The Friendship Bags will be officially distributed in the schools on Mexico's Independence Day, September 16, 1928, which day is universally observed in all public schools. The project may be undertaken and the bags sent to Mexico at any time between January 1 and July 30, 1928, according to the convenience of American schools and communities.

* * *

Conference of colored Church workers of the province of Washington was held at the Incarnation, Baltimore, October 4 and 5. The dominant note was "self-support and self-respect."

* * *

Bishop Rogers of Ohio conducted a quiet day for the Maryland Church Service League October 6th at the Cathedral, Baltimore.

* * *

Home coming at old St. John's, Pitt County, N. C. was attended by 1,500 people. They hope to make the parish the standard for rural churches; it is already a community affair with five denominations represented in the Church school.

* * *

Annual diocesan meeting of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew was held October first at Christ Church, Bronxville; speakers, Secretary Palmer, Dean Robbins of the Cathedral, and Captain Mountford of the Church Army.

* * *

At a meeting of the national commission on evangelism a resolution, adopted jointly by the commission, the Brotherhood of St. Andrew and the Daughters of the King, sets forth this program: 1. Parochial missions, with conferences for old and young and a lot of follow-up work; 2. Personal evangelism, meaning getting folks out to church and bringing them to baptism and confirmation; 3. Getting people to communion regularly; 4. Family religion, devotions, Bible reading, religious training of children in the home; 5. Bible classes; 6. Church teaching by distribution of literature; 7. Church extension; missions and service in institutions.

* * *

The Diocese of Olympia uses most of the money it receives from the National Council for the development of two Japanese projects, one in Seattle and the other in the White River Valley. There are 8,700 Japanese in the city of Seattle. Both pieces of work are going on splendidly, with money in sight to add to the present meagre equipment.

* * *

The National Council is in session as I write these notes; guess we shall have to wait until next week for the news from there, though I am told that there is nothing particularly exciting happening.

* * *

This ought to go under Manby Lloyd's heading but since I found it here it is: the Bishop of Ripon, Dr. Hensley Henson, in a sermon a couple of weeks ago said that the United States, with its "mass production and standardized industry, and Soviet Russia with its hideous doctrine of mechanized humanity" are together attacking men's individuality and exalting their lower natures. "The rift between civilization and Christianity is widening into a breach which threatens to become total. Man is becoming standardized like industry and the human spirit is being asphyxiated by material prosperity."

* * *

Here is an interesting bit; New York papers are excited over the present situation in Mexico and intimate that because of a pay-roll robbery of $5,000 American troops should go in to restore law and order. If the troops are to be used for this sort of thing those available should be divided between Chicago and New York, what?

* * *

Trinity College opened September 23rd with an enrollment of 270 students of whom over a hundred are freshmen. At the opening chapel service President Ogilby announced that a new $350,000 chemistry laboratory is to be built as soon as plans can be prepared. The entering class is the largest in a good many years and makes up as large a student body as can be accommodated with the present equipment. New gymnasium also is going up, to cost $175,000 and is to contain a swimming pool and six squash courts, in addition to the other stuff that a gym usually has.

* * *

Early in the year a Bishop Coadjutor was elected for Lexington; he declined. The Bishop, Dr. Burton, has now officially withdrawn his request for and consent to the election of a coadjutor.

* * *

The Church and Drama association, whose purpose it is to promote the arts, held a dinner in New York this week, with Mr. John W. Davis as toastmaster. Mr. Davis, in case you do not recall him, was the Democratic candidate for the presidency, recently. The speakers were Bishop Manning, Dr. S. Parkes Cadman,

BISHOP JOHNSON'S ARTICLE

THE article by Bishop Johnson in the series on THE TEACHINGS OF THE CHURCH has been omitted this week at his request in order to make room for the article on the General Theological Seminary by Professor Easton. The second article of his series, A DEFINITE CREED, will appear in the next issue, followed the next week by the third article on CONFESSION OF SIN.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Rev. F. P. Duffy, R. C. war chaplain of fame, E. H. Sothern and his wife, Julia Marlow and Francis Wilson. All they needed was Will Rogers to make it a real party.

* * *

A laymen's conference was held earlier in the month at Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin. No news to laymen's conferences these days as they are being held everywhere. But this particular one is interesting as it was for a diocese which does not yet exist. The diocese of Milwaukee and Fond du Lac thought it would be nice to get the parishes that are to be in the new diocese of Northern Wisconsin started on their job and so suggested this party for laymen, where the New Diocese and its Relationship to the General Program was discussed. Readers will recall that a gift of $100,000 was made to start the new diocese on its way. Since then $30,000 more has been raised.

* * *

Bishop Manning, preaching last Sunday to a large number of Girl Scouts, denounced those who, through writing and teaching, are undermining the moral standards of young people. "Murder, theft, lying and adultery are sins against God and against human life no matter what our clever and immoral novelists and playwrights and professors of psychology may choose to say."

Corner stone of St. Marks-on-the-Hill, Baltimore, was laid September 25th by Bishop Murray. Going to be a very beautiful affair after the manner of an English country church. Eight years ago the property of this parish consisted of an acre of ground on which stood a small frame church and rectory. In a few months they are to have one of the most complete plants in Maryland.

* * *

Memorial service was held on October 2nd in the Italian Church of San Salvatore, New York, for Mrs Ida R. Bouker, who died during the summer after a long illness. For more than thirty years she ran the Girls' Friendly Society in the parish. Canon George S. Nelson, former superintendent of the City Mission Society participated in the service.

* * *

Hobart opened its 106th year on September 21st with an enrollment of 302 students of whom 119 are in the freshmen class, a gain of 43 over last year. The Rev. Irving A. McGrew has been appointed student pastor and immediately got on the job finding out something about the boys. He discovered that 130 registered as Episcopalians; 26 plan to study for the ministry; that 27 men are there because urged to attend this college by a clergyman, while thirteen stated that they were there because it was a Church college. At William Smith College, where the girls go, there is a total enrollment of 158.

* * *

Bishops and Archbishops were among those attending the dedication of the new $100,000 church of St. Paul's, Bellingham, Washington. The Bishop of Olympia dedicated the church and the Archbishop of British Columbia was present. The first child to be baptised was the son of the architect and the first marriage was that of the builder. Also a class of 56 has already been confirmed in the new church.

* * *

Bishop Gailor is planning on two new windows for the Cathedral in Memphis; one a personal gift as a memorial to his mother, the other a memorial to three former bishops of the diocese, the money for which is now being raised.

* * *

Three normal schools are being held in Tennessee; Knoxville, Nashville and Memphis. Idea of course is to improve church school teaching.

* * *

Clergy of Chattanooga have just organized a clericus.

* * *

All Saints, Atlanta, Georgia, is to be the host to the Southern conference of Episcopal college students over this week end.

* * *

Bishop Roots of Hankow says that the situation in China becomes more

Third Annual Catholic Congress, Albany, N. Y., October 25-27

TO CATHOLIC MINDED CHURCHMEN EVERYWHERE!

The Congress calls for your Prayers, Personal Interest and your Individual Co-operation.

The Congress Stands for the Religion of the Nicene Creed in its fullness.

The Congress program covers Perpetual Prayer for the accomplishment of this end, Lectures for the Propagation, Maintenance and Defense of the Faith, with Nation-wide Congresses and Conferences at Central points.

Your membership will help further this Movement.

MEMBERSHIPS

Life	$25.00
Sustaining	10.00
Contributing	5.00
Annual	1.00

Address communications to Headquarters Congress Committee, 5720 Ridge Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa.

Date.....19....

THE CATHOLIC CONGRESS,
5720 Ridge Avenue,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Please enroll me as a Life ☐ Sustaining ☐ Contributing ☐ Annual ☐ Member of the Catholic Congress.

I enclose $..... for membership dues.

Name .....

Address .....

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

complicated as the weeks roll by, making it difficult to plan for the winter work. However plans have been made, several of the missionaries are returning to the field, and the Church General Hospital and several of the schools will continue to function as they have throughout the trouble.

* * *

Two stained glass windows have recently been installed in the clerestory of St. James' Church, New York. One is in memory of Hildegarde von Brockdorff, who was a beloved deaconess in several New York parishes. The other is in memory of William Tucker Washburn, Mary Rosina Washburn and William Mayhew Washburn, and is a gift of the family which is one of the oldest in the parish. The windows are soon to be dedicated by the rector, the Rev. Dr. Crowder.

* * *

A new sort of radio entertainment is on the air each Sunday evening from 7 to 7:30 when the faculty members of Trinity College broadcast over station WTIC. Each week two members of the faculty broadcast a dialogue under the general title "The Heritage of the Human Race." The series of dialogues will cover, President Ogilby said, "the physical structure of our planet and the forces of nature, leading up to the time when we come to records which we can call historical. We then follow the thread of the development of our culture."

* * *

I haven't entirely given up the hope that some one of these days there may be an Episcopal Church College Football Conference. There is the Big Ten; the Big Three which now no longer exists since a Harvard man was busted on the nose last year by an ungentlemanly Princetonian during their combat; and the Little Three where Amherst, Williams and Wesleyan fight it out on the football field for supremacy. Why should not Kenyon, Hobart, Trinity and St. Stephen's form a football conference with each team playing the other three each fall? Colleges are for the purpose of educating youth, nobody is going to dispute that. Yet it is true that football looms very large on the horizon of most boys of college age, and of their fathers and grandfathers also. Such a conference would focus the attention of the hundreds of thousands interested in football upon our excellent Church colleges. The great dailies would give space to the conference whereas they almost completely ignore our colleges now, particularly since the teams of these colleges are rather evenly matched and would offer excellent games. Then I could be a sports editor, with a nice little half column tucked away somewhere in this sheet to record the results.

* * *

An English rector in New South Wales, writing to a London paper, says that the most urgent need in his parish is for an airplane to be used in visiting outlying sections and isolated settlers where roads are bad or nil. The rector was a pilot during the war, before he was ordained. Using skill required in air combat to promote the cure of souls is a clear case of making the wrath of man to praise Him.

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

The New Hymnal

The authorized and approved Hymnal of the Church.

—o—

is available in three editions. The Standard Musical Edition, bound in dark blue, is $1.20 per copy, or in lots of 100 or more, $1.00 per copy.

The Special Choir Edition has a heavily reinforced binding and is bound in red. It is $1.50 per copy, or in lots of 100 or more, is $1.30 per copy. An order for 100 or more of the musical hymnal, part of which are for the Choir Edition, entitles the purchaser to the reduced prices on both editions.

The Word Hymnal, without music, sells at 40c. per copy, regardless of the number ordered.

—o—

Carriage charges are extra.

ORDERS SHOULD BE SENT TO

The Church Pension Fund

14 Wall Street New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Young People's Fellowship conference is to be held at the Cathedral, Garden City, Long Island, October 21-23. Bishop Stires is to preach at the service on the 23rd.

* * *

Rev. Arthur R. Cummings, Church of the Resurrection, Richmond Hill, Long Island, has started a weekday school of religious education which is to run throughout the school year.

* * *

It is a distinct tribute to the Christian Nurture Series that they are used in the First Evangelical Church of Seattle, Washington.

* * *

Services have been resumed in St. David's, Portland, Oregon, the church having been renovated and redecorated after a disastrous fire last May.

* * *

"Must We Have War" is to be the theme of the 12th International Goodwill Congress which is to meet in St. Louis in November, with all sorts of internationally prominent people on the program.

* * *

Receipts to the National Council to October 7th were over $40,000 less that for the same period last year, with but 19 in the honor column as against 21 last year. The urge is that every effort be made this month to get folks to pay up overdue pledges.

* * *

Rev. Cyril Bickersteth of the Community of the Resurrection, England, preached on the 16th at Trinity Chapel, New York. He is the author of the widely used "Letters to a Godson."

* * *

Over a hundred Episcopal students of Northwestern University attended a dinner given by the Craig Club, the Church organization of the campus. The meeting was at St. Luke's; the speakers were President Scott, Dean Kent and Dr. George Craig Stewart, the rector. This week a mission is being conducted under the auspices of the Club by Father Harrison of the Order of Holy Cross.

* * *

"Dancing" is the subject upon which the Rev. Walter S. Pond spoke at the last meeting of the Chicago Round Table, the clericus of the diocese.

* * *

St. Paul's, Lancaster, California, was dedicated on the 2nd by Bishop Stevens, assisted by the Rev. Canon Renison. Lancaster is in the centre of a growing ranching section, about seventy-five miles from Los Angeles.

* * *

The September number of the Church News of the diocese of West Texas has an interesting article on the LaSalle Cross on Grace Church, Port Lavaca. The cross was found near the mouth of the Lavaca river; is of rude iron construction about four or five feet high, and is said to be the cross set up by LaSalle on his

St. Albans The National Cathedral School For Boys

Thorough Preparation for Leading Universities. Splendid equipment, unexcelled location on Mt. St. Alban overlooking Washington. Eight years' course. Athletics for Every Boy.

Address: WILLIAM H. CHURCH
Head Master, Washington, D. C.

AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY
NEW PRIZE CONTEST
for
BEST TRACTS
First Prize $100.00 and Gold Medal
Second Prize $50.00 Third Prize $25.00

Annuity Bonds
Exceptionally Attractive
Safe and Satisfactory

Send for particulars concerning award of prizes and the Annuity Bonds.
AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY
7 W. 45th St. New York City

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California
A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

Hospital of St. Barnabas
SCHOOL OF NURSING
Offers 2½ years course leading to R. N. Degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll now.
For full information, address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas
Newark, N. J.

Money for Churches
Hundreds of churches by their experience have proved that men trained in financial campaigns raise more money more easily than untrained men.
Over $208,500,000 has been raised for religious and philanthropic institutions by members of this organization.
Campaigns undertaken anywhere. We care for every detail.
Plan for that new building, addition or Sunday School. Let us help you clear off debts. Write us your hopes.
Members of this organization have conducted campaigns for the Church ranging from Hundred Thousand Dollar funds for parishes to Several Millions for institutional and diocesan programs.
"Financing Philanthropy," quarterly paper, free on request.
Member Joint Board of Campaign Counsel and Planning
HEDRICK, MARTS & LUNDY, Inc.
527 Fifth Ave., New York

TWO INDISPENSABLE BOOKS
CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS
By Bishop Johnson
The standard book of instructions that is used in hundreds of parishes.
50c a copy. $4.00 a dozen
THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH
By George P. Atwater
A classic that rectors give to questioners, clubs dramatize and classes use in discussion groups.
65c a copy, paper; $1.10 boards.
WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., LTD., 28 MARgaret Street, London, England. Craftsmen in Ecclesiastical Art. Woodwork, Metal Work, Vestments, Embroidery. Information and all particulars can be obtained through their distributor, Mr. Adrian A. Buck, 665 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London, W. I., England.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin
Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request. Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, also chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses, $7.60 up, burse and veil, $15 up; Silk damask cope, $120; Silk damask chasuble, $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel., Cleveland 52.

CHRISTMAS CARDS: TWENTY IMPORTED religious cards for $1.06, post paid. Write for circular of other cards. Girls' Friendly Society, 15 East 40th Street, New York City.

EARN MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH, SCHOOL OR SOCIETY
Sell 5c Chocolate Covered Bars
Highest Grade — 20 Varieties
30 days to pay.
Offer not good in West or South
For Particulars write
L. E. AUSTIN, 760 West End Ave., New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

first landing in 1685. It is evidently the work of a ship's blacksmith. It has cut upon it the letters M.S., probably signifying "Maria Sanctissima."

* * *

Deaconess Anna G. Newell, Director of Hooker School, Mexico City, since December 1921, has resigned to accept an election as Dean of the School for Christian Service and Deaconess Training at Berkeley, California. She enters upon her new duties January 1st, 1928, and will spend some weeks in the East preparing herself for the important work ahead.

* * *

This new idea of having people ask you questions during your sermon is, as usual, not such a new idea after all. A clergyman at the Social Service Conference said that many years ago he had been interrupted by a man who wanted some questions answered. The man, it is true, was intoxicated, but he asked exceedingly good questions and the preacher felt a certain regret when he was firmly removed by some vestrymen. Another clergyman said that he had been three times questioned while he was preaching, but this was in an insane asylum.

* * *

Three capable and determinted women of Goodland, in western Kansas (District of Salina), last year took upon themselves, with the Bishop's consent, the responsibility of securing a new church, which was on the priority list but showed no signs of materializing. A shabby store building had been long in use as a church. The women wanted one more suitable "before they got too old to use it." There is now a brick church of good design, completely furnished. Part of its cost is carried as a debt. All the furnishings are memorials. The nearest of our churches is 100 miles east, in Norton, and 200 miles west, in Denver.

* * *

In a recently published decision, the U. S. Customs Court held colored hangings for the altar, pulpit and prayer desk of St. Paul's Church, Marysville, Kansas, of which the Rev. A. W. Pannell is the rector, to be free of duty. Heretofore such articles were subject to an ad valorem duty of 75 or 90 per cent, according to the material of chief value composing the same. The altar hangings, which became the subject matter of the controversy, were refused free entry by the Deputy Collector of Customs, Kansas City, Mo., who held that they were not parts of the altar and not entitled to free entry. The Rev. A. W. Pannell, Rector of St. Mark's Church protested the action of the collector and the cause came before the U. S. Customs Court for trial.

Mr. James R. Ryan, an attorney specializing in practice before the U. S. Customs Court, was retained to

CROUP AND CHILDREN'S COLDS QUICKLY RELIEVED

Since 1802 or for 124 years mothers have known that Roche's Embrocation is the quickest relief for whooping cough, croup and colds. Just rub it on the child's chest Phlegm is loosened, congestion broken. Then relief comes.

Sold By All Druggists or

E. FOUGERA & CO., Inc., New York
W. Edwards & Sons, London, Eng., Props.

ROCHE'S EMBROCATION

J. PATERSON SMYTH'S New Book

MYSELF AND OTHER PROBLEMS

J. Paterson Smyth puts himself in the other man's place and makes clear as daylight the problems of pain and evil, of the fall, death, hell, heaven, and other questions. $1.50

FLEMING H. REVELL CO., 158 Fifth Ave., New York; 851 Cass St., Chicago

Made by
American Seating Company

Interior Grace Cathedral, Topeka, Kansas

An Appropriate Memorial

THE entire chancel of the Grace Cathedral, Topeka, Kansas illustrated above is dedicated to the memory of Bishop Millspaugh, Bishop of Kansas, and was designed and executed by our wood-carving division.

We shall be pleased to confer on any plans concerning memorials in wood, special pieces or complete church furnishings.

American Seating Company
GENERAL OFFICES: 1024 LYTTON BUILDING
CHICAGO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York
139 West Forty-sixth Street
Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D., Litt.D.
Sunday Masses, 7:30, 8:15, 9, 10:45.
Vespers and Benediction, 4.
Week-day Masses, 7, 8, 9:30.

St. John's, Cynwyd, Pa.
The Birthplace of the Lenten Offering
When in Philadelphia attend services here. Call Cynwyd 1382 for information.
Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, D.D., Rector
Sundays 8 and 11 A. M.

represent the Rev. Mr. Pannell. The case was tried in Baltimore some months ago, but was only recently decided.

* * *

First teachers' training class of Long Island met at Merrick with an enrollment of an even hundred.

* * *

From out of the far north comes a message showing how the white residents at Fort Yukon and the surrounding region value the Hudson Stuck Memorial Hospital and the work that Dr. Grafton Burke is doing there. The message tells its own story:

"At the request of the residents of Fort Yukon, Alaska, the National Council of the Episcopal Church created the Hudson Stuck Memorial Fund to endow the Hudson Stuck Hospital, and set the fund at $25,000. $14,000 has been raised. The whites and natives of Fort Yukon have given most of this.

"Our present drive is for $11,000 to complete the fund. Of this, $2,670 has been given, and pledged at a mass meeting of the Old Timers where a motion was unanimously carried to complete the fund, and elected Harry Horton of the firm of Horton and Moore, and J. A. Donald of the Northern Commercial Company, and Dr. Burke on the executive committee."

Then follow the names of forty-four individuals or firms making gifts and pledges ranging from $5 to $100 per year for three years.

* * *

A unanimous conviction that the Bishops' Crusade was an initial step whose results, far exceeding expectations, demand that the work inaugurated go forward; and plans for a vigorous prosecution of this work, were the outstanding features of an all-day meeting of the National Commission on Evangelism at Church Headquarters, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York, on September 28.

Bishop Darst presided. Among those in attendance were Bishop Freeman of Washington, Bishop Cook of Delaware, Bishop Oldham, coadjutor of Albany; the Rev. Dr. Tomkins of Philadelphia, the Rev. J. S. Bunting of St. Louis, the Rev. Henry Wise Hobson of Worcester, Mr. Willard Walker of Tennessee, and Mr. Samuel Thorn of New York. Mr. Leon Palmer, executive secretary of the Commission was also present; and during the progress of the meeting the Rev. Lloyd S. Charters, rector of Emmanuel Church, Norwich, New York, and the Rev. Samuel Shoemaker, rector of Calvary Church, New York City, held the close attention of the members of the Commission with detailed re-

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily: 7:30 and 10 A. M. and 5:00 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m., 4 p. m.
Daily, 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursday, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11 A. M., and 8 P. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursday, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 7, 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., Fri., and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30 and 11:00 A. M., 5:00, 6:15 and 8:00 P. M.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp and Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind HOWE SCHOOL HOWE — INDIANA In a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

citals of the results of visitation evangelism in their parishes.

After prolonged discussion of the Crusade and the outlook, the Commission authorized the appointment of a field worker, who will be named later, who will look after the promotion of the objects of the Commission in the field. It was also decided to make the Rev. Dr. Loaring Clark, general missioner of the Commission, to act also in the field, both officials to act under the direction of Bishop Darst, Chairman of the Commission.

Through the adoption of the report of Bishop Cook, chairman of the sub-committee on literature, a new hand book of the Commission will be issued, outlining a course of procedure, including a parish program, by which the work begun by the Crusade can be effectively carried forward. A letter to be signed by the bishops who are members of the Commission, was also approved and will be sent to every bishop of the Church, urging co-operation in the intensive follow-up on the crusade; and there will be issued by the Commission at an early date also, a pastoral letter addressed to the whole Church upon the same subject.

The Commission plans to lay before the General Convention at Washington, in connection with its report on the Bishops' Crusade, an appeal for support for a systematic and well organized follow-up. Among the plans under consideration is a project for an Evangelistic mass meeting. Bishop Darst was requested to keep in touch with Bishop Freeman and the presiding bishop in order that such a meeting may be arranged that will not conflict with other arrangements which may be made for the Convention.

Clerical Changes

ADAMS, Rev. H. B., resigns as rector of Christ Church, Troy, New York, to accept the rectorship of Christ Church, Meadville, Pa.

BODE, Rev. Arnold G. H., resigns as rector of St. Michael's, Anaheim, California, to accept the position of associate and director of music at St. James', South Pasadena, California.

FORD, Rev. Williston M., resigns as rector of the Incarnation, San Francisco, to accept the rectorship of Trinity, Orange, California.

GRIGGS, Rev. Walter G., resigns as rector of Christ Church, Crookston, Minnesota, to be curate of House of Prayer, Newark, New Jersey.

FAIRCHILD, Rev. Roy H., rector of St. Ambrose, Chicago, has accepted a call to All Saints', West Plains, Missouri.

KEICHER, Rev. Paul O., has assumed the rectorship of the Church of Our Saviour, Du Bois, Pa.

KNEELAND, Rev. M. D., resigns as the rector of the Ascension, Sierra Madre, California.

LYNCH, Rev. Francis M., contrary to a previous report has not accepted a call to a parish in Texas but is to remain as rector of Rock Spring Parish, Harford County, Maryland.

STIRES, Rev. Ernest Van R., ordained last June by his father, the Bishop of Long Island, has been placed in charge of a new mission at Bellerose, Long Island.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, jurnalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Attention Leaders!

THE work of the Church advances as men and women back it with prayer, labor and money.

The Church's Program can be carried out only as Every Member does his part.

Every Member awaits leadership.

Are you promoting the Program and pointing the way?

Every Member Canvass dates are November 20 to December 4, 1927

Preparation—Education

These must precede the Canvass, if it is to be effective.

Are you ready?

If not, Diocesan Field Departments are eager to help you prepare, and plans and literature are obtainable from them or the Field Department of the National Council.

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL

281 Fourth Avenue New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

A DEFINITE CREED — Bishop Johnson

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, OCTOBER 27, 1927

All Saints', San Diego

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St New York

worker in glass ✠ mosaic ✠ church decoration

For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.

Baltimore, Md.

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring

Inquiries given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403) (Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts. NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J

The Taylor Bell Foundry

LOUGHBOROUGH, ENGLAND

The World's Leading Bellfounders

CHURCH BELLS

SINGLY OR IN PEALS
CHIMES OR CARILLONS
AUTOMATIC OPERATION

Unequalled for Musical Qualities

Yale University	Birmingham, Ala.
Andover	Gloucester
Morristown	Cranbrook, Mich.

Harvard University
Germantown, Etc., Etc.
INQUIRIES SOLICITED

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained - Glass

English · Artists

550 & 552 W. HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings
Gorgeous Combinations of Color
Well executed by
The Von Gerichten Studios
Columbus, Ohio. New York City

The Charm of Golden-Voiced Chimes

is within reach of your church, too!

Imagine the rich, musical tones of Deagan Tower Chimes coming from the belfry of your church—a constant inspiration to worship; a golden voice eagerly awaited by multitudes every day. Write for plan.

Standard Sets $6,000 and Up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER

and 4 & 5 Duncannon St: Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART · WORKERS

in

Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal and
Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

Stained Glass Artists

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.,

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

EST. 1877

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— Office and Studio —

221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS · AND · BUILDERS · OF · ECCLESIASTIC · MEMORIAL · WINDOWS.

— Photos, Designs and Estimates upon Application —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 10 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

WHY THE CHURCH TEACHES

2. A Definite Creed

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

IF RELIGION is a fundamental reality in human life, and I believe that it is, then I am very sure it is something that God reveals to man in His way and not something that man imposes upon God in his way. By this I mean that just as the facts in nature were created by God and discovered by man so I believe the great spiritual truths which lie at the basis of true moral action are revealed by God through divinely ordained instruments. I do not question the ability of men to create a religion if they want to; I am merely intrigued by its futility and am no more impressed with the effectiveness of such religious inventions than I would be impressed by the manufacture of wooden nutmegs as an addition to the botanical assets of the world.

I am sometimes ashamed of the religious world when it endeavors to instruct scientists about the well established facts which they have laborously worked out, but in the same breath I am irritated by the arrogant assumptions of little pedagogues, who, having no religious experience themselves, deride the honest convictions of men who are intellectually their superiors.

All human actions which lie beyond the realm of life's necessities are founded upon a basic assumption which can not be demonstrated in a syllogism but is justified in an experience. A young man may well ask why should I be a scientist and bother my head about the logical sequence of events. I would rather eat, drink and be merry. Such an ignoramus may do anything he pleases except criticize a scientist for he knows nothing of that about which he presumes to judge. But it is equally true that if a man rejects religion and refuses to pursue its experiences that whatever he may do he is making a fool of himself when he assumes to judge the religious experiences of men wiser and better than himself. Of course, like Sinclair Lewis, he may attempt to demonstrate the folly of religion by scoriating hypocrites but that is on a par with abusing naturalists because there are nature fakirs in the world.

It is true that the scientist, the artist and the saint begin with an assumption but each in his turn ends in a personal experience by which he justifies himself in his pursuit. An atheist is one who believes that the universe is a spiritual vacuum. That is his own affair, but on what grounds does he endeavor to impose his vacuum on me? I cannot see anything in a vacuum to make such a noise about. The concerted effort of atheists to establish societies for the promulgation of a spiritual vacuum is just like the efforts of fundamentalists to legislate science out of the world. After all they are the same kind of folks who become bigots in thrusting their negations on other people.

If I believe there is a wonderful thing in a certain building I have a reason for asking my fellow men to come in and see it; but if I am certain there is nothing there it would seem foolish to make much fuss about it.

Now the Church has a definite Creed because it believes in certain facts which lie at the foundation of spiritual life. I emphasize the word "facts" because our religion, like science and business, is based on facts. You may deny the existence of these facts and reject the creed of Christendom, but you may not substitute theories for these facts and have the same religion which the apostles received from Christ.

It is a curious phenomenon in an age that is insistent upon facts as the basis of scientific knowledge that men should regard a minimum of religious conviction as the proof of a maximum of intelligence.

What is the Apostles' Creed?

It is the assertion of certain facts of an historic character having an intimate relation to our lives. The testimony as to those facts may seem to you inadequate, but if they do it is folly to replace those facts by theories. The result is to change the whole character of religious life. If I believe that Christ was born of the Virgin Mary my faith rests upon a fact. If I explain away the fact there is no method of turning back the hands of the clock and substituting something else.

If I believe that Christ rose from the dead in the same body as that which was crucified I accept the evidence as to the fact. When I substitute some theory then I have nullified the validity of the evidence. I have nothing but a theory to substitute for it. The substitute is a different kind of a thing and so the spiritual result is different. My point is that Christianity comes to us as the life of Christ. When we substitute man's theories for these facts we have a different kind of a thing. In the one case God may have revealed something to us; in the other we are imposing our opinions upon God.

I am intensely interested in the one possibility and have become very much bored by the other.

I am very well aware of the objections urged against the acceptance of the Virgin Birth and the Resurrection of the Body. I am told that they are miracles contrary to the experience of the race. But then I am an evolutionist and as such I am unable to see how the successive evolutionary developments could possibly have ever occurred if the principle is sound that nothing can happen in God's world except that which is a matter of previous experience. I cannot see how the grass could have appeared unless it had a virgin birth; or how the monkey could have become a man unless something happened which was beyond the experience of the whole Simian family. A universe in which nothing could occur but that which had previously been observed would be a static universe without progress or evolution. The fact that I am an evolutionist makes me expect the supernatural as the only method by which man can be evoluted into something better than he is.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

In fact a religion without the supernatural has always been about the deadest thing in the world just because it has refused to acknowledge the principles of evolution and seems to take for granted that man is the last word of God's creative genius. I have enough faith in God to believe that man is not nearly important enough to explain the universe and that the final purpose of creation is neither a mausoleum or an ash-pit but a new heaven and a new earth, peopled by new creatures.

If this latter assumption be the more reasonable of the two then I look for a virgin birth and confidently expect that this body which we now inhabit is the basis of our risen body.

It is an assumption I will grant but so is the opposite view. I maintain merely that as an evolutionist my assumption is the more credible.

The Church has a creed—

First, because we believe that God revealed Himself to human nature, in Christ, as love.

Second, because we believe that the supernatural is merely that unseen world beyond man's observation which Christ has revealed unto us.

Third, because that revelation took the form of a life which was supernatural to us, therefore Christ imparted the elements of the faith to the apostles and they faithfully passed it on to us.

Fourth, because this revelation embodied in the creed and conserved by the Church has been the most potent spiritual factor in human life.

Truly it does not always develop saints any more than universities always produce scholars; but it has produced enough saints in proportion to the whole company of saints who have dwelt upon earth to give it the same potency in religion that universities maintain in education.

If the Christian creed, believed and lived, produces some saints it has demonstrated its power.

Next Article: Confession of Sin.

THE PLACE OF SACRAMENTS

In the Christian Religion

By

CANON JAMES ADDERLEY

WHEN I had once got a use for prayer in general I soon found a use for various kinds of prayer, and especially the sacraments. They had at first seemed to me only forms and ceremonies. They came at last to be a sort of key to the whole of my religion. I had often asked myself what was the difference between a moral life and a religious life. If I kept fairly straight and behaved like a gentleman why was it necessary over and above that to be a Christian? I have lots of friends who seem to me to be very good fellows, but they never go to Church and have no use for religion. On the other hand I know another lot who do go to Church regularly, but seem to me not much better for their professed Christianity. Now so long as I thought on this subject only in regard to other people I never got an answer to my difficulty. I found myself always criticising others, and got "no forrarder," as they say. But when I began to look at myself as I did when I repented, and when I began to pray a little, I found out the difference. It was just this. I used to think I could do without any spiritual help. I found now that I wanted a lot of help from somewhere if I was to rise to the ideal of a Christian man, a disciple of Christ.

Now that is what a religious man is: one who knows he wants help from God, and believes he can get it. A non-religious man may be very good and decent—in fact, better in many ways as regards conduct—but he looks only to himself and not to God. In my own case it meant that when I became religious I began to see my faults and my incompleteness. I began to distrust myself by myself. I looked for this other help and the other world to help me and keep me advancing.

Now the padres told me that this help which Christians believe in and pray for and live by is called grace.

Believers in grace are aware of God and another world. This need not and does not make them dreamy or over pious. Just the contrary. It transforms all their ordinary life and makes it sweet and noble and beautiful as art does. In fact it was my love of art and pictures and music which first, I think, made me aware of the spiritual world. There was something more in everything than appeared on the surface. Nature spoke to me of God. Applied to myself this thought meant that I, too, was more than I seemed to be, and my life had a meaning and purpose more than my daily occupation would suggest. There was a man once of whom it was said that he was "born a man and died a grocer." He had never become aware of the world of spirit. I felt that I was born a man, too, but that I was meant to become a son of God, and that Christ was showing me the way.

Now what has all this to do with sacraments? My good friend, Charles Kingsley, gave me the answer when he said that everything is a sacrament of God. I am writing this in the spring. It is in spring that nature shows itself a sacrament of God, an outward visible sign of the inward spiritual grace of moving life and perfect beauty. As I look at it and enjoy it I know that the God of beauty is alive and expressing Himself in every bird and flower for me, and for all to love and adore. Jacob in the Bible said: "The Lord is in this place." He could not see Him, but he was sure He was present, and acted accordingly. Now I want the assurance of this presence and activity of God always, not only in the country in spring-time, but when I am in my office at my desk and in my home with my wife and children, and also when I am in church. In church especially I want to know for certain that all that goes on there is a great reality, that what I see and hear and say is not only visible and audible to the eye and ear, but that behind it all something is going on in heaven close by us. I like that part of the service where we say: "Therefore with angles and archangels and all the company of heaven." That brings heaven and earth together. Now this applies to all the sacraments.

Somebody who does not believe in sacraments (a Quaker, I think he was), told me it was a sign of weakness on my part to require these outward signs. But that sounds to me like saying that it is a sign of weakness on my part to kiss my mother. Of course, I can love her without doing this, but I feel it does me good, and I am quite sure it pleases her. And perhaps I am rather weak. Most of us are. Probably my Quaker is, only he won't own up to it. Our Lord gave us the sacraments to help us. He always got on better with weak and unlearned people than with the stuck-up bosses who thought they needed nothing. He let a woman touch the hem of His garment, and He made clay to anoint the blind man. If you just think of sacraments in this sort of way they become a tremendous help to your faith. I want to be sure that Christ still takes the kids in His arms and blesses them. That is exactly what I believe He did when my baby was christened. We brought him to the font and used the outward sign of water, and Christ did the rest. So when I was confirmed the Bishop did just what the Apostles used to do in the name of Christ. He laid his hands on me and welcomed me into the full society of Christians, and I took my place as a full church member. When I go to the Communion, which I am told means Fellowship, I take my place among the disciples just as truly as they sat round Christ at the Last Supper. I hear Him say: "Take eat, this is My body." I hear Him tell us to love one another. I do it in remembrance of Him. I thank God for His wonderful life and death and resurrection.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Again, when I was married in church I went there wanting to receive God's blessing on my married life. The priest joined us together, but it was really God Who did it by the outward sign. It seems to me different from being married in a registry office. "Whom God hath joined let no man put asunder." It is the same with absolution. I want to be sure that Christ still says to those who repent: "Thy sins are forgiven thee; go in peace." If you ask me why I choose a priest to do these things for me, I say it is because he has received authority when the Bishop laid his hands on him. And when I am sick I would like, as St. James tells me in the Bible, to call for the elders of the church to anoint me with oil in the name of the Lord.

Do I believe in the sacraments? Of course I do, because they come straight from the hands of Christ. It is only when I forget them that I go wrong. If I always remembered my baptism and my last communion and my confirmation, I would be able always to keep right. Lord, I believe. Help Thou mine unbelief.

Reprinted by arrangement from THE TORCH, organ of the Industrial Christian Fellowship.

BISHOP CROSS
"Clergy Are Not Underpaid"

English Church Congress

Reported by
A. Manby Lloyd

THE annual Church Congress looms large in the eyes of the country clergy, but elsewhere it does not cut much ice. It is static; the other Congresses are dynamic . . . they mean business. Still it sometimes happens that a blatant bishop or a don't-care-a-rap dean lets himself go.

Dr. Hensley Henson is the enfant terrible this time. The Bishop of Durham is supposed to be one of the Die-hards, and he surely would have made a good Lord Chancellor alongside Castlrereagh. But in reality he is a Sentimentalist . . . he wants to have his cake and eat it. He would have liberty for all . . . except those who do not agree with him.

Well, so I thought from the headlines. But on reading his Congress sermon, there is nothing in it. It is all Prunes and Prunella. How dull the clever men are in the pulpit. Now, on the platform they would be splendid. So I fall back on some of the humors of the Congress. Canon V. Whitechurch seemed to think that the "Stage" dealt unfairly with the country parson, e. g., the Rev. Robert Spalding in the "Private Secretary." There was a notable exception in one of Galworthy's plays. (He might have added some of Bernard Shaw's Charles Rann Kennedy) . . . He spoke of the isolation of the country parson. One very bad winter, when he was vicar of a parish on the Berkshire Downs, no outside person or friend of any kind crossed his threshold for five months. His wife used to say that Lent was their only gay time, because of the parsons who came to preach and stay the night.

Country people did not mind a new sweeper as long as he did not begin by using an unfamiliar broom. Rustic psychology was apt to bewilder a new-comer. A new incumbent inquired why nobody but his own household attended an early celebration which had been earnestly requested by a delegation of the village. The reply was, "Well, Sir, you see, for some years past we have heard the bell at Great Mudford Church ringing at 8 o'clock Sunday mornin's for a service, and we didn't see why the Little Mudford bell should not ring, too. That's why we asked 'ee, but we never meant to come to any service."

* * *

There is generally more pep in the side-shows.

* * *

An interesting exchange of views on the ordination of women to the priesthood took place at a meeting of the League of the Church Militants held in connection with the Church Congress. Canon C. E. Raven, of Liverpool Cathedral, said it was unfortunate that Congress was about to discuss the shortage of clergy when it was not prepared to discuss the possibility of opening the doors to the ordination of so many women. The only reason against the ordination of women was that the voice of tradition said otherwise. He pleaded for the full ordination of women so that the Church might take the present opportunity of preventing a sex-war which would be much more terrible than any class war.

When questions were invited, a clergyman in the body of the hall rose and asked: "What do you demand for women?"

Canon Raven: "That they should be admitted to the full priesthood, with the prospect of the Episcopate if and when they are qualified for it."

The Chairman said this question had been handed up to him: "Why did not our Lord ordain a woman apostle?"

Canon Raven: Who am I that I should dare to answer that? To have ordained a woman apostle then would have given her a perfectly impossible task.

The clergyman who had previously intervened again rose to ask whether it was possible for a woman to represent God, who was masculine.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Canon Raven: Do you really mean to maintain that God is masculine? That is so extraordinarily heretical that I can hardly believe a priest of the Church of England can give utterance to it. Christ said: "In Me there is neither male nor female." Yours may be good Mohammedan doctrine, but it is very bad Christianity.

PRAYER BOOK AS MYSTERY DRAMA

The Creeds

By

IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

Part III

Our English translation has obscured the vital point in this creed. The Latin form is not "Credo in uno deo" but "in unum deum." The difference is vital. The preposition "in" with the accusative means "into" rather than "in." As in Greek, where the preposition is "eis" and not "en" the significance is

"I BELIEVE INTO ONE GOD!"

By this belief, by this act of faith, I become part of God, so that he dwells in me, and I in him.

Let us illustrate by a parable: by the turning of a key or the pressing of a button, my electric bulb becomes flooded with that mysterious power which fills it with radiance. The act of turning the key or pressing the switch establishes a contact between the bulb and the wire, which leads power from the mighty dynamo through the bulb, and into the ground, which returns it to its source.

Faith is like that; the establishment of a contact through which power flows. Faith does not come from the bulb, but from the dynamo, and is taken up by, or made use of, or incarnated, by the bulb.

"I believe into one God" means more than simply "I admit that there is a God, a power not myself which makes for righteousness." It means "I am a part of God, so that my hands are God's hands, and my voice is the voice of God."

Faith is a thing done, a spiritual act, rather than a form of words said, a proposition stated. It is a vital, active. It is not a diagram of how electricity works, it is the current in action.

OUR TASK

In reciting our Creed, let us begin, not with a text, but with the fundamental fact of our thinking—"here we are." Our task is to live from day to day. It would be splendid if we could suspend our living and wait until all problems were cleared, all discoveries made. — Or would it? There would not be nearly so much fun. But anyhow, it cannot be.

Concerning the future life we can only wait and see, and prepare for it as best we may. Concerning things that happened thousands of years ago, or even one year ago, there is nothing that can be done. Whether we believe them or disbelieve them cannot affect them. Our belief affects us, and us only. It affects others only as we affect them. My creed is shown in the way I behave in my daily life.

Since the day Jesus was crucified, since the day of the descent of the Holy Spirit, people have gone on living, as they had done for milleniums before. There is no break in that swirling current of humanity.

In daily processes of washing and dressing and eating, of trade and toil, of greetings and farewell, most of the lives of the saints, apostles and prophets, were spent. All we have and are today is the product of the patient ritual of those endless generations. We cannot abolish our inheritance of faith without abolishing ourselves, for we ourselves are our inheritance, and we are the basis of our own religion.

Here I am: what am I to do with my life? Who made me? Where did I come from and what are my prospects of happiness? How shall I live so as to be happiest, most worth while? What is the truth on which I am to guide my thoughts, words and deeds from day to day? That is where the philosophy of religion starts.

The Bible cannot be the basis of our religion, because the Bible is the by-product of an organization, which is itself the product of a belief.

We cannot base our religion on science, because science has only begun its work. We stand on the threshold of science. We cannot wait for it to discover ultimate truths before we begin to act on them.

We will have to base it on the daily life of the organization which bears witness to God: on God becoming continually incarnate in believers; in short, on the Church.

This may sound like an absurdity to those fed on the Protestant theme "The Bible and the Bible only." But as a matter of fact we have no authority for receiving the Bible except the continuous witness of the church. We know nothing of the life of Christ except as the church bears witness to it. We would not know his teachings except as we have been taught them by the living organism which reveres them, however faultily.

But, on the other hand, the "facts of God" lie open all around us. The philosophy of living which is the essence of the Christian religion would be true, whether it had been formulated by Christ or not. A mathematical formula is true, whether anybody has written it down and worked it out, or not. Two and two made four long before the first human beings learned to add. The sum of the angles of any triangle will continue to be two right angles long after all books on geometry have been destroyed: and the truth of Bethlehem, the truth of Calvary, are truths just as eternally true whether Jesus had been born in a manger or not. That occurred to make us understand what always had been so.

The truth of the Cross, if it be true at all, is true irrespective of on what date, or under what governor, Jesus Christ was nailed to his wooden cross on the hill of Golgotha.

Next article: The Drama of Redemption.

Witness Fund

MONEY donated to this fund is used to pay for the papers that are being sent to various institutions and hospitals, and for the subscriptions of those Church people who very much want the paper but feel unable to continue it. We hope that each year $500 may be had for this purpose. There is ample evidence of the careful expenditure of the fund. We acknowledge the following donations, with many thanks:

Margaret Woodward	$ 1.00
Mrs. Wm. Colgan	2.00
A subscriber	1.00
"Thankful"	2.00
F. C. Ackerman	1.00
Henry L. Bryan	2.00
E. V. Pennington	2.00
Mrs. Louis Ewald	2.00
Mrs. T. F. Brown	2.00
Elizabeth Irwin	2.00
J. F. Deimling	2.00
Total for 1927	$155.00

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

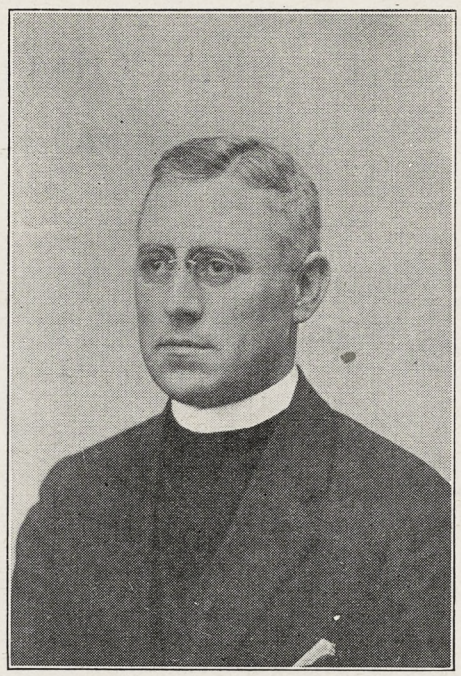
Let's Know

DISTANCES

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

IN THE thirtieth chapter of Genesis we read that Laban separated off a large number of sheep and goats and took them to a place some distance away from Jacob. "He set three days' journey betwixt himself and Jacob." Ask me another; how far did Laban go?

Well—in Genesis 31:23 we find Laban in a hurry to catch up with Jacob and he "pursued after him seven days' journey." Would that be two-and-a-half times as far as the earlier journey?



St. Luke tells us (2:44) of the visit of the Boy Christ to the Temple. When the feast was over His Mother and St. Joseph started back to Galilee with their friends, supposing He was with the company, and "went a day's journey" before they missed Him. How far had they gone?

The "day's journey," as we meet it in the Bible, was something of a variable quantity. In these days of automobiles, it would be like asking a villager how far it is from here to the next town; and he might answer —"oh, it's an hour's run." All of which would depend on the roads, the car, the driver, etc. Yet it would suggest a generally recognized unit of traveling distance.

So in the Scriptures a "day's journey" was used as a measure of distance but with variations. In the first instance cited above, Laban would have been travelling with a large number of cattle and much baggage, which would make his progress very slow. On the other hand, his pursuit of Jacob as noted in the second text, would have been on speedy horses and unencumbered with extra trappings. While the caravan, moving leisurely away from Jerusalem, would have represented the comfortable pace of a camel. So it is estimated that an average day's journey, everything considered, might be taken as anywhere from twenty to twenty-five miles.

On the Sabbath, however, the distance was much more carefully regulated. "A Sabbath-day's journey" was a well recognized institution among the Jews. It comes from the regulations laid down by Moses covering the habits of the people during their journey through the wilderness. When manna was provided for them, they were to gather it fresh every day except on the Sabbath. "See, for that the Lord hath given you the Sabbath, therefore He giveth you on the sixth day the bread of two days; abide ye every man in his place, let no man go out of his place on the seventh day." (Ex. 16:29). But of course this rule was not meant to keep people so close at home that they could not even go to Church on the Sabbath. So the Sabbath-day's journey which was permitted was the distance between the Ark of the Covenant, which led the march, and the people who followed, being two thousand ells or about what we would call a mile.

Sometimes, however, the Jews really wanted to go farther. So, during the preceding week, they would go a mile with two meals in hand. Then they would stop, eat one meal, and then bury the other. That would technically establish a domicile for them where the second meal was buried and when the Sabbath came around they could travel two miles without going more than a mile away from "home." In the refinements of Rabbinical interpretation, it came to be even easier than that. A traveller might fix his eye on a tree off on the horizon and by the recitation of a proper formula he could designate that as his domicile. Then, on the Sabbath, he could travel a mile beyond the tree without breaking any rules. It was such juggling with religious obligations that our Lord condemned when he upbraided the Scribes and Parisees.

REV. BLAND MITCHELL
"Married Men Need More"

Bishop Faber of Montana conducted a week's mission at Trinity, Seattle, Washington, the first of the month. The earnestness and unaffected simplicity of the missioner, as well as his fluent use of unadorned Anglo-Saxon won all hearts and left a fine impression. A gratifying feature was the brotherly attendance of the clergy of other parishes in the city, with their parishioners.

About Books

THE BOOK OF DANIEL, by J. A. Montgomery (International Critical Commentary) Scribners $4.50.

This is without doubt the most valuable discussion of the Book of Daniel in the English language. It covers nearly 500 pages, and there is not a superfluous paragraph. It is very, very learned, but the author packs all his abstruse references into foot-notes, and gives a running exposition of the text which serves the general reader.

Of course, Dr. Montgomery takes the critical attitude to the book, but he is most fair in his dealings with scholars who follow the traditional dating. He does not follow the cavalier method of many scholars in refusing to accord to the book any historical value. Rather, he allows credit to the author or authors of Daniel for having a much truer knowledge of Oriental history than is usually assumed. Especially interesting is his discussion of the kingship of Belshazzar; he believes that the book of Daniel is much nearer the truth in its dealings with this character than has been thought.

Dr. Montgomery believes that Daniel is a composite of two books, one, composed of chapters 1-6 and including the stories, coming from the third century B.C., and the other, chapters 7-12, the visions, coming from the early years of the Maccabeean movement. This latter book represents the pacifist wing of the movement, the militant wing of which was the Maccabeean.

In his discussion of the visions and stories, the author shows that there is a deep religious value in them, altogether apart from their real or supposed reference to the details of history, past or future. These stories and visions express the horror of the Hebrew writer at things as they are in that superstitious and force-ruled age, together with a grim determination of faith that God will interfere. Daniel's contribution to religion lies in its formulation of faith in the Kingdom of God, in its reiteration of the ancient Hebrew belief that "God is King, be the earth never so unquiet."

In the extensive introduction and in several monographs scattered through the book, the author has isolated the important problems of Daniel and has given each a full discussion. The commentary, verse by verse, is exhaustive.

The book is a necessity to any man who wishes to have an intelligent understanding of this most fascinating book of the Old Testament. It more than upholds the high standard set by preceding volumes of the International Critical Commentary.

D. A. McGregor.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

A SUBSCRIBER sends me a little folder issued by Mowbrays, a firm which supplies churches with their needs. His comment written at the top is: "What England thinks of the United States." It is an attractive bit of printing with twelve pages devoted entirely to Alms Basons, with this for a title page:

ALMS BASONS
Specially Deep for American Use.

* * *

Then there is this, sent in by another reader: "Two churches on Fourth Avenue, New York, have bulletin boards outside, displaying texts and quotations in large type. The bulletin of the Unitarian Church reads 'So-and-so, saith the Lord! At the Episcopal Church a block away it is 'So-and-so, says Mr. Shoemaker'."

* * *

One of the best meetings of the National Council since its inauguration in 1920 was held in New York last week, with all the members present but two, one of whom was on the commission to the Far East on the appointment of the Presiding Bishop and the other is still abroad.

Bishop Murray stated that since the beginning of the year he had visited six of the Provinces and expects to visit the other two before the next Council meeting. A resolution was passed, submitted by the department of social service, urging rectors to make the Sunday preceding Armistice Day, a Peace Sunday. Two new secretaries made their bows to the Council: the Rev. T. R. Ludlow, who is in charge of the adult division of the department of religious education, and the Rev. C. Leslie Glenn, who is the secretary for student work. Mrs. J. C. Tolman was appointed a member of the department of religious education. Mrs. Arthur Gammack was appointed a Thank Offering Field worker for the Woman's Auxiliary.

There was a report from the Personnel Bureau, which gets jobs for those seeking them; they have 109 clergymen and 172 lay workers registered, and since they were organized in 1920 as a result of action taken by General Convention, 111 clergymen and 183 lay workers have been placed in permanent positions. A large part of the work of the bureau is in filling summer supplies, 151 churches having been served this past year.

The Council was addressed by the Rev. S. Harrington Littell from Hankow, China, and by Bishop Creighton of Mexico.

BISHOP BRENT
Ordered to Rest by Doctors

* * *

The Rev. F. C. F. Randolph, student pastor at Ohio State University warns the clergy and others against a man calling himself Robert Clayton. He carried recommendations from several sea captains, claims to have been confirmed at Baltimore. His game apparently is to get the clergy to recommend him to a job and then rob his employer. He is wanted in Columbus for theft.

* * *

Bishop Cross of Spokane and the Rev. Edwin Randall of Chicago were the speakers at the clergy conference of the diocese of Springfield held at Champaign. Bishop Cross said that it was the duty of every clergyman to get behind the Program of the National Council; urged the zoning system for parishes; warned the clergy against depending upon a glorious history to put the Church over to people in these days; told them not to grouch for "no clergyman earns more than he gets." He described an effort that is being made in Spokane to raise up the Home Altar and bring it back to the position it formerly held in the lives of families; and closed his remarks, which were received enthusiastically, with a plea for real prayer, "not just saying prayers but really praying."

Mr. Randall told of the work being done by the Church among the colored people, the Indians, the yellow races; and spoke of the value of lay conferences and vestry conferences to interest Church members in the great work being done by the national church. One afternoon of the conference was given over to a discussion, led by Mr. Randall, when he answered any question asked him, presented budgets and told how the laymen might be interested.

* * *

Social workers of the diocese of Chicago met at Christ Church, Joliet, on October 20th; had a breakfast meeting after a celebration of the Holy Communion and listened to an address by the Rev. Alfred Newbery.

* * *

A Quiet Day for the clergy is to be held at St. Mark's, Mt. Kisco, N. Y., on November 18th, to be conducted by the Rev. W. Russell Bowie, rector of Grace Church, New York. Holy Communion is to be at 9:30 on the arrival of the train which leaves the Grand Central Terminal at 7:57.

* * *

The October "Pacific Churchman" contains an interesting editorial by Bishop Parsons on the Lausanne Conference. Of the conference he says: "Under God's guidance it did what it was called to do and did it with real success, and that meant above everything else that Christians of utterly diverse views can get together, can confer, can face each other's views of truth and can part with increased mutual respect and understanding."

* * *

Mr. Haley Fiske, leading Anglo-Catholic, and a speaker on numerous occasions on the Christian attitude toward employees, is taking somewhat of a pounding in the pages of the New York papers. An effort is being made to organize the clerks of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, of which he is president, and a statement has been issued by a committee of women in which they charge that company with paying their girls with free dentistry and lunch rooms instead of with wages.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

"Free lunches, diet kitchens, medical and dental treatment, annuities starting at 60 years, an age rarely reached in the service of the company because of the great and constant turnover in personnel, and other concessions fail to minimize our astonishment that a mutual, cooperative enterprise such as the Metropolitan Life pays a wage as low as $12 a week. The president of the Metropolitan Life has in many public utterances expressed his active sympathy for the aims and aspirations of organized labor. Here is his opportunity to put his house in order." The latest to join in the attack is Miss Fannie Hurst, novelist, who speaks of the policy of the company as "philanthropy with a mailed fist in its velvet glove." Mr. Fiske comes back with the cry of "bolshevism" and "outsiders trying to create $10,000 a year jobs for themselves."

* * *

A one hundred per cent attendance, an optimistic viewpoint on the work accomplished during the past year, and a most hopeful and expectant outlook for the approaching work, marked the meeting of the executive council of the diocese of Florida. Then they had a clergy conference with everyone present except one parson who was in Paris with the Legion. Now they are going to have a conference for laymen this coming Sunday at St. John's, Tallahassee, with Mr. William Dodge, prominent layman of Chattanooga as speaker.

* * *

One of the offerings included in the Sunday School Lenten Offering of the Diocese of Los Angeles this year came from twenty-eight children in St. John's, Fallbrook, a mission which in the Annual is listed with two communicants. These children have only an afternoon service twice a month at most, in charge of lay workers. They have never had a minister visit them. Their Lenten offering was $13.15. Nineteen of them are unbaptized, but various diocesan friends are hoping that something may soon be done about this.

* * *

A note from St. Luke's Hospital, Shanghai: "Our youngest patient during the last month was a little girl just a few hours old whom a policeman found wrapped in straw on a street in Yangtszepoo. He brought her in one evening and one of the internes worked with her all night. The next morning we passed her on to St. Elizabeth's where she is flourishing."

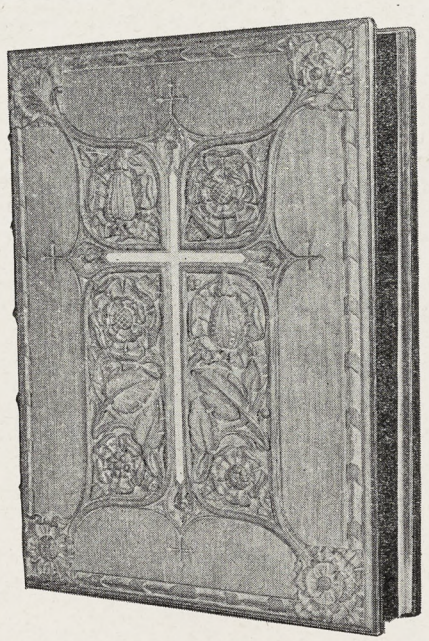
* * *

The engagement has been announced of Miss Stanny von Engestrom of Upsala, Sweden, to the Rev. Horace Fort, former secretary of the Berkeley Divinity School and now the executive secretary of the Church Tutorial Classes Association of the Church of England. Miss Engestrom is the chief commissioner of the Y.W.C.A. Girl Scout Movement in Sweden.

* * *

Something new in the way of salaries; always an interesting subject. The proposal came to the National Council from the head of the Field Department that all men on the staff be paid $3,600 a year if single; $3,600 basic salary if the head of a family, with a rent allowance of $1,400, with $400 additional for each dependent child. Heretofore the Council has offered a man $5,000 regardless of families. This new wage is to be tried out on the Field Department as an experiment for a year; if it works there may be an adjustment all along the line at "281."

* * *



The treasurer of the National Council reported that the deficit which on December 31, 1925 was $1,534,303.99 had been very nearly wiped out, the dioceses having paid in $1,284,978.84. Also due to the more regular remittances of missionary funds no borrowings from the banks were necessary this summer. On October first, $404,454.58 was borrowed but from the Reserve Deposit Accounts which were created for that very purpose.

* * *

We have heard of "Suffering" Bishops when Suffragan was intended, but here is a new one: The Central New York diocesan paper tells of a letter addressed to "Emeritus Bishop Fiske," asking him to refer a certain matter of business to "Proper Bishop Coley." It also records a letter addressed to "His Lordship, the Right Reverend the Bishop of New York Central." Nor do the clergy escape. The dean of the Utica missionary district recently received a letter addressed: "Revarand Parker, Piska Palian minister, Clinton, N. Y."

* * *

Wallace Battle, the Negro who has just been appointed by the Council as a field worker for The American Church Institute for Negroes, is quite as picturesque and heroic as many whose names are better known in connection with the development of the Negro race. When he graduated from Berea College nearly thirty years ago, he determined to give his life in service for his people in some place where there were large numbers of them in the greatest need. This led him to Mississippi, which then had the largest Negro population. His mother-in-law has said that "He arrived with his trunk and his library looking for an educated girl." He found her and then started the Okolona Industrial School at Okolona of which he has been president for twenty-five years. For the first fifteen there were no salaries and not always enough to eat. He has a framed "testimonial" from the trustees of later years, for his patient, persevering service. Some years ago when, in addition to Memorial Book of Carved Oak and Leather Inlaid Ivory Cross, made for Trinity Church, Covington, Ky.

Calvert, Herrick & Riedinger

2-4 East 23d Street

New York

Stained Glass, Mosaic and Church Decoration; Church Appointments in Marble, Stone and Wood.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

the old-fashioned main building, there was a new building valued at $30,000, during a serious illness when Mr. Battle was confined to his bed, he noticed one day a queer light outside; later they had to tell him it was a fire which destroyed the new building containing an electric light plant, printing shop, grist mill, and the finest steam laundry equipment in the state.

Mr. Battle not only built up the school but gradually transformed a deep-rooted and bitter antagonism into cooperation and loyalty on the part of the white people of that whole region.

The American Church Institute for Negroes took over this school in 1920. Mr. Battle has since been confirmed. He is loved and respected by his people. In recent years he has filled a number of speaking engagements in the North. It was he, who, after an address by Dr. Patton, made the now famous remark that "Dr. Patton has a white face but he surely has a black heart."

There are now about 400 students at Okolona, some of them children whose parents attended there. In addition to elementary and high school, the school has extensive industrial and agricultural work, household studies for girls and normal school training cooperating with the Rosenwald and other county schools.

* * *

St. Johns College, Greeley, Colorado, opened September 27th with an enrollment of thirty-two men, an increase over last year. During the summer extensive improvements were made in the buildings. Also the new course of study covering five years is now in full effect.

* * *

Vestrymen, here is a parish to belong to; the meeting of October at St. John's, Cynwyd, Pa., was held at the country home of one of the members; a three-day meeting during which time a golf tournament for the vestry was held with a nice silver cup for the winner. And imagine it, there were three tied for first so that the vestry had to stay over another day for a play off. Oh yes, they had their meeting all right, planned for an every member canvass, doped out a budget for 1928 and everything. Rectors, if you can arrange such a meeting once in a

Church Kalendar for 1928

(THIRTY FIFTH YEAR)

THE HANDSOMEST AND MOST USEFUL KALENDAR PUBLISHED

THOUSANDS SOLD BY CHURCH SOCIETIES

Kalendar Months in Colors. Tables of Lessons for Holy Days and Sundays. Proper Psalms for Seasons, Days, and Special Occasions. Tables of Psalms. "Black Letter" Saints Days.

SAMPLE POSTPAID 40c CIRCULAR FREE

ASHBY PRINTING CO.

Publishers - ERIE, PENNA.

NEW MACMILLAN BOOKS

CHRISTIANITY

By Charles Guignebert. Prof. of History of Christianity, University of Paris

ENDEAVORS to describe and account for the formation, successive modifications and final destruction not of dogmatic assertions of religions in general but of one particular religion, studied as a concrete reality. It is above all with facts, their significance, consequences and connections that it deals. It is history. An English translation.
Crown Octavo, 500 pp. Probable Price $3.75

A New Fosdick Book

A Pilgrimage to Palestine

By Harry Emerson Fosdick. Author of "The Modern Use of the Bible"

Fosdick, Palestine and Bible make a rarely promising combination which is more than made good in "A Pilgrimage to Palestine." Over three hundred pages, with colored frontispiece, handsomely printed and bound, the finest Christmas gift book of the season. Send in your order in advance. To be published first week in December. Price $2.00

The Wrestle of Religion with Truth

By Henry Nelson Wieman. Author of "Religious Experience and Scientific Method"

A readily intelligible refutation of two opposing claims that have perverted religion again and again, the one denying that religion has any need of truth and the other that religion has all the truth it needs. Price $2.50

B. H. Streeter's
Reality
A sterling good book which without any blowing of trumpets is steadily making new friends
$2.50

John Rathbone Oliver
FEAR
The Autobiography of James Edwards
You have one parishioner and "personal problem" whom this book fits like a glove
$2.50

The Plastic Age of the Gospel
By Andrew C. Zenos
Keeps the growth of the collection of writings contained in the New Testament subordinated to a constructive reading of the mind of Christ, each writer serving but as another avenue of approach to the Master's own secret life. Probable price $2.50

The Paradox of Religion
By Willard L. Sperry
Author of "Reality in Worship"
A protest against the tendency prevalent today to over-simplify facts, especially the basic fact of the complexity of religious experience. Thoughtful ministers will find it a treasure. Price $1.00

The Religious Attitude
By Angus S. Woodburne
An original and stimulating inquiry into what constitutes the difference of species between the religious attitude and that of the (1) scientist, (2) the artist, and (3) the moralist. Probable price $2.25

"The Apostles of 'the Good life' on Dress Parade"
Morals in Review
By A. K. Rogers (Yale)
Begins with Socrates and includes the proposals of Plato, Aristotle, the Epicureans and the Stoics, Thomas Aquinas, Hobbes, Spinoza, the English Rationalists, Kant, Hegel, Schopenhauer, the English Unitarians, Martineau, Huxley, Spencer and Guyau. Not the work of a second-hand reporter, but that of a competent scholar based on thorough study of the original sources.
Probable price $3.50

Man, God and Immortality
By Sir James George Frazer
All owners of the one-volume abridged edition of "The Golden Bough" will welcome this new companion book composed of choice passages garnered from all his voluminous works pertaining to the three highest themes of human thought—MAN, GOD AND IMMORTALITY. Done in a style comparable to that of Anatole France, they make breathless reading. Octavo over 400 pages.
Price $3.00

Understanding the Apostles' Creed
By Donald McFayden
After putting the creed of the primitive church into a particularly well-designed historical frame, Dr. McFayden seeks to extract its elements of permanent value. Price $2.60

The Church and the Russian Revolution
By Matthew Spinka
A thorough and well documented history of the effects of the Russian Revolution on the Russian Church based on intimate acquaintance with Russia and the Russian language. Its attitude is purely historical and impartial.
Probable price $2.50

New Studies in Mystical Religion
By Rufus M. Jones
Author of "The Inner Life," Etc.
Back of it is ripe scholarship but it is written for the general reader interested in the verities and realities of vital religion.
Probable price $1.75

At your book store or from

60 Fifth Ave. THE MACMILLAN COMPANY New York
Atlanta Boston Chicago Dallas San Francisco

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

while the chances are you can get through a raise in salary—certainly could if you could get the handicaps so that all of them would be near the top of the golf score.

* * *

Dedication week at the Advent all last week; Bishop Anderson dedicated the new church on Sunday morning; Dean DeWitt of the Western Seminary preached in the afternoon and the Rev. George Craig Stewart in the evening. On Monday evening they had a housewarming for the new parish house; next Sunday there is to be another big service with the Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker for the preacher. In the evening the new organ is to be dedicated and the Rev. J. H. Hopkins, rector of the Redeemer, Chicago is to preach. They raised a lot of money there last year, under the direction of Ward, Wells, Dreshman and Gates, and the inspiration of their rector, the Rev. Gerald Moore, and all of these new things are the result.

* * *

Bishop Moore of Dallas celebrated the tenth anniversary of his consecration on October 4th. Made a day of it at St. Matthew's Cathedral, with practically all of the clergy of the diocese present.

* * *

A conference is to be held in Cleveland in January, under the joint auspices of the Federal Council, the Home Missions Council and the Council of Women for Home Missions, to consider questions of comity looking toward the lessening of needless competition between the various communions. The circulars announcing the meeting promise the attendance of bishops, moderators, board members and officers, superintendents and field men, leading pastors and laymen and representative women. What are the facts is the first task they have assigned themselves; then if there is still time, what are the remedies.

* * *

Alaska Day was observed recently by the women of St. Peter's Church, Washington, N. C., a yearly event. Letters were read from missionaries in Alaska, papers were read on the work there, and a great lot of toys were packed off to be placed under the Christmas trees of Alaskan children.

* * *

There is rejoicing in Illinois over the opening and dedication of the partly completed chapel at the University of Illinois. Three of the bays are entirely finished so that it is possible to have services regularly until such time as the work can go on.

* * *

Do you have your baptisms after the regular service on the theory that folks are not interested in seeing somebody's else child baptized? You may be all wrong; in any case the rector of St. Mary's, Kinston, N. C., announced a baptism after service the other Sunday and found that most of the congregation stayed for it.

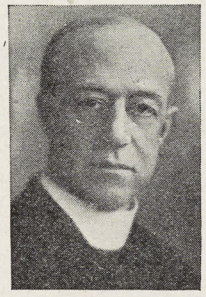
* * *

Dean Lathrop, secretary of social service, is to be the speaker at the dinner given in connection with the synod of the first province which is to meet at St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston, the 25th-26th.

* * *

Dean Sturges of St. Paul's, Boston, preached at Dartmouth College last Sunday.

* * *



A series of informal conferences for students are being held at Emmanuel Church, Boston. The speaker last Sunday was the Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, rector of St. Paul's, Overbrook, Pa.

* * *

Bishop Perry of Rhode Island was the preacher last Sunday at St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston, when he spoke on the Lausanne Conference.

* * *

This by Mr. A. A. Stagg, coach at the University of Chicago for the past thirty years, is an interesting bit, particularly interesting to me

REV. C. N. LATHROP
Social Service Dept.
National Council

SAINT ANDREW'S CROSS AND ITS NEW PLANS

BISHOP BRENT
Western New York

We invite attention to ST. ANDREW'S CROSS, enlarged in scope to make it a general Church magazine for all laymen, and with the following new departments added: "Religion in the Home and Everyday Life," "Religious Education and Evangelism," "Experiences in Personal Evangelism," and a page conducted by the National Commission on Evangelism.

Each month there will be a contributed article by one of the following Bishops or other leaders of the Church: Bishops Murray, Anderson, Brent, Darst, Ferris, Fiske, Freeman, Gailor, Garland, Irving P. Johnson, Manning, Oldham, Penick, Slattery, Stires, and Woodcock; the Rev. Messrs. W. A. R. Goodwin, Charles N. Lathrop, Alfred Newbery, and Floyd W. Tomkins; also Messrs. Frederic C. Morehouse, Clinton Rogers Woodruff, and others.

In order to widen and extend the usefulness of ST. ANDREW'S CROSS and to bring it within the means of every layman in the Church, the subscription price has been reduced from two dollars to ONE DOLLAR PER ANNUM. And further to extend the usefulness of the magazine, we make a special offer to NEW SUBSCRIBERS as follows:

14 numbers for $1.00 if ordered before November 15th.
13 numbers for $1.00 if ordered before December 1st.

MR. F. C. MOREHOUSE
The Living Church

St. Andrews' Cross, Philadelphia, Pa.

I enclose ONE DOLLAR. Please send me ST. ANDREW'S CROSS for the remainder of 1927 and all twelve issues of 1928.

Name .....

Street Address .....

City and State .....

Parish .....

W. 27

REV. A. NEWBERY
Atonement, Chicago

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

since Mr. Stagg was one of the first to tell the newspapers that Mr. Cross was all wrong in what he said about college students in a series of articles that appeared in this paper: "Mothers who drink and smoke are responsible for the downfall of modern youth. The present generation of boys and girls is not 'all right,' modern youth is 'on the downward path.' Youth today is guilty of more violations of morality and honesty than ever before. Parents are side-tracking their responsibilities in raising children. The women are falling heir to men's vices—drinking and smoking—without thought of what a horrible example they are setting for the young people. Parents dote on their children too much. They often even try to fight their little backyard squabbles for them. In the last analysis if we are to make men of our boys and real women of our girls, we—the parents—must set an example for them in courage, perseverance, honesty, co-operation and self-mastery."

* * *

A truly great architect was lost to the Church and Southern California when Arthur Burnett Benton of Los Angeles died at his home on September 18th. Mr. Benton was a devoted churchman and the designer of many California churches, including not only our own but many Roman Catholic churches, among them the restoration of the old Spanish missions.

* * *

Dean Marmaduke Hare, for twenty years the dean of the Cathedral at Davenport, Iowa, has resigned. He wishes to be freed of parochial responsibilities, but is to remain in the city, and has been elected dean-emeritus of the Cathedral. His successor has not yet been named.

* * *

Lots of activity at Christ Church, Little Rock, Arkansas, the Rev. W. Postell Witsell, rector. Parish has been divided into groups for study for one thing; then they have a chapter of the Brotherhood started, and a Men's Club with a fine winter program all figured out.

* * *

"The Nut Basket" is the name of the new student centre which the diocese of Florida has opened at the State College for Women. It gets

25,000 CHURCHES USE
OSTERMOOR
CUSHIONS
BUILT - NOT STUFFED

Illustrated Booklet and Samples Free
Old Cushions renovated and recovered equal to new.
Ostermoor & Co., Inc., Dept. C, 114 Elizabeth St.. N.Y

TEN MAGAZINES for 10¢
10 CENTS NOW
The smartest, most interesting, entertaining and instructive Magazine in America! 10 weeks for only 10 cts. Special introductory offer. No magazine like it. Full of important facts, pictures and the best, most popular fiction. For all members of the family. Send name, address and 10 cents immediately. Grab this limited offer now.
The Pathfinder, Dept. N.163 Washington, D. C.

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California
A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

Hospital of St. Barnabas
SCHOOL OF NURSING
Offers 2½ years course leading to R. N. Degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll now.
For full information, address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas
Newark, N. J.

START RIGHT
— When You Raise Money

Preliminary plans are never more important than in a money-raising effort. The first announcement is of prime importance.

Every church should consult a firm like Hedrick, Marts & Lundy before launching an important campaign. Start right—and results are more certain.

Over $200,000,000 has been raised for churches and similar institutions in recent years by members of this firm and associates.

"Financing Philanthropy," quarterly paper on finance, free on request.

HEDRICK, MARTS & LUNDY, Inc.
Member Joint Board of Campaign Counsel and Planning.
527 Fifth Ave. New York

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London, W. I., England.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin
Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request. Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, also chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses, $7.60 up, burse and veil, $15 up; Silk damask cope, $120; Silk damask chasuble, $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel., Cleveland 52.

WINSTON-INTERNATIONAL
BLACK FACE TYPE BIBLES
The Only Self-Pronouncing Black Face Type Bibles Published
Best for Young and Old—Home and School—Teachers and Students
Send for Illustrated Catalog
THE JOHN C. WINSTON CO., Publishers
American Bible Headquarters
456 WINSTON BUILDING PHILADELPHIA

Free to Asthma and Hay Fever Sufferers

Free Trial of Method That Anyone Can Use Without Discomfort or Loss of Time

We have a method for the control of Asthma, and we want you to try it at our expense. No matter whether your case is of long standing or recent development, whether it is present as Chronic Asthma or Hay Fever, you should send for a free Trial of our method. No matter in what climate you live, no matter what your age or occupation, if you are troubled with Asthma or Hay Fever, our method should relieve you promptly.

We especially want to send it to those apparently hopeless cases, where all forms of inhalers, douches, opium preparations, fumes, "patent smokes," etc., have failed. We want to show everyone at our expense, that our method is designed to end all difficult breathing, all wheezing, and all those terrible paroxysms.

This free offer is too important to neglect a single day. Write now and begin the method at once. Send no money. Simply mail coupon below. Do it Today.

FREE TRIAL COUPON
FRONTIER ASTHMA CO.,
621 F, Frontier Bldg., 462 Niagara St., Buffalo, N. Y.
Send free trial of your method to:
.....
.....
.....

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

its name from the pecan trees which surround it and from the new director, Miss Hope Baskette, who has just assumed charge. There are 137 Episcopalians in the institution and 29 other girls who put down "Episcopal preference." Opened with a banquet the other evening, presided over by Bishop Juhan and attended by 200 folks.

* * *

Dr. Floyd O'Hara of San Francisco has volunteered to take charge of the Hudson Stuck Hospital at Fort Yukon for one year, and is now in Alaska. Dr. Crafton Burke was to leave the mission on September 28 for delayed furlough after four years of service. Plans for a furlough in 1926 had to be set aside because of the impossibility of securing relief. During the autumn and winter Dr. and Mrs. Burke will probably be in New York where the doctor can secure opportunity for further post-graduate study.

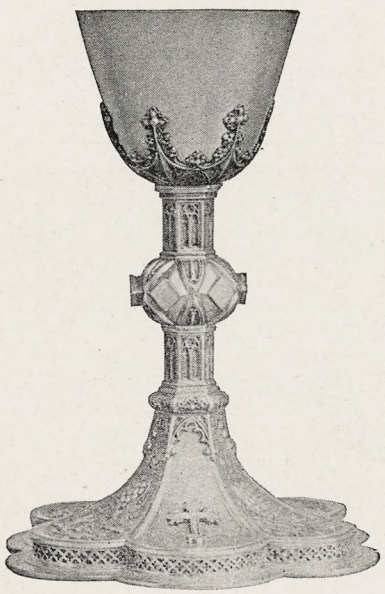
* * *

The Right Rev. Walter Mitchell, D.D., Missionary Bishop of the District of Arizona, has received a letter addressed concisely to "Mr. Walter Bishop Mitchell."

Bishop Mitchell says, "If I were asked what my general impression has been as a result of the year's work, I should say that in every place there seems to be a small body of unusually faithful and devoted men and women who have carried on, in season and out of season. Clergy have come and gone but these faithful ones, through times of discouragement as well as in the days when the work went well, have never failed in their loyal support."

* * *

During a brief summer holiday visit to the Pacific Coast, Bishop McKim spent twenty-six days in Alaska, going in through Skagway and the White Pass, then down the Yukon to Tanana, up the Tanana to Fairbanks and so out by rail through Seward and by steamer to Seattle.



"My heart bled with sympathy for Bishop Rowe," says Bishop McKim. "He has such a tremendous task assigned him with but little human help and almost no equipment. I visited the missions at Eagle, Fort Yukon, Stephens Village, Nenana, Fairbanks, Anchorage, Seward, Wrangell, Skagway, Cordova, Junean and Ketchikan.

"I held a memorial service for Archdeacon Stuck at Fort Yukon in the chapel and at his grave, preached to the Indian congregation there and visited the hospital which has the confidence and co-operation of the various peoples covering hundreds of miles of contiguous territory.

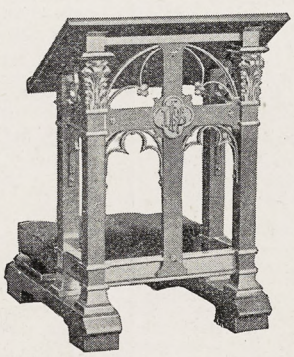
"Dr. Burke and his wife are doing a magnificent work and we were delighted to find them so comfortably housed. I wish this might be said of all our missionaries up there who work so uncomplainingly against seemingly hopeless odds. The only complaint made was the lack of spiritual privileges. Many are working alone with only visits three or more months apart from any clergyman. I did what I could, which was but little."

* * *

For the first time since the Reformation, one of the largest secular French publishing houses has undertaken to distribute a New Testament to the public. The publisher, Bernard Grasset, Paris, expects to have copies ready for the Christmas trade. A sample page of this issue, made possible in a large measure by a donation of the American Bible Society, New York City, toward the publication costs, has just been received by the Rev. Dr. William I. Haven,

The Chalice

A very comprehensive assortment of Chalices is always found "at Spaulding's." We are always glad to send illustrations with complete descriptions to the Clergy, or to those members of the Laity who may wish to give a Chalice or any other article of Church Equipment as a Memorial or Thank Offering.



Many of the most beautiful Stained Glass Windows in American Churches have been supplied by Spaulding & Co.

Complete Church Equipment of that High Character which the Episcopal Church demands

SPAULDING & CO.

Representing The Gorham Co's Ecclesiastical Department

Michigan Avenue at Van Buren Street, Chicago

LITANY DESKS
LECTURNS
PROCESSIONAL AND ALTAR CROSSES
CANDLESTICKS
ALMS BASONS

are among the Church necessities suitable for Memorials and Thank Offerings

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York
139 West Forty-sixth Street
Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D., Litt.D.
Sunday Masses, 7:30, 8:15, 9, 10:45.
Vespers and Benediction, 4.
Week-day Masses, 7, 8, 9:30.

St. John's, Cynwyd, Pa.
The Birthplace of the Lenten Offering
When in Philadelphia attend services here. Call Cynwyd 1382 for information.
Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, D.D., Rector
Sundays 8 and 11 A. M.

General Secretary of the Society. According to the Bible Society of France, it is felt that an edition of the New Testament presented in the form of the secular French books and handled by the book concerns not specializing in religious works, will attract many new readers and give new impetus to the propagation of the Gospel in France. It is almost impossible to find the Bible on sale in France, except in special bookstores. Many of the university professors in Paris and elsewhere, recognizing the value of Bible study to the younger generation, have written the Society of the interest with which they await the new publication. It is hoped, that apart from any religious view, this New Testament will serve to introduce courses of Bible study in the programs of universities and colleges for the coming school year.

It is also expected that in those countries where French culture is eagerly welcomed, the Balkans, Turkey, Egypt, etc., an edition of the Testament presented in the new format will attract many readers.

* * *

Playground equipment for the use of the young convalescent patients at the Hudson Stuck Hospital, Fort Yukon, and the children of the Indian village, was given last spring by the Woman's Auxiliary of Holy Trinity Church, West Chester, Pa., as a memorial of its former president.

Dr. Burke writes: "The playground equipment was more than I could have hoped for. It has given the children the keenest pleasure; they have never seen anything like it."

For the first few days after its arrival Dr. Burke was in despair because he learned then for the first time that the equipment required concrete foundations.

"Just as I was wondering," he says, "when and how and where I could get concrete, sand and gravel, and could meet unforeseen expenditures around the hospital, the tourist boat arrived and presented me with over $200. They had given an entertainment on the steamer Yukon before they reached this point and raised the amount. You can imagine my embarrassment as well as joy when the whole company of forty or fifty tourists flocked into the hospital and amid the clicking of cameras, both movies and others, the committee presented me the offering. The speeches were made by a doctor and a wealthy man of California, telling me to receive the money which they all wished was many times more, from the passengers and officers of the steamer, and use it where I saw fit in carrying on this 'admirable work for the suffering of mankind.'. This is the first time any-

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily: 7:30 and 10 A. M. and 5:00 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m., 4 p. m.
Daily, 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursday, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder , D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11 A. M., and 8 P. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursday, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 7, 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., Fri., and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30 and 11:00 A. M., 5:00, 6:15 and 8:00 P. M.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp and Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — In a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

thing of this kind has been done, so the master of the vessel and its officers and many of the crew gleefully told me. Indeed it makes one very happy, as it shows in what high esteem the Church's work is held."

* * *

Bishop Brent has been ordered by physicians to take a complete rest for two months.

* * *

A luncheon conducted by the Church Mission of Help at the Social Service Conference suggested a method of discussion which might be used by others. A mimeographed list of questions on the subject was distributed to each person. Each of the fifteen small tables elected a spokesman, and each table discussed one or two questions. At the close of the luncheon the chairman called for one-minute reports from each table.

* * *

Christian education Sunday has been most fully observed throughout the diocese of Long Island, with a special form of service used in most parishes which was issued by the board of religious education.

* * *

It is said that the largest two organizations among the thirty or more which may be said to constitute the youth movement in Germany, are those of the most strongly religious nature. The Catholic organization has a membership of 700,000 and the Y. M. C. A. 225,000. The latter in Germany is in close touch with the church, though not controlled by it, and operates chiefly in the villages and small towns.

Clerical Changes

BARLOW, Rev. T. B., rector of the Messiah, Pittsburgh, Pa., has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. Luke's, Niles, Ohio.

DOAN, Rev. Edward S., missionary in New Mexico for the past twelve years has accepted a call to Emmanuel, Petosky, Michigan.

DODD, Rev. A. C., resigns charge of Grace Church, Oceanside, Calif., and takes charge of the mission at Ocean Beach, California.

HAMMOND, Rev. S. R., of Brandon, Manitoba, has accepted the rectorship of St. Paul's, Ventura, California.

JOHNSON, Rev. Roberts P., rector of Christ Church, Monticello, Florida, has taken up his work as rector of Grace Church, St. Francisville, La.

LEWIS, Rev. Harrell J., formerly minister-in-charge of St. Mary's, Kinston, N. C., has accepted a call to the rectorship of the parish.

MOORE, Rev. Henry B., resigns charge of St. Andrew's, Fullerton, California, to become rector of the Ascension, Sierra Madre, California.

PETERS, Rev. Richard, accepts a call to St. James', Amesbury, Mass. He is at present on the staff of a parish in Lowell.

PIPER, Rev. L. F., in charge of St. Luke's and Grace Churches, Concord, N. H., has been appointed executive secretary of the diocese of New Hampshire.

SEAVEY, Rev. George, locum tenens at Laconia, N. H., has been placed in charge of St. Mary's, Penacook, N. H. and St. Luke's and Grace Churches, Concord.

TRACY, Rev. Leland H., resigns St. John's, San Francisco, and accepts St. Luke's, Los Gatos, California.

WILLIAMS, Rev. E. D., formerly of the diocese of West Texas, has taken charge of the work in Imperial Valley, California.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College
Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

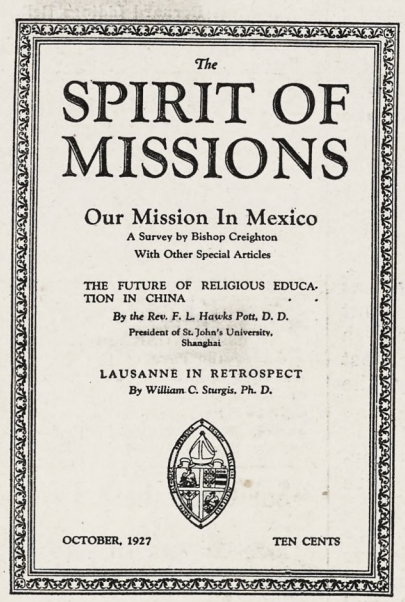
To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson



Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Spirit of Missions

A Case-Work Magazine of Missionary Enterprise

Things being done by real people in home and foreign fields.

Reports of achievements and the methods that made them possible.

Little theory — much practice.

Written by people who know, not only how to do things but how to tell about them.

Always interestingly illustrated.

Every family of the Church needs to read it every month.

Take advantage of one of these plans:

1 The Spirit of Missions
281 Fourth Ave., New York

For the enclosed $1.00 please send THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS for one year, beginning with the.....number to

Name .....

Street .....

City..... State.....

2 The Spirit of Missions
281 Fourth Ave., New York

Kindly send THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS for one year, beginning with the.....

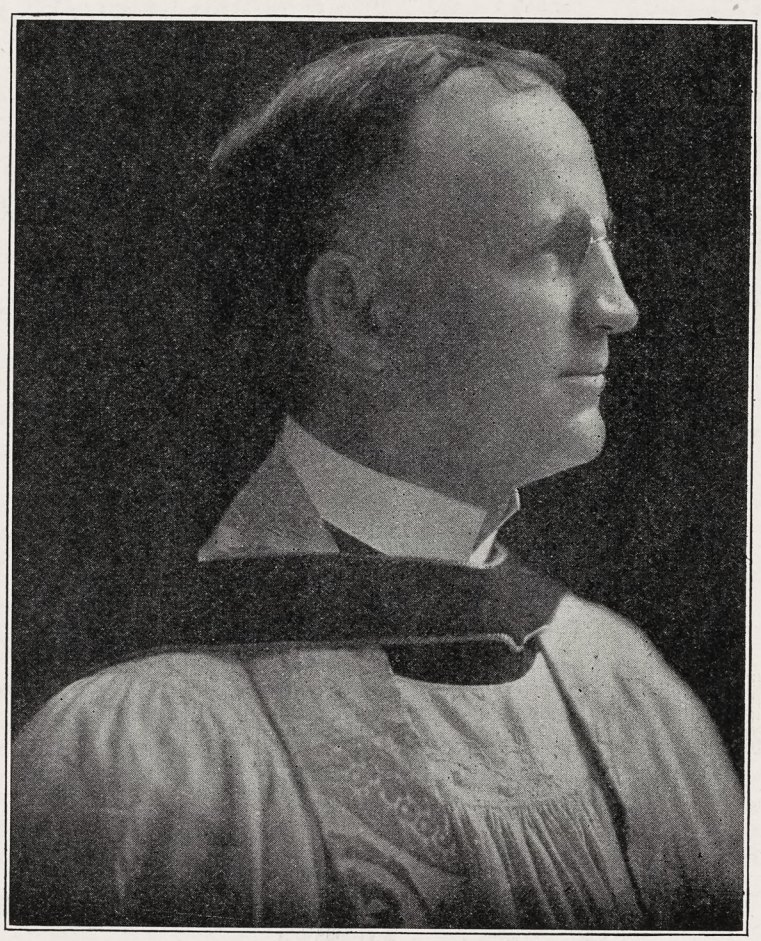
.....number and send bill to me.

Name .....

Street .....

City..... State.....

Sample copy sent upon request



THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS

281 Fourth Avenue New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, NOVEMBER 3, 1927

REV. WALTER B. CAPERS

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration

For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 61 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Church Furniture

MEMORIALS IN CARVED WOOD
PEWS · ALTARS · PULPITS
SUNDAY SCHOOL
SEATING

American Seating Company
1024 LYTTON BUILDING CHICAGO

In Selecting a Memorial to a Loved One

what could be a happier, a more fitting thought than a living memorial of Golden-Voiced Deagan Tower Chimes serving through the years to keep alive the faith of those who have it, and helping, as no other means can, to re-awaken childhood reverence in those who have strayed. Write for literature. Standard Sets $6,000 and up.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 161 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.
Church Bells — Peals
McShane Bell Foundry Co.
Baltimore, Md.

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:
EXETER
and 4 & 5 Duncannon St:
Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART · WORKERS
in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal and
Stained Glass

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring
Inquiries given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.
174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403)
(Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER
Hagerstown, Maryland

MENEELY BELL CO.
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.), Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.
1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

The Ellwood Potts Studios
5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.
MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS
If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

R. GEISSLER, INC.
56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST. 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Giannini & Hilgart
Stained Glass
English Artists
550 & 552 W HARRISON St, CHICAGO

Memorial Windows
Monuments and Church Furnishings
IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR
CHARLES F. HOGEMAN
45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts.
NEW YORK
460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J.

Windows of Merit
Beautiful Groupings
Gorgeous Combinations of Color
Well executed by
The Von Gerichten Studios
Columbus, Ohio. New York City

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.
— Office and Studio —
221-223 E. Fulton St. — Columbus, Ohio.
DESIGNERS · AND · BUILDERS · OF · ECCLESIASTIC · MEMORIAL · WINDOWS.
— Photos, Designs and Estimates Upon Application —
ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 11 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

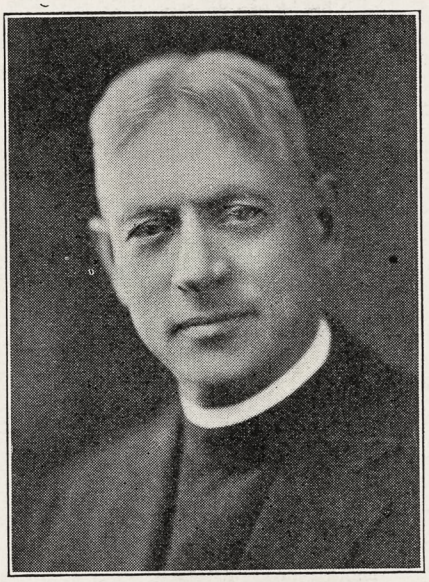
Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

THE CHURCH IN CHINA

The Official Policy of the Church

BY JOHN W. WOOD



Executive Secretary, Department of Missions.

THE National Council has a high regard for the many fine qualities of the Chinese people and believes that they will eventually win through present difficulties and earn a place of regard and influence in the family of nations. It sympathizes with Chinese legitimate aspirations for national unity and peace, while recognizing that there must be differences of opinion with regard to methods chosen by different groups in China to secure these aims.

The Council has no thought of closing permanently any effective work in China or withdrawing from the country. It accepts whole-heartedly the statement adopted by the House of Bishops on June 1st, 1927, as follows:

"The House of Bishops records its conviction that there should be no thought of lessening our work in China when the way shall be opened for its full resumption, and expresses its gratitude to God for the splendid fidelity and bravery manifested by our clergy and lay workers and by the native Christians. The House of Bishops has full faith that the Church's work in China will be continued with unabated zeal and increased efficiency if and when a stable government shall be established."

In accordance with this policy, the Council, at its meeting on Oct. 12-13, 1927, out of its total budget of $4,212,370, set aside for the work in China during the coming year the sum of $574,921. This is $41,141 less than the amount so appropriated for China for the year 1927. With about 90 per cent of the American missionaries away from their stations and 70 per cent of them out of China, the National Council realizes that an explanation is due the Church as to why the appropriation for China for the year 1928 has not been more largely reduced.

BISHOP SANFORD
On Commission to China

Having determined upon an energetic resumption of all work at the earliest possible moment, it would be folly to disband our splendid corps of American workers with their knowledge of the Chinese language and of the thoughts and habits of the Chinese people. These faithful workers have not left their posts because of a fear of persecution or death but because their presence added to the danger of international complications and the danger of great suffering on the part of innocent Chinese.

A few of the missionaries who have returned to America have definitely resigned and others may take this step in the near future. Some have accepted temporary work in parishes and elsewhere, thus relieving the Council of their salaries for the time being. A number are temporarily filling vacancies in the Japanese and Philippine missions. In other cases it is the judgment of the Bishops and of the Department of Missions that they should use this time of waiting to equip themselves the better for the tasks that lie ahead and to seek to adjust themselves to such conditions as may obtain when the Church's work in China is fully resumed. This involves the continuance of salaries, provision for house rent, and in a number of cases provision for academic fees where post-graduate study has been deemed advisable. All such expenditures are on a larger scale than would have been the case had these missionaries remained in China.

The evacuation of most of our posts by the American missionaries has involved and will involve the Council in largely increased expenditures for travel. In many cases the workers were forced to leave their stations with little else than the clothes they were wearing at the time of their escape. It has been necessary to provide at least some of the essentials in the way of clothing for such workers. In many instances missionaries have lost everything they possessed in the way of household goods. While statements of losses of this character have been filed with the proper United States authorities in China, it cannot now be determined whether or not any Chinese government that may develop in the future will be willing to assume responsibility for such losses and in any case repayment will inevitably be deferred for a considerable period. In the meantime, the National Council may find it necessary to make some provision for partial compensation for such losses.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

As contrasted with the large abandonment of work on the part of the American missionaries, the work of the Chinese clergy, teachers, Bible women and catechists is, wherever possible, being continued. Services are held in the churches, teaching is carried on in the homes, and many of our numerous primary schools are being conducted as usual by the native staff. It must be remembered in this connection that from the beginning of the work of this Church in China we have held steadily before us the purpose of creating a national Church in China, to which responsibility should be transferred just as rapidly as the members and leaders of the Church were prepared to discharge the trust with faithfulness and effectiveness.

This national Church, comprising all work of the Anglican Communion and organized as the "Chung Hua Sheng Kung Hui," has made definite progress. For many years it has had its own general synod in which the representation, both clerical and lay, has been predominantly Chinese. Each of the several dioceses, both of our mission and that of the Church of England, has its diocesan synod. In the three American dioceses, and presumably in the others, the Chinese outnumber the foreigners both in clerical and lay representation. Thus control in ecclesiastical matters has largely passed into the hands of the Chinese.

Evidence of real life in this national Church is given by the organization of diocesan boards of missions and the efforts made to establish new stations in the various dioceses to be supported from funds contributed solely by the Chinese Christians. Further evidence of real life is afforded by the organization of a national board of missions and the undertaking of missionary work in the Province of Shensi, manned and supported solely by the Chinese. Unfortunately this latter work is today at a standstill owing to military operations and the disturbed economic situation.

Heretofore the Chinese have provided the major part of the running expenses of our schools and hospitals, and some of the Chinese clergy have been entirely supported by the local parishes. In many cases, with business at a standstill, the country overrun by rival military forces, and the cost of living rising with rapidity, the Chinese are not able to do today what they have heretofore done in the support of these enterprises. The National Council feels that it would be most unwise to allow any of this work which can be kept alive, to suffer just at the time when it is most needed. The Council therefore stands ready to support work of this character even more generously than was necessary in prior years. In the case of some of the schools and hospitals which have been closed, provision must be made for a time at least for the support of faithful Chinese teachers and workers until they can find some other way of earning a living.

Our Chinese associates are suffering more than the American missionaries. Chinese clergy have in some cases been driven from their stations, not, of course, by their own people but by communistic agitators who are trying to force atheism in China. Others have been the subject of attack and insult. One of them writes in part as follows:

"I shall hold my post as a soldier of Christ till He calls me away, either positively through my Bishop or negatively through the antagonizing forces. I cannot be defeated in the strength of Christ, but I may be badly beaten. It has given me more comfort and delight and hope to see the real Christian spirit of so many people. It is a day of our test. May the Lord help us all to pass the test in His glory. For Him I am ready to lose all."

Certainly neither the National Council nor the Church in America will for a moment consider any policy which would mean the withdrawal of support from these men and women in the hour of their trial.

On the Cover

WALTER BRANHAM CAPERS, rector of St. Andrew's, Jackson, Miss., graduated from South Carolina College and from the Virginia Theological Seminary, and was ordained deacon in 1898 by his father, Bishop Ellison Capers. He was called to his present parish from Trinity, New Orleans, having served previously as rector of St. Peter's, Columbia, Tennessee, and St. John's Memorial, Farmville, Virginia. He is the president of the standing committee of the diocese of Mississippi and has been a deputy to a number of General Conventions. He received a doctor's degree from the University of the South.

Mr. Rothafel, known to everyone in the east who has a radio as "Roxy" is to give a receiving set with head phones for every bed in the new St. John's Hospital, Brooklyn.

Let's Know

MONEY

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

HERODOTUS tells us that coins were the invention of the Lydians, probably about 700 years before Christ. Previous to that time financial transactions had been carried on by weighing out precious metals. For instance, when Abraham purchased the field of Ephron he "weighed to Ephron the silver, which he had named in the audience of the sons of Heth, four hundred shekels of silver, current money with the merchant" (Genesis 23:16). The shekel originally was a unit of weight. In those days a prospective purchaser carried with him a set of scales instead of a pocket-book.

Down to the time of the Jewish return from the Babylonian captivity (fifth century before Christ) this system of weights and balances was in common use. Amos was protesting against dishonest business when he spoke of "falsifying the balances by deceit." So was Micah when he asked, "Shall I count them pure with the wicked balances, and with the deceitful bag of weights?" So in the very practical precepts of Proverbs we read, "A false balance is abominable to the Lord; but a just weight is His delight." If these good moralists were here today, they would talk in the same vein about short-changing a customer and passing counterfeit money.

In all probability the first coined money used by the Jews was Persian money which took the place of the old weight system. From the time of the exile until the advent of Christ there was only one short period when the Jewish nation was not directly subject to some conquering neighbor and therefore their opportunities of developing their own coinage were very limited. Under John Hyrcanus, in the second century before Christ, they coined their first money. It was different from the coinage of other peoples in that they refused to place the heads of their leaders on their money, considering that to be an infraction of the second Commandment against making graven images. They were nearly all bronze coins for the Jews never were granted a legal right to coin gold and silver. As one writer puts it, "Is not this a remarkable testimony to the fact that the true mission of the Hebrew race lay in another than the temporal sphere, even the spiritual?" Rather interesting, when one thinks of the current notions of the Jewish money-lender.

To estimate the values in terms of modern money is a complicated business. There was the common standard and the royal standard. There was the ordinary shekel and the sacred or temple shekel. Generally speaking, however, we may say that Jewish money values were evolved from a Babylonian system with the "mina" as the determining factor. The shekel was one-sixtieth of the value of the mina and the "talent" was sixty times the value of the mina. In round numbers we may say that the shekel of silver was worth about fifty cents while the shekel of gold was worth about ten dollars. The "thirty pieces of silver" for which our Lord was sold, meant thirty silver shekels or about fifteen dollars. The "denarius" or penny of the parable of the laborers, was the common wage for a day's labor, amounting to about nineteen cents. The widow's "mite" was an eightieth part of a penny. The "talent" was worth about $1,200 and the "stater" was worth about one dollar.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

WHY THE CHURCH TEACHES

3. Confession of Sins

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

THERE are many theories about sin but it has always seemed to me that the Master sums up the case for us mortals when He said: "It must needs be that offences come but woe unto that man by whom the offence cometh."

In other words, sin is a necessary phenomenon in human life as it is now constituted but each individual is responsible for his attitude toward it. No man is tempted beyond his ability to resist it if he exercises all of the powers with which he is endowed; and yet no man lives who is not tempted to sin, and since no man is perfect no man may entirely and successfully resist all sin. "If we say that we have no sin the truth is not in us."

The spiritual life is a spiritual combat in which we grow in grace to resist sin if we follow the directions of our Saviour. The fact that Christ resisted sin unto death must impress us with the deadliness of sin and the depth of His love.

There have been many philosophies and theories about sin but they have never resulted in reclaiming sinners from their sins so as to produce saints. It may be true that even the Cross of Christ has not succeeded in producing saints in large numbers but that is no argument against the ability of Christ to save us from sin. Universities have never produced scholars in large numbers but if they have succeeded in producing some scholars they have justified their usefulness. The failures are due to the fact that men have failed to utilize the means provided for their growth, not to the inability of the Church and the college to produce satisfactory results when men will not use the instruments provided to overcome sin and ignorance.

God gives us the metals and the oil and the electric power. Man creates riches only when he develops the powers within that enable him to use the powers without. To the savage these assets were of no value merely because he did not develop the mental powers which alone can make of them things of value.

So the Church was endowed with the riches of His grace but they remain dormant so long as they remain unused. We are sinners just as we are ignorant. It is the sense of ignorance that prompts men to take on an education; it is the sense of sin that causes men to seek the comforts of His grace.

Confession of sin is something more than reciting the misdemeanors of the day.

The throne of grace is something different from a police court and the confessions of His disciples something better than a police blotter.

Men frequently accuse Christians of being hypocrites. Undoubtedly some Christians are guilty of pretending penitence, but no man is a hypocrite because he is a sinner trying to get away from his sin, even if his sin is grievous and his attempts futile. As well accuse a hospital for claiming to be a health restorer when as a matter of fact every patient in it is sick.

"Those that are whole need not a physician." And the Church of Christ is not a saint-show in which to exhibit magnificent specimens of virtue, but it is what the Master made it, a refuge for sinners.

It is not to be expected that those who are satisfied with their own virtues should seek to have their sins forgiven. Seeking grace in the hostel which Christ instituted for sinners is an acknowledgement of imperfection rather than an advertisement of goodness. We seek Christ because we are dissatisfied with ourselves.

Instead of being surprised that so many Christians are no better than they are I am frequently surprised that men can be as good as they are without the presence of Christ in their lives. I am very sure that I could not maintain as good an average as I do, poor as it is, unless I were the constant recipient of His grace.

And from a long experience I am also satisfied that there are as many Pharisees outside the Church who thank God that they are not as weak as those poor Christians, as there are Christians in the Church who feel superior to the pagans without. After all neither group help their case one iota by censorious judgment of the other group. It would be awful childish to justify our own ignorance because a large number of collegians do not learn much.

It is silly to think that St. John could have become what he did by dropping out of the Church because Judas was one of the apostles.

After all, the development of a man's mind and soul is a privilege which he should grasp and not a task which he should shun.

The Church insists upon the confession of sin as a part of the Christian warfare as a teacher might insist on the acknowledgement of ignorance as a justification of pursuing a study. You cannot teach anyone anything if he already conceives that his knowledge of the subject is sufficient.

But why insist so strenuously that a Christian must confess his sins so frequently? For several reasons.

First, because one needs to diagnose his case before he can mend it. What is the sin that does so easily beset you? To answer that question correctly is to put your finger on the disease that needs to be cured.

Second, because one needs to have a consciousness of weakness before he will seek the means which can be made use of for his cure.

Third, because it is the nature of man to censure the sins of his neighbor and so to fancy himself immune from that which he criticizes; whereas if he were not so familiar with the sin within himself he would not be so expert in detecting that sin in the other fellow. A perfectly pure minded person would not be looking for the sin of impurity in others and would be very slow to detect it. As I have said, the Church is not a police court. It is a household in which sins are confessed because of the hurt that they cause, not because of the immunity that one seeks. The real penitent is perfectly willing to suffer the consequences of his sin himself if he can feel that he has not been the cause for others to stumble and if he can feel that his Father understands and forgives.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

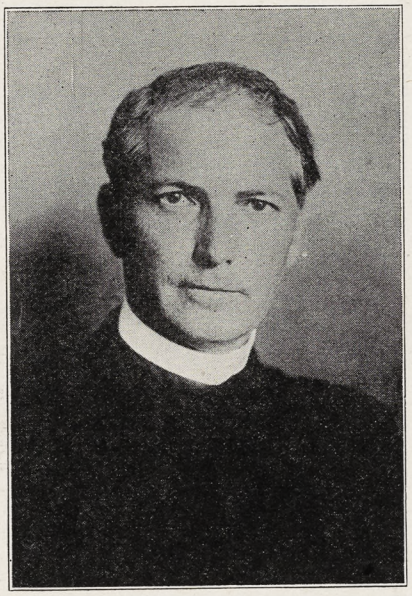
The method of confession is not so important as the fact of penitence.

The history of confession and the confessional is a humiliating one, due to the factor of human weakness in the organization of the Church.

The primitive Church expected grievous sinners to acknowledge their sins before the whole congregation with results that can easily be visualized. The neighbors who had heard the confession were apt always to remember it.



Later, confession of grievous sins was made to the priest but comparatively few priests had or have that combination of severity and gentleness which alone can act in loco parentis. Then certain priests were designated for this purpose. Then Rome took hold of it and standardized the confessional with unsatisfactory results. Then the Anglican Church put the confession and absolution in the service of the Church and bade its communicants to feel free if that could not quiet their own conscience to "seek some minister of God's word and open his grief," just as he would seek a physician for his bodily needs, and without any more need of scandal in the one than in the other.

There is no question but that the great need of Christians today is a greater sense of sin, and there is no question but that the abuse of the confessional has driven away thousands from this most comforting practice. The Anglican Church has left the way open but it has not imposed the Roman system on her penitents.

You may go to confession, and if you go in the right spirit to the right kind of a priest you will receive great benefit, fully as much as you would receive for bodily ills in going to a good physician.

You may quiet your own conscience and receive the Blessed Sacrament, having confessed your sins in the seclusion of your own conscience. No priest is wiser than the Church who gives him his orders, and in giving him his orders she gives him the full tradition of the Church. Unfortunately many who go to their own closet get very weary of their own sins and because they have no system grow indifferent to the sin which so easily and frequently besets them.

The Anglican Church values personal liberty more than a mechanical system and in so doing I believe safeguards the greatest value.

REV. ROBERT PATTON
Holds Mission in Lawrence

Sufficient to say that your mother the Church advises you to use your clergy if you can trust them, and if the results of sin are as grievous as those of disease there is the same value and the same danger in going to priest or doctor.

But the true Anglican should at least get this reaction from the practice of the Church which is that of perfect freedom. Let no man judge censoriously the habits of his fellow Christian, but let him realize most fully that the spirit of the Church is the spirit of mutual forbearance and the antithesis of censorious judgment.

The formularies of the Church teach us that confession and absolution are necessary prerequisites to receiving the Blessed Sacrament. Communicants who enter the church after the confession and absolution have no license to receive unshriven. The Church put these there as the door to each reception, thus carrying out her belief that God has given to His ministers to declare and pronounce to His people being penitent the absolution and remission of their sins.

Absolution is placed where it is, intentionally, for when the Anglical Church departed from the medieval practice of compelling private confession before reception of the Eucharist she did not depart from the principle that men might receive without receiving the absolution. And this ought to be evident to every really humble man so that he does not presume to enter the presence of God's holiness without the assurance of God's pardon for the sins he may have committed.

After all, the Church exists for these three purposes, as the creed testifies:

One, that he may receive the forgiveness of sin which he can scarcely bestow upon himself.

Two, that he may receive the resurrection of his body which is beyond human power, and

Three, that he may inherit life eternal, which is God's gift and not man's right.

Cheerful Confidences

DIAGNOSIS

By Rev. George Parkin Atwater

SOME time ago I asked a number of men this question: "What in your opinion is the greatest need of the Episcopal Church, in this land?"

You realize that a person who asks such questions is apt to uncork the main interest, or the hobby, of any one who gives a thoughtful answer. So every answer must be slightly discounted. Every man who ventures to announce his opinion as to the greatest need, would be quite willing to admit that there were other great needs.

I am now passing on the answers for your consideration. I put them in a tabulated form. The comments are mine.

(1). More religion. Many other organizations need that.

(2). Advertising. Every newspaper would agree with this.

(3). Better clergy. This came from a bishop. The bishops ordain the clergy, however. They might use more discrimination.

(4). Better bishops. This came from a priest. I seem to remember that the clergy choose the bishops.

(5). More brotherhood. Surely not more brotherhoods.

(6). More teaching of doctrine. That seems to hit the nail right on the thumb.

(7). To lose the idea that religion is a program. This man gets too much mail.

(8). More money. Adopted by a rising vote. Appeals sound the same as they always have, but some one has moved the decimal point one place to the right.

(9). Poverty. This supply, especially in the small places, is much in excess of the demand.

(10). More organization. Consult the Living Church Annual, pages 152-239.

I should be glad to print in this space, any further suggestions that might be of value. May I venture to suggest a thought or two of my own as to our needs.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

(1). Fewer and more efficient domestic mission stations.

(2). Less dullness and monotony in the services.

(3). More time for the clergy to do pastoral work.

(4). A keener appreciation of the obstacles that prevent the outsider from affiliating with the Episcopal Church, and a greater effort to remove these obstacles.

Let us have some more ideas. A good mechanic the other day, discovered in two minutes why my car would not climb the hills of Eastern Pennsylvania. Perhaps some wise man will touch the very heart of our difficulties.

PRAYER BOOK AS MYSTERY DRAMA

The Drama of Redemption

By

IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

PART IV

WHEN one enters a home, it is easy to tell by the furniture what each room is intended for. If there is a table surrounded by chairs, with china closets and buffets on the wall, one knows, without argument, "This is the dining room." If there are beds and dressers, no guidebook is needed to inform us "This is the bedroom." Bookcases, easy chairs and radio mark out the living room.

Last month I attended a funeral of a dear friend in a Methodist church. On entering I was conscious, first, of a huge cluster of organ pipes towering to the roof, gilded and painted, dwarfing everything else in the building. Faces of the choir, peering over their red curtain, dominated the landscape. Below them was a platform on which stood a pulpit with three chairs behind it. On the floor level, entirely hidden and inconspicuous when seen, was a small table.

Judged by ordinary standards of fitness, this was not a church. Its furniture proclaimed it a place to hear speaking and singing; an auditorium, a lecture room, a concert hall. The Lord's Table was so completely discounted in the arrangement of the room as to be out of the scheme of thought.

Now enter an Episcopal Church. Dominating the vision the moment one enters, the first thing seen and the central factor while one is there, is the altar. It is marked by a cross, and ordinarily by two candles as well. There is no mistaking it for anything else but the Lord's Table, the throne of the heavenly grace.

Place of Pulpit

The preacher does not stand in front of it, but on one side, to deliver his sermon. The Bible does not stand in front of it, but on one side. Neither lecture nor pulpit obscures the approach to the altar. Neither of them towers over it. Both stand to one side, on a lower level, humbly guarding and pointing the way.

Both the Written Word and the Spoken Word are subordinate to the altar. Every pew should have an unrestricted view of the altar. The pathway to it is broad and easy. The choir does not peer over a screen at the congregation, but stands in ordered rows to either side.

It is easy to tell a singer who has never been in an Episcopal Church. He or she comes gracefully forward with a conscious smile, turns to face the congregation and attract their attention, and delivers his performance. One who is instructed in churchly worship remains inconspicuous in the ranks of the choir and sings for the glory of God.

This arrangement is more than custom. It is more than esthetic sense. It is the embodiment of a philosophy profound and yet simple, which has stamped its mark on immemorial custom.

"See" it says "the altar marks this building as a church. It is not primarily a place to hear singing, or to hear preaching, or even to hear the Bible read. It is first and foremost a place to meet God."

The roadway must be left clear and open. The Written Word is only a witness. The Spoken Word is only a guide. What matters is the open roadway between the throne of God and the worshiper. The principal persons here are not the preacher and the choir, but you and God.

The Middle Aisle

There is one feature which marks a theater or an auditorium from a church. That is the philosophy of the middle aisle. In a theatre or auditorium, the seats most prized are directly in front of the stage, which are best adapted for hearing and seeing. In theatres and lecture halls the aisles are on the sides, and the center is filled with a solid block of seats. In every historic church, however, the broad aisle in the middle. Place of honor is given, not to seats but to the passage way. Emphasis is placed, not on sitting and listening, but on going to the altar.

Altar as the Hill of Redemption

Altar means "hill." "I will lift up my eyes unto the hills" said the singer of the songs of Zion in Babylon. Wearily, they looked up from the dense hot air of the flat marsh lands of Babylon to the high cold peaks of Jerusalem. Toiling in the drainage canals and the muddy fields of the great lowland empire, they remembered with wild regret the sunlight on the snow of Hermon, and the glory of starlight on the top of Lebanon.

All the great moments in the story of redemption are connection with hills. Mount Ararat, on which the Ark rested; Mount Moriah, on which Abram offered Isaac; Mount Horeb, when the Law was given; Mount Pisgah, from which Moses saw the promised land; Mount Nebo, on which he was buried; Mount Zion on which David built the temple; Mount Carmel, on which Elijah vanquished the priests of Ball.

In the New Testament likewise, a hill marks every great epoch: the hills of Bethlehem, where the angel appears to the shepherds; the mount of the Sermon, the Mount of the Transfiguration, Mount of Olives, Calvary, the hill of the Ascension.

All the light from each of the hills gathers around the altar. It is successively each of them, and all of them together. The church itself bears the name of "nave,"' the ship, from the story of Ararat. We offer our own, the best we have, as Abraham offered Isaac. The law is given thence, as from Moriah. We see the Promised land thence, as did Moses. There the true religion vanquishes Baal; there is the seat of our worship, as was Zion.

Three of these hills the altar mystically becomes during the offering of worship; Sinai, the hill of Transfiguration, and Calvary. I say "becomes" not "represents." Because the action which took place on those Syrian mountaintops embodied an eternal truth, which also is embodied in the altar, the hill of God.

Next Week: The Language of Symbols.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

MARRIAGE, DIVORCE AND EVOLUTION

Chief Topics Among English Churchmen

Reported by

A. MANBY LLOYD

TWO elephants (mother and her calf) have arrived at the Zoo from Burmah, after walking from Tilbury, accompanied by Said Ali, the mahout who was brought to England some years ago to try his hand at subduing a sulky elephant that refused to obey orders. He was successful, obtaining a complete mastery over the animal by lecturing it.

On being introduced to his unruly charge, Said Ali, armed with a large collection of murderous looking instruments, addressed the animal as to its bad behaviour. "Allah," he said, "commands us all to work if we want to eat. You are cheating our masters. Put fear out of your mind, and fulfil your alloted task."

In much the same way, Bishop Barnes has been called in to tame the high-church party. When Darwin and Huxley told us that

"man, however well-behaved, at best is only a monkey shaved,"

we naturally went into the sulks. Forty years ago the attack was led by Canon Freemantle, in the Fortnightly. He got a wigging from Dean Burgon, who, in 1883, had pulverised the revisers of the New Testament, knocking Westcott and Hort clean over the ropes, although no one would admit it. "The Apostle of Evolution," he said, "assures me that my immediate ancestor was 'a hairy quadruped, furnished with a tail and pointed ears, probably arboreal in its habits, and that the founder of my family was a tadpole, who became a simple, tough, leathery sack, with two small projecting orifices.' This last interesting object, it seems, never had a wife. How he managed nobody knows, but he did manage. So, finding he had fabulous periods of time before him, he set about to improve his condition. After countless acts of Evolution, most adroitly conducted, the adventurous tadpole found that he had at last evolved himself into an Apollo,—I call upon the Philosopher who gravely tells me this preposterous story, to produce his authority, his evidences. I call for proof."

* * *

Forty years have gone, and they have only found one or two spare bones (which may belong to anything) but Bishop Barnes lectures the whole Church, and especially the "superstitious," describing their propaganda as shameless. He told the Westminster School boys in Westminster Abbey this week, that "Darwin's assertion that man had sprung from the apes has stood the test of more than half a century of critical examination; as a result of the stories of the creation of Adam and Eve, of their primal innocence and of their fall, have become for us folklore. Darwin's triumph has destroyed the whole theological scheme . . ."

Bishop Barnes passes into the ranks of Don Quixote. Gore practically says the same thing and we have no Dean Burgon to answer them in the right vein. The Dean was called a charlatan but he never made the mistake of taking Modernism seriously. I must not forget the Bampton Lectures of Dr. N. P. Williams (which I have not yet read), but we do not kick at Evolution as a fact, but as an explanation of another fact. It may explain progress; does it account for LIFE? Bishop Barnes evades the point, and thus throws dust in the eyes of the people who are too lazy to think the thing out.

* * *

"Our own divorce law is, in my opinion, barbarous and prehistoric," writes Lord Birkenhead, in his new book, "Law, Life, and Letters." This from an ex-Lord chancellor is serious. "To insist," he says, "upon the Divine origin and nature of marriage in order to keep in existence unions which have ceased to have anything in common with real marriage is but the shadow, and in the name of God to refuse redress to society and the individual is to fall into the error of those who had to be reminded that the Sabbath was made for man."

The best reply I have seen to this is by Vox Clamantis in the Daily Telegraph. He says the clamour comes from a noisy minority. He has had experience of practice in the Divorce Court and in his opinion it is seldom that adultery is committed ad hoc. Even misconduct that has been arranged often only covers a long course of misconduct with known women, whose names it is desired to conceal.

But what is adultery? From the Christian standpoint it is a sin. From the man-of-the-world viewpoint adultery is not wrong, for re-marriage after divorce is legal. Concubinage is not illegal; therefore it is not wrong. Why marry?

The truth is that the reformers have yet to learn to think clearly, and without passion. They have it in their minds, as a heritage from their forefathers, that marriage is respectable, and they have never considered why. The essential idea of marriage is permanence, and any state of society which encouraged the formation of contracts to cohabit which were not intended to be permanent, would be encouraging something which would not be marriage. You would get unions masquerading as marriages in which the intention of permanence had never been present. This, he thinks, would shock even the "reformer."

* * *

Matrimony (he goes on) derives its "respectability" on the religious side, from the solemn dedication of the parties to God and to each other, and on the social side from their intention to live faithfully with each other as a unit of the race, and to devote themselves to their solemn duties as parents. . . . Remove the religious sanction and the permanence and little remains in the union to inspire "respect." . . . Divorce does not cure or even touch the causes of divorce. It perpetuates them.

A reform that is really needed is a law that no decree shall be made absolute until adequate security has been given for the well-being of the children. At present, Court, parties and "reformers" alike totally disregard the children. Husbands obtain orders for custody and neglect to enforce them, leaving the children to get on as best they can with the guilty wife. Husbands are divorced, and the innocent wife is left to bring the children up on what she can earn. This is a genuine scandal. The children, after all, are unquestionably innocent, and their claims should come first.

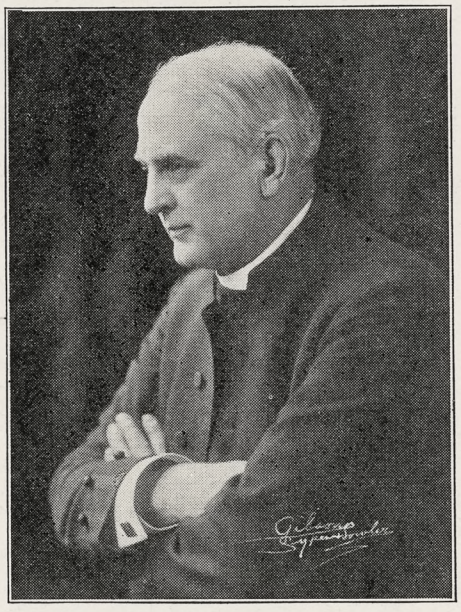
He is compelled to admit that the Roman Catholic decrees of "Nullity" rather weakens the case of those who try to uphold the Christian view of marriage: but perhaps there is more than one inference that can be drawn from the facts.

Miss Margaret Weed, president of the Auxiliary of Florida, is to be the guest speaker at a series of meetings in the diocese of Lexington during this month. The Rev. G. C. Dunlop of Cincinnati is to be a speaker also at the meeting in Lexington, his subject being the Lausanne Conference. Other speakers at the various meetings are to be Miss Sara Gaither, head of Margaret Hall, Mrs. Charles Saffell, officer of the Auxiliary and Miss Margaret Viall, U. T. O. worker.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs



Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

MORE than a thousand delegates assembled at the Anglo-Catholic Congress meeting last week at the Cathedral in Albany, New York, with folks there from all parts of the United States, from Canada, Scotland, Japan and the Philippines. Bishop Nelson, in his address of welcome stated that the purpose of the Congress was to "proclaim the divine nature of the Church and to increase our loyalty and deepen our devotion to its head, Jesus Christ Our Lord and Saviour." Later the Rev. Frank Vernon of Philadelphia, the chairman, said: "Of the four notes of the Church, unity, holiness, catholicity and apostolicity we are moved in this place to select the notes of holiness for emphasis. It will not be an ill-times emphasis in days like the present, when social conventionalities, determined by variable standards adaptable to passion and fashionable caprice, are taken for morality; when the plea is advanced for the consideration of intellectualized lust, it is high time to affirm unfaltering belief in Holy Church and unswerving allegiance to standards of living which are above debate and beyond change.

The Rev. Charles Jarvis Harriman, rector of St. James the Less, Philadelphia, speaking on the subject of loyalty, said: "The doctrines and rituals that have come with change in the Church are strange to many. We believe in these things, not because they are Roman, but because they are right. They are more than Roman —they are Catholic, and the Episcopal Church is Catholic. Not Roman, but Catholic. Its name is Prosestant Episcopal, but Protestant is a word of various meanings. At the Reformation she was not made new, but made free. To the jibe 'Where was your Church before the Reformation,' the retort was 'Where was your face before it was washed.' If by Protestant you mean disowning papal obedience, sharing the movement for freedom, education and individual development, we are Protestant. If you mean anti-Catholic, especially in the spirit of sheet and hood, every man to choose his own church, a complete break with the past, then we are not Protestant and God forbid that we should ever be."

The Rev. Julian D. Hamlin, Newport, Rhode Island, declared that the Church "has no quarrel with science or with reason as such, but she knows their limitations for she knows human nature. But in the realm of faith and morals she speaks with authority, for she is the spirit-guided body of Christ."

BISHOP ANDERSON
Speaker at Churchmen's Dinner

On Wednesday the solemn pontifical mass was celebrated, attended by twenty bishops and hundreds of clergy. The sermon, written by the Rev. J. G. H. Barry, rector of St. Mary the Virgin's, New York, was read by the Rev. Seldon P. Delany, due to Dr. Barry's absence because of illness. He said that we should press for the reunion "of the Catholic Church of Jesus Christ." Later in the day the Rev. Spence Burton, superior of the order of St. John the Evangelist, urged the veneration of the Virgin Mary and of the saints. He urged the clergy to erect shrines in their parishes.

* * *

St. John's Church, Kingston, New York, was consecrated by Bishop Manning on October 21st, and the Rev. W. P. Kemper was instituted as rector of the parish.

* * *

Of course there is one exciting Church event which comes around occasionally; the election of a bishop. Take Fond du Lac for example where they are to elect a coadjutor on the 8th. It is reported that the laity are eager to get a competent man who is neither "high" nor "low." On the other hand the clergy, themselves divided in two camps, are set upon a "high" and for weeks past have been sending out circulars making their recommendations. And rumor has it that the bishop of the diocese is so displeased with the carryings-on that he is tempted to call the election off.

* * *

One hundred women attended the semi-annual meeting of the Albany diocesan Woman's Auxiliary, held October 19-20, at Little Falls, N. Y. The Rev. A. R. McKinstry, rector of St. Paul's, Albany, told them about the program of the National Council.

* * *

There is to be a College of Preachers in Washington in connection with the Cathedral. Of course there has been one there for the past two summers for ten days or so, but this is to be an honest to goodness affair. Someone has left a quarter of a million for a building and another tidy little sum which will yield $50,000 a year to keep it running efficiently.

* * *

St. James' Church, Bolivar, Tenn., was nearly destroyed by fire the other night. Sparks from a burning dwelling lodged on the top of a 150 foot steeple, and the pressure of the water was not sufficient to reach. So the steeple tumbled, but the church was saved after a stiff fight on the part of about everyone in town. Services are being held now in the chapel of St. Katharine's School until the church can be repaired.

* * *

New parish houses are being built for St. Paul's, Newport, Ky., and for the parish at Fort Thomas, Kentucky.

* * *

The Honorable R. C. Simmons of Covington, Ky., was the speaker at the dedication of the new Girl's Friendly Home at Covington.

* * *

Now here is something: In an interview given to a reporter of a New York paper Mr. F. F. French, who has made a lot of money selling real estate, gives the secret of success, after the manner of Bruce Barton: "The best example of a sales talk is the life of Jesus Christ," continued Mr. French, his eyes alight with vim for the competitive fight. "He was the best salesman of all time. He said, 'Knock and it shall be opened unto you.' What He meant was 'Keep knocking until the door is opened and if it isn't opened pretty soon kick down the door.' That's my philosophy, too." One of the deans of our seminaries ought to grab off Mr. French for a lecture or two on the interpretation of the New Testament.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

The Rev. Norman Nash, professor at the Cambridge Theological Seminary, spoke to the Young People's Fellowship of Trinity, Boston, last Sunday on the Church and Industry.

* * *

Fall convocation of the diocese of Lexington was held at Calvary, Ashland, Ky., with the Rev. Karl Block of St. Louis as the leader. Plans for the every member canvass were thoroughly discussed.

* * *

Church Schools in diocese of Lexington are preparing a big Christmas box to be sent to children of Haiti.

* * *

Rev. W. A. Simms, rector of St. Mark's, Chicago, spoke at the Round Table of the diocese last week on the Menace of Home Life.

* * *

Now here is a movement that should enlist enthusiasm; an effort is being made this year to stamp out the use of "Xmas" and to get folks to write or print it all out "Christmas." Pass the word along, and be sure you don't make the mistake yourself.

* * *

Washington Cathedral has announced their plan of raising $30,000,000 for the completion and adequate endowment of the cathedral and associated institutions. General Pershing is to head the effort as chairman of the national committee while former senator George Wharton Pepper is the executive chairman. For the present campaign activities will be centered upon the raising of $6,800,000 for the completing of the next step in the cathedral construction.

* * *

St. Luke's Day marked the fiftieth anniversary of the consecration of the Cathedral Church of St. Luke, Portland, Maine. St. Luke's was the first cathedral in New England and one of the first in the country. Bishop Benjamin Brewster and Dean Arthur Glasier were the speakers at a dinner held to commemorate the event.

* * *

St. John's, Warehouse Point, Conn., celebrated its 125th anniversary last Sunday.

* * *

Close to 250 men and boys registered for the regional conference of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew held in Philadelphia last month. Eighteen dioceses were represented. An outstanding address was that of Professor Edwin B. Twitmyer of the University of Pennsylvania who spoke on the psychological aspects of leadership among boys. They had a lot of conferences addressed by capable speakers, a tea or two, and fine devotional services. Bishop Cook of Delaware conducted the service of preparation for the holy Communion. Humility, cheerfulness and seriousness of thought and purpose should be among the attributes of the devout Christian, he said. Bishop Lloyd of New York preached the conference sermon in Old Christ Church. It was an intimate and personal address to the Brotherhood in which he referred to his own beginning days in the Brotherhood nearly four decades ago.

Perhaps the greatest meeting was the open conference on Sunday afternoon with addresses by the Rev. John R. Hart, Jr., student pastor at the university; Captain Mountford of the Church Army, and Rev. Frank Cox, rector of Ascension Memorial, New York, all of whom spoke on the subject, "Practical Plans for Personal Workers." Former Senator George Wharton Pepper was the speaker at the final public service which was held in Holy Trinity, where most of the meetings were held.

* * *

Men's dinner meeting of rectors, wardens and vestrymen is to be held on Monday next at the Auditorium Hotel, Chicago, given by the Church club. Speakers: Bishop Anderson,

The Churchman's Kalendar

of DAILY BIBLE READINGS

Advent 1927—1928

The Kalendar for the coming Church year will be ready for distribution about November 10th.

New features make it more helpful than heretofore. There is more extended comment on the daily readings, increasing the number of pages from 32 to 64.

10c. a copy. $7.50 per hundred

Address orders to

THE BOOK STORE

Church Missions House

281 Fourth Avenue NEW YORK

BEST SELLERS BY WITNESS EDITORS

The fastest selling books in the Episcopal Church are by Witness editors.

The Episcopal Church

By G. P. ATWATER.
65c in paper; $1.10 in cloth.

The Divine Commission

By FRANK E. WILSON.
A history of the Church that everyone is going to read.
$1.10 a copy, postpaid.

Confirmation Instructions

By BISHOP JOHNSON
50c a copy; $4.00 a dozen.

Add to these a novel by a regular Witness contributor:

I Pronounce Them

By G. A. STUDDERT-KENNEDY.
Dealing with problems of marriage.
$2.15, postpaid.

WITNESS BOOKS

6140 Cottage Grove Ave.

CHICAGO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Rev. George Craig Stewart, and Ernest S. Ballard of Christ Church, Winnetka.

* * *

Bishop Rogers of Ohio conducted the Quiet Day with which the Church Service League in Maryland began their winter's work. The theme of the meditation was "The Spirit that Prevails," the possession of which depends upon the inner life of the individual. During the meals the Bishop read from Evelyn Underhill's, "Concerning the Inner Life."

* * *

Sister Adelaide Frances has resigned after serving for thirty years as the superior of All Saints Convent, Ilchester, Maryland. Sister Catherine Angela has been installed as superior.

* * *

Tune in on station WBZ, Boston and Springfield, at four o'clock next Sunday and you will hear the Festival Service of the Girls' Friendly Society being broadcast from Trinity Church, Boston. There will be two thousand people there to hear Presiding Bishop Murray preach.

* * *

St. John's Chapel of the Church Charity Foundation, Long Island, a memorial to Walter Gibb, was consecrated by Bishop Stires on October 17th. The address was made by the Rev. J. Howard Melish, rector of Holy Trinity, Brooklyn, where Mr. Gibb served as a vestryman.

* * *

Money is to be raised in the diocese of Georgia with which to build a new house on St. Simon's Island for the young people's camp and for other diocesan uses. The executive council of the diocese has also voted to give financial and moral support to the Negro School at Fort Valley, this as a result of a speech by the Rev. Robert W. Patton.

* * *

Sometime ago they went and painted the brick of St. Stephen's, Harrisburg, Pa., to make the church pretty. Now with a sand blast they are taking it all off and discover that the church is possessed of a beautiful exterior of hand-made brick.

* * *

Bishop Lines of Newark died on October 25th following an illness of several months. He was in his eighty-third year.

Preaching a religion of "joy and gladness and hope" for the "underprivileged class," Edwin Stevens Lines, third Bishop of the Diocese of Newark, urged that it was the work of the church to improve the conditions surrounding human life.

He advocated simplicity in living, in dress, and in recreation, and believed that quiet, earnest work accomplished more than striking, dramatic forms of worship. He was not disturbed by disputes over heresy and modernism. Urging his clergy to keep their faces toward the future with unwavering faith, courage and hope, he taught that life must be welcomed even if some of its manifestations were regrettable.

Born at Naugatuck, Conn., on November 23, 1845, he worked in a factory to earn funds for his education, and was graduated from Yale University in 1872. Berkeley Divinity School, from which he was grad-

The New Hymnal

The authorized and approved Hymnal of the Church.

—o—

is available in three editions. The Standard Musical Edition, bound in dark blue, is $1.20 per copy, or in lots of 100 or more, $1.00 per copy.

The Special Choir Edition has a heavily reinforced binding and is bound in red. It is $1.50 per copy, or in lots of 100 or more, is $1.30 per copy. An order for 100 or more of the musical hymnal, part of which are for the Choir Edition, entitles the purchaser to the reduced prices on both editions.

The Word Hymnal, without music, sells at 40c. per copy, regardless of the number ordered.

—o—

Carriage charges are extra.

ORDERS SHOULD BE SENT TO

The Church Pension Fund

14 Wall Street New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

uated in 1874, and Yale, Rutgers and Princeton Universities all conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity on him in later life.

Dr. Lines was ordained to the priesthood in 1874 and became Bishop of Newark in 1903, after having been rector of Christ Church, West Haven, Conn., for five years and of St. Paul's Church, New Haven, for twenty-four years.

He held many high offices in the Church and was a member of important boards and committees, including those having charge of foreign missions, religious education and social service. He was president of the Provincial Synod of New Jersey and New York for the six years ending in 1920. He was active in civic enterprises, in Yale alumni affairs and in the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution.

* * *

Miss Maude Royden, famous preacher of England, is to spend three months in this country the first of the coming year on a lecture tour. She will then go to Honolulu, New Zealand, Australia, Japan, China, India and the Holy Land.

* * *

Bishop Arnold Scott of Shantung tells, among other things, how he spent one Sunday last August at Wei hai Wei, the British naval base. He began with "an early Celebration in the mainland Church where Chinese and English, civilians and soldiers of many different regiments communicated together. Then a military parade service, under the trees, because the church is too small. Then two miles across the harbor in a motor launch to H. M. S. Ambrose, the mother-ship of a submarine flotilla; a service on her deck, followed by a Celebration in the tiny chapel deep down in the ship. Then, after lunch, back to the mainland for Evensong for our Chinese school boys; and once more across the harbor to the Island Church, for a voluntary Evensong for sailors, to whom I talked, at length, on our missionary work. Dinner in a warship's ward-room with two Naval Chaplains, and a last trip in a cool

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS
Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street

Designers of
HISTORICAL WINDOWS
Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.

Clerestory Windows
St. Thomas Church New York City
Stained Glass, Mural Decorations, Glass Mosaics

Everybody Enjoys
PATERSON SMYTH'S
People's Life of Christ
A fresh, reverent, modern treatment.
As fascinating as fiction, but true in every detail to the Scripture record. Pocket Edition $1.50
Large Illustrated Edition, $2.50
FLEMING H. REVELL CO., 158 Fifth Ave., N. Y.; 851 Cass St., Chicago

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

St. Albans The National Cathedral School For Boys
Thorough Preparation for Leading Universities. Splendid equipment, unexcelled location on Mt. St. Alban overlooking Washington. Eight years' course. Athletics for Every Boy.
Address: WILLIAM H. CHURCH
Head Master, Washington, D. C.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California
A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

Hospital of St. Barnabas
SCHOOL OF NURSING
Offers 2½ years course leading to R. N. Degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll now.
For full information, address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas
Newark, N. J.

Money for Churches
Hundreds of churches by their experience have proved that men trained in financial campaigns raise more money more easily than untrained men.
Over $208,500,000 has been raised for religious and philanthropic institutions by members of this organization.
Campaigns undertaken anywhere. We care for every detail.
Plan for that new building, addition or Sunday School. Let us help you clear off debts. Write us your hopes.
Members of this organization have conducted campaigns for the Church ranging from Hundred Thousand Dollar funds for parishes to Several Millions for institutional and diocesan programs.
"Financing Philanthropy," quarterly paper, free on request.
Member Joint Board of Campaign Counsel and Planning
HEDRICK, MARTS & LUNDY, Inc.
527 Fifth Ave., New York

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London, W. I., England.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin
Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request. Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, also chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses, $7.60 up, burse and veil, $15 up; Silk damask cope, $120; Silk damask chasuble, $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel., Cleveland 52.

ORGAN FOR SALE
TWO MANUAL PIPE ORGAN WITH ELECtric blower and motor. Just the right size for a small parish church. Bargain at $700. Address: St. Matthres Church, 8545 96th Street, Woodhaven, N. Y.

WANTED—POSITION AS ASSISTANT IN large Parish, either on Pacific Coast or in the East. Competent to direct choral, band or orchestral music. Experienced in office and organiaztion work, especially with young people. Write Box T, Witness, 416 Lafayette St., New York.

CHRISTMAS CARDS: TWENTY IMPORTED religious cards for $1.06, post paid. Write for circular of other cards. Girls' Friendly Society, 15 East 40th Street, New York City.

BOYS & GIRLS $2.00 Given NO WORK JUST FUN
Simply sell 50 sets of Our Famous Christmas Seals for 10c a set. When sold send us $3.00 and keep $2.00. We trust you till Xmas. St. Nichilas Seal Co., Dept. 541-W, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Whooping Cough Soon Relieved
Roche's Embrocation is the quickest relief known. Just rub it on the child's chest. At once it breaks congestion, loosens choking phlegm and then relief comes. Equally good for croup, chest colds, bronchitis.
Sold By All Druggists or
E. FOUGERA & CO., Inc., New York
W. Edwards & Sons, London, Eng., Props.
ROCHES EMBROCATION

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

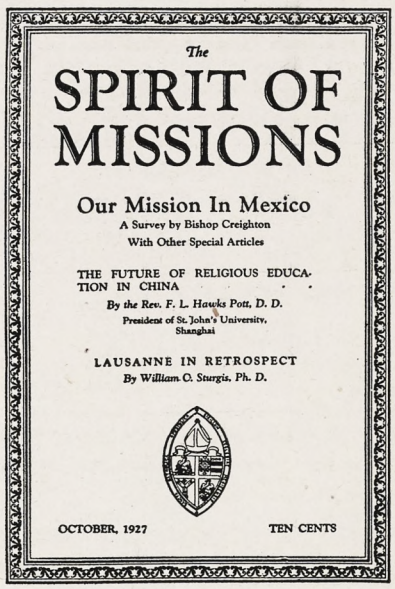
night breeze back to the mainland, were the 'end of a perfect day.'"

* * *

The Rev. Theodosius Stevens Tyng died on October 19 at the home of his son, the Rev. Dudley Tyng, in Barrington, R. I. Mr. Tyng was one of the early missionaries to Japan, going there in 1878. He lived to see the first boy he baptized become the first Japanese Bishop.

Mr. Tyng was born in Columbus, Ohio, in 1849. He studied at Kenyon, Columbia, and the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass., and was ordained priest in 1874. After five years' parish work, he went to Japan where, with intervals abroad to recover his health, he served for more than thirty years, returning to this country in 1909. He translated St. Luke's Gospel into Japanese. He was rector of St. Mark's, Ashland, N. H., from 1909 to 1919. Since that time he has lived in Rhode Island. Bishop Motoda, writing in 1909 of his own early experiences, says:

"Twenty-seven years ago I saw for the first time in my life an American gentleman, with the striking features characteristic of a seiyojni (a Western-Ocean man), to whom I was introduced by a friend of mine as a poor country boy who had come to Osaka to study the English language. This gentleman was no other than the Rev. Theodosius S. Tyng, a missionary of the American Church. He kindly took me and put me in St. Timothy's School as a school servant. . . . . At the end of a year I, with another student, was baptized by Mr. Tyng. We were the first fruits of St. Timothy's School. . . . . Later I was sent by Mr. Tyng to Wakayama to work as a catechist. Here I had a very interesting experience, never to be forgotten. There was no church building then, so we had to hold services in a small house attached to a Japanese hotel. The congregation was very small. To introduce Christianity to the people, one day we held a mass meeting in a theatre, the largest hall we could find in the town. The hall was full; 1,500 people were reported to be present. They listened very quietly to the first two speakers, but when the third appeared on the platform a Buddhist monk got up and began to make a disturbance, then another followed and then the whole crowd got excited. It seemed that everything was pre-arranged to break up our meeting. The brave Mr. Tyng was the chief object of attack. We sent for a policeman, but it was no use, so we had to close the meeting. The following day we made another trial, but this time was still worse. Lights were put out and stones flew in the dark. It was utterly impossible to continue the meeting, so we retreated to our home again, being escorted by our sympathetic friends. This meeting, however, proved to be a sufficient introduction of Christianity to the people of Wakayama. The congregation increased and inquirers multiplied. One of the men who were present at the meeting to hear us, and was struck with a stone on his forehead in the dark, became the first catechumen and later the founder of the Church of the Saviour in Wakayama."



Here and in many other places, "Mr. Tyng fought like a lion. He was sympathetic, energetic and full of tact. A large portion of the Japanese clergy now at work came through his influence, directly and indirectly."

* * *

St. Paul's Cathedral, Los Angeles, was among the thirty-one churches of that city which were opened to labor leaders for addresses during the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, which met there for two weeks in October. "If critics will acquaint themselves with the church they will become converts instead of critics," was a statement made by Mr. William Green, president of the Federation, who is said to be the sort of labor leader who seeks out his church, the Methodist, whenever he visits an American city. The addresses in Los Angeles were arranged by Dr. Edwin P. Ryland, secretary of the Federation of Churches in Los Angeles.

"So far as the Christian churches are concerned," said Dr. Ryland, "I beg leave to remind you that their Founder was one of the workers of the building trades of his time. I

Never a Dull Page

$1.00 a year

The Spirit of Missions
281 Fourth Avenue
New York, N. Y.

Chicago Real Estate Bonds

Our experience with First Mortgage Chicago Real Estate Bonds, covering a period of twenty years, is outlined in a leaflet which we have just prepared.

The leaflet contains a brief analysis of some of the causes underlying the perfect record of safety borne by such issues handled by us during this period.

It is a concise statement of facts, which have a value for every investor. Copy of this, together with circulars describing our current offerings, will be sent on request.

Write for Leaflet W.

Peabody, Houghteling & Co.
10 South La Salle Street
CHICAGO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York
139 West Forty-sixth Street
Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D., Litt.D.
Sunday Masses, 7:30, 8:15, 9, 10:45.
Vespers and Benediction, 4.
Week-day Masses, 7, 8, 9:30.

St. John's, Cynwyd, Pa.
The Birthplace of the Lenten Offering
When in Philadelphia attend services here. Call Cynwyd 1382 for information.
Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, D.D., Rector
Sundays 8 and 11 A. M.

have been asked in a most friendly manner on a number of occasions why the churches were cordially giving welcome to the American Federation of Labor convention, possibly more than to other conventions that come here, and I answered that we welcome all of our fellow men who come to our city representing

MEMORIAL

REV. BARTOW BEE RAMAGE
Rector of St. Peter's—Gulfport, Mississippi

IT IS with profound sorrow we report the death of our beloved rector, the Rev. Bartow Bee Ramage, which occurred suddenly in the late afternoon of Friday, September 30th. He came to us in January, 1925, and in the short time he was permitted to be with us, the parish prospered and grew.

He was a man of high ideals and strong convictions upon all matters connected with the teachings of the Church, and he never permitted himself to trifle with his conscience. His loyalty and devotion to the Church were among his most prominent characteristics. He was what someone has called a Prayer Book Churchman, constantly urging his flock to observe and do whatsoever that guide required of them.

The new and well-equipped Parish House, enlarged Church, and various memorials placed therein, stand as a monument to his faith and zeal, and the love of his people.

He was born of French and Scotch-Irish parents in Newberry, South Carolina, August 8, 1860; was educated in the private schools and academies of his native town, where he graduated before his twentieth year. His university training was obtained at Johns Hopkins, and later at Harvard, where he graduated with the degree of A. B. in the class of 1884, taught in a private school in Connecticut for one year; for a while did newspaper work in Salem, Massachusetts, afterwards became the editor of the Melrose Journal, published in a suburb of Boston; entered Columbia Law School; admitted to the bar in the city of New York in 1899, went to Nashville, Tennessee, to practice his profession; abandoned the law and studied for Holy Orders, was ordained to the diaconate by Bishop Quintard of Tennessee in 1891, advanced to the Priesthood in 1892.

His first clerical duty was as Deacon in Charge of St. Peter's Parish, Nashville, Tenn., for one year, afterwards its Rector until 1894, when he went to Murfreesboro, Tenn. In 1897 he became Rector of St. Andrew's Church, Fort Worth, Texas, where he remained until 1916, when he was called to St. Luke's Church, Memphis, Tenn., from which charge he resigned in 1923 on account of failing health, coming to the Gulf Coast to recuperate. Having regained his health, he again took up active work.

While in the Holy Ministry, he built eight Churches and Parish Houses and brought three men into the ministry of the Church. He represented the Diocese of Dallas at six consecutive General Conventions.

He was married in 1894 to Miss Ethel Purvis of Nashville, Tenn., who with two daughters, Miss Ethel, a student at Columbia University, and Miss Sarah Thorpe, a student at Sophie Newcomb College, survive him.

His body was borne to the Parish Church at six o'clock Saturday evening, where it remained until a celebration of Holy Communion Sunday morning at nine-thirty, the celebrant being the Rev. E. A. De Miller, at which service more than one hundred of his sorrowing parishioners made their Communion. The body was then taken to Memphis, Tenn., where the burial service was held from St. Luke's Church, his Bishop, the Right Rev. Theodore D. Bratton, officiating, assisted by the clergy of the city. He was laid to rest in Elmwood cemetery.

Eternal rest grant him, O Lord, and let light perpetual shine upon him.

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily: 7:30 and 10 A. M. and 5:00 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m., 4 p. m.
Daily, 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursday, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11 A. M., and 8 P. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursday, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 7, 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., Fri., and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30 and 11:00 A. M., 5:00, 6:15 and 8:00 P. M.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp and Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

6 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country. its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — In a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

great groups of the people of America, but when it comes to the American Federation of Labor we have represented that group in which possibly the very Founder of our church would find his home if he were on the earth today.

"The church could wish that there were no class struggle in the world, but that all men were willing frankly and gladly to welcome the fact of brotherhood. Unhappily, there is class distinction and the church cannot close her eyes to that fact. Sometimes it is emphasized and deepened by the labor movement. Sometimes it is emphasized and deepened by the opponents of the labor movement. This is to be regretted. All men are in reality brothers and are dependent one on the other. Our objective should be the elimination of differences that are artificial and wrong, and the building up of the spirit of human solidarity."

* * *

President Ogilby of Trinity College is giving his support to an effort being made to raise a couple of million dollars for work among the lebers of the Philippines. Dr. Ogilby was formerly in charge of the Church school for boys in the Philippines.

Clerical Changes

ASHE-EVEREST, Rev. W., priest in charge of St. Luke's, Seattle, Washington, has taken up his duties as rector of St. Clement's, Honolulu.

BENNETT, Rev. A. Vincent, assistant at Holy Trinity, Philadelphia, has accepted a call to the rectorship of Christ Church, Fitchburg, Mass.

BROWN, Rev. Robert J., Jr., curate of the Epiphany, New York City, has accepted a call to the rectorship of Calvary, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BROWNLEE, Rev. J. T., assistant at Calvary, Germantown, Pa., has accepted a call to be the rector of St. George's, Olyphant, Pa.

CABOT, Rev. John H., formerly on the staff of the Advent, Boston, has taken up his duties as rector of St. Peter's, Weston, Mass.

DUE, Rev. Paul, resigns charge of Emanuel mission, Winchester, Ky., to take charge of missions at Georgetown and Nicholarville, Ky.

FENTON, Rev. A. K., curate of St. John's, Pittsburgh, Pa., has accepted an appointment as assistant at St. Peter's, Philadelphia.

GREENWOOD, Rev. Wilfrid L., instituted rector of Grace, Windsor, Conn., on Sunday last.

GUERRY, Rev. Sumner, former missionary in China, has accepted an appointment as assistant at St. John's, Roanoke, Va.

HOUGHTON, Rev. F. Percy, resigns as rector of Epiphany, Glenburn, Pa., to accept a call to St. John's, Lancaster, Pa.

LEWIS, Rev. H. J., assistant at St. Mark's Washington, D. C., has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. Mark's, Kinston, N. C.

MAGRUDER, Rev. James M., of Oxley Hall, Annapolis, Maryland, is to be locum tenens for six months at Christ Church, Lexington, Ky., during the absence of Dean Massie, who is ill.

NICHOLS, Rev. W. A., formerly the religious editor of several New York daily papers, has accepted a call to the rectorship of the Ascension, Brooklyn, New York.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, jurnalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
College Preparatory and General Courses
MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:
DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

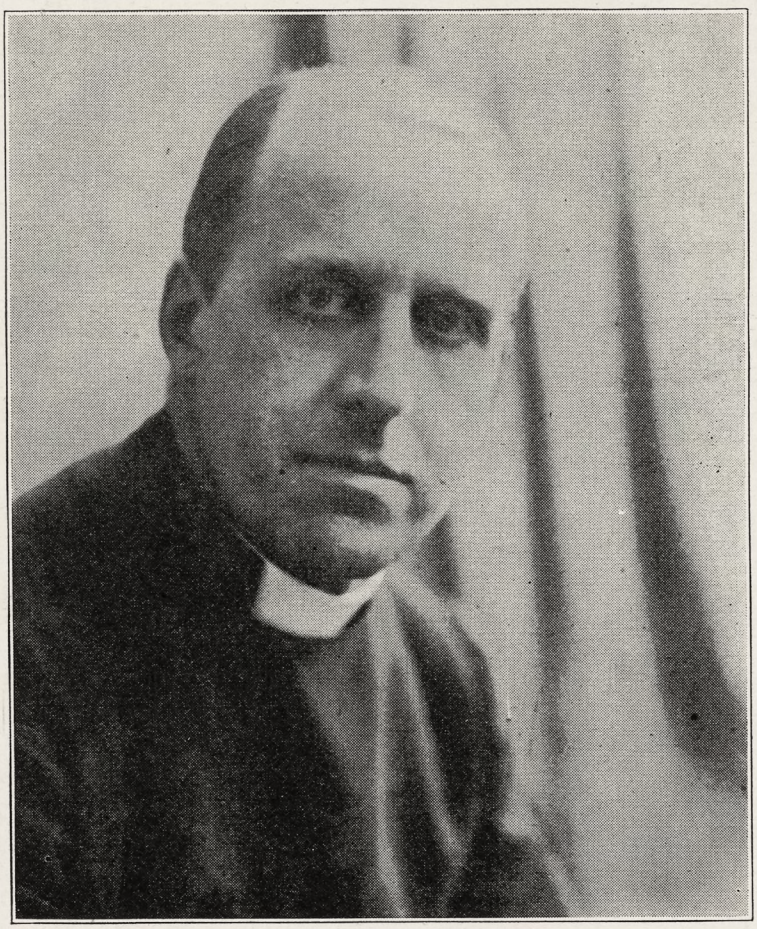
Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Every Member Canvass—Nov. 20 to Dec. 4, 1927

What Kind of a Church Would My Church Be If Every Member Were Just Like Me ?

Pray—Work—Give

That Christ's Kingdom may come,
and His will be done,
on earth as it is in Heaven



THE NATIONAL COUNCIL

281 Fourth Avenue New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, NOVEMBER 10, 1927

REV. CYRIL HUDSON

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.
314 East 34th St New York
worker in glass mosaic church decoration

The Taylor Bell Foundry
LOUGHBOROUGH, ENGLAND
The World's Leading Bellfounders
CHURCH BELLS
SINGLY OR IN PEALS
CHIMES OR CARILLONS
AUTOMATIC OPERATION
Unequalled for Musical Qualities
Yale University — Birmingham, Ala.
Andover — Gloucester
Morristown — Cranbrook, Mich.
Harvard University
Germantown, Etc., Etc.
INQUIRIES SOLICITED

DEAGAN
Tubular Bell
Tower Chimes
The one most beautiful form of memorial
Standard Sets, $6000 up
J. C. DEAGAN, Inc.
161 Deagan Building, Chicago
Played Direct From Organ Console

For "Daylight Projection"
of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use
BALOPTICONS
There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.
Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 687 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.
Church Bells — Peals
McShane Bell Foundry Co.
Baltimore, Md

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:
EXETER
and 4 & 5 Duncannon St:
Charing Cross LONDON
ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS
in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal and
Stained Glass

Vestments
For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring
Inquiries given prompt attention
J. M. HALL, Inc.
174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403)
(Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y

Moller Pipe Organs
The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.
M. P. MOLLER
Hagerstown, Maryland

MENEELY BELL CO.
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.), Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS
FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.
1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

The Ellwood Potts Studios
5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.
MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS
If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

Giannini & Hilgart
Stained Glass
English Artists
550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

R. GEISSLER, INC.
56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Windows of Merit
Beautiful Groupings
Gorgeous Combinations of Color
Well executed by
The Von Gerichten Studios
Columbus, Ohio New York City

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.
— Office and Studio —
221-223 E. Fulton St. — Columbus, Ohio.
DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.
— Photos, Designs and Estimates upon Application —
ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Memorial Windows
Monuments and Church Furnishings
IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR
CHARLES F. HOGEMAN
45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts.
NEW YORK
460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE N

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 12 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

WHY THE CHURCH TEACHES

4. The Reception of Sacraments

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

IN THE Nicene Creed we say, "I believe in the Holy Ghost who is the Lord, and Giver of Life."

Certainly life has no human origin. Its beginnings ante-date man. Even if man could succeed in producing life in a laboratory this would not account for the emergence of life from a cooling globe.

So there has been a steady development of vegetable, animal and human life, each apparently emerging from the lower life which preceded it. The psalmist expresses the idea when he says, "It was He that took me out of the horrible pit, out of the mire and clay, and set my feet upon a rock and ordered my goings."

It would seem as though he had looked back upon a world of muck inhabited by reptiles and visualized the creative act which accounts for man's presence on the earth. Certainly the crocodiles did not plan the human race; certainly the mud did not shape itself into human form. "It is He that hath made us and not we ourselves."

Such a belief is not only credible, it is the only credible assumption which man can make. Moreover, there are certain definite principles which govern all life.

First, there is the law of birth. And back of each species of life we must assume a virgin birth. The law of sex operates only after life begins. Life could not have originated in a sex relationship.

The Christ treated the Kingdom of Heaven as a new species of life, endowed with qualities which were lacking or undeveloped in the life of the natural man. "The natural man cannot receive the Kingdom of God for it is foolishness unto him."

To understand this statement of St. Paul consider your hunting dog. He has affection, intelligence, initiative. In some ways he is more companionable than many of your neighbors. When you go ahunting you and he speak a common language and have a perfectly sympathetic understanding. But when you come back to your office and he, lying at your feet, sees you writing a letter, it is foolishness unto him. For him to understand that would require something more than an education. It would require a new birth.

So Christ inaugurated His Kingdom by the statement of a primary law, "Verily, verily I say unto you, except a man be born of water and the spirit he cannot enter the Kingdom of Heaven." "That which is born of the flesh is flesh and that which is born of the spirit is spirit."

The second law of life is nourishment. That which is born cannot endure except it be nourished by its proper food. So Christ gave the second law of the Kingdom; "Verily, verily I say unto you, except a man eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His blood he has no life in him." A startling statement unless you are familiar with the babe feeding at his mother's breast.

Thus Christ began His Kingdom with the two great sacraments, that of birth and that of nourishment, Holy Baptism and the Holy Communion, and the historic Church has never wavered in its interpretation of these sacraments. Every branch of the Church from the beginning of the Christian era has asserted that Holy Baptism is the sacrament of birth and the Holy Communion is the sacrament of nourishment in the Christian life.

It is just that which the Church has always witnessed, that is, that the Christian religion is something different from "the law" which was an external force; and from a philosophy which is an internal theory. Essentially it is a "life" in Christ's Body which is the Church.

Until you apprehend the sacramental principle of grace you cannot understand the peculiar genius of the Church. It is contained in the sentence of St. John: "The law came by Moses but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ."

The word "grace" means a definite reality in the vital power of Jesus Christ communicated to his disciples in and through the sacraments which He instituted.

What is the principle of sacramental grace?

First, that man is seeking three things which he cannot bestow upon himself: the forgiveness of sins, the resurrection of the body and eternal life.

Second, that matter is not evil but God's instrument of conveying life. The fact that the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us should establish forever in the mind of the Christian that matter is a sacred thing in its proper use.

Third, that God has elected to convey life to man through the sacramental principle of Holy Matrimony and the finest souls have a material kinship with their parents.

So God has elected to use the body of Christ as the instrument of divine grace and through that body, by means of the sacraments, to establish a vital relationship with those whom He has called to be His disciples.

Why does the Church insist upon the receiving of sacraments?

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

First, because Christ instituted them in a very clear and definite way.

Second, because all life is sacramental in its origin and growth.

Third, because Christ commanded His disciples to be baptised and to receive the Eucharist as the conditions of discipleship. "If we love Him we certainly will keep His commandments."

Fourth, because to those who have once accepted the sacramental principle and practiced it there is a satisfaction which comes in no other way, but which is manifestly unknown to those who have rejected it.

The sacramental principle of divine grace is this:

We are living creatures endowed by God with certain limited powers. He has called us to a still higher life which He has embodied in the Christ from whose body grace flowed to those who touched Him. Christ identified His Church with Himself and endowed the Church with the gift of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost; this gift the Apostles bestowed by the laying on of hands to those who were to succeed them. This gift of the Holy Ghost has never been withdrawn from His Church.

It is true that individuals outside of the Church may be moved by the Holy Spirit to seek righteousness but that is not the same thing as the gift of the Holy Spirit to bestow and to nourish eternal life, which is the gift of God.

So we use the elements that Christ commanded; we invoke the Holy Spirit whom Christ bestowed; and we receive the gifts which Christ attached to the operation of the Holy Spirit in His Church. This makes religion an entirely different kind of thing from philosophy. This makes the Church an entirely different kind of thing from a service club. This makes eternal life something entirely different from a Mohammedan's paradise.

Religion becomes a biological relationship. The Church becomes the household of faith and life. The sacraments become the outward and visible way in which the life of Christ is imparted to those who seek Him through the sacraments in penitence and faith.

It is through the sacraments of Christ that I hope to obtain the forgiveness of sin, the resurrection of the body and the life everlasting. And I have no more faith in human theories of how to bring about this transition than I would have in a system of pedagogy which would advertise that hunting dogs could become newspaper correspondents by a process of canine uplift.

Of course the great majority think otherwise but I cannot submit the fundamental teaching of Christ and His Church to a referendum, for I have never felt that a million men knew much more about such things than a single man and not near as much about it as Christ revealed to the Church. I know the objection that is raised to this assertion of the sacramental principle. Men say that it is mechanical, whereas those who believe in it and practice it know that it is not.

Because you have a house, a dinner table and an automobile you are not necessarily an automaton. Christ did not stop with insistence on the sacraments. He also asserted that "except ye become as little children" you would find no place in His Kingdom. There is the same necessity for spiritual adaptability in the Church as these objectors assert is to be found out of it.

I am sixty years old. I do not get the same reaction from an emotional appeal that I did forty years ago I am far more skeptical about the conclusions of philosophy and scientific theories than I was twenty years ago. But I find a far greater peace and joy in my Father's house at the Blessed Sacrament than I ever derived from these other sources.

One does not acquire the graces of a saint because he exchanges his home for a boarding house, even though there are problems in the home which do not vex him in a boarding house

It is the peculiarity of old men that they love the sound of a voice and the touch of a hand in a home more than they cherish the lack of perplexities in a high class hotel.

That is just what Christ has given us in the sacraments where the officiant, who has been made a priest by the touch of the hand, stands before the people and repeats the words of the Master to those who are content to love and wait for the glory that shall be revealed in Him.

On the Cover

THE REV. CYRIL HUDSON is an English clergyman who is this year on the faculty of the Berkeley Divinity School. In England Mr. Hudson has particularly interested himself in the Church Tutorial Classes movement, a plan for adult education, classes being organized in parishes under competent leaders. A similar work has been undertaken by the Berkeley Divinity School, largely under the direction of Mr. Hudson. He has already given a number of addresses in parishes in Connecticut on his special subject which is religious psychology. During the week of November 13th he is to be the noon-day preacher at Trinity Church, New York.

Let's Know

TRUCE OF GOD

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

THE anniversary of the end of the World War reminds one of a valiant effort made by the Church a thousand years ago to put a leash on war-making. In those days war was not an exceptional catastrophe but a matter of daily diet. Europe was peopled with a headstrong nobility which was engaged in a regular program of feuds. The medieval castles were fortresses and the nobles were in a perpetual state of warfare until no one's life was safe and travel became a perilous adventure.

The movement toward sanity began in France where the Church instituted a strong propaganda for peace. The nobles were called upon to make solemn agreement to abstain from battles with one another and the breaking of such resolutions was punishable with excommunication and interdict. Of course there were turbulent characters who paid no attention to such efforts and finally the archbishop of Bourges set in order a series of raids against peace-breakers. Men were placed under oath that they would wage implacable war against robbers, oppressors, and enemies of the Church's effort. It was a case of war against war.

The question finally came into the synods of the Church and definite regulations were officially promulgated. War, violence, and all demands of reparation were to be suspended during the penitential season of Advent and Lent. There were times when the peaceful period was extended throughout the summer months. Each week, from Wednesday night until Monday morning, all fighting was forbidden—in commemoration of the sacred days from the betrayal of our Lord until after His resurrection. Decrees were passed for the greater protection of non-military classes—the clergy, monks, nuns, and women—and still others for the benefit of the peasantry. It was decreed that shepherds and their flocks should be unmolested, olive trees should not be damaged, and agricultural tools should neither be destroyed nor carried off,

It was called the "Truce of God," and gradually spread from France into other parts of Europe. It became the custom for the nobles in a given district to bind themselves to such regulations and, more than that, to undertake the enforcement of them. Considering everything the plan worked wonderfully well and was a tremendous blessing for a century or two. Of course it was too much to expect that war-like instincts would be easily controlled but the Truce of God did much to divert pugnacious tendencies into the crusading channel toward the end of the eleventh century. And at the end of the crusades the nobility of Europe was so greatly reduced that return to the old feud system was simply impossible.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Don't let anyone tell you that the Church has been blind to the evils of warfare. The Truce of God is only one of many an effort to curb the ravages of human animosities without quenching the spirit of courage and adventure. The trouble is that such a large part of the world, being unchristian, has felt no provocation toward world-brotherhood. The answer is, of course, to spread the Gospel. Pacifists ought to be more of active missionaries and less of obstructionists to the modest efforts of the government to provide a reasonable military protection against those portions of the world where war is still believed to be a legitimate pastime.

PRAYER BOOK AS MYSTERY DRAMA

The Language of Symbols

By

IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

PART V

MANY times a handshake expresses sympathy when words are impotent. A flower, a gift, convey more meaning that set phrases of affection.

There are two parts to every gift; the object given, and the emotion conveyed. Thomas a Kempis says "He that is wise regardeth not so much the gift of the lover as the love of the giver.'" To a perfect gift there are two sacramental parts; the outward and visible sign, the rose, or book, or jewel, and the inward and spiritual grace, the affection of which they are the token. "Faith and works" equal "love and gifts." Faith without works is dead; love without tokens of it is dead also.

This same division is true of all things human; the thing and the spirit of the thing. It is true of mathematical propositions, of architecture, of electricity, of steam-engines, of books. There is the truth, and there is its embodiment: the design, and its application: the idea, and its fulfilment; the spirit, and the body: true God, and true Man.

This central philosophy is expressed in the cross and two candles. These candles proclaim the Sacramental Philosophy, that both Matter and Spirit are sacred, and that their sacredness is found in their union. Faith and Works; Matter and Spirit: human nature and divine nature—both holy.

We stand between two false philosophies: materialism, which says there is no spirit; and illusionism, which says there is no matter. Christian Science, like the Hindu cults from which it sprang, says matter is a lie. Materialism says that spirit is a lie. The Sacramental philosophy proclaims that matter is the vehicle of spirit.

Older Than Christ

This philosophy runs through all our lives, all through our science, all through our religion. It is the philosophy of the balance and correspondence of Life and Body, of Electricity and Wire, of Steam and Engine, of Pure Science and Applied Science, of Knowing and Doing, of Faith and Works, of the Outward and Visible Sign and the Inward and Spiritual Grace.

This philosophy was not new with Christ. "The true light lighteth every man coming into the world." Long ago the Chinese sages taught it. The world, said they, is composed of a Balance; light and darkness, cold and heat, heaven and earth, good and evil, active and passive, male and female. Either one to excess is destructive of life. In their balance all things consist.

Aristotle held this philosophy when he taught "Nothing to excess" "the golden mean."

But if the philosophy is not new with Christ, it receives its full explanation in him; and the two burning candles, continually burning away and continually renewed, standing beside the impassive Cross, proclaim a philosophy that remains true while lives and nations fail and are replaced.

There is a sacramental significance in a candle. It is as near as we can come to showing the ultimate transformation of matter into spirit, the absorption of human into the divine, as in the Ascension of Christ. The flame transforms the heavy white body of the candle into impalpable and invisible gases. Even so the fire of faith will transform this corruption into incorruption, this natural body into a spiritual body.

Gospel of the Candles

The candle on the left of the altar (the right of one facing it) is known as the Epistle candle, because the Epistle in the Holy Eucharist is read on that side. The Epistle is always concerned with works. It tells something to be done. The Gospel for the day is concerned with Faith, teaching something to be believed. The two correspond in a beautiful way. Study through the Epistles and Gospels for the year and you will find a delicate balance, like the showing of a statue by concealed illumination from both sides.

Epistle teaching Works, Gospel teaching Faith, are symbolized then in these candles. But the Epistle candle is always lit first, then that of the Gospel. At the close of the service, the Gospel Candle is always extinguished first, then that of the Epistle. Why? Is this just a habit?

By no means. There is no slightest movement or order which occurs in this service, without its definite philosophy. This order of the lighting of the candles is based upon sound psychology. Christ said "He that doeth the will of my father shall know the doctrine." Doing comes first, then knowing.

Modern pedagogy teaches the same thing; learn by doing. Kindergarten begins to teach children by having them make things. Engineers learn their science by carrying a surveying chain. First works, then faith. And it is also true that works continue on after faith is dead, a habit of doing things persists after the reason for doing them has vanished. "First the natural, then the spiritual," says St. Paul.

Changing Prayer Book

What, then, of the carrying of the Prayer Book from the Epistle side to the Gospel? Well, it must get over in some way or another. But there is a significance attached to the carrying of the book by the server. As a matter of experience, the gospel is carried by laymen. Converts are attracted and brought from works to faith by the activity of the church members far more than by the preaching of the clergy.

Elijah and Moses stood one on either side of Jesus at the Transfiguration: Moses, giver of the Law, and Elijah, greatest of the Prophets. So Epistle, Gospel and Creed place us on the Mount of Transfiguration.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

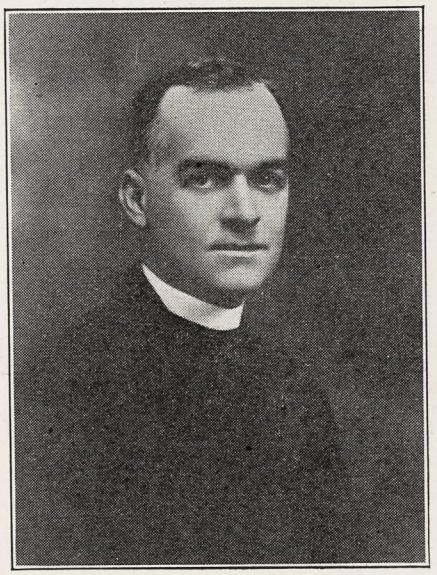
Between the two candles stands the Cross, like Jesus between Moses and Elijah. The cross is a diagram, a union of two sharply opposing beams. It symbolizes that Balance, that combination of opposing things, which gives us life.

Steel, without steam, is heavy, inert, useless. Steam without steel is energy instantly lost through diffusion. In the combination and adjustment of steam and steel is sustained, unlimited power. Copper wire without electricity is just so much copper wire. But with the electricity coursing through, it performs unbelievable wonders. Electricity without the wire is gone in an instant, wasted, lost.

In the cross, the upright beam lifts up, the cross beam weighs down. One signifies energy, life—the other signifies weight, direction, confinement within limits, which gives power.

Knowledge without doing is ineffectual and useless. Doing without knowing is at best mechanical druggery, at its worst dangerous, like a surgeon's scalpel in the hands of an ignorant man, or a loaded gun in the hands of a child.



In the combination of doing and knowing, of steel and steam, of pure science and applied science, of life and body, our existence consists.

The teaching of the two lights and the cross is that both these elements are sacred. Materialism is wrong; there is spirit. Illusionism is wrong; there is matter. Manichaeism is wrong. They are both inherently good. It is the balance, the combination, with matter subordinate to spirit but helping it, which makes life; and in the incarnation of God, the combination of God with flesh, they were united perfectly.

Union of opposites makes our life. Search the universe through and you will find no opposites further apart than God Almighty, the Creator, the life giver, on the one hand, and the dead body of a crucified criminal on the other.

Yet the teaching of the Cross is that these two were combined on Mount Calvary. The Almighty and Eternal God was linked indissolubly with the dead body of a crucified criminal.

From that union the rays of the cross reach out to the ends of time and the limits of space, uniting the uttermost limits of being and of thought with that central collision, that eternal and unshakable harmony of conflict, whereby God drew together and tied up the whole structure of creation in the death of Jesus Christ, which combined life and death in one.

BISHOP BARNWELL
Preaches in Cleveland

A Hero Passes

By Bishop N. S. Thomas

THE burial of the Rev. Samuel Hamill Wood from St. Matthias' Church, Philadelphia last week was attended by practically all of the clergy of the Convocation and many others, including Bishop Garland and Bishop Thomas. The Rev. George Toop, rector of the Church of the Holy Apostles, with which at one time Mr. Wood was connected, as vicar of the Chapel of the Holy Communion, was in charge of the services. Seldom does one see more depth of feeling than was expressed by the people in the church, most of whom were either parishioners of Mr. Wood at St. Matthias, or previously, at the Chapel of the Holy Communion. Two veterans of the World War stood at the head of the casket, which was covered with an American flag. A bugler from the American Legion sounded taps after the benediction, and the remains of the shepherd, friend, soldier and missionary were taken to Princeton, where he was born on June 24th, 1876, for cremation and burial.

One referring to Stowe's Clerical Directory would discover that Mr. Wood had graduated in 1912 from the General, had been ordered Deacon that year, and Priest the following year, by Bishop Grier, and then had gone to St. James' Church, Kemmerer, Wyoming, and that he spent two years in France prior to his becoming vicar of the Chapel of the Holy Communion. But the record does not tell one episode in Mr. Wood's life, which may be lost to his friends in the east worthy of remembrance.

The problem of the coal miners in Wyoming is as difficult a problem as elsewhere. No union is more closely organized and no union has given the country more concern. Many of the members of this union are communists and skeptics, though frequently a deep religious passion is discernible, but expressed in ways other than in the worship of God. I have never been able to make any inroads into the mining communities of Wyoming save in an unorganized camp in Cambria, where several miners and their families were devoted members of our Church. At a meeting of the clergy, held I think in 1916 or 1917, but at any rate before the Rev. James Mythan left our Church to identify himself with the Russian, the whole matter of religious endeavor amongst difficult social units was brought up for consideration. I remember well a stirring address on that occasion by Mr. Mythan, which impressed us all with a desire to do something more than the conventional thing in order to meet the challenge that the Church was parasitic and her ministers perfunctory in their services. It was generally agreed that if, by the relinquishment of our salaries and by supporting ourselves in some other way as best we could, so that we might minister to the Church without salary or other compensation, provided that were the stumbling block to any large number of people, we were willing to do it. That the endeavor might not be quixotic, it was thought well for the Bishop to put an advertisement in the Church papers, requesting some priest of the Church to come out to Wyoming and dig coal in some one of the coal mining camps for his own living, and to minister to his people without charge, with the understanding that if such a priest came, and his ministrations were successful, four or five other men would immediately follow suit, and if they were successful, every clergyman in the diocese, including the Bishop, was prepared to do the same thing. Three men responded, amongst them the Rev. Samuel Hamill Wood.

For one year Mr. Wood dug coal on one of the lower levels, supported himself entirely thereby, cooked his own meals and kept his own shack, studying nights after hard physical labor, to which he was not accustomed, and ministering all day Sundays and in the early evenings of each day, as shepherd of his flock. He endeared himself to the men, who listened to him gladly at the union meeting on Monday nights, and saw in him a natural leader, and followed him as such; but so far as I know none of them crossed the threshold of his church on Sunday morning.

Mr. Wood's failure to see response nearly broke his heart. After his leaving Hanna, I put him in another coal mining camp, at Kemmerer, under the usual tenure of a priest of the Church, but indifference amongst the miners so preyed upon him that he finally left the district, to return to the East.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

When I heard of Mr. Wood's sudden death, which occurred only two days after I had received a letter from him with reference to his new book, I found myself unable to escape the belief that the strenuous physical work in coal dust and in the dark by day, and in the high altitude, and in the dark by night, under the pressure of the darkness which comes from the hardness of the world, Mr. Wood may have developed what in college circles is known as the "athletic heart," and which may have been the occasion of his taking off. Whether so or not, I am convinced that another hero has passed over the border in the prime of life, having earned not only a good reward but having achieved the real purpose of life here on earth.

Books

Reviewed by Rev. Irvine Goddard

A MANUAL OF CHRISTIAN BELIEFS, Edwin Lewis, Ph. D. Scribners, $1.50.

THE FAITH BY WHICH WE LIVE, Bishop Fiske. Morehouse. $1.50, paper, 75 cents.

SECRETS OF EFFECTIVE LIVING, James Gordon Gilkey, D. D. Macmillan, $1.75.

THE FIRST STEPS IN THE PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION, Charles Harris, D. D. Morehouse, $1.50.

THE RELIGIOUS MIND, C. K. Mahoney, Ph. D. Macmillan, $2.00.

THE SUFFICIENCY OF JESUS, James Austin Richards. Doran, $2.00.

FOUNDATIONS OF FAITH, VOL. IV, Rev. W. E. Orchard, D. D. Doran, $1.75.

Of the making of books there is no end, and the reviewing of them sometimes is a weariness of the flesh. But here is a pile of books on kindred subjects which delighted the reviewer and we venture to say will exhilarate as well as illuminate the reader. In fact, the steady output of well-written and carefully thought out books which publishers are producing today, leaves the parson and the intelligent laymen without excuse for being uninformed or misinformed regarding the essentials of the Christian faith. There never was a time as fruitful as the present in the production of readable and convincingly written essays about the Christian religion. It is our privilege to view our religion from every angle. A faith tested by reason, a belief held in the full knowledge of the worst that can be said against it, is a precious possession in these days of advancing knowledge and discovery in every branch of human thought and activity. Each one of these books in its own way makes a decided contribution and stimulus to such a faith.

REV. A. R. MCKINSTRY
Parish Has an Anniversary

The discussion of Faith in small or large groups has been found exceedingly helpful and illuminating. For the intelligent direction of just such a group, "A Manual of Christian Beliefs" will be found highly suggestive. There is nothing dry or technical in this manual. The same may be said of Bishop Fiske's deservedly popular book, "The Faith by Which We Live," which has just been published in a new edition, with 250 questions added to the text.

"Foundations of the Faith" is more suitable to the study. It is the concluding volume of a series of four books devoted to the great themes of Christian Experience. This volume has to do with the "Last Things"—Purgatory, Heaven, Hell and kindred matters, all treated from the Catholic point of view in Dr. Orchard's usual trenchant style.

The most vital thing about religion is that it makes a difference for life. "Secrets of Effective Living" comes to close grips and in a decidedly practical helpful way, with some of the problems that daily vex the soul. In this charmingly written book we find modern liberalism at its best.

We turn from the modernist and find in the "First Steps in the Philosophy of Religion" an Anglo-Catholic's study of the Faith in its relation to modern thought and modern life. We are happily surprised to find nothing obscurantist nor frigidly doctrinaire in any of the pages. Its main theme, the Transcendence of God, is presented in a form which can be assimilated without violence to the presuppositions of our modern scientific approach to the problem of truth.

But what about our Religious Experience? We would like to understand something of those phases of human experience that have to do with religion. Here is a book that is probably one of the most fascinating psychological studies of religious experience that has appeared since James' Varieties of Religious Experience. It is called "The Religious Mind" and is written by a master hand. Fair-minded in its criticisms of prevalent psychological theories, one cannot but be impressed by the writer's sanity and clarity of judgment. We are compelled to agree with him that the Religious Mind is a mind that functions with regard to a set of values considered supreme and in vital religion objectively real.

We see this Religious Mind in action when we begin to read "The Sufficiency of Jesus." This is a volume of sermons and addresses of exceptional merit—serious thoughtfulness, a candid facing of the facts of life, a courageous optimism, a devout loyalty to the Master, a modernity of approach and attack, are some of the distinguishing characteristics of these sermons.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

A little girl was teaching her dolls a Sunday school lesson. "Children," she said, "you know God made Adam and he was lonely, so God put him to sleep and took out his brains and made a fine lady."

* * *

A little girl was put in an upper berth of a Pullman sleeping-car for the first time. She kept crying till her mother told her not to be afraid, because God would watch over her. "Mother, you there?" she cried. "Yes." "Father, you there?" "Yes." A fellow passenger lost all patience at this point and shouted: "We're all here! Your father and mother and brothers and sisters and aunts and uncles and cousins. All here; now go to sleep." There was a pause; then, very softly: "Mamma!" "Well?" "Was that God?"

* * *

An old Southern planter was discussing the hereafter with one of the colored servants. "Sam," he said, "if you die first, I want you to come back and tell me what it's like over there. If I die first, I'll come back and tell you what it's like."

"Dat suits me, Massa," replied the old negro, "but if you dies first, Ah wants you to promise me dat you'll come back in de daytime."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

FACTS ON RUMPUS AT ST. PAUL'S

Canon Bullock-Webster's Protest

Edited by

A. MANBY LLOYD

THERE are headlines galore to write about. The channel-swim hoax; R. U. R. and the Mechanical Man; will the Archbishop (Cantaur) resign; uproad over Dick Sheppard's book; Shaw backs Mussolini. . . . But they are all put in the shade by Canon Bullock-Webster's protest at St. Paul's Cathedral.

Prayer Book revision squabbles left us cold. Let Bishop Henson shake his fist at his brother of Norwich, and we only smiled. Let even Bishop Barnes dilate on the family-tree of "his cousin the ape," and we might yawn. But when the same eminent man of science bluntly tells the whole Catholic world that they are idolaters, then the fat is in the fire. Romans and Anglicans, both, have not been slow in taking up the challenge, but it is only with the latter that we are concerned.

It is twenty years and more since a similar scene was enacted in St. Paul's. To be exact, it was in 1904 that J. A. Kensit disturbed an ordination service, and he was prosecuted for "brawling."

"All we did," said Canon Bullock-Webster, "was perfectly dignified. I bowed to the altar, then to the Dean, and then I bowed to the Bishop, because as Bishop he is worthy of our regard, though in this particular case we consider he merits censure. That our views are shared is shown by the number of people who followed me out. I should think there must have been 600. Three hundred went with me to St. Michael Royal, where we conducted a Reparation Mass. In leaving St. Paul's as we did in the middle of Mass we would in ordinary circumstances be doing wrong, but in this case we justify our action inasmuch as we went to Mass elsewhere.

"I want it to be clearly understood," said the Canon, "that our protest is solely in connection with Dr. Barnes' utterances in regard to the Blessed Sacrament, and has nothing to do with the question of evolution. That is a scientific matter, and if science proves it to be correct, then we will accept it. By his recent utterances regarding the Blessed Sacrament at the altar Dr. Barnes has been guilty of gross profanity, and has thrown scorn on the most treasured beliefs and convictions of thousands of Christian believers.

"Dr. Barnes' primary duty as bishop is to guard and uphold the Catholic faith and the Catholic sacraments at all costs, instead of which he holds them up to contempt and takes constant occasion to proclaim this contempt and to accuse those who love, venerate, and use the Blessed Sacrament of the altar of believing and practising magic. It is difficult to find words to express the offensiveness of such a charge. Dr. Inge, by inviting Bishop Barnes to preach at St. Paul's, and thus deliberately to offer him an opportunity to renew his attacks on our Holy Faith, has forfeited the confidence and regard of thousands of loyal and devoted Churchmen and Churchwomen, and has, in fact, rendered himself a 'partner in the crime.'

"While, possibly, technically my action today was brawling, there are occasions," added the Canon, "when public protests in church are not only justifiable, but even necessary and commendable. For example, had Dr. Barnes last week uttered in a public pulpit disparaging and disloyal words regarding our sovereign, King George, every citizen in London, from the Lord Mayor downwards, would have resented them keenly, and certainly would have been filled with indignation at the appearance of Dr. Barnes on the next Sunday in the cathedral pulpit. Strong representations would certainly have been addressed to the Dean, and had he ignored these it cannoted be doubted that protests would have been made against his presence. The feelings of Churchmen are precisely the same as when Jesus Christ, the King of Kings, is dishonored and His holy gifts scorned and derided.

"Do I intend renewing my protest? That depends upon the laymen," replied the Canon, turning to his wardens. Thereupon one of them said, "We hope this is but a beginning. But nothing further is definitely settled yet."

* * *

Before this affair, the Primate had decided (so I hear on the strict Q.-T.) to delay his resignation. Perhaps he agrees with Dick Sheppard to a certain extent, and sees no fitting successor. He is troubled with lumbago and sometimes does much business reclining on a sofa at Lambeth Palace. But his brain is working as keenly as that of the youngest bishop, and though he is 78, he seldom fails to keep an engagement.

His tact and adroitness are needed in the Church Assembly as well as in the House of Lords. Another Lambeth Conference is due in 1930. The first met in 1867, and he has attended every one that has since met. As Archbishop he presided over the last two, and he has a sporting chance of creating a record.

The lure of ecclesiastical problems seems to keep Dr. Davidson at Lambeth, and says my informant, so long as he is there, disestablishment will not be pushed by the Anglo-Catholics.

* * *

The Rev. "Dick" Sheppard, in a new book, "The Impatience of a Parson," gives the bishops a good whack all round. There is not (he says), a bishop on the bench strong enough and original or revolutionary enough, to fill the See of Canterbury, which must shortly become vacant. Until the breakdown in his health from which he is now recovering, he was not only vicar of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, but, through the wireless services broadcast from there, the spiritual leader of a vast congregation.

He now appears as an outspoken and fearless critic of the Institutional Christianity of today.

"If those set over me," he says, "are of the opinion that my conclusions are not consistent with the exercise of a ministry within the Church of England, I should feel obliged, however sorrowfully, to bow to their ruling. I should never leave the Church of my own volition, since I love it terribly."

But "no man can follow two masters, and there are times when it is impossible to be loyal to Christ and the Church. . . . Christianity badly needs rash men who will not . . . fear the results of stirring up wasps' nests. . . .

"Is it conceivable that Christ could be orthodox within any church today, or that He could sit at our ecclesiastical gatherings and enter with sympathy into most of the problems which we so love to debate? I fear that if Our Lord were to come again . . . it is doubtful who would be most surprised: He at our values or we at His. . . . It is difficult to believe that Our Lord ever had any desire to authorize a hierachy of men to define and curtail the boundaries of His religion, to lord it over their brother men or hedge the Father-God around with rules, regulations and traditions which He never mentioned and most of which He might possibly repudiate with sorrow, if not with scorn."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

IT WOULD be very nice if folks who read these jottings would put to paper the simple facts about interesting and unusual happenings in their parishes and mail them to me at 416 Lafayette Street, New York. They need not be written in printable style; after all there must be something left for me to do.

It is our plan to picture here the life of the Church, which should make this end of the paper vital and entertaining. But too often the material given me to work on consists of accounts of dedications of candle sticks and trite remarks by solemn rectors which, taken out of their settings, whether the beauty of a service or the smoke of a dinner, always strike me as rather poor copy. Certain it is that the news we report would hardly arouse the non-churchgoer to active interest. Yet I am sure there are events which, if reported decently, would make him say upon reading: "There is a group of wide-awake, companionable folks whom I want to know." I am always more interested in reporting a ball game than I am the remarks of a bishop on the needs of his diocese; a bishop sliding home from third to win the game at the clergy conference is more important than his remarks at the conference an hour later. We can take those remarks for granted, whereas his slide is a real event.

* * *

I am not quite sure now but I think it was the story of how a missionary established himself in his community that won me to the ministry. He was a little shrimp—barely 105 pounds, bedside. He was placed in charge of the Red Dragon, a club maintained by the Church at Cordova, Alaska. His first night was trying, for the bully of a group of huskies set out to show up this pink-cheeked sky pilot. The parson took it good naturedly for a bit, and then, seeing that action was called for, cleared a space in the middle of the room and invited the bully, 180 pounds net, to take off his coat. Then ten rounds of three minutes each, without Queensbury rules. What an awful drubbing that parson got; a smashed nose, and blackened eyes. But he came up smiling with the bell for each round. The next three or four days he nursed his bruises in a hospital but the fact that this 105 pound parson went through without a whimper and took his beating like a sportsman so endeared him with the natives that they wanted him for their next mayor. He is still there, and doing a magnificent piece of work. Now that is news, isn't it?

I am not advocating ten round prize fights; in any case not without well padded gloves. There is already a shortage of clergy, we are told, and the ranks should not be depleted in that way. But there must be events happening in the Church each week, even if less romantic, which if carefully sandwiched in between the items on teas, dedications and speeches, would give a glimmer of color to these gray columns.

* * *

Three hundred thousand dollars in the form of four gifts of $75,000 each has been received for the construction of the four massive central piers of Washington Cathedral. Indiana limestone is being used in the construction and each pier, being 17 feet in diameter and 63 feet high, will contain 1,091 cubic feet of stone. These piers will support the central tower, which because of the cathedral's location on Mount Saint Alban, the highest ground in the capital city, will rise 107 feet higher above the Potomac than the Washington Monument. The cathedral authorities are endeavoring to complete sufficient portions of the edifice to provide an auditorium capable of seating 3,000 persons for the General Convention, to meet next October.

* * *

November 13-20 marks the culmination of one hundred years of Christian life and activity of St. Paul's, Albany, New York. Among the distinguished guests and preachers will be Bishop Murray, Bishop Reese of Southern Ohio, the Rev. Roelif H. Brooks, rector of St. Thomas's, New York, a former rector, and Bishops Nelson and Oldham. At the conclusion of the centennial celebration the members of the parish will turn over to the trustees a fund of $100,000 to be added to the endowment. The Rev. Arthur R. McKinstry, formerly of the National Council, is rector of the parish.

* * *

Three men were ordained to the priesthood at St. Luke's, Scranton, Pa., on October 29th, Rev. Paul S. Oliver, headmaster of a boys' school at Mohican Lake, N. Y.; Rev. George L. Gramba, curate at St. Stephen's, Washington, D. C., and Rev. Gordon Jones, curate at St. Stephen's, Jersey City, N. J.

* * *

Here are a few high spots from a very personal account of the Lausanne Conference contained in a letter which Mrs. Robert Gregory of Chicago wrote to her family while she was in the midst of the proceedings: "We were able to secure good seats in the gallery of the Senate room of the Palais and I heard pretty well. Fortunately, all the formal addresses are printed beforehand and released that day. All proceedings are translated into English, French and German. There are representatives of seventy National churches actually in attendance although eighty-seven expected to attend. One looked down on the long hair and curious hats of the Orthodox delegates; the smart business clothes of some American laymen; the purple cassock of the Bishop of Dornakel who is the Indian head of an Anglican Church in South India which is converting them by the thousands; the English Bishops of Bombay and other places in apron and gaiters, and the frock coats of most of the Continental pastors. There were some colored delegates and a few Japanese and Chinese.

"From all the delegates I have met I hear of the frankness of the papers, but also of the courtesy, tolerance and good will shown by all. As you know this conference is not 'legislative,' only seeking ultimate unity through knowledge of each other's position. Dr. Hughes' speech was marvelous, reminding us that the sacrament of the Holy Communion should be the center of unity, not discord—'it is the Lord's table, not ours.' I was glad to learn on Saturday that everyone in the Conference was invited to join in the Communion Service at the Cathedral which is under the Swiss Reformed Church. The service was, of course, in the nave; facing the high pulpit were the seats reserved for the delegates and below was a covered table on which was a Cross and a large open Bible, certainly our points of unity. In the distant and raised chancel were only two tables, covered with a white linen cloth, and on each the bread in the center and two chalices of a very wide and rather shallow form. It was all very simple and yet so full of meaning, and as the responses in different tongues and the hymns also were given so heartily, one felt that the desire for Christian unity and brotherly love was in all hearts.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

"This 'diary letter' would not be complete unless I told of the hearty and most interesting missionary service in the evening. The addresses by the Bishop of Dornakal and Dr. Timothy Tingfang Sen were not of the usual type but were written to show the hindrance our divisions at home are in the field of Christian endeavor; also that the new spirit of National Unity both in India and China is striving to achieve a national church founded on the essential unity of the Christian belief in God and centered on the teachings of Jesus Christ. They both frankly said that they 'were not interested in the theological differences of the sixth or the sixteenth centuries.' I came away with a new feeling of the possibility of unity, yet with the greatest tolerance for diversity and a working plan for my own life in studying and applying the very words of Jesus Christ."

* * *

Mrs. Mart Gary Smith, who is the wife of the Rev. Mart Gary Smith, rector at Danville, Illinois, has sent out a request for another job for her husband. "A clergyman with a child and a wife has to have a regular salary to live and be honest. I love the Church. I know she means to be just; but sometimes the injustice is cruel. I can't believe God calls on any one man to always do the Garbage Can work. God is accused of many things, but He is a just God. May I say, speaking the truth from my heart, I know scores and scores of the Clergy who are just drifting, happily drifting; but here is a man wanting a man's size job—a task adequate for the best that is in him. Is there no way of investigating thoroughly and proving a man's real worth and using his ability to the limit? Is there no way of getting in touch with a Bishop or Vestry who is seeking good timber?"

The leaflet goes on to set forth the accomplishments of her husband in his present parish—"No one would recognize it for the same place." And done on a salary of but $3,500 a year. The leaflet does not state what salary must be paid to secure the services of this man "of brawn, brain, education, consecration, zeal, burning within to do the Master's Work." A picture of the Rev. Mart Gary Smith comes with this touching appeal.

* * *

Bishop Barnwell of Idaho was the speaker at the dinner of Emmanuel Church, Cleveland, on November 3rd. The Rev. Oliver Dryer, general secretary of the International Fellowship of Reconciliation was the speaker at the same church on October 30th in the morning, while Bishop White of Springfield, Illinois, preached in the evening.

* * *

Church School Institute was held in Christ Church, Savannah, Ga., October 17-21. Registration, 58, not including faculty and a few listeners.

* * *

Here is news from Nebraska: the general missionary, Rev. George L. Freebern, visited St. John's Mission Chapel on the Ponca Reservation on the 18th of October, held service at which eight infants were baptised, then spread a feast on the ground for the whole company, distributed packages of tobacco, and entered upon a solemn pow-wow. The principal outcome was the adopting of Dean Freebern as a member of the tribe, receiving the Indian name Un-pan-jin-ga, which means "Little Elk."

* * *

Choirs representing five national groups have been organized into a Church Choral Society at St. John's, Detroit, and are planning a season of national programs which will be closed next spring with a musical festival service.

The Society will include an American group, composed of the male and mixed choirs of St. John's Church, a Negro group, composed of the choir of St. Matthew's Church, and the choirs of the Armenian, Russian and Bulgarian congregations which meet in St. John's.

* * *

Three stormy nights did not prevent large crowds at a parochial mission held last week at St. Stephen's, Plainfield, N. J., conducted by the Rev. Frank M. Sherlock of Elizabeth.

* * *

The colored population of Detroit, 100,000 strong, is represented in the diocese by St. Matthew's parish and the missions of St. Augustine and St. Cyprian. Last Sunday Bishop Page officially opened a new parish house costing $85,000 for St. Matthew's. The new building contains every modern convenience for the week-day needs of the parish, as well as commodious living quarters for the rector, the Rev. E. W. Daniel. It is in striking contrast to the shabby basement room which for nearly half a century has housed all the many social activities and a Church School of several hundred. In a service of dedication preceding a parish banquet, Bishop Page spoke of the large gifts of white churchmen towards

WINSTON-INTERNATIONAL
RED LETTER BIBLES
SELF-PRONOUNCING
BIBLES and TESTAMENTS that EMPHASIZE CHRIST
All the Prophetic Types and Prophecies in Old Testament and Words of Christ in New Testament are Printed in Red.
Send for Illustrated Catalog
THE JOHN C. WINSTON CO., Publishers
American Bible Headquarters
456 WINSTON BUILDING PHILADELPHIA

START RIGHT
— When You Raise Money

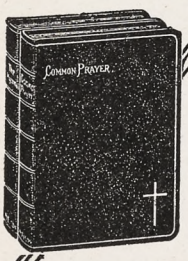
Preliminary plans are never more important than in a money-raising effort. The first announcement is of prime importance.

Every church should consult a firm like Hedrick, Marts & Lundy before launching an important campaign. Start right—and results are more certain.



Over $200,000,000 has been raised for churches and similar institutions in recent years by members of this firm and associates.

"Financing Philanthropy," quarterly paper on finance, free on request.

HEDRICK, MARTS & LUNDY, Inc.

Member Joint Board of Campaign Counsel and Planning.

527 Fifth Ave. New York

NELSON PRAYER BOOK AND THE NEW HYMNAL

Possess this beautiful new edition of the Prayer Book: use it in your devotion: enjoy its clear, readable type, its fine paper. This Prayer Book is published under certificate of approval from the custodian of the Standard Prayer Book.

Increase the joy of the service by the use of this beautiful new hymnal—the last word in satisfying book construction. The hymnal is authorized and approved for use by the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America.

Printed on fine white paper and thin India paper, they may be purchased singly or in combination. Prices 50 cents to $22.50. For sale by all dealers.
THOMAS NELSON & SONS 383-385 P Fourth Ave., New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

the new hall as a gesture of goodwill, and a contribution to an increasingly serious national problem. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford and a number of the clergy of the diocese were present at the opening ceremonies.

* * *

A service of commemoration and thanksgiving marking the 100th anniversary of the birth of Rev. Morgan Dix, rector of Trinity, New York from 1862 to 1908 was held at Trinity Church on the 6th. Bishop Manning preached.

* * *

Now here is something: maybe you will recall a paragraph of a few weeks ago in which I came forward boldly with the suggestion that the four Church Colleges of the north band themselves together into a football conference and have games together each fall for a championship. It struck me as having exciting possibilities. It would also put the Church colleges on the sport pages of the big dailies who are always interested in championships of every sort. Now here comes a letter from the president of Hobart, the Rev. Murray Bartlett, informing me that a game has been arranged for October 20, 1928, between Kenyon and Hobart, to be played in Geneva. The two colleges are about the same size and have very similar college spirit and athletic systems. The game therefore ought to arouse considerable interest among Church people and also among football enthusiasts who will have the opportunity of seeing two institutions with enviable football records in an intersectional contest, representing the game as it is played in the east and the middle west. Dr. Bartlett writes: "Hobart has tried to encourage, as far as possible, athletic relations between the Church colleges. In the past we played with St. Stephen's and home and home games with Trinity. Negotiations have been carried on with Kenyon for some time and as home and home games seem to be impossible, Hobart has invited Kenyon to come to Geneva without any obligation on Kenyon's part."

* * *

Fine synod of the Province of Washington was held at Roanoke, Va., with all but four of the bishops of the province present, and with three hundred others attending. A resolution was passed extolling the work of the Woman's Auxiliary and calling on the National Council to publish in no uncertain words the Council's intention as to the future of this organization. The resolution expressed the hope that nothing is to be done by the Council to "destroy its identity, impair its usefulness or impede its progress." The whole subject of rural work was gone into and an effort is to be made to lift it from a place of subordination under the leaders in either missions or social service and give it a position of equality with the other departments. The heads of nineteen Church boarding schools were present and the whole of the second day was devoted to this feature of Church life.

* * *

Open Forums on Sunday evenings are being held at Trinity Church, Madera, California. Among the subjects on the ten-weeks' program are Courts, Schools, Public Library, Motion Pictures, The Press, Architecture, Music, Adult Education, Penal Institutions and The Church. Each is to be handled by an expert after whose address the subject is open for discussion.

* * *

Bishop Gore, delivering a series of six lectures in St. Botolph's Church, London, has laid down four main propositions covering the foundations of the social gospel:

I

"That the present condition of our society, our industry and our international relations ought to inspire in our minds a deep sense of dissatisfaction and alarm and a demand for reform so thorough as to amount to a revolution, though one which might and can only be brought about by gradual and peaceful means."

II

"That the evils which we deplore in our present society are not the inevitable results of any unalterable laws of nature or any kind of inexorable necessity, but are the fruits of human blindness, willfulness, avarice and selfishness over the widest scale and in the long course of history: and that therefore their alteration demands something more than legislative and external changes, necessary as these may be—it demands a fundamental change of the spirit in which we think about and live our common life, and conduct our industry and maintain our international relations. The cry must be 'Repent ye—change your minds!' if the kingdom of heaven is to come in any other form than as a scathing and destructive judgment."

III

"That we should not look for such change of spirit to arise from any

Church Kalendar

1928

The handsomest and most useful Kalendar published
(THIRTY FOURTH YEAR)
THOUSANDS SOLD BY CHURCH SOCIETIES
Kalendar Months in Colors. Tables of Lessons for Holy Days and Sundays. Proper Psalms for Seasons, Days, and Special Occasions. Tables of Psalms. "Black Letter" Saints Days.
SAMPLE POSTPAID 40c CIRCULAR FREE

ASHBY PRINTING CO.
Publishers - ERIE, PENNA.

A New Novel by the Author of "THE HIDDEN YEARS"

THE MAN WHO WOULD SAVE THE WORLD
By John Oxenham

The hero, returning from the War, finds a world of poverty, dissatisfaction, and general social misery. The story of his crusade is an unusual and dramatic one, told with directness and strength. $1.50.

THE ETHICAL BASIS OF REALITY
By the Rev. E. E. Thomas, M. A., D. Litt.
Author of "The Non-Rational Character of Faity."

An attempt to show how the principles which are structural of reality are derived from the moving relationships between individual minds. $4.20.

LONGMANS, GREEN AND CO.
Publishers since 1724 (at the Sign of the Ship)
55 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

simultaneous conversion of men in masses; if we accept the teaching of past experience we should expect the general alteration to arise from the influence in society of groups of men, inspired probably by prophetic leaders, who have attained to a true vision both the source of our evils and of the nature of the true remedies, and who have the courage of faith which can bind them together to act and to suffer in the cause of human emancipation till their vision and their faith come to prevail more or less complete in society at large.

IV

"That Jesus Christ is really the Savior and Redeemer of man, in social as well as in individual life, and in the present world as well as in that which is to come; and that there lies upon those who believe in him a responsibility which cannot be exaggerated to be true to the principles which he taught and by all available means to bring them to bear upon the whole life of any society to which they may belong and of which they form a part, especially when it professes the Christian name."

* * *

Under the auspices of a number of Church organizations, including the Church League for Industrial Democracy, a "students in industry" conference was held at Swarthmore college, Nov. 4-6. Registration was limited to 75 students, men and women, and it was specially provided that no one who has not "worked with his hands" would be registered. Discussion of industrial problems will be based on the actual experience in industry of delegates. Several expert industrial advisers, including Norman Thomas and Powers Hapgood, attended. A. J. Muste, dean of Brookwood labor college, presided.

* * *

Rev. Wyatt Brown, rector of St. Michael and All Angels, Baltimore, delivered a series of six lectures during October on Pastoral Theology.

* * *

Rev. Wallace R. Everton, retired priest of Baltimore, died at his home in Ruxton, Maryland, after a long illness. He was a young man, having been graduated from John Hopkins in 1914 and from the General Seminary in 1917. He was compelled to retire two years ago.

* * *

Following the choir up the center aisle of St. Paul's Cathedral, Detroit, on a recent Sunday morning came eighty-six teachers of the Cathedral Church School. At the close of the processional hymn they formed a striking group standing before the

25,000 CHURCHES USE
OSTERMOOR
CUSHIONS.
BUILT—NOT STUFFED.

Illustrated Booklet and Samples Free
Old Cushions renovated and recovered equal to new.
Ostermoor & Co., Inc., Dept. C, 114 Elizabeth St.. N.Y

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

J. PATERSON SMYTH'S New Book
MYSELF
AND OTHER PROBLEMS
J Paterson Smyth puts himself in the other man's place and makes clear as daylight the problems of pain and evil, of the fall, death, hell, heaven, and other questions. $1.50
FLEMING H. REVELL CO., 158 Fifth Ave., New York; 851 Cass St., Chicago

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California
A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

Hospital of St. Barnabas
SCHOOL OF NURSING
Offers 2½ years course leading to R. N. Degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll now.
For full information, address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas
Newark, N. J.

Free to Asthma and Hay Fever Sufferers
Free Trial of Method That Anyone Can Use Without Discomfort or Loss of Time
We have a method for the control of Asthma, and we want you to try it at our expense. No matter whether your case is of long standing or recent development, whether it is present as Chronic Asthma or Hay Fever, you should send for a free Trial of our method. No matter in what climate you live, no matter what your age or occupation, if you are troubled with Asthma or Hay Fever, our method should relieve you promptly.
We especially want to send it to those apparently hopeless cases, where all forms of inhalers, douches, opium preparations, fumes, "patent smokes," etc., have failed. We want to show everyone at our expense, that our method is designed to end all difficult breathing, all wheezing, and all those terrible paroxysms.
This free offer is too important to neglect a single day. Write now and begin the method at once. Send no money. Simply mail coupon below. Do it Today.
FREE TRIAL COUPON
FRONTIER ASTHMA CO.,
621 F, Frontier Bldg., 462 Niagara St., Buffalo, N. Y.
Send free trial of your method to:
.....
.....
.....

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London, W. I., England.

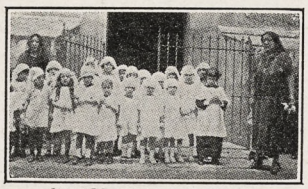
RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin
Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request. Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, also chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses, $7.60 up, burse and veil, $15 up; Silk damask cope, $120; Silk damask chasuble, $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel., Cleveland 52.

ORGAN FOR SALE
TWO MANUAL PIPE ORGAN WITH ELECtric blower and motor. Just the right size for a small parish church. Bargain at $700. Address: St. Matthres Church, 8545 96th Street, Woodhaven, N. Y.

WANTED—POSITION AS ASSISTANT IN large Parish, either on Pacific Coast or in the East. Competent to direct choral, band or orchestral music. Experienced in office and organiaztion work, especially with young people. Write Box T, Witness, 416 Lafayette St., New York.



CHRISTMAS CARDS: TWENTY IMPORTED religious cards for $1.06, post paid. Write for circular of other cards. Girls' Friendly Society, 15 East 40th Street, New York City.

BOYS & GIRLS $2.00 Given NO WORK JUST FUN
Simply sell 50 sets of Our Famous Christmas Seals for 10c a set. When sold send us $3.00 and keep $2.00. We trust you till Xmas. St. Nichilas Seal Co., Dept. 541-W, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"GIFT BOOK. PHILO W. SPRAGUE'S last book, the Bohlen Lectures for 1924, will soon be out of print. Remaining copies $1.10, a few autographed copies at $5.10 each. Rev. Wolcott Cutler, 41 Monument Square, Charleston, Mass."

TEN MAGAZINES for 10¢
10 CENTS NOW
The smartest, most interesting, entertaining and instructive Magazine in America! 10 weeks for only 10 cts. Special introductory offer. No magazine like it. Full of important facts, pictures and the best, most popular fiction. For all members of the family. Send name, address and 10 cents immediately. Grab this limited offer now.
The Pathfinder, Dept. N.163 Washington, D. C.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

"CHILDREN OF THE SCHOOL OF TRIUMPH"—MEXICO CITY
Senorita Dondia and her sister who give their services to this school are earnest converts to our Church. They have just brought the children to service in the Church of San Juan

Children in Mexico Taught by Example

"Short Street of Triumph" Leads to School Having Teacher With High Ideals

By the Ven. William Watson
Archdeacon in Mexico

IN THE days before the teaching of religion was prohibited in educational institutions the children of a mission school in Mexico City were gathered about a visitor when the clergyman in charge interrupted the conversation by saying "As it is time for service we will send the children home."

"Send them home? Do they not attend the services of the Church?" "No, you see they are all Roman Catholics."

"But you have Church teaching in the day school, do you not?" "No, because the children would not come if we did."

"What do the children pay for their schooling?" "Nothing!" It being decided that the Church's money was not being used properly, the school was closed temporarily as seemed best.

Another school was visited and the teacher, new to the country and its ways, was full of enthusiasm but admitted the lack of definite religious teaching and said, "We will teach by example. If I can only teach American cooking and American ideals that will be a great work." The hearer could remember the conductor calling out "twenty minutes for dinner," remembered that he belonged to a race of dyspeptics and faintly asked, "What are American ideals?" The silence was long and painful.

Then another journey was taken and the writer's steps were led along the street of Cuauhtemotim into the street of Nezahualcoyotl and then into the Callejon del Triunfo (the Short Street of Triumph). Do I hear you pro-

Never a Dull Page

in

THE SPIRIT of MISSIONS

THE LIVING ROOM IN THE NEW HOUSE AT NENANA
Dressed for Christmas it is most attractive, and the big fireplace with a "real chimney" is a joy and assurance of safety to the missionaries

Tale of the New House at Nenana

Betticher Memorial Dormitory, Objective of Corporate Gift of Churchwomen, Opened

By Alice Wright
Superintendent St. Mark's Mission, Nenana, Alaska

THE Editor of THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS has written me that he wants a tale of the new house at Nenana, so here it is. We moved in just before Christmas; on Saint Thomas' Day, to be exact. It had been forty below some days in that week but a little thing like a low temperature did not daunt us when we were moving into the new house with its two real chimneys, and where we could have a good roaring fire and not have nervous prostration at the sound of the roar. In the old house that would mean a hot stovepipe and a very possible fire, and a fire in Alaska at forty below with thirty children on one's hands is not pleasant to think of. And we managed to be in order for Christmas with the house all decorated with wreaths and Christmas trees and stockings hanging round the fireplace even as we had planned for many months.

The big room in the new house is a delightful place with its fireplace and windows looking out on the north side on the hill and river and into the woods on the south. We have windows wherever it is possible, to catch all the stray winter sunshine and it is a bright cheery place.

We had all the usual Christmas parties: the dance on Christmas night for our children and the village people, the Christmas trees for the village children and their parents on Holy Innocents' Day. It was interesting to see how delighted the village people were with everything. We took them to see all the wonders of the new house, the engine room where our own electric light plant abides and the pump which saves small boys many weary hours and sends up hot and cold water for our bath tubs. It may be a trifle too luxurious for missionaries, but it is most pleasant. And it may be that Godliness will not be so difficult when cleanliness is a simpler matter. The children have some shower baths Stories that sparkle with interest—Pictures that attract and inform.

The glamor of adventure for Christ in places near and far.

Readers say that The Spirit of Missions achieves the apparently impossible in that it holds the interest of men and women and the young folks as well.

Try it. Send a dollar. Read it twelve months. Your friends will wonder how you became so well-informed.

THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS,
281 Fourth Ave., New York.

.....1927

Enclosed is $1.00 ($1.25 in Canada). Send THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS for a year, beginning with the ..... issue, to

Name .....

Local Address .....

City ..... State.....

Sample copy sent upon request

THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS

281 Fourth Avenue New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York
139 West Forty-sixth Street
Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D., Litt.D.
Sunday Masses, 7:30, 8:15, 9, 10:45.
Vespers and Benediction, 4.
Week-day Masses, 7, 8, 9:30.

St. John's, Cynwyd, Pa.
The Birthplace of the Lenten Offering
When in Philadelphia attend services here. Call Cynwyd 1382 for information.
Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, D.D., Rector
Sundays 8 and 11 A. M.

Communion rail. Dean Herbert L. Johnson, in a brief service, gave them authority to teach, and Bishop Page, who was present, spoke briefly and added his blessing.

* * *

Fourteen years ago Rev. William D. Maxon, rector of Christ Church, Detroit, founded the mission of St. Columba, in what was then the extreme east end of Detroit. In 1917 the mission became an independent parish with Rev. C. L. Ramsay, now Archdeacon of Michigan, as rector. About 1920 a splendid parish hall was built. On Sunday, October 16th, 1927, the corner stone was laid of a new church, English Gothic in style, beautifully designed by Lancelot Sukert. The church will seat 500 and will cost $160,000. Rev. Otey R. Berkeley is the rector.

* * *

Here we are with the first delegates elected to the General Convention of 1928: Mississippi, at the 101st council held in St. Andrew's, Jackson, elected Rev. Walter B. Capers, rector of St. Andrew's; Rev. Joseph Kuehnle, Trinity, Natchez; Rev. Val Sessions from the missionary field, and Rev. Charles E. Woodson of Vicksburg. Proposed changes in the Prayer Book were discussed, and a resolution adopted which is to be presented at the General Convention.

* * *

St. Ann's, Amsterdam, New York, which had its origin in the old Queen Ann chapel at Fort Hunter in 1712, observed its 215th birthday on October 27th. There was an enthusiastic gathering of the parish at a dinner when the final indebtedness on the new parish house was paid. Bishop Oldham was the speaker.

* * *

War memorial chapel of St. Michael and All Angels in the Albany Cathedral was consecrated by Bishop Nelson on October 25th.

* * *

Here is another fellow to watch out for: a man travelling from the west coast to the east under the name of Fred L. Meyers, having letters from clergymen in New York City. He is 63 years old, five feet ten, is slightly lame and, according to Dean Day of Grace Cathedral, Topeka, Kansas, "has a good line." He forged two checks in Topeka, signing Dean Day's name. Wire Dean Day if the man should call on you.

* * *

New windows, memorials to the wife of the rector of the parish, have been dedicated in St. James,' Winsted, Connecticut.

* * *

The Daughters of the King of the Province of the Southwest met at the time of the synod in San Antonio,

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily: 7:30 and 10 A. M. and 5:00 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m., 4 p. m.
Daily, 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursday, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11 A. M., and 8 P. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursday, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 7, 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., Fri., and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30 and 11:00 A. M., 5:00, 6:15 and 8:00 P. M.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp and Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind HOWE SCHOOL HOWE — INDIANA In a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

Texas, October 18th-20th. Mrs. A. A. Birney, national president, was present and spoke at a joint session of the synod. Conferences were held during the three days.

* * *

The Boston Transcript for the past week carried a fine picture of the First Congregational Church, Winchester, Massachusetts; beautiful altar and cross, choir stalls, baptistry, altar to the left, aisle in the centre, looked like a very beautiful Episcopal Church.

* * *

By the will of the late William Parker of New Haven practically his entire estate of $700,000 has been left to Christ Church of that city. They are not to receive it until the death of his widow who has the use of the income while she lives.

* * *

Eight hundred women of the diocese of Connecticut met in Bridgeport November 3rd for the annual meeting of the Auxiliary. Missionaries from all parts of the world made addresses.

* * *

Rev. J. Chauncey Linsley who has been teaching at the Berkeley Divinity School this year is laid up with a badly sprained ankle. The classes are therefore meeting in his home nearby.

* * *

Rev. Donald Aldrich, rector of the Ascension, New York, conducted a week of prayer at the Ascension, Fall River, Massachusetts, last week.

* * *

New chancel and organ was dedicated last Sunday at Christ Church, Needham, Massachusetts, the Rev. Richard Preston, rector. A large confirmation class was also presented.

Clerical Changes

ANSCHUTZ, Rev. Lewis R., in charge of Holy Cross, Cumberland, Maryland, has accepted a call to St. John's, Springfield, Missouri.

DAMROSCH, Rev. Frank, Jr., rector of St. James', Brooklyn, New York, has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. Andrew's, Newark, N. J.

FORSYTHE, Rev. A. F., resigns as rector of St. Mark's, Macon, Ga., and accepts an appointment to Trinity Mission, Charlottesville, Va., with charge also of St. Paul's, Gordonsville.

HICKS, Rev. W. C., resigns as rector of Grace, Cleveland, Ohio. He will not take up new work until the end of the year. The Rev. F. C. Sherman, president of the American Guild of Health, is to act as locum tenens of the parish.

PERKINS, Rev. L. L., of St. John's, Green River, Wyoming, has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. Paul's, Kittanning, Pa.

SLEEP, Rev. F. H., assistant at Christ Church, Fitchburg, Mass., has accepted a call to the Good Shepherd, Fitchburg.

ST. CLAIR, Rev. H. C., resigns as rector of St. Stephen's, Ferguson, Missouri, and has accepted a call to the Holy Communion, Paterson, N. J.

TRELEASE, Rev. R. M., rector of All Saints, Berkeley, California, has accepted an appointment as field secretary of the National Council.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, jurnalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL

To prepare women for Church work.

ADDRESS:

DEACONESS FULLER, Chase House
211 South Ashland Blvd., Chicago

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The NATION'S BUILDING STONE

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland, Ohio. Chas. F. Schweinfurth, Architect

FOR WALLS THAT WILL BE BEAUTIFUL FOREVER

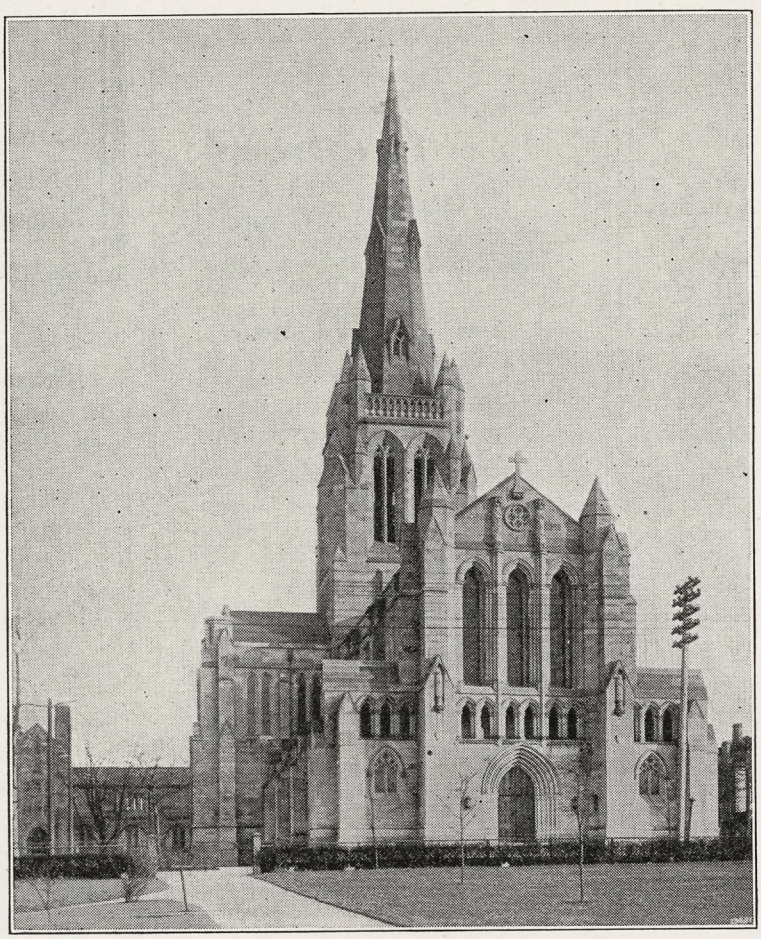
INDIANA LIMESTONE is pleasingly light and beautiful in color and texture—not to be compared with any other building material in the permanent appeal with which it endows the churches built of it.

The cost of Indiana Limestone is not great, in fact, surprisingly low when compared with that of other appropriate materials. It can be delivered anywhere at prices that compare favorably with those of local stone and often even with the cost of substitutes.

Write for plate illustrations of church buildings constructed of Indiana Limestone. No obligation. Address Box 749, Service Bureau, Indiana Limestone Company, Bedford, Indiana.

INDIANA LIMESTONE COMPANY

General Offices: Bedford, Indiana



Executive Offices: Tribune Tower, Chicago

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

BUILDING OF STONE—H. S. Brightly

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, NOVEMBER 17, 1927

CALVARY CHURCH, PITTSBURGH

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration

For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 687 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.

Baltimore, Md.

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring

Inquiries given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403) (Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts. NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J.

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS

Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street

Designers of

HISTORICAL WINDOWS

Washington Memorial Chapel

Valley Forge, Pa.

Clerestory Windows

St. Thomas Church New York City

Stained Glass, Mural Decorations, Glass Mosaics

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings

Gorgeous Combinations of Color

Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

DEAGAN

Tubular Bell Tower Chimes

The one most beautiful form of memorial.

Standard Sets, $6000 up

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc. 161 Deagan Bldg., Chicago

PLAYED DIRECT FROM ORGAN CONSOLE

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER and 4 & 5 Duncannon St: Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery

Wood

Stone

Metal and

Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

Stained Glass Artists

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows

Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.,

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— Office and Studio —

221-223 E. Fulton St. — Columbus, Ohio.

DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

— Photos, Designs and Estimates upon Application —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 13 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

PRAYER BOOK AS MYSTERY DRAMA

Discovering the Prayer Book

By

IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

PART VI.

FROM the point of view of a newspaper writer, the Book of Common Prayer is a masterpiece of psychological insight, of dramatic sequence, and of clear, forceful and picturesque language, the like of which does not exist elsewhere.

Those men who compiled the original English Book were skilled in the Roman ritual, and familiar with that of the Greeks. They knew the mass from daily celebration of it. They knew the breviary from constant recitation. And the book they gave us comprises a distinct improvement, carefully planned and worthily executed. Changes since then have carried on their fundamental philosophy of worship. But it has seemed to me frequently that in this discussion of liturgical changes, the magnificent simplicity of the structure of the book has been ignored as if, indeed, many commentators were unaware of it.

I am weary to death of liturgical teachings which begin with "In the year of such and such a king, such and such a prayer was authorized;" or "This prayer was compiled by Bishop Thisandthat, adapted from suchandso a liturgy, which was taken from this other compilation." A lawyer in New York once remarked "Don't you love to read over the dates of the various prayers!"

This is as idiotic as saying, "Our marriage is happy because at the time we were made man and wife, Grover Cleveland was President and the Tariff Bill had just been repealed." The essence of a happy marriage is "Do you love each other?" The essence of a liturgy is "Do you mean it?"

Let me tell you first how I rediscovered the Prayer Book from the re-write desk of a newspaper. Then let us discuss it from the point of view of a dramatic writer.

The task of a re-write man is (as I have previously remarked) to weave together into one compact whole many threads of an incident narrated to him by different people. In doing so he must consider the people who are to read his paper and the time at which they will read it. He must cast it in a form that will be picturesque. He must tell the main incidents first, and give so complete a summary in the first paragraph or two that if it happens that a great press of news requires the shortening of his story, it can be done by lopping off the concluding paragraphs without loss, so that the whole will not have to be rewritten.

So I drew up the rules of rewriting for my own guidance. They are, in order of importance:

1. The point must be in the lead.
2. A good summary must follow.
3. The language must be picturesque.
4. The story must be true.

Point No. 1 means that out of the great tangle of events comprising any one story, that one fact which is of most importance to the people who are to read the story, at the time they are to read it, should be the first sentence. Many times a story contains a fact which was of great importance a day or so ago, or which will be very vital in another week. Many times it contains information very vital to people in Los Angeles or New York, but which does not interest Chicagoans. If one is writing for a drug trade magazine, a fact very interesting to hardware salesmen or locomotive engineers does not appeal to his own constituency. The "point" of the story is that one thing which interests the people who will read it, on the day they are to read it.

Point No. 2 means that immediately following this opening statement must be a short presentation of the principal results to follow, so that if all but the first paragraph or two of the story are lost, the essentials still will be there.

Point No. 3 means that events of transcendent importance can be made uninteresting by dry narration. Figures showing a great falling off of national trade, or a bank crisis, or great mortality, can be made either interesting or uninteresting by the language in which they are presented.

Point No. 4 is placed last because frequently a good story is a work of the imagination. Feature stories may be embroidered without offense. Only news stories must be strictly accurate.

WHAT PRAYER BOOK IS

Now having drawn up these points for my own guidance, I said one day, "The Prayer Book is a rewrite of the Bible. Let us see how it lives up to my rules. If it is a good job, the one fact, in all the sixty-six books between Genesis and Revelations, which is most important to the people who are in the church at the time service begins, ought to be the opening sentence."

And it is. Search how you will, you cannot find an apter beginning, a fact of more transcendent importance at the time service begins to the people in church, than the opening sentence.

"The LORD is in his holy Temple;

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Let all the earth keep silence before HIM."

It is a trumpet call, a sanctuary chime. God is here; never mind the preacher, the choir, the other people in the church. Forget troubles and worries; God is here, nothing else matters.

This book goes on with a marvelous psychological sequence. If God is here, what manner of God is he? How shall I approach him?

I was glad when they said unto me "We will go into the House of the Lord."

But there is an obligation connected with my presence here:

"Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart be always acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer."

And finally, because God is Our Father, not only My Father, comes the necessary result, the mental attitude toward other worshippers:

"Grace be unto you, and Peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ."

This is not only good newspaper. It is good drama, with God and you as the principal actors, and with the stage set for that stupendous mystery, the invitation to which says, "Accompany me, with a pure heart and an humble voice, to the Throne of the Heavenly grace."

Thus the first point is made good. Let us consider further.

Point No. 2 is "A good summary must follow." Here, in the Prayer Book's opening sentences, directly following those which place you face to face with God, is a summary of the Life of Christ, told in the words of the most vivid and unforgetable speakers that could have been chosen.

Look at them, as the Sentences call up before you their flaming figures.

"Repent ye, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand." It is John the Baptist, in his raiment of camel's hair, standing at the fords of the Jordan, calling for converts with all the burning intensity engendered by his eighteen years in the desert;

"Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy"—It is the angel of the Nativity who speaks, announcing to the shepherds who kept the Lambs of God, the Temple flocks round Bethlehem, that their labors were ended, for the true lamb of God was born into the world;

"From the rising of the sun, even unto the going down of the same"—It is Malachi, the mysterious Last Voice of the Old Testament, he who predicted the coming of Elijah before the great and terrible Day of the Lord; and he is predicting now the world-wide spread of the faith;

"Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by?"—Jeremiah speaks, and the words describe Christ suffering on the hilltop beside the road out of Jerusalem;

BISHOP LAWRENCE
In charge of European Churches

"He is Risen; the Lord is Risen indeed"—The Angel of the Resurrection speaks, and the joyful Apostles answer;

"Seeing that we have a great High Priest that is passed into the Heavens, Jesus the Son of God"—It is the unknown writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews who speaks now; he—or she—who wrote that most marvelous book which bridged the chasm of despair that fell athwart the believing world, when Jerusalem was destroyed by the armies of Titus;

"Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come!"—It is the voice of the myriads before the throne of God, in the vision of the Revelation.

SENTENCES OF PENITENCE

Then follow ten sentences of penitence, depicting in a sequence just as vital and inevitable the impact of a realization of these truths upon the worshiper, closing with a sentence which many a time may serve as an exhortation to confession—"If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves"—ourselves, not God!

Point No. 2 is made good, and so is No. 3, that the language must be picturesque, and No. 4, that the story must be true!

Sentences for evensong vary slightly from those for morning, and are perhaps more exquisitely beautiful. There are 27 sentences in morning and 28 in evening prayer. Of these, 15 are the same in both.

Sentence No. 2 in Evensong loses much of its beauty by its translation. "House" in Hebrew means both the dwelling and the family, or children, as "house of Aaron," or "house of Jacob." Read it thus:

"Lord, I have loved the home of thy children, and the place where thine honor dwelleth!" and see how wonderfully it gains.

Once a young woman came to me after an evening service in New York, and she was crying. She said, "All day I have been attending a meeting of a radical committee, and there was so much bickering and bad feeling and wire pulling that I had just about lost my faith in humanity. Then I happened by here, and came in, and you were just saying that opening sentence, "Behold, the tabernacle of God is with me!" and it has been singing in my heart ever since. It brought me back my religion!"

What shall you do in church before service begins? Meditate on these sentences. Let them soak into your comprehension. If you make any sort of a genuine effort to appropriate them, they, and the grace of God working through them, will leave you definitely cleaner and stronger than when you began. They are soul-cleansing medicine.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

A certain ramous actor sometimes shows interest in the lesser lights about him. One day he was conversing with one of his stage hands. "And what, my good fellow, is your vocation?" queried the condescending matinee idol.

"I'm a Baptist," was the reply.

"No, no, that is your belief. I want to know your vocation. For example, I am an actor."

Said the scene shifter: "Naw, that's your belief."

As a result of an incident at a recent marriage performed by him, a justice of the peace in Missouri has posted the following sign in his office: "Brides must not kiss the justice of the peace."

Sunday School Teacher: "Now, Willie, what happens to a man who never thinks of his soul, but only of his body?"

Willie: "Please, teacher, he gets fat."

* * *

"Papa, were all the animals already on earth when Adam and Eve lived in the Garden of Eden?"

"Why, of course, my boy."

"Then what did the clothes moths live on?"

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

EMMANUEL CHURCH, LAGRANGE, ILLINOIS

BUILDING CHURCHES OF STONE

For Divine Worship

By

BY H. S. BRIGHTLY,
Director, Architects' Service Bureau, Bedford, Indiana.

IN THE building of homes there is a great range in style of design and in material from which to choose, depending largely upon the personal taste of the prospective owner. In the building of churches there are but a few dominant styles, and really but two classes of material that are generally considered suitable—suitable in degree of durability or weathering qualities and consequent permanence in beauty, and as a means of expressing appropriately in a dignified way, the spiritual ideal on which all branches of Christian faith are based.

That the walls of such a building should be constructed of some sort of masonry, it appears offhand should be a foregone conclusion, based upon the usage requirements of these structures. Being built to house, for an indefinitely long period, the religious worship of a number of people, such buildings must be of permanent construction, in which the element of maintenance cost has been reduced to the lowest possible degree and furthermore should be constructed as nearly fireproof as practical considerations make possible.

That they should be dignified and beautiful seems to require no comment, for this has been an acknowledged fact during the centuries of church buildings throughout the Christian era; beautiful not in a fanciful or frivolous way, such as may often seem appropriate for certain other types of buildings, but beautiful in a truthful and spiritual way through the use of good materials, honestly built, free of sham and meaningless ornament, bearing the stamp of honest draftsmanship in their shaping and erection.

Materials, therefore, that are beautiful and appropriate, in and of themselves, which require no great amount of ornamentation or enrichment, but which also lend themselves readily to such artistic expression of the designer's ideas and scheme of ornamentation that may be appropriate to the particular church structure. The fact must not be overlooked that a church building, however simple in point of design and plain or devoid of so-called architectural expression, is nevertheless a temple to the religious ideal of the communion which it serves to house.

There are, therefore, as previously stated, but two major materials that seem to fulfill the requirements of the exterior walls—brick and stone—but in these two materials the builder of churches has a wide range of choice in securing the effect desired for any particular type or style of church building.

With certain styles of architecture

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

—Byzantine, Lombardy, Romanesque and American Colonial—and certain other specific types, brick may seem to be the appropriate material, but even here it is invariably necessary that such buildings, for their proper expression, be appropriately trimmed with a light colored stone capable of carrying the architectural detail which cannot be executed in the brickwork of which the plain surface or field work of the walls is built.

Stone, therefore, is by far the most appropriate material for the walls of church buildings and the one material that it is possible to use successfully when the church is designed on any of the many so-called churchly styles of architecture, which run the full gamut of the Classical and Medieval architectural styles; that in the Classical are invariably based upon Greek or Roman temples and Basilicas, Renaissance Churches and Cathedrals; and in the Medieval, all the way from early Romanesque and Norman styles down through the many phases and developments of the Gothic periods, to its culmination in the Great Cathedrals that stand throughout Europe today as monuments to the religious fervor of those ages when the civilized people of the world were gradually finding their way to a new and better mode of thought and life.

The majesty of stone as evidenced by the very rocks of which it is formed, are in themselves a commanding factor that expresses the attribute of strength, truth, force, permanence and other elements in the foundation of all religious beliefs. When we have combined with these elements, not only the rugged and often dark and sombre beauty of rough rock, but also the added element of a light, pleasing color-tone and a fine texture that enables the stone to be cut and carved quite readily into the many beautiful forms required by the architectural embellishment of the design, or the enrichment of plain surfaces, then the very acme of suitability for church structures seems to have been reached. For here we have a material that expresses truth, in keeping with the precepts of the New Testament, that is in a more pleasant and beautiful way and in keeping with the modern trend of religious thought. For here seems expressed not the dark and sombre feeling of the vengeful Jehovah of the Old Testament, but the light and life-giving God of the doctrine of Christ.

This feeling of beauty, consistent with the modern ideas of religious thought, is probably more than anything else responsible for the departure from the older rather too sombre effects in church structures, as exemplified by the recent work of some of the best architects, in which the somewhat gloomy architecture and decoration of past generations has given way to an equally spiritual, though lighter and brighter, may we say, more heavenly effect.

WASHINGTON CATHEDRAL

The Anglican Church has been very consistent in the use of stone for her church buildings, and has generally been very happy in the choice of the styles used as the basis for church designs. A great majority of these have been based upon an appropriate adaptation of some good phase of the Gothic style, or in some of the smaller buildings, based upon the village churches of England; the latter frequently built of rough local stone obtained from some nearby quarry, also most appropriate, and doubly beautiful when trimmed with a lighter stone that permits some of the desired elements of architectural expression to be incorporated in the building.

In the larger church building there is no material more suitable, none usually as rich and handsome in appearance and as expressive of churchly character as a light colored limestone, such as that quarried in Southern Indiana, for it combines beauty of appearance and fine weathering qualities with all of the structural properties that are necessary in a material that is used for facing the exterior walls and exposed parts of permanent buildings,

Quite similar to the Portland Limestone of England, and vastly superior to the Limestone of France, of which so many of the European cathedrals are built, it is a time-tried and proven material, even in this comparatively young country of ours, where it has been used for over 50 years in some of our finest buildings, religious, public and private. And if one wants to look further back, it is only necessary to seek evidence in the pyramids and temples of ancient Egypt for limestone, a much less pure and structurally perfect stone than that of Indiana, was the favored material of the early Egyptian builders.

There is certainly no material, that by a happy combination of all around merit, structural properties, workability, appearance and weathering properties, is so eminently suited for use in church buildings. To these it adds the advantage of low cost, for there is no other building stone that can be quarried and worked so readily by machinery, and as a result of this is quite so low in cost. In fact, the cost is often astonishingly low, in comparison with any of the manufactured substitutes for stone that could be used. This makes the use of natural stone justified, even where the building appropriations must be held down to the lowest limit, for there is never a time when synthetic substitutes any more than cheap, flimsy construction of any sort, is justified in the building of churches. Then, where economy is an important factor in the problem, it is possible to employ a readily worked stone of this kind in a rougher way as masonry for the field work or plain areas of walls, using cut stone only for the trim, in a manner somewhat similar to where the plain portions of walls are built of rough local stone masonry. For this purpose the stone is furnished to the mason builder in the form of rough sawed strips of the thickness and width required in random lengths, which are readily broken into the units of length required, by masons on the building site as the work of erecting the walls progresses, eliminating all of this plain wall work from the cut stone contract. Using the limestone in that manner is especially appropriate where the stonework is to be laid up with an informal scheme of jointing, such as range work, or in some form of Random ashlar, as shown by the two churches illustrated in the issue.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

A stone church built in this way is not only most appropriate in exterior appearance but can very often be built at only a slight increase in cost over brick or any other type of rougher wall masonry that might be used.

Where the main or plain parts of the walls are built of brick, either on account of cost restriction or individual preference, or on account of the style of design, it is an almost invariable custom to use a light colored limestone such as the famous Indiana product for trim, both because there is no other material that is so readily worked and consequently available from the standpoint of cost, and because the pleasing, light color-tones of this fine, natural stone form such a delightfully satisfactory contrast to the brickwork, quite regardless of whether a red, brown or buff brick is used.

Thus, in what is now so aptly termed The Nation's Building Stone, the builder of churches has not only the most handsome material for religious structures, a material that will magnify the beauty of the architect's design and age gracefully with the passing years, but also a material that is sufficiently low in cost in any of its forms to be always economically available, and logically the preferred material, for church exteriors of all types, from the smallest parish church to the largest city church.

The use of this fine, light colored limestone is not confined to the exterior of churches, however, as the more uniform grades of this stone, on account of its uniform texture and color-tone, is just as adaptable for beautiful interiors, for chancel fittings, reredos, rood screens, pulpits, etc. A number of the most elaborate and costly church interiors in America are constructed of beautifully carved Indiana Limestone, veritable symphonies of praise to God, wrought by the hand of man in this stone, the Creator's greatest gift to the church builders of America.

The picture on the cover and that at the head of this article are examples of two leading Episcopal Churches built of Indiana Limestone.

Anniversary of the Girls' Friendly

Reported by
Gladys W. Barnes

A GREAT meeting of the Girls' Friendly Society in America took place in the Hotel Statler, November 2-6, marking the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the first parish branch of the Society in the United States, observed in connection with the triennial meeting of the G. F. S. National Council. Registration, totalling over 1,200, was unprecedentedly large and represented every part of the country. All national officers were present, including all the eight Provincial vice-presidents. An epoch-marking innovation this year was the presence of young "member-delegates" voting in the Council, seats and votes heretofore having been limited to officers of the Society.

The program was carefully built around a central theme of "Widening Horizons," and was crowded with events and ideas both useful and inspiring, far removed from the perfunctory round of meetings that too often afflict conventions.

Distinguished speakers and visitors including Bishop Murray, all three Massachusetts bishops, Bishop Oldham, the Rev. F. J. Cotter of Wuchang, Dr. Miriam Van Waters of the Los Angeles Juvenile Court, author of that widely known little book, "Youth in Conflict" (and a member of THE WITNESS' Famous Episcopalians Club), Dr. Adelaide Case of New York, Deaconess Newell, formerly of Mexico; and also a great number of outstanding personalities among officers and delegates.

Among the chief events was the International Dinner, at which Bishop Oldham roused a thousand people to their part in "Christianizing International Relations." Before his address, some delightful Polish girls from the Lowell Y.W.C.A. International Institute danced in Polish costume. Another event was a Missionary Luncheon where, with Miss Helen Brent presiding, more than a thousand heard Deaconess Newell and Mr. Cotter discuss missionary problems, Mr. Cotter contrasting the earnestness of the little band of Chinese Christians with the carelessness of many complacent American Church people. At the luncheon, eight colored girls in costume represented G. F. S. work in the Philippine Islands.

There was a beautiful pageant, in Symphony Hall, written for the occasion by Miss Era Betzner of New York, and directed by her, with a cast of over 750, from 72 parishes in four dioceses.

On Sunday in Trinity Church there was a corporate Communion and annual memorial service at 8, and at 4, a closing Festival Service, with Bishop Murray preaching. There were daily early celebrations of the Holy Communion in Trinity Church and elsewhere. On Sunday morning several hundred delegates made a pilgrimage to St. Anne's Church, Lowell, where the first G. F. S. branch in this country was founded fifty years ago by Miss Elizabeth Edson. The chaplain of that first branch, Rev. Alfred E. Johnson, preached at this anniversary service.

Each morning, Dr. Adelaide Case led the delegates in a meditation on their companionship with those "Pioneers of Progress," the people of the Bible. Two series of exceedingly valuable discussion groups were conducted, under the general direction of Mrs. Harrison Elliott, of New York.

As picturesque as a pageant was the meeting on Thursday night planned to give special recognition to the young members of the Council. One young girl, Gladys Thompson of Trinity Church, Pittsburgh, Pa., presided and three others, Doris Hilton of Christ Church, Andover, Mass., Winifred Leyland of St. Paul's, Newport News, Va., and Margaret Hammond of St. Luke's, San Francisco, with charming frankness spoke to the theme, "Youth Scans the Horizon." A summary was given by Dr. Van Waters, out of her most intelligent and sympathetic understanding of present-day American youth.

Reference should of course be made to The G. F. S. A. Record for official reports of the business sessions. A new national president was elected, Miss Margaret M. Lukens, of Conshohocken, Pa., formerly vice-president for the Third Province, now succeeding Miss Frances W. Sibley, who has been president for thirteen years. Three new vice-presidents were elected: Mrs. Prescott Lunt of Rochester,

(Continued on page 14)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE Synod of the Province of New York and New Jersey is always an interesting event. It is being held this year at Christ Church, Rochester, New York, November 15-17, which makes it impossible for us to give a report of it in this issue, but since the program is here we will set that down and let you write your own superlatives. On the first evening a service, with addresses on the Lausanne Conference by Bishop Ferris and the Rev. George Craig Stewart of Evanston. The next morning, after the services and the business meeting, a conference on Evangelism, Bishop Oldham of Albany presiding, and Mrs. Samuel Thorne as the speaker. The delegates and friends eat at one o'clock; maybe listen to speeches also, though none are announced. At two there is a conference on Missions with the following speakers: Bishop Carson of Haiti, Bishop Colomore of Porto Rico, Rev. A. Villafane, who is to tell of the social conditions in Porto Rico, Mr. William B. Newall, an Indian worker in the diocese of Western New York (there are Indians there, in case you don't know it), and Rev. Harrington S. Littell of Hankow, China. Religious Education later in the afternoon, the Rev. Charles S. Lewis presiding. That evening a banquet, again with no announced speakers.

The Social Service Commissions are putting on a program also; Bishop Stearly presiding. The Rev. Harold Holt is to tell of the Program and Ideals of the National Department; then there will be a conference on the work of the Church Mission of Help. In the afternoon the Rev. Alfred S. Priddis of Buffalo speaks on Cooperation with other groups in social action, and the Rev. Charles R. Allison, Rev. L. F. Chard and Rev. E. S. Ford are to speak on rural work. You will understand of course that business sessions are mixed in with these entertaining conferences. The Woman's Auxiliary program takes up a day with Miss Helen Brent and Miss Grace Lindley down as the speakers. In addition to all this there are to be meetings of the Girls' Friendly, Church Mission of Help, Periodical Club, Daughters of the King, Guild of St. Barnabas, Brotherhood of St. Andrew, and, as that fellow says over the radio, "what have you?"

* * *

There is an announcement on the back page of this paper which should be of interest to Church people; the Religious Book Club which is to send to its members each month the best new book in the religious field. The selection is to be made by a committee of outstanding leaders, the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, Bishop Brent of Western New York, Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Bishop McConnell of the Methodist Church and Miss Mary Woolley, the president of Mount Holyoke College. In this day of mass production of books such a service is a real one which will be taken advantage of by thousands of Church people.

* * *

Rev. Murray Bartlett, president of Hobart College, was the preacher at the midday services at Trinity Church, New York, November 7-11; from the 14th to the 18th the preacher is the Rev. Cyril Hudson of England, this year of the faculty of the Berkeley Divinity School; the Rev. William B. Kinkaid, in charge at Trinity, is to preach from the 21st to the 25th and the Rev. Frank Gavin, professor at the General Seminary, preaches from November 28th to December 2nd.

* * *

At the recent State meeting of the Welfare Workers at Joliet, Ill., there was a meeting held at the suggestion of the Chairman of the Department of Christian Social Service of Springfield, Rev. R. Y. Barber, of representatives from the three Dioceses in the state looking towards the forming of some united effort of work along the social service line. While the number of workers were small at the meeting yet it was an earnest gathering and under the fine leadership of Deaconess Fuller, of Chase House, Chicago, there was organized a Guild of Episcopal Welfare Workers. Rev. A. Newberry will be the first presi-

FAILS TO ELECT

After balloting for three days in an effort to elect a bishop coadjutor, the convention of the diocese of Fond du Lac adjourned in a deadlock and postponed action until the annual meeting of the diocesan convention next year. The candidates were the Rev. Don Frank Fenn of Minneapolis; the Rev. Spence Burton, S.S.J.E., of Boston; the Rev. H. L. Bowen of Chicago; the Rev. Harwood Sturtevant of Racine; and the Rev. C. W. Bothe of Stevens Point, Wis. The Rev. Frank Gavin of the General Theological Seminary received one vote in each order on the first ballot.

FOR THE HOLIDAYS
NEW HARPER RELIGIOUS BOOKS

IF I HAD ONLY ONE SERMON TO PREACH
Edited by Dr. Charles Stelzle
A volume of twenty-one sermons of leading Clergymen in various denominations throughout the United States. The book is packed with the throbbing messages of men who know what they believe, and who deem it a privilege to make these messages known. $2.50

MY SHEPHERD LIFE IN GALILEE
By Stephen A. Haboush——A Native Galilean. Illustrated
This book gives an intimate view into the very life of a Galilean shepherd in the days of his youth, and presents a popular exegesis of the Twenty-third Psalm from the standpoint of its original environment and local atmosphere. A delightful gift book. $1.00

PHILUS, THE STABLE BOY OF BETHLEHEM
By Rev. Edmund J. Cleveland, D.D. With Foreword by The Rt. Rev. Charles L. Slattery, D.D. Illustrated.
"Delightfully written story-sermons. No more pleasant and effective way of teaching the meaning of the days and seasons of the Christian year can be imagined."—The Boston Globe. $1.50

CATHEDRAL SERMONS
By Howard Chandler Robbins, D.D., Dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York City.
Containing twenty - one sermons preached in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, by Dean Robbins, covering the period from 1911 to 1927, inclusive. They reveal in a marked manner the evangelical character and searching appeal of his pulpit utterances. $2.00

THE CHRIST WE KNOW
Jesus as Master, Lord and Saviour
By the Rt. Rev. Charles Fiske, D.D., Bishop of Central New York.
"This book is so religious in tone, so reverent and reasonable and so simply and beautifully written, that it is bound to fulfill its purpose."—Honorable William H. Keller, Judge of the Superior Court of Pennsylvania. $2.00

THE CHRISTIAN EXPERIENCE OF FORGIVENESS
By H. R. Mackintosh, D. Phil., D.D.
The book presents Jesus Christ as the supreme guarantee of pardon. "There is much to praise, and very much to think over, in the book. Let us hope it will receive the attention which the author and theme deserves."—British Weekly. $3.00

Order from your bookseller or from the publisher. Write for complete catalog of Religious Books.

HARPER & BROTHERS
49 East 33rd St., New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

dent and Miss Kathleen Moore, Chicago, secretary-treasurer.

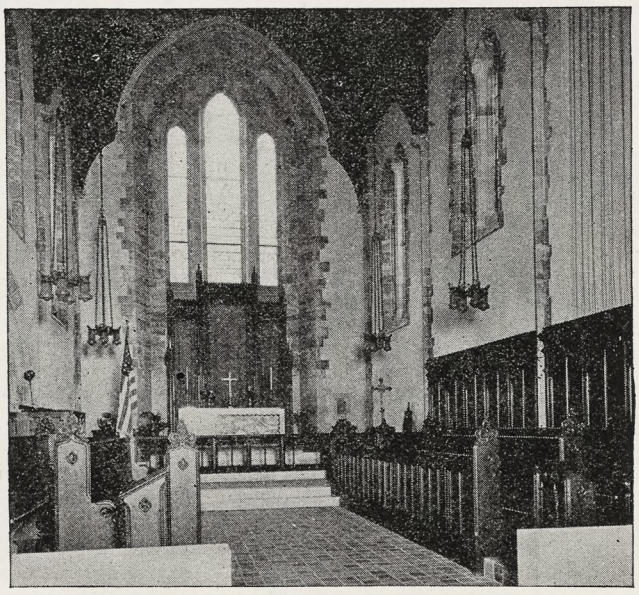
The big objective for the year is to find every Churchman who is engaged in welfare work in the state and work to get as many as possible to go to the next state meeting in Quincy, Ill. next fall, when it is hoped that we can have our corporate communion, breakfast and then a round table to plan for the future.

We are the only religious body that is making any concerted move to take any interest in this great band of workers and to let them know we are with them in all their work.

* * *

The sixth annual conference of Church Workers Among Colored People in the first and second provinces held their session at St. Mark's Church, Plainfield, New Jersey, beginning the evening of October 5th, and closing on the night of October 7th. The conference was welcomed by the Hon. J. T. MacMurray, Mayor of Plainfield, the Rev. E. V. Stevenson, rector of Grace Church, and the Rt. Rev. A. W. Knight, Bishop Coadjutor of the Diocese of New Jersey, with a response by the Rev. G. F. Miller of St. Augustine's Church, Brooklyn. The sermon was by the Rev. J. H. Johnson of St. Cyprian's Church, New York City.

The president, the Rev. George M. Plaskett, made the annual address, in which he stressed, among other matters of importance and interest to the conference, the necessity of the conference establishing a scholarship fund, the interest of which may be used to assist deserving students. The conference went on record as committed to such a plan. Each parish and mission in the provinces will be expected to bring to the conference year by year a small per capita tax, the increase of which in time will give a substantial sum as the principal. The Woman's Auxiliary voted $126 as a nest egg for this purpose. With the election of the same officers the conference was organized for the coming two years; the Rev. George M. Plaskett, President; the Rev. C. Canterbury Corbin, Vice President; the Rev. William N. Harper, Secretary; Mr. Joseph H. Brown, Sr., Treasurer. The Church Service League elected the following officers for the first time: Mrs. William McKinney, President; Mrs. Maude Cole, Vice President; Mrs. Laura McCoy, Secretary; Miss Josie Phillips, Treasurer.



The following papers were read and discussed: "Is the Church a Non-essential?" Rev. P. G. Moore-Browne; "A Prospect for Worship in the Church School," Rev. S. H. Bishop; "Why Men Go To Church," Mr. Harry Mars; "Missionary Activities," Miss Josie Phillips. Very helpful addresses were made by the Rev. W. D. McClane and the Rev. N. P. Boyd on "Missionary Activity in Urban Centers." Miss Mary E. Moore of Hiddenite, North Carolina, addressed the Conference about her work among the mountain negro children. Two addresses: "A Woman's View of the Chinese Situation" by Mrs. Hollis S. Smith, and "A Man's View of the Chinese Situation," by her husband, the Rev. Mr. Smith, both of Shanghai, China, were very informing and created a good deal of interest. The delegates and visitors had the privilege of listening to two fine addresses, one by Bishop Matthews of New Jersey, and the closing address was a most heartening and inspiring one by the Rt. Rev. Wilson R. Stearly, Bishop of Newark, and president of the Synod of the province of New York and New Jersey.

* * *

Throughout the country Child Labor Day will be observed for the twenty-first year on the last week-end in January. As in former years, this will be the occasion for religious and educational organizations, women's clubs and other interested groups to bring to the attention of their members the fact that the problem of child labor is not yet solved.

Child Labor involves more than

Equipped by
American Seating Company

Emmanuel Episcopal Church, La Grange, Illinois
MARSHALL & FOX AND JOHN N. TILTON, ASSOCIATE ARCHITECTS
THE BERTRAM-GROSVENOR-GOODHUE ASSOCIATES, CONSULTING ARCHITECTS

THE ART APPEAL in carved-wood furnishings—in pulpit and pews, in chancel railings, reading desk, rood screen, or reredos, is winning the general acceptance of thoughtful church men and women of every denomination. Our designers and artisans are fully prepared to provide chancel arrangement and church furnishings which through artistic design and execution contribute to worshipful expression and atmosphere now so eagerly sought in church building in America.

American Seating Company
1024 LYTTON BUILDING · CHICAGO, ILLINOIS
NEW YORK · BOSTON

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

the mere question of the age at which a child should be allowed to go to work. It includes the prohibition of all work for children under 14, and of dangerous work for children under 16; it includes the establishment of an 8-hour day and the prohibition of night work for children under 16; and evidence that the child is strong enough for work.

Few states have adequate protection in all these respects. In 14 states the law carries an exemption which makes it legal for children under 14 to work in factories or canneries, at least out of school hours; in 11 states children are permitted to work 9 to 11 hours a day; in 17 a physician's certificate is not required of a child starting work; in 28 children of 14 may work around explosives; in 22 they may run elevators; in 17 they may oil and clean machinery in motion.

To make known these facts of child labor and to stir the public to demand their correction is the purpose of child labor day—January 28 for synagogues, January 29 for churches, and January 30 for schools and clubs.

The National Child Labor Committee, 215 Fourth Avenue, New York City, will send free of charge to any interested groups an analysis of the law of their state and other material to aid in the observance of Child Labor Day.

* * *

Unsolicited gifts from contributors living in the south seas and near the arctic circle have been received by Washington Cathedral. This indicates, it was pointed out, the widespread interest in the cathedral undertaking. A nation-wide campaign under the leadership of General John J. Pershing and other eminent men is now in progress to raise $6,800,000 immediately and $30,000,000 ultimately for the completion and adequate endowment of the cathedral and its associated institutions.

One gift was from the Philippine Islands, a draft of $50 being sent as the contribution from the Cathedral Parish of St. Mary and St. John, P. I., toward the Washington Cathedral fund.

From the far north came $12.15, the gift of Christ Church Mission, Anvik, Alaska. "I feel that it is good for us to be in touch with so significant a work as the building of the Cathedral in the National Capital," the Rev. John W. Chapman, in charge of the Alaska mission, wrote.

* * *

Following a successful Church School Institute held in October, the Department of Religious Education of the Diocese of Georgia, with headquarters in Christ Church Parish House, Savannah, has arranged a program of study in credit giving courses to be given in a Normal School to be conducted by the Department from November through June, for the Church School teachers in the Savannah parishes and others both in the city and diocese. The courses are as follows: for November, "Methods and Materials for Kindergartens"; December, "Church School Administration"; January, "Religious Drama"; February, "Story Telling"; March, "Principles of Christian Social Service"; April, "Materials and Methods—Primary Department"; May, "Worship in the Church School"; and June, a Ten-Day Normal School in the new diocesan camp to be built on St. Simon's Island.

Grade conferences in preparation for the Sunday lessons in the Christian Nurture Series will also be held each month at the Department's headquarters, during the teaching months, four lessons being taught for the month in nine grades.

* * *

By action of the National Executive Committee of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew at its recent meeting, the Rt. Rev. John G. Murray, Presiding Bishop of the Church, was elected Honorary President of the Brotherhood and on October 31st his acceptance was received. In his letter of acceptance he said: "I am acting affirmatively because of my very positive conviction that there is a real work for the Brotherhood to accomplish in the Church at the present time. Especially is there a vocation for it in the carry-on work of the Bishops' Crusade and by return to consecrated service along the lines of first principles, with Divine guidance and blessing, the members of the Brotherhood will find immediate and continuing opportunity for the successful accomplishment of their original purpose. With such mind and in such endeavor I shall esteem

EARN MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH, SCHOOL OR SOCIETY

Sell 5c Chocolate Covered Bars
Highest Grade — 20 Varieties
30 days to pay.

Offer not good in West or South
For Particulars write

L. E. AUSTIN, 760 West End Ave., New York City

OXFORD
PRAYER BOOKS AND HYMNALS

Exquisite sets printed on Oxford India Paper for ladies, durably bound sets in bright colors for children, and large type editions for older folks.

Oxford Prayer Books, with or without marriage certificate, bound in white leather, make excellent wedding gifts.

At All Booksellers
Catalogue Upon Request

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS
AMERICAN BRANCH
35 WEST 32ND STREET
NEW YORK

AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY
NEW PRIZE CONTEST
for
BEST TRACTS
First Prize $100.00 and Gold Medal
Second Prize $50.00 Third Prize $25.00

Annuity Bonds
Exceptionally Attractive
Safe and Satisfactory

Send for particulars concerning award of prizes and the Annuity Bonds.
AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY
7 W. 45th St. New York City

Money for Churches

Hundreds of churches by their experience have proved that men trained in financial campaigns raise more money more easily than untrained men.

Over $208,500,000 has been raised for religious and philanthropic institutions by members of this organization.

Campaigns undertaken anywhere. We care for every detail.

Plan for that new building, addition or Sunday School. Let us help you clear off debts. Write us your hopes.

Members of this organization have conducted campaigns for the Church ranging from Hundred Thousand Dollar funds for parishes to Several Millions for institutional and diocesan programs.

"Financing Philanthropy," quarterly paper, free on request.

Member Joint Board of Campaign Counsel and Planning

HEDRICK, MARTS & LUNDY, Inc.
527 Fifth Ave., New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

it a privilege to cooperate most heartily."

* * *

Under the leadership of the Rev. William Way, D.D., rector of Grace Church, Charleston, South Carolina, a week of special services was held in St. John's Church, Montclair, N. J., the Rev. James T. Lodge, rector, beginning Sunday, Nov. 13th, and continuing through Friday, Nov. 18th. Careful preparation had been made by a special committee of the vestry under the direction of Henry C. Quigley, Sr. The rector has held six discussion group meetings for the entire parish, using Dr. Sturgis' last book, "A Church Awake." The men of the parish arranged and conducted six cottage meeting groups in as many geographical centers of the parish at which time personal religion has been stressed. There have also been held several congregational meetings to practice hymn singing for the week.

* * *

The Synod of the Province of the Southwest held its 11th session at St. Mark's Church, San Antonio, on October 18-20, the guest of the Diocese of West Texas, the Rt. Rev. Wm. T. Capers, Bishop.

The outstanding features of the three days' meetings were the inspirational addresses by the following speakers:

The Presiding Bishop, the Most Rev. John G. Murray, who preached at the opening service and delivered three addresses during the conference; the Rt. Rev. James Wise, Bishop of Kansas, who spoke on "Standing by the Program of the Church;" the Rt. Rev. Clinton S. Quin, Bishop of Texas, and Miss Margaret Weed, of the Diocese of Florida, who spoke on the "Evaluation of the Bishops' Crusade;" the Rev. S. Harrington Littell, of Hankow, China, who brought an especially inspiring message of the future work in China; the Rev. Bertram E. Brown, of Tarboro, N. C., who spoke enthusiastically of what might be accomplished through rural missions; Mrs. A. A. Birney, National President of the Daughters of the King, and Miss Laura F. Boyer, Assistant Educational Secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary, both gave inspiring talks along their respective fields of service; and the Young People's Rally and dinner, in charge of Miss Dorothy Fischer, Secretary of the Young People's Department of the Diocese of Texas, was a fitting climax to the three days' meetings.

The Province of the Southwest is one of the largest, comprising the states of Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas and New Mexico. The attendance was very representative of all the dioceses and missionary districts, and the spirit of fellowship and harmony was especially fine.

St. Mark's, of San Antonio, the Rev. Rolfe P. Crum, Rector, with its new Parish House and Educational Building, played the part of host for the diocese, and the new buildings and modern equipment gave an added interest to the Conference.

* * *

As a part of the church program for the Armistice Day period, a

Church Kalendar

1927

The handsomest and most useful Kalendar published
(THIRTY FOURTH YEAR)
THOUSANDS SOLD BY CHURCH SOCIETIES
Kalendar Months in Colors. Tables of Lessons for Holy Days and Sundays. Proper Psalms for Seasons, Days, and Special Occasions. Tables of Psalms. "Black Letter" Saints Days.
SAMPLE POSTPAID 40c CIRCULAR FREE
ASHBY PRINTING CO.
Publishers - ERIE, PENNA.

Percentages

An Ordinary Life Policy issued at age 30 costs only about 1 3/8% a year. At age 40 the cost is only about 2% a year. It would be difficult to borrow money at these rates.

The facilities of this corporation are cordially extended to clergymen and their families, and to lay-workers and their families. The net rates at which the policies are written have been stripped of all loading. We have no agents.

—o—

Inquiries are invited and should be addressed to

The Church Life Insurance Corporation
14 WALL STREET NEW YORK

(Operated under the supervision of the Trustees of the Church Pension Fund)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

large delegation of representative leaders, convened by the Federal Council of the Churches, waited on President Coolidge and the Secretary of State, on November 2, and presented a memorial urging the Government to accept the proposal of M. Briand for a treaty outlawing war between France and the United States. The memorial strongly urged, also, that this step be made the occasion for a declaration of policy that our country desires to make similar treaties with all other nations.

The memorial, signed already by over 700 churchmen and receiving additional signatures every day, was presented to the President by a committee headed by Bishop William F. McDowell of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Chairman of the Washington Committee of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

* * *

Announcement was made on Nov. 4th of the resignation of the Rt. Rev. Charles H. Brent, Bishop of Western New York, as Bishop in Charge of the Episcopal Churches in Europe; and of the appointment of the Rt. Rev. William Lawrence to succeed him. Bishop Lawrence will assume his duties at once.

Supervision of these European churches, in addition to the administration of his American diocese, it was said, has proven too great a burden for Bishop Brent in the impaired condition of his health. The churches are located in Paris, Nice, Florence, Rome, Dresdent, Munich, Geneva and Lucerne, and including the Chateau Neuvic School, in Southern France, Holy Trinity Reading Room and the United States Students and Artists' Club in Paris, are important centers for students, tourists and Americans permanently residing abroad. They are practically self-supporting. In a note announcing Bishop Brent's resignation and the appointment of Bishop Lawrence as his successor, the Rt. Rev. John Gardner Murray, Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church said:

"The Rt. Rev. Charles H. Brent, Bishop of Western New York, has been compelled by ill health to resign as Bishop in Charge of European Churches. I have accepted the resignation of Bishop Brent, and in doing so express the deepest regret which I know is shared by the entire Church because of the distinguished service he has rendered. I am happy to announce that the Rt. Rev. William Lawrence has been appointed by me successor to Bishop Brent and has accepted this appointment effective from this date. I am convinced that a universal pride and satisfaction will follow this announcement which insures a service of the highest distinction."

* * *

A memorial service commemorating the 95th anniversary of the Consecration of Bishop B. B. Smith as the first bishop of Kentucky was held at his grave in Frankfort, Kentucky on Oct. 30th. The historical address was delivered by the present bishop of the diocese, the Rt. Rev. L. W. Burton.

* * *

The 12th annual meeting of the International Goodwill Congress was held in St. Louis, Nov. 9th, 10th and 11th. Addresses were made by scores of prominent leaders, including former Secretary of War, Newton D. Baker, Col. Raymond Robbins, the Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, Hon. William E. Sweet, former governor of Colorado, Rev. Frederick Lynch, Mr. Charles Stelzle, Rev. Daniel A. Poling of New York, Mr. Henry Wickham Steed of London, Rev. Arthur J. Brown of New York, Rev. William P. Merrill of New York, Dr. John A. Lapp, professor of sociology of Marquette University, Rev. Joseph Wilson Cochran of the American Church of Paris, France, and Professor William I. Hull of Swarthmore College.

* * *

Bishop Lloyd of New York, chairman of the board of trustees of the Kuling School, China, writes:

"The friends of the Kuling School have been so singularly constant in their care of the school that I feel it is due to them that they should know how things stand. I am wondering if you will do me the favor of giving space to this letter?

"They already know of the unexpected and heavy expense that has resulted from the upheaval in China and the necessary return of the staff to this country. All this they have generously taken care of.

"At present the situation is practically chaotic. One thing is certain: The school must be ready to reopen whenever the missionaries and their children are back in their homes. It is possible, even though it

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

HARVARD SCHOOL

Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

Hospital of St. Barnabas

SCHOOL OF NURSING

Offers 2½ years course leading to R. N. Degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll now.

For full information, address

DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING

Hospital of St. Barnabas

Newark, N. J.

St. Albans The National Cathedral School For Boys

Thorough Preparation for Leading Universities. Splendid equipment, unexcelled location on Mt. St. Alban overlooking Washington. Eight years' course. Athletics for Every Boy.

Address: WILLIAM H. CHURCH

Head Master, Washington, D. C.

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London, W. I., England.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL

Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.

Address: Secretary

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request. Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, also chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses, $7.60 up, burse and veil, $15 up; Silk damask cope, $120; Silk damask chasuble, $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel., Cleveland 52.

ORGAN FOR SALE

TWO MANUAL PIPE ORGAN WITH ELECtric blower and motor. Just the right size for a small parish church. Bargain at $700. Address: St. Matthres Church, 8545 96th Street, Woodhaven, N. Y.

CHRISTMAS CARDS: TWENTY IMPORTED religious cards for $1.06, post paid. Write for circular of other cards. Girls' Friendly Society, 15 East 40th Street, New York City.

BOYS & GIRLS $2.00 Given NO WORK JUST FUN

Simply sell 50 sets of Our Famous Christmas Seals for 10c a set. When sold send us $3.00 and keep $2.00. We trust you till Xmas. St. Nichilas Seal Co., Dept. 541-W, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"GIFT BOOK. PHILO W. SPRAGUE'S last book, the Bohlen Lectures for 1924, will soon be out of print. Remaining copies $1.10, a few autographed copies at $5.10 each. Rev. Wolcott Cutler, 41 Monument Square, Charleston, Mass."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IS THIS NECESSARY
and
IS IT FAIR?

"Pay-as-you-go" means "Keep appropriations within your expected income." This is the order of General Convention.

Pledges for 1927 fell short of Budget requirements by $251,000. The National Council was forced to cut this amount from appropriations desperately needed.

The Axe Fell

And what follows is but one of many examples of the keenness of its blade

When word reached Kyoto, Bishop Nichols and his Council did their best to reduce expenditures. Still the total was less than the reduction required. Then Bishop Nichols put the situation up to the American missionaries. They all agreed that their salaries should be cut in order to make up the difference between needs and reduced appropriations. One missionary wrote what must have been in the minds of all:

> "It does seem a little tough to have to cut into one's salary after one has tried to be generous with the appeal for the year's quota. It will mean a little less of this or that that we meant to do for the purpose of recreation, and perhaps mean the giving up of long-cherished dreams.
>
> "All this means pinching and self-sacrifice.
>
> "I surely hope that we will not have to cut another year, for I do not like to do it even though this year I was prepared to take a cut of double the 1¾ per cent if necessary."

Is the Missionary paying from his pocket, money which ought to be paid from yours?

You Can Give Your Answer in the

EVERY MEMBER CANVASS

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL, 281 Fourth Ave., New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York
139 West Forty-sixth Street
Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D., Litt.D.
Sunday Masses, 7:30, 8:15, 9, 10:45.
Vespers and Benediction, 4.
Week-day Masses, 7, 8, 9:30.

St. John's, Cynwyd, Pa.
The Birthplace of the Lenten Offering
When in Philadelphia attend services here. Call Cynwyd 1382 for information.
Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, D.D., Rector
Sundays 8 and 11 A. M.

may not be probable, that the school must be ready next autumn. Things are moving so rapidly in China that nobody can guess what will be.

"Meantime there are certain continuing expenses: for the care and upkeep of the property, for financial obligations to certain members of the staff who reached this country too late to establish themselves for the current academic year. These things must be provided for. The Trustees feel sure that those who have made it possible for Kuling to be so firmly established will be unwilling to allow the school to be put in jeopardy.

"Personally I have no doubt that the faith of the Trustees in the friends of the school will be justified."

* * *

The Every-Member Canvass of Trinity parish, Potsdam, New York, has been held in advance of the canvass date adopted by the diocese generally. This canvass was organized and executed by the Men's Club in the absence of the rector, and the result was an over subscription of the budget. The canvass was made on Sunday, October 30th. The morning service was an Every Member Attendance service, with a corporate Communion of the canvassers. The following evening the men of the parish gave the rector, the Rev. W. J. Hamilton, a surprise dinner at which they presented him with a handsome Oxford Bible. Mr. Hamilton remarked of the successful canvass, "It shows what men will do if responsibility is placed upon them."

* * *

A series of Bishop Crusade serv-

ANNIVERSARY OF THE GIRLS' FRIENDLY

(Continued from page 7)

N. Y., Miss Julia J. Cunningham of Baltimore, and Mrs. Charles E. Roberts of Kansas City, Mo., for the Second, Third, and Seventh Provinces respectively. The rest of the officers were re-elected. Development of the G. F. S. National Center in Washington is progressing, and a house has been bought for it.

In the matter of finance, the G.F.S. Council found its lofty theme and purpose of "widening horizons" in perplexing conflict with cuts in its budget. The executive committee was asked by a rising vote to devise if possible some means of increasing the Society's resources.

The finest sort of hard work, long before the meeting and while it was going on, was done by the various national and Massachusetts diocesan committees, the Hotel Statler management rendering every possible assistance and courtesy.

The place of the 1930 meeting was not determined.

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily: 7:30 and 10 A. M. and 5:00 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m., 4 p. m.
Daily, 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursday, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11 A. M., and 8 P. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursday, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 7, 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., Fri., and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30 and 11:00 A. M., 5:00, 6:15 and 8:00 P. M.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp and Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country: its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — In a Sound Body

HOWE — INDIANA

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

ices were held at Christ Church, Hornell, New York, the week of October 16th, the missioners being Bishop Ferris and the Rev. Henry deWolf deMauriac, rector at East Aurora, New York. This is the second series of Crusade services to be held in the parish.

* * *

The Rev. John Gilbert Spencer, rector at Hornell, was presented with a Studebaker sedan by his parish.

* * *

Professor Manley O. Hudson of Harvard University was the speaker at the Armistice Day service held at St. James' Church, Chicago, under the auspices of the social service commission.

* * *

The million dollar campaign for the new St. John's Hospital in the diocese of Long Island came to an end with a victory dinner at which it was announced that $965,185 had been raised. The balance of the million dollars was immediately pledged by those attending the dinner. The campaign was under the direction of the firm of Ward, Wells, Dreshman and Gates. Gifts came from the one dollar of a little newsboy, the $30 of a scrubwoman, the $60 of the workmen now digging the foundations, and the $100,000 gifts of the millionaires. Race, creed and color were put aside during the campaign as it will be in the service to be performed by the hospital. "All have joined together," said Bishop Stires, "to give to Brooklyn a hospital that will immortalize its generosity for generations to come."

* * *

The class on personal religion has been resumed at St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston, and will continue on Fridays at 11 A. M., throughout the winter.

* * *

Bishop Brewster of Maine dedicated the new parish house of St. Stephen's Church, Portland, last week. St. Stephen's is the oldest Episcopal Church in the state.

Clerical Changes

BENNETT, Rev. A. G. B., rector of All Souls', Biltmore, N. C., has accepted a call to St. Timothy's. Columbia. S. C.

BURROUGHS, Rev. Nelson M., formerly curate of St. Paul's, Syracuse, New York, was instituted rector of St. Mark's, Syracuse, on November 6th.

CALEY, Rev. N. H., assistant at the Redeemer, Bryn Mawr, Pa., has accepted the rectorship of St. Paul's, Oaks, Pa.

KLOMAN, Rev. E. F., executive secretary of the missionary district of Liberia, has accepted an appointment as assistant at Grace Church, New York City.

TRACY, Rev. Leland H., rector of St. John's, San Francisco, California, has accepted an appointment as priest-in-charge of St. Luke's, Los Gatos, California, with charge of nearby missions.

WILSON, Rev. C. A., rector of Trinity, Baraboo, Wisconsin, has accepted an appointment as priest-in-charge of St. John's, Sparta, Wisconsin.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, jurnalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO

Church Training School

President: The Bishop of Chicago.

Director of Studies: The Rev. F. C. Grant, S.T.D.

A two year course of practical work and study to prepare women for service in the Church. Address:

DEACONESS FULLER
211 So. Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Add Richness to Your Religious Outlook

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman

Rt. Rev. Charles H. Brent

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick

Bishop Francis J. McConnell

Miss Mary E. Woolley

with the aid of these outstanding religious leaders

HEADED by Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, five distinguished men and women, noted for their leadership in the religious world, are offering to help you cull the finest and the best out of current spiritual literature.

No longer will you need to waste your time on books that are of little significance, while you vainly endeavor to sort the wheat from the chaff.

From the vast fields in which spiritual ideals are finding literary expression today, including history, discussions of contemporary social problems, philosophy, poetry and fiction, the distinguished Editorial Committee of the Religious Book Club will choose for you the outstanding and the most interesting books.

Thus you will obtain each month the cooperation of

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America
Chairman of the Editorial Committee of the Religious Book Club

Rt. Rev. Charles H. Brent, Bishop of Western New York

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, preacher and author

Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of Pittsburgh

Miss Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke College, and president of the American Association of University Women

The Editorial Committee will not confine its search solely to American works. It will explore the religious fields of foreign countries and develop an American circulation for the worthwhile spiritual books of Europe and Asia.

Books for Pastor and Layman

Perhaps you are an isolated clergyman in a remote rural district, or a pastor in the heart of a throbbing city. Perhaps you are a layman, eager to stimulate your mind by intelligent religious reflection.

The Religious Book Club will shed light on your problem.

You have only to signify your intention of becoming a member, and you have enlisted the services of the best religious minds of the country to work in your behalf. They will suggest to you what they consider the most significant new spiritual book of the month. The Religious Book Club will mail you a review of this book so that you may decide for yourself whether the book appeals to you. If it does, the Club will see to it that it reaches your library table as promptly and regularly as a magazine. If it does not appeal to you, you may choose a book from the supplementary list of titles which have been selected by the committee, and which are reviewed in the same bulletin with the review of the book chosen by the committee.

No Fees, No Risk

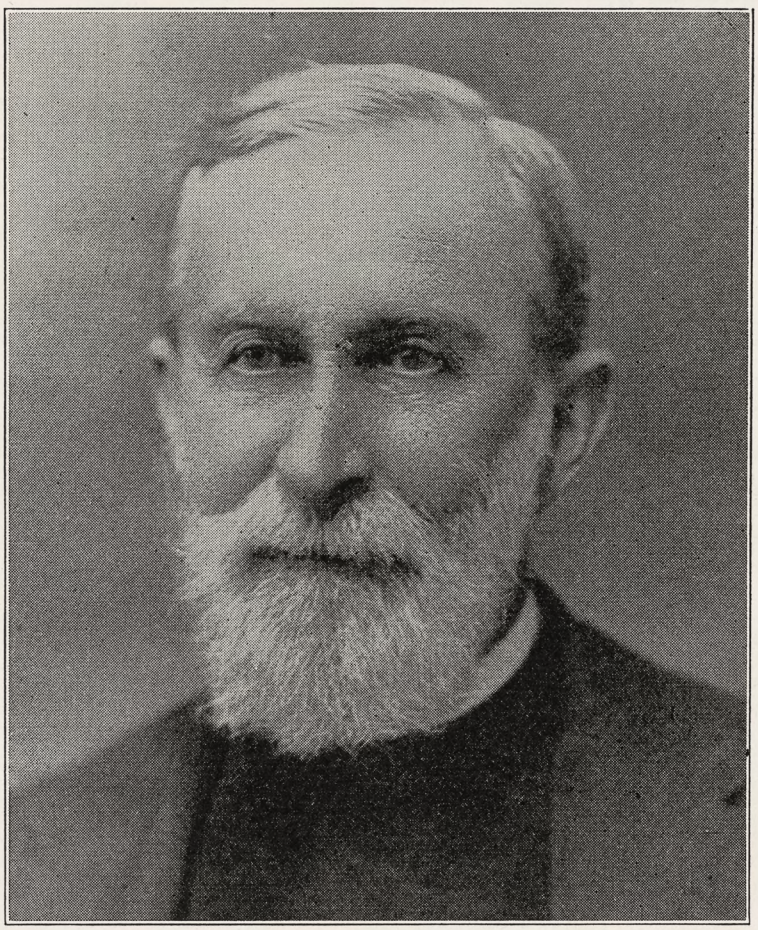
It costs you nothing to join the Club. You can join without cost, without fees and without risk. Its services are free, and through it you obtain at regular prices a library that has been selected with discriminating care by five of the best qualified judges in America. For the book which the postman delivers to you each month, you pay the Religious Book Club exactly what you would pay the publisher or the bookseller.

For a 3 Months Trial, Mail This Coupon

Religious Book Club, Inc. 1Q
80 Lafayette Street
New York, N. Y.

Please enroll me as a subscriber to your service for 3 months. The price of the book sent to me each month is to be the price put upon it by the publisher himself (from $2 to $3), plus the postage. A bill is to be sent with each book, and I agree to pay it within ten days of receipt.

Name _____



Address _____

City and State _____

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, NOVEMBER 24, 1927

REV. ROBERT BRENT DRANE

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass mosaics church decorations

For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 657 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.

Church Bells — Peals

McShane Bell Foundry Co.

Baltimore, Md.

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring

Inquiries given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.

174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403) (Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS

Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York

CHURCH VESTMENTS

ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings

IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts. NEW YORK

460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J

The Taylor Bell Foundry

LOUGHBOROUGH, ENGLAND

The World's Leading Bellfounders

CHURCH BELLS

SINGLY OR IN PEALS
CHIMES OR CARILLONS
AUTOMATIC OPERATION

Unequalled for Musical Qualities

Yale University — Birmingham, Ala.
Andover — Gloucester
Morristown — Cranbrook, Mich.
Harvard University
Germantown, Etc., Etc.

INQUIRIES SOLICITED

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS

Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Groupings
Gorgeous Combinations of Color
Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio New York City

DEAGAN

Tubular Bell Tower Chimes

The one most beautiful form of memorial

Standard Sets, $6000 up

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc.

161 Deagan Building, Chicago

Played Direct From Organ Console

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:

EXETER

and 4 & 5 Duncannon St: Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal and
Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

Stained Glass Artists

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.,

French Building

551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

R. GEISSLER, INC.

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

EST 1867

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— Office and Studio —

221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.

DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

— Photos, Designs and Estimates upon Application —

ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 14 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

A Parson Speaks Out

Statement by a Famous Londoner

The REV. H. R. L. SHEPPARD

FOR fifteen years now I have been growing increasingly disturbed at the condition of Institutional Religion, but except for occasional outbursts from the pulpit of St. Martin-in-the-Fields I have held my peace; for while I thought I knew what was wrong, I did not know how it could be remedied. There is nothing easier than to find fault with the Churches, but the gain to truth by the mere announcement of a famine is not considerable.

It so happens that for the last three years circumstances which have compelled me to relinquish active work have given me opportunity for thought and study, which the ceaseless round of parochial cares necessarily denied. I have spent that time in one long attempt to make my criticism constructive, and to think how those things that seem amiss and even deplorable in organized Christianity, and especially the paralyzing unreality of much of its presentation, might conceivably be remedied. I think I can see the way round a number of corners that once defeated me.

I am compelled, with the greatest reluctance, to believe that the Churches have corporately so misunderstood the message of their Founder, and so mishandled and mislaid His values—the values of His Father-God—that what survives and does duty nowadays, through the Churches, as Christianity is a caricature of what Christ intended. The Churches need much more than patch-work repair.

A New Version

There must needs be a Christian Society founded on the revelation of Jesus Christ; but if that Society is to be according to the mind of Christ, I fancy it will have to be so wholly different in breadth and outlook from any Church that exists today, as to be scarcely recognizable as belonging to the family of Churches as we now know them. An immense revolution is inevitable if the common people are again to hear Christ gladly.

I am convinced that the world is looking for a fresher, truer, and larger version of the religion of Jesus Christ, and that it is justified in requiring it.

Those who come back from foregn parts tell us that the peoples of the East are wanting Christ, but that they have no desire for Church systems. We accept their opinion, but fail to realize that this attitude is also typical of the West. Men, today, are not looking for a religious system, and yet the soul of the world, consciously or unconsciously, is crying for the Christ. This does not mean that the world of our day is ready to accept Christianity. I am under no delusion that it can be made acceptable to all.

Originally, when it was perfectly presented, "many went back and walked no more with Him." I have no faith in the existence of that great crowd which some genial optimists encourage us to believe is only waiting to give its enthusiasm to Christianity until certain ecclesiastical reforms have been brought about.

If the Churches to-morrow were to become out-and-out Christian, and if all their ministers were to prophesy —that is, to speak the flaming Word of God in the hearing of the people— it is more than likely that places of worship would be emptier than they are today, and it is certain that a goodly number of people would be stoned.

We do not like prophets until they are dead, and even then, while we commemorate them in stone and stereotype their message for all time in a form which they themselves would especially deprecate, we should be gravely disturbed if—as Mr. Bernard Shaw reminds us in his inspired "St. Joan"—they contemplated returning to continue their tiresome habit of saying uncomfortable things.

The truth is that Christendom refuses to take Jesus Christ seriously. It is devoted to Him, but it does not know what to do with Him, and it does not believe that a religion founded upon His Father-God and His standards could meet the practical demands of this very complicated world. It is not thought possible for a religion to prevail which refuses to arm itself with the weapons that this world both advocates and uses.

Christendom has acted, and is acting, as if Jesus Christ had given in to the use of magic, force, and superstitious fear, which, as a matter of fact, in His Temptation He definitely rejected as being incompatible with His Kingdom of God. Over-critical as it may sound, I am forced to believe that Christendom today is profoundly ignorant of the very essentials of its faith. Christian people do not yet know to what their faith commits them. The Christianity and the Churches has become an immensely complicated affair, and, in consequence, men escape gladly or sorrowfully from its appeal. A new and very real sacrifice on the part of every Church will be needed before the full Gospel can be preached to this generation.

Christianity or Catastrophe

The sense of urgency under which I have written has, I fear, caused me to be less than generous, and possibly less than just, in acknowledging the inestimable service that Institutional Religion has rendered and is rendering to humanity at large and to individuals in particular. One thing I may be permitted to say on behalf of myself: I have made no suggestion in this article that would take from any single soul any Church privilege which at the moment he values and esteems; my own concern has been esteems; my concern has been rather to suggest how those privileges may become more generally available.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

For any injustice of which I am guilty or appear to be guilty I sincerely apologize, and yet I plead that there is some excuse for counting it scarcely worth while to pause to praise at length what is good now in Institutional Religion, since it is so obviously and so disastrously not nearly good enough.

I feel that Western civilization will go up in the smoke of another World War long before Christianity, moving at its present pace, takes possession; it is horrible to think that some who read these pages may themselves be the victims of the next war. As I see things, it is a close race now between Christianity and Catastrophe, and the issue will be decided within the lifetime of many of my readers.

I am haunted by the vision of what the Gospel of Jesus Christ has it within its power to do for a world heading for disaster; while, in depressing contrast, I am sensitive to the spectacle of what it is actually achieving with its number of mutually isolated if not antagonistic Churches, entrenched against each other and each offering but a partial version of the saving wisdom of Christ.

The Churches will never earn the right to possess the hearts of the people until to attain a noble objective they make, and gladly make, hazardous acts of faith and sacrifice.

COURAGE; NOT PATIENCE

I have become convinced that it is the duty of those who have come to think as I do, no longer to exercise patience, but to speak out, not indeed with a blast of defiance or flippancy but in a humble endeavour to assist where one may. This obligation is not to be denied even to the lowliest working partner in a great concern. Christianity badly needs rash men who will not flinch from the crispness of religion, nor fear the result of stirring up wasps' nests.

There are times in history when decisive and courageous action is the only safe course to pursue; when it is high time that what is said to be desirable but impossible should be done, and done without delay. I am convinced that such a time for Christianity has arrived; that is, if it is to have any hand in persuading humanity to try the better way—God's royal road of love. There is nothing more dangerous than to avoid danger; nothing so annihilating as timidity.

During the war an Archbishop was seen in a front-line trench in gaiters and a tin hat. Canon Guy Rogers has remarked on the encouragement that could be derived from his Grace's appearance, since while his legs were firmly rooted in the past, his head was moving with the times. Of such is the spirit of the true reformer.

Our Cover

OVER half a century of service as the beloved rector of St. Paul's parish, Edenton, North Carolina, is the record of Rev. Robert Brent Drane, D.D., the golden anniversary of whose rectorship was celebrated on All Saints' Day, November 1, 1926. Dr. Drane was born in Wilmington, N. C., on December 5, 1851, the son of Rev. Robert Brent Drane and Caroline Parker Drane, his father having been the rector of St. James' parish, Wilmington. In 1872 he graduated from St. Stephen's College, and from the General Theological Seminary in 1875. He was assistant minister at St. James' Church, Wilmington, for a short time before coming to Edenton in 1876. During these more than fifty years he has endeared himself to the community by his faithful ministrations as spiritual leader, as loyal friend, and fine citizen, actively interested in all civic movements for good, and has been an outstanding figure in Church affairs, holding various diocesan offices and having been a delegate to the General Convention and to the Provincial Synod.

Let's Know

FRIDAY

By Frank E. Wilson

FRIDAY, in all probability, derives its name from the old Norse goddess Fria, just as in the French form of Vendredi it probably derives from the Roman goddess Venus. It is not for either of these reasons, however, that it is popularly considered an "unlucky" day. That phase of it apparently comes from the fact that our Lord was crucified on that day of the week.

I have met very intelligent people who refuse to commence anything on a Friday. I have known them to change their plans of travel because inadvertently they had arranged for departure on a day which turned out to be Friday. Very likely, if anyone would keep a record over a period of a few years, one would find that just about as many successful ventures date from this day of the week as unsuccessful ones. In my parish the regular night for Vestry meetings is the first Friday of the month and in eight years I have still to quarrel with my Vestry, neither can I see where the parish has suffered from the use of this particular day.

Indeed, if we are to follow the Genesis story, man was created on a Friday. This is the traditional reason for the selection by Mahomet of the sixth day as the day of worship for the Moslem world.

And as far as Americans are concerned, there are several important events inextricably associated with that day. For instance, it was on a Friday that Columbus sailed on his voyage of discovery and also on a Friday, ten weeks later, that he discovered the New World. Moreover it was on the same day of the week that St. Augustine, the oldest city in the United States, was founded.

On another Friday, John Cabot received his commission for a trans-Atlantic trip, resulting in the discovery of North America. It was likewise on a Friday that the Mayflower arrived at Plymouth.

On Friday George Washington was born and on another Friday Lord Cornwallis surrendered to him at Yorktown, bringing the Revolutionary War to a successful end. And, speaking of wars, the United States made its declaration of a state of war with Germany on Friday, April 6, 1917. Of course, that was a trifle unlucky for the Germans but you can't please everybody.

A few years ago three brave couples were married at the same time in Chicago. They selected Friday the 13th as their wedding day and were married at the thirteenth hour in cell No. 13 of an old convict ship. Each bride carried a black cat in her arms and at the close of the ceremony thirteen mirrors were solemnly crashed to grace the occasion. I have not heard how the marriages turned out, but I have no doubt they had as good a chance as the airplane marriages, the automobile weddings, or sundry other sensational matrimonial performances—including the obnoxious Tom Thumb travesties.

Isn't it time that Christian people had a little more faith in God and a little less fear of popular superstitions?

A cable from Liberia says that Bishop Campbell was to sail from Monrovia for the United States, via England, on November 11, for a period of activity in this country in connection with the work in Liberia.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

WHY THE CHURCH TEACHES

V. Sacramental Grace

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

THERE are two viewpoints of religion that are quite opposite in their method and in their ultimate designs.

The one is an attempt to erect a tower toward heaven out of the materials at hand.

It is painfully engaged in constructing a philosophy of life from which the supernatural is carefully eliminated. It rejects sacraments and miracles, the Virgin Birth and the Resurrection of the Body, the gift of the Holy Spirit and the vital necessity of the Eucharist and puts its faith in the observations of scientists, the hypotheses of psycho-analysts or the principles of business men.

There are as many different varieties of this human sky-scraper as there are etherial architects to construct them. They begin in the idea of man's complete self-sufficiency and end as of old in a hopeless confusion of tongues.

Personally I cannot have faith in their ever reaching any other definite destination—which is adequately described in that touching and meaningless hymn, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

This species of religion is frequently labelled Christian, because there was no international copyright law in force when Christ gave His name to His religion.

It is an unconscious tribute to Christ that they should attach His name to something made in America within the memory of man.

It produces a species of home without reverence for God since they have created Him, and without sympathy for the down and outs, since they are up and doing.

It appeals to successful people who believe that they have eradicated sin, dissipated any real resurrection, and secularized eternal life.

The other view of religion is based on revelation and has no faith in the assumption that man can achieve a heavenly life out of clay bricks. This view starts with the supernatural, believes in God's personal supervision of His Kingdom and bases its hope of eternal life on the instruments which Christ instituted for his salvation.

We believe that the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us; that Christ had no human father; that He performed miracles; that He rose from the dead in the body which was crucified; not unclothed, but clothed upon, and that He promised and gave to His Church a supernatural gift on the Day of Pentecost.

We believe that we are saved by grace and that not of ourselves, but it is the gift of God. And we believe that the Day of Pentecost was the one and only harmonizing principle injected into human society so that every man can hear in his own tongue the wonderful works of God.

This second group, who believe in the supernatural, may be further divided into sacramentalists and Fundamentalists, between whom there is this difference.

The sacramentalist believes that God gave this power to an institution and the Fundamentalist believes that He gave it to and through a book.

The Fundamentalist makes sacramental grace something that happened at Pentecost and then ceased, whereas the sacramentalist believes that the power of the Holy Ghost is a living power which abides permanently in His Church and that the gift can be stirred up and imparted wherever and whenever the faithful observe the laws of its operation.

The sacramentalist accepts Holy Scripture as the result of God's Holy Spirit inspiring His prophets, but he holds that a book lacks the power of that personal touch which Christ imparted to the sacraments, and is itself the product of the institution.

It is one thing to believe that I become a child of God in Holy Baptism, a recipient of the Holy Spirit in confirmation, and a temple of the Divine Presence in the Holy Eucharist, and quite another thing to believe that I am empowered so to interpret Holy Scripture that my interpretation shall become the rule of life for my adherents.

The one conception deals with my intimate personal relationship with Jesus Christ and the other deals with my commission to interpret His word to my fellow men.

It may seem strange that one should hold a view of supernatural grace which would enable him to confess that which human intelligence so often derides, but one finds a certain satisfaction in this position, because one is not forced to accept any of the anaemic substitutes for the power of the Catholic Church in leavening human society.

My criticism of the high brow substitutes for the Catholic faith is that they have never done anything but drag out a sort of parasitic existence in the immediate vicinity of the Catholic Church. When the Catholic Church ceases to live they all cease to function. They have no life of their own and no power except a reflected one.

I am not referring to the number of adherents in any particular time or place, nor to the zeal of the members, but to the fact that when the Catholic faith seems to die, it rises from the dead again, but when any one of these thousand and one cults once die, they are as dead as a door nail.

Excepting in those countries where Rome has bottled up the grace of God in her ecclesiastical air-tight compartments, the Catholic faith has persisted through the centuries in a most astounding fashion, like nothing else on earth. Whether you look at Armenia under the Turks, or Russia under the Soviet, or England under the Hanoverians, you find a power of resurrection which has survived slavery, and persecution and dry rot.

It is a phenomenon well worth investigating for it is like none other in human history.

I believe in the power of the Holy Spirit working through His Church as the most potent force in human history, operating through long periods of time and in spite of prolonged lapses from righteousness on the part of those temporarily responsible for its ministration.

Call it a supernatural force if you will. I believe it is one of the best attested forces in human history.

And I believe also the power of the Holy Spirit is a matter of personal experience in the conflict which one has with doubt and sin and depression.

The educated Christian is in a much better position to compare the spiritual values of science and religion than the scientist who utterly lacks a spiritual experience.

It is not at all strange that a materialistic scientist should call me an ignoramus about science and assume a superiority complex because of the fact that I am not a trained scientist, but it has always seemed to me a piece of insufferable arrogance that some insignificant scientist should arrogate an attitude of superiority over the religious faith of a Pasteur or a Pupin, who has a far greater knowledge of science than they possess, as well as a personal experience in religion which they utterly lack.

It is this internal experience of sacramental religion which satisfies the religious needs of all men.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

A religion which can appeal to an Isaac Newton and an African savage, to a Pasteur and an Esquimaux, to a Pupin and a Serbian peasant has a note of universality which is not affected by the chattering of one compartment minds.

The Church insists on the reality of sacramental grace because a practical belief in such a force is attested in the lives of those who have earnestly sought love and joy and peace through these instrumentalities.

The natural man receiveth not the things of God and they are foolishness unto him in exactly the same way that a savage receiveth not the culture of education and for the same reason,—he is utterly ignorant of an experience that is foreign to him.

Then there are those who would substitute religious emotion for sacramental grace. Unquestionably religious emotion has the power to produce an intense heat but it has always lacked permanence. It resembles the heat of a fireplace as a substitute for steam heat. It warms you intensely on one side and leaves you cold on the other.

Religious emotion by itself has never been able to produce that sympathetic interest in the relief of suffering and in sympathy for the sinner that sacramental religion has produced. It is much like the relation of passion and love in marriage. Passion may tie the knot but it has never tied a knot that can stand the strain of the long pull, for passion is essentially self-centered while love finds its joy in sacrificial service.

I believe in sacramental grace because I admire the kind of people it produces where and when it is intimately related to the life and ideals of Christ as well as to His doctrines.

To hold sacramental grace as a merely mechanical force is to pervert it; to combine it with the evangelical practices of Christ is to ennoble the soul who receives it.

Just a word about the series on the Prayer Book by Irwin St. John Tucker. There are more of these to follow and they will come along next week. Just a bit crowded so we figured you wouldn't mind if we skipped a week. Incidentally, we would be very glad to have the opinions of readers on these articles by Mr. Tucker.

* * *

They are to build a new parish house for Holy Trinity, New York City. The new building will adjoin the church which is the daughter-church of St. James'. It is to be a memorial to Mr. Charles E. Rhinelander and is made possible by a legacy from his estate.

BISHOP FISKE
Preacher at Big Service

Cheerful Confidences

TEACHING THE YOUNG IDEAS

By Rev. George Parkin Atwater

RECENTLY I went to service in a very attractive Church. The rector is a kind, well disposed and efficient man.

He read the first lesson and it ended in this manner.

"Thus saith the Lord God of Israel. Put every man his sword by his side, and go out from gate to gate throughout the camp, and slay every man his brother, and every man his companion, and every man his neighbor.

"And the children of Israel did according to the word of Moses and there fell of the people that day about three thousand men."

Here endeth the first lesson.

I shuddered. What lectionary provided that sort of idea of God. Here were a dozen children getting the idea of a blood-thirsty, avenging God. No explanation was possible. It was the Bible that was being read. The Bible is the Word of God. And this was God's command.

Luckily, very few people pay attention to such lessons, and these words no doubt fell on unattentive ears.

But frankly, I would rather take my children to see the Dempsey-Tunney contest and to have them get a notion about clean athletes, playing the game squarely, than to have them get the idea of God contained in that lesson.

Unless we begin to eliminate the crude conceptions of three thousand years ago, and unless we place the Old Testament in its proper place in our scheme of things, we are going to produce mental confusion that will bury religion in a sea of mud.

I waited hopefully for the New Testament lesson, to see if it would not correct the impression. Here is what I heard.

"And upon a set day, Herod made an oration.

"And the people gave a shout saying, 'It is the voice of a god, and not of a man.'

"And immediately the angel of the Lord smote him because he gave not God the glory, and he was eaten of worms, and gave up the ghost."

It would require all the strategy of a theological professor, and all the diplomacy of a bishop to make clear that that passage did not mean that God was a whimsical tyrant who sent an avenging angel to slay whom he would.

The Oriental imagery and reasoning process, are not well adapted to the minds of men accustomed to our Western straightforward ways of telling the truth.

Moral: Read over the lessons in advance, and if they have passages not adapted to those who have no historic sense, or to those who have no keenness about penetrating the language process of the Oriental, then either explain clearly, or omit the passage.

Our manner of reading lessons without any word of explanation, bears about the same relation to intelligent instruction, as the alchemy practiced in the little one room houses or the great wall of Prague bears to modern chemistry.

About Books

Reviewed by the Rev. Irvine Goddard

PETER: PRINCE OF APOSTLES. Prof. F. J. Foakes-Jackson, .D.D. Doran, $2.50.

The ingenuity of some of our Biblical scholars is remarkable and refreshing, especially when they are blessed with a creative imagination. Dr. Foakes-Jackson is thrice blessed, and his gift is more than evident in his treatment of St. Peter. Fact and fancy, tradition and history, are so skillfully blended in this book that we have a convincing and somewhat substantial portrait of an otherwise dim and shadowy figure. St. Peter incarnates the history of Christianity, not of its theology, so much as of its activity, its authority, its influence on the mind of man. Roman, Anglican and Protestant alike can gather much information and perhaps wisdom from a careful study of this ably written book.

* * *

OFFICES OF MYSTICAL RELIGION. William Norman Guthrie, D.D. Century Co. $2.50.

We should be grateful to Dr.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Guthrie for the publication of this volume. We may not be able to share his enthusiasm for this form of worship, more mystic and natural than our glorified Matins. Still, in all fairness, we are glad to get first hand information of what the Rector of St. Mark's in the Bouerie has been for years attempting in the matter of public worship. We believe the future is in the hands of Dr. Guthrie and men similarly minded. The day will surely come when the need for a living liturgical language will be felt more keenly than now and when that time comes experts in the imaginative expression of congregational worship will appear, and the Church will acquire a new and thrilling interest.

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

A member of a congregation, becoming angry at a sermon the minister was preaching, wrote the single word "Fool" on a sheet of paper, called an usher to him, and had it delivered to the minister in the middle of his sermon.

The minister opened the paper and read what was written. Then he said: "An unusual thing has happened. A member of the congregation has signed his name without writing the letter."

* * *

Mrs. Waring entered her milliner's in a state of exceptional excitement.

"My new hat has been trimmed on the wrong side!" she cried, angrily. "I want it altered!"

"The trimming is on the right side, as it should be," replied the assistant.

"It makes no difference where it ought to be!" shrieked the infuriated woman. "It's got to be on the church side."

"Church side, madam?"

"Yes, church side; I sit close to the wall, and I'm not paying $40 for trimming that can't be seen. I want it on the other side so's all the congregation can see it!"

* * *

Catch Weights. — The following story is told of the Welsh Church Disestablishment Campaign. Mr. Lloyd George was to address a meeting. His chairman said to a very enthusiastic audience amid rapturous applause, "Friends, we all know that the Bishop of X is a terrible liar, but thank God, we have a match for him on the platform tonight."

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

Hospital of St. Barnabas
SCHOOL OF NURSING

Offers 2½ years course leading to R. N. Degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll now.

For full information, address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas
Newark, N. J.

A New Fosdick Book

A PILGRIMAGE TO PALESTINE

By Harry Emerson Fosdick. Author of "The Modern Use of the Bible"

Pretty nearly every square foot of Palestine had something informing to say to this life-long Bible lover "concerning the Scriptures."
Place your order now. To be published December 6th. Colored frontispiece. Price, $2.50

Why spend a dollar on a trinket when you can now buy Fosdick's "Modern Use of the Bible," cloth bound, for ninety (90) cents?

CHRISTIANITY

By Charles Guignebert. Prof. of History of Christianity, University of Paris

Endeavors to describe and account for the formation, successive modifications and final destruction not of dogmatic assertions of religions in general but of one particular religion, studied as a concrete reality. It is above all with facts, their significance, consequences and connections that it deals. It is history. An English translation.
Crown Octavo, 500 pp. Price $4.50

The Wrestle of Religion with Truth

By Henry Nelson Wieman. Author of "Religious Experience and Scientific Method"

With the appearance of "The Wrestle of Religion With Truth" Wieman takes an assured place as a constructive thinker of the first rank in the field of religion—Christian Century.
Price $2.50

B. H. Streeter's
Reality
A sterling good book which without any blowing of trumpets is steadily making new friends
$2.50

John Rathbone Oliver
FEAR
The Autobiography of James Edwards
You have one parishioner and "personal problem" whom this book fits like a glove
$2.50

The Evolution of the English Hymn
By Frederick J. Gillman
A comprehensive survey of its subject which students of the psychology of worship will greatly prize. Its three hundred pages of text constitute a rich treasury of general information. Illustrated. Price $2.50

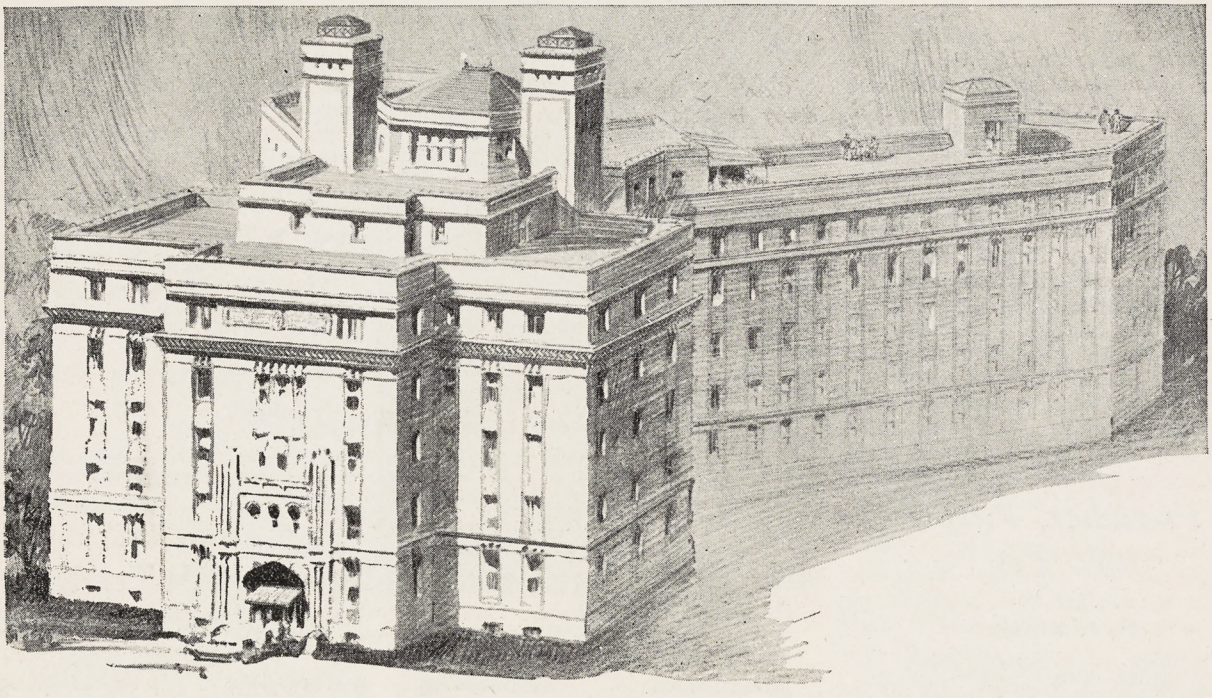
The Church and the Russian Revolution
By Matthew Spinka
A thorough and well documented history of the effects of the Russian Revolution on the Russian Church based on intimate acquaintance with Russia and the Russian language. Its attitude is purely historical and impartial. Price $2.50

Christianity and Judaism Compare Notes
By H. F. Rall and S. S. Cohon
A Methodist theological professor gives an exposition of his Christianity to the theological student body of Hebrew Union College and one of its professors returns the compliment and gives an exposition of his Judaism to the student body of Garrett Biblical Institute.
You will agree that this is something new in the way of "better relations between Jew and Christian." Price $2.00

The Making of Luke-Acts
By Henry J. Cadbury
Luke's two-volume history was the most ambitious literary undertaking of early Christianity. An unusual approach and a copious fund of new illustrative details combine to produce a fascinatingly fresh picture of "the first age of Christianity." Price $3.00

Understanding the Apostles' Creed
By Donald McFayden
Argues that it is essentially what its name implies—a summary of the original apostolic preaching and must be studied, therefore, in its historic setting. Price $2.60

Secrets of Effective Living
By James Gordon Gilkey
Companion volume to his "A Faith for the New Generation." The platform of modern liberalism as a working faith. Price $1.75



New Studies in Mystical Religion
By Rufus M. Jones
Author of "The Inner Life," Etc.
Back of it is ripe scholarship, but it is written for the general reader interested in the verities and realities of vital religion. Price $1.75

The Religious Mind
By C. K. Mahoney (Dakota Wesleyan)
Credits religious concepts rationally based on the experiences of religion with the ability to perform the same function as that performed by the concepts similarly based on other phases of experience. Price $2.00

Man, God and Immortality
By Sir James George Frazer
All owners of the one-volume abridged edition of "The Golden Bough" will welcome this new companion book composed of choice passages garnered from all his voluminous works pertaining to the three highest themes of human thought—MAN, GOD AND IMMORTALITY. Done in a style comparable to that of Anatole France, they make breathless reading. Octavo. Over 400 pages. Price, $3.00

At your book store or from
60 Fifth Ave. THE MACMILLAN COMPANY New York
Atlanta Boston Chicago Dallas San Francisco

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE picture above is of the new St. John's Hospital, Brooklyn, for which a million dollars has just been raised. The committee in charge of the undertaking was headed by Bishop Stires, General George A. Wingate and the Hon. Stephen Callaghan, justice of the supreme court, whereas the firm of Ward, Wells, Dreshman and Gates was retained for the organization details. How well the work was done may be judged by the fact that a million dollars was raised in Brooklyn—no easy task so I am informed by a Brooklynite—and by the letter written by Bishop Stires which appears on the back page of this issue.

* * *

An even fifty speakers from various parts of the country spent the week of November 13th and a part of last week in Boston addressing congregations, college classes, forums, radio audiences, clubs and ministers associations on the subject of Human Values in Industry. The program was arranged by Rev. George L. Paine, executive secretary of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches. Among the more prominent speakers were Mr. James H. Maurer, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, Dr. Worth M. Tippy of the social service commission of the Federal Council of Churches, Professor Skinner of Tufts, Professor Vaughan of Boston University, Mr. H. O. Stetson, secretary of Associated Industries of Massachusetts, Rev. Norman Nash of the Episcopal Theological Seminary, Mr. James Myers of the Federal Council, Dr. C. S. Macfarland of the same organization, and a number of Boston employers and labor leaders.

* * *

The anniversary of the founding of St. Stephen's, Grand Island, Nebr., was celebrated on a recent Sunday. The parish was organized in 1871, which may seem a short time ago to you easterners, but is a long ways back in the western country. The present church, pictured in this issue, was completed in 1889. The present rector is the Rev. J. Newham MacKensie.

* * *

Bishop Murray, presiding bishop, underwent a minor operation in a Baltimore hospital last week. His son, Dr. John G., Jr., stated, following the operation, that there was no cause for anxiety. Bishop Murray is seventy-five years old.

* * *

An interesting bit of news for those of you who are interested in industrial problems; a committee of church leaders are to make a study of an industrial plant in the middle west which is operated on the open shop basis (a company which is proud of its treatment of employees) and then are to make an equally thorough study of a firm in the same industry operating in Philadelphia on a union basis. The benefits and the injuries wrought to both employers and workers under the two systems may then be compared.

* * *

Colonel John T. Axton, chief of chaplains of the army, says that the army is "not cluttered up with religious dissensions" although there are twenty-eight denominations represented in the Chaplains Corps. There were over 21,000 religious services in the army during the past year with an estimated attendance of 1,780,578. Over a thousand were baptised and close to six hundred married by the chaplains.

* * *

The total receipts from dioceses to the National Council to November 7th were $74,111.97 behind last year. Instead of gaining in October as the leaders had expected there was a loss of $24,000. Mr. Lewis B. Franklin, secretary, says: "Please buy some non-skid chains and then step on the gas." There are, however, twenty dioceses and districts (mostly districts) on the honor roll, meaning that they have paid their quotas to date.

* * *

Those who would sow the seeds of hatred and conflict between England and the United States were attacked by Bishop Stires in a sermon preached last Sunday at St. Thomas's, New York, the parish of which he was rector before becoming Bishop of Long Island. The occasion was the dedication of a war memorial to the parishioners who served in the world war. He mentioned no names but after the service admitted to a reporter that he had Mayor Thompson of Chicago in mind when making his remarks.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

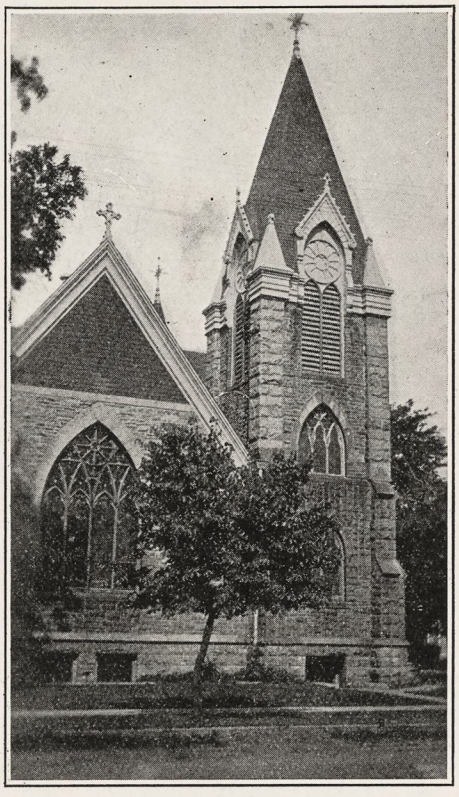
* * *

Parsons of St. Peter, Minnesota (name of a town, not a church) have been asked by the editor of the local paper to contribute weekly articles. The first was written by the Rev. C. W. Baxter, who wrote on the Lausanne Conference.

* * *



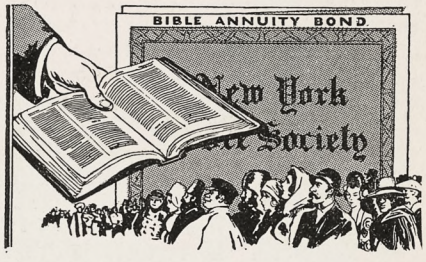
A thousand friends and theatrical associates of the late John Drew attended a memorial service at the Church of the Transfiguration (Little Church Around the Corner), New York, last Sunday. Otis Skinner of the Players' Club, Walter W. Price of the Lambs Club and Samuel Gregory, mayor of East Hampton, Long Island, where Mr. Drew lived, paid their tributes to the famous actor. A number of members of the Lambs Club were in the choir, the service being read by the rector, Dr. Ray.

Many well-known persons of the stage attended the services. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Devereaux, Mr. Drew's son-in-law and daughter, and Ethel Barrymore, his niece, represented the family. Among others present were Booth Tarkington, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gilmore, Francis Wilson, Daniel Frohman, Walter Hampden, who succeeded Mr. Drew as President of the Players; Tom Wise, Shepherd of the Lambs; Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, Clayton Hamilton, Chrystal Herne, Walter Damrosch, Percy MacKaye, Carroll McComas, James Powers, Vincent Serrano, George Middleton, Lucile Nikolas, Augustus Thomas, Blanche Ring, Perdo de Cordoba, Ernest Lawford, A. E. Thomas, Richie Ling, Percy Moore and Patterson McNutt.

A memorial window to Mr. Drew is to be placed in the church by members of his family, to take its place along with those for Richard Mansfield, Joseph Jefferson and Edwin Booth.

* * *

There is a great howdy in Albany over the recent Anglo-Catholic Congress held in that city last month; what is known to newspapers as "a tense situation," though those of us who are more familiar with the ways of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States would probably hardly call it that. The reporters, as one might expect, are writing about "the ultimate division of the Episcopal Church." The Rev. Charles C. Harriman, rector of St. Peter's, Albany, stated that the Congress, to which the two bishops of the diocese lent their presence, had caused deep grief and spiritual distress to many communicants in the diocese. Said he in a sermon preached last Sunday: "I have no right to speak for others or define their position. I can simply say that, if it is of any comfort or consolation to such, Saint Peter's church, its rectors, wardens and vestrymen are not ashamed of their Protestant heritage, and they will abide in the future, as in the past, by the doctrine, discipline and worship of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States of America as it is to be found in the Book of Common Prayer."



ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH
Grand Island, Nebraska

Seeing a chance to stir up a bit of a row the reporters went to Bishop Oldham for a statement but all he would say was that in his opinion the Episcopal Church is large and liberal enough to satisfy both parties in the Church and to maintain its unity. Dean Carver of the Albany Cathedral was not so quiet about it for he came forth with a broadside in which he contended that it was the Protestant group that is foreign to an inherently Catholic Church.

"The Protestant element in the church does not believe in the church as a divine body nor in the divinity of Jesus Christ. It does not believe in the efficacy of the sacraments as a means of grace nor in the priesthood as divinely ordained," the dean charged. He explained that difference in these essentials is the reason for the present trouble in the church.

Dean Carver denied the Catholic congress aims at union with Rome as expressed by the Rev. Joseph G. H. Barry of New York city at the pontifical mass at All Saints' cathedral, and explained that only a "sincere desire to teach the entire meaning of the life of Jesus in every human endeavor motivates the congress," which, he says, "may desire Christian unity but not union with the See of Rome."

MORE INCOME for You from Gospel Spreading Bible Annuity Bonds

THE rate of income is higher now on Bible Annuity Bonds. Your money invested in them will pay you as long as you live from 4% to 9%, depending on your age.

In addition to yielding you a dependable income, your money performs a great Christian service. It helps provide Bibles to immigrants in their own language, to seamen, to the sick in hospitals, to prisoners and to the needy blind in raised type. Your money goes on doing this good work on earth when you are gone, bringing the Word to those who hunger for It but cannot get It otherwise.

You can arrange to have your Bible Annuity Bonds pay a yearly income during the life of two people, such as husband and wife, mother and daughter.

Find out more about this Christian Service investment. Mail the coupon for free booklet and new rate schedule.

NEW YORK BIBLE SOCIETY
5 East 48th St., Dep't. 33
NEW YORK

New York Bible Society, Dept. 33,
5 East 48th St., New York City
Gentlemen: Without obligation, please send me descriptive pamphlets about your Bible Annuity Bonds.

Name ..... Age.....

Address .....

City ..... State.....

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Dean Carver declares that Catholic tradition and Catholic faith are alike upheld in the book of common prayer and asserts that there is nothing Rome can offer not found in the Episcopal church.

The Rev. Charles W. Findlay, rector of St. Andrew's, in his sermon Sunday declared that the "denial of the cup to the laity" during the celebration of the solemn high mass of the Catholic congress is not in accordance with the rubrics of the book of common prayer.

Following these statements by rectors a signed statement was handed to reporters by Bishop Nelson of Albany which read as follows:

In view of the conflicting ideas which have been published concerning the Third Catholic Congress of the Episcopal Church, it seems right that I should make a brief statement of matters in which I have accurate information because the Congress met in Albany on my invitation, and because I was its Honorary President.

I invited the Congress to meet in the Cathedral of All Saints because I knew that it would stand clearly and loyally for the historic position of the Episcopal Church as a part of the One Holy Catholic and Apostolic Church of Christ. I believed further that the eminent clergymen and laymen who should be selected to make addresses on subjects of vital importance would stimulate interest in religion and impart spiritual benefit to their hearers.

Looking back to the services and meetings of the congress I feel free to say that my hopes and expectations have been fully realized.

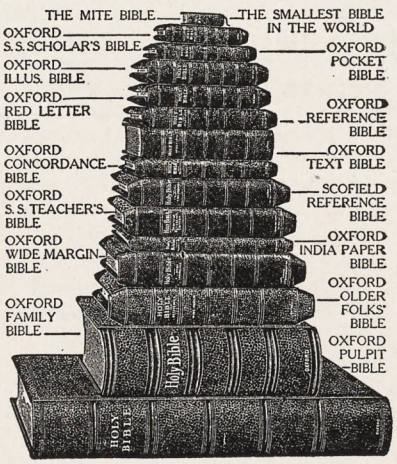
The service which was held in the Cathedral on October 26th was dignified, beautiful and deeply devotional. More than three thousand people took part in the service which was rendered in true obedience to the Ritual of the Book of Common Prayer and with a richness of ceremonial suited to an occasion of extraordinary importance.

Some questions have been asked as to the meaning of the word "pontificate" as descriptive of my part in the service. It means that I took the part assigned to the bishop in the Book of Common Prayer, of which the most important features are his pronouncement of Absolution after the General Confession, and his blessing of the people at the close of the service.

People who came from the Pacific coast as well as from nearer points assured me that the service repaid them for their journey, and I am thankful that I was able to have part in an act of worship which brought joy and comfort to such a devout multitude.

The papers which were read at the Armory were of an especially high order; and, while some of them dealt with matters in which there is room for differing opinions, they were notable for their freedom from controversial spirit and for their loyalty to the authorized teachings of the Church.

Having outlined the main features of the Congress as these present themselves to my mind, I desire to deal briefly with a spiritual principle which seems to me to be more important than any feature of the Congress services and sessions, I refer to the spirit of charity "without which all our doings are nothing worth."



I was brought up in the kindly nurture of the Episcopal Church from my earliest childhood, and I have served in its Sacred Ministry for nearly forty-five years, more than half of which have been in the episcopate.

I love this Church and believe in it with all my heart and soul and mind. Nothing can shake my allegiance to its sacred ways, its faith, its ministry and its sacraments, but this loyalty does not require of me that I should withhold respect and affection from those who may not see through my eyes or share my strong convictions. I entertain no feeling of animosity toward those within my Church who are unable to agree with me, I respect the convictions of all Christians of every name, and I recognize in God's people of an earlier convenant a true spirituality and a large hearted charity which has

WINSTON-INTERNATIONAL
LOOSE-LEAF BIBLE
A PRACTICAL BIBLE FOR NOTES
Contains over 250 loose-leaf pages for personal notes that may be inserted in any number of pages between any pages in the Bible. Looks like a regular Divinity Circuit bound Bible.
Send for Illustrated Catalog of Bibles
THE JOHN C. WINSTON CO., Publishers
American Bible Headquarters
456 WINSTON BUILDING PHILADELPHIA

OXFORD BIBLES
There is a STYLE for EVERY PURPOSE

Over 1,000,000 Copies Sold Every Year
At All Booksellers or from the Publishers
OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS
AMERICAN BRANCH
35 West Thirty-second Street New York

LITTLE WITNESS BOOKS

THE PERSONAL CHRIST
By Bishop Johnson. 50c a copy.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH
By Bishop Johnson. 35c a copy.

EVOLUTION
By Geo. Craig Stewart.
35c a copy.

THE BIBLE AND EVOLUTION
By Postell Witsell. 50c a copy.

THE WAY OF LIFE
By Bishop Johnson. 50c a copy.

FOUNDATION STONES
By H. P. Almon Abbott.
$1.25 a copy.

ESSAYS TOWARD FAITH
By A. Q. Bailey. 50c a copy.

A MAN'S RELIGION
By J. A. Schaad. 35c a copy.

VICTORY OF THE CROSS
By N. R. High Moor. 50c a copy.

WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

START RIGHT
— When You Raise Money

Preliminary plans are never more important than in a money-raising effort. The first announcement is of prime importance.

Every church should consult a firm like Hedrick, Marts & Lundy before launching an important campaign. Start right—and results are more certain.

Over $200,000,000 has been raised for churches and similar institutions in recent years by members of this firm and associates.

"Financing Philanthropy," quarterly paper on finance, free on request.

HEDRICK, MARTS & LUNDY, Inc.
Member Joint Board of Campaign Counsel and Planning.
527 Fifth Ave. New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

been made manifest in many generous deeds.

Charity is the very bond of peace and all virtue, without which man stands dead in the sight of God. May God fill our hearts with His Spirit of loving kindness and conform us to His own likeness so that we may love one another in Him.

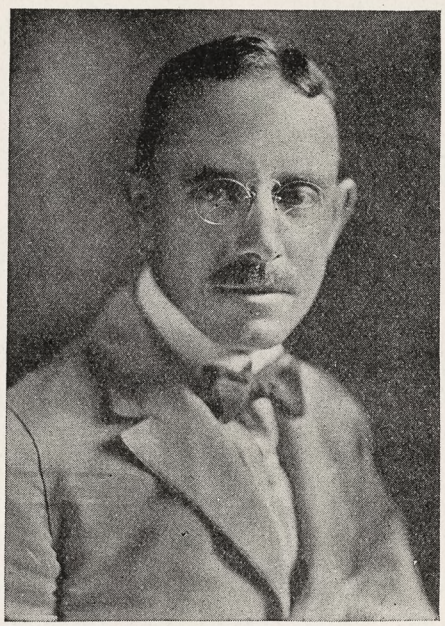
* * *

St. Andrew's, Belmont, Mass., has completed the addition of a chancel which is to be dedicated by Bishop Babcock next Sunday. The sermon is to be preached by the Rev. Henry Sherrill, rector of Trinity Church, Boston.

* * *

At St. Timothy's Hospital, Liberia, still without a doctor, about 400 treatments are given each month by the nurses.

* * *



During the past ten years 175,000 Jews have entered Christian churches according to figures that come from England.

* * *

St. Ansgarius, Providence, celebrated its 45th anniversary last Sunday. Bishop Perry preached.

* * *

Bishop Burleson of South Dakota was the speaker last week at the annual meeting of the diocesan branch of the Church Periodical Club of Massachusetts.

LEWIS B. FRANKLIN
Wants You to Step on It

* * *

All the Episcopal churches of Springfield, Mass., and those at Agawam, Longmeadow, Chicopee, Chicopee Falls and West Springfield are expected to take part in a great union service to be held in the Springfield Auditorium, Sunday, Nov. 27. This year the preacher will be Rt. Rev. Charles Fiske, of the diocese of Central New York. Bishop Thomas F. Davis, of Western Massachusetts, will preside, and the ministers of the churches taking part in the services will assist. Arrangements are being made by Rev. John M. McGann, rector of Christ Church, Springfield.

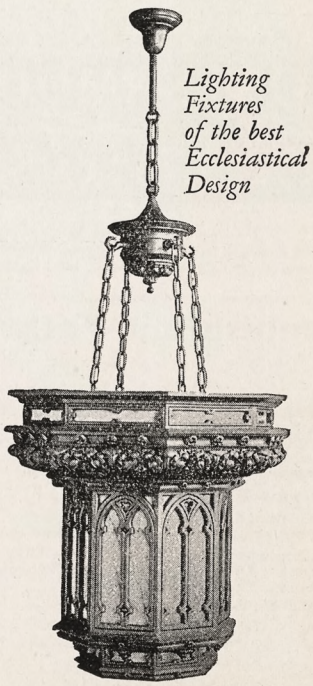
* * *

A great deal of the tragedy of the Seven Seas and no little of the humor of seafaring life came to light today when disposition was made of the unclaimed property checked by seamen in the dunnage room of the Seamen's Church Institute, New York.

The list of things taken from the bags is a study in the quaint psychology of men who make their living at sea. There are boxing gloves, an egg beater, a Croix de Guerre, a set of false teeth, a set of the works of Mary Baker Eddy, pictures of Gloria Swanson and Billy Sunday, Japanese fans, pieces of shrapnel, an intercollegiate football guide, a beaded bag and a carton of French tooth brushes.

The Angel of the Resurrection

This majestic figure is a striking example of the work we are doing for American Churches



The Art of the Best Ecclesiastical Designers

In all forms of church construction and equipment we offer an interested and highly specialized service.

In plans for beautifying the Church we are generally able to work out specifications which provide for worthy installations well within the financial requirements of the Parish.

WE APPRECIATE INQUIRIES FROM THE CLERGY AND LAITY — AND CONSULTATIONS WITH ARCHITECTS

Stained Glass Windows of the best English type

Lighting Fixtures of the best Ecclesiastical Design

SPAULDING & CO.
Representing The Gorham Co's Ecclesiastical Department
Michigan Avenue at Van Buren Street, Chicago

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Every so often it is necessary for the men in charge of the dunnage room at the institute to clear out the baggage which has not been claimed. Much of it is the luggage of men who have died while at sea, while some of it is merely unclaimed dunnage left by sailors, who had a vague idea that they might have some use for it some day.

Clothing found in the abandoned sea bags is salvaged, fumigated and kept on hand for emergencies such as arise when seamen are taken from sinking ships and brought back to port without proper clothing or toilet accessories.

Such an emergency occurred recently when the Bessenggen was rammed by the Paris in New York Harbor. Those of the crew who escaped with their lives were hauled into boats in pajamas and underclothes and were taken to the Seamen's Church Institute, where they were fitted out with the best of the salvaged clothes taken from the abandoned sea bags.

The first engineer found some trouble in getting shoes large enough and was finally forced to don one brown shoe and one black one until a better combination could be found.

The bags are kept about thirteen months before they are investigated. If a seaman writes from any part of the world that he wants his property held, it is done at a small additional charge. If the bags are unclaimed, their contents are sorted and all valuable papers are filed away for five years pending claims by family or friends.

Today is the day when many bags will be taken over.

The opening of the abandoned sea bags is a ritual always entered into with deep solemnity at the institute.

Here is a bag that belonged to a Dane who died at sea. Every attempt has been made to get in touch with relatives without success. The bag is a model of neatness, with all the accessories packed with a care that would shame a New England housewife. Socks, pea coat and extra dungarees are folded neatly at the bottom and between lie little packets of treasures neatly wrapped in oilskin and tissue paper.

There is a sewing kit and a package of lurid post cards purchased in Nantes. Atop the package is a picture of the sailor himself taken under an artificial life boat at some foreign Coney Island. There is a girl standing next to him. She might be French or Italian, one can't tell. Perhaps she was a true sweetheart.

Another bag is not so neat. It is the property of a negro fireman from New Orleans.

A notice on the bulletin board of the institute lobby reads:

"Friends of Washington G——— are hereby notified that he was taken to Broad Street Hospital last night suffering from acute alcoholism and a possible fracture of the skull."

Washington died several days ago and apparently has no friends or relatives. His bag will be taken over and its contents kept for awhile pending investigation.

It contains clothes, and, alas, a pint bottle of grain alcohol. There is a much-thumbed Bible and a book of sleight-of-hand tricks.

* * *

In a cable from Shanghai dated Nov. 7, Dr. Wood reports, "Situation is quiet. Officials and people are friendly. All well."

* * *

Mr. C. B. Lucas, in charge at Winnsboro and Chester, S. C., was ordained deacon by Bishop Finlay on All Saints' Day.

* * *

At a publicity conference, held recently under the auspices of the Chicago Church Federation and Advertising Council of the Chicago Chamber of Commerce, Rev. J. T. Brabner Smith, chairman of the Commission on Publicity of the Chicago Commission on Commerce, said: "While the public press in general is very friendly and desirous of co-operating with the church in promoting righteousness and good morals, the times are ripe, and in some cases, over ripe, for the church to speak its mind and to act quickly with a group of leading newspapers that exploit sexuality, and crime, print lurid accounts of murders, and burn up space when a preacher errs in judgment or morals. It is high time for the church

25,000 CHURCHES USE

OSTERMOOR CUSHIONS

BUILT — NOT STUFFED

Illustrated Booklet and Samples Free
Old Cushions renovated and recovered equal to new.
Ostermoor & Co., Inc., Dept. C, 114 Elizabeth St.. N.Y

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills.

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

MARGARET HALL

Versailles, Kentucky

Accredited Church School for Girls, in the Heart of the Blue Grass.

College Preparatory and General Courses. High Standards; Music; Supervised Athletics; New Indoor Swimming Pool.

SARA McDOWELL GAITHER, A. B.
Principal

FIRMS WHOSE ADVERTISEMENTS

appear in this paper place them for two reasons: First, they believe that it pays to reach a selected group of Church families; second, they believe that a Church paper is worthy of their support. It is for the editors to justify them in their second reason. It is for the readers to prove to them that they are right in the first.

Won't you please give WITNESS advertisers an opportunity to estimate on your needs when you contemplate purchase in their various lines? Of course it will help us if, in writing them, you make mention of

THE WITNESS

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London, W. I., England.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request. Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, also chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses, $7.60 up, burse and veil, $15 up; Silk damask cope, $120; Silk damask chasuble, $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel., Cleveland 52.

ORGAN FOR SALE

TWO MANUAL PIPE ORGAN WITH ELECtric blower and motor. Just the right size for a small parish church. Bargain at $700. Address: St. Matthres Church, 8545 96th Street, Woodhaven, N. Y.

BOYS & GIRLS $2.00 Given NO WORK JUST FUN

Simply sell 50 sets of Our Famous Christmas Seals for 10c a set. When sold send us $3.00 and keep $2.00. We trust you till Xmas. St. Nichilas Seal Co., Dept. 541-W, Brooklyn, N. Y.

THE SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY will furnish vestments, altar hangings and linens at moderate cost. Also Priests' girdles, hand-made of imported linen thread. Sisters of the Holy Nativity; Fond duc Lac, Wisconsin.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The National Council of the Episcopal Church Plans to Spend in 1928

$4,212,370

For Work in Continental United States—Evangelical, educational and medical work among the Indians, Negroes and Foreign-Born Americans and to aid churches in rural districts and smaller cities	$975,447
For Work in Alaska, Honolulu and the Philippines	256,889
For Work in China—The Council is retaining most of its highly trained American staff pending the time when work by them can be resumed. Chinese workers are for the most part still able to preach and teach.	574,921
For Work in Japan—Churches, schools, hospitals and St. Paul's University	445,615
For Work in Liberia—Our small share in establishing Christianity in Africa	109,194
For Work in Latin America—A large proportion of the people of these countries are not members of any church	342,259
For Negro Education—Supporting nine schools for Negroes under the American Church Institute for Negroes, 3,500 pupils	203,105
For travel, outfits, medical care of missionaries, etc.	155,433
For pensions and pension fund premiums	132,715
For emergencies, new workers, etc.	90,000
For the central office work of the Department of Missions, support of general agencies, scholarships, etc.	73,780
For work among college students, for the Church Schools, young people, adult education, etc.	104,854
For promotion of social service in dioceses and parishes, specialized rural work, institutional guidance, etc.	46,841
For all publicity, including publishing The Spirit of Missions, The Church at Work, maintaining national service to religious and secular press, etc.	107,081
For helping dioceses and parishes to do effective work in the support of the Church's Program, by speakers, training conferences and other methods	126,900
For maintaining the central organization of the Woman's Auxiliary	56,660
For maintenance of Church Missions House, shipping goods to missionaries and others, office expenses, printing and supplies, group insurance, General Convention expenses, keeping the accounts, administration, contingent fund, etc.	282,626
For the Church Colleges, the National Commission on Evangelism, the Girls' Friendly Society, Church Mission of Help, and other co-operating agencies	128,050
	$4,212,370

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York
139 West Forty-sixth Street
Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D., Litt.D.
Sunday Masses, 7:30, 8:15, 9, 10:45.
Vespers and Benediction, 4.
Week-day Masses, 7, 8, 9:30.

St. John's, Cynwyd, Pa.
The Birthplace of the Lenten Offering
When in Philadelphia attend services here. Call Cynwyd 1382 for information.
Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, D.D., Rector
Sundays 8 and 11 A. M.

membership of all denominations to keep out of their homes, and out of the hands of their children, their youth, and their own hands, these Elmer Gantrys that are defiling the minds and damning the souls of their readers.

"The church can and must hold these purveyors of filth and creators of passion for lust and gain to strict accountability. Church people can refuse to buy such trash and should refuse to buy space in such papers. What would Christ think of and do with some of our modern papers? Cooperation with papers that are clean and wholesome, and the refusal to purchase the output of yellow journalism is the crying need of the churches and its membership. The church must help to solve the question."

* * *

Missionary meetings are being conducted in Rhode Island in twelve different churches in the diocese as a follow-up of the Bishops' Crusade of last year. This week meetings were held in St. John's, Grace, Church of the Messiah and Church of the Epiphany, Providence; St. Paul's, Pawtucket, and St. Mark's, Warren. Next week meetings will be held in St. George's, Newport; St. Luke's, East Greenwich; Church of the Ascension, Wakefield; Christ Church, Lonsdale; St. John's, Ashton; St. James', Woonsocket; Emmanuel, Manville, and Calvary, Pascoag. Bishop William P. Remington, of Eastern Oregon, and Rev. Francis J. M. Cotter, recently from Wuchang, China, opened the series. On the second evening in each church, Bishop Perry of Rhode Island, is presiding over an informal conference conducted by Samuel Thorne, New York. The object of the missions is to raise $115,000 of which $69,300 is for the work of the general church outside, and $46,200 for missionary work in the state. Last year the diocese gave $107,691.

* * *

Rev. William Tullberg, in charge of St. Ansgarius Church, Chicago, was ordained to the priesthood on All Saints' Day by Bishop Anderson. St. Ansgarius is a very old Swedish parish which has seen better days, but is rapidly coming to the front again under the skillful ministrations of Mr. Tullberg.

* * *

Bishop Houston of Olympia was the speaker at the meeting of the Northern Deanery of his diocese held at Mount Vernon. There were 150 persons present.

* * *

One of the large windows at the Church Missions House, New York, is appealing to the popular tastes of the day by presenting two All American Football teams. The names are care-

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily: 7:30 and 10 A. M. and 5:00 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m., 4 p. m.
Daily, 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursday, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder , D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11 A. M., and 8 P. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursday, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 7, 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., Fri., and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30 and 11:00 A. M., 5:00, 6:15 and 8:00 P. M.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp and Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards, faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — In a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

fully printed on large cardboards in huge letters, with the playing position of each man and his college. Instead, however, of selecting them for their football prowess, they are selected for their nationality, and the sons of twenty-two nations are listed —ALL AMERICANS. It is an effective bit of publicity on the part of the Foreign-Born Americans Division of the Council.

* * *

A mission is being held this week at St. Paul's, Brockton, Massachusetts, the missioner being the Rev. Walter E. Bentley.

* * *

Lots of new church buildings in the diocese of Olympia, the latest being a fine new parish hall for Trinity Church, Hoquiam.

* * *

Bishop McElwain of Minnesota advanced to the priesthood the Rev. C. W. Brown on October 30th in the Church of St. John the Evangelist, St. Paul, where Mr. Brown is serving as curate. The sermon was preached by Bishop Cross of Spokane, a former rector of the parish.

* * *

The Rev. Peter Ainslie, Church of the Disciples, and the Rev. Robert E. Browning, rector of the Ascension, Baltimore, addressed the convocation of Towson, Maryland, on the Lausanne Conference at their semi-annual meeting held at St. Thomas', Garrison Forest. The Rev. Samuel Shoemaker, rector of Calvary, New York City, preached the convocation sermon. He told of the work being done in his parish and stressed the necessity of personal religious experience in Christian living.

* * *

The Rev. John Henry Hopkins, rector of the Redeemer, Chicago, addressed the round table conference of the clergy on November 7th on "Jazz." It was a part of a series of addresses on "The Church and the Modern World."

Clerical Changes

ADAMS, Rev. Harold Beech, formerly of Christ Church, Troy, New York, has taken up his duties as the rector of Christ Church, Meadville, Pa.

BODDINGTON, Rev. C. H., formerly in charge of St. Paul's, Bremerton, Washington, has taken charge of St. Luke's, Seattle, Washington.

DEXTER, Rev. Anthony H., priest in charge of St. Simon's, San Francisco, and St. Paul's, Lancaster, California, has accepted a call to St. Andrew's, Fullerton, California.

HYATT, Rev. Harry Middleton, has accepted an election to the rectorship of Christ Church, Yonkers, New York.

McNULTY, Rev. J. Archibald, resigns as rector of St. Thomas', Alamosa, Colorado, to become dean of the Rosebud Deanery, South Dakota. His address is Winner, S. D.

WADSWORTH, Rev. George C., resigns as rector of Christ Church, Oil City, Pa. The Rev. O. F. Crawford is serving the parish as locum tenens.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, jurnalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO
Church Training School

President: The Bishop of Chicago.

Director of Studies: The Rev. F. C. Grant, S.T.D.

A two year course of practical work and study to prepare women for service in the Church. Address:

DEACONESS FULLER
211 So. Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ONE MILLION DOLLARS
for ST. JOHN'S HOSPITAL, BROOKLYN

Under the leadership of Bishop Stires of the Diocese of Long Island; General George A. Wingate and Hon. Stephen Callaghan, Justice of the Supreme Court

Diocese of Long Island
OFFICE OF THE BISHOP
One Seventy Remsen Street
Brooklyn, New York

November
Fifth
1927

Mr. Charles S Ward
Ward, Wells, Dreshman & Gates
475 Fifth Avenue
New York, N.Y.

My dear Mr. Ward,

A little later I shall wish to write, speaking more in detail of the wisdom and ability displayed by your firm in their development of our undertaking to raise $1,000,000 to complete the Building Fund of our new St. John's Hospital.

But I must send this brief expression immediately to tell you not only of my complete satisfaction, but of my deep personal gratitude. In Mr. Olson, who directed the campaign, you have, as you must know, a man of rare mental and sympathetic qualifications, a man of fine and quick understanding, of extraordinary devotion, industry and good taste. In like manner I must at least briefly express my pleasure in all my contacts with Mr. Larkin, and in my less frequent but most satisfying conversations with Mr. Tyler. In truth your whole organization, including the young men and young women acting as clerks, stenographers and in other capacities, impressed us as reaching a very high standard of ability, courtesy and genuine sympathy.

Our complete success in attaining our objective is in large measure due to the very fine qualities of your organization, the unusual and always delightful personal element in the members of your staff.

Believe me, with grateful appreciation,

Always faithfully yours,

Ernest M. Stires.

Fifteen Hospital Campaigns, under the direction of this firm in the last twelve months, have in every case been completely successful, exceeding the amount of the proposed objective:

Our Quarterly Bulletin "Financing Social Progress" gives further details and will be sent upon request.

WARD, WELLS, DRESHMAN & GATES

PHILANTHROPIC ORGANIZATION AND FINANCE

475 Fifth Avenue, New York 612 Wrigley Building, Chicago

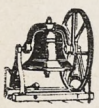
Originators of the Intensive Method of Fund Raising

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, DECEMBER 1, 1927



REV. G. IRVINE HILLER

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.
314 East 34th St. New York
worker in glass ✠ mosaic ✠ church decorations

For "Daylight Projection"
of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use
BALOPTICONS
There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.
Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 68 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ.
Church Bells — Peals
McShane Bell Foundry Co.
Baltimore, Md.

Vestments
For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings Tailoring
Inquiries given prompt attention
J. M. HALL, Inc.
174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403)
(Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.
TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.
1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows
Monuments and Church Furnishings
IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR
CHARLES F. HOGEMAN
45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts.
NEW YORK
469 and 474 Main Street ORANGE

Church Furniture
MEMORIALS IN CARVED WOOD
PEWS · ALTARS · PULPITS
SUNDAY SCHOOL
SEATING
American Seating Company
1024 LYTTON BUILDING CHICAGO

VESTMENTS
ALTAR LINENS
EMBROIDERIES
Estimates and Designs, etc., for Hand Embroidered or Applique Superfrontals, etc., on request.
CLERICAL SUITS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century
Cox Sons & Vining 131 E. 23rd St. NEW YORK

Moller Pipe Organs
The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.
M. P. MOLLER
Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios
5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.
MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS
If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart
Stained Glass
English Artists
550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

R. GEISSLER, INC.
56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST. 1877

DEAGAN
Tubular Bell
Tower Chimes
The one most beautiful form of memorial.
Standard Sets, $6000 up
J. C. DEAGAN, Inc.
161 Deagan Bldg., Chicago
PLAYED DIRECT FROM ORGAN CONSOLE

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:
EXETER
and 4 & 5 Duncannon St:
Charing Cross LONDON
ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS
in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal and
Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.), Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

Windows of Merit
Beautiful Groupings
Gorgeous Combinations of Color
Well executed by
The Von Gerichten Studios
Columbus, Ohio. New York City

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.
—Office and Studio—
221-223 E. Fulton St. — Columbus, Ohio.
DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.
—Photos, Designs and Estimates upon Application—
ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 15 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

PRAYER BOOK AS MYSTERY DRAMA

The Drama of the Vows

By

IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

SO FAR from being an uninteresting patchwork, composed of fragments from various offices taken hither and yon from old monkish breviaries, Morning and Evening Prayer are mystery dramas in their own right; prologue and epilogue to the central glorious drama, but with an evolving psychological sequence and a powerful climax of their own.

Material for them had to come from somewhere. Even Shakespeare did not make up the language he used out of nothing. The compilers of the Prayer Book took stones from old and hallowed temples and set them in a new architectural grouping, more convenient and far more impressive than the old.

The theme of this drama—for the two offices have the same plot—is the working out of the baptismal vow. Each of us on baptism made a threefold promise: To renounce the devil, believe the faith, and obey the law. Each one of these vows is an act of allegiance toward God, in one of his three persons.

"Person" originally meant an actor's mask. Thus it came to mean "character" or "role." An actor might change his "persona" several times in the course of a Greek or Roman play, without changing his own identity. "One God in three Persons" means one actor simultaneously assuming three parts, the same in identity, but not in appearance or function.

Thus: an electrician may also be a lover of music and the father of a family without interfering with his ability as an electrician. His trade as an electrician is the way he supports his family and indulges in his love for music.

Toward God the Father, our allegiance implies renouncing the devil and all his works. But saying to Satan, "Get thee behind me, Satan," does not insure that he will stay behind, or even that he will keep our backs turned to him. Renunciation must be followed by repentance, as often as that allegiance is sullied by an act of sin.

Toward God the Son, our allegiance implies the vow of faith in God as shown in Jesus Christ. If God became man, then he is such a God as Jesus was a man. The Word was in the beginning with God, eternally generated, as sunlight is eternally generated by the sun; but the Word became flesh for us in Jesus and in his saints. Our second baptismal vow is to believe in God as he is outlined in the Creed.

Toward God the Holy Spirit, our allegiance implies obedience; "keeping his holy will and commandments, and walking in the same all the days of our life."

These three vows, and the constant re-enacting of them, form the basic structure of all daily services. They are an extension of the Creed in dramatic form; as the Creed is an extension of the Gloria—"Glory be to the Father and to the Son and to the Holy Ghost."

Morning and evening prayer were foreshadowed by the daily lambs of the morning and evening sacrifice of the Old Temple. The Holy Eucharist was represented by the Paschal Lamb, the Lamb of Atonement, offered once a year.

Look now at the structure of these offices from this point of view, of a triple act of renewing our allegiance to the Threeness of God.

Note in the first place how the versicles, short exhortation and response, denote in each case a passing from one vow to another, accompanied by a change of position. The first vow is renewed kneeling; the second alternately standing and sitting; the third kneeling again.

The first vow, Repentence, finds its climax in OUR FATHER.

The second vow, Faith, finds its climax in I BELIEVE.

The third act, Obedience, finds its climax in the Act of Consecration, known as the GENERAL THANKSGIVING.

This third vow, of course, cannot be performed in the church. It involves the carrying out of our duty as citizens, as members of the church, as members of humanity. Prayers for Church and State find a ritual expression in the processional cross and national flag, usually carried by a vested choir on national days, and usually placed at the end of the choir seats near the altar between times.

The Collect for the Day is not diagrammed here, because properly it belongs to the Holy Eucharist.

The beauty of the collects for Peace and Protection is exquisite, and repays a lifetime of study and meditation. "In knowledge of whom standeth our eternal life, whose service is perfect freedom" is a translation of the terse Latin "whom to know is to live, whom to serve is to reign."

THE EXHORTATION

Let us take up the scenes of this drama in order.

Already we have studied the opening Sentences. The Exhortation is a matter of great dignity and importance. Its three sentences set forth emphatically that the minister who pronounces them is a messenger of

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

God. Those here present are not concerned primarily with having a good time, but with appearing with a pure heart and humble voice before the very throne of the heavenly grace.

Its sentences call up before us pictures of Adam and Eve, attempting to cloak and dissemble; the Pharisee, and by him the Publican, smiting on his breast and saying "God be merciful to me, a sinner." The Shepherd and the Lost Sheep; and the mystic adjuration of the Epistle to the Hebrews, who, when the Temple had been destroyed, bade his readers draw near with boldness to the throne of the heavenly grace, that we may find help in time of need.

"Confess your OWN sins" is a warning constantly needed. Every church worker, every parish priest, know how delighted people are to confess each other's sins. The emphasis must be laid again and again on this: that "the soul that sinneth, IT shall die," that we are responsible for our own sins, and them only should we confess.

The Confession

Concerning confession, and the practice of it, the church takes the position of a wise mother. She knows perfectly well that children, whether at work or at play, will get their hands and faces dirty, their clothes rumpled. When such a mother calls her children in, she says: "Now, children, come into the house. Wash your faces and hands and brush your clothes, and we will have dinner."

So the church says constantly, firmly, but not scoldingly, "Let us confess our sins to Almighty God. It is necessary, not abnormal. You have been playing and working—tidy up." Confession is the most natural and normal thing in the world.

So also is the declaration of absolution. It is an assertion that God only can pardon and forgive, but that the commission has been given to men that they should declare this absolution, AND PRONOUNCE IT to all who are faithful and penitent.

Being thus cleansed, and not until then, we are invited to say "Our Father." And, this having been said, we are led by way of the versicles into the next act of dedication.

"O Lord, open thou our lips and our mouths shall show forth thy praise."

The Venite

The invitation to the Act of Faith is issued in the words of an old battle hymn. Every line of the Venite is picturesque. Let us analyze it.

It was composed by a minstrel, leading a band of minstrels ("O come, let us sing") in a defiant assertion of the greatness and supremacy of the Lord at a time when there was great warfare between the God of Israel and other gods.

"For the Lord is a great God, and a great king above all gods!"

From where they stood, they could see the mountains ("the strength of the hills") and the sea ("the sea is his, and he made it") and the desert—the "dry land" far to the south, that thirsty desert out of whose shining yellow wastes their forefathers had come. Before us comes a picture of the great blue ranges of Moab and Lebanon, and the Mediterranean lying purple on the edge of the western horizon. All the "corners of the earth" — those strange, weird, fantastic canyons of the desert, the cities of Babylon and Egypt, the Isles of the Greeks—were in his hand.

He who led in this mighty singing had been, or perhaps still was, a shepherd. His thoughts naturally ran to imagery of that calling "we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand" . . . I wonder whether the Lord's "Pasture" does not mean the "Garden of Allah," a Bedouin word for the Great Desert?

"For he cometh, for he cometh to judge the earth." Judge, in the Hebrew language, means a great hero come to uphold righteousness in time of national despair: like Samson, or Joshua, or Barak. Washington would be a "judge" in the Hebrew sense: so would Lincoln. The prophecy is that God himself shall come to be his own hero, his own "redeemer," to set right the things that are wrong; "with righteousness shall he judge the world, and the people with his truth." It is a prophecy of Christ.

Next article: The Psalter

Our Cover

THE Rev. G. Irvine Hiller, Rector of All Saints' Church, Lakeland, Fla. Mr. Hiller was born in Philadelphia, educated in the public schools of that city, Wesleyan and Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, Conn. Graduating from the latter in 1916, he became rector of St. Peter's Church, Nashville, Tenn. Served as chaplain at Camp Gordon during the war, and became rector of St. Stephen's Church and chaplain of the State Institution at Milledgeville, Ga. He has been rector of All Saints', Lakeland, since 1922.

Let's Know

THIRTEEN

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

NOBODY knows just where it came from—the unlucky jinx associated with the number 13. It is usually explained that the origin is to be found in the fact that there were thirteen present at the Last Supper—our Lord and the twelve apostles—and that the number is a sure portent of death because of the crucifixion which came the next day. But some delvers into antiquities declare that the association dates back into early Asiatic history.

Reason or no reason, a remarkably large number of people take it very seriously. An article in the Pathfinder a few months ago says that in Paris no house is ever numbered 13; also that in France there are people known as "fourteeners" whose vocation in life is to fill vacancies at dinner parties which would otherwise number 13. We read, too, that in England 13 is omitted from automobile license plates. The Italians, we are told, never use 13 in their lotteries and the Turks are so greatly troubled over it that they have dropped the word from their language. And everyone knows how American hotels and office buildings love to fill in room numbers between 12 and 14 with a 12A or some similar circumlocution. It is also said that in many places the quarter-dollar is considered an unlucky coin because the words quarter-dollar have thirteen letters; also because the eagle has 13 feathers in his tail and holds thirteen arrows in one claw and a branch with 13 leaves in the other; and there are 13 stars on the coin.

An interesting case can be made out for the jinx if one looks only at one side of the number, which is what people generally do. But the jinx fades a bit when one remembers that the first permanent colony was established at Jamestown, Va., on the 13th day of the month; also the first service was held in Trinity Church, New York, on the 13th; Thomas Jefferson was born on the 13th and so was Winfield Scott, to say nothing of General Pershing—and it might be added that Pershing landed in Europe on the 13th with the first contingent of the A. E. F.; the "Star Spangled Banner" was written on the 13th and Manila surrendered to Admiral Dewey on the same fateful date; Phillips Brooks, America's greatest preacher, was born on another 13th, and so were Edwin Booth and John Drew, leading lights in the American dramatic profession.

Moreover, the United States began

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

with 13 states and in memory thereof retains 13 stripes in the national colors. Also the first American navy consisted of 13 war frigates which were voted by the Continental Congress on the 13th day of the month. Certainly there ought to be little to disturb the average American in regard to that particular number.

So we might go on. St. Augustine of Hippo was another son of the 13th. It was also on the 13th that the Prince of Wales was invested with his well-known title; some people would promptly say that is the reason he has fallen off so many horses, while others would say that is the reason he is so extraordinarily popular.

Just another superstition. When we Christian people resolutely turn up our noses at such nonsense, the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism will probably go out of business for want of something to talk about.

DECEMBER BOOK REVIEWS

Good Books for Christmas

THE BOOK OF THE MONTH

THE LONELY ISLAND, Rose Annie Rogers. Morehouse. $2.50.

If I were running a personal and private book of the month club for the Episcopal Church—a thing which I am not doing and don't intend to do—I would start it off with "The Lonely Island," Mrs. Rogers' account of the three years which she and her husband spent as missionaries on Tristan da Cunha, a big rock in the middle of the South Atlantic. Tristam da Cunha is 1300 miles from the nearest habitation—which is St. Helena. There are about thirty families on the island, who eke out a precarious existence by fishing and growing potatoes in the few spots of earth that are to be found there. With luck a boat from the world outside calls there once a year. Mrs. Rogers' story is an epic. In her simple and matter of fact account we get a glimpse of how individuals stand out in the little community. Andrew Hagen, Betty Cotton, Mrs. Repetto and Bob Glass are worth knowing. Between the lines we read something of the difficulties this young couple had to face and of the sacrifices they made—and of what their presence on the island meant to their people. Mr. Rogers died in 1926, soon after he and Mrs. Rogers and their little boy got back to England. The book is a memorial to him. It is not only the story of a missionary—it is a story of heroic adventure. It is one of the great books of the year. I hope that a great many people not only in the Church but outside of the Church discover it.

C. L. Street.

MORE BOOKS ON MISSIONS

THE ANGLICAN COMMUNION THROUGHOUT THE WORLD, Morehouse. $2.50.

In this volume are collected and reprinted a series of articles which appeared in The Living Church on the work of some of the missionary dioceses of the Anglican Communion. It gives a thrilling picture of the work of our Church in the remote places of the earth—Africa,

VERY REV. H. C. ROBBINS
Dean of the New York Cathedral

Asia, Australia, South America and the South Sea Islands. It brings home to us the world mission and the world program of the church to which we belong. C. L. S.

* * *

THE MISSIONARY AND HIS WORK, by Lefferd M. Haughwout, M. A. Morehouse. $2.50.

There has been so much discussion about Missions and Missionaries of late that this sane, unbiased, and intelligent exposition of the Missionary and His work is welcome. There is nothing of the academic and easy-chair point of view expressed in these pages. It is a straight from the shoulder, heart to heart talk from a wise and constructive critic who has garnered his wisdom from first-hand contact with the facts of the situation. Though restricted to one field, it is a fascinating and illuminating volume and it ought to create great searching of heart among the faithful. It is a distinct contribution to the science of Missions, and it ought to be read, learned and inwardly digested by every clergyman and devout layman of the Church, and, may we add, by not a few in the House of Bishops. I. G.

* * *

SOME WORLD PROBLEMS, The Bishop of London. Longmans. $1.60.

In less than a hundred pages Bishop Ingram summarizes observations made on a journey lasting the best part of the year through Canada, the United States, Japan, China, Australia and New Zealand. He makes a strong plea for increased friendship among English speaking people and for more emigrants from England to the English colonies. The book is attractively written and has some good pictures of the bishop and of the people he met on his journey.

C. L. S.

DEAN ROBBINS

SIMPLICITY TOWARD CHRIST, by Howard Chandler Robbins. Scribners. $2.00.

The word simplicity is one of the most dangerous and one of the most seductive words in the vocabulary. It has been for centuries a city of refuge for the idler, the sentimentalist and the cynic. The fact is that this word simplicity is usually entirely misread. It does not mean impoverishment of circumstances. It means singleness of principle. It is this idea of simplicity which Dean Robbins has in mind, not only in the initial sermon, which gives the title to his book, but in the succeeding sermons of the volume. Each sermon is compelling—beautifully and thoughtfully expressed—and in the closest sympathy with and understanding of the material and intellectual problems of our day. They are in the best sense practical and are broad without being shallow. I. G.

* * *

SURSUM CORDA, Howard Chandler Robbins. Morehouse. $.75.

FAMILY DEVOTIONS, Howard Chandler Robbins, Century. $1.75.

These two other books by Dean Robbins deserve mention. Sursum Corda is a collection of religious poems of high order, many of which have appeared in different periodicals. Those who have seen them already will be glad to know that they are available in book form. Those who have not read them will be glad of this opportunity to do so.

Family Devotions is the first volume in "The Century Devotional Library" under the general editorship of the Rev. John Wallace Suter, Jr. It provides well chosen Bible readings, a hymn and a prayer for every day in the year, and special selections for Church holy days, national holidays, and family festivals. The book is intended for family devotions, and should be a real help in the revival of this good practice. But it is valuable simply as an anthology of hymns and prayers. C. L. S.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

THE NEW TESTAMENT

GETTING ACQUAINTED WITH THE NEW TESTAMENT, by Frank Eakin, Ph.D. Macmillan. $2.50.

If one wants to know what a fascinating subject the study of the New Testament can be, both in itself and in the studies to which it gives rise, then here is the book for him. Three chapters on the history of New Testament study, contrasting the scholar's methods of today with those of the past, are followed by a hundred odd pages on the story of the New Testament itself up to and including the appearance of the latest versions—Moffatt's, Goodspeed's and the other recent "free" translations. After a series of chapters on the background of the New Testament, pagan as well as Jewish, and a chapter or so on the literary aspects of the New Testament, the reader is prepared to approach the "matter" of the New Testament, under which are included brief "lives" of Christ and of St. Paul, and an account of the early Church. A chapter on New Testament religion, and some suggestions for further reading, conclude the whole.

The treatment is at once popular and scholarly; also often exceedingly sage as well as fresh; much less technical and detailed than Wade's New Testament History, and considerably more comprehensive than Scott's The Earliest Age—books with which Professor Eakin's work is most readily compared. It is not a substitute for the New Testament nor for the more solid books of reference, but it is a very agreeable and informing "companion" to New Testament study.

Charles B. Hedrick.

* * *

THE LIFE AND WORK OF JESUS CHRIST OUR LORD, by T. W. Harris, Ph. D. Morehouse. $2.00 cloth, $1.50 paper.

Clergymen are constantly asked by the teachers in the Church School for a suitable life of our Lord to assist them in their preparation. This new life by the Rector of Trinity Church, Tilton, New Hampshire, has this advantage over many of them—its helpfulness has been practically demonstrated in the class before its final revised form was published. There are questions at the end of each chapter that are not only well framed, but are questions pertinent and related to definite church teaching. It ought to rank among the best and most serviceable of such books. I. G.

FRANK EAKIN
Writes on the New Testament

THE SOCIAL GOSPEL

THE ECONOMICS OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD, by Paul B. Bull, C.R. Macmillan. $2.25.

Anyone really interested in a Christian social order will find this a thrilling book. Its purpose is to "provide Christian readers with material for forming a social conscience, and social reformers with an assurance that the mind of Christ is with them whenever they are pleading for a just and righteous reorganization of our social life." The book is largely a skillful criticism of the ill effects of a social order based on the materialistic economics of the last century. The last chapters give some suggestions toward a better way of doing things, involving Fr. Bull's own kind of socialism.

Fr. Bull knows his economics and, what is more important, he knows more than most people about the Kingdom of God. This is a rare combination, and has resulted in a book which combines in a rare fashion technical knowledge and a vast amount of concrete material on economic and social conditions, with the finest kind of Christian idealism.

C. L. S.

* * *

CHRISTIANITY AND SOCIAL ADVENTURING, Edited by Jerome Davis. The Century Co. $2.50.

This book, under the editorship of Prof. Jerome Davis of Yale, is a collection of twenty-four articles by prominent people, giving an excellent summary of the whole field of social work, particularly as related to the Church. Dr. Fosdick writes on "Practicing the Sermon on the Mount," Graham Taylor on settlements, Dr. Haven Emerson on health and Dr. Cabot of Harvard on "Ministering to the Handicapped." Dean Lathrop and Miss Van Waters make contributions. There are brief biographies of each of the twenty-four contributors. C. L. S.

PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION

THE WRESTLE OF RELIGION WITH TRUTH, Henry Nelson Wieman, Ph.D. Macmillan. $2.50.

Professor Wieman, who has recently come to the University of Chicago from Occidental University, California, is the author of Religious Experience and Scientific Method, reviewed in these columns last year. This new book of his is a study of the way in which knowledge of God can be gained from experience and a critical evaluation of this knowledge. It is characterized by Prof. Wieman's customary careful scholarship and penetrating analysis.

C. L. S.

* * *

STUDIES IN HISTORICAL CHRISTIANITY, by E. J. Rawlinson, B.D. The Morehouse Publishing Co., Milwaukee, Wis. 1927. $1.60.

Here we have one of the books for which every parson has long been seeking, and has often despaired of finding. The author discusses keenly and critically, and at the same time interestingly, some of the distinctive features of Anglican Christianity as compared with Liberal Protestantism. The titles of the seven brief chapters show the range of topics: "Catholicism," "Episcopacy," "Sacraments and Sacramentalism," "Inspiration," "New Testament Criticism," "The Historical Grounds of Christian Belief."

The first five of these were originally lectures delivered to undergraduates of Cambridge University on subjects chosen by themselves. The lecture on the Atonement is the finest, clearest, and most convincing brief treatment of that very difficult doctrine which the reviewer has yet seen. The approach is made directly at the point where many today find the formulation of a rationale of the Atonement especially difficult, namely the moral problem which it creates.

Prof. Rawlinson is convinced that "the ultimate form of Christianity will be a Liberal Evangelical Catholicism," and he is himself an exemplar of the type and method which he anticipates. This is a book to give your college students. They will read it; they will appreciate its truly Liberal and undogmatic method; they will sympathize with its Evangelical spirit; they will find its catholicism intellectually appealing. F. R. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

SOME OTHER BOOKS

A HISTORY OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION IN THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH TO 1835, by C. H. Brewer, B. D., Ph. D., Rector of Trinity Church, Branford, Conn. Yale University Press.

We are learning to see the church's task more and more as a task of education. If the church is to do its work, not only the "Church School" in the particular parish, but church boarding schools and colleges, classes for adults, preaching from the pulpit, and church periodicals must take their place in a conscious program. Anyone who feels the importance of this point of view will be particularly interested in this book of Dr. Brewer's. It is a careful study of the educational influences in the church in this country in the early days. It embodies a vast amount of research and contains much valuable material, not only about early Sunday School methods, but about the beginnings of church colleges and theological seminaries, and about the church periodicals at the beginning of the last century. There are some interesting illustrations, and the book is beautifully gotten up by the Yale University Press. It is the kind of an historical work which should help the church of the present day to solve her educational problems more intelligently and more effectively. C.L.S.

THE PLACE OF HOLY COMMUNION

In the Christian Religion

By

CANON JAMES ADDERLEY

HOLY Communion is the greatest of all the sacraments, and I love it more and more as I get to know what it means. I cannot understand how it is that so many professing Christians neglect it. It is so simple and yet so great. In the first place it is the only one of the services in church which was actually ordained by Christ. I am told that the first prayer books which Christians used were just the service for the Holy Communion. It all seems so plain to me. Jesus Christ on the night before His crucifixion took bread and wine, calling them His body and His blood, and told us to do this very simple thing in remembrance of Him. In the oldest accounts we have of the story of the Church, we find Christians coming together on the first day of the week, that is, Sunday, for the breaking of bread. They have gone on doing this ever since, and now hundreds of millions do it every week in all parts of the world.

What is the good of it? Well, a believer in Christ does not wait to ask that question if he is sure that our Lord has told him to do it. But I think I can see some of the reasons why it is good for us to assemble at the Holy Communion. It should bring us together in love with one another. Our Lord washed His disciples' feet at the Last Supper, and gave them the commandment to love. If the Holy Communion was nothing else than a meeting of all Christians every week to realise their brotherhood and to help them to do good actions of service to others, it would be well worth our doing regularly. But it is more than that. We proclaim (so my padre tells me) the Lord's death until He comes again. The more I learn about Christ the more I see the importance of His wonderful life which did not end when He died on the Cross but began again with a new and glorious power on Easter Day when He rose again. This new life can never die any more. This is what our Lord wants us to have in mind at the Communion, not simply thinking of it as something past and done with, but taking it to be the way for us to follow now and always till we see Him at the last. He tells us to take up the Cross and follow Him. Self-sacrifice followed by new and everlasting life. That is what it means. The Holy Communion is a great reminder that we have got to go on doing this all our lives. Sunday by Sunday we renew the self-sacrifice and determine to remain firm to Christ. But we must not lay down the Cross the moment the service is over. The Church has always called the Holy Communion a sacrifice, and so it is. We join our Lord Who once offered the great sacrifice in His life and on the Cross, and we resolve in His power to sacrifice our bodies and pour out our life blood as He did for God and man.

The sacrifice begins at the altar, but it goes on outside the church in our ordinary life. What a splendid thing it would be if all of us communicants went straight from the Holy Communion and offered ourselves, our souls, and bodies, to God in service of others, as we say we do in our prayers!

I have a friend who, on Christmas Day, goes to visit the hospitals and says to me that that is much better than Holy Communion. That sounds to me like saying that taking a ten-mile walk is better than having breakfast. Why not have both? The walk will be all the better if you have had some food before starting. He would do his acts of love in the hospital all the better if he had just remembered Christ in communion first, just as I should make a better communion if I had resolved to go to the hospital after it.

I have not said all about the communion.

In it our Lord gives us the heavenly food of His body and blood. Nobody can quite understand this, but it is enough for us that Jesus bids us eat. That good man, General Gordon, used to love the Holy Communion very much, and he said this about it: "When God said 'Don't eat,' man disobeyed and ate (in the Garden of Eden), but when God said 'Take eat' (as He did in the Holy Communion), man has disobeyed Him ever since by neglecting the holy food."

How foolish we are to neglect it. My wife and I love our communions. It seems to give us a good start every week for our hard lives. As soon as the kids get older they will be confirmed and receive it with us. Already we take them to church when we go that they may get used to the service, and we teach them that they, together with all of us, are just remembering Jesus Christ.

Everything goes wrong in the world through our forgetting Jesus Christ, forgetting His words, forgetting His love for us, forgetting His power to save, forgetting Who He really is. Everything would get right in the world if we all remembered Him every day and every hour. All the evil in ourselves and in others, all the wars and strifes would cease if we remembered Him as He was at that Last Supper, on the Cross, and still is on His throne in Heaven. Why, then, do we not use His own appointed service of continual remembrance? This is the use I have found for Holy Communion.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

SHAW AND CHESTERTON DEBATE

On the Present Social Order

Reported by

A. MANBY LLOYD

DESTRUCTIVE gale; Stonehenge threatened by jerry-builders and petrol-pumps; J. D. Rockefeller's gift to the Shakespeare Theatre; the commercializing of Oxford; these and other things have made Bishop Barnes and his gorilla sermons a back number. Margot (the countess of Oxford and Asquith), opening an Arts and Crafts Exhibit in the Town Hall, said, "Oxford is a sad place. They have the finest buildings in the world, and they build the most hideous ones outside." To commercialize a place like Oxford is a crime. As for petrol pumps—those hideous Aunt Sallies of bright vermillion, with heads on one side and God knows what on the top—words failed her. Good taste was a thing to be cultivated. The buildings in Oxford, Cambridge and other famous towns were being hidden from view by "that dreadful weed," Virginia creeper. Virginia creeper and ivy were meant to hide mean houses, and should have nothing to do with old stone buildings such as those of Oxford.

* * *

Bernard Shaw, in declining the late Lord Mayor's invitation to a dinner at the Mansion House, in "honor of journalism," recalls a banquet he accepted 40 years ago. He regrets to say he repaid that hospitality by writing up such an account for the "Star," that no scribe, to his knowledge, had been since invited.

All England was listening in to his debate, last week, with Chesterton. Subject: "Do We Agree?" Belloc, who gets more Dantonesque every day, was in the chair, and a packed house cheered and howled and held its sides, as Don Juan and Don Quixote laid about with sword and thrust. Shaw stood for State Socialism. Chesterton is the leader of "Distributism." Shaw asked: "What is capital?" He would define it as "spare money." What people don't know is, that when you have employed that capital it no longer exists. Some of my capital was employed in the late war, and this country still has my name written down as the proprietor of the capital they blew to pieces in that war. The capitalist and landlord have their own ways of robbing the poor. If I own a large part of Scotland, I can turn the people off the land into the sea. . . . But compare that with the ownership of my umbrella; I cannot do what I like with that. Certain passages of Chesterton's speech tempt me to hit him over the head with that umbrella. But had I done so, I should soon find out that I could not claim my umbrella to be my own property, in the legal sense in which land is my property. I want to destroy property in land.

Not so long ago I said in this column that Shaw was becoming more and more likely to revert to Catholicism. He has defended miracles. He has a good word for the Inquisition (of all things). He and the Holy Father, between them, are the rivals for the tiara of Infallibility. So I was not surprised to hear him say: "I do not believe in denominationalism. I believe in Catholicism, but not in the Irish Episcopal sense, or the Roman sense, or the Greek sense. They have all taken the name of Catholicism in vain. I mean general catholicism; as apart from this voting business and democracy." Then he turned to G. K. C. and asked, "Do you agree?"

Of course you can see what he was driving at, and the obvious retort would be, "Define your terms." But G. K. C. was too "fly" to fall into the trap.

* * *

The joke about the umbrella was too tempting for G. K. C. to pass over. When Shaw refrains from hitting him over the head, the real reason is not that Shaw does not own his own umbrella (it was his wife's) —but that he did not own Chesterton's head. Then came a long argument about peasants and postage stamps and coal mines. He ended: "Mr. Shaw and Bishop Barnes might think it would be an inadequate way of explaining it, but we might call attention to an Hebraic code called the Ten Commandments. They do correspond pretty roughly to the moral code of every religion that is at all sane. They all reverence certain ideas about 'Thou shall not kill.' They all have a reverence for the one that says, 'Thou shall not covet thy neighbor's goods.' They reverence the idea that you must not covet his house or his ox or his ass. It should be noted, too, that besides forbidding us to covet all these things, this commandment also implies that every man owns some property." This sally enabled G. K. C. to sit down to a roar of cheers and laughter.

Then Shaw began to talk about coal. You could go to the Sunderland coast and pick up coal for nothing. You take a sack on the foreshore and when the tide goes out, you get excellent coal. But go to Whitehaven and you will have to go through workings driven out under the sea, which took 20 years to make; 20 years' expenditure of capital, before men could walk 2 or 3 miles to their work. That is the reason you cannot distribute your coal-mine. Chesterton says the coal-mine is an exception; here he is bound to give in to Shaw. But if he goes on to the land, and from there to every other department of life, he will find that every successive case is an exception. . . . "I may be a democrat, but I am not a snob. Intellectually I am a snob. Socially I am not a snob," said Shaw, in one of his Shavian moments. But for the most part he was serious and practical.

* * *

Chesterton had the last word, which was philosophical. He was not cutting a thing up into mathematical squares. Because some landlords have been cruel, it is no use to talk of abolishing, denying or destroying property. Shaw's morality is characteristic of his age. It says you must not drink wine, because people drink too much. He hopes to make us all give up the sentiment of private property as he hopes to make us give up beer and meat. It is quite false to say that all forces must be used, as they are monopolies from the center. It is absurd to say that because the wind is a central thing you cannot have windmills. Shaw said that men and women are the only means of production. He quite agreed. But he declined to admit that the Government, that is, a few officials, should own the men and women; in other words, that the men and women should be slaves.

Belloc, in summing up (which he really refused to do) said there were three things that might happen: (1) A general breakdown, leading through ruin to restoration; (2) a breakdown, leading to a desert; and (3) slavery. "Take your choice. You will all be dead before either of these three things come off." And on this cheerful note, the meeting dispersed. And we all felt that the debate had only just begun.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

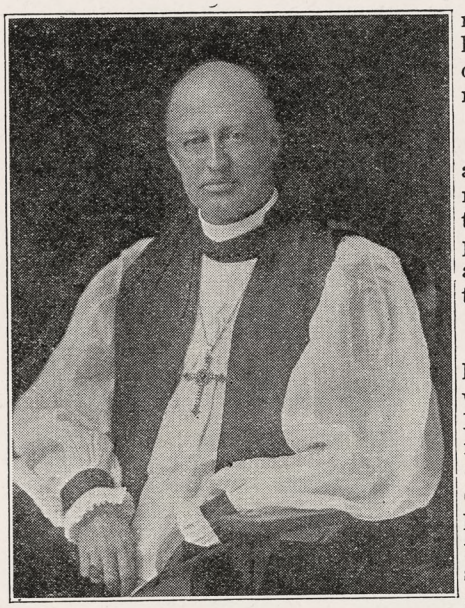
Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD.

IF YOUR radio set is powerful enough, or near enough, to pick up WTAQ, tune in on Tuesday evenings and listen to sense instead of jazz. Editor Frank Wilson is to broadcast answers to religious questions from 6:20 to 7 p. m.

"In inaugurating this service," says Dr. Wilson, "we want to be helpful. I know there are many things buzzing around in people's minds which they hesitate to talk about. Some questions are very real to the people who think about them, but the people themselves are embarrassed when it comes to talking them over. I would be glad to have them send such questions in. I do not care whether they are signed or not.

"In undertaking this extra bit of work, I do not claim to be a walking encyclopedia. There are plenty of things I do not know. However, no question will be evaded for that reason. I am not afraid to say—I do not know. I hope to avoid unnecessarily controversial matters. Such questions, as well as those of a very personal character, I would prefer to answer by mail sent directly to the questioner. All we ask is that the questions be on a religious subject and that they be honest questions. I have agreed with WTAQ to take it on for a month, every Tuesday evening, beginning November 22, and if it seems to be meeting a need, we shall continue indefinitely. We have nothing to exploit. We simply want to be helpful."



Religious questions are constantly being discussed in shops, in offices, on street corners. They are usually left hanging in the air for want of accurate information. An opportunity like this ought to be welcomed by very many people.

* * *

Christ Church, Springfield, Ill., the Rev. Jerry Wallace, rector, celebrated its golden jubilee on the 16th of November. They had a parish dinner at which the speakers were the Rev. Charles F. Blaisdell, rector of Calvary, Memphis, Tenn., and Mr. George K. Gibson, who, besides being a prominent business man in Chicago, is the very efficient superintendent of the Church School at St. Luke's, Evanston.

* * *

A quaint old English custom was indulged in at Gates Mill, Ohio, the other day, when Bishop Rogers and

BISHOP DAVIES
Proposes a Cathedral

the vicar of the mission there performed the ceremony of Blessing the Hounds for the Chagrin Valley Hunt just before dogs and riders set after the foxes. The hunters, dolled up in the bright raiment of such gentlemen and ladies, were met at the gate of the church yard by Bishop Rogers and Mr. Jackson, the vicar. The Bishop spoke briefly on religion and clean sport; briefly I am told since it is difficult to make horses and hounds listen attentively to addresses even by bishops. They then proceeded about the yard, blessing the animals and hanging medals of St. Hubert, the patron saint of the hunt, and St. Christopher, the protector of travelers, upon the bridles of the horses. It has been suggested that the foxes hardly seemed to get a fair break and the helper, in sending in this bit of news, expresses the hope that another year they may be administered to in such a way as to enable them to either travel a bit faster or cover up the scent.

* * *

The preacher at Trinity, New York, last Sunday was the Rt. Rev. E. F. Robins, Bishop of Athabasca.

* * *

The diocesan branch of the Girls' Friendly held a jubilee meeting at Troy, New York, when reports were made by the delegates to the international jubilee festival which was held in Boston. About four hundred girls and officers attended the meeting.

* * *

A series of discussion meetings are being held this winter at Emmanuel Church, Baltimore, under the auspices of organizations for the promotion of peace. The speakers are to be experts in the field of international relations.

* * *

The first regional conference following the Albany Catholic Congress was held at St. Luke's, Lebanon, Penna., on November 16th. The sermon was preached by the Rev. George P. Christian of All Saints, Orange, N. J. There were over two hundred lay people present and twenty-two clergymen. There was a solemn high mass and an afternoon session at which the Rev. Charles Jarvis Harriman reported on the Albany Congress. He was followed by the Rev. S. A. Caine, secretary of the Congress, who traced the development of the movement which has been built up to a membership of over five thousand, and outlined plans for the future. Moving pictures of the last three Congresses were shown.

* * *

The Rev. Wyatt Brown celebrated the completion of his seventh year as rector of St. Michael and All Angels, Baltimore, last month. This parish is the largest south of Philadelphia and has shown a marked growth along all lines, with over 1700 communicants at the present time. During the past few years ten men have gone from this parish into the ministry.

* * *

The fifth annual Churchman's dinner of the diocese of Albany was held on November 10th, with four hundred present. It being also Bishop Nelson's birthday the president of the Standing Committee, the Rev. H. R. Freeman, presented him with a purse of gold on behalf of the clergy. Bishop Nelson spoke on the developments in the diocese during his episcopate of twenty-three years, and spoke highly of the work of the Coadjutor, Bishop Oldham. The speaker of the evening was the Rev. G. Warfield Hobbs, executive secretary of the department of publicity of the National Council. Preceding the dinner there was a conference, attended by thirty deputies of the diocesan convention, at which Mr. Hobbs spoke on diocesan organization and Mr. Monell Sayre on the Church Pension Fund and the Church Insurance Corporation.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

Announcement has been made of gifts totaling $100,000 to the Berkeley Divinity School, which plans to move to New Haven, Connecticut next fall. It is planned to complete the fund of a million dollars by January first so that the school may be opened in September when the diocese is to celebrate the 200th anniversary of Bishop Berkeley's voyage to America. Most of the gifts so far announced came from Connecticut but some of the unsolicited contributions were received from Florida and the far West. Mr. Samuel A. York of New Haven has given $10,000 as a memorial to Bishop Lines, and another $10,000 is from Mrs. F. J. Kingsbury of New Haven in memory of her husband who served for many years as a trustee. A third memorial was given by Bishop Paddock and he designated ten outstanding Berkeley graduates to be memorialized; Bishop Lines; Bishop Huntington of Anking; Bishop Mosher of the Philippines; Bishop Wells of Spokane; Dean Binney; Rev. Ernest Miel, former rector of Trinity, Hartford; Rev. John N. Lewis, the rector of St. John's, Waterbury; Rev. Arthur Gammack, former rector of the parish in Fitchburg, Mass.; Rev. George B. Gilbert, rural pastor in Connecticut and the Rev. S. S. Drury, rector of St. Paul's School.

* * *

The clergy of the Albany archdeaconery, diocese of Georgia, met for three days at St. John's, Bainbridge, and held services, Bible study, conferences and listened to book reviews.

* * *

The department of religious education in the diocese of Georgia is serving not only their own people but is reaching out into neighboring dioceses by means of a loose leaf form containing prayers, aids to teaching, and other matters pertaining to the Church School. Three training schools have been held at different points in the diocese this fall.

* * *

Under the general theme of "Stewardship" six laymen of St. Stephen's, Wilkinsburg, Pa., are delivering brief addresses after the announcements by the rector each Sunday. Among the subjects are: "Do You Know and Care What the Church's Program Is?" "Body, Mind and Soul Training;" "Are We Clear About Life's Values?"; "Responsibility and Opportunity;" "What Does Money Mean When You Put It in a Christian Setting?" and "Worshippers and Workers." The rector who can persuade six laymen to stand before a congregation and deliver an address has accomplished something.

* * *

Springfield diocese has suffered a real loss in the complete destruction by fire of the new church at Herrin. Arrangements have been made to hold services in the Elk's Building, and it is the plan of diocesan officers to start building a new plant at once.

* * *

Professor Henry Crew, of Northwestern University, addressed those attending the recent meeting of the Northwestern deanery of the diocese of Chicago, held at St. Mark's, Evanston. He spoke on "Recent Viewpoints in Physical Science." An address was also made by the Rev. E. J. Randall on missionary work in the diocese.

* * *

Here is another warning, this time from the Rev. Alfred R. Berkeley, rector of St. John's, Roanoke, Va.:

"I am informed by the Rev. Duncan H. Browne, of St. James' Church, Chicago, that one William Ross is using my name in connection with a story that his family were killed in an automobile accident near Roanoke, last summer, and that he is a member of St. John's Church, Roanoke, of which I am Rector. I

CROUP AND CHILDREN'S COLDS QUICKLY RELIEVED

Since 1802 or for 124 years mothers have known that Roche's Embrocation is the quickest relief for whooping cough, croup and colds. Just rub it on the child's chest Phlegm is loosened, congestion broken. Then relief comes.

Sold By All Druggists or

E. FOUGERA & CO., Inc., New York
W. Edwards & Sons, London, Eng., Props.

ROCHE'S EMBROCATION

OXFORD PRAYER BOOKS AND HYMNALS

Exquisite sets printed on Oxford India Paper for ladies, durably bound sets in bright colors for children, and large type editions for older folks.

Oxford Prayer Books, with or without marriage certificate, bound in white leather, make excellent wedding gifts.

At All Booksellers
Catalogue Upon Request

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS
AMERICAN BRANCH
35 WEST 32ND STREET
NEW YORK

Money for Churches

Hundreds of churches by their experience have proved that men trained in financial campaigns raise more money more easily than untrained men.

Over $208,500,000 has been raised for religious and philanthropic institutions by members of this organization.

Campaigns undertaken anywhere. We care for every detail.

Plan for that new building, addition or Sunday School. Let us help you clear off debts. Write us your hopes.

Members of this organization have conducted campaigns for the Church ranging from Hundred Thousand Dollar funds for parishes to Several Millions for institutional and diocesan programs.

"Financing Philanthropy," quarterly paper, free on request.

Member Joint Board of Campaign Counsel and Planning

HEDRICK, MARTS & LUNDY, Inc.
527 Fifth Ave., New York

Church Kalendar for 1928

(THIRTY FIFTH YEAR)

THE HANDSOMEST AND MOST USEFUL KALENDAR PUBLISHED

THOUSANDS SOLD BY CHURCH SOCIETIES

Kalendar Months in Colors. Tables of Lessons for Holy Days and Sundays. Proper Psalms for Seasons, Days, and Special Occasions. Tables of Psalms. "Black Letter" Saints Days.

SAMPLE POSTPAID 40c CIRCULAR FREE

ASHBY PRINTING CO.
Publishers - ERIE, PENNA.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

know of no such person and his statement is false."

* * *

What do people want to know about religion and the Episcopal Church? Nobody can give a complete answer probably, but the questions asked missioners may be some indication. Here is a list of questions put to a well-known parochial missioner the other evening:

"Do you believe in guardian angels?"

"Please tell us more about All Saints Day and All Souls Day."

"Do you believe that we retain our present identity throughout eternity?"

"What is the difference between the kingdom of God and the Kingdom of Heaven?"

"Why do women always wear hats when in the Episcopal Church?"

"Is it a good thing to pray for my loved ones who have gone before in the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ? Would it be right for me to ask my rector to remember them at the Altar in the Holy Communion?"

"What may a Christian believe in regard to evolution?"

"Do you think our loved ones come to us or know about us after leaving us?"

"How are we to interpret the Book of Jonah, as history or allegory?"

"Why do you always use printed prayers in the Episcopal Church?"

"Does any reliable authority or record show where Jesus was from the time the Bible leaves Him as a boy and returns Him as the man?"

* * *

Dean Massie, reported in a previous issue as ill, is rapidly recovering and will again take up his duties at Christ Church Cathedral shortly after the first of the year.

* * *

Bishop Burton, of Lexington, celebrated his 75th birthday by going to Frankfort, Ky., and addressing a meeting of Ascension Parish on the Church's program. The Rev. John Gass, rector at Charleston, W. Va., a former rector, also spoke on the "Romance of Money as Related to the Kingdom of God."

* * *

The Rev. E. H. Eckel, of Fort Worth, Tex., recently addressed about a thousand students of Texas Christian University on the "Bible as the Fountainhead of a Liberal Education." He urged the consent and critical study of the Bible for cultural and ethical ends.

* * *

A mission was held at St. James', Zanesville, Ohio, the Rev. Duncan Weeks, rector, November 6-13, the missioner being the Rev. Walter E. Bentley. Mr. Bentley also spoke before the various organizations of the town—Rotary, Kiwanis, Ministerial Association and the high school students. Many from other churches attended the mission.

* * *

The Department of Missions received the following cable from Shanghai on November 16: There is no cause for anxiety. All are quite safe in Hankow. Telegraph lines interrupted, cannot get any further particulars. Dr. Wood, Bishop Sanford, Bishop Huntington and Mr. M. P. Walker all left for Hankow yesterday.

* * *

The Rev. Charles Mercer Hall, of Bridgeport, Conn., recently conducted a Quiet Day at St. Paul's, Springfield, Ill., and more recently a week's mission at St. Paul's, Alton.

* * *

The Rev. Alfred J. Derbyshire, Shelburne, Vt., died of influenza on November 8, after a brief illness. He had been in this parish but two months, having come this summer is the authorized and approved hymnal of the Church. Its wide use has aided greatly in the encouragement of congregational singing.

The New Hymnal

———o———

Three editions are available.

The Standard Musical Edition is intended for the use of the congregation. It is well bound in dark blue cloth and is priced at $1.20 per copy, except in orders of 100 or more, in which case the price is reduced to $1.00 per copy.

The Special Choir Edition is heavily reinforced and is bound in red buckram. It is priced at $1.50 per copy, or $1.30 per copy in orders of 100 or more.

The Word Edition, without music, costs 40c per copy.

———o———

Carriage charges are extra.

Orders should be sent to

The Church Pension Fund

14 Wall Street New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

from the diocese of Upper South Carolina. He was but 34 years of age.

* * *

Christ Church, Cuba, New York, marked the 75th anniversary of the organization of the parish with an eight-day preaching mission, conducted by the Rev. Walter E. Bentley. The mission ended with a corporate communion, at which Bishop Ferris was celebrant.

* * *

Roger Babson says:

One dollar spent for a lunch lasts five hours.

One dollar spent for a necktie lasts five weeks.

One dollar spent for a cap lasts five months.

One dollar spent for an automobile lasts five years.

One dollar spent in service for God lasts for eternity.

* * *

Fifteen clergymen from eleven states and the District of Columbia gathered this week on Mount Saint

SHATTUCK

A Church School for Boys

For 68 years Shattuck has been a leader among college preparatory schools in the West. It is not operated for profit. It aims to develop High Scholarship, Manly Character, Christian Citizenship.

The military system trains for service and patriotism. Openings for a few students after Christmas holidays. Address The Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

EARN A TOUR OF EUROPE

Organizers, Conductors and Hostesses Wanted for Summer Tours, 1928. Lowest Cost Tours, 37 days, $295; 60 days, $490. HOLY LAND, $390.

ALLEN TOURS, INC.,
80 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.

THE SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY will furnish vestments, altar hangings and linens at moderate cost. Also Priests' girdles, hand-made of imported linen thread. Sisters of the Holy Nativity; Fond duc Lac, Wisconsin.

Everybody Enjoys
PATERSON SMYTH'S
People's Life of Christ
A fresh, reverent, modern treatment.
As fascinating as fiction, but true in every detail to the Scripture record. Pocket Edition $1.50
Large Illustrated Edition, $2.50
FLEMING H. REVELL CO., 158 Fifth Ave., N. Y.; 851 Cass St., Chicago

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

Christmas Money for You

Search Your Attic for Fortunes in Old Envelopes

Among the old letters of many families are hundreds of very rare stamps and envelopes. Many have been found and sold for fortunes. Single envelopes have been sold for as high as $6,000, and many have brought upwards of $100 each. It sounds "fishy," but it's true. They are valuable because they are rare. And they are rare, not because there are only a few, but simply because most of them have remained stored away and forgotten, in old trunks, family chests and closets.

Make a thorough search through your attic or store room for such old letters—anything mailed from 1845 to 1865. Fortunes in rare stamps have been found in old trunks which no one ever dreamed contained anything of value. Keep the letters if you wish, but send the envelopes to Mr. Harold C. Brooks, Box 268, Marshall, Michigan, and he will immediately write you, stating their value. In sending them to him you are not obliged to sell unless his offer meets with your approval. Anything not purchased he will return in good order. Mr. Brooks, who is mayor of his city, is a private collector and has paid thousands of dollars for old envelopes bearing stamps. Although the rare issues are especially desired, he also buys many of the commoner kinds. Many people in this way are getting Christmas money with very little trouble and no expense.

The advertising manager of THE WITNESS has known Mr. Brooks for many years, and you may place fullest confidence in his integrity. On receipt of envelopes he will examine them and report promptly their value. If they are not purchased, he guarantees to return them in good order.

Mr. Brooks states that there are so many different stamps which are similar in appearance he cannot quote values from written descriptions, but must see the envelopes. Furthermore, he is not interested in buying loose stamps or stamp collections, but only the old envelopes bearing postage; so do not cut the stamps from the envelopes. It is not necessary to write dates on envelopes as Mr. Brooks is fully acquainted with all issues even though the postmark shows no year date. Those especially wanted are United States issues, but he also buys Confederate, Canadian, Hawaiian, and certain foreign stamps provided they are on the original envelopes and mailed not later than 1865.

If envelopes are sent in a bunch they should be carefully packed in a cardboard box to protect them from damage while in the mails. If you have reason to believe your envelopes are of special value send them by registered or insured mail. If you have no old letters written during or before the Civil War, show this notice to your friends—especially those whose families have lived in the same home for several generations. Many old families, old banks and law firms still have stored away hundreds of letters, waiting to be bruned or sold for large sums. Before destroying such envelopes or folded letters investigate their value. Mr. Brooks' address is as follows:

HAROLD C. BROOKS,
Box 268. Marshall, Mich.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

Hospital of St. Barnabas
SCHOOL OF NURSING
Offers 2½ years course leading to R. N. Degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll now.
For full information, address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas
Newark, N. J.

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London, W. I., England.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin
Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request. Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, also chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses, $7.60 up, burse and veil, $15 up; Silk damask cope, $120; Silk damask chasuble, $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel., Cleveland 52.

ORGAN FOR SALE
TWO MANUAL PIPE ORGAN WITH ELECTRIC blower and motor. Just the right size for a small parish church. Bargain at $700. Address: St. Matthres Church, 8545 96th Street, Woodhaven, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

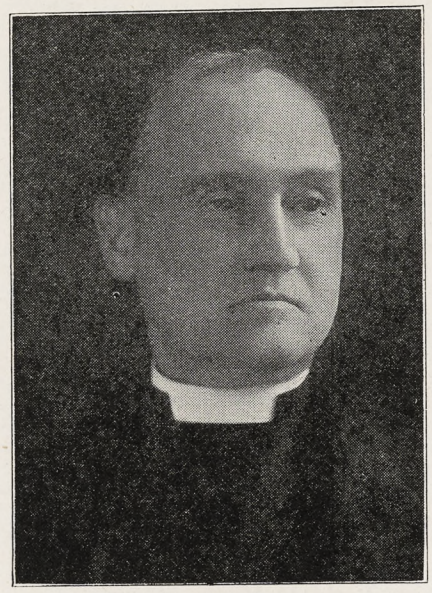
Alban to participate in the initial conference of a series which will be held throughout the year under the auspices of the College of Preachers of Washington Cathedral, to provide inspiration and post-graduate training for preaching the messages of the various church seasons.

Three annual conferences have been held by the College of Preachers, which was established three years ago on a basis of far-reaching service to stimulate the art of preaching and to enable the Church to fulfill, much more effectively than in the past, its duty of carrying the Gospel message beyond the confines of parishes and congregations to the millions of people outside any form of organized Christianity. This week's gathering, however, was the first to concern itself with preaching the message of a single church season.

The clergymen in attendance were afforded the opportunity of freshening and vitalizing their work in preparation for their ministry during Advent, the season of four weeks immediately preceding Christmas. The Rt. Rev. Philip M. Rhinelander, former Bishop of Pennsylvania and Warden of the College, directed the studies. He was assisted by the Very Rev. H. E. W. Fosbroke, Dean of the General Theological Seminary, New York City.

* * *

A cable from Bishop Roots, in Hankow, received November 18, says:



There is no cause for alarm; new officials are friendly. Property, members of our mission, both natives and foreign, are all safe. Commission expected to arrive on the 19th.

* * *

The Rev. William Harman Van Allen celebrated the 25th anniversary of his rectorship of the Advent, Boston, on November 27. Bishop Lawrence was the preacher at the morning service and the Rev. James Huntington, O. H. C., was the preacher in the evening.

* * *

A plea for a united front of Christian churches against the "enemies" of the home and the marriage tie was made by Bishop William T. Manning at a church unity luncheon held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, under the combined auspices of the Protestant Teachers' Association and the Protestant Unity League of New York. The audience numbered 2,320.

BISHOP BREWSTER
Speaker at Celebration

"We all realize the harm, the weakness, the wrong, that results from the division among Christians," said Bishop Manning. "In view of the world-wide concerted attack which we know is going on against the sacredness of the home and the marriage tie, and against the whole fabric of Christian morals, we need more than ever the united witness of all our people for Jesus Christ and the things for which He stands."

* * *

A conference of the clergy of Long Island was held at Garden City on the 21st.

* * *

Many beautiful memorials at the Church of the Resurrection, Richmond Hill, Long Island, were dedicated by the rector, the Rev. Arthur R. Cummings, on a recent Sunday.

* * *

St. James,' Winsted, Connecticut,

These Bonds Give: Bibles to the Needy and High as 9% to You

Yes, Bible Annuity Bonds do both. They buy Bibles which are given free to immigrants and seamen, in their own language, to people in prison, to the sick in hospitals and raised-type Bibles to the blind. At the same time these bonds pay you a fixed yearly income for life—from 4% to 9% according to your age. The rates on ages from 31 to 80 were recently increased.

There is no worry about Bible Annuity Bonds. No fluctuations. Absolutely safe. They go on paying you the same dependable income year after year. When you are gone they represent you on earth, buying Bibles for the needy and spiritually hungry. Can be applied on two lives—husband and wife, mother and daughter. Send coupon today for details.

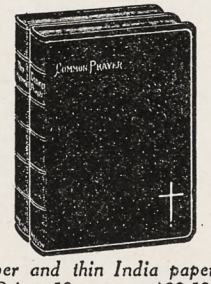
NEW YORK BIBLE SOCIETY
5 East 48th St., Dept. 33
NEW YORK

New York Bible Society, Dept. 33,
5 East 48th St., New York City
Gentlemen: Without obligation, please send me descriptive pamphlets about your Bible Annuity Bonds.

Name ..... Age.....

Address .....

City ..... State.....



St. Albans The National Cathedral School For Boys

Thorough Preparation for Leading Universities. Splendid equipment, unexcelled location on Mt. St. Alban overlooking Washington. Eight years' course. Athletics for Every Boy.

Address: WILLIAM H. CHURCH
Head Master, Washington, D. C.

NELSON PRAYER BOOK AND THE NEW HYMNAL

Possess this beautiful new edition of the Prayer Book: use it in your devotion; enjoy its clear, readable type, its fine paper. This Prayer Book is published under certificate of approval from the custodian of the Standard Prayer Book.

Increase the joy of the service by the use of this beautiful new hymnal—the last word in satisfying book construction. The hymnal is authorized and approved for use by the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America.

Printed on fine white paper and thin India paper, they may be purchased singly or in combination. Prices 50 cents to $22.50. For Sale by all Dealers.

Thomas Nelson & Sons 383-385 P—Fourth Avenue New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York
139 West Forty-sixth Street
Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D., Litt.D.
Sunday Masses, 7:30, 8:15, 9, 10:45.
Vespers and Benediction, 4.
Week-day Masses, 7, 8, 9:30.

St. John's, Cynwyd, Pa.
The Birthplace of the Lenten Offering
When in Philadelphia attend services here. Call Cynwyd 1382 for information.
Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, D.D., Rector
Sundays 8 and 11 A. M.

has received $12,000 from the estate of the late Emily Steele of Boston.

* * *

Rev. John C. McKim, son of Bishop McKim, of Japan, has been lecturing in Massachusetts on the work in that country.

* * *

There are 180 Episcopal Church students at the Iowa State University this year, writes the Rev. H. S. Longley from Trinity Church, Iowa City. He says, "Serious-minded horn-rimmed-spectacled ones are in the minority, but, at that, sometimes we ask ourselves, 'Why don't the old folks go to church as well as the students?' The parish and student lists of communicants here are approximately the same, but Church attendance is two to one in favor of the students."

* * *

Thirty years ago Wilfrid Barbrooke Grubb, of the South American Missionary Society (Church of England), went to live among the savage Lengua tribe in the Paraguay "Chaco," the great region of grasslands and desert plains. "Now", writes Bishop Every, "we have a Christian village, where the people live an ordered civilized life, working as cattle-men, carpenters and laborers. Each day's work is begun and ended with prayer in St. Peter's Church. . . . These wild people used to practice infanticide and put their

FREDERICK T. DATSON, PRIEST

An Appreciation

THE REV. FREDERICK T. DATSON, Rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Wichita Falls, Tex., entered into eternal rest on Wednesday, November 9, 1927.

We, the clergy of the Diocese of Dallas, desire to place on record, together with our sense of bereavement and our profound sympathy with the sorrowing family, our deep and sincere appreciation of the personal character, and the intellectual, pastoral, and administrative ability of our late associate and fellow-priest.

Coming to this Diocese of Dallas early in 1914, as rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Wichita Falls, he served his parish, community, and diocese, with conspicuous efficiency up to within a few months of his decease. For about a year and a half, 1918-19, he served as rector of Trinity Parish, Fort Worth. At the time of his lamented death, at the age of 53 years, he was the third priest of the diocese in order of canonical connection.

By reason of his widely exercised civic and religious activity in Wichita Falls in furtherance of educational, philanthropic and Christian enterprisees, he had come to be recognized as one of the city's foremost citizens, known, honored and loved by all classes of people. This fact was impressively indicated in local newspaper accounts of his death, and was strikingly manifested, at the time of his burial, by the numerous representatives from various civic bodies who paid their sorrowful tribute to his memory.

The extensive and valuable parish property in the heart of the city, embracing a new Church and Parish house, stand as a lasting monument to his energy and success as an executive and administrator.

The Diocese of Dallas has lost, by his demise, one of its most capable, conscientious and useful clergy, whose wider interest and service have been of great benefit to the diocese and have been recognized by the bestowal of the highest honors that were within its gift.

"Lord, all-pitying Jesus blest,
Grant him Thine eternal rest."

Signed for the Clergy:
HIRAM J. ELLIS,
EDWARD HENRY ECKEL,
CHAUNCEY E. SNOWDEN, Committee.

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 8:45 (French) 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily: 7:30 and 10 A. M. and 5:00 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m., 4 p. m.
Daily, 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursday, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11 A. M., and 8 P. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursday, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 7, 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., Fri., and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30 and 11:00 A. M., 5:00, 6:15 and 8:00 P. M.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp and Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses. Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.

Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country; its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — In a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

old folk to death when they are no longer strong enough to wander with their tribe . . . they were cruel, thriftless, Godless, but have become self-restraining, hard-working, God-fearing. . . Four days' ride to the west another village has sprung up round the mission station. Last year the baptism of the first converts took place. There is a well-thought-out plan to establish a chain of missions across this whole region, including both the Paraguay and Argentine Chaco districts."

* * *

The new parish house of St. Paul's, Brookline, Massachusetts, was formally opened on November 11th. Due to the rapid growth of the parish during the rectorship of the Rev. William L. Clark, the old parish house was inadequate. The new one is among the most beautiful in the diocese.

* * *

A successful healing mission was conducted at St. Alban's, McCook, North Dakota, directed by the Rev. Robert Bell of Denver. The final meeting was held in the high school auditorium at the suggestion of the doctors of the town. The rector of the parish writes: "Mr. Bell has won McCook to his message and the mission has done wonders for the local parish and for the Episcopal Church."

* * *

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, Bishop Manning and Mrs. Manning head the list of patrons of the annual benefit performance of the Episcopal Actors' Guild which is to be given at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, on November 20th. Many prominent members of the theatrical profession are announced to appear.

Clerical Changes

BROWN, Rev. Robert A., Jr., curate at the Epiphany, New York City, has accepted a call to Calvary, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CADY, Rev. Howard, rector of Holy Apostles', Barnwell, S. C., has accepted appointment as curate at St. Luke's, New York City.

COBB, Rev. Rodney F., curate at Trinity Church, New York City and formerly at Trinity Cathedral, Davenport, Iowa, has accepted a call to the rectorship of Christ Church, Austin, Minn., and takes up his new work December 1. Address, 406 St. Paul St.

De FOREST, Rev. W. J., rector of Grace Church, Canton, N. Y., has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. James', Brooklyn, N. Y.

HOLLEY, Rev. Allan J., rector at Peterborough, N. H., has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. Thomas', Brandon, Vt.

HYATT, Rev. H. M., non-parochial, has accepted a call to the rectorship of Christ Church, Yonkers, N. Y.

MIDDLETON, Rev. Walter C., rector of St. Luke's, Plattsmouth, Neb., has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. Luke's, Denver, Colo.

POTTLE, Rev. Vincent F., assistant at St. Marks', Philadelphia, has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. George's, Philadelphia.

ROBESON, Rev. John M., rector of St. Stephens', Goldsboro, and St. Paul's, Lynchburg, Va., has taken charge of Grace Church, Plymouth, N. C.

WILSON, Rev. J. M., in charge of Christ Church, Cuba, N. Y., has accepted appointment to take charge of St. James', Hackettstown, N. J.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, jurnalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.

(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary

An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago

College Preparatory and general courses

Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,

Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.

Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO

Church Training School

President: The Bishop of Chicago.

Director of Studies: The Rev. F. C. Grant, S.T.D.

A two year course of practical work and study to prepare women for service in the Church. Address:

DEACONESS FULLER

211 So. Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL

Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Again, The Canvass

Every Member Canvass Dates: November 20 to December 4

The vastly important work maintained by the General Church will cost in 1928 $4,212,370.

That does not include new work. It is merely support of work now under way in mission fields in this country and overseas.

Every unit of it is authorized by General Convention, the voice of the whole Church.

General Convention directed that the Church shall pay as it goes, that dioceses shall notify National Council the amounts they expect to pay, and that expenditures shall be made in accordance with their promises.

The canvass shows what the people of the Church intend to give next year. When dioceses and districts report to National Council the amounts promised, existing work can go on, or it must be cut to fall within the amount that is to be given.

That is a sound business reason for the Canvass. But in addition to business reasons, the Canvass provides the Churchman's annual opportunity to show his gratitude and his faith, his willingness to project himself by means of his money, into those distant places where men lack the Light of Christ's Gospel.

So the pledge card is a barometer of missionary interest.

Support the Canvass with your prayers, your service and your money.

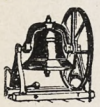
THE NATIONAL COUNCIL

281 Fourth Avenue New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

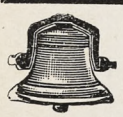
The WITNESS

CHICAGO, DECEMBER 8, 1927



Christmas

THERE are those who will feel that a subscription to a Church paper, which will bring to the friend or relative fifty-two weeks of stimulating information about the Church, is an ideal Christmas gift. If you are one of these send to the Chicago office the names and addresses of four people to whom you wish to have the paper sent, with a check or money order for five dollars (a saving of 75c on each subscription) and we will start the subscriptions with the issue for Christmas, sending each one also a Christian Christmas card announcement the gift as from you. If you send less than four the cost for each is $1.50, a saving of fifty cents. For four or more $1.25 each. Please act at once so that each one may receive the Christmas number which is to contain a Christmas editorial by Bishop Johnson and an article, "The Meaning of Christmas" by the English writer, Oscar Brooks.



Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.
314 East 34th St. New York
worker in glass ☒ mosaic ☒ church decorations ☒

For "Daylight Projection"
of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use
BALOPTICONS
There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.
Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 657 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ
Church Bells — Peals
McShane Bell Foundry Co.
Baltimore, Md.

Vestments
For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring
Inquiries given prompt attention
J. M. HALL, Inc.
174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403)
(Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.
1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows
Monuments and Church Furnishings
IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR
CHARLES F. HOGEMAN
45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts.
NEW YORK
460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N. J

The Taylor Bell Foundry
LOUGHBOROUGH, ENGLAND
The World's Leading Bellfounders
CHURCH BELLS
SINGLY OR IN PEALS
CHIMES OR CARILLONS
AUTOMATIC OPERATION
Unequalled for Musical Qualities
Yale University — Birmingham, Ala.
Andover — Gloucester
Morristown — Cranbrook, Mich.
Harvard University
Germantown, Etc., Etc.
INQUIRIES SOLICITED

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs
The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.
M. P. MOLLER
Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios
5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.
MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS
If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart
Stained Glass
English Artists
550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

R. GEISSLER, INC.
56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST. 1877

DEAGAN
Tubular Bell
Tower Chimes
The one most beautiful form of memorial
Standard Sets, $6000 up
J. C. DEAGAN, Inc.
161 Deagan Building, Chicago
Played Direct From Organ Console

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD.
EXETER
and 4 & 5 Duncannon St.
Charing Cross LONDON
ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS
in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal and
Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.), Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

Windows of Merit
Beautiful Groupings
Gorgeous Combinations of Color
Well executed by
The Von Gerichten Studios
Columbus, Ohio. New York City

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.
— Office and Studio —
224-226 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.
DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.
— Photos, Designs and Estimates upon Application —
ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 16 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.
Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

WHY THE CHURCH TEACHES

VI. The Necessity of Financial Support

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

THIS question would seem almost superfluous if one were not so familiar with the problems of Church Treasurers, and the relation of church income to the prosperity of our constituency.

If God is the source of every blessing, then God's purpose should be the chief concern of His children. Not that God Himself is in need of our financial support. "If I were hungry, I would not tell thee, for the whole world is mine and all that is therein. I will take no bullock out of thine house, nor he-goats out of thy folds. For all the beasts of the forest are mine; and so are the cattle upon a thousand hills."

God's purpose is to give us this world.

"Let us make man in our image and let him have dominion" over it all.

He has created the world, appointed us His stewards and has gone into a far country leaving us to administer our stewardship.

The one limitation is that the time soon comes when we can be no longer stewards and when we must give full account of our stewardship.

And stewardship implies a consideration of that which He wills us to do rather than that which we ourselves would prefer to do.

There is no question what He wills.

We often ask the question rather impatiently, "Why does God permit suffering and why does He allow injustice?"

There can be but one answer. He has given to man this very small fraction of His mighty universe. In comparison with the whole this earth is but a farm. He has given it to us as a father gives an estate to a child, in order that in the management of the estate he may develop those qualities which make him a real man and not a dependent child. The boy will make mistakes but no father would care to protect his child to the extent that he never would mature. That would be to wish that children might grow up into morons.

God wills that we should grow into the measure of the stature of His dear Son whom He sent to be our exemplar and an help.

It is a wonderful view of life and the world so different from that which regards our personal pleasures and indulgences as the chief end of life.

We live, not to be ministered unto but to minister.

The Church was instituted to be the household of faith in which and through which we should develop those qualities of service and fellowship that react in forming an eternal character.

Of course, this is a big conception of life, but then God is not petty and I refuse to reject a reasonable theory of any life because it involves a conception of God which is too great for petty minds.

I expect that the Creator of the universe will have a large vision of life ending in the Kingdom of Heaven rather than a drab conception of life ending in a graveyard.

So the Church puts before you a program of service, bigger than your own family, your parish or your diocese—a program of service which enables you to feel that all of the work which the Church is doing is something in which He gives you the opportunity to share.

If you will look at your membership in His household in this way, you will be anxious to do your full share in that fellowship of which you are a member.

Giving becomes a privilege, not a task; and your chief concern will be: not how little but how much! not how restricted, but how general; not how advertised, but how real is our generosity.

The world is the Church's field. It would be false to its Master's plan if it refused to catch its Master's vision.

He stretched out His loving arms to all men and begged us to avoid a petty sectarian view of life.

Of course, we cannot by ourselves do much. That is why He commented upon the widow who gave two mites.

And He approved of her gift, even though it went into the treasury of His bitterest enemies, Annas and Caiaphas, who probably squandered it.

He saw the retroactive effect of her heroic gift on her own life, rather than the percentage of the gift that would probably be used in overhead.

The Church has a task to do. It is a labor of love.

When I see how freely men will wager sums on trivial contests and spend money in seeking thrills, I wonder why they do not see the thrill in the bigger game, the game of life itself; and realize that the most permanent joys come from putting their money on the spiritual combat which Christ has waged against selfishness and meanness.

As St. Paul says, they do it to obtain a corruptible crown and we an incorruptible.

It is a great adventure in which we take stock just in proportion as we have faith in the integrity of Christ.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Gambling is but a mean and trivial perversion of the great adventure in which we stake our life and all that we have on the promises of Christ.

Every man who turns his back upon the world's markets and enters the ministry has faced that issue. He has staked his life on the assurances of Christ.

Surely those who support the ministry should be as loyal to the cause as the alumni of Yale and Harvard are to their football teams.

And just in proportion as people give will they cease to criticize and be anxious to help the cause for which Christ died.

PRAYER BOOK AS MYSTERY DRAMA

The Psalter

By

IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

IN THE days when the persecutions of Christians by the Roman emperors were at the fiercest, about the year 111, the historian Pliny wrote the emperor Trajan, saying that the Christians met together before dawn to sing hymns "by turns" to Christ as God. Thus he described responsive chanting, either with a leader and congregation, as we ordinarily read the psalms, or between two parts of the congregation, as the choir chants back and forth between those on the right side and those on the left.

This custom arose from the Old Testament times. It is the oldest bit of service in the Christian Church. It is the only act of our worship which has survived without change from the Hebrew temple, for in the Temple of Solomon the Levites were ranged in bands and chanted back and forth as our choirs do.

The Song of Moses and Miriam at the crossing of the Red Sea was sung by Moses, stanza by stanza, while Miriam and the women answered him in chorus "Sing ye to the Lord, for He hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea."

Deborah likewise sang the song of victory over Sisera. It was the women singing "Saul hath slain his thousand and David his ten thousands" who welcomed the conquerer back from his wars. "The Lord gave the word; the women who publish the tidings are a great host" is an echo of this old custom.

The Old Testament, like the New Testament, began in songs. As the hymn of Zacharias, and the Magnificat, and the Gloria in Excelsis were the first utterances of the Gospel, so the hymns of Miriam and Deborah and the psalms of David were the beginnings of the Old Book. All through the catacombs, as all through the Babylonian captivity and in every age of the Church, the psalms have been sung steadily, day and night.

It was out of this custom of alternate chanting between a leader and a chorus that Greek drama rose. The Psalms carry us much farther back, for many of them are older than David.

Here let me venture to voice a plea for an intelligent version of the psalms. Why should men and women of a fair degree of education be asked to read responsively such gibberish as many of our translations of the psalms contain? It is not only the imprecatory psalms, which are objectionable. Many others are totally senseless. Take Psalm 58:

"Let them consume away as a snail, or as the untimely fruit of a woman: and let them not see the sun."

"Or ever your pots be made hot with thorns; so let indignation vex him, even as a thing that is raw."

"The righteous shall rejoice when he seeth the vengeance, he shall wash his footsteps in the blood of the ungodly."

This is an outrage on intelligence, as well as on every Christian doctrine. Either a sensible translation, or omit the psalm.

Many psalms are composed upon old proverbs, or old battlecries; like Psalm 68, "Exsurgat Deus," whose first words are the morning invocation of Moses, pronounced over the ark of the covenant each day when the tribes began their march. It is found in Numbers 10:35.

"And it came to pass, when the ark set forward, that Moses said 'Arise, O Lord, and let thine enemies be scattered; and let them that hate thee flee before thee.' And when it rested, he said 'Return, O Lord, unto the ten thousands of the thousands of Israel'."

The poem was written long afterward, and consists of exultant pictures of the march through the desert, and of the enthronement of the ark in the Temple:

"The singers went before, the minstrels followed after;

"In the midst were the damsels playing upon their timbrels."

But what does this mean?

"When the company of the spearmen and multitude of the mighty are scattered abroad among the beasts of the people, so that they humbly bring pieces of silver; and when he hath scattered the people that delight in war;

"Then shall the princes come out of Egypt: the Morians land shall soon stretch out her hands unto God."

Why sing foolishness to the God of Truth?

There is a magnificent meaning hidden in these verses. They ring like battle trumpets, when one gets the proper setting. But they need to be put into the human language.

Throughout the country are scattered priests who took Hebrew in their seminaries, and who have fair leisure time for study. Why should we not undertake a retranslation of the Psalms, in company? Why should not a priest here and there make it his avocation to discover the original meaning of some psalm, reading and exchanging comments in company with others likeminded here and there?

In the end we would work out a translation which would bring out the true meaning and beauty of these hymns, or else, discovering that they cannot be made intelligible, drop them.

In the regular offices already are included a number of psalms which repay constant use with deepening joy. It might be well occasionally to use psalms out of other offices. Certainly the mechanical reading of "Psalter for the fifteenth day of the month, evening prayer" in a church where the people do not attend regular daily offices is valueless as an aid to devotion.

A retranslation here and there brings out unexpected beauties. Take, for example, the Compline Psalm 4. The words read, "Thou hast put gladness in my heart since the time that their corn and wine and oil increased." This does not mean anything. The word "since" is the Hebrew "min" — "from" — and it should be translated "more than." "Thou hast put gladness in my heart MORE THAN the time of their harvest of corn and wine and oil." That makes a beautiful and picturesque song out of meaningless words.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

But in any event, there are enough beautiful Psalms available to the choice. Take Psalms 71 and 72. The first is a confession of failure on the part of David, and a plea for mercy in his old age. "Forsake me not in mine old age, when I am gray headed." The second is a prayer for Solomon, the King's Son, that he may make good where his father had failed. With it is mingled a prophecy of the greater King's Son who is to be. An explanation of these psalms before they are read in service helps wonderfully in evoking the responses of the people. There should be no hesitation in making such explanations, at any time the minister thinks it advisable.

Next article: The Lessons

MORE BOOK REVIEWS

Some Christmas Suggestions

A NEW BOOK BY FOSDICK

A PILGRIMAGE TO PALESTINE. Harry Emerson Fosdick. Macmillan. $2.50.

One can always count on Dr. Fosdick for a fresh and interesting point of view. This new book of his is an account of his recent travels in the Holy Land. In revisiting the scenes of the famous events in Bible history he looked at them with the eye of one trying to reconstruct the original happenings. His efforts to trace out in his own pilgrimage the wanderings of the Israelites, the wars of David, the homes of the prophets, and finally the ministry of Our Lord, led him into many interesting and out of the way places. The chapters of the book follow roughly the course of Bible history. The Bible stories are retold in a fascinating way in the light of the geography of the land and the recent discoveries of the archeologists. Dr. Fosdick's intimate knowledge of the Bible and his never failing power of graphic description and absorbing narrative make this altogether one of the most interesting books of travel in Palestine that has appeared in some time.—C. L. S.

* * *

AT THE LORD'S TABLE, by David Owen Thomas, M. D. George H. Doran Co., N. Y., 1927. $2.50.

The surprising facts about this book are that Part I, "Communion Talks and Lenten Addresses," was not written by a preacher, and Part II, "Critical Dissertations," was not written by a professional scholar in the field of Christian Origins, but that both were written by the same man, a busy and prominent physician. The unifying factor in these two dissimilar writings is the purpose, never directly affirmed by the writer, to present and justify the interpretation of the Lord's Supper which prevails in the denomination known as the Disciples of Christ.

Part I is marked by a genuine and deep devotion to our Lord Jesus Christ and to the Lord's Supper as the author understands it and, in general, by a fine literary expression of that devotion, but it is also often marred by an over-strong emphasis upon the author's apologetic and polemic bias. Sacramental, sacrificial, sacerdotal and ceremonial are terms apparently never far from Dr. Thomas' consciousness and against which he always strongly reacts. The pathetic thing is that he does not seem to have the most remote conception of what these terms really signify to the Catholic mind.

HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK
Just back from Palestine

Part II is a scholarly treatment of the text of the various accounts of the Institution of the Lord's Supper and a discussion of some phases of the history of the observance of the Supper. One may not always agree with Dr. Thomas' conclusions, but his thorough familiarity with the data upon which those conclusions are based and with the literature of the subjects treated is beyond question. He knows his way around in Textual Criticism and Early Church History. Especially keen is the criticism of the omission from the Westcott and Hort Text of St. Luke 22: 19b and 20. F. R. M.

* * *

GOD AND THE GOLDEN RULE, by Joseph F. Newton. The Century Co. $2.00.

Joseph Fort Newton has without doubt the most facile pen among the best preachers of our day. Words not only seem to flow from him melliflously, but he is a master artist in the use of them and makes of them a charming and convincing vehicle of modern religious ideas. He has an almost cyclopedic grasp of the poets and the mysteries from whom he draws abundantly and aptly to illustrate his thought or drive home an argument. God and the Golden Rule are sermons of the spiritual and literary quality, maintaining the same high order we have been accustomed to expect from Dr. Newton. Each sermon, though complete in itself, is unified with the rest by the one dominant theme, the life of God in the Soul. I. G.

* * *

THE PARADOX OF RELIGION, by Willard L. Sperry. Macmillan. $1.00.

There is similitude in dissimilitude and dissimilitude in similitude. A religious man is either confessing his tragic unlikeness to his Maker, or is giving joyful thanks for his reassuring likeness to Him. This paradox is not a pretty artifice of words, but a true insight into the reality of religious experience. If sober thought and discipline persuade us that within the paradox of likeness and unlikeness as between God and ourselves some enduring communion is forever possible, beyond that religion cannot go. This is the summary and conclusion of these brilliant yet profound Hibbert Trust Lectures of this year. They are quite equal in philosophic depth and spiritual discernment to any of the preceding lectures of this series. I. G.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE

"I PRONOUNCE THEM." G. A. Studdert-Kennedy. Doran. $2.00.

In "I Pronounce Them," Studdert-Kennedy turns his attention to the problem of marriage and divorce. In order to make his treatment of a hard subject convincing he has tried his hand at a novel. It is not a great novel. It is too obviously written for a purpose. And it does not solve the problems it raises. But in the lives of Jim Craddock and Phyllis,

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Charlie and Maisie, and Peter and Robin the author faces in concrete terms the problems of Christian marriage under present-day economics and social conditions.

The solution he offers—and he seems to admit that it is a solution only for the rare devoted souls who can accept it—is that the innocent party in an unhappy marriage should remain faithful, or should remain single in the case of a divorce, as sort of vicarious atonement for the sins of the other. This is a hard doctrine—how hard, Studdert-Kennedy poignantly brings out in the story of his two chief characters. But it brings out a truth that cannot be too much emphasized in these days of easy living—the truth that the Christian religion demands a certain amount of voluntary suffering on the part of those who do not have to suffer for the sake of those on whom the woes of the world fall.—C. L. S.

BOOKS RECEIVED

BOOKS ON THE BIBLE

The Making of Luke-Acts. H. J. Cadbury. Macmillan. $2.50.

The Achievement of Israel. Prof. H. R. Purinton. Scribners. $1.25.

The Sacred Scriptures. Concordant Publishing Concern.

Messianic Speculation in Israel. Abba Hillel Silver. Macmillan. $3.50.

The Plastic Age of the Gospel. Andrew C. Zenos. Macmillan. $2.75.

CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE

Students and the Faith. Charles Gore. Longman's Green and Co. $1.75.

The Necessity of Redemption. Percy Hartill. Longmans. $2.75.

Report of the Anglo-Catholic Congress. Morehouse. $2.00.

Understanding the Apostles Creed. Donald McFayden. Macmillan. $2.60.

PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION

Psychology of Religion. Charles C. Josey. Macmillan. $2.50.

Religions Past and Present. B. E. A. Windle. Century. $3.00.

Christianity and Judaism Compare Notes. H. F. Rall, S. S. Cohon. Macmillan. $2.00.

The Divine Revolution. W. G. Peck. Morehouse. $1.50.

The Ethical Basis of Reality. E. E. Thomas. Longmans. $4.20.

Man, God, and Immortality. Sir James G. Frazer. Macmillan. $3.00.

Christianity. Charles Guignebert. Macmillan. $4.50.

PRAYER AND THE PRAYER BOOK

The Prayer Book a National Guide. Bishop of Norwich. Longmans. $.10.

The Prayer Book Revised. Bishop of Winchester. Longmans. $1.60.

New Studies in Mystical Religion. Rufus M. Jones. Macmillan. $1.75.

Let's Know

UNTO THE END

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

"THEN shall they deliver you up to be afflicted, and shall kill you: and ye shall be hated of all nations for my name's sake."

It was not a very cheerful prospect which our Lord held out to the disciples just before His own crucifixion. But He would not fool them. If they were to keep company with Him, they must be prepared to play the game out to the bitter end. And it is interesting to see what happened to the apostles according to ancient tradition.

St. Matthew is said to have been slain with a sword in Egypt.

St. James the Great was beheaded in Jerusalem.

St. James the Less was hurled from a pinnacle of the Temple and then beaten to death with a club.

St. Philip is said to have been crucified at Hierapolis in Phrygia.

St. Bartholomew, according to tradition, was flayed alive in India.

St. Andrew was bound upon a leaning cross, from which he preached to the people until he expired.

St. Thomas, while preaching the Gospel in the Orient, was "pierced with a glaive, and so died."

St. Jude is said to have been shot to death with arrows.

St. Simon was either crucified or sawn asunder in Persia.

St. Matthias was stoned and then slain with an ax either in Jerusalem or in Ethopia.

St. Peter was crucified, head down at his own request, in Rome.

Judas Iscariot committed suicide by hanging himself.

St. Paul was beheaded in Rome in the persecution of Nero at the same time St. Peter was killed.

According to these old traditions St. John the Evangelist was the only one who died a natural death. But before that more or less peaceful ending he is said to have been dipped into a caldron of boiling oil which, however, failed to be a fatal experience.

Whether these traditions are to be considered authentic or not, I do not presume to say. But at least they point to the fact that the apostles trod no path of roses in the service of their Master and we find no indication that they felt particularly abused over it.

Can it be that we twentieth-century Christians are becoming soft over our Christianity? When sorrow or trouble come to some of our parishioners, one of the commonest complaints we clergy have to wrestle with is the attitude which says, "Why should I be obliged to bear such misfortune? What have I done to deserve all this? Why should God punish me so severely?" Then some New Thoughter comes along with some syrupy narcotic to the effect that God is Good and would never be guilty of such treatment; it isn't real at all; it is only evil imaginations that hurt us. This New Thoughter never explains why God permits the evil imagination, neither does he face the obvious fact that God was just as good in the apostolic days as He is now. The alternative is to believe that Christ was talking nonsense when He warned the disciples of what to expect.

The truth is—it's hard work to be a real Christian.

Cheerful Confidences

APPRECIATION

By Rev. George Atwater

THE Japanese have a proverb that ought to be printed on every bill board.

"One good word can warm three winter months."

Here you have in a sentence a deep philosophy and the secret of much happiness.

If a person is grouchy, he can stir up more trouble, quench more enthusiasm, cause more unhappiness, and bring more disaster, than a human being has the right to inflict upon his fellows.

Cheerfulness is the best tonic in the world.

Anyone in authority in any position whatsoever who has not the gift of cheerfulness is not rising to the opportunities of his position.

George Herbert, in his "Outlandish Proverbs," contributes this: "A cheerful look makes a dish a feast."

You may not be able to give away money, or to endow a hospital, but you have it in your power to bestow real happiness by the cheery word of appreciation.

Within a week I have had four letters from clergymen who would like to move to other parishes. I have no doubt there are hundreds of the clergy who would move out if the chance came.

Why could not the laity give their clergymen a change of atmosphere right where he is. Here is the method.

Be cheerful and enthusiastic in your church tasks.

When the rector does a good bit of work, tell him so. Encourage him with a little bit of honest appreciation.

Be cheerful with each other, and tell each other how much his labors are appreciated.

If something does not please you, do not look as if you had indigestion and the toothache, and reprimand somebody. Cheer up, and if the matter must be mentioned, do so in the most cheerful way possible.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Children respond to cheerfulness as flowers to water and sunlight.

Good teachers know that a good school is one that has, in addition to ability, a cheerful group of instructors, and a cheerful, appreciative principal.

A grouch is a blight upon human affairs.

Learn this proverb by heart. "One good word can warm three winter months."

THE PLACE OF PUBLIC WORSHIP

In the Christian Religion

By

CANON JAMES ADDERLEY

MANY of my friends agree that religion is a good thing, but they see no reason for any religious organization or any church building for worship. They do not mind their children going to Sunday school, though they only insist on it when they want to get them out of the way. Now this sort of attitude to religion seems to me quite futile. I had far rather meet an out and out Atheist in argument than that sort of chap. If religion is true, we have got to go into it with all our hearts. Fancy the advocates of any other cause saying they need not really believe in it, that they did not care if anyone else joined them or not, that they need not have any meetings, and nobody need take any trouble about it at all! Why, of course, the cause would fail. Christians have much to learn from the way in which people of the world manage their affairs. Political parties are always having meetings to keep their views before the public, and to encourage one another by speaking of their success, their past history, their hopes of what they are going to do in the future.

So it must be with the greatest cause of all, for religion is the greatest if it is any cause at all.

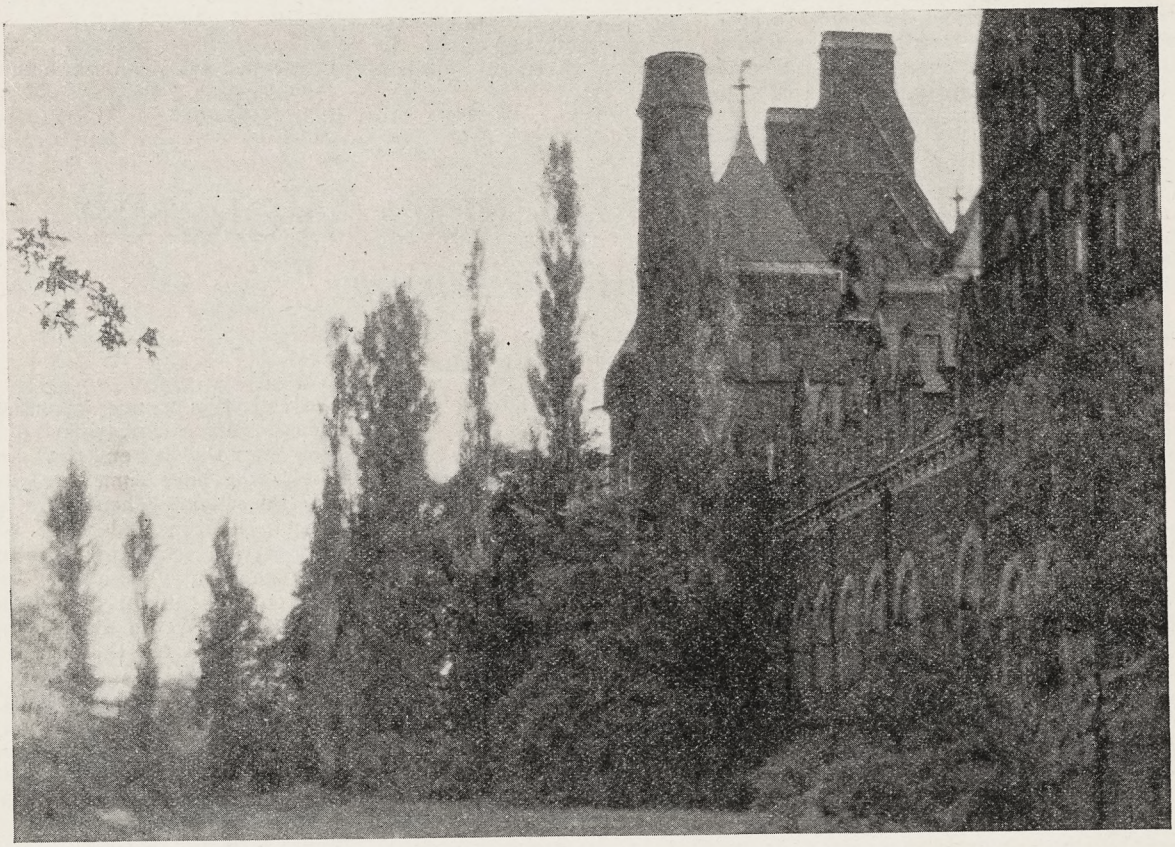
And especially is this true of the old church religion. There are some religions which only appeal to an individual, but they are very selfish and they don't "cut much ice." But all the great social religions—Roman Catholicism, Anglicanism, and the Free Churches—go in for public worship. I have a friend who gave up the church. He said he could find God in nature, and he used to go out for a country walk on Sunday instead of going to church. I don't think he has got much religion left now. Yes, of course, we must come together to pray. We are God's family. Fancy a family never meeting each other, living in one house, but never talking to the father, each having his meals in a separate room! They would soon cease to love one another, or to take any interest in one another. This is partly what has already happened owing to the divisions of Christendom, but it is not quite so bad as it used to be a few years ago.

Here we see the importance of the Holy Communion as the greatest act of public worship. Churches where they make too much of the sermon are not much good. Holy Communion makes us think of our religion as a social affair. That must be right because we are brothers and sisters, a society, a body. We are all members of one body. Just to listen to a sermon is rather selfish. That is why I do not think that broadcasting will advance true Christianity very much. People will be content to listen at home and never meet their fellow Christians. And it is not public worship to sit smoking a cigarette and listening to the service in a church 500 miles away. The idea of a church going out together to fight against evil will gradually be lost. Supposing the army never had any drill, and never formed into a squadron but sat each in his home listening to a lecture on rifle shooting or stories of the Great War. Or supposing the House of Commons had no debates and never assembled at Westminster. They would be even more unsatisfactory than they are now. The first and foremost use, then, of public worship is the gathering together of Christians to realize that they are a great association with a common purpose.

Here I must say a word more about our divisions. They are very sad. Half our power is destroyed by the fact that we are divided, and cannot worship God together. Think of all the churches and chapels on a Sunday morning. How splendid it would be if we could go to any one of them and were to find the same form of worship going on, and could meet in the House of God as friends. We must hope and pray for this, and meantime come together as much as we can. Our parson gets up meetings with the Nonconformists, and we do a lot of social reform work together. And in our parish we are a very happy family. We do not allow class distinctions. We help each other in all sorts of ways. Every Sunday, after the communion, we meet and talk about the parish. We distribute the collection money among our various organizations. First of all we look after the sick and the "down and outs" who have come our way during the week. Then there are the school children and those who are just leaving school to be thought of, and the country holidays. Then we look outside the parish and see what we can do for the diocese and even further afield for the overseas missions.

That's the way to worship God.

To finish up, let me go back to the sermon question. Though I put worship first I do not despise the sermon. We want a lot of teaching. At least I know I do. I have learned much from sermons, though most of all from the padres who have explained things to me. Parsons in the pulpit ought to explain things. I don't believe in these eloquent fellows except as a treat occasionally. On ordinary Sundays I like a parson who tells us simply what the day is and what the service means, or answers some of our difficulties. I would have questions asked and answers given. I know a priest who sometimes sits in a pew and lets a layman go up in the pulpit and preach to him. I should like people to clap their hands sometimes if only to show they were awake, and I always like them to laugh out loud when the preacher makes a joke.



If church arrangements were more homely and human, with plenty of chorus singing instead of those dull anthems and sloppy hymns (as if we were either idiots or dying at the age of 90), public worship would become a great power again as it must have been when our beautiful cathedrals and parish churches were built.

Those glorious buildings are waiting to be used again. I have found a use for them. Have you?

Reprinted by arrangement from The Torch, organ of the Industrial Christian Fellowship.

Christ Church parish, Springfield, Mass., has voted unanimously in favor of the proposal of Bishop Davies' to make the parish the cathedral church of the diocese. The matter now goes before the diocesan convention.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD.

MAYBE we shouldn't print that Christmas subscription offer on the cover that way—it is a bit aggressive and does deprive you of a picture of some parson this week. However, that can be made up later whereas it will be necessary for you to act at once on the offer in order that your friends may receive their first number at Christmas. I hope that many of you act upon it so that the influence of the paper may be extended during this coming General Convention year. As a matter of fact, we have no business to make any such offer for by receiving the full price of $2 on each and every subscription THE WITNESS is hardly able to break even. Those of you who have bought printing will have little difficulty in accepting that statement. But we know that it costs money to secure new subscriptions and we thus share with our present readers our yearly appropriation for subscription expansion. It is a simple plan which should ease the Christmas burden for you considerably; send the names and addresses, with $1.25 for each one if you send four or more, and $1.50 for each one if you send fewer than four. They will all be placed on our lists in time to receive the Christmas number, and a Christian Christmas card will be sent announcing the gift. But please act on this offer immediately for the time is getting short; why my son, six, got off his letter, a yard long, to Santa Claus two weeks ago. I have taught him diligently all year that "it is more blessed to give than to receive" with very discouraging results.

* * *

The picture above is of Trinity College, one of the five colleges of the Church, printed at this particular time for no reason at all except that we happened to have the cut, and like the picture.

* * *

There are about 5,000 students in Columbia, Mo., most of them in the state university. Work among these young men and women is carried on extensively by all the churches, but more particularly by the Roman Catholics, Methodist, Congregationalists and Baptists since these churches are all equipped with elaborate student centres. The Episcopal Church ministers to them through Calvary Church, of which the Rev. David R. Haupt is rector, but the work is hampered by lack of a student centre. However, it is hoped that money may be found for a former parish house, not at present owned by the church, which, after alterations, will be converted into a modest meeting place for the hundreds of Episcopal students in Columbia.

* * *

The four parishes of Savannah, Ga., united for a service at St. Paul's, November 29th, to honor the rector, the Rev. Samuel B. McGlohon, who has completed the twentieth year of service there. The church was crowded and the combined choirs numbering eighty men and women rendered the music in a manner to be long remembered. The address, given by the Rev. David Cady Wright, rector of Christ Church, was a tribute to Mr. McGlohon whose work among the sick and needy, irrespective of creed, has been one of the chief characteristics of his ministry.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

There was another anniversary the other day; that of the Rev. Frank H. Staples, who has served St. Paul's Chapel, southwest Baltimore, for twenty-five years. About seven hundred people gathered in the beautiful Guild House and heard addresses by Dr. Kinsolving, rector of the mother parish, Bishop Coadjutor Helfenstein, the Rev. Benjamin H. Lovett, Mr. John M. Glenn, president of the Russell Sage Foundation, New York, and Miss Elizabeth Gilman, prominent churchwoman of Baltimore. A purse of $500 was presented to Mr. Staples. The work at St. Paul's Chapel, the largest of its kind in the entire south, is the outgrowth of an enterprise begun thirty-five years ago by a group of men and women in St. Paul's Parish: Mr. Jeffrey R. Brackett, Mr. John H. Glenn, Rev. Charles A. Jessup, Dr. C. C. Shippen, Mr. Edgar Allan Poe, Miss Elizabeth Gilman, Miss Margaretta Poe, and Miss Fanny Wyatt. When the present rector came to St. Paul's in 1906, the work was housed in a small building on Columbia avenue, upon which there was a considerable debt. A few years later a consolidation was effected with the Henshaw Memorial Church, a large coal-yard adjacent to the church was purchased, and one of the best parish houses in Baltimore erected. Twenty years ago the congregation there raised $1,200 for all objects; last year they gave more than $9,000. The mother church has invested in the work more than $125,000 and the only indebtedness remaining upon the great plant is a mortgage of $16,000, which is steadily being extinguished.

* * *

The Paddock Lectures at the General Seminary are to be delivered this month in the Chapel of the Seminary by the Rev. Dr. Burton Scott Easton. His subject is "The Gospel Before the Gospels."

* * *

Here is a letter from the Rev. Thomas Leroy Parker, rector at Waupun, Wis., which speaks for itself. If our report was not correct, we are very sorry. From the tabulation of the ballots which we have since received, it is apparent that Mr. Fenn was the outstanding leader among the laity, with the clergy much divided: "The real facts in the matter of the special council, of the new Diocese of Fond du Lac, called for the purpose of electing a bishop-coadjutor are as follows: the convention was in session just one day, only; the balloting (and counting of ballots) consumed just four hours—from 2:15 p. m. to 6:15 p. m.; the convention adjourned at 6:15 p. m., sine die, on the same day that it convened, Nov. 8, 1927. In all, seven ballots were taken, and from the first to the last (in all seven ballots) the Rev. Don Frank Fenn received practically two-thirds of all the lay votes and one-third of all the clerical votes. The lay delegates elected him by a big majority on every ballot, and he lacked only five votes of election on three of the ballots of the Clerical Delegates and only six on two other of the ballots. The convention did not adjourn postponing action until the annual meeting of the diocesan convention next year. It adjourned "sine die." If your source of information was at all authentic, I fail to see how you got it as per your paragraph on page eight in the Nov. 17th issue of THE WITNESS."

* * *

At the Round Table conference of the clergy of Chicago on November 28th the speaker was the Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker, whose articles on the Prayer Book are now running in this paper. He spoke on "The Church and the Labor Question," as part of the interesting series of papers now being presented on the general topic of the "Church in the Modern World."

* * *

Here is a bit of verse from Punch which is appropriate in these days when Bishop Barnes and Dean Inge are doing battle for evolution.

"I don't seem to care
What my ancestors were
It don't seem to matter to me
Perhaps they had tails
And perhaps they were snails
Or something washed up by the sea;
Perhaps the professors are right
when they claim
That man is a monkey grown more or less tame,
But whatever they settle my rent is the same
So it don't seem to matter to me."

* * *

Still another anniversary, the tenth of the Rev. Edwin J. Van Etten as rector of Calvary, Pittsburgh. There was a reception, with addresses by Bishop Mann, the Rev. Percy Kammerer of Trinity, Rabbi Goldensen, Rev. W. C. Petty, Baptist, who spoke for the ministers of the other churches, and the Rev. Father Coakley, rector of a large Roman Catholic Church. The gift was a nice watch.

* * *

Splendid Mission at All Saints Church, Cleveland, Ohio, Rector, James A. Midgley, conducted by the Rev. L. Norman Tucker, of Pittsburgh. The attendance tripled during the week from the regular church people. It was a real parish mission for the members of the parish. Just regular preaching on the proper Christian living, Sunday observance, and stewardship of life and its possibilities.

* * *

The Rev. James Malcolm-Smith, rector of Trinity, Haverhill, Mass., is conducting a mission at St. Margaret's, Brighton, Mass., this week. This mission is the culmination of efforts to restore the full strength of the parish after a disasterous fire last year.

* * *

This by the rector of Calvary, New York, the Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker: "I am sick of hearing ministers say things they know everybody will agree with, instead of hurling down a spiritual dare to disquiet the hearts and disturb the consciencies of people who really want God but can never have him until the waters of their lives have been troubled by a great challenge. I am tired of churches which make every appeal but the appeal of religion; providing all sorts of amusements and clinics and clubs, while the souls of their people starve. We have not captured, we have lost, the imagination of this generation by attempting to tone down religion to the level of the people. What they want us to do is to raise them to the level of religion."

* * *

Dean Sturges of St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston, conducted a mission last week at St. Paul's, Malden.

* * *

Rev. Z. Barney Phillips, of the Epiphany, Washington, D. C., conducted a five-day mission at St. John's, Hartford, Conn., last week.

* * *

Bishop Perry of Rhode Island plans to sail for Switzerland so as to join his family there for Christmas.

* * *

Memorial chimes, the work of J. C. Deagan, Inc., Chicago, were dedicated last week at St. James, New London, Conn.

* * *

Christ Church Cathedral, Louisville, Ky., has been having a social service institute, held every evening of the first week and on three succeeding Monday evenings. "The Social Opportunity of the Churchman" was used as text book. The course was open to clergy, church school teachers, members of parish social service committees, and others interested in human problems confronting the church. A new text book, "Building the City of God," will be available later in the winter, to supplement "The Social Opportunity of the Churchman."

* * *

Recent newspaper articles, somewhat premature and only partially correct, make it expedient to state the real situation with regard to the property of St. Clement's Church, Brooklyn. I learn from the diocesan authorities that the facts are as follows. The Borough President recently secured the approval of the Board of Aldermen to the purchase by the city of the realty of St. Clement's Church, a fine location on the northeast corner of Pennsylvania and Liberty Avenues, as a site for a needed court house. The city will save a good sum by the opportunity to purchase without condemnation proceedings, the price of $50,000 having been agreed upon. The legal procedure is not yet complete, and title has not passed. St. Clement's was closed July 1, 1927, and no services have been held there since that date. The parish had had a very difficult existence for several years past.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

Newark Diocese has held a series of monthly social service meetings, with speakers on important modern problems.

* * *

A newly organized Roman Catholic congregation in New York, awaiting the building of its church, has been holding its services in the auditorium of Montefiore Hospital, a Jewish Institution.

* * *

Simple rule for keeping the church in debt: Have one group of members who make no pledge, another group who wait until the end of the year to pay their pledge, a third group who make a pledge but never pay it, and a fourth group who give less than they spend for movies, candy, or some other luxury. (From Trinity Church, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.)

* * *

The formal opening of the new parish house of St. Peter's, Bay Shore, Long Island, an occasion of real rejoicing for all the parish, was turned into tragedy and bereavement by the sudden death of Mr. David Gardiner, chairman of the building committee. The handsome auditorium of the new building was filled with joyful parishioners, the keys had been formally handed over to the rector, and Mr. Gardiner had begun an address. Suddenly he put his hand to his head and fell back into a chair. Those near by hurried to his relief, two physicians present came to his help, and he was carried into an adjoining room. The rector attempted to continue the ceremonies, but shortly word came that Mr. Gardiner was dead. The people stood while prayers were offered, and then sorrowfully dispersed.

* * *

The Young People's Fellowship of the diocese of Albany met at the Messiah, Glens Falls, November 25-27, with over two hundred present. They discussed Leadership with Bishop Oldham leading off with the challenge that the organizations of young people at present are without an objective and need to find themselves. The principal speaker at the conference was the Rev. Arthur R. Cummings, rector at Richmond Hill, Long Island.

* * *

The clergy of the diocese of Vermont met at Burlington on November 22nd—all that could get there—to report and take stock on the results of the flood. Church property was damaged only at Montpelier, Proctorsville and Northfield. Of these Montpelier suffered the worst, with the organ entirely destroyed, parish house damaged to the extent of $1,500, and the church, floored to the

SHATTUCK

A Church School for Boys

For 68 years Shattuck has been a leader among college preparatory schools in the West. It is not operated for profit. It aims to develop

High Scholarship,
Manly Character,
Christian Citizenship.

The military system trains for service and patriotism. Openings for a few students after Christmas holidays. Address The Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

25,000 CHURCHES USE
OSTERMOOR
CUSHIONS.
BUILT – NOT STUFFED.

Illustrated Booklet and Samples Free
Old Cushions renovated and recovered equal to new.
Ostermoor & Co., Inc., Dept. C, 114 Elizabeth St., N.

Church Kalendar for 1928

(THIRTY FIFTH YEAR)

THE HANDSOMEST AND MOST USEFUL KALENDAR PUBLISHED

THOUSANDS SOLD BY CHURCH SOCIETIES

Kalendar Months in Colors. Tables of Lessons for Holy Days and Sundays. Proper Psalms for Seasons, Days, and Special Occasions. Tables of Psalms. "Black Letter" Saints Days.

SAMPLE POSTPAID 40c CIRCULAR FREE

ASHBY PRINTING CO.
Publishers - ERIE, PENNA.

Christmas Books

A carefully selected list of new books are here offered for your consideration.

I Pronounce Them

By G. A. Studdert-Kennedy.

The first novel by the author of "I Believe," "Lies," etc., dealing with the problems of marriage.

$2.15 postpaid.

The Divine Commission

By Frank E. Wilson.

Bishop Anderson says: "Dr. Wilson has done a brilliant piece of work in this sketch of Church History." $1.10 postpaid.

Fear

By John R. Oliver.

An unusual autobiography dealing with the conquest of fear.

$2.65 postpaid.

The Christ We Know

By Bishop Fiske

An ideal book to give for Christmas. $2.10 postpaid.

Acts of Devotion

By an English group.

A book of prayers to buy in quantity for Church use.

70c a single copy.
60c a copy for ten or more.

Modern Use of the Bible

By Harry E. Fosdick

You paid $2.50 for this two years ago; it is now printed in boards for discussion class use at $1.00 a copy, postpaid.

Reality

By B. H. Streeter

A book that is indispensable for the clergyman who wants to be up to the times. $2.65 postpaid.

Cushioned Pews

By Bishop Johnson.

Not new, but a book that everyone should have. Order your copy if you haven't one. $1.75 postpaid.

WITNESS BOOKS

6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

height of seven feet, will cost $14,000 to get back into shape. Help is badly needed; first of all there have been such great personal losses that those who would ordinarily shoulder the burden are having all they can do to build their own resources. It is also true that thousands are out of work as the quarries and railroads in many instances have stopped operating.

* * *

An inter-seminary student conference is being held this week at the Berkeley Divinity School.

* * *

The Tenth Convention of the Student Volunteer Movement is to meet in Detroit on December 28th to January 1st. Plans are being made to take care of 3,500 students who will attend from all parts of the United States and Canada. Among the speakers are: John R. Mott, president of the Y. M. C. A.; Richard Roberts, Toronto, Canada; Henry Hodgkin, secretary of the National Christian Council of China; Reinhold Niebuhr of Detroit; Robert E. Speer, Presbyterian; Sherwood Eddy, secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; Albert W. Beaven, Rochester, New York; several foreign missionaries, and, most important of all, the committee is hoping hourly to receive an acceptance from Dr. Albert Schweitzer, famous New Testament scholar, musician and missionary to Africa.

* * *

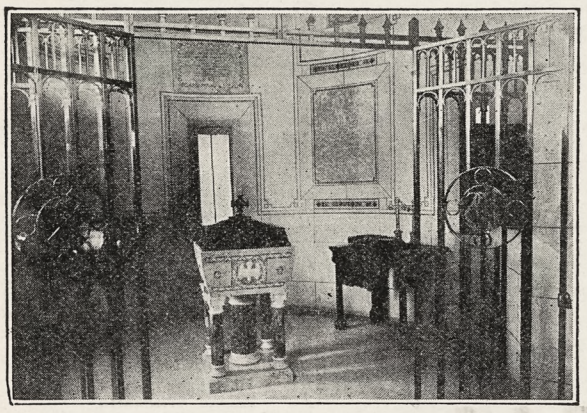
Not sure at all that I can squeeze this in under the heading of Church news; anyhow it is something for us possibly to think about:

Referring to a "purblind press which is trying to dragoon University of Wisconsin students into its own particular brand of swashbuckling by calling them radicals or pacifists," Glenn Frank, president of the university, discussed the merits of military training at the all-university convocation.

He decried the value of insisting on the "redness of your blood or recounting valor of Wisconsin soldiers to a critical editor," because a metropolitan newspaper calls names.

He said the end of war must be achieved by means as varied as war's causes. The end of war, if it comes, will be the result of the uprooting of political, social and economic causes and the laying of real foundations for workable peace, he said.

Pacifists, propaganda or peace singers will not bring peace, he declared, insisting that mankind would still plunge into periodic wars, even if all militaries were gagged.



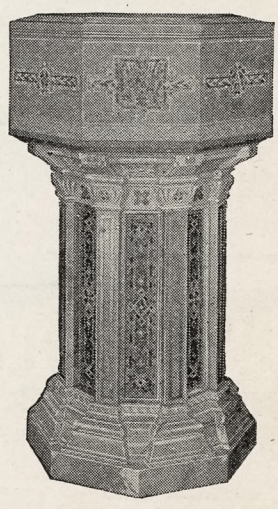
Appealing to the students as educated men and women to view nationalism scientifically and stop wasting words in shouting for war or singing for peace, he urged them to consider the voice of the future.

* * *

Here's a letter: "In a recent issue of THE WITNESS you asked for some 'simple facts about interesting and unusual happenings' in the Church. In response to your request I am sending you the following story illustrating character, passion for souls and pure unselfishness. I have used it many times in connection with addresses on the Church's Mission. The 'Joe' spoken of was a member of my parish. My only request is that you do not publish my own name."

This is the story of Joe!

Joe was, and is, an Englishman, who came to this country years ago. Better still, Joe was, and is, a churchman! Perhaps even better still, Joe has always been a "tither." No matter what his salary, whether it be much or whether it be little, he



A Beautiful Baptistry

Added impressiveness is given to the Sacrament of Baptism when the appointments of the Baptistry are worthy of the Church.

The Glory of the Church Edifice

Work that is worthy of the best traditions of the Episcopal Church is the thing we strive for—not necessarily the costliest but ALWAYS furnishings and equipment which reflect the dignity of the Church.

We appreciate inquiries from the Clergy and Laity—and consultations with Architects

SPAULDING & CO.

Representing The Gorham Co's Ecclesiastical Department

Michigan Avenue at Van Buren Street, Chicago

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

has always given a tenth of his income to God and the Church.

Now it so happened that while Joe was working at his trade one day, that of canner in one of Borden's condenseries, a piece of steel flew up and struck him in the right eye. Joe lost the sight of his eye!

Six months later Joe was paid compensation for the loss of his eye, in the sum of six hundred and ninety dollars, and the day after he received his compensation, he wrote a check for $69.00 to use in the missionary work of the Church. He tithed the loss of his eye! For boys and girls he never would see! For men and women he would never know! For God and Church!

And God? God has blessed Joe's love a hundred-fold. Never has his story been told but what those hearing have chorded with him in thought and gift! In tithing the loss of his eye, he touched, and still touches, the hearts and lives of thousands!

* * *

Bishop Murray, Presiding Bishop, asks for the prayers of the Church for the meeting of the National Council which is to meet at the Church Missions House December 13th-15th.

* * *

Brevity is supposed to be a characteristic of this end of THE WITNESS, but I am sure you will be interested in the following account from Bishop Huntington of Anking, even though it is a bit long:

October 25.—All our property (in Anking) except Grace Church and the schools and houses connected with it is occupied by the military, so I went with the Rev. Lindel Tsen and the Rev. Mr. Chu to call on the second in command, and he deputed a sergeant or something of the sort to take us over and introduce us to the man in command of the compound, who in turn very politely showed us over our own buildings!

The compound looked very natural, the grass needs cutting and the hedges need trimming and there are shortcut paths across the lawns in various directions, but not very much more has happened to the place. All the residences but three are more or less fully occupied. . . . There has been no wanton destruction of property, of buildings at least, but a good deal of carelessness, windows broken. . . . The only things that have had really bad usage are the lower floors of two Chinese teachers' houses and the dining room of St. Paul's, which have been used for stables in wet weather. . . .

As to movable property, however, the case is quite different. All trunks and boxes have been opened in one way or another and the contents all taken out. Everything made of cloth that they could get hold of they have removed, right down to the ticking off the mattresses. Wooden furniture fared a good deal better, but it is completely mixed up and it is quite impossible to tell what is left. I found chairs of mine in, I think, every house in the compound; there were bureaus without drawers and drawers without bureaus. I found five or six hundred books mostly on the floor of my study where my cache of books had been broken into. . . .

The Chapel at St. Paul's was occupied for sleeping purposes; that at St. Agnes' as a work room. The portrait of the first president appears over the Altar, a piece of profanation that annoys me very much.

At the Cathedral I found about 450 men quartered mostly in the girls' and boys' schools. The officer in command was the most military officer that I have seen anywhere and had everything as neat as any barracks I have seen in any land. The men slept on the floors and had to take their shoes off before they could go into the bedrooms. The Cathedral is used as a "li-t'ang" and has a blackboard in the Chancel and a pic-

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills.

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

J. PATERSON SMYTH'S New Book

MYSELF AND OTHER PROBLEMS

J. Paterson Smyth puts himself in the other man's place and makes clear as daylight the problems of pain and evil, of the fall, death, hell, heaven, and other questions. $1.50

FLEMING H. REVELL CO., 153 Fifth Ave., New York; 851 Cass St., Chicago

Hospital of St. Barnabas

SCHOOL OF NURSING

Offers 2½ years course leading to R. N. Degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll now.

For full information, address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas
Newark, N. J.

LITTLE WITNESS BOOKS

THE PERSONAL CHRIST
By Bishop Johnson. 50c a copy.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH
By Bishop Johnson. 35c a copy.

EVOLUTION
By Geo. Craig Stewart.
35c a copy.

THE BIBLE AND EVOLUTION
By Postell Witsell. 50c a copy.

THE WAY OF LIFE
By Bishop Johnson. 50c a copy.

FOUNDATION STONES
By H. P. Almon Abbott.
$1.25 a copy.

ESSAYS TOWARD FAITH
By A. Q. Bailey. 50c a copy.

A MAN'S RELIGION
By J. A. Schaad. 35c a copy.

VICTORY OF THE CROSS
By N. R. High Moor. 50c a copy.

WITNESS BOOKS

6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

WANTED—CHARGE OF A PARISH OR mission work by a presbyter whom circumstances have compelled to become a non-parochial. Able, experienced, diligent, conservative, a good reader and extemporaneous preacher. Address G. F. S., Witness, 416 Lafayette Street, New York.

THE SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY will furnish vestments, altar hangings and linens at moderate cost. Also Priests' girdles, hand-made of imported linen thread. Sisters of the Holy Nativity; Fond duc Lac, Wisconsin.

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London, W. I., England.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.
Address: Secretary

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request. Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, also chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses, $7.60 up, burse and veil, $15 up; Silk damask cope, $120; Silk damask chasuble, $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel., Cleveland 52.

ORGAN FOR SALE
TWO MANUAL PIPE ORGAN WITH ELECtric blower and motor. Just the right size for a small parish church. Bargain at $700. Address: St. Matthews Church, 8545 96th Street, Woodhaven, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

How Do You Read the Bible?

—Open it at random and read? Read it by books? Start at Genesis and read through to Revelation? Or follow the Lectionary or some plan of selected passages?

To find new treasure, whole vistas of truth, inspiration and help, try the experiment in 1928 of using the

Churchman's Kalendar

of DAILY BIBLE READINGS

Thousands of Church people know it. Over a hundred thousand copies of the 1927 edition were ordered. Other thousands of Church people will find it equally helpful in gaining Bible knowledge.

This year the daily readings are supplemented by more extended comment than heretofore. Enough to supply what most readers need; not enough to require more time than most readers can give. This new treatment doubles the size of the booklet, 64 pages instead of 32, and of course increases the price. But price is hardly a consideration. It is within the reach of everyone.

The organizations and co-operating agencies of the Church are all working for systematic Bible reading as the means of spiritual growth. The Kalendar may be obtained through the Woman's Auxiliary, the Girls' Friendly Society, the Daughters of the King, the Commission on Evangelism and the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, as well as from The Book Store, Church Missions House, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York.

Order your copy now! Recommend it to your friends! Use it as a gift!

10c per copy, $7.50 per hundred.

THE BOOK STORE

Church Missions House,

281 FOURTH AVENUE NEW YORK, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

Trinity Church, Boston.
Rev. Henry K. Sherrill
Sunday, 8, 9:30, 11, 4, and 5:30.
Young People's Fellowship, 7:30.
Wednesdays and Holy Days, Holy Communion, 12:10.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York
139 West Forty-sixth Street
Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D., Litt.D.
Sunday Masses, 7:30, 8:15, 9, 10:45.
Vespers and Benediction, 4.
Week-day Masses, 7, 8, 9:30.

St. John's, Cynwyd, Pa.
The Birthplace of the Lenten Offering
When in Philadelphia attend services here. Call Cynwyd 1382 for information.
Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, D.D., Rector
Sundays 8 and 11 A. M.

ture of Sun Yat-sen over the Altar. . . .

As to the work, Grace Chapel is going strong. The Cathedral congregation and the East Gate congregation have united with them. There were ninety-five at the early Communion service on Sunday and a full church of at least two hundred at the 10:30 service, where eleven were confirmed. The Primary School there is full with about 100 students. The Higher Primary is conducted at Lindel Tsen's house, Timothy Hung being in charge with about 25 students.

October 26.—I got to Wuhu on October 17 and left the morning of the 19th. In general the property was not in bad condition. . . . St. Lioba's compound was in almost perfect condition. . . St. Mark's Church was also only very slightly damaged, though it has been quite dirty.

The buildings at Shih Ch'iao Kang were in pretty good shape, but there were soldiers in the church and in part of the school buildings, and they were fairly dirty. The schools at Shih Ch'iao Kang are going with I think about 50 boys and 25 girls. . . . The workers at St. Lioba's were there and the industrial work was going again with apparently very good promise. . . .

On St. Luke's Day I had the early celebration at which there were nineteen present. It was all very nice and I thought on the whole distinctly hopeful, but I regret to say that the morning the troops moved out at Shih Ch'iao Kang was merely the preliminary to the moving in of a much larger body from Nanking. Now both the Lion Hill compound and St. Lioba's are full of soldiers. . . . I had thought that it might be possible for us to move up there a little later . . . but I am afraid this new invasion will make that impossible. Of course it may go by and this become more possible again.

We are expecting the Commission (Bishop Sanford and Dr. Wood) at the end of this week and I expect to visit the main stations with them if conditions are favorable.

It is since these letters were written that the newspapers have brought word of the Nanking forces marching on Hankow. Whether this included the withdrawal of these troops from

Witness Fund

THE total amount needed to enable us to continue sending The Witness each week to several hundred who otherwise must be without the paper is about $500. To date the fund falls far short of that. If there are any able to add a small donation for this purpose at the time of renewing their own subscription it will be greatly appreciated. We acknowledge with thanks the following donations to The Witness Fund:

Miss S. H. Lindley	$3.00
Bishop Rowe	5.50
Mrs. E. M. Latcham	5.00
Miss Prudence Harting	1.00
Miss E. W. Harmon	2.00
Miss S. A. Nettleton	3.00

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 9 (French) 9:30. 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily: 7:30 and 10 A. M. and 5:00 P. M

The Incarnation, New York
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m., 4 p. m.
Daily, 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursday, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11 A. M., and 8 P. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursday, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 7, 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., Fri., and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30 and 11:00 A. M., 5:00, 6:15 and 8:00 P. M.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp and Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses. Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country: its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — In a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

Anking and Wuhu is not known. Meanwhile, a cable from Shanghai received on November 16 said that the Commission with Bishop Huntington and Mr. Walker had just left for Hankow.

* * *

The Chinese Clergy of the Hunan District, around Changsha, at their semi-annual meeting sent the following letter to their foreign clergyman, the Rev. Walworth Tyng. The letter, written in English, shows what reliance we can place upon these Chinese Christians:

"September 27, 1927. Dear Mr. Tyng: We, the Chinese clergy of this Hunan District in the Hankow Diocese, send you our most affectionate regards, express to you our deepest appreciation for your past help, and lastly, last in order not in importance, send you our earnest request that you should be good enough to come back again at your earliest convenience.

"With Bishop Root presiding this time, we began to meet on the 23rd, as many times before when you were with us, to discuss what should be our plan for the future. Our first decision is that we should ask this Bishop to secure your return. We sincerely feel that your advice has always been so valuable and your presence among us such an encouragement that we shall hardly feel satisfied without you and your cooperation.

"Indeed, we have just witnessed a great change in our country and we are entering upon a new period when we might meet many new problems. But no problem will be so great and difficult for those who have the Lord first in their mind.

"This part of the country is being restored to order and peace. Many foreigners, as well as we, think that there will be no more danger for our foreign friends to return. So we shall look forward to seeing you soon."

Clerical Changes

BENNETT, Rev. Edmunds, has resigned as rector of St. John's, Ensley, Ala.

CLAYTON, Rev. F. W., former president of Tabor College, has accepted election to the rectorship of All Saints', Omaha, Nebr., where he has served as locum tenens for the past few months.

DEACON, Rev. P. R., rector of St. Peter's, Brushton, N. Y. has accepted a call to St. Philip's, Norwood, N. J.

EWALT, Rev. Louis, vicar of the Bishop Paret Memorial Chapel, Baltimore, has accepted a call to the Church of the Holy Cross, Cumberland, Maryland.

MARTIN, Rev. K. D., rector of Trinity, Cranford, N. J., has accepted a call to St. Matthew's, Kenosha, Wisconsin.

MELCHER, Rev. L. C., formerly dean at Ancon, Panama, has accepted a call to Trinity, Clarkesville, Tenn.

PHINNEY, Rev. Arthur O., assistant at Trinity Church, Boston, has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. Paul's Church, Concord, N. H.

STORY, Rev. G. C., rector of St. Luke's, Dixon, Illinois, has accepted a call to the Mediator, Chicago, Illinois.

WHITTLE, Rev. William, rector of St. Mary's, Franklin, La., has accepted election as rector of St. James', Vincennes, Indiana.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, journalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary

An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO

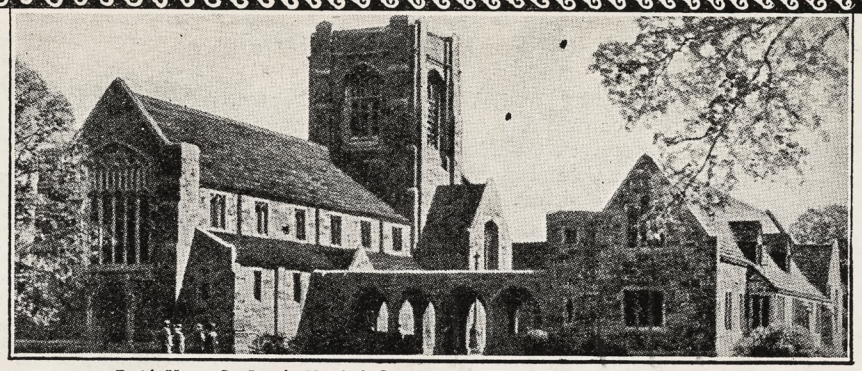
Church Training School

President: The Bishop of Chicago.

Director of Studies: The Rev. F. C. Grant, S.T.D.

A two year course of practical work and study to prepare women for service in the Church. Address:

DEACONESS FULLER
211 So. Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

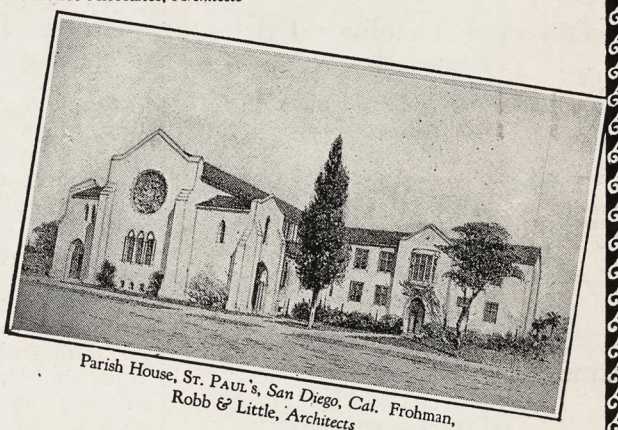


ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.



Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Parish House, St. John's, Hartford, Conn. Bertram G. Goodhue Associates, Architects

Parish House, St. Thomas', Mamaroneck, N. Y.
Chas. T. Oakley, Architect

Parish House, St. Paul's, San Diego, Cal. Frohman,
Robb & Little, Architects

Parish House, St. Mary's, Ardmore, Pa.
Daily & Basset, Architects

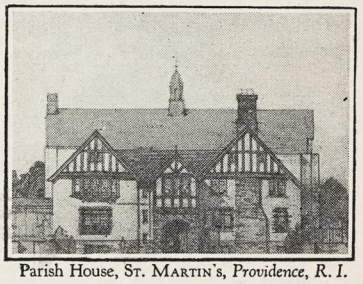
Parish House
Church of the Heavenly Rest
New York City



Bertram G. Goodhue Associates
Architects

Parish House, The Redeemer, Pelham, N. Y.
Frank M. Snyder, Architect

Parish House, Calvary, Summit, N. J.
Averill & Craft, Architects

Parish House, St. Martin's, Providence, R. I.
Clarke & Howe, Architects

Funds for the above Parish Houses and other Church Enterprises were raised in campaigns under the direction of Ward, Wells, Dreshman & Gates

Can we help you with your Financial Problems?
Consultation without obligation.

Our Quarterly bulletin "Financing Social Progress"
gives further details and will be sent upon request

WARD, WELLS, DRESHMAN & GATES

PHILANTHROPIC ORGANIZATION AND FINANCE

NEW YORK—475 FIFTH AVENUE CHICAGO—WRIGLEY BLDG.

Originators of the Intensive Method of Fund Raising

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

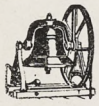
INGRATITUDE—Studdert-Kennedy

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, DECEMBER 15, 1927



BROWN MEMORIAL CHAPEL
St. Peter's, Washington, N. C.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.
314 East 34th St. New York
worker in glass mosaic church decoration

For "Daylight Projection"
of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use
BALOPTICONS
There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.
Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 697 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ
Church Bells — Peals
McShane Bell Foundry Co.
Baltimore, Md.

Vestments
For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring
Inquiries given prompt attention
J. M. HALL, Inc.
174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403)
(Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.
TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.
1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows
Monuments and Church Furnishings
IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS COLOR
CHARLES F. HOGEMAN
45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts. NEW YORK
460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE, N

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS
Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street
Designers of
HISTORICAL WINDOWS
Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.
Clerestory Windows
St. Thomas Church New York City
Stained Glass, Mural Decorations, Glass Mosaics

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs
The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.
M. P. MOLLER
Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios
5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.
MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS
If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart
Stained Glass
English Artists
550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

R. GEISSLER, INC.
56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST. 1877

DEAGAN
Tubular Bell
Tower Chimes
The one most beautiful form of memorial.
Standard Sets, $6000 up
J. C. DEAGAN, Inc.
161 Deagan Bldg., Chicago
PLAYED DIRECT FROM ORGAN CONSOLE

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:
EXETER
and 4 & 5 Duncannon St: Charing Cross LONDON
ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS
in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal and
Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.), Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

Windows of Merit
Beautiful Groupings
Gorgeous Combinations of Color
Well executed by
The Von Gerichten Studios
Columbus, Ohio. New York City

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.
— Office and Studio —
221-223 E. Fulton St. — Columbus, Ohio.
DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.
— Photos, Designs and Estimates Upon Application —
ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 17 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

INGRATITUDE

The Basest of Sins

By

REV. G. A. STUDDERT-KENNEDY

Blow, blow thou winter wind,
Thou art not so unkind
As man's ingratitude.

I THINK Shakespeare's King Lear said that. But, anyhow, whoever said it, it strikes down to a deep truth. There is nothing so unkind as man's ingratitude, unless it is woman's—and that can be worse.

I am not sure that the greatest sin in the world is not ingratitude. The man that never says "thank you" to anyone, God or man, is about the nearest thing to a damned soul that you will find upon this earth. He sees nothing in the world to be thankful for, and therefore lives in hell.

A world in which there was nothing to be thankful for, and no one to be thankful to, would be a world without love, and that is hell.

All other sins, it seems to me, grow out of ingratitude. The ungrateful man or woman can have no real sense of duty, and therefore no true idea of right and wrong.

A sense of duty is a feeling that I owe somebody and want to pay. I want to pay not because I hate being under an obligation to my friend, my neighbor, or my God—not because I am too proud to receive a favor from anyone, and want to be entirely independent—but because I am grateful and want to express my gratitude. I want to write "paid with thanks" at the bottom of the bill, and mean it.

When we pay our debts gladly, willingly—not because we have to, but because we want to—that is gratitude, and that is duty, too. When we do that we live in the real world, the world as God made it and meant it to be.

Everyone Owes

For in God's world everything is in debt to everything, and everybody to everybody else. There is no such thing as independence anywhere in all the length and breadth and depth and height of God's great universe. To live, therefore, with a grateful heart, is to face the facts of life, to live in touch with realties, and that is the secret of all sound living.

That is what Christ meant when He said: "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of God." A poor man knows that he is in debt, and wants to pay. He is grateful.

The first fact in life is that we are all, as individuals, poor men. The richer we are the more we owe to God and man. If you have brains or beauty you owe it to God and your parents. You did not make yourself. If you have bread to eat and clothes to wear you owe it to your fellow-workers in the world.

If you want to be really independent, and owe no one anything, you had better pay for some prussic acid or something, and then I am sure that you won't wake up to find yourself in debt to an angel or someone in the next world whose job is to look after suicides.

The truth about life is that we are all linked and locked together in a unity of universal mutual dependence, from which there is no possible escape, even in death. Gratitude is the free and glad acknowledgment of that truth. Ingratitude is refusing to face it, and that is the greatest sin, because it is the blackest lie.

The One Commandment

The whole of the Ten Commandments boil down in the end to one: "Be thankful." The fool who says in his heart there is no God is ungrateful for all the beauty of the world and the eyes he has to see it. He takes a summer day, the scent of roses and of new-mown hay, the song of a lark, and the laughter of children and never says "thank you" to anyone.

Poor devil, he is not only a fool, he is a damned fool—damned because he lives cut off from love.

The man who does not honor his father and mother is ungrateful for the gift of life; the murderer is the same. The adulterer is ungrateful for a woman's love. The thief not only fails to pay his debts with gratitude, he tries to avoid paying at all. The false witness and the liar are grateful neither to God nor man, or they would know that the very least they owe to both is common honesty. The covetous man thinks of what men owe him and not of what he owes men. It is all ingratitude.

The miseries of the world are caused by ingratitude. Nations, classes, and individuals have not learned to be thankful to one another for the mutual service by which they live. They pay their debts, but they pay because they have to. They are not paid with thanks, but grudgingly.

The manual laborer does not freely acknowledge the debt he owes to the man of brain, enterprise and ability. He tries to prove that he creates all wealth, and that to him all wealth is due. The brain-worker is not conscious of what he owes to the man of brawn and muscle. He thinks of him too much as a machine, and that kills gratitude. You can't be grateful to a steam engine or a motor car.

"Be Thankful"

Nations cling jealously to their sovereign independence, protecting it with armies, navies, and tariff walls. They are reluctant to face the modern fact of universal mutual dependence. They have to pay or they could not live, but they do not pay with thanks, nor do they expect the receipt to be marked "with thanks" except in a formal sense.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The only gratitude they believe in is the gratitude which is really a request for more of the same sort. If they say "Thank you" they mean "Come again another time." That is business, but mean business.

All business is mean—mean and joyless—unless it is redeemed by real gratitude, and kindly appreciation of mutual service done. It is the lack of that which makes the Industrialism of the modern world more like a cock-fight than a co-operative commonwealth. Business can never be a blessing until we pay our bills "With thanks," and honestly mean it in the true sense of the words.

Life cannot be the happy, joyous, worth-while thing it was meant to be until it is redeemed from the basest of all sins, Ingratitude.

Reprinted by arrangement from The Torch, organ of the Industrial Christian Fellowship.

PRAYER BOOK AS MYSTERY DRAMA

The Lessons

By

IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

AFTER the psalter follows the Old Testament lesson. With it, forming a part of it as an act of faith, comes a canticle; the Te Deum, or the Hymn of the Three Holy Children, or the canticle, "Blessed art thou, O God of our Fathers."

After the second lesson, which is from the New Testament, and forming part of it, comes the Hymn of Zacharias, or the Jubilate Deo.

Insistence on the spiritual value of the Old Testament is one of the distinguishing marks of the Church. But the Old Testament is always read with an accompanying and interpreting passage of the New Testament. In the Prayer Book lectionary, the seven lessons for each Sunday are carefully chosen, and form a system of illumination which grows ever more beautiful as one studies it.

Collect, Epistle, Gospel, two lessons for morning, two lessons for evening, make seven. Take any one Sunday and read these seven lessons in relation to the life of Christ as taught by that day in the Church year, and you will gain a far deeper insight into the philosophy of religion.

Take for example the First Sunday in Advent and the Tenth Sunday after Trinity. The First Sunday in Advent establishes the fundamental proposition of our religion, namely that Christ came once to save the world, and shall come again to be its judge. The collect states this, with a prayer that we may be ready.

The Epistle states our duty for preparedness. "The night is far spent, the day is at hand."

The Gospel sets forth that Christ's first act, on entering any temple, is to cast out the unclean things therein.

In Morning Prayer, the first lesson states the reason for Christ's coming. "I have nourished children, and they have rebelled against me," in the first chapter of Isaiah.

The second lesson begins the narration of the manner of his first coming, with the story of the birth of John the Baptist.

In Evening Prayer. the first lesson states the hope of redemption, and the dread of judgment at the Second Coming. "For there shall be a day of the Lord of Hosts upon all that is proud and haughty, and upon all that is lifted up; and it shall be brought low."

The second lesson begins the Revelation, with the prophecy of the Second Coming. "Behold, he cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him; and all the tribes of the earth shall mourn because of him. Even so, Amen."

Now, taking the Church year right through, you will come to the conclusion, at least, I have come to that conclusion, that never in the world was there such a system of Bible study compiled and prepared as the Proper Lessons for Sundays in the present Prayer Book. The revised lectionary I do not understand. I have not yet found the reason for it, nor the system which guided its compilers.

Take the tenth Sunday after Trinity, for a random sample. The Epistle deals with "diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit," and tells how to know the spirit of God speaking through any man, through the gift of Discerning of Spirits.

The Gospel is Jesus' lament over Jerusalem, because "it knew not the day of its visitation," it could not discern the Spirit of God.

Both Old Testament lessons tell the story of the prophet Balaam who, summoned to curse Israel, ended by blessing them, because he discerned the spirit of God. Offered a house full of silver and gold, he refused to obey the command of Balak to curse, but blessed them.

Acts 26, the second lesson for Morning Prayer, tells how Paul, summoned to curse the Christians, ended by blessing them and becoming their chief apostle.

The second lesson for Evening Prayer, James 2, summarizes all these cross-lights by warning against holding the faith with respect to persons. "If there come into your synagogue a man with a gold ring, in fine clothing, and there come in also a poor man in vile clothing—" a caution to discern spirits aright.

The collect adds these things all together, and comes to a conclusion regarding prayer. "That we may obtain our petitions, make us to ask such things as shall please thee."

The Bible, thus arranged and ordered, is the fruit of many centuries of study. A Bible Class which would take up the lessons for any one Sunday in the year and study their inter-relation would have material for months of study.

Take the First Sunday in Advent. To comprehend all the splendors of those majestic lessons, one would need to know the whole story of Isaiah, of John the Baptist, of Revelation, of Luke.

Begin this way. Take the Sunday nearest your birthday, and study its lessons in this order and relation. You will find enough to keep you exploring, with ever increasing joy of discovery, for a year.

One way of symbolizing the Old and New Testaments is by the two seven-branched candlesticks. In the Temple at Jerusalem, and also in the tabernacle at Shiloh, the Seven-Branched Candlestick represented the faith. In the New Testament, Jesus appeared to John the Divine in the midst of seven golden candlesticks. The two seven-branched lights represent the two Testaments, and might be lit during the reading of the lesson, on special occasions, to illustrate the meaning of the lights and the glory of the lessons.

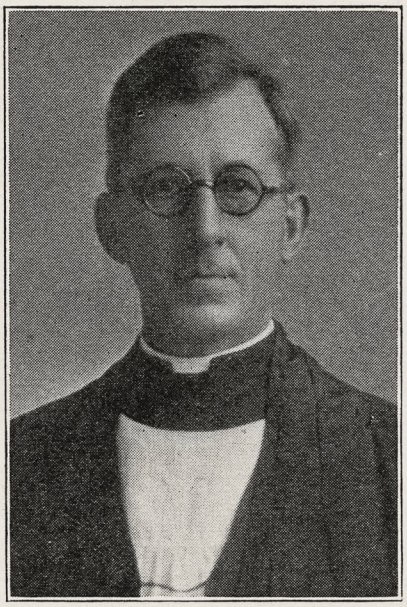
Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Cheerful Confidences

THE PASTOR'S SANCTUM

By Rev. George Atwater

"COME right in, please. Just a moment until I can remove those books from a chair. There, sit down."



"Yes, this is my sanctum. It has rather the appearance of a workshop, office, library and museum, all commingled. Quite different from the traditional study of the parson of which we read in old-fashioned novels. They had shelves to the ceiling, and those shelves were filled with volumes of theology, while today we have—but look around you and see for yourself.

"You find it interesting? A good study nowadays does arrest the attention. Yes, I use a typewriter. Trollope's parsons no doubt wrote the bromidic neat but small hand that gave manuscripts an appearance of high finish and splendid workmanship. Judging from the contents of the many volumes of the sermons of the period that have now returned to their dust, I should conclude that the publishers must have been hypnotized into accepting those manuscripts by the copper-plate handwriting. We today must resort to the typewriter if we wish to have our letters read carefully.

"Tennis racket? Yes, indeed. Used it in college. Once in a while we take too. What would Jonathan Edwards say? Haven't the least idea. I rather prefer Oliver Wendell Holmes myself. You remember his words in the 'Autocrat'? 'I have found that some of those active exercises which are commonly thought to belong to young folks only may be enjoyed at a much later period.' Rather a sober remark from the good Doctor, yet full of wisdom. It may have been suggested by the sight of children playing on the 'Common.' By the way, I noticed that Holmes made one poor prophecy. He says in sober earnest that rowing, in a narrow boat equipped with outriggers, 'is the nearest approach to flying that a man has ever made or perhaps ever will.' I tried it once. It proved to be not a near approach to flying, but a complete approach to swimming. But Holmes looked at life sanely. He quotes Sir Thomas Browne's dictum, 'Every man lives so long as he acts his nature, or some way makes good the faculties of himself.' I think I'll cling to that tennis racket a few more years.

"You have noticed my little camera? There is a world of satisfaction in the small pictures, taken from time to time, of the ordinary scenes, and of groups of friends. By the little camera I have fastened the unusual incidents of the Parish life beyond the chance of forgetfulness.

"I certainly have the post-card craze. Here are several hundred of them gathered from foreign lands. Of all the souvenirs brought from Europe they are the best. They awaken memories of many happy days spent about old cathedrals, or amidst the ruins of Rome (where the ten-year old vendor of post-cards tries four languages on you if necessary), or wandering in the Thuringian forest entranced with the beauties of Eisenach and the Wartburg. Post-cards are a great aid to the memory. You may smile at my devotion, but only wait until you have the opportunity, under similar circumstances, to put your desires and actions to the test.

BISHOP CASADY
Visits St. John's College

"As you see, the book congestion is serious. That is because we lack proper legislation on the subject of books. Congress ought to take up the matter of standard sizes in books. For by whatever principle you arrange your books on your shelves, you produce inharmonious results. If you classify books according to subjects, which is a proper classification to your mind, you find big books and little books huddled together, making a sky line that distresses you. Here are two books born for each other's company. They are soul mates. They should stand by each other through thick and thin. But one is a large quarto and the other a slender duodecimo. What shelf is sufficient for an array of such as these?

"If you classify by size you produce a regularity of form but a woeful confusion of matter. Here stands Harris' 'Theism,' Professor Allen's 'Phillips Books,' Sturges' 'Architecture', and a 'Chess Manual' side by side. Any natural family of books is scattered to the four walls.

"That is not all. Every book has a complexion. It is black, red, blue or green. Colors stumble over one another on the shelves. Here we need a dress reform.

"How do I classify mine? According to service. The ones I consult frequently I keep near me; the others find their level.

"Have I read them all? Bless you, no. One must be very careful about reading a book nowadays. To read some books all at once is about as beneficial as going to the grocery and eating a barrel of crackers. The library furnishes raw material for reading. Your own purpose and your own interest do the rest. To go back to Holmes again, we must remember what he says of each mind having a different 'saturation point.' You cannot, with profit, read beyond that.

"Do I get my sermons out of those books? No, indeed. Those books get my sermons out of me. Professor James or Dr. Newman Smyth pump away and draw up one sermon at every page. Others pump, too, but sometimes the handle seems disconnected from the shaft. It does not make much difference what kind of book it is, if it is a good book it gives a stimulus and inspiration to the mind. Here's Thoreau's dear old 'Walden Pond!' It is not a record of physical adventure, but of mental and spiritual adventure that impels one to face his slavery in his possessions. A little reading of that will clear the turbulent waters of your restless thoughts. Or if you are a little pessimistic, because your last chicken supper failed to pay a dividend—get out your Royce—'The Spirit of Modern Philosophy'—and it may begin to dawn on you that perhaps chicken suppers are not a very large element in the problem of your existence.

"Here are some of the tools of the work, commentaries and concordances and dictionaries. Commentaries are good unless they try to project upon the mountain range of sacred literature the formal, Italian garden decorations of some out-worn, scholastic system of theology. That is comparable to explaining the oracles of Delphi by the phonograph.

"Here are the inspirational books. They oil the machinery. This shelf full of old college text books may be likened to the dismantled scaffolding lying about a building whose walls are completed. The remaining work is the interior finish and the decorating. Here is poetry. We need that. Science and history are like wall maps in the temple of the mind. They attempt to reproduce for us what goes on in the great realm of nature and humanity. Poetry opens the windows between the maps and allows us a glimpse of the reality. Poetry is the expression of throbbing experience, while history is the record of reflection upon that experience. Science is dealing with symbols and history with representation, but poetry gives us a good brushing with the stuff and reality of life. You thought it the other way. Did you ever cross the Mer-de-Glace at Chamounix? Well, what gives the best idea of it, an account of a glacier in a book or one afternoon's experience on that sea of ice? The latter, of course. There, you have decided for poetry.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

"Yes, here are a few books of travel. It's queer about traveling. When you are in Europe you spend about nine-tenths of your time doing exactly what you do at home—that is, eating, sleeping, writing, reading and so on. It is the one-tenth that counts. The inverted traveler who tries to do unusual things nine-tenths of the time, soon tires of the process and wires for tickets for an earlier steamer.

"These travel books may mislead you. You ought to adapt an old phrase to the—'Read them as if you would never go to Europe, and then go to Europe as if you had never read them.' That is, read and enjoy now, and when you reach the other shores you will retain enough to instruct and entertain you. If you read and mediate at home upon the beauties of Venice, you will find Venice an old friend. No one ever got up any enthusiasm about St. Mark's by reading the guide book within its walls.

"Here I write my sermons, too. When? When I have within me a sermon that will stand the operation of writing, whether day or night. It's a pity that a parson has to be ready, like an alarm clock, to go off at eleven o'clock each Sunday morning. Many of my sermons are at flood tide on Friday night or Saturday morning. A sermon comes like an oil well and has to be pumped into the reservoir of a manuscript. It sometimes comes without warning, though not without preparation. The drilling tool has been driven through the rock and sand of the mind by a hard blow before it strikes oil.

"O, yes, indeed, the machinery of the Parish is centered here, too. Here are the rolls and letters and records. But the most splendid thing about a sanctum is its associations. Here I meet the sorrowing and penitent, and needy and overburdened. Here I try to create that atmosphere of trust and faith without which a sanctum is all machinery, but with which it is a spot made sacred by real service for men in the name of the Master."

On a recent visit to Trinity Church, Apalachicola, Florida, Bishop Juhan was entertained at a very delightful supper, served in the rectory by the Young People's Service League. At this gathering, the Bishop made an address to the young people and then showed them the diocesan moving pictures of their own activities at Camp Weed last summer.

BISHOP PARSONS
Speaker at Institute

Let's Know

WOMEN

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

A FRIEND of mine handed me a book recently by Langdon-Davies, entitled "A Short History of Women," and asked for an opinion on it. The particular point of the request lay in the fact that the author pronounces Christianity to have been a distinct detriment to the position of women in society. He has much to say of the advantages secured by women in the pre-Christian society of Egypt, Babylonia, and Greece in its earlier period. These advantages are said to have been abolished under Christian influence to the general degradation of the feminine sex. "We are forced to the conclusion," says this author, "that among all the enemies of women, none has waged more implacable war against them than the religion which grew up and was called Christian."

The general point of view of this book may be discovered in a statement which is repeated several times —namely that "history is the record of human imbecilities and errors." Whether he is adding to the catalog of imbecilities by writing another history, the author does not state. But he assumes that everyone else is ignorant and idiotic in all things, except the author of this particular book.

One of the strange things about this book is that it discusses the Christian attitude toward women without ever saying a word about our Lord Himself. His sanctifying of the marriage relationship at a time when marriage was anything but sacred; His attitude toward the woman of Samaria, toward Mary and Martha, toward the woman taken in adultery—all this is not even mentioned. And that, among the Jews at a time when women were rigidly restricted in their religious privileges; indeed, one of the thanksgivings in the form of Jewish morning worship (used then and still in use) says. "Blessed art thou, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who hast not made me a woman."

Whatever good things for women may have been recognized in pre-Christian society had been quite thoroughly submerged under the Greek and Roman civilization of that period. It might be added here that one of the old Babylonian laws provided that "if a woman repudiate her husband, she shall be drowned in the river." Certainly the position of women was fearfully degraded at the opening of the Christian era. Throughout the pagan world decent women were helpless parasites; the only women who had any liberty were high class prostitutes. The Christian attitude toward women, therefore. had to be carefully safeguarded against malicious gossip. So St. Paul offered his advice about braided hair, artificial adornments, etc., because these were the marks of the courtesan. The recognition of woman's place in apostolic times is witnessed by the important position accorded to the deaconesses.

In early Christian centuries the reaction from pagan licentiousness ran to an exaggerated asceticism in the time of the hermits. But this affected men as well as women and did not represent the general run of Christian life. The author of this book quotes Tertullian chiefly to show the Church's attitude toward women. But Tertullian, though keen of mind, was fearfully erratic and left the Church for Montanism which considered all women as she-devils and which the Church condemned as heresy.

With the break-down of the Roman empire and the troubled days of the Middle Ages, women did not get much of a chance, on the whole. But the reason was that warfare was a daily occupation and women, if they were to survive at all, had to be protected. Doubtless they were housed up too much and given too few liberties—all of which established precedents which could not be overcome in a moment.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Taking a long view—if you want to check the value of Christianity in the general emancipation of women, just consider it this way. In the past two thousand years there have been great religious movements which have colored the civilizations of the world. In the far East there has been Buddhism, with its Hindu background; in the near East, there has been Mohammedanism; and in the West, there has been Christianity. Where has the progress come? Think of the child marriages, foot-binding, concubinage in the far East; think of the repressive slavery of the Moslem harem; and then think of your American women in the freer atmosphere of Christian ideals. Any improvements being made elsewhere, outside of Christendom, are the direct results of the elevating pressure of Christian standards.

Much more ought to be said, but space forbids. These things don't come all at once and there are many ups and downs. Nevertheless, the most pagan American woman has reason to be devoutly thankful for the Christian religion.

About Books

THE CATHOLIC ANTHOLOGY. Thomas Walsh. Macmillan. $2.50.

In this book of over five hundred pages Dr. Walsh has gathered a large number of poems which express the spirit and life of the Catholic Religion. Some of the poems are familiar to lovers of English religious poetry. But many are new. There are a number of translations from French, German, Italian and Spanish (some of them by Dr. Walsh himself), and a number of poems by less known present-day Roman Catholic writers of a high degree of merit. It is a truly valuable collection. The following, by Padraic Colum, we cannot forbear to print:

A CRADLE SONG

O men from the fields,
Come gently within,
Tread softly, softly,
O men coming in!

The Mavourneen is going
From me and from you,
Where Mary will fold him
With mantle of blue!

From reck of the smoke
And cold of the floor
And the peering of things
Across the half door.

O men of the fields
Soft, softly come thro'.
Mary puts round him
Her mantle of blue.

BOOKS RECEIVED

The Church and the Russian Revolution. Mathew Spinka. Macmillan. $2.50.

The Evolution of the English Hymn. F. J. Gillman. Macmillan. $2.50.

The Rosary. Cornelius Howard Patton. Revell. $1.50.

Christianity as Bhakti Marga. A. J. Appasany. Macmillan.

Bible Dramatics. James Watt Raine. Century. $2.00.

The Desk Lectionary with Calendar for 1928. Morehouse. 25 cents.

Children of the Second Birth. S. M. Shoemaker, Jr. Revell. $1.50.

Hand Book for Young People. National Council of the P. E. Church.

The Church and the Country Community. Edwin V. O'Hara, LL.D. Macmillan. $1.25.

Outspoken Essays. First series. Wm. R. Inge. Longmans. $2.00.

Outspoken Essays. Second series. Wm. Ralph Inge. $2.00. Longmans.

Memories Grave and Gay. Wm. F. La Trobe-Bateman. Longmans.

The Church in the World. Wm. Ralph Inge. Longmans. $2.00.

The New Hymnal for Christmas and The New Year

Its use by the communicants has been largely responsible for the improved congregational singing.

There are three editions available.

The Standard Musical Edition, well bound in dark blue, is intended for the pews. It sells at $1.20 a copy, or, in lots of 100 or more, at $1.00 a copy.

The Special Choir Edition is heavily reinforced and is bound in red buckram. It sells for $1.50 a copy, or, in lots of 100 or more, at $1.30 a copy.

The Word Edition, bound in dark blue, sells at 40c per copy.

Carriage charges are extra.

Orders should be sent to

THE CHURCH PENSION FUND

14 Wall Street New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

A HERO AND HIS MEDALS

Stir House of Commons

Reported by

A. MANBY LLOYD

THE spectacle of a Labor M.P., Mr. John Beckett of Gateshead, walking across the floor of the House, and laying an unemployed man's war medals on the Treasury Bench, deeply affected the House of Commons during the debate on the Unemployment Bill.

Mr. Beckett made a fervent speech in condemnation of the measure.

He explained that a man who could not get work but had the Mons Medal and other decorations, and had walked the boots off his feet searching in vain for work, had given him his medals as he could not get any money on them from the pawnbrokers.

"I would hand them to the Prime Minister," said Mr. Beckett, gazing at the Treasury Bench. Noting the absence of Mr. Baldwin, he added: "I will give them to the Minister of Labor."

To Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland he said: "Will you give them with my compliments to the Prime Minister? I suggest they should be framed and presented to the Carlton Club."

Mr. Beckett then walked across the House, and M.P.s craned forward and watched him lay the medals on the Treasury Bench.

Eventually the Bill, which seeks to abolish the word "dole" by making the Statute Book declare that the genuinely unemployed man, woman, lad or girl receives unemployment benefit as a right, was given second reading in the teeth of Labor opposition. They vehemently declared that the Bill did not cure unemployment and gave insufficient money to those who could not get work, particularly the young.

There was a high level of speeches for and against the Government. Miss Margaret Bondfield, rising from the Labor Front Bench, in a black frock relieved by old rose trimming, hatless, her black hair done up in a bun, her voice ringing with anger, cried out, to the deep bass accompaniment of the massed Labor cheers:

"I shall fight this Bill clause by clause, and I shall go out in the country and fight the Government for assuming that unemployment can be dealt with by such a Bill. They ought to organize the resources of the country to reduce the numbers of the unemployed."

From the Conservative benches Mr. P. J. Hannon quietly argued that what was needed was to find means to put people back into profitable productive work.

* * *

A grand old churchman has passed away in the person of Canon W. H. Hay Aitken, aged 86. It is 40 years since I sat entranced (a mere boy) at his feet. He was a superb mission preacher, with remarkable powers of oratory and exposition. He cooperated with D. L. Moody when he came to this country and he paid two visits to America. He was the first to hold mid-day services for business men in Trinity Church, New York.

The claim was made for Canon Aitken that, with the possible exception of John Wesley, he preached more sermons than any other man. A calculation made recently put the number at over 22,000. He was one of the few who have been permitted to preach in Guildhall, London. One of his reminiscences had reference to a memorable service at which Disraeli (then Prime Minister) and Gladstone were present. The G.O.M. evinced great interest in the canon's work, and often went to hear him. He advocated the careful handling of social problems in the pulpit, but constantly urged that spiritual matters should always have first place. He believed that the true solution of our social problems lay in the extension of genuine Christianity and the establishment of Christian principles. The lack of response on the part of the majority gave him deep concern, but he was wont to declare, "The Christian has no right to be a pessimist," and to add, "A missionary Church can never be a decadent Church." His busy pen—he was a forceful and attractive writer—was brought into service to accentuate his pulpit work. He wrote over a score of books.

* * *

Dr. Gilmartin, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Tuam, opening the Mayo Feis at Westport, made a vigorous attack on the present day.

He said the making of butter, the baking of cakes, the spinning of yarn and the knitting of stockings had disappeared, and much domestic happiness had gone with them.

"Instead of milk and porridge we have repeated doses of strong tea and white bread; instead of visiting and story-telling there are kinemas and night-walking; instead of Irish dancing we have contortions of the body timed to a semi-barbaric music; instead of hard, honest work there is the tendency to do little for big wages."

* * *

"I am not concerned to defend all that the Bishop has said about the Sacraments," says Dean Inge in the Church of England Newspaper, referring to Dr. Barnes.

"Such matters would perhaps be more deftly handled by an Oxford metaphysician than by a Cambridge biologist. But my chivalrous feelings are revolted when I see Archbishops and Bishops joining a mob of gutter-snipes in pelting one of their own Order.

"The contention that it is superfluous to instruct a mixed congregation, even in so intelligent a city as Birmingham, on the bearing of evolution upon Christian doctrine, could not honestly be maintained by any parish priest.

"If a Bishop who promised at his consecration to drive away strange doctrines," he adds, "thinks it his duty to denounce them we should rather admire his courage than carp at his choice of language.

"The Primate declares that we were all agreed that Transubstantiation is not the doctrine of the Church of England; but he has nothing to say about the 3,000 priests who in 1924 signed the declaration which a Jesuit pronounced to be in complete accordance with Roman doctrine on this subject."

* * *

Candlesticks, organ pipes, Confirmation veils, and a pulpit cushion have recently been stolen from Holy Trinity Church, Lambeth, and the vicar, the Rev. Basil W. B. Matthews, thus comments on the matter in the parish magazine:

"Robbers of God certainly have catholic tastes, judging by the variety of things we miss from the church. We trust that sweet and holy dreams will attend the sleep of any whose heads may repose on the pulpit cushion (rather a nice one with tassels), which disappeared from the church during Passiontide. There are one or two members of our congregation, we know, who regret that it was not the pulpit itself that was stolen. Father Connold's motor-cycle, parked inside the locked church gates, was relieved of all its tools and accessories (value 5 pounds) a short while ago. Another dirty trick."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD.

THE cover picture this week is taken from the architects' drawing of the chancel of the Brown Memorial Chapel of St. Peter's, Washington, North Carolina, the work having recently been completed by the firm of R. Geissler, Inc. The architecture followed for the furniture is a modified perpendicular Gothic, drawing inspiration from the best examples of less florid treatment of that period. Particular care was taken, in view of the fact that the furnishings were for a chapel, to refine the details and to gain effects of beauty by carefully studied proportions and "space arrangements." The richness is obtained by concentrated bits of hand carved ornament. The altar with the reredos is of course the main piece, done in the traditional and symbolic colors, blue, red, white and gold; while the bishop's chair and credence, the rail, clergy desk and choir stalls bear touches of color decoration which associate them with the altar. The altar is flanked by windows depicting the Ascension and the Resurrection, done in the varied rich blues, reds, whites and golds of the old examples, while the side windows, of simpler ornamental character, show interesting pictorial inserts in rich color. The work was carried out by Geisslers for the building committee of the parish of which Mr. Edmund H. Harding is chairman. The Rev. Stephen Gardner is the rector of the parish.

* * *

A conference with but six clergymen present would not be hailed as a howling success in certain parts of these United States, but when Bishop Thomas, suffragan of Brazil, was able to gather that many together for a day or two in Rio de Janeiro, it was made the subject of many letters home. Of course there were others there besides the parsons, some forty or more, and they had conferences and services and teas, but the clergy, with the Bishop, had one good long session in private where the various problems of the district were discussed. It was the first attempt at such a conference and was rich in results.

* * *

And here is a note from this same Bishop Thomas: "Many thousands of miles away I am seated in the study of Rev. Jose Severo da Silva, rector of the Redeemer, Porto Alegre. Yesterday I preached twice in this church, by all odds the most beautiful church in this city of some 80,000 persons. Covered with ivy to the very top of its beautiful tower it is quite unique among buildings of such a different type of architecture. Just a few minutes ago an airplane passed the window. It maintains a regular passenger service between Rio Grande, Pelotas and Porto Alegre. In some respects, you see, we are quite modern and up-to-date."

* * *

The Russian choir of Osceola Mills, Pa., sang at a reception given Archdeacon Eastment, the rector at Philipsburg, Pa., who has completed his fortieth year in the priesthood and is to retire at the end of the

Christmas

THERE are those who will feel that a subscription to a Church paper, which will bring to the friend or relative fifty-two weeks of stimulating information about the Church, is an ideal Christmas gift. If you are one of these send to the Chicago office the names and addresses of four people to whom you wish to have the paper sent, with a check or money order for five dollars (a saving of 75c on each subscription) and we will start the subscriptions with the issue for Christmas, sending each one also a Christian Christmas card announcement the gift as from you. If you send less than four the cost for each is $1.50, a saving of fifty cents. For four or more $1.25 each. Please act at once so that each one may receive the Christmas number which is to contain a Christmas editorial by Bishop Johnson and an article, "The Meaning of Christmas" by the English writer, Oscar Brooks.

THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

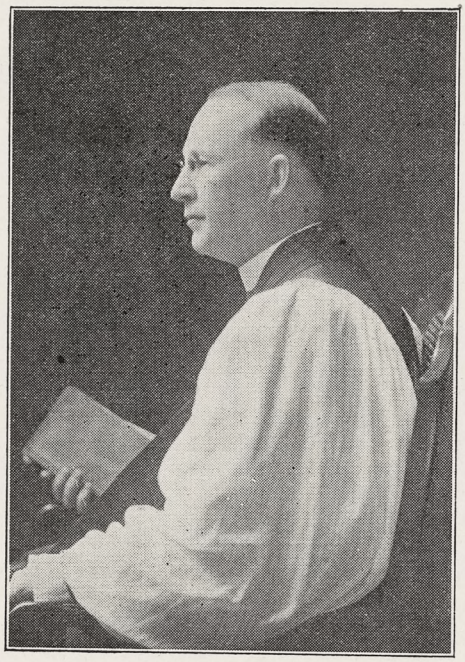
Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

year. During his ministry he has served but three parishes, having been in Philipsburg for twenty years. Practically every clergyman in the town was present at the reception, as was also Bishop Darlington.

* * *

St. Stephen's College announces that it has been included on the fully accredited list of the Association of American universities, which rates colleges for the graduate and professional schools of this country and for the universities in England and on the continent. The securing of this recognition is the last step in the rehabilitation academically of St. Stephen's.

* * *



A new parish house for Christ Church, Sherman, California, was opened last month. The town, between Beverly Hills and Hollywood, is a motion picture town and the opening was attended by a number of persons prominent in the profession . . . also by the full membership of the local Lions Club.

* * *

Bishop Parsons of California was a speaker at the Institute on International Relations held at Riverside, California, on November 29th. This institute corresponds somewhat to the Williamstown Institute and is sponsored by such men as Mr. Frank Vanderlip and President Von Klein Smid of the University of Southern California.

* * *

For three years the Rev. William Mercer Green, Bishop Coadjutor of Mississippi, has served as Director of the Adult Division of the Sewanee Summer Training School for Church Workers and during that time it has nearly doubled in size. He has so admirably combined efficiency in administration with gentleness of leadership that the announcement at the close of the recent session that his other duties made it impossible to continue this service brought genuine sorrow to the entire school. Being a very modest Bishop he did not give official notice of his resignation until it was too late for the members of the school to remember him in any way at the closing session.

BISHOP GREEN
Gets New Traveling Bags

But under the leadership of Miss Helen Averett of Birmingham, assistant executive secretary of the school and with the co-operation of Miss Emma Twiggs, Secretary and Rev. C. A. Ross, Treasurer, word was sent out to all those who had been present at the Adult Division that they might yet have a part in such remembrance, with the result that Miss Averett went to the meeting of the Synod of the Province of Sewanee at Columbus, Georgia, loaded down with a beautiful new robe case as well as a large and serviceable brief case, Mrs. Green having been secretly interviewed as to her husband's needs. Unsuspecting, the Bishop arrived contentedly carrying a pair of much worn veteran bags. On the last day of the Synod he stopped in the court between the church and the parish house for a group picture of those in attendance, expecting to go from there again to pack the battle scarred bags he has carried since his consecration.

But something happened. Dr. Mercer P. Logan, Warden of the DuBose Memorial Church Training School at Monteagle, Tenn., was there, and things usually happen when he is around. He is also founder and president of the Sewanee Summer Training School,

MOTHER

Here Is a Wonderfully Quick Relief for Whooping Cough and Croup

Since 1802, or for 124 years, Roche's Embrocation has been endorsed by mothers because it gives the quickest relief ever known for whooping cough and croup. Just rub it on the child's chest. Penetrating deeply, it breaks congestion, loosens the choking phlegm, and relief comes at once. You should keep it always handy for emergencies.

Sold By All Druggists or
E. Fougera & Co., Inc., New York
W. Edwards & Sons, London, Props.

ROCHE'S EMBROCATION

Give Electrical Gifts

They're So Useful!

Buy them on easy monthly payments, if you wish.

COMMONWEALTH EDISON ELECTRIC SHOPS
72 W. Adams Street and Branches

MARGARET HALL
Versailles, Kentucky
Accredited Church School for Girls, in the Heart of the Blue Grass.
College Preparatory and General Courses. High Standards; Music; Supervised Athletics; New Indoor Swimming Pool.
SARA McDOWELL GAITHER, A. B.
Principal

St. Albans The National Cathedral School for Boys
Thorough Preparation for Leading Universities. Splendid equipment, unexcelled location on Mt. St. Alban overlooking Washington. Eight years' course. Athletics for Every Boy.
Address: WILLIAM H. CHURCH
Head Master, Washington, D. C.

SHATTUCK
A Church School for Boys
For 68 years Shattuck has been a leader among college preparatory schools in the West. It is not operated for profit. It aims to develop High Scholarship, Manly Character, Christian Citizenship.
The military system trains for service and patriotism. Openings for a few students after Christmas holidays. Address The Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

Church Kalendar for 1928
(THIRTY FIFTH YEAR)
THE HANDSOMEST AND MOST USEFUL KALENDAR PUBLISHED
THOUSANDS SOLD BY CHURCH SOCIETIES
Kalendar Months in Colors. Tables of Lessons for Holy Days and Sundays. Proper Psalms for Seasons, Days, and Special Occasions. Tables of Psalms. "Black Letter" Saints Days.
SAMPLE POSTPAID 40c CIRCULAR FREE
ASHBY PRINTING CO.
Publishers - ERIE, PENNA.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

RED AND GOLD CALENDAR

(Advent 1927 to New Year's Day 1929)

29th YEAR

For use of clergymen, schools, societies and families.

Edited by Rev. James Thayer Addison, Rev. Angus Dun and Rev. Norman B. Nash.

Its cover is printed in green, gold and black on a red background. Each of its 68 pages (9 x 12½) is printed in black with red borders.

Improved binding makes pages easy to turn,

Price, postpaid, $1.50. Limited edition. Order now. Circular and sample pages on request. An appropriate Christmas present.

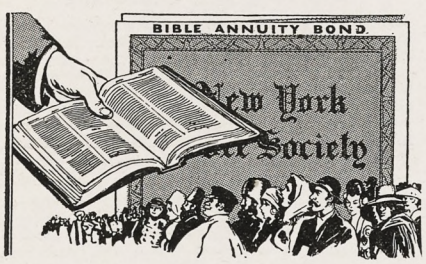
IRVING P. FOX, Publisher
19 Sundbury Building. Boston 14, Mass.

but when he very sternly secured the attention of the Bishop there was no indication that he thought of him in that connection. After getting everybody "happy" by two or three of his imitable funny stories, Dr. Logan let the good but modest Bishop know that even though months had elapsed he could not finally elude the Sewanee Spirit in action and he presented him with the new bags, a token of the very great love and esteem he has won on the Mountain in the past few years, and for once in history, at least, a Provincial Synod adjourned with a joyful climax and united spirit.

* * *

An exquisite lace cloth which Professor Blain Schick, of the department of Romance Languages, of the University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky., found upon the battlefields of France, has been presented by him to the Church of the Good Shepherd, Lexington. Ky., and is now used upon the altar of this church. Professor Schick found the cloth while seeking shelter in an old church near the Chateau Thierry battlefield. Sewing the lace in his tunic, he carried it in this way through the war. Realizing that the cloth came from a church, the professor felt that it should be returned to one.

* * *



The Rev. E. A. Gerhard, rector of Christ Church, Winnetka, was the speaker on Monday at the meeting of the Chicago clergy. His subject was "The Theatre." Following this meeting held at St. Paul's, all of the clergy went to the home of Bishop Anderson—a surprise call as a tribute of respect and affection on the part of all the clergy of the diocese.

* * *

The semi-annual dinner of the Churchman's Club of Maryland was held in Baltimore on December 6th, with the Rev. William H. Van Allen of Boston as the speaker.

* * *

Bishop Helfenstein and Dean Washburn of the Cambridge Theological Seminary were the speakers at the annual dinner of the Cathedral

FREE BIBLES FOR THE SPIRITUALLY HUNGRY; HIGH AS 9% FOR YOU

Bible Annuity Bonds do double duty. They serve others and you at the same time. They pay you a fixed yearly income as long as you live. Also they provide free Bibles to immigrants in their own language, to needy sick in hospitals, to seamen, prisoners and to the blind in raised type.

Besides giving Bibles to these people, Bible Annuity Bonds yield you a dependable income from 4% to 9%, according to your age. Rates on ages from 31 to 80 were recently increased. When you are gone, your bonds will carry on your part of the great work of the New York Bible Society.

The Income is always sure. Absolute safety. No worries or care. Mail the coupon today for details concerning this great Christian Service investment.

NEW YORK BIBLE SOCIETY
5 East 48th Street, New York City

New York Bible Society, Dep't. 33,
5 East 48th Street, New York City.

Gentlemen: Without obligation, please send me descriptive pamphlet about your Bible Annuity Bonds.

Name..... Age.....

Address .....

City or Town..... State.....

THE BOOK OF THE MONTH

THE LONELY ISLAND, Rose Annie Rogers. Morehouse. $3.00

If I were running a personal and private book of the month club for the Episcopal Church—a thing which I am not doing and don't intend to do—I would start it off with "The Lonely Island," Mrs. Rogers' account of the three years which she and her husband spent as missionaries on Tristan da Cunha, a big rock in the middle of the South Atlantic. Tristam da Cunha is 1300 miles from the nearest habitation—which is St. Helena. There are about thirty families on the island, who eke out a precarious existence by fishing and growing potatoes in the few spots of earth that are to be found there. With luck a boat from the world outside calls there once a year. Mrs. Rogers' story is an epic. In her simple and matter of fact account we get a glimpse of how individuals stand out in the little community. Andrew Hagen, Betty Cotton, Mrs. Repetto and Bob Glass are worth knowing. Between the lines we read something of the difficulties this young couple had to face and of the sacrifices they made—and of what their presence on the island meant to their people. Mr. Rogers died in 1926, soon after he and Mrs. Rogers and their little boy got back to England. The book is a memorial to him. It is not only the story of a missionary—it is a story of heroic adventure. It is one of the great books of the year. I hope that a great many people not only in the Church but outside of the Church discover it.

C. L. Street.

This review heads the list of recommendations of "Good Books for Christmas" in the Witness of December 1st — proving conclusively that the Literary Editor of that periodical is a gentleman, a scholar, and a judge of good literature.

MOREHOUSE PUBLISHING COMPANY

1801-1811
Fond du Lac Ave.

Milwaukee, Wis.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

of the Incarnation, Baltimore, on November 30th. Dean Washburn spoke on the Lausanne Conference.

* * *

Bishop Beecher of West Nebraska, speaking in the chapel of Iowa State College, Ames, urged the students to retain the ideal of Christianity in home and family life and launched an attack upon the companionate marriage.

* * *

St. Paul's Church, Waldo, of which the Rev. Wm. S. Stoney is the Missioner, has outgrown its Sunday School accommodations. One of its classes meets in an automobile outside the building. It is a good thing it is in Florida.

* * *

The Church of the Good Shepherd, Jacksonville, has successfully completed its campaign for the final unit of its great building program. Ground is now being broken for the erection of a handsome church. At present the congregation worship in a commodious Parish House.

* * *

The Cathedral Campaign in California is gaining momentum; Dean Gresham is being released from the Cathedral for occasional Sundays in other parishes and an organization is being built which leaders feel will eventually bring in the funds.

* * *

The Bishop of Oklahoma visited St. John's College, Greeley. Colorado, on November 18th. Bishop Casady addressed the student body and accepted two students as postulants.

* * *

Cornerstone for the new St. Matthew's, Woodhaven, Long Island, was laid on November 26th by Bishop Stires. The seating capacity of the new church will be 400, and when complete with furnishings will cost over $100,000. On the following day Bishop Paul Jones, acting for the Bishop of Long Island, confirmed a class of eighteen.

* * *

One of the interesting institutions of the Church in San Francisco is the True Sunshine Mission, said to be the only work among the Chinese undertaken by the Church in the United States. Maybe not, in which case we will let you know later when folks tell us of the error.

* * *

The Rev. Leslie E. Learned, rector of All Saints, Pasadena, California, was recently elected a 33rd degree Mason. The degree was conferred in Los Angeles in November.

* * *

Holy Trinity Sunday School, Brooklyn, has won commendation from the National Council's Department of Religious Education for the excellence of its curriculum. The Rev. John W. Suter, Jr., executive secretary of the department, recently wrote the Rev. J. Howard Melish, D.D., rector of the parish named, to this effect: "The curriculum at Holy Trinity School is a typical example of what modern schools are doing in the way of building up a curriculum of Christian experience. The department also rejoices in this curriculum as an example of local initiative on the part of a parish."

* * *

A program of events of unusual interest is announced at the Cathedral of the Incarnation, Garden City, New York. On Sunday evening, December 4th, Dr. T. Tertius Noble and his choir from St. Thomas' Church, Manhattan, joined the Cathedral choir in a musical service. On Tuesday evening, December 6th, Maj.-Gen. Summerall spoke to the Cathedral Men's Club at the Casino. On Sunday evening, December 13th, Dean Brown of Yale will preach. On Tuesday, December 15th, Dr. Barker, who was White House physician in President Taft's administration, will speak at a public meeting for men at the Casino, under the auspices of the Cathedral Men's Club.

* * *

"No emotions are quite as unreasonable, no prejudice is quite as determined, no meanness is quite as mean, no blindness is quite as quick to justify itself, as that which finds expression in race antagonism," said Dr. W. W. Alexander of Atlanta, Georgia, director of the Commission on Interracial Co-operation, in speaking recently in New York.

"James Bryce said that race had not been a factor in civilization until recent years," said Dr. Alexander. "Today, as you have been reminded

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills.

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

Hospital of St. Barnabas

SCHOOL OF NURSING

Offers 2½ years course leading to R. N. Degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll now.

For full information, address

DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING

Hospital of St. Barnabas

Newark, N. J.

START RIGHT

— When You Raise Money

Preliminary plans are never more important than in a money-raising effort. The first announcement is of prime importance.

Every church should consult a firm like Hedrick, Marts & Lundy before launching an important campaign. Start right—and results are more certain.

Over $200,000,000 has been raised for churches and similar institutions in recent years by members of this firm and associates.

"Financing Philanthropy," quarterly paper on finance, free on request.

HEDRICK, MARTS & LUNDY, Inc.

Member Joint Board of Campaign Counsel and Planning.

527 Fifth Ave. New York

HARVARD SCHOOL

Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

WANTED—CHARGE OF A PARISH OR mission work by a presbyter whom circumstances have compelled to become a non-parochial. Able, experienced, diligent, conservative, a good reader and extemporaneous preacher. Address G. F. S., Witness, 416 Lafayette Street, New York.

THE SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY will furnish vestments, altar hangings and linens at moderate cost. Also Priests' girdles, hand-made of imported linen thread. Sisters of the Holy Nativity; Fond duc Lac, Wisconsin.

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London, W. I., England.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL

Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.

Address: Secretary

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request. Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, also chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses, $7.60 up, burse and veil, $15 up; Silk damask cope, $120; Silk damask chasuble, $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel., Cleveland 52.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

by almost every returned missionary, race has become a factor of first importance. Why is this so?

"The war ten years ago left a disillusioned world. The dream of democracy, the sacred rights of minorities, and selfdetermination have been proven no more than dreams. The largest unity in the world was the unity of the millions who were united in this supposed fight for democracy. The world is plagued by a lost vision. God sought to speak and men turned away. The disillusionment of the returned negro solider is the cause assigned by one of our workers for a loss in a southern county between 1020 and 1925 of 35 per cent of the negro population.

"The position of special privilege occupied by the white race is a second cause. The assumption of special privileges creates suspicion and antagonism on the part of those who have no share in them. The inevitable contacts between people who live in this shrunken world has brought into sharp relief differences of temperament and culture—for there are those differences.

"Every racial situation around the world is aggravated by underlying economic factors. It has been noticed for some time that race riots and lynchings rise and fall in inverse ratio to the price of cotton; and when business is dull in the North the race riots break out. In South Africa the bread problem is tied on to racial fears and racial prejudice; the race problem is tangled in with economic problems all around the world. And it thus becomes a very real thing with which to cope.

"But today the cultural levels of the world are tending toward equalization. Science is no longer the possession of the West.

"What can the Christian church contribute toward the solution of the race problem? It must give a demonstration of fellowship. It must demonstrate the essential worth of every backward group. It must add to its zeal for humanity the best scientific study available in the world. It must educate its membership in the right attitude. If our Christ cannot avert race prejudice in America and around the world I do not believe that he can do much of anything else among the races."

* * *

A "Christian School of Islamic Studies" to be located in the city of Lahore, India, is being planned as a co-operative missionary enterprise by a number of mission boards and societies from Europe and America having work among Mohammedans, Dr. William Paton, secretary of the International Missionary Council, London, England, recently announced while on a visit to New York. The school is to furnish first-class study of Islamics for missionaries preparing for that field; to prepare Christian literature for Mohammedans, in an effort to keep abreast of the large amount of anti-Christian literature.

* * *

My request for "human interest" news bears fruit, but not always fruit that is tasty. For instance, here is a story from a prominent rector: "A young man in my parish, about to take a better business position, was short in his account with the office. He told me about it and asked for a loan of $100. I believed in him and he has made good. But I told him that he must repay me. He did, in monthly payments, but as soon as his payments were completed he 'joined' another church." Then this rector adds another tale of a business man who found himself in debt $3,000. The banks would not loan him anything, so he came to the rector and said: "The Golden Rule ought to work both ways. "Won't you see if you can borrow $3,000 for me from men in the parish." The rector tried, as did also the business man, but both failed. Thereupon the business man withdrew from the

Made by
American Seating Company

Interior Grace Cathedral, Topeka, Kansas

An Appropriate Memorial

THE entire chancel of the Grace Cathedral, Topeka, Kansas illustrated above is dedicated to the memory of Bishop Millspaugh, Bishop of Kansas, and was designed and executed by our wood-carving division.

We shall be pleased to confer on any plans concerning memorials in wood, special pieces or complete church furnishings.

American Seating Company

GENERAL OFFICES: 1024 LYTTON BUILDING

CHICAGO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York
139 West Forty-sixth Street
Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D., Litt.D.
Sunday Masses, 7:30, 8:15, 9, 10:45.
Vespers and Benediction, 4.
Week-day Masses, 7, 8, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

parish on the grounds that there is no Christianity in the parish. At the bottom of the letter: "perhaps you will draw a moral or two from these true story." No, the morals draw themselves.

* * *

Under the auspices of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, State College at Athens, Georgia, co-operating, the picked representatives and champions of the County Boys and Girls 4H clubs held a two-day series of competitions at our Fort Valley High and Industrial School to choose state champions to represent Georgia in the coming National Contests at Tuskegee. The boys clubs, under the supervision of the Farm Demonstration Agents, Mr. O. S. Oneal, graduate of Fort Valley School, directing, engaged in contests in judging corn, potatoes, poultry, hogs, dairy cows, as well as plowing contests. The girls clubs. under supervision of the Home Demonstration Agents, Miss Camilla Weems, State Agent, and Mrs. Margaret Toomer, graduate of Fort Valley School, County Agent, directing, engaged in dressmaking, hatmaking, breadmaking, buttermaking. cooking and health contests. These clubs representing the 4H's of "head, heart, hand and health" have been organized among the boys and girls by the Farm and Home Demonstration Agents to instruct them in the modern efficient methods of farming and home conservation.

* * *

Maryland has just established a branch of the Church Mission of Help, a social service organization within the church dealing with the problems of wayward youth, delinquency, conduct and behavior, and illegitimacy. The work is under the supervision of a Diocesan Board of Directors of which Rev. S. Tagart Steele, D.D., is president. Miss Maria F. Martin, who received her training at the Pennsylvania School of Social and Health Work, and who later had wide experience under the Church Mission of Help in New York, has been appointed Executive Secretary.

* * *

A mission of personal witness for Christ was held in Calvary Church, New York, from December 4th to the 11th, inclusive. On the 4th Rector Shoemaker preached and on the 11th the Rev. Garrett Stearly. On the other six nights, laymen and women—everyday people who have found God through the work of Calvary Church—spoke from the foot of the pulpit steps, half a dozen of them each night. They told simply and directly, in less than ten minutes each, exactly what had happened to them, how they came to find God, and what the power of God

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 9 (French) 9:30. 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily: 7:30 and 10 A. M. and 5:00 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m., 4 p. m.
Daily, 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursday, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder , D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11 A. M., and 8 P. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursday, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 7, 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., Fri., and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30 and 11:00 A. M., 5:00, 6:15 and 8:00 P. M.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp and Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses.
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country: its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — In a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

has done in their lives. All sorts of people were there, men from Calvary Rescue Mission who have been freed, as they say, from "sin and drink" through the power of Jesus Christ; middle-aged people, some of them long members of churches, told of the transformation that came into their lives through surrender to the will of God. There also spoke a graduate of a fashionable school who came out into society a year ago; a woman well known in the educational world; a successful business man who is giving up business in order to study for the ministry; a recent graduate of Bryn Mawr who has found not only greater usefulness but joy; and a woman who has learned to turn a deep personal sorrow into the means of helping other people to find the experience which has recently come to her.

* * *

A unique and beautiful example of compliance with our Blessed Lord's command, "Feed my lambs" is contained in the program arranged for the winter schedule of the House of St. Giles the Cripple at Garden City, the cathedral town of the Diocese of Long Island. A series of thirty-five educational lectures, most of them illustrated by moving pictures, will be delivered by men of distinction in various industries and professions. This series, as the Board of Trustees announces, will undoubtedly be of great value in helping our unfortunate little friends at St. Giles' to a better understanding of the world which some of them will soon be facing for a livelihood. The subjects of the lecture are strikingly attractive: "The World's Steamship Lines"; "How Felt Hats Are Made"'; 'Baseball"; "Publishing Books"; "How Mustard Is Made"; "The Law"; "Manufacturing Rubber"; "Making Moving Pictures"; "Banking"; "Printing a Newspaper"; "The Milkman"; "Manufacturing Shoes"; "How Varnish Is Made"; "Composing Music." These and a score of others will inspire and lighten and teach the children who will attend, and the men who will deliver the lectures are professional and business men of Garden City, where the convalescent home and school of St. Giles' is situated, each distinguished for his ability in his own line.

* * *

At a special service at Emmanuel Church, Baltimore, on October 30th, Bishop Murray was presented with a beautiful cope by the Cathedral League of the diocese.

* * *

The Rev. Conrad H. Gesner was advanced to the priesthood by Bishop Burleson in Calvary Cathedral Sioux Falls, S. D., on a recent Sunday.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, jurnalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
College Preparatory and General Courses
MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,
Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Topeka, Kansas
The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.
Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College
Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics

CHICAGO
Church Training School

President: The Bishop of Chicago.

Director of Studies: The Rev. F. C. Grant, S.T.D.

A two year course of practical work and study to prepare women for service in the Church. Address:

DEACONESS FULLER
211 So. Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

(1) St. Mary's (Bishop Gailor Memorial) Cathedral, Memphis, Tennessee. "Love and Friendship" Window. (2) Emmanuel Church, Athens, Georgia. Bishop Beatty Memorial Altar in marble and caenstone. Also set of special Altar Brasses. (3) Grisaille Window in antique painted style. (4) St. Mark's Church, Brunswick, Georgia. Hand carved caenstone Reredos. (5) Chapel: Central Congregational Church (Rev. Dr. Cadman), Brooklyn, N. Y. Chancel Furnishings, etc. (6) St. Paul's Evan. Luth. Church, Albany, New York. Altar (together with all chancel furniture). (7) St. James' Church, New York City. Hand wrought candlesticks after design by Dr. Cram's office. (8) Portable altar and communion service, for serving the sick. (9) St. James' Church, Richmond, Virginia, "The Good Samaritan" Window in opalescent glass. (10) Vestment case of leather, shown open and closed. (11) Church of the Holy Apostles, New York City, Special Banner. (12) St. Mary's Chapel, Raleigh, North Carolina. Memorial Window in opalescent glass.

THESE PHOTOGRAPHS, SHOWING EXAMPLES OF RECENT WORK, SUGGEST THE SCOPE OF OUR PRODUCTIONS IN MARBLE, STONE, WOOD, BRASS, SILVER, IRON, FABRICS, GLASS, ETC.

R. Geissler, Incorporated
Established 1877

56 WEST EIGHTH STREET NEW YORK CITY

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CHRISTMAS NUMBER

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, DECEMBER 22, 1927

The Shepherd Speaks

BY JOHN ERSKINE

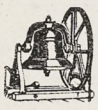
OUT of the midnight sky a great dawn broke,
And a voice singing flooded us with song.
In David's City was He born, it sang,
A Saviour, Christ the Lord. Then while I sat
Shivering with the thrill of that great cry,
A mighty choir a thousandfold more sweet
Suddenly sang, Glory to God, and Peace—
Peace on the earth; my heart, almost unnerved
By that swift loveliness, would hardly beat.
Speechless we waited till the accustomed night
Gave us no promise more of sweet surprise;
Then scrambling to our feet, without a word
We started through the fields to find the child.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.

314 East 34th St. New York

worker in glass mosaic church decoration



For "Daylight Projection"

of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use

BALOPTICONS

There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 684 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ
Church Bells — Peals
McShane Bell Foundry Co.
Baltimore, Md.

Vestments

For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings Tailoring

Inquiries given prompt attention

J. M. HALL, Inc.
174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403)
(Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.

TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.

BELLS

MENEELY & CO.

BELLS

FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.

1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY

WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders
of

PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows

Monuments and Church Furnishings
IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR

CHARLES F. HOGEMAN

45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts.
NEW YORK
460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE N. J.

The Taylor Bell Foundry

LOUGHBOROUGH, ENGLAND

The World's Leading Bellfounders

CHURCH BELLS

SINGLY OR IN PEALS
CHIMES OR CARILLONS
AUTOMATIC OPERATION

Unequalled for Musical Qualities

Yale University — Birmingham, Ala.
Andover — Gloucester
Harvard University
Germantown, Etc., Etc.
INQUIRIES SOLICITED

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs

The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.

M. P. MOLLER

Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios

5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa.

MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS

If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart

Stained Glass

English Artists

550 & 552 W. HARRISON St. CHICAGO

R. GEISSLER, INC.

56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Church Furnishings

IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS

DEAGAN

Tubular Bell Tower Chimes

The one most beautiful form of memorial.

Standard Sets, $6000 up

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc.
161 Deagan Bldg., Chicago

PLAYED DIRECT FROM ORGAN CONSOLE

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD.

EXETER
and 4 & 5 Duncannon St.
Charing Cross LONDON

ECCLESIASTICAL ART WORKERS

in

Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal and
Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

Stained Glass Artists

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

(N. Y.), Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

Windows of Merit

Beautiful Compositions
Gorgeous Combinations of Color
Well executed by

The Von Gerichten Studios

Columbus, Ohio. New York City

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.

— OFFICE AND STUDIO —
221-223 E. FULTON ST. — COLUMBUS, OHIO.
DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.
— PHOTOS, DESIGNS AND ESTIMATES UPON APPLICATION —
ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 18 | Five Cents a Copy | $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week | EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. | 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

Christmastide

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

CHRISTMAS is a season which is based on certain historic facts, certain human aspirations, and certain imaginative ideals.

To those who believe in the reality of Christ's birth and the certainty of His promises, it is a season in which love, joy and peace have their finest fruitions.

It is a time to worship God, to honor Christ, to cement the ties of friendship, to hallow the family circle.

It is a time which children love and for which older folk are thankful.

Sound Foundation

It has a sound foundation, an animating motive, and an adequate purpose.

The world endeavors to appropriate the results without accepting the spirit of the season.

Instead of honoring Christ, they send senseless greetings about Allah, as though the morals of the Turk could produce the harmonies of Christmas.

Santa Claus

Instead of relating their family ties to the Christ who sanctified the family they invest Santa Claus and then commercialize him.

Instead of becoming as little children, they proceed to make little children act as adults.

Christmas presents, instead of being symbols of affection, have become causes for divorce and premonitions of bankruptcy.

"The world itself keeps Christmas Day."

That is merely a recognition of the fact that the world would like to appropriate the joyousness of the Christian without assuming the obligations which are the sole basis of that joy.

In the pagan festivities of today there is small place for Christ in the inn; for the hotel is so full of other guests that Christ has to seek His friends elsewhere.

What is the antidote? Just one, I think.

It is the echo of the nativity.

Whether we are poor shepherds or prosperous wise-men, let us go to Bethlehem (the House of Bread) and worship our King; let us catch His spirit of simplicity and kindness and reverence, and let us go back into the world full of cheer that He gives to those who love Him.

We are a feeble folk numerically. About one in a hundred, but we have a mission today to keep the Protestant world reminded of the fact that nothing can take the place of personal devotion to Christ on the day which commemorates His birth.

We live in a time when men are striving to reduce human life to mechanical laws, and to justify human lust as the rational expression of those laws. Our wise men say that man is an animal whose animal instincts will find their highest expression in animal acts.

Sons of God

Christ came into the world to tell us that we may become the sons of God if we will follow Him.

It was He who gave us the joys of Christmas. The season did not originate in the scientific or commercial world. It could not.

And yet men think that religion is solemn and forbidding.

Why, the Christian religion is responsible for the joys of children and invites solemn adults to become like them.

You couldn't have a Merry Christmas, if the inspiration was to come from a laboratory or a bank.

These institutions have their uses, but they do not feel responsible for inspiring gaiety. It is the Christ and the Christ only who has put gaiety into Christmas.

The Christian religion is the one institution which exists to keep men young and to make children blithesome, and to fill the atmosphere with good fellowship.

The world is living on its capital if it thinks that it can retain Christmas from which they have expelled its authors.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Meaning of Christmas

By

OSCAR BROOKS

WHEN I was a small boy, had I been asked to express what Christmas signified to me, I think I should have described it as a season of goodwill and getting. I have vivid recollections of those early Christmas Eves—of a wakeful, excited little brain, untroubled by theological speculations or humanitarian ideals. With sleepless eyes riveted to the last on the stocking hanging on the bed rail, the only speculation I indulged in concerned its contents when I should awake the following morning. In a naive sort of way I daresay I felt grateful. Certainly my prayers were longer and more fervent than usual. But Christmas hardly meant more to me then than a time when I could count with a reasonable certainty upon being the recipient of kindly attention with other outward forms and expressions than a big dinner, and being allowed to stay up later than customary. It is no exaggeration to say I was occupied in looking for the fruits of goodwill rather than in ministering to the spirit of goodwill. I heard my elders describe Christmas as the children's festival, and I did my best to make them live up to this sentiment. And I was, I suppose, a typical small boy!

Fading Romance

As the years passed by and I grew older, my interpretation of Christmas tended to undergo a change. The romance of Santa Claus had disappeared and I began to realize that I was looked to as one who would contribute to the general expectancy of getting. In time I became quite an adept at this, and derived almost as much pleasure from giving as receiving, and Christmas retained for me most of its original cheer. But in the religious sense I am bound to confess Christmas still signified for me a privilege to bask in the sunshine of general goodwill; not to create it. A feeling of gratitude for the origin of the festival was perhaps slightly more in evidence. But it merely possessed for me a dim religious meaning. "God's in His heaven—all's right with the world." That is about as far as I got.

A further change is now taking place, and I am again revising my interpretation of the meaning of Christmas. In some ways I do not think it is altogether a happy change. As each Christmas comes round I am painfully reminded of the "years that are fled," and many kind folk who once ministered to my happiness are no more. I am able to comprehend now as I never did in the past what Goldsmith means in those pathetic lines:

"And many a year elapsed . . .
Remembrance wakes with all her busy train,
Swells at the breast and turns the past to pain."

In this sense Christmas can never mean the same to me as it did in my childhood. Like birthdays, Christmas Days are milestones on the road of life, and we have a trick of looking backwards.

Giving and Getting

In the material sense even if I replace the ideal of getting by giving I am not sure that it goes very far. A general festival of good-will and pleasure does not somehow exalt my conception of Christmas above my conception of my summer holidays. In fact the latter seem preferable because they last longer. At any rate from the religious point of view getting or giving scarcely seem adequately to express the meaning of the Incarnation. As I recall to memory the story of the first Christmas morning I realize there was joy among the heavenly host because God had signified His goodwill to men in sending His Only Begotten Son into the world in the form of a Child. But in our religious exaltation I think we forget there was to be observed an important condition. The heralds proclaimed first of all glory to God, and then peace on earth to men of goodwill. It was as though a loving and forgiving father welcomed with outstretched arms the children who had long since turned their backs upon their home, but if there was to be joy in the homestead that day it depended upon a reciprocation of that goodwill in the hearts of the children themselves.

Few of us would bring into question the goodwill of God, and yet we have not progressed far in the development of a family spirit. I suppose it points to a want of goodwill on our part. Perhaps after all, some of us have not passed the getting stage!

Closely associated with the earliest remembrances of childhood must Christmas ever remain, a link binding us to the age of innocence, when pleasures were real and unaffected. Probably cold reason which goes far to leave us bare of romance, will never persuade mankind to cast aside these happy recollections as futile. After all, is there not a noble side even to the most despised quality of sentiment?

Alas! we can't remain children forever, and if the meaning of Christmas which comes with mature reflection tends to rob us of some of its elementary delights, it nevertheless raises and elevates the spiritual significance. The old, old story of the birth at Bethlehem can never fade, or its significance grow less real.

The Cradle Throne

In it we see God coming in the form of man to reveal His true nature and purpose. We see Him, moreover, with tender regard for our infirmities, revealing Himself as we are best able to receive His self-revelation. To the simple of the earth, the shepherd-like people, He comes in the every day facts of daily life; to the great and intellectual—the magi of the earth—He comes through scholarship and science. In differing manifestations He reveals Himself to all men with a single purpose: that we may know Him as a Father Who is Love, and His humility may bring us all to our knees at His cradle throne. It is surely only when man with goodwill in his heart responds to the godwill of God that the angelic proclamation becomes a reality in the world; God coming to earth to serve His children; man living on earth to serve his fellows and spread abroad the Divine well-being.

To a troubled and disillusioned industrial world comes now as heretofore the song of the angels with its proclamation of the good-will of God. Would to God there was more evidence of goodwill on the part of man to God and to one another! Then indeed might we enter into the true spirit and meaning of Christmas, and the Christ-Child become the centre of all our joy.

The Rev. Menard Doswell, rector of St. John's, Jacksonville, Fla., one of the most prominent rectors in the South, died early last Sunday morning following an operation for appendicitis.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

A Christmas Rhapsody

By

HOPE HENRY LUMPKIN

IN THAT low, rapturous music which heralds the Advent of the King, is written these words:

"Where is he that is born King of the Jews? For we have seen His Star in the East, and are come to worship Him."

Untroubled were the Wise Men until they lost sight of the Star. Through the dust storms of the waste, the heat of the day, and the chill of the desert night, they had journeyed on. Always one clear intent; always one fixed purpose; always toward the West. And when the sun had set, and purpling shadows swathed the dreary landscape, then, gracious, glowing, glorious, the Star had beckoned them onward in their venturing.

And then—the city! No longer the pad of the camels' feet, soft on the velvety sands. No longer their quiet, hopeful words, "The Star still leads." The noise of the mart and the forum surround them. The cry of vendors and of hucksters, the clank of armed soldiery, the hustling, bustling world immerse, confuse them. About and around are the walls, and the houses, rising stark and straight, shut out the sky. No Star! No vision! Troublous thoughts assail. Others they ask, "Where is the King?" and mocking laughter greets them. Herod they ask, "Where is the King?" and deeply cynical, world weary and wordly wise, he prates to them of worship. and in his heart—of death. They had lost the Star!

So it is with Thee, oft-times, O my Soul! As long as thou dost follow the vision, untroubled is thy clear intent. As long as upward thou dost gaze, where, clear limned against the azure dome, the magic mystery of the Star shines forth, undaunted thou dost still press on. As long as thou dost keep the heart of a child, o'er desert waste, and maddening marsh, and strange and troublous ways, the Star will guide.

But when thou dost pass where worldly walls of cynical desire, of selfish gain, of overweening disputations, dim that translucent glory, then must the vision fade.

Then doubts and shadows, thick swarming, throng upon thy being. Thou callest to mind the days of old, the glory of the former years, and thou, O my Soul, criest, "Ichabod, thy glory hast departed!"

Thou lookest upward, and because the walls lift high, and the mists and fogs of doubt and desire sweep across the clear purpose of thy hallowed intent, thou thinkest that the Star of Bethlehem hast set forever.

And then, O my Soul, thou turnest unto other paths.

To feasting and to pleasure thou dost turn in glutted gorging, and satiated senses, thou thinkest, O vain seeker, to find refreshment, strength and peace. Thou criest, "Here will I be sated and content!" And dust and ashes are thy final answer.

The pageantry and glory of the world call to Thee, and like a dancing child, following the throng which chase and chortle and mimic the circus clown, thou too dost chase the fleeting shadows, the unsubstantial pageantry of the world, and out into the shadows and the darkness they pass, and thou dost stand, gaping, affrighted and alone.

Invention, Science, Philosophy, greatly challenge thee — men's thoughts and the intricate cogitating of men's minds. Thou thinkest that in these shalt there be found the ultimate adventure, the final achieving. And sometime, somehow, somewhere, these too fail to fulfill thy questing, and in them there is no final answer.

And so, my Soul, thou criest, "The Star is lost! I cannot find it!" Immersed in, and shadowed by the busy hours, hurrying hither and yon, intent and yet not intent, the thrumming, humming, ceaseless noise of the days dulls thy hearing. The heavens, resplendent in their purple glory, no longer open to thy gaze. The Star, luminously challenging, no longer lights thy questing way.

But the Star shines on!

Tnou wilt not see the Vision! The radiance, eternally as ever, glows upon the Manger Throne. The call insistently comes, that thou find the heart of a child.

Then, the compelling mystery of the Christmas Tide flows round thy heart, and beats the swelling echoes of its angelic minstrelsy into thy unwilling ears. Caught out of the turmoil of thy restlessness, thou, too, abideth and worshipeth for one moment at the Manger Throne. With all the Angelic Host, even as the Star illumines thy oft-times thwarted life, thou, too, dost cry, "Glory to God in the Highest, and on Earth Peace, Good Will to Men."

Christmas Eve

By

CATHERINE PARMENTER

Pine-crowned hills against the sky,
  Kneeling low to pray;
Friendly, lamp-lit villages
  Along the the snowbound way;
Myriads of silver stars
  Gleaming softly bright . . .
Little King of Bethlehem,
  I see Thy star tonight!

Fragrant wreaths and candle glow
  In a city street;
Songs of Christmas carolers
  High and clear and sweet—
Echoes of the angel host,
  With wings of shining white . . .
Little King of Israel,
  I hear Thy song tonight!

Words of ancient prophecy
  Are mine to take or leave;
Visions of a golden age,
  This happy Christmas Eve;
Peace on earth, good will to men—
  Oh, dim and holy light! . . .
Little King of all the world,
  I share Thy dream tonight!

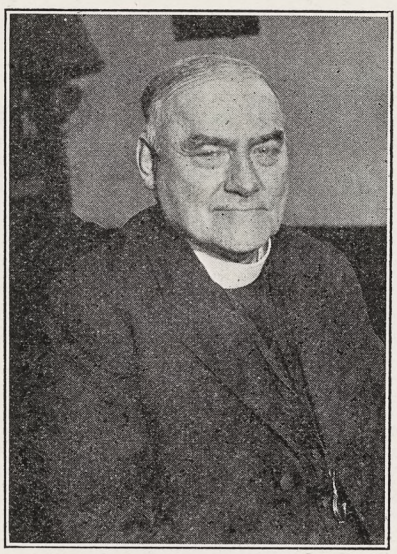
The receiving by Bishop Stires of the ten men who recently completed their training as layreaders was the crowning event at the annual dinner of the Brotherhood held at the Resurrection, Richmond Hill, Long Island. The next term of the Layreaders' School is to open next month with six candidates already enrolled.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Let's Know

IMMACULATE CONCEPTION

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson



WITH Christmas here there will probably be a renewal of confusion in the minds of some people between the Virgin Birth and the Immaculate Conception. Every now and then I am asked something about the Immaculate Conception when the questioner means the Virgin Birth. They are poles apart.

The Virgin Birth is the Christmas story. It refers to the nativity of our Savior as recorded in the first and third Gospels. It appears in the Apostles Creed referring to our Lord as "born of the Virgin Mary."

The Immaculate Conception, on the other hand, refers to the birth of St. Mary, the Mother of our Lord. It means that St. Mary was born free from any taint of sin because of her anticipated motherhood of the Savior. It is a dogma of the Roman Catholic Church, promulgated in 1854 by Pope Pius IX. The Catholic Encyclopedia says: "No direct or categorical and stringent proof of the dogma can be brought forward from Scripture." It was not known in the first few centuries of Christian history. Some of the early Fathers do not seem to have considered St. Mary free from the sin of doubting Christ and St. Chrysostom accuses her of being presumptuous. On which the Encyclopedia naively comments that "these stray private opinions merely serve to show that theology is a progressive science."

During the early Middle Ages the Immaculate Conception was held in some quarters as a pious opinion. It was first recognized with a feast day in England about 1030 A. D. From there it spread to the continent but not without serious opposition. Some of the leading doctors of the Church declared that such a doctrine was unwarranted either by Scripture or by authentic tradition. Such men as St. Peter Damian, Peter Lombard, Alexander of Hales, St. Bonaventura, Albertus Magnus stoutly opposed it. Even the great St. Thomas Acquinas argued against it. The religious orders, however, gradually took it up and observed the Feast each year. The Dominicans were a notable exception, standing solidly against both the doctrine and the Feast. Pope Sixtus IV formally adopted the Feast in 1476 but the controversy still continued. In order to stop the controversy, but scarcely to settle the question, the same pope published a constitution seven years later threatening with excommunication those on either side of the dispute who accused their opponents of heresy. Strange, isn't it? In those days a good Roman Catholic incurred excommunication for naming any denial of the Immaculate Conception as heresy; while today I suppose it is the bounden duty of every good Roman Catholic to do the very thing for which he would have been excommunicated five centuries ago. Yet we are repeatedly told how Roman Catholic doctrine has never fluctuated. The opposition to the dogma did not cease until right down to the year 1854.

The Feast of the Immaculate Conception comes on Dec. 8. Don't confuse it with the Virgin Birth of our Lord, which has always been part of the Christian Gospel.

CANON SIMPSON
Visitor for Church Army

Cheerful Confidences

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC RELATIONS

By Rev. George Atwater

EVERY parish should have for its rector a department of public relations. It should consist of a treasurer, with a large bank account, and a clerk to write the checks.

All active ministers find themselves in time the center of a tiny cyclone of appeals to support all sorts of enterprises.

First he subscribes to a Church paper or two, perhaps all. He pays dues to a lodge or two. He is called upon to subscribe to his college paper, the college annual, the college athletic association, the college alumni fund and perhaps to fraternity support as well.

He was once so injudicious as to send a dollar in response to an appeal for support of a summer camp in which some city people could have a week's vacation. But he soon learns that this spurt of benevolence has caused him to be elected eighty-third vice-president of the association, with the privilege of having his name on the stationery, and all for ten dollars a year.

Every magazine in the land would like to have the minister among its subscribers, and this proposal is supported by the flattering statement that the editor realizes that the minister is among the leaders of thought in his community and must therefore have his magazine. In the meantime O'Higgins, down at the corner grocery, is wondering when the dickens the minister is going to pay his bill.

Then comes subscriptions for local charities, organizations, and benefits. "Such a trifle, you know. Two dollars and your name. We are really anxious to have your influence."

Then the mail arrives and with it two tickets, to be paid for or returned. This is a subtle form of blackmail. It requires some nerve to return tickets to influential persons. Self respect forbids an explanation. This form of imposition should be treated with a firm hand. Throw the whole business into the waste-basket and refuse to explain. You will be set down as careless, but you will have plenty of company.

Likewise there is the problem of Christmas cards and other commodities sent to you unsolicited, and which you are to return or pay for. That is a nuisance. Give them to some charity. You have as much right to make the sender contribute to charity as he has to take your precious time.

But best of all, form your department of public relations and let a secretary manage these things for you.

About Books

THE MAKING OF LUKE-ACTS, H. J. Cadbury. Macmillan. $2.50.

St. Luke's Gospel and the Acts of the Apostles are two volumes of one book on "The Beginnings of Christianity." This fact is obscured in our Bible by the placing of St. John's Gospel between them.

The Making of Luke-Acts is an analysis, a taking-apart, of this two volume history in order to find the material used in its construction, the author's methods of writing history, his individuality and purpose.

Dr. Cadbury pursues his inquiry with great learning, care and caution. He is perhaps unnecessarily afraid that his readers might believe something definite. The section on the literary conventions of St. Luke's time is the most interesting part of a book which should stimulate its readers to further study of the two volumes "To Theophilus."

A. Haire Forster.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD

It's Meaning to the Christian

By

CANON JAMES ADDERLEY

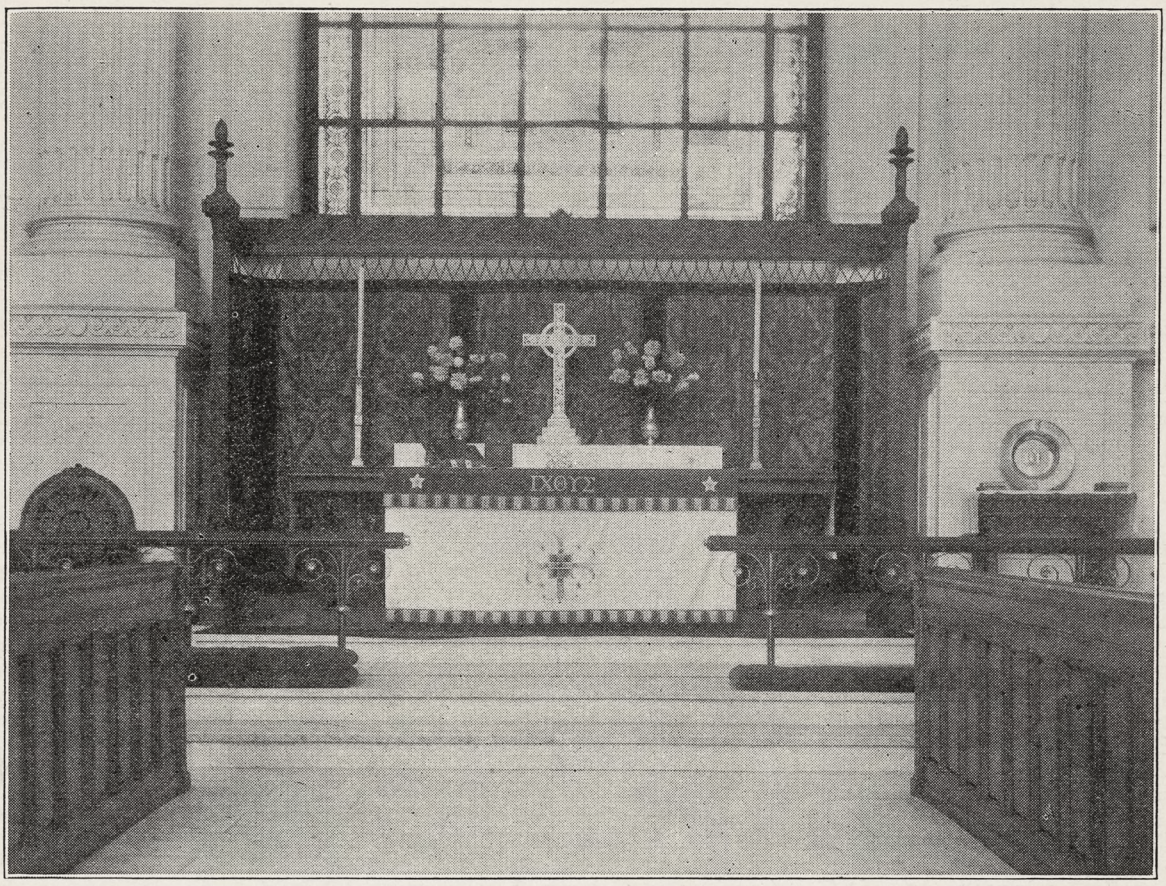
I THINK I have now shown sufficiently that I have come to see the truth about individual Christianity. I know that the first and foremost thing is that I myself should be reformed and made a good man by the power of Jesus Christ and His Holy Spirit. Badly as I have done it I have tried by prayer and sacraments and preparation for Communion to take all the advantages which the Church offers us for leading a Christian life. But as time went on I came to see something wider which my religion was meant to do for me and for the whole world. If Christ's teaching about God as our Father brought me to prayer, it was His teaching about the Kingdom of God which made me see how world-wide His message was.

I was in a town once when the Industrial Christian Fellowship were holding what they call a Crusade. This did a lot for me. I saw their posters all over the place headed, "CHRIST, THE LORD OF ALL GOOD LIFE." I went to their meetings to find out what this meant. It was through this that I came to understand something about the Kingdom of God. Jesus Christ claims the whole of human life in all its various departments. God is to be the King, and the whole human race is to bow down before Him and order its life according to His law and will, which is Perfect Love. When I came to think of this it altered my whole idea of Christianity, or rather, as I have said, widened it.

Christ was not only out to save individual souls here and there, but to change the whole order of human society, to persuade all men to live on His principles. Apply this thought to the different departments of life and one sees at once what a revolution it means. Take industry. What would it mean if God's law prevailed in all business and industry? It would mean perfect justice about wages and work for employers and employed. It would kill both sweating and ca-canny, strikes and lockouts at one blow. Or, take the social life of the people. If God's will prevailed there could not be any slums or starvation. Or, take our international affairs. There would be no war. Everything, whether politics or art or games, would all be conducted on a different principle. Now, these Crusaders of the Industrial Christian Fellowship went about all day and half the night during their Crusade preaching this. They went out in the streets and talked at the corners and answered questions from the atheists and Communists.

They were not afraid to tell the employers just as much as the others where they thought a change was wanted. They went to the Rotary Club and talked religion just as plainly as they did at the street corners. They took a lot of trouble to explain what they thought it would mean if the Kingdom of God was established in all the different parts of life as we know it at the present day. Instead of talking about what was going to happen when we were dead they talked of what was likely to happen tomorrow morning if we would come into the Kingdom of God and submit to Him. They had a lot of opposition, and it was the way they met this that made me most of all come round to their way of thinking. Some people, good religious people, said they were "unspiritual" and only thought about people's bodies and how they could be better fed. But this was not true. I heard more sermons about people's souls than I did about their bodies. They told us quite plainly that it was not the "Kingdom of Comfort," but the "Kingdom of God" they were after. They said that so far from being a comfortable doctrine they were preaching it would mean self-sacrifice and something like Christ's Cross for them all if they accepted.

Then there were others who sneered at them and said, "You are mixing up religion and politics. Politics are not sacred." The preacher replied, "If politics are not sacred, they ought to be." It is because we have so often not mixed up religion with our politics that so much of our politics have been selfish and bad. On the other hand, there were some Communists who said, "You are doping the people. They won't strike if they listen to you. You try to make them forget their present miserable condition by promising them heaven hereafter." The preacher said, "That is not so. We want anyone who is suffering from injustice to be rescued from it as soon as possible, and we believe it can be done if all classes will unite in wanting the Kingdom of God here and now. But if you preach class war you will never bring about the Kingdom of God, because God is Love, and you are serving a god of hatred."



As I listened to these debates I came to see that Jesus Christ is the only one who has ever proposed any remedy for the ills of the world and and that the only reason why there is all this injustice and misery on the one side and this profiteering and luxury and covetousness on the other is because, though we call ourselves a Christian country, we ignore Him in nine-tenths of our social life. We build up a society which is not Christian.

That is what the Bible calls "the World," and it is the exact opposite of the Kingdom of God which Jesus Christ came to found. It is quite clear to me that we are a very long way off the ideal which these Crusaders preach. Christ is not yet the Lord of all human life anywhere. But it is a glorious idea and it makes me much more keen on going to church than ever I was before. We church people are out for the biggest adventure in the world. Fancy bringing the whole world to the feet of Christ. That is a war worth waging. It requires energy and hopefulness, and a lot of courage. I should not be surprised if one of these days I felt I must go out to the missionary field. It seems to me that here in the old country we Christians are half asleep. Perhaps the heathen, as we call them, are going to give us a lead. They get converted and they don't go to sleep as we do. In India and Africa and all over the world they are talking about Jesus Christ in a way we most of us are afraid even to whisper. But for the present, I suppose I must be content to do a little of this Crusade work in the place of business where I work. I must put in a word for Christ whenever I have the opportunity. Already I have got some of our trade union chaps to read some Christian books and hear some sermons.

It is not the clergy only who are wanted to do this work. Each of us, wherever he is, has got to introduce this thought of the Kingdom of God into everyday life. It is a new idea for most of us. More shame to the Church that after 1,900 years that which Jesus preached should be a new idea in a Christian country. How many times I have said: "Thy Kingdom come: Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven," and never thought what it really meant.

Reprinted by arrangement from The Torch, organ of the Industrial Christian Fellowship.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD.

THE picture is of the altar in the Chapel of the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, the dossal curtain and altar vestments having been recently designed and executed by the firm of J. M. Hall, Inc., of New York. The dossal is in blue and gold brocade, with orphreys of velvet. The white vestments, used at special services, show on the frontal the four stars of the Admiral's flag, to which every midshipman aspires, under the benediction of the cross. The antependium is of solid blue, the letters in gold being the symbol of the sea. The fringes are in the navy blue and gold. In the gradine under the cross may be seen the crossed anchors of the seagoing man. On The pulpit and lectern hangings are reproduced the cross and stars of the altar frontal.

* * *

The annual dinner of alumni and friends of the Berkeley Divinity School was held in New York on November 29th at the Hotel Ambassador. Mr. R. Fulton Cutting presided and speeches were made by the Rev. Elmore M. McKee, pastor at Yale; Dean Robbins of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine; Mr. George W. Wickersham, who once upon a time was the Attorney General of the United States, and Dean Ladd of Berkeley, who said that the school would be in New Haven next fall, that the move would be part of Connecticut's celebration of the 200th anniversary of Bishop Berkeley's historic voyage to America, and that the present dean of Derry would come across the Atlantic in the fall of 1928 to help commemorate the thrilling deed of his great predecessor. Dean Ladd is not given to puns but he did make it clear to the assembled brothers and sisters that a lot of other folks will have to "come across" in the meanwhile if the party next fall is to be the success hoped for.

Mr. McKee said: "We at Yale believe Berkeley will add something to the sum total of our academic and religious life. The Episcopal Church has a distinctive contribution to give and certainly a great university center is a strategic place in which an Episcopal seminary might make its contribution in a constructive and large-minded way. Such a center is also the recruiting ground for both the clergy and the lay leadership of the future."

Dean Robbins, after expressing the belief that America is standing upon the threshold of a new age of faith, evidenced in the unprecedented interest by newspapers and publishers in religious subjects, said the present trend — "properly characterized by Professor Pupin as 'the new Reformation' "—constituted a challenge to the Church to make provision for its future leadership by planning wisely, largely and far-sightedly for the training of men for the ministry. He thought Berkeley's affiliation with Yale a striking and important step in the right direction.

Mr. Wickersham emphasized particularly the need of a highly trained clergy to meet the intellectual demands of the modern, college-trained generation. "Increased stress upon ritual," he said, "which is one course being followed to redress the loss of leadership we know the Church must face, will not stay the hunger of the present-day world of eager, instructed minds. The course we must follow is rather to give our postulants the best available education that books and men can furnish; for the minister must know men of today if he would lead them."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

A national radio song service on Christmas Eve in which the whole country is invited to join in the singing of carols, has been arranged under the auspices of the Federal Council of the Churches with the co-operation of the National Religious Radio Committee.

It is the first national broadcasting program to be sponsored by the Federal Council. The National Religious Radio Committee, which is composed of prominent representatives of various Protestant communions, was initiated by the Federal Council to enable the churches to make a more effective and nation-wide use of the radio.

"This Christmas Eve service is an indication of the immense possibilities of the radio in awakening and cultivating interest in religion," said Dr. Charles S. Macfarland, chairman of the committee. "It is expected that similarly impressive services will be sponsored from time to time, especially in connection with the great religious festivals which are so dear to the hearts of all the people. The participation of church people of many communions in all parts of the country in services such as these should go far in developing a sense of their spiritual unity."

Leading stations of the country will carry the broadcast, including WEAF, New York City; WGY, Schenectady; WGR, Buffalo; WJAR, Providence; WFI, Philadelphia; WCAE, Pittsburgh; WTIC, Hartford; WWJ, Detroit; WHAS, Louisville; WSB, Atlanta; WTAG, Worcester. It is expected that other stations also will co-operate in the program.

The service begins at 10:30 p. m. and continues until midnight of Saturday, December 24. "Everyone," states the program, "is invited to join in singing the old familiar carols as led over the radio, thus uniting in a great nationwide chorus of praise and joy on Christmas Eve."

* * *

Property for a new mission of St. Luke's Parish, Evanston, Ill., Rev. George Craig Stewart, rector, has just been acquired by the rector and vestry at Kirk and Ashland Avenues in southwest Evanston, a few blocks from two stations on the new Skokie Valley extension of the Northwestern "L." This district, which lies to the west of Asbury Avenue (the extension of Western Avenue, Chicago) and just south of the new Oakton Boulevard, opened recently, is rapidly developing and St. Luke's mission will be the first Church on the ground.

* * *

A memorial service was held on December 8th in the chapel of Kenyon College for the Rt. Hon. Lord Tyrell-Kenyon, patron of the college and great grandson of the second Lord Kenyon who was the chief donor to the founding of the college in 1824, who died in England on November 29th.

* * *

The men's club of the Cathedral, Boston, invited the men of forty clubs in the Boston area to attend a meeting which was held last Thursday in the crypt, when Professor Robert Ward of Harvard spoke on the present immigration law.

* * *

The convalescent department of St. Luke's Hospital, New York, located in Greenwich, Conn., was dedicated last week. The speakers were Bishop Manning, Rev. George F. Clover, superintendent, Mr. Stephen Baker, president of the board of trustees, and the Rev. F. G. Budlong, rector of Christ Church, Greenwich. Among

A MISSIONARY PICTURE GALLERY

Through 1928, THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS will bring each month to its subscribers the portrait of one of our Missionary Bishops, (chosen in order of Consecration) with a brief story of his work and field.

The supplements are printed on heavy paper, 6¼x9¼ inches, suitable for framing.

Helpful, informative, for the home, Guild Room, Parish House and Church School.

Yearly subscription at $1.00, will bring the set of twelve, one each month, which can only be obtained with THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS as copies are not sold separately.

Send your subscription order now in order to receive the complete set of portraits.

$1.00 A YEAR

—o—

The Spirit of Missions

281 Fourth Avenue -:- New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

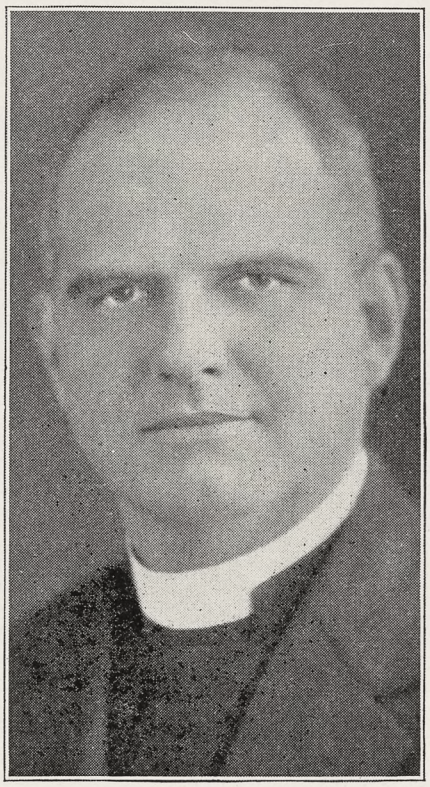
those present were Governor Smith of New York and Governor Trumbull of Connecticut. The new building is a gift of Mrs. Keith Arnold who gave 200 acres of land and $1,000,000. The trustees are soon to seek other funds to the end that the sick of New York may have the benefit of the resources of the Church.

* * *

At the recent Thanksgiving Day service of all the Episcopal Churches of the Springfield (Mass.) district, held in the Municipal Auditorium in that city, Bishop Charles Fiske of the central New York diocese, who gave the address, said, according to the Springfield Republican's report:

Protestantism is breaking down in many places because "it has rather gone off the track and has drifted into the idea that Christianity has the purpose of snooping into other people's business. Protestantism is disintegrating because it hasn't group consciousness and it has not held to worship.

"I have been interested recently in gathering out of the newpapers the announced sermon topics in some of the other churches in my diocese. Here are some that I found: 'Thanks for the Buggy Ride,' 'The Tragedy of the Tuxedo' and 'The Facts About Fraternity Row.' Here's another one by a man who announced a series of sermons on advertising slogans; he actually had the audacity and irreverence to preach on 'Three in One Oil' and make it a sermon on the Holy Trinity.



"It is those kind of things that are breaking down the reverence of Protestants and are building up an idea that God makes a sort of magnified Rotarian. Thank God this Church of ours does not do that."

* * *

The gift of a new chapel to Trinity College by W. G. Mather, Cleveland, iron ore magnate, is announced by the board of trustees. Mr. Mather, who is a member of the board, was graduated from the college in 1877. The new chapel will complete the present building program of the college, which includes the erection of a new gymnasium, chemistry laboratory and dormitory.

* * *

Between 25,000 and 26,000 persons from every state in the union and 22 territories and foreign countries have contributed to the building of Washington Cathedral and its associated institutions, since the receipt of the initial gift in 1898, it was shown in data made public by the Cathedral authorities. The individual gifts have averaged well over $200, more than $6,000,000 having been contributed to the project since its inception. One of the largest contributions received by the Cathedral totaled $550,000 and was made in legacy by John A. Kasson, a former Minister to Austria Hungary, who first came to the capital as a congressman from Iowa and later enjoyed a distinguished career in the diplomatic service. The smallest contribution on record was the gift of ten cents from an anonymous donor. The Cathedral also has been the recipient of many unique gifts. These have included books for the Cathedral Library, rare paintings, old lace, a collection of valuable crosses, and precious stones and jewelry, such as gold wedding rings and a gold thimble, to be melted for the Holy Communion service of the High Altar in the completed edifice. A workman also gave his services, working for an entire month without remuneration.

BISHOP STEVENS
A Leader at Youth's Conference

* * *

Ground was broken December 12th for the new St. Paul's, Yonkers, New York, a church which will represent the expenditure of considerably over two hundred thousand dollars. The first shovelful was turned by the widow of the Rev. William M. Gilbert, for twenty-eight years rector of the parish.

* * *

The Rev. Murray W. Dewart, rector of Christ Church, Baltimore, was stricken with a sudden heart attack after his morning service on Sunday, December 4, and died almost imme-

25,000 CHURCHES USE
OSTERMOOR
CUSHIONS
BUILT - NOT STUFFED
Illustrated Booklet and Samples Free
Old Cushions renovated and recovered equal to new.
Ostermoor & Co., Inc., Dept. C, 114 Elizabeth St., N.Y

The Life Abundant
A Manual of Living
By
Rev. Robt. B. H. Bell, M. A.
Rector St. Thomas Episcopal Church,
Denver, Colorado.
Teaches Health of
BODY, MIND and SPIRIT
By the founder of
St. Thomas Health School
Denver, Colorado.
The Life Abundant Society
2288 Forest St.
Denver, Colorado
$1.25 Postpaid $1.35

SHATTUCK
A Church School for Boys
For 67 years Shattuck has been a leader among college preparatory schools in the West. It is not operated for profit. It aims to develop
High Scholarship,
Manly Character,
Christian Citizenship.
The military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall. Address The Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

Church Kalendar for 1928
(THIRTY FIFTH YEAR)
THE HANDSOMEST AND MOST USEFUL KALENDAR PUBLISHED
THOUSANDS SOLD BY CHURCH SOCIETIES
Kalendar Months in Colors. Tables of Lessons for Holy Days and Sundays. Proper Psalms for Seasons, Days, and Special Occasions. Tables of Psalms. "Black Letter" Saints Days.
SAMPLE POSTPAID 40c CIRCULAR FREE
ASHBY PRINTING CO.
Publishers - ERIE, PENNA.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

diately. He had been suffering from heart trouble for a year and had recently returned from a six months' leave of absence. The funeral was conducted in his own church on Wednesday, December 7, by the Rt. Rev. John Gardner Murray, Bishop of Maryland, and the Rt. Rev. Philip Cook, Bishop of Delaware. The service was a beautiful and triumphant Christian conclusion to a noble life. The chancel was banked with white flowers and the choir sang Easter hymns. The respect in which he was held is well indicated in the following editorial published in the Baltimore Sun:

"Baltimore can ill afford the loss of the Reverend Dr. Murray W. Dewart. His honest facing of facts, his loyalty to his convictions and his earnest advocacy of them were making him known to many besides his parishioners.

"One remembers him for that recent graphic illustration of his efforts to see reality—his recital of how, as chaplain in wartime, he had explained to many a man what the great war was about, whereas he had come to feel that those ignorant soldiers were wiser than he. For at last he realized that he also did not know. He had the honesty, and the courage in exhibiting it, of Sir William Robertson, to whom war appears 'a fool's game.'

"His courage, indeed, marked him. It is no light matter to take seriously what many a man agrees to set aside as unimportant or insoluble, and yet he spoke with conviction in his efforts to make religion a vital force in every element of human behavior.

"He made much of the simple virtues—honesty, humility, love. His death brings to a tragically early end the life of a man who, in a few years, had won friendship and sincere respect to a degree that gave indication of the still higher place he would have attained in Baltimore's affection in years to come."

* * *

Church Army will soon have quite a small fleet of motor mission vans, as in addition to the renewal of caravan work in the dioceses of New York and Vermont, this method of helping rural clergy will be undertaken also in the dioceses of Connecticut and New Jersey next spring.

* * *

The school for training young American laymen in lay evangelism in the American Church Army opens at McVickar House, Providence, on the Feast of the Epiphany; a staff of lecturers having been appointed, drawn chiefly from clergy and laymen within easy reach of Providence. Captain G. F. Turner of the Church Army is to be the superintending evangelist. The Sunday evening services at the Pro-Cathedral of St. John, Providence, will be conducted by these young men on alternate Sundays as an Evangelistic Service.

* * *

Canon J. G. Simpson of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, is visiting this country in January, as a representative from English headquarters of the Church Army and will visit their Training Centre, and lecture there, during the latter part of January.

Canon Simpson's engagements, which are being arranged under the auspices of the Church Army, include an address at the General Theological Seminary, at Evensong on January 13th, and preaching on January 15th at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York, in the morning, and at the Cathedral of the Incarnation, Garden City, L. I., in the evening. He will also preach at the Church of St. James, New York, on the morning of January 29th, and in Providence on the 22nd, and will lecture at Trinity Church, Boston, on the 26th.

* * *

A summons to church people to penitence and prayer to free our nation from the evils of lynching and mob violence has been issued by the Federal Council of Churches through its commission on race relations.

"Lynching is a crime which leaves its stain upon us all," the call declares. "Any community that flouts the dignity of the law and courts of

BOOKS BY OUR EDITORS

CUSHIONED PEWS by Bishop Johnson.

A book of forty essays which you will surely want if you haven't it already. Was $1.75—Now $1.25 postpaid.

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH by Dr. Atwater.

This classic, which has already sold in the thirty thousands, is the book to use with Study Groups.

Paper—65c postpaid. Cloth—$1.10 postpaid.

THE DIVINE COMMISSION by Dr. Wilson.

Bishop Anderson says: "Dr. Wilson has done a brilliant piece of work in this sketch of Church History." $1.10 postpaid.

I PRONOUNCE THEM by Dr. Studdert-Kennedy.

A novel dealing with the problems of marriage by this famous author. $2.15 postpaid.

May we also call your attention to

THE CHRIST WE KNOW

A very unusual book on the life of Christ written by Bishop Fiske of Central New York. $2.10 postpaid.

WITNESS BOOKS

6140 Cottage Grove Avenue

CHICAGO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

justice opens the way to the violent rule of the mob throughout the nation. It assaults the very ideals upon which our civilization is dependent. A nation's penitence and prayer must be summoned both to check the lynching evil and to build up deeper respect for the processes of justice and new sympathetic understanding among all the people. In the attitude of penitence and the atmosphere of prayer the best things come forth."

"The sobering fact that more than four thousand people have been victims of lynching in our country has filled all people of goodwill with a sense of horror and shame," states the call. "That mob violence should have continued through the years, so that in 1926 there were as many as 30 persons lynched in the United States, is so flagrantly opposed to the progress of right and brotherhood that all who are committed to the way of Christ are asked to observe a day of penitence and prayer that our American nation may be purged of this blot upon our civilization."

The day chosen for this observance is February 12, known as Race Relations Sunday.

* * *

The Connecticut Interseminary Conference, the members of which are Yale Divinity School, Hartford Theological Seminary and Berkeley Divinity School, met at Berkeley in Middletown, Conn., on Friday, December 2, to discuss the topic, "The Translation of Christianity into Modern Life." Prof. Alexander C. Purdy of Hartford met with the group to discuss "Modern Christianity and the Need for a Vital, Personal Religion." No attempt was made to define "modern" Christianity. Various means of developing a personal religion were considered, such as prayer, the social gospel, worship, religious education, and devotional and Bible reading, all of which were thought to be dependent upon a vital personal religion for their force and influence. It was decided that personal religion may be developed by both social and individual means, and that the two are dependent on each other.

The topic "Modern Christianity and International Peace" was discussed under the leadership of Prof. Tucker Smith of Y. M. C. A. College, Springfield, Mass. The consensus of opinion in the group was that international good-will and co-operation has not been developed as it should be, that there are many forces today which are working to bring about friction between nations, and that Christian ministers can do a considerable work in effecting international peace. The psychological approach to congregations of "particularistic" tendencies received a great deal of consideration.

Discussion of "Modern Christianity and Prohibition" was led by Mr. Albert Simmons of the International Collegiate Prohibition Association. The ways and means by which a clergyman might aid the cause of prohibition were discussed, the general conclusion being that it is best done through preaching and personal suasion. The activities of some parsons, as stool pigeons and agents provacateur, were roundly censored. The group felt that prohibition was a good measure and that it had come to stay. Several made the interesting statement that the liquor law is violated to a greater extent by college men and the leisure class than by workingmen.

Prof. Jerome Davis of Yale supervised the discussion on "Modern Christianity and Industry." It was felt by the group that modern industry is conducted along lines that are opposed to Christian principles, and that individual clergymen could do much to help the labor movement by surveying industrial conditions in his community, talking with employers and employees in his congregation, acting as arbiter in disputes, conducting forums, and preaching a message that shows the vital relation between Christianity and the economic life of society. Most of the group had had experience in industry, and all agreed that students-in-industry projects should be encouraged.

Those who were able were invited by Wesleyan University to remain over until Saturday and attend a "Symposium on Religion" being conducted by the University. The lead-

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills.

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

LITTLE WITNESS BOOKS

THE PERSONAL CHRIST
By Bishop Johnson. 50c a copy.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH
By Bishop Johnson. 35c a copy.

EVOLUTION
By Geo. Craig Stewart. 35c a copy.

THE BIBLE AND EVOLUTION
By Postell Witsell. 50c a copy.

THE WAY OF LIFE
By Bishop Johnson. 50c a copy.

FOUNDATION STONES
By H. P. Almon Abbott. $1.25 a copy.

ESSAYS TOWARD FAITH
By A. Q. Bailey. 50c a copy.

A MAN'S RELIGION
By J. A. Schaad. 35c a copy.

VICTORY OF THE CROSS
By N. R. High Moor. 50c a copy.

WITNESS BOOKS

6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Hospital of St. Barnabas

SCHOOL OF NURSING

Offers 2½ years course leading to R. N. Degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll now.

For full information, address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING
Hospital of St. Barnabas
Newark, N. J.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

WANTED—CHARGE OF A PARISH OR mission work by a presbyter whom circumstances have compelled to become a non-parochial. Able, experienced, diligent, conservative, a good reader and extemporaneous preacher. Address G. F. S., Witness, 416 Lafayette Street, New York.

THE SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY will furnish vestments, altar hangings and linens at moderate cost. Also Priests' girdles, hand-made of imported linen thread. Sisters of the Holy Nativity; Fond duc Lac, Wisconsin.

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London, W. I., England.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL
Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.

Address: Secretary

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request. Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, also chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses, $7.60 up, burse and veil, $15 up; Silk damask cope, $120; Silk damask chasuble, $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel., Cleveland 52.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

$896,942

This is the sum which must be collected in December by the Dioceses for the work of the General Church in order to balance the Budget.

For the maintenance of the work of the General Church in 1927, General Convention approved a Budget of		$4,212,370
General Convention told the National Council to adjust appropriations yearly to meet expected income. In February, 1927, the National Council reduced appropriations under this "Pay-as-You-Go" Plan by the sum of .		254,313
This left the net appropriations at		$3,958,057
The National Council estimated that it would be able to save during the year on these appropriations because of vacancies in the staff and other savings, the sum of		200,000
This leaves the estimated expenses of the National Council for the year 1927 at		$3,758,057
Toward these expenses the Council will have from interest on its endowment funds and from the United Thank Offering of the women of the Church an amount estimated at .	$702,370
The Council expects from gifts not applicable to quota and from other sources the sum of	75,000
This gives a total of income other than gifts on the quotas of		777,370
The Council therefore needs from the Dioceses to meet its estimated expenditures		$2,980,687
When making reductions in appropriations in February, 1927, the Council provided for an estimated surplus for the year of		2,656
There is thus needed from the Dioceses to balance the Budget for 1927 . .		$2,983,343

(NOTE: This is the exact amount which the Dioceses told the Council it might expect to receive during the year.)

The Dioceses have paid to December 1st	2,086,401
To balance the Budget there must be paid in December	$896,942

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL

281 Fourth Avenue New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York
139 West Forty-sixth Street
Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D., Litt.D.
Sunday Masses, 7:30, 8:15, 9, 10:45.
Vespers and Benediction, 4.
Week-day Masses, 7, 8, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

ers of the Symposium were Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Dr. William Adams Brown of Union Theological Seminary, Dr. John Haynes Holmes of Community Church, New York, Fr. John H. Cooper, of Catholic University, Washington, D. C., and Dr. James H. Leuba of the department of psychology, Bryn Mawr College.

* * *

Now here's an idea—the women of St. Mary's, Brooklyn, were recently the guests of the women of the Redeemer, Brooklyn, with about sixty present. Service, then luncheon, after which the heads of the various organizations of the two parishes swapped ideas, each disclosing their most successful methods.

* * *

St. John the Baptist parish, Brooklyn, is attempting to raise $100,000 for a new church. A number of prominent Brooklyn business men, not members of the parish, are giving their aid.

* * *

Plans have been made for a National Young People's Conference to be held next summer at Sewanee. Among the leaders are Bishop Stevens of Los Angeles, Bishop Dallas of New Hampshire, Rev. Karl Block and the Rev. John Suter, Jr.

* * *

The Church of St. John's-in-the-Wilderness at Paul Smiths, N. Y., a widely known summer resort and a place associated with the life and work of Dr. Francis B. Trudeau, was completely destroyed by fire on the morning of December 4. The fire was not discovered until the building was in ashes, and it is supposed it had its origin in an electric transformer installed for the organ. St. John's Church contained many beautiful memorials, a number of which were to Dr. Trudeau, and the church itself was in a measure his memorial. The loss of these may be irreparable, and of course the destruction of the church will be keenly felt because of the associations which had endeared it to the community and to visitors.

* * *

The Diocesan Boys' School, under the management of a special committee of five Chinese with Mr. Johnson C. Y. Leo, as chairman and principal, opened in September, 1927, on the Boone Compound, Wuchang. The committee had in mind the following three purposes: (1) to provide an educational opportunity for our Christian boys of Junior Middle School grades since education for boys of this age is considered indispensable; (2) to make use of the Boone buildings and equipment so as to avoid their standing uncared for or, worse still, their being occupied by unruly soldiers; and (3) to utilize the teach-

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 9 (French) 9:30. 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily: 7:30 and 10 A. M. and 5:00 P. M

The Incarnation, New York
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m., 4 p. m.
Daily, 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursday, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder, D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11 A. M., and 8 P. M
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursday, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 7, 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., Fri., and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30 and 11:00 A M., 5:00, 6:15 and 8:00 P. M.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp and Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

4 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses

Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.

Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country: its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — In a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100,000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

ing abilites of those teachers who remained on after the closing of Boone last May.

* * *

Bishop Creighton writes of his pleasure in his return to Mexico and in the share which he and Mrs. Creighton had in the ceremonies and functions attending the arrival of Ambassador Morrow. He writes also of visiting Hooker School and the House of the Holy Name.

* * *

A store building on the business street of Helper, Utah, has been rented and definite Church work in the Coal Camps now begun under the leadership of the Rev. John Leacher. It is hoped and expected that this will be the center of a really strong work. Helper is the center of a whole group of Coal Camps which have been left under Episcopal Church direction by the Home Missions Council of Utah. Up to the present there has not been a single center for Church work in the whole section, except for the work of the Mormons.

* * *

The Rev. Lewis G. Morris, for seven years rector of Christ Church, Rochester, N. Y., has given his resignation to the vestry, requesting that it take effect on Dec. 31st. During these seven years, the parish has grown in membership and in giving power both to the local work and to the General Church. The names of 841 persons have been added to the communicant list, of which 282 were received by Confirmation. The congregation has erected and equipped a beautiful and commodious parish house. Dr. Morris has no plans for the future. He says, "I hope to keep employed by doing supply work for a few months, and then I want to secure a parish large enough to keep me very busy but small enough to enable me to do real pastoral work, to know the people and be known by them. I am tired of being chiefly the executive head of a big corporation."

Clerical Changes

AVEIHE, Rev. Carlos, of Green Bay, Wisconsin, is to become vicar of Trinity, Orange, California, January 1st.

BAILEY, Rev. Harlan, has taken charge of St. John's Mission, The Needles, California.

CANNON, Rev. F. B., formerly in charge of St. Paul's, Goodland, Kansas, is to serve as locum tenens at The Good Shepherd, Wichita Falls, Texas.

CLARK, Rev. C. A., rector of St. Peter's, Pittsburg, Kansas, has accepted a call to the rectorship of the Epiphany, Independence, Kansas.

MILLER, Rev. Frederick C., formerly of St. Peter's, Santa Maria, California, has accepted a call to Grace Church, Oceanside, California.

STANLEY, Rev. W. P., St. Andrew's, Lexington, Kentucky, has been appointed priest-in-charge of All Saints, Toledo, Ohio.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, jurnalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.

(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary.

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L.,

Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.

Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO

Church Training School

President: The Bishop of Chicago.

Director of Studies: The Rev. F. C. Grant, S.T.D.

A two year course of practical work and study to prepare women for service in the Church. Address:

DEACONESS FULLER

211 So. Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL

Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Silent Night, Holy Night; Adeste Fidelis; Hark! the Herald Angels Sing—how compelling, how powerful, yet how sweetly musical these familiar hymns sound when carried through the crisp, joy-laden Christmas air by Golden-Voiced Chimes! What an inspiring voice for the spirit of Christendom—what an eloquent expression of a world's rejoicing.

Chimes for your Church. Doesn't that thought appeal? A simple, fully tested plan, which we will gladly explain, will place Deagan Chimes in your Church long before another Christmas comes around.

J. C. Deagan Inc.
ESTAB. 1880

161 Deagan Building · Chicago

Standard Sets $6,000 and up

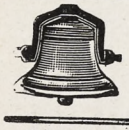
Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ALMS BASIN WORSHIP—W. E. Johnson

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, DECEMBER 29, 1927

REV. HENRY WILLMANN



Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Henry - Wynd - Young Inc.
314 East 34th St. New York
worker in glass mosaic church decorations

For "Daylight Projection"
of Slides, Opaque Objects and Films use
BALOPTICONS
There is a model for every projection purpose. Write for literature on modern projection methods and apparatus.
Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. 697 St. Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.

Tower Chimes Played From Electric Keyboard at Organ
Church Bells — Peals
McShane Bell Foundry Co.
Baltimore, Md.

Vestments
For the Clergy and Choir. Altar Hangings. Tailoring
Inquiries given prompt attention
J. M. HALL, Inc.
174 Madison Ave. (Suite 403)
(Bet. 33d & 34th Sts.) N. Y.

MENEELY BELL CO.
TROY, N.Y. AND 220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS FORMERLY WEST TROY N.Y.
1826 THE OLD MENEELY FOUNDRY
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone Vanderbilt 8761

Memorial Windows
Monuments and Church Furnishings
IN WOOD, METAL, STONE, FABRICS, COLOR
CHARLES F. HOGEMAN
45 Seventh Ave., Bet. 13th and 14th Sts.
NEW YORK
460 and 474 Main Street, ORANGE N. J.

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS
Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street
Designers of
HISTORICAL WINDOWS
Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.
Clerestory Windows
St. Thomas Church New York City
Stained Glass, Mural Decorations,
Glass Mosaics

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church Vestments and Embroideries for half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St. New York

Moller Pipe Organs
The highest standard of musical excellence. Every organ designed and built special for the particular Church and service and fully guaranteed. Every part built in our own factory. References, organs in over five hundred Episcopal Churches alone, including many of the most prominent. Booklets and specifications upon request.
M. P. MOLLER
Hagerstown, Maryland

The Ellwood Potts Studios
5438 Market Street Philadelphia, Pa
MEMORIALS IN STAINED GLASS, MOSAICS, and MURALS
If interested write for cuts of some of our recent work.

Giannini & Hilgart
Stained Glass
English Artists
550 & 552 W HARRISON St. CHICAGO

R. GEISSLER, INC.
56 W. 8th STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y.
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1877

DEAGAN
Tubular Bell
Tower Chimes
The one most beautiful form of memorial
Standard Sets, $6000 up
J. C. DEAGAN, Inc.
161 Deagan Building, Chicago
Played Direct From Organ Console

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY LTD:
EXETER
and 4 & 5 Duncannon St:
Charing Cross LONDON
ECCLESIASTICAL ART · WORKERS
in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal and
Stained Glass

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.), Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

Windows of Merit
Beautiful Groupings
Gorgeous Combinations of Color
Well executed by
The Von Gerichten Studios
Columbus, Ohio. New York City

THE ROSSBACH ART GLASS CO.
— Office and Studio —
221-223 E. Fulton St. — Columbus, Ohio.
DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS OF ECCLESIASTIC MEMORIAL WINDOWS.
— Photos, Designs and Estimates Upon Application —
ESTABLISHED: 1905.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WITNESS

A National Paper of the Episcopal Church

Vol. XII. No. 19. Five Cents a Copy $2.00 a Year

EDITOR, RT. REV. IRVING P. JOHNSON; MANAGING EDITOR, REV. WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD; BOOK EDITOR, REV. CHARLES L. STREET; ASSOCIATE EDITORS, REV. GEO. P. ATWATER, REV. FRANK E. WILSON, REV. A. MANBY LLOYD, REV. H. P. ALMON ABBOTT, BISHOP STEVENS, REV. W. A. JONNARD.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Published Every Week EPISCOPAL CHURCH PUBLISHING CO. 6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

WORSHIP WITH THE ALMS BASIN

The Need of Reverence

By

REV. W. EVERETT JOHNSON

WHEN a man of experience enters a building of any kind he can usually tell the use to which the building is put—this is a building from which things are sold; this is one for offices, and so on. With that in mind, let us enter a church building, supposing us to be ignorant of the purpose of the building. We find that the chief article of furniture is a desk, behind the desk is an organ with chairs before it evidently intended for singers facing the audience. The major portion of the auditorium is filled with seats, perhaps arranged in a semi-circle. It does not take much experience to decide that we are in a listening place; the people who assemble here expect to listen to addresses, readings, and singing.

We enter an Episcopal Church, as ignorant as before of the purpose of the building. Here we find that the chief article of furniture is an altar; the organ is placed on one side of the space before the altar, as is the desk for reading and speaking and the seats for the singers; there is nothing between the altar and the central space where the people sit. If we know the purpose of an altar, we can but decide that we are in a giving place, listening is subordinated to giving in this building.

If all the buildings erected by man for worship, Christian, Jewish, or heathen, were yet standing intact, and we might enter them, we would find that the older ones all had altars; its use being as ancient as any worship of God, or a god, worthy of the name, worship. Only in some modern buildings erected for religious assemblies would we find listening to be the factor emphasized, and the altar missing.

Then we who attend services in an Episcopal Church should clearly understand that we go to church to give, listening being subordinate to that. Of course, we give praise and thanks to God, and give to God the hour devoted to the service, part of which we may do without using the altar in any way, as in Morning Prayer. If we have the service of the Holy Communion, we must have the altar, but that use is not that with which I am now concerned but the use to which we may put it at any service.

In most of our churches in which Morning Prayer, is said or sung at mid-day, after the service and the sermon, a collection is "taken up." Did you ever think of the reason for using that expression: "Take up the collection?" You probably never have, but the question is answered in the asking—it is going to be "taken up" to the altar as soon as the wardens have made the collection of the alms from the people. We, folks of the Episcopal Church, use a great many expressions in worship and conversation without a thought as to what they really mean.

When the time arrives for taking up the collection the minister repeats a capitulum; possibly you do not know what a capitulum is, although you have been attending an Episcopal Church all your life and hearing one every Sunday. The word "capitulum" is a Latin word meaning little head. When your minister begins Morning Prayer, he does so by saying a capitulum—"The Lord is in His holy temple: let all the earth keep silence before Him" is a familiar one.

Before the collection he may use this capitulum: "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in Heaven." Properly, this is a capitulum for the Offertory of the Communion Service, but it has become the custom to use it or some other at every collection. Its use means that the taking up of the collection is as much an act of worship as the prayers or chants, only many in the Episcopal Church do not regard it as such. Let us visualize the taking up of the collection in one of our churches from those who do not regard it as an act of worship.

The minister reads one of the capitula, the wardens take the plates and go from pew to pew. The man who does not look upon this as an act of worship puts his hand in his pocket and pulls out some bills or coins, looks them over, if he has a handful of coins from which to make his offering, he sees a silver dollar, a half and a quarter. If the sermon has been unusually good, he may select the dollar for the plate, if not, he may lay aside for his offering to God, the half or the quarter. The process is very much the same as that followed if he decides to give a beggar on the street something, and finds he has a nickel, a dime, and a quarter —possibly compromising with the dime.

All of this has nothing to do with the amount a man may offer, but with the manner of offering it. He has not been reverent in this act of worship, and it is the irreverence of the act that I am condemning. If I am asked to marry this same man, he most likely will tender me a fee. If he be a gentleman, the fee will be in an envelope, and quite often a brand new bill, if not a gold piece. I have married men who treated me as they do God or the beggar—look over a roll of bills and hand me one, sometimes two, and make me feel like a man he is paying for mowing his lawn. I have had some very small fees given in so polite a manner that the amount could be ignored.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

We get ready to go to church; shave, put on a clean shirt and collar, polish our shoes, and so on. We are quite particular as to the preparation of our bodies, but often so particular that we have to hurry at the last minute, or be late. It probably takes a half hour to do this, if not more. Suppose that a man preparing to go to church were to take two minutes to decide what he was to put upon the plate. He spends that time in thinking after this manner: "I must give the two dollars I pledge to the support of my parish church; to what else shall I give this morning? I ought to give something to the Diocese, to the National Church for its missionary work; I ought to give to the poor. It is some time since I gave anything to the National Church, so I shall make an offering for that this morning." So he takes an envelope, encloses his offering, and marks it, "National Church." He places his two dollars in another envelope marking it, "For Support of the Parish." When the plate is passed to him he places his two envelopes upon it and so makes a thoughtful, reverent offering.

It is a curious fact that churches having very little ceremony with their worship have more at the offering of the alms than at any part of the service. One of the purposes of ceremony is to emphasize the words being used or the act being performed; it is also an outward mark of reverence. It is the duty of the congregation to prevent the ceremony of placing the alms on the altar from being an empty form, for empty forms are an abomination unto the Lord.

In all this, I bid you mark, that it is not generosity I am urging, but thoughtful reverence. You know what it is to make a wedding gift to a bride when you are one of the "also invited." You hardly know her, much less her fancies, tastes, and desires; so you give her something. You know what it is to make a wedding gift to one whom you love dearly, when you give much thought to secure a gift that will meet her fancies, tastes, and desires, that you know so well. Treat God as you do the loved bride. In either case, you do not put your present in a paper bag, such as grocers use, but give much attention to paper and ribbons which are the ceremonial part of the gift. Your church is a "giving church" and expects you to make giving the chief feature of your worship, and that giving, not only generous, but thoughtfully reverent.

On the Cover

THE Rev. Henry Willmann, rector, Trinity Church, Janesville, Wisconsin, this month celebrated completion 20 years' pastorate, longest in history of parish, and longest continuous record on list of clergy on present diocesan record. Graduate, Nashotah, 1900, served as missionary in charge Hartland, Pewaukee and Pine Lake in diocese of Milwaukee, built stone church at Pewaukee during senior year in Seminary, largely the labor of his own hands. For four years, curate, St. Mark's, Jersey City, returning to Diocese Milwaukee, December, 1907. Served four years as assistant secretary diocese Newark; sometime Archdeacon of Madison Convocation, Diocese of Milwaukee, in addition to duties as rector of Parish. Later for four years secretary of Diocese of Milwaukee — also Rural Dean of Madison Convocation. Author, "How Church Came to Wisconsin." Effected consolidation of two parishes in Janesville in 1920. Born in New York City, church life nurtured in Trinity Parish. Twelve years' business life in publishing house before ordination.

Let's Know

ANY DIFFERENCE?

By Rev. Frank E. Wilson

HERE is a curious question which came in to me for answer over the radio: "The average man professes to know little about religion but wants to live an honest, good life and—is demonstrably superstitious. What is the difference religiously between this average man who does not know what it is all about and the idol worshipper of Africa."

Such a question probably ought to be answered two ways. In the first place, let's try it from a different angle. In the interior of Angola reigns a great king or emperor. When his subordinates decide he is losing his vigor and has reigned long enough, they arrange a war with a neighboring tribe in which the king must be their leader. At some critical stage in the campaign, they all desert the king and his family. Then the king mounts his throne and calls his family around him. His mother approaches first and the king cuts off her head, after which he does the same to his sons, his wives, and any other relatives. He then awaits his own death, which is accomplished by an officer sent from powerful neighboring chiefs. First the officer cuts off the king's legs and arms and then his head, after which the officer himself is beheaded. Then a new king is chosen and things go on as before.

Well—what's the difference between the people of Angola and the average American citizen who goes to the polls on election day to cast a more or less indifferent vote with the object of taking off the political head of some office-holder who, he thinks, has encumbered public life long enough? Of course, it is all the difference between savagery and civilization.

So it is with the idol worshipper and the average Christian. The former is living up to the standards of heathenism while the latter is in some measure living up to Christian standards. The net results are scarcely comparable. It makes a great deal of difference what kind of God you worship, however inadequate your own worship may be. Only the other day a woman tried to tell me that people had a right to choose their own religion and that it made no difference which religion they might choose so long as they were in earnest about it. I told her she ought to live for a while with those very religious Africans and she might change her mind.

To be sure, there is another aspect to the question. Apart from general results, might it not be true that the personal attitude of this average man and that of the African native regarding their respective religions are about on a par? But there I think the questioner is not giving sufficient credit to the intelligence or the sincerity of the average Christian. I know perfectly well that people often seem discouragingly childish about their Christianity, yet I am nevertheless convinced that they are more serious over it than appearances would indicate. Frequently people from whom I would least expect it, talk to me on religious questions which they have been mulling over in their minds with remarkable earnestness. Sometimes their conclusions are a bit wierd but the popularity of religious books and the growing news value of religious matters to the daily press tell me that the average man is not nearly as indifferent as he is often said to be.

The tenth anniversary of the liberation of Jerusalem was observed on December 9 with the customary State service in the Anglican Cathedral of St. George, in Jerusalem, attended by Field Marshal Lord Plumer, High Commissioner of Palestine, and his principal officials. The service was conducted in English, Arabic, Hebrew, Greek and Armenian, and both the Orthodox and the Armenian Patriarchs took part.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

PRAYER BOOK AS MYSTERY DRAMA

Drama of the Canticles

By

IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

AFTER the First Lesson the Te Deum ordinarily is sung. This sublime hymn was composed, it is said, by Ambrose, bishop of Milan, at the time of the baptism of Augustine. Both these characters are full of inspiration. Ambrose, military governor of the Roman capital of Milan, was chosen bishop by the voice of a child. Having been consecrated, he refused to allow the emperor himself to enter the church, until he had done public penance for the massacre of the Thessalonian martyrs.

The life of Augustine is told at length in his Confessions and in his City of God. He was bishop during the taking of Rome by the barbarians, and his writings set him among the greatest philosophers of all time.

Pageants illustrating the Te Deum can be made of the lives of these two men, followed with scenes illustrating the hymn itself.

The Te Deum as we have it is a misprint. The real hymn of Ambrose consists of an exultant Credo, and ends with the words:

"We therefore pray thee, help thy servants, whom Thou hast redeemed with Thy precious blood;

"Make them to be numbered with Thy saints, in glory everlasting!"

That is all of the Te Deum proper, a fitting and glorious close. But then, in the early prayer books. followed a series of versicles and responses, just like "The Lord be with you—and with thy spirit."

If you will read them over, you will see:

V. O Lord, save Thy people:—
R. And bless Thine heritage.

V. Govern them;
R. And lift them up forever.

V. Day by day we magnify Thee:
R. And we worhsip Thy name, world without end.

V. Vouchsafe, O Lord;
R. To keep us this day without sin.

V. O Lord, have mercy upon us:
R. Have mercy upon us.

V. O Lord, let thy mercy be upon us:
R. As our trust is in thee.

V. O Lord in Thee have I trusted;
R. Let me never be confounded.

All these versicles are found in other places in their proper character as versicles. They were simply copied into the canticle by some scribe who was accustomed to singing them after the Te Deum, and subsequent scribes followed him.

The advantage of this discovery is that it has shortened the canticle, as well as improving its significance. There is a pronounced let-down of interest, and a lowering of intensity, from the high level of the hymn of praise. This can be avoided if these versicles are sung in the ordinary manner. Try it thus: after the chanting of the Te Deum let the minister, or one of the men in the choir, chant the versicles with the choir chanting the response in the ordinary way. After a time the congregation, being told what the reason is, will learn and join in.

These versicles and responses might be used in other places, as before the collect in Morning Prayer, which is really where they seem to belong.

The "O All Ye Works of the Lord," sung ordinarily in place of the Te Deum in Advent and Lent, is known in the Apocrypha as the Song of Three Holy Children, whom Nebuchadnezzar threw into the burning fiery furnace. This hymn is a roll call of all creation, beginning with the Heavens, the Powers, the Sun and Moon, the Stars and Light, and summoning each thing, small and great, to praise the Lord and magnify him forever. Sum and climax of all creation, the purpose and object for which it all was undertaken, are the Holy and humble men of heart; for it is in such holy and humble hearts that the Lord has chosen his habitation.

The Hymn of Zacharias, sung at the birth of John Baptist, celebrates the opening of the Gospel. It lends itself to pageantry so wonderfully well that it should be a part of every Christmas pageant.

Of all the canticles, the Jubilate Deo surely has suffered most in printing. As we have it, it is all but unsingable. Divided as it should be into shorter verses, it becomes far more intelligible, and more beautiful:

O be joyful in the Lord; all ye lands;
Serve the Lord with gladness: and come before his presence with a psalm.
Be sure that the Lord He is God: it is He that hath made us, and not we ourselves.
We are His people: and the sheep of His hands.
O go your way into His gates with thanksgiving and into His courts with praise.
Be ye thankful unto Him: and speak good of His name.
For the Lord is gracious; and His mercy is everlasting:
And His truth endureth: from generation to generation.

Make it eight verses, instead of four, and instead of gabbling, sing it!

What is there dramatic about this psalm? Analyze it. The man who composed it was a shepherd, and was inviting his people to enter a great temple on some occasion of thanksgiving. It calls to mind David at the Dedication of the Temple.

Thus having linked ourselves with Old Testament and with New, with God revealed in Jesus Christ through his messengers and his saints, we stand and say, "I believe." It is not enough that we acknowledge the existence of God, of Ambrose and David, of Augustine and John Baptist; each one of us, individually, must say, "I believe." "Our Father" is supplemented by "I believe!"

Having believed, acting out our belief is an obligation. Justified by faith, we must show our faith by our works. These works are set forth in order. Primarily, the obligation is for personal peace, sure in that knowledge of God in which stands our eternal life. It is for personal rectitude. But then our obligation is for good citzenship; for loyal church membership: to help all in affliction or distress in mind, body or estate.

Having thus set in order before us the vows and obligations, the service ends with the Lesser Eucharist. Eucharist means "thanksgiving." The General Thanksgiving is an act of devotion, of self sacrifice, of consecration, ". . . show forth thy praise by giving up ourselves to thy service. . ."

Most dramatic of all Christendom's heroes is Chrysostom, with whose prayer the office closes. Son of an imperial Roman general, most famous of Antioch's lawyers, he abandoned wealth and power for the life of a hermit on the Anti Lebanon. Summoned thence, he became a preacher in the Antioch cathedral; he was kidnaped by order of the new emperor, Arcadius, carried 800 miles, in a chariot, and made Patriarch of Constantinople against his will.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Then he denounced cruelty and oppression, wicked greed and frivolity in the emperor's court, preaching in the cathedral next the place. Exiled once, for his outspoken courage he was recalled when the people rose in revolt. Exiled again, he died in torture and suffering on the bleak shores of the Caspian sea.

Before our eyes this roll of heroes passes, as step by step the drama of Redemption is enacted, with ourselves and God as the chief participants. It is a Mystery, a setting forth of truths too big to be expressed in brief; and yet it is but a prelude to and a foretaste of that sublimest of Mysteries, the Holy Eucharist itself.

Cheerful Confidences

SUNDAY SCHOOL PRIZES

By Rev. George P. Atwater

THIS is the time of year when Sunday School superintendents stand before their schools and dangle prizes for attendance.

"I have here four prizes," says the superintendent. "The first prize will go to the pupil that has the best record for attendance from now to July. The second prize will go to the second best record. In case of a tie for first place, we shall let the contestants draw lots and one will take the first prize and the other the second prize."

So the rules are laid down, and the contest starts. Jimmie and Susan have not missed Sunday School since the year of the double mumps, and it is conceded by all that they will get the first prizes. The only question is which is to be the most successful in avoiding chicken pox. This or measles might cause one or the other to lose a lap.

After a month or two has passed about 80 per cent of the children are hopelessly in the rear, and the hope of reward has no effect upon them at all. Later in the year, Billy, who has had a chance for third place, is carried off by his parents for a visit to his aunt in Kalamazoo, and Billy takes the count. So it goes.

Near the end of the year four pupils are interested in maintaining their places, and the others have lost all interest.

That system is all wrong. It should never be inaugurated in any school. It is not effective, and it is unfair.

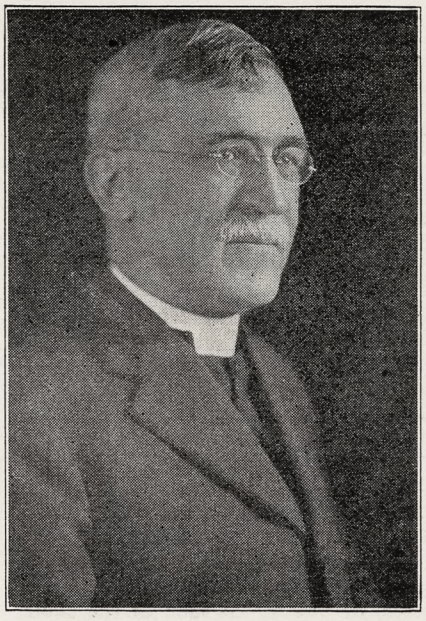
If prizes are offered they should be made possible to every pupil who maintains a certain record. If, for example, there are to be forty sessions of the school from October to July, the prize should be offered to every pupil who has a record of thirty-six Sundays. An allowance of four Sundays should be made so that the pupil is not hopelessly out of the contest if he should be absent for a Sunday. This sort of a contest would maintain the interest of the pupils far more effectively; only the hopelessly careless would be left behind.

Likewise, new pupils could enter the contest as soon as enrolled, and be entitled to a second prize if they maintained a 90 per cent average from the day of enrollment.

But care must be taken that such rewards are not relied upon to maintain the interest of the children. They are quite subordinate. The school must establish its attractive power upon several basic features. They are:

1—Provide a cheerful and attractive room for the school.

2—Begin on time.



3—Have cheerful music and short services in which the pupils actually say or read as much as possible.

4—Get good teachers who will prepare their lessons.

5—Call upon absentees.

6—Provide variety of group activities.

This is a very sketchy program, I realize. Some one in your school ought to make it a business to become an expert in school methods, and to read the modern literature about church schools. There is no excuse today for dull schools, unless the leaders are hopelessly dull, and even that is no excuse.

BISHOP REESE
On Finance Committee

On St. Thomas' Day, December 21st, Bishop Stires advanced to the priesthood his eldest son, the Rev. Ernest Van R. Stires, in the Cathedral at Garden City. Mr. Stires is in charge of a new mission at Bellerose.

My Discipleship

By H. Adye Prichard

NO TRAPPINGS His, no pride of rank or place,
No unconditioned choice of where and how,
No lofty crown upon a jeweled brow,—
Naught save God's spirit in a human face.

No blare of trumpets from the choirs above,
No sceptred right, no brief electoral sway,
No elbowing police to keep the way,—
No hold on men save an abounding love.

No facile priesthood, weaving plot with plot
To guard a selfish, vain prerogative,—
Twelve friends, discounting death with Him to live,
Twelve friends unbending, — save Iscariot!

They called Him Lord—and yet He washed their feet;
They called Him Master—yet for them He died;
To them His gentleness was sanctified,—
And yet He racked them on the judgment seat.

No path of churchly ritual they trod,
No sponsored vows their Jesus seemed to need;
They pinned their faith to one sufficient creed—
Thou art the Christ, Son of the living God.

His smile of thanks was all they ever craved,
His the request that planned the dawning hour,
His the achievement, His the mastering power,
His word of praise their only accolade.

Fortune's twelve friends! And how can I match them?
I, twenty centuries after, I, too late,
I, modern madness' victim, unregenerate,
How can I share their fadeless diadem?

Only if His one sacrifice sufficed
To ensure for me His presence, living now;
Only if He explains each why and how;
Only if I can seize the mind of Christ.

I am no creature of a church or creed,

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

I am no creature of a passing whim;
I only know I am in love with Him;
I only know He answers all my need.

Twice blest are they, who saw Him face to face,
And we must wander all this age away!
Uncomprehending twelve — thrice blest are they
Who know His eyes—we only know His grace.

But I will follow down that bloody road,
The Via Dolorosa of the soul,
Where sick and old have walked, and been made whole,
Where faithful warriors pass to God's abode.

The mind of Christ! That is my sure release,
My passport to the realms where He provides
An eternal home, and, like a shepherd, guides,
My feet into the peace that passes peace.

About Books

CHILDREN OF THE SECOND BIRTH, By S. M. Shoemaker, Jr. Revell, $1.50.

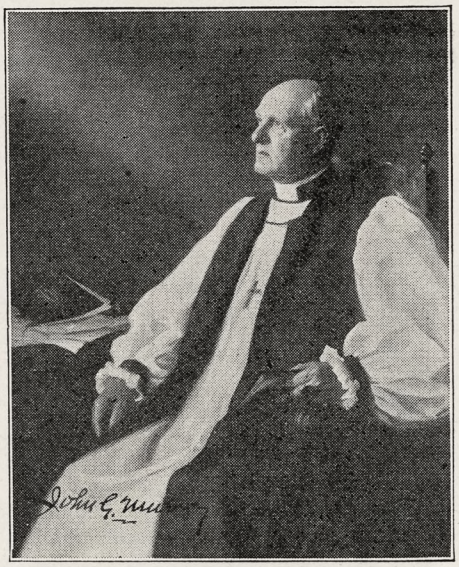
In Children of the Second Birth there are some accounts of life changes which have taken place at Calvary Church in New York. There have been many sensational accounts of the work. Controversies have raged over it. Any one who has a friend whose cousin had some first hand information about it is eagerly seized upon in religious or social circles everywhere to contribute his morsel of information. The issue is a live one.



Opinions of the work vary widely. It is said to be caused by psychic power, by pandering to sex instincts, by the desire for novelty, by a hunger for God, by a thirst for a religious reality, by all sorts of motives innocent or vicious. The results are said to be good or bad, real or negligible, permanent or temporary, varying widely in every particular.

The net result of all this for those who are far away from it, is the perverse conclusion that it isn't serious, that it merits no consideration. The human will prefers not to be faced with alternatives and is not easily drawn into controversies which it can keep at a convenient distance. It prefers to treat as non-existant events which might influence its direction. And yet the events recorded in this book are non-existant as anyone knows who is near them. Something is happening. This book is a simple account of what is going on. It might be called, "Varieties of Religious Experience in a City Parish." The stories are told for the most part in the first person, so that a dispassionate reader can study religious psychology as coolly as James did. It is well written and genuine, more authentic in detail than Harold Begbie's More Twice Born Men. It describes conditions which are nearer the conditions met with in the average church.

The sub-title, however, is not "Varieties of Religious Experience," but "A Narrative of Spiritual Miracles"; so the book has a bias, and the bias is that God can work directly in human life in this way.

Children of the Second Birth is a challange, an inspiration to a harder ministry. It is not comforting to those at ease in Zion.

C. L. Glenn.

BISHOP MURRAY
"Parishes Leave Him Alone"

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By E. P. Jots

An Irish Presbyterian chaplain, on being ordered down the line, said his adieu to a Roman Catholic priest, who had shared his dugout.

"Good-bye, padre," he said. "I'm sorry we have to part. With all our differences we have been very good friends. We've got on together finely. But, then, we're both doing the Lord's work—you in your way and I in His."

* * *

"Evesdropping again," said Adam as his playmate fell out of the apple tree.

* * *

A student nurse, inexperienced in reading the clinical thermometer, was horrified when, taking the temperature of a patient, that instrument apparently registered 120. She hurriedly despatched a note to the doctor.

"Please come at once. Number three's temperature is 120."

The doctor did not come, but he sent this message:

"You had better send for the fire engine—I can do no good."

* * *

First Kid: "Gee, Jimmie, when I went by your house this mornin' I heard somebody swearin' somethin' awful!"

Second Kid: "Aw, that was my dad. He was late for church an' couldn't find his Prayer Book."

* * *

Little Boy—"Mother, are there any men angels in heaven?"

Mother—"Why, certainly, dear."

Little Boy—"But mother, I never saw any pictures of angels with whiskers."

Mother—"No, dear, men get in with a close shave."

* * *

Most people will agree that it is better to make a few mistakes in trying to cultivate politeness than to make no efforts whatever in that direction.

Little Mary had been taught politeness, and was an apt pupil. One day the minister called, and Mary, waiting carefully for a pause in the conversation, remarked, "I hear we are going to have the pleasure of losing you."

* * *

Passing the blame for any trouble on to the woman is a very old habit, as the following story will prove:

At the close of a hot day, Adam was returning with his hoe on his shoulder, from a hard day's labor, to his humble cottage. Maybe it was a cave. That doesn't matter, for it was a humble abode. Young Cain was running ahead, boylike, throwing rocks at the birds. Suddenly they came upon a beautiful garden. "Oh, father!" said Cain, "look at that beautiful garden. I wish we could live there."

"We did live in that garden," said Adam regretfully, "until your mother ate us out of house and home."

* * *

A small boy had slapped a little girl. The teacher was quick to rebuke the youngster. "Jackson," she said, "no gentleman would strike a lady." The boy was all ready with his reply. It was: "Well, no lady would tickle a gentleman."

* * *

The Rev. William H. Lax, also mayor of Popular, Eng., paid a pastoral visit to a coster who had lost his voice by laryngitis.

"Thank ye, Sir," said Billy's wife. "I knowed ye'd be sorry, 'cos ye're like Billy; yer both earn yer livin' with 'ollerin'."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

WHAT'S COMING IN ENGLAND

A Few Forcasts for 1928

By

A. MANBY LLOYD

THE year 1928 is likely to be an epoch-making one, both in Church and State. Assuming, for the once, the prophet's mantle, we may look for a general election in the spring, with a labor government in office, if not in power. It all hinges on the flappers' vote.

Ramsay MacDonald is in the labor saddle, but at any moment he may be unhorsed by Philip Snowden, a thorough-going collectivist with an Utopian mind and vision that is alien to the Puritan soul of his chief. Among the ruck of the labor men the lamp of Ruskin and Morris has gone out. They stole the lamp, but a new party —the party led by Belloc, Shaw, Chesterton and the Guild socialists, have kept the flame. They are known as the Distributists and their organ is "G. K.'s Weekly."

MacDonald is hated by the extremists and H. G. Wells has a poor opinion of him and wants Snowden to lead the party toward the right—that is—toward a coalition with the liberals.

There will be a rare fight in the communist camp: Cook and Havelock Wilson are daggers drawn; Wheatley wobbles between the two. While the Scotch contingent votes solid for anything that smells of Moscow, it is equally abhorred by George Lansbury and Jack Jones. Not a lively prospect for the man who has to lead.

* * *

Of course the new Prayer Book will go through and as the use of the old Book is still the option, trouble will not develop all at once. Most of the Anglo-catholics will go on as usual, for they have nothing to gain. Their use is modeled on a living church and not on anything dug up at the British Museum. They want no permission for the mass, vestments, incense, reservation, etc. They claimed all these things long ago and they are not going to argue about them now. Their fathers went to jail and faced mobs for these liberties and they are regarded as the normal use. But many a priest who has to meet with strong opposition from a flock, brought up under another tradition, and harrassed by an Erastian bishop, in the alternative service will find that backing he requires. The Low church party, almost to a man, will fight revision to the bitter end. There can be only one issue, one certain outcome and that is—DISESTABLISHMENT—and then anything may happen.

There will be a loud demand for

BISHOP TEMPLE
Makes Startling Proposals

Synodical government of the Church, but that is impossible while the State controls the Church. The severance will come with a rush, just as Home Rule for Ireland did. People talk and debate for a hundred years without any apparent result and then, all at once, comes a landslide—it may be that God Himself steps in and decides the issue.

* * *

The Bishop of Manchester has made two bold proposals which are likely to be discussed throughout Christendom for some time. Addressing his diocesan conference, he said that because the Church of England claimed to represent the true order of the Church in this country, they should be ready to welcome to their Communion as a normal practice communicants in any recognized body. He went further by insisting that they must come to the conclusion that not only a Free Church minister, but any layman who should devoutly and not defiantly decide that it was right for him devoutly to celebrate the Holy Communion, would effect a real consecration and through it the real gift would be given, and that Anglicans who were unable to receive Holy Communion in their own order should receive it in this way. Bishop Temple takes his stand, first, on the canonical rule that any baptized Christian presenting himself in good faith is entitled to receive the Communion, unless he is personally excommunicated; and, secondly, on the declaration at the Lambeth Conference that the great non-Episcopal bodies are to be recognized as in a real sense parts of the universal Church. "If that is so, it seems to me that one way of acting on this recognition is to accept their own disciplinary arrangements, and formally to welcome those who are by them actually admitted to Communion." Bishop Temple puts forward these suggestions now partly because as one of the delegates to the Lausanne Conference he feels responsible for thinking out what is the next step the Anglican Church might take, and, further, because if the Lambeth Conference of 1920 is to take any decisive step a great deal of discussion should take place before it meets. The Church Times is of course wholly opposed to these "grave departures from Catholic principles and precedents." The Church of England Newspaper and the Record support the bishop, the former remarking that if Dr. Temple can persuade his Episcopal brethren to follow his lead the problem of reunion will very soon be solved. Welcoming the proposals as "a breath of healing" in the stress of controversy, and as opening up a broad pathway of unity of spirit, the Christian World remarks: "We see but little hope for many a day of corporate reunion; but a true Christian unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace is what we do long for. And until Christian men, of all persuasions of Church order, can meet together at the Lord's Table as brothers in the household of faith, even the Christian unity for which all right-minded men earnestly pray can hardly be more than superficial."

* * *

Shaw's new play "The Glimpse of Reality," will be produced in New York, and a famous cynic will make a lecture tour of the middle west. There will be a large increase in the numbers offering themselves for Holy Orders, a reaction from the Bullock-Webster episode. And your correspondent wishes every one of his faithful readers

A Happy New Year.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Brief Paragraphs

Edited by

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THREE major matters considered by the National Council at its regular meeting on December 14 and 15 were the disposition of the Children's Lenten Offering, the status of the Woman's Auxiliary, and the adjustment of quotas.

There has been a general demand in the Church that the Lenten Offering of the children should be devoted exclusively to missionary work, and not be subject to the division of funds as between the diocese and the general Church, which is the almost universal custom today. The Department of Religious Education brought in the following resolution, which was adopted by the Council:

> RESOLVED: That the Children's Lenten Offering throughout the Church should be an offering designated for the general work of the Church and not for diocesan or parochial work, and that all moneys secured through the Lenten Offering should be remitted undivided to the Treasurer of the National Council.

At the October meeting of the Department of Missions a resolution was introduced by the Bishop of Washington, asking that this department, through the National Council, should give a word of assurance to the Woman's Auxiliary that the work of the Auxiliary should go forward unimpaired and unhindered. This resolution was referred without discussion to the National Council, and by it was referred, together with much correspondence which had been received on this question, to a special committee composed of Bishop Burleson, the Rev. Dr. W. H. Milton, Mr. Richard I. Manning, and Miss Grace Lindley, executive secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary. This committee reported at this meeting of the Council; the report was unanimously adopted, and was ordered printed. The report may be secured by writing the National Council, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York. It is too long to be reproduced here; but we do want to pass on the word that the Council assures the Woman's Auxiliary that their work shall go forward unimpaired and unhindered.

* * *

General Convention of 1925 authorized the Presiding Bishop to appoint a committee of one bishop, one presbyter and three laymen to consider the advisability and possibility of a revision of the basis and percentages of apportionment, looking toward the fairest possible distribution of responsiblity for the General Church Program, this committee to report to the National Council. The committee was composed of Bishop Slattery, chairman; the Rev. B. H. Reinheimer, Messrs. Reynolds D. Brown, Frank G. Merrill, and Arthur Boehm.

Bishop Slattery presented this report in person. It was placed in the hands of the following special committee of the Council for careful consideration: Bishop Reese of Georgia, Bishop Garland, the Rev. Dr. G. S. Stewart, the Rev. Dr. W. H. Milton, Dr. Franklin, Mr. Patten, Mr. Peterkin.

The General Convention Committee recommended that the basis for determining the diocesan quotas be a flat rate on the total of current parochial expenses, instead of the percentage basis on a sliding scale at present in vogue, which was adopted by General Convention of 1922.

The special committee appointed by the Council reported that while recognizing the difficulties now existing in certain dioceses concerning quotas, it was not prepared to suggest any change in the present plan of apportionment, and recommended that the quotas for the coming triennium be fixed upon the same basis and scale as heretofore. As the debate progressed it developed that under the flat rate plan the quotas of twelve of the large dioceses would be reduced while that of all of the seventy-five other dioceses would be increased. This was the dominant factor in the ultimate defeat of the proposed flat rate as against the sliding scale now in use. After a very general debate on the question, the resolution of the National Council Committee was adopted.

* * *

The treasurer submitted a statement showing that $896,942 must be collected in December if the budget for the year is to be balanced. He was hopeful that this could be done because in the final month of last year an even greater task was accomplished.

With regard to the old deficit of $1,534,303.99 existing as of December 31, 1925, and toward the extinguishment of which the dioceses at the General Convention of 1925 undertook to raise $1,406,650, the treasurer reported definite pledges or assurances amounting to $1,375,126. This leaves only $31,524 more to be pledged to complete what was undertaken in 1925. The announcement was made that the Hon. William J. Tully of Long Island, a member of the Council had given his personal assurance that the entire $100,000 from Long Island would be paid prior to the next meeting of Convention.

The Presiding Bishop was asked to consider plans whereby the balance of the deficit, $127,653.99, not covered by any pledges, might be raised before the meeting of Convention next October.

* * *

Appointments and changes in personnel included the following: The Presiding Bishop has appointed Bishop Bennett of Duluth as Bishop in charge of Missionary District of Wyoming, pending the election of a bishop.

Mr. Spencer Miller, Jr., was appointed for one year as part-time consultant on Industrial Relations, for the Social Service Department. He is to study industrial conditions here and in England, looking toward the possible establishment of a permanent office on Industrial Relations under the Social Service Department. Mr. Miller is now director of the Workers Educational Bureau of America, and managing director of the Press of that Bureau. He is a native of Worcester, Mass., and a graduate of Amherst and Columbia. During the past fifteen years he has made a study of industrial conditions for the New York State Factory Commission and in various capacities has been associated with the United States Commission on Industrial Relations, the United States Department of Labor, the Industrial Department of the United States Navy, the Industrial Administration of Sing Sing Prison, and has lectured at Oxford, Vienna, Prague, Brunsvik, Sweden, before the School of International Relations at Geneva, and before workers' educational classes in the United States.

Miss Helen C. Washburn of Philadelphia was elected a member of the Department of Religious Education, and chairman of that Department's Commission on Child Study.

Mrs. Robert Burkham of St. Louis was elected a member of the Department of Publicity.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Rev. W. J. Loaring Clark, who for the past five years has been General Missioner of the Field Department, has been elected a General Missioner of the national Commission on Evangelism.

* * *

The Rev. F. G. Deis and the Rev. C. E. Snowden were elected general secretaries of the Field Department.

Miss Frances J. Withers has resigned from the staff of the Department of Religious Education, effective July 1, 1928.

* * *

December 14 was the eleventh anniversary of Bishop Burleson's consecration. He received the congratulations of the Presiding Bishop and Council.

Greetings were sent to Bishop Brent and Bishop Winchester convalescent from illness, and to Bishop Griswold, recently recovered.

* * *

Two long time members of the Missions House staff retire on January 1, 1928: the Rev. Edwin B. Rice, registrar and custodian of archives, who came in 1895, and Mr. James W. Henry, second assistant treasurer, who came in 1899.

* * *

The Gold and Silver Offering conducted in a number of centers by the Woman's Auxiliary has brought in over $132,470, which is to be used for the rebuilding of St. Margaret's School, Tokyo.

* * *

In an effort to conserve the time and strength of the Presiding Bishop during the coming months, when so many matters of supreme importance are before him, and when he has the preparation for the approaching General Convention very much at heart, the following was adopted by the Council:

"The National Council, in the name of the whole Church, cordially congratulates the Presiding Bishop upon his swift restoration to full vigor following his recent illness. The resumption of his personal leadership in a critical hour as the fiscal year draws to a close is of the utmost importance to the national staff.

"At a moment when in restored vigor the Presiding Bishop begins this service, the Executive Council would suggest to the Church at large that for the present welfare of its Presiding Bishop and for its own major interest, the only valid claim upon his time and energy should be those of diocesan or provincial units.

"We appreciate the eagerness of parishes throughout the Church to welcome their chieftain, but inasmuch as each of six thousand such units has equal claims, and compliance with such requests from all is obviously impossible, parishes should loyally forego the privilege of such visitation.

"May we venture further to urge upon all the units of the Church that in view of the crowding number of methods and policies which must be considered and decided upon for presentation to the approaching General Convention, the strength of the Presiding Bishop should not be dissipated, nor his attention diverted, except in really important cases."

* * *

The last item of business was the plan for securing the data for the General Church Program for 1929-31. This plan carries out recommendations made by the Evaluation Committee and involves careful study of every unit in the Church now receiving appropriations from the National Council. The secretaries were instructed to report their findings to the April meeting of the Council.

* * *

The Rev. William Porkess, rector at Wilkinsburg, Pa., wrote a pamphlet a couple of years ago on Tithing. He wrote us at the time to say that he would be glad to have us call it to the attention of folks and that he would mail a copy free to any asking for it. As a result copies were sent to applicants living in twenty-two states as well as abroad. You can't get a copy now for they

Porto Rican Drawnwork
Exquisite Table Linens - Dainty Handkerchiefs.
St. Andrew's Craft Shop
Mayaguez, P. R. Hotel Palace, San Juan
Send for catalogue.

The Life Abundant
A Manual of Living
By
Rev. Robt. B. H. Bell, M. A.
Rector St. Thomas Episcopal Church, Denver, Colorado.
Teaches Health of
BODY, MIND and SPIRIT
By the founder of
St. Thomas Health School
Denver, Colorado.
The Life Abundant Society
2288 Forest St.
Denver, Colorado
$1.25 Postpaid $1.35

First Aid for Whooping Cough
Mother, just rub Roche's Embrocation on your child's chest and see the quick relief it brings.
Very soon it loosens the phlegm and overcomes congestion. Once you have learned its value, you will never be without it for emergencies.
Sold by All Druggists or
E. FOUGERA & CO., Inc., New York
W. Edwards & Sons, London, Eng., Proprietors
ROCHES EMBROCATION

Chicago Real Estate Bonds
Our experience with First Mortgage Chicago Real Estate Bonds, covering a period of twenty years, is outlined in a leaflet which we have just prepared.
The leaflet contains a brief analysis of some of the causes underlying the perfect record of safety borne by such issues handled by us during this period.
It is a concise statement of facts, which have a value for every investor. Copy of this, together with circulars describing our current offerings, will be sent on request.
Write for Leaflet W.
Peabody, Houghteling & Co.
10 South La Salle Street
CHICAGO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

are all gone, but Dr. Porkess has written another pamphlet called "Prayer and Perspective" which he will send to any of you that ask him for a copy.

* * *

A conference on social service was held in St. Paul's, Savannah, Ga., on December 11th, led by the Rev. Harry S. Cobey who is the head of the department in the diocese. At a service preceding the conference the sermon was preached by the Rev. Prof. C. B. Wilmer of Sewanee. There were three speakers at the conference, all authorities on child welfare which was the topic for the day. In the afternoon those attending the conference visited various institutions.

* * *

The Rev. Peregrine Wroth, for fifty years the rector of the Church of the Messiah, a down-town Baltimore parish, died on December 9th. His long rectorship was notable chiefly perhaps for the close contact he maintained with his parishioners. In his fifty years he performed over 900 marriages and 1600 funerals. In the diocese he held practically every important office in the gift of the Convention. In the religious life of the nation he will be remembered as having inaugurated the noon-day Lenten service, now so popular everywhere.

* * *

Things are moving along at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York. The announcement has been made that the fund of $150,000 for the Sports Bay has been completed with the anonymous gift of $59,000.

* * *

"It is a great surprise," said Bishop William T. Manning, "as well as a great satisfaction so soon after the completion of the fund for the Bay of the Historical and Patriotic Societies to be able to announce the completion of the fund for another of the nine community bays."

Twenty-six major sports—polo, golf, tennis, baseball, steeplechase, cycling, basketball, handball, swimming, gymnastics, yachting, bowling, billiards, racing, track and field, football, skating, hockey, soccer, fencing, wrestling, pole vaulting, boxing and motor boating—are represented in the chapel widow of the Sports Bay. This, according to Bishop Manning, will show that the cathedral is in touch with the whole of life.

* * *

Rev. W. Russell Bowie, rector of Grace Church, New York, was presented with a nice fountain pen last week as a prize for writing the best advertisement on the subject: "What the Church Has to Offer Men." It was given by the New York Advertising Club. Many New York parsons entered the competition.

* * *

Bishop Robins of Athabasca, Canada, was the preacher at the afternoon service last Sunday at St. James, New York. He told of the frontier life in Manitoba.

* * *

The Rev. Robert Renison of Eagle Rock, California, was killed last Monday by being run down by an automobile, the driver of the car fleeing and leaving his victim lying unconscious. He was taken to a hospital but died shortly after arriving without regaining consciousness. Canon Renison established several churches in California and gave three sons to the ministry.

* * *

Two nice preaching missions closed in Nebraska, one at St. John's Valentine, with the Rev. James N. MacKenzie of Grand Island conducting, and the other conducted by Dean Lee of St. Mark's Cathedral, Hastings, at Christ Church, Sidney.

* * *

Here is a Christmas present for

A MISSIONARY PICTURE GALLERY

Through 1928, THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS will bring each month to its subscribers the portrait of one of our Missionary Bishops, (chosen in order of Consecration) with a brief story of his work and field.

The supplements are printed on heavy paper, 6¼x9¼ inches, suitable for framing.

Helpful, informative, for the home, Guild Room, Parish House and Church School.

Yearly subscription at $1.00, will bring the set of twelve, one each month, which can only be obtained with THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS as copies are not sold separately.

Send your subscription order now in order to receive the complete set of portraits.

$1.00 A YEAR

—o—

The Spirit of Missions

281 Fourth Avenue -:- New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

you—the fellow who was paid $2000 to get "Elmer Gantry" ready for the movies has sent back the check with a little note saying that he has no mind to do a job that is so offensive to a large number of people.

* * *

Dr. Albert Parker Fitch, professor at Carleton College, who had three or four fine articles in the paper a year or so ago, has accepted the pastorate of Park Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York.

* * *

Here's something new—the hotels of Detroit, where 5000 college students are now meeting under the auspices of the Student Volunteer Movement, have agreed not to draw the color line during the convention.

* * *

Chicago claims that 90 per cent of its population is affiliated with churches, and the papers the country over immediately shout: "What an influence the remaining 10 per cent have."

* * *

The Rev. Aristides Villafana, in charge of the Spanish congregation of St. Luke's, San Juan, Porto Rico, has just returned from the synod of the second province with enough cash in pocket, received from many small gifts, to erect a much needed chapel in the country district near Trujillo Alto, where he has been ministering to a large congregation for a long time in a tobacco shed.

* * *

The Rev. Kenneth Miller, rector of the American church of St. John the Baptist, San Juan, has completed a six weeks' campaign for financing the church, the first systematic campaign in years. As a matter of fact the laymen did it all and did it most successfully.

* * *

Bishop Tyler of North Dakota is to spend the first six months of next year assisting Bishop Stires in the diocese of Long Island.

* * *

Christ Church, Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, has received payment of a legacy of $10,000 from the estate of Mr. James Warren Lane, a parishioner who died a few months ago.

* * *

Just heard the latest Scotch joke. I say: "Too bad about Sandy isn't it?" And you say, "Why, what happened to him?" Then I say dryly, "He went crazy trying to shoot off a cannon a little bit at a time." The poor Scotch, they do get panned, don't they, but for some reason or other I thought that very funny.

* * *

Those who were at the Girls' Friendly Holiday House at Milton, New Hampshire, last summer had a reunion the other day at St. Paul's, Boston. Brought box luncheons, cheered, sang songs and had a high old time generally.

* * *

The 5:10 afternoon service at St. Paul's Cathedral Boston, discontinued because of repairs, has been resumed.

* * *

Open house at the diocesan house of Massachusetts on Christmas Eve.

* * *

The Advent, Boston, has received $2,000 and $3,000 for their endowments from the wills of two former parishioners.

* * *

Rev. George S. Pine recently celebrated the completion of fifty years' service as rector of St. Paul's, Providence. Notable service.

* * *

Thanks a lot, you folks, for your opinions on the articles now appearing by Irwin St. John Tucker. Had a lot of them and without exception they are all high in praise. Several have asked that they be made up into a pamphlet and I hope that we can

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

◆ ◆ ◆

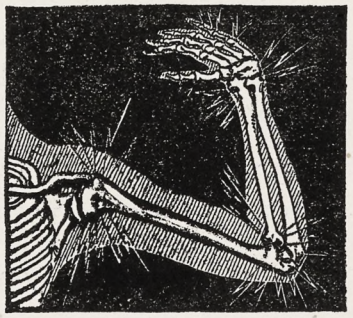
THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Education, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount St. Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

◆ ◆ ◆



Legal Title for Use in Making Wills.

The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia

Rheumatism

A Remarkable Home Treatment Given by One Who Had It

In the year of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Sub-Acute Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who are thus afflicted know for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, but such relief as I obtained was only temporary. Finally, I found a treatment that cured me completely and such pitiful condition has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, even bedridden, some of them seventy to eighty years old, and the results were the same as in my own case.

"I Had Sharp Pains Like Lightning Flashes Shooting Through My Joints"

I want every sufferer from any form of muscular and sub-acute (swelling at the joints) rheumatism, to try the great value of my improved "Home Treatment" for its remarkable healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address, and I will send it free. After you have used it, and it has proven itself to be that long-looked for means of getting rid of such forms of rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer, any longer, when relief is thus offered you free. Don't delay. Write today.

MARK H. JACKSON

38P Stratford Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y.

Mr. Jackson is responsible, above statement true.

Hospital of St. Barnabas

SCHOOL OF NURSING

Offers 2½ years course leading to R. N. Degree. Classes enter Feb. and Sept. Enroll now.

For full information, address

DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING

Hospital of St. Barnabas

Newark, N. J.

HARVARD SCHOOL

Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R.O.T.C., 28th year opens September 20th. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information address the Rev. Robert B. Gooden, D.D., Headmaster.

WANTED—CHARGE OF A PARISH OR mission work by a presbyter whom circumstances have compelled to become a non-parochial. Able, experienced, diligent, conservative, a good reader and extemporaneous preacher. Address G. F. S., Witness, 416 Lafayette Street, New York.

THE SISTERS OF THE HOLY NATIVITY will furnish vestments, altar hangings and linens at moderate cost. Also Priests' girdles, hand-made of imported linen thread. Sisters of the Holy Nativity; Fond duc Lac, Wisconsin.

THE WARHAM GUILD WAS ESTABLISHED in 1913 for the making of all "Ornaments of the Church and of the Ministers thereof." It supplies Surplices and Vestments, and furnishes Altars, etc. All work designed and made by artists and craftsmen. Descriptive leaflet from The Secretary, THE WARHAM GUILD, Ltd., 72 Margaret Street, London, W. I., England.

RACINE COLLEGE GRAMMAR AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL

Racine, Wisconsin

Founded 1852 as a department of Racine College and still conducted on original Foundation. Select non-military School for Boys. High Scholarship, atmosphere that of cultured home. Recommendations required. Terms: $70 per month.

Address: Secretary

PURE IRISH LINENS AT WHOLESALE prices, for Altar Guilds, Rectors, and others. Also Handkerchiefs. Samples on request. Mary Fawcett, 350 Broadway, New York City

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON and LONDON. Church embroideries, also chasubles, surplices, exquisite Altar linens, Altar hangings, etc. Stoles with crosses, $7.60 up, burse and veil, $15 up; Silk damask cope, $120; Silk damask chasuble, $40 up; Silk damask Mass sets from $60, imported duty free, if for the Church. Miss L. V. Mackrill, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel., Cleveland 52.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

not only do that but also persuade him to continue writing for us.

* * *

"More Rambles in Italy and My Audience with Mussolini" was the subject selected by the Rev. H. Anthony Dyer for his address before the Men's Club of Trinity Church, Boston, last week.

* * *

Labor should receive a cultural wage. Those who work in industry should be the employers using capital as a mere commodity. These are high lights in an interview with Owen D. Young, head of the General Electric Company, published in the current issue of Forbes Magazine.

"Not merely a living wage but a cultural wage," Mr. Young says, "must be the basis for the solving of the economic system of tomorrow. We have been talking for a long time about capital as being the owner and labor as being a commodity. I hope we will come to the day when human beings who give their lives to the job—if you want to call that labor—will be the employer and capital will be the commodity which they buy for their own account. The only outlay you would have to make would be for your capital and for its insurance. The remainder of the profits of that concern should be distributed among the human beings devoting their lives to it."

Mr. Young's idea parallels very closely with Fr. Bull's idea for the solution of the problems of capital and labor in his new book, "The Economics of the Kingdom of God." When an outstanding industrial leader such as Mr. Young agrees with a person like Fr. Bull, a socialist, it is time we revised some of our ideas as to the impracticability of bringing our present industrial order into harmony with the teachings of Christ.

The theory being on the way to acceptance, how are we to bring it into actual practice?

The National Catholic Welfare Conference News Sheet says: "The first gap in the cultural wage and workers' ownership program is the unanswered question of how they are to be brought about. How, in the first place, are the people to obtain a 'cultural wage?' Enormous numbers still do not make a living wage and this includes not alone wage workers but many salaried workers. Few make a cultural wage. How then are they to move on to workers' ownership of capital?

"A combination of labor unions bargaining with employers of cooperative undertakings and of legislation is the answer of Christian social teaching. But at the present time the unions are not growing, they are being attacked successfully and dangerously by injunctions, so-called 'unions' controlled by employers are being used to thwart labor, protective legislation is frowned upon and the Constitution as interpreted by the courts, is made to stand in the way of relief to labor.

"The record shows that few employers will voluntarily raise wages either to the living or the cultural standard. The record also shows that they often thwart attempts by economic force or by law to compel them to pay a living wage or a cultural wage.

"On the other hand, the unions have far to go yet in the development of a program which will turn the workers from executives on, throughout industry—into employers. Union-management co-operation is one step toward it. Labor banking, insurance and investment are other steps. Plans of government ownership of the few industries in which government ownership is considered advisable wherein those at work possess such functions of the employer, as sharing in management and profits, are in line with it. But union labor has consistently steered away from labor ownership of stock. It has discussed tentatively the conditions under which this might be adopted in a labor union program."

* * *

Here's a new one—and a good idea too. At Grace Church, Providence, a down-town church noonday services were held during Christmas week, the folks being urged especially to come in for a few moments and to forget the jam and hustle which is going to wreck Christmas pretty

THE NEW HYMNAL

and

THE NEW YEAR

The greatly improved congregational singing is largely due to the placing of the New Hymnal in the hands of the congregations.

- - - - -

Three editions are available.

The Standard Musical Edition is intended for the pews. It is well bound and in dark blue cloth and sells for $1.20 per copy, or, in lots of 100 or more, at $1.00 per copy.

The Special Choir Edition is bound in red buckram and is heavily reinforced. It sells for $1.50 per copy, or in lots of 100 or more, for $1.30 per copy.

The Word Edition sells at 40c per copy.

- - - - -

Carriage charges are extra.

Orders should be sent to

The Church Pension Fund

14 Wall Street New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Services

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean, Francis S. White, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11 and 4. Daily, 8, 11 and 4.

Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore
Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, 3 (Baptisms) and 8.
Holy Communion, 1st Sunday of month.

Grace Church, Chicago
Rev. Robert Holmes
St. Luke's Hospital Chapel until new church is built.
Sundays: 7, 10:30 and 7:45.

St. Paul's, Chicago.
Rev. George H. Thomas
Dorchester Ave. at Fiftieth St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Holy Days at 10 A. M.

The Atonement, Chicago
Rev. Alfred Newbery
5749 Kenmore Avenue
Sundays: 7:30, 9:30, 11 and 5.
Daily: 7:30, 9 and 5:30. Also Friday, 10:30.

St. Chrysostom's, Chicago
Rev. Norman Hutton, S.T.D.
Rev. Taylor Willis
Sunday, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.
Sunday, 4 p. m. Carillon Recital.

St. Luke's, Evanston.
Rev. George C. Stewart, D.D.
Sunday, 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily, 7:30 and 5. From Chicago, off at Main, one block east and one north.

The Ascension, Atlantic City
Rev. H. Eugene A. Durell, M.A.
Pacific and Kentucky Aves.
Sundays, 7:30, 10:30, 12, 8.
Daily 7:30 and 10:30.

Christ Church, Cincinnati.
Rev. F. H. Nelson and Rev. W. C. Herrick
Sundays, 8:45, 11, and 7:45. Daily 12:10.
Holy Days, Holy Communion, 10.

St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas.
Dean Chalmers and Rev. R. F. Murphy
Sunday, 8, 9:45, 10:45, and 7:45.
Daily, 7, 9:30, and 5:30.

St. Luke's, Atlanta.
Rev. N. R. High Moor
Sundays, 7:30, 11 and 5.
Church School, 9:30.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York
139 West Forty-sixth Street
Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D., Litt.D.
Sunday Masses, 7:30, 8:15, 9, 10:45.
Vespers and Benediction, 4.
Week-day Masses, 7, 8, 9:30.

There is space here for two
NOTICES OF CHURCH SERVICES
For the special rates write
THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

soon. They hung up a sign "Shop in the Christmas Spirit" and invited all to listen to a few carols and say a prayer or two.

* * *

The reconstruction of Trinity Church, Bethlehem, Pa., the Rev. E. L. Haines, rector, took place on the 11th, Bishop Sterrett officiating. Lots of new things and a new sanctuary and chancel all of which cost $20,000.

* * *

Christ Church, Williamsport, Pa., Rev. Hiram R. Bennett, rector, was reopened on the second Sunday in Advent, after the congregation had worshipped for six months in the parish house. All redecorated and beautified, a fulfillment of the term of the will of the late Mrs. Susan Baird. A rose window, memorial to the Baird family, was dedicated.

* * *

The Church Army, which has been winning constantly increasing enthusiasm for its methods in eastern dioceses, opens a Church Army Training Center in Providence, R. I., on the Feast of the Epiphany, for the development of an American branch of the work. "Help us find candidates," says Captain Mountford, "keen young men who don't yet feel called to Holy Orders but still want a man's job in the Church."

* * *

The Greek Orthodox Church of St. Andrew, South Bend, Indiana, is outstanding among Greek Orthodox parishes for the remarkable progress it has made in the two years since its establishment. It has a congregation of about 200, and serves a considerable area around South Bend. Marking its second anniversary a special service was held there on Sunday, December 4, with the Liturgy of St. John Chrysostom cerebrated by Bishop Johanides of the Greek Orthodox

Memorial

WHEREAS it has pleased Almighty God in his wise providence to take out of this world the soul of Francis A. Lewis, and

WHEREAS for forty-two years Mr. Lewis served the Church of St. James the Less as vestryman and accounting warden, in which Church his mother was reared and of which his maternal grandfather was one of the founders, and

WHEREAS in the history of the Parish no one man has ever had a greater length of service or been more faithful in the performance of his duties or more devoted to furthering the best interests of the Parish, therefore be it

RESOLVED that in his death the Rector, Church Wardens and Vestrymen of the Church of St. James the Less have suffered an irreparable loss, and humbly commend his soul into the hands of God, with a thankful remembrance of his life and service, and be it further

RESOLVED that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes and copies sent to his family and the Church Press.

Attest:
SAMUEL T. WAGNER,
Secretary.
Dec. 2nd, 1927.

Services

Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York.
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 9 (French) 9:30. 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily: 7:30 and 10 A. M. and 5:00 P. M.

The Incarnation, New York
Madison Ave. at 35th St.
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., Rector
Sundays, 8, 10 and 11 a. m., 4 p. m.
Daily, 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sunday, 7:30, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily, 7:15, 12, and 4:45.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York.
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Sunday, 8, 11, and 8. Church School, 9:30.
Holy Days and Thursday, 7:30 and 11.

St. James, New York
Rev. Frank Warfield Crowder , D.D.
Madison Ave. at 71st St.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 4.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays, 8, 11, 4, and 8.
Daily, 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday, Holy Communion, 12.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo.
Rev. Charles A. Jessup, D.D.
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11 A. M., and 8 P. M.
Weekdays, 8 A. M. and Noonday.
Holy Days and Thursday, 11 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis.
Rev. Don Frank Fenn, B.D.
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 7, 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., Fri., and Holy Days.

St. John's Cathedral, Denver.
Very Rev. B. D. Dagwell
Rev. Wallace Bristor
Rev. H. Watts
Sundays, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30 and 11:00 A. M., 5:00, 6:15 and 8:00 P. M.
Church School, 9:30.

All Saints' Cathedral, Milwaukee.
Dean Hutchinson
Juneau Ave. and Marshall St.
Sundays, 7:30, 11, and 7:30.
Daily 7 and 5.
Holy Days, 9:30.

St. Paul's, Milwaukee.
Rev. Holmes Whitmore
Knapp and Marshall Streets
Sundays, 8, 9:30, 11, and 4:30.
Holy Days and Tuesdays, 9:30.
Wells-Downer cars to Marshall St.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee.
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Sundays, 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta, 6 P. M.
Sheldon Foote, M.B., Choirmaster.
Magnificent new Austin organ.

St. James', Philadelphia.
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays, 8, 11, and 8.
Daily, 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays, 10.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S. T. M. and S. T. D.

ADDRESS

THE DEAN

1 Chelsea Square New York City

Episcopal Theological School

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Affiliated with Harvard University

For catalogue, address

THE DEAN

Berkeley Divinity School

Middletown, Connecticut

Address:

REV. WILLIAM PALMER LADD, Dean

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses. Privileges at University of Pennsylvania

Address:

DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS

Best Training — Minimum Cost

For information and catalogue write

REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.

Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean,

REV. BERRYMAN GREEN, D.D.

Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

HOBART COLLEGE

Geneva, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A. B. and B. S. High Standards; faculty of thirty. For catalogue and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D. D., Pres.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn, has one of the best pre-medical courses in the country: its excellence is proved by one-third of this year's entrance class preparing to study medicine. Of the nine honor men of a late graduating class at Yale Medical School, four of the nine honor men were Trinity College men who took the Trinity pre-medical course.

A Clean Mind — HOWE SCHOOL — HOWE — INDIANA — in a Sound Body

A Thorough and Select CHURCH SCHOOL for Boys.

Special attention given to College preparation. The Lower School for Little Boys Entirely Separate in New $100.000 Building.

Rev. Charles Herbert Young, M.A., Rector

ADDRESS P. O. BOX, HOWE, IND.

Diocese of Chicago, who also preached.

* * *

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Diocese of Honolulu has given a set of Communion vessels to St. Margaret's School, Tokyo, which are now used in the temporary chapel of the school.

* * *

So many requests have been received by the American Bible Society from flood sufferers in the Mississippi valley for Bibles containing Family Record pages, in order that the entries may again be made while the old and damaged records are still in mind, that the Society has issued some thousands of Bibles with Family Record, specially inserted. Owing to the destitute circumstances of many of the families, the distribution of these will have to be without financial return.

* * *

In celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of organized work of the Brazil agency of the American Bible Society a consecutive Bible reading campaign was started throughout Brazil on September 7th, the country's National Independence Day, which lasted until Universal Bible Sunday, December 4th, a period of eighty-nine days. The Gospels of Luke and John, the Acts of the Apostles and the Epistle of Romans, in which there are just eighty-nine chapters, were the books used.

* * *

Two groups of clergy in Long Island have developed a plan for meeting their own spiritual needs and obtaining help from each other in frank discussion of specific personal problems and in united intercessions for each other and for the church. It may be that other clergy, elsewhere, will find valuable suggestion in an account of it.

Clerical Changes

BAYLOR, Rev. J. William, deacon, has accepted charge of the colored mission of St. Andrew's, Lexington, Kentucky.

BOTKIN, Rev. Warren L., rector of St. John's, Parsons, Kansas, has accepted the rectorship of St. James', Texarkana, Texas.

DUE, Rev. Paul, rector of St. Peter's, Cynthiana, Kentucky, has accepted the rectorship of St. James, Bucyrus, and Grace, Galion, Ohio.

EDWARDS, Rev. Harold J., rector of Immanuel, Weston, Conn., has accepted the rectorship of Trinity, Seymour, Connecticut.

MONTGOMERY, Rev. Hugh E., rector of St. John's, Stockton, California, has accepted the rectorship of All Souls', Berkeley, California.

PLUMMER, Rev. A. Harold, in charge at Brownville Jct., Maine, has been placed in charge of St. George's, Sanford, Maine.

PURCHASE, Rev. H. G., non-parochial, is to be assistant at Trinity Cathedral, Newark, New Jersey.

SPENCER, Rev. E. P. S., rector of St. Paul's, Waterbury, Conn., has accepted the rectorship of St. Mark's, Mystic, Conn.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

A CHURCH COLLEGE OF ARTS AND LETTERS, with four years' work, leading to the degree of B.A. It meets the highest standards of scholarship set by the Middle States College Association and features inexpensiveness of living, intimate personal companionship of professors and students, and sincerity.

For tuition $250.00 a year; for a room furnished and heated $150.00 a year; for board in hall $250.00 a year; a total of $650.00.

The College is equipped for teaching men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, theology, jurnalism, or into classical, scientific, social, or literary research.

Address Bernard Iddings Bell, President.

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.

(Railway Station: Barrytown)

St. Katharine's School

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary

A thorough preparatory course for a limited number of girls.

School recommended by Eastern Colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, swimming and riding. Address

THE SISTER SUPERIOR

KEMPER HALL

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science, Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Saint Elizabeth Of-the-Roses

A Mother School

Episcopal—open all year, one hour from New York. Children 3 to 12 years. Usual studies, out-door sports camp, sea bathing. Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Directress. Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn. Telephone 2173—Ring 14. "The School that develops initiative."

Virginia Episcopal School

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Prepares boys at cost for college and university. Modern equipment. Healthy location in the mountains of Virginia. Cost moderate, made possible through generosity of the founders. For catalogue apply to

REV. WILLIAM G. PENDLETON, D.D.

St. Mary's School

Concord, N. H.

A HOME-LIKE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

College Preparatory and General Courses

MARY EVERETT LADD, B.L., Headmistress

BETHANY COLLEGE

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Topeka, Kansas

The Rt. Rev. James Wise, D.D.

Bishop of the Diocese, President

Accredited High School and Junior College. Unusual advantages in Music and Dramatic Art. 20-acre campus—out-of-door athletics.

CHICAGO

Church Training School

President: The Bishop of Chicago.

Director of Studies: The Rev. F. C. Grant, S.T.D.

A two year course of practical work and study to prepare women for service in the Church. Address:

DEACONESS FULLER

211 So. Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

MOUNT ST. GABRIEL

Peekskill-on-Hudson

Boarding School for Girls

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

As the Year Nears Its End

How Much of God's Money Is Still In Your Hands?

ARE YOU A PROPORTIONATE GIVER?

A PROPORTIONATE giver is one who gives each year a definite percentage of his gross income to God for Church and charity. It may be a tithe. It may be a smaller percentage. It may be the 15 per cent inferentially suggested by the income tax law. It may be more than this. Whatever the percentage he fixes it in advance.

BALANCING THE LORD'S ACCOUNT

As the year nears its end; he figures out how much he has still to expend as the Lord's steward. He selects the objects to which to devote this balance.

WHAT ARE YOU PLANNING TO DO?

As a member of the national Church are you giving a generous share to the general work of the Church?

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL

281 FOURTH AVENUE NEW YORK, N. Y.

NECESSARY BOOKS

ACTS OF DEVOTION

"A handy volume of carefully selected prayers articulating in the choicest diction every phase of a man's inner needs."—Rev. Irving Goddard.

Heavy Binding. Ideal Gift. Seventy Cents, Postpaid

THE MODERN USE OF THE BIBLE

By HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK

Rectors are buying this in quantity now and are placing it in the homes of parishioners.

Originally, $2.50 Reprinted at $1.00, Postpaid

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

By GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

It is well to have a supply of this book on hand for that person who doesn't quite understand.

Sixty-five Cents in Paper. In Cloth for $1.10, Postpaid

WITNESS BOOKS

6140 Cottage Grove Avenue CHICAGO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.